Board to consider $15 hike in student medical fee

By David Marpuy
Staff Writer

In December, the Board of Trustees will consider a proposal to raise the student medical fee by $15 per semester, in an attempt to meet mounting economic pressures, according to Samuel McVay, director of the Student Health Service.

The proposal would increase the fee $3.22 over the present fee of $4 per semester.

"The reason for the increase, just as straightforward as I can make it, is that it hasn't been adjusted in four years," McVay said. "Since 1968, inflation in the costs of medical care have risen about 20 percent per year."

Several student groups, including the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student Council, have endorsed the increase. It will take effect in the summer of 1982, if approved.

A study conducted by the Board of Trustees concluded that the increase was necessary to avoid a large deficit.

The costs of operating the service have risen steadily over the last four years, according to the report, from $21,109,607 in fiscal year 1978 to $24,277,202 in fiscal year 1981 ending June 30.

The report projects a deficit of $168,500 at the end of the fiscal year and a $600,000 deficit by the end of the fiscal year if the increase is not approved.

Those calculations are based on a projected 10 percent decline in enrollment of about 15 percent, 10 percent, and 5 percent in the end year and cost increases of 10 percent per year.

But while enrollment has declined in three of the past four years, the service still faces a large deficit next year, even if the increase is not approved, McVay said.

"If we don't get this, we'll have a deficit of approximately $600,000 to make up next year," McVay said. "That would call for important reductions in services."

Because of the unexpected rise in enrollment this year and a trimming of its budget, the service will finish this fiscal year with a deficit of only about $20,000, according to McVay, instead of the $388,000 deficit projected in the report.

The steady increase in operating costs can be attributed to salary increases, rising utility expenses and higher equipment costs, according to McVay. These factors have added to costs despite the fact that the number of visits to the health services has declined over the last five years.

Approximately 75,000 visits were made to the health service in 1978, compared to only 50,000 last year, he said.

Efforts at reducing expenditures have been aimed at salary reductions, limited use of telephone and faxes in equipment purchases.

"I've taken a month's salary cut this year. You have to cut on 40 percent of salary and on 10 percent on reduced salary," McVay said.

Some alternatives to raising fees were considered, including higher prescription drug prices and charging for services, according to McVay. Those were not acceptable, however, because they would defeat the purpose of the service, he said.

"Our philosophy in running this is to spread the risk of financial hardships in the prices as low as possible for those who need it," McVay said. "If you charge for prescriptions and services you defeat the purpose of the service by making each user pay for his service."

"Don't ask me what I would do," McVay continued. "I'm here to do the job and make sure services are provided."

Questionnaire planned on landlord-tenant issue

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Many people claim that landlords and tenants — much like husbans and mother-in-laws — are doomed to co-exist in conflict. However, some Carbondale residents think that landlord-tenant relations can be improved.

The Carbondale Citizens Advisory Committee, in cooperation with the Undergraduate Student Organization, is working on a questionnaire to be sent to landlords and tenants to determine perceived common problems in landlord-tenant relations, and seek possible solutions to those problems.

Gerald Cooper, chairman of the CAC, said that the questionnaires should be ready for distribution early next year.

He said: "We have not determined our goals. We have not determined the exact wording of the questions, but expect to do so at their next meeting on Dec. 15.

Russell Doyle, chairman of the CAC, said problems in landlord-tenant relations are not new, and that addressing these issues has been a long-time goal of city officials.

He said the CAC had discussed the problem before, and when they found out in October that the USO was also working on improving landlord-tenant relations, the CAC said that the effort should be cooperatively on the questionnaire.

Hartigan had been studying landlord-tenant relations all year in an effort to better understand establishing a student tenant union, according to Todd Rogers, USO president. "I think the key to any tenant union is to decide what the questions should be," Hartigan said.

However, Doyle said students do have problems living in the city and that the questions should be "the student's perspective as one," Doyle said. "The perception of the student as one who pays rent."

Democrats give nod to Stevenson

CHICAGO (AP) — The state's Democratic leaders unanimously backed Adlai E. Stevenson III for governor Wednesday, just before the all-but-certain challenger to face Regal Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson in the 1982 general election.

Secretary of State George Ryan, who was the only candidate for governor to appear before the state Democratic Central Committee, said: "I endorse Adlai E. Stevenson III for governor."

The former U.S. senator told the committee that as leader of their party's ticket, he would help return the state to Democratic control "from the courthouse to the Statehouse."

His hand-picked running mate, Lake County Clerk Grant May Stern, was endorsed unanimously by the committee for lieutenant governor.

The committee, whose members are state leaders around the state, met in a downtown hotel to decide who they will support in the March primary.

Party endorsement does not preclude others from running, few Democrats will have a real appetite for a primary feud. But the endorsements are likely to settle the contest when it looked like Stevenson would get the nod.
Tass says Reagan is pushing 'backdoor' nuclear proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — New discrepancies arose Wednesday in the story of how President Reagan's national security adviser cast to the Senate in cash from a Japanese woman's magazine that interviewed Mrs. Reagan. But Reagan, after first saying it was a news report and while the matter was under review, told reporters the incident "was investigated, and it was reported that everything was fine." It was not clear what the president meant, since a Justice Department investigation still is under way — as Reagan himself first indicated — and White House spokesmen have said repeatedly that there has been no internal probe of the matter involving national security Adviser Richard V. Allen. Meanwhile, it was disclosed on a Tokyo newspaper: and confirmed by the White House, that magazine journalists who interviewed Mrs. Reagan one day after her husband's inauguration had given her a lacquered stationary box. That gift was handled according to usual practice and is now in storage at the National Archives, ceypt White House press secretary Larry Speakes said. He said a private gallery that specializes in Asian art had estimated its value at $75. But Speakes could not explain why, if the box was presented to Mrs. Reagan, there would also be an envelope containing $1,000 in cash intended for the president. A spokesman for the National Archives, Jill Merrill, said that her agency provides storage for such unofficial gifts but considers them the personal property of the first family.

The University of Illinois Board of Trustees will decide Wednesday whether to increase tuition for next fall by 2 percent and up to 3 percent for subsequent years.

If the board passes the proposal, it will be the third year that the University of Illinois will charge differential tuition rates to higher level students.

Currently, in-state, full-time tuition ranges from $748 a year for freshman and sophomores to $1,176 a year for students in veterinary medicine.

In addition to a 2 percent across-the-board increase seniors and juniors would have to pay an additional $100 a year for tuition, an increase of 23 percent over the current tuition. Graduating students would pay the 10 percent plus another $150 a year.

Law students would be charged the 10 percent increase and an additional $250 a year, medical students would pay an additional $225 a year and dental students an additional $240 a year.

The largest increase would be to students in veterinary medicine who would have to pay the 10 percent and an additional $132 for each year, their tuition would be $2,225 a year, 39 percent more than this year.

The tuition increases would produce about $1 million in revenue, Bazzani said. Last year, the tuition differentials alone generated nearly $2 million.

"The chances are good that the board will act affirmatively and pass the proposal," he said.

In December, the Board of Governors, the body in charge of Chicago State University, Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University, Governors State University and Northeastern Illinois University, will have their first look at a proposal from the chairman of the Board, Dominick Blufino, that would increase tuition by 10 to 18 percent.

Lennon tribute tour scheduled

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Pops Orchestra will tour the Northeast next month with an orchestral tribute to John Lennon.

The performances by the 100-piece orchestra are the first in the nation to receive the backing of Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono, pop conductor Erich Kunzel said.

Kunzel said he approached Ono in March and she was so impressed with the proposal that she selected slides for the show and helped choose vocalists.

The shows will open in Cincinnati on Dec. 7, Lennon was shot to death Dec. 8, 1980. The concerts will be recorded for an album, Kunzel said.

It has come to my attention that the staff of the Self-Instruction Center and the circulation desk of Met Library are, for the most part, grossly misinformed about library practice. I make this statement because of my less-than-pleasant previous experiences at the library.

The Self-Instruction Center is a place where people have to instruct themselves in everything. I knew that the SIC is open. In an attempt to use the SIC recently, I found that the hours were from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and the hours that it was actually open were not the same. After further inquiries, I found that the employees working at the circulation desk were not informed as to the hours the SIC is supposed to be open. Even though the SIC is beneficial to students, it isn't doing any good if students cannot be sure of the hours it will be open. My efforts to use the SIC have been a waste of time, gas and effort, and it would be wise for students to phone ahead if they plan to use the facilities.

On a separate occasion, I was approached by an employee at the circulation desk who lent me $20. After checking my account and knowing that I would need them longer than two days, I a.m. checked out, I inquired as to the amount of the fine that I would be charged. It was $20 per day. I returned the magazine two days later planning to pay a $3 fine, and, to my surprise, I found that the fine was actually 25 cents per magazine per day. The fine was in excess of the $5 per periodical maximum.

A 'harumph' of agreement

This is my 'harumph' of agreement with an article by Bill Turley. That I should have to spend so much time and effort to find the library is regrettable, yet necessary, for the important reason that it's an open place where people have to let themselves be instructed. As Bill Baker writes in his letter: "If someone is going to instruct himself, they're going to instruct himself."

A lesson in small community 'heart'

Yesterday I watched a movie in our local library. Mike Royko missed when he was coming back from "Our American State" Illinois. I'm from down from Chicago myself, so I was keenly aware of the differences. It was a display of caring and concern for the people of the community that would have been hard pressed to duplicate.

Gee whiz, Matt...

I realize that the Arena must have been even during the school year. I also realize that people have different opinions than mine. Matt McCall suggests to me in his recent column, "Terry should get his facts straight," that I should feel proud of our university that can book those acts. I agree.

All I can say is: "Gee whiz, Matt. What a fellow you are, Terry. Seaman, Journalism."

Effects are good but gags flat in ‘Bandits’

By Vicki Oglesby
Staff Writer

At first glance this year’s latest fantasy film, “Time Bandits,” starring John Cleese, Monty Python’s Eric Idle, and the dream team of David Warner and John Cleese, might seem to be the perfect vehicle to showcase the talents of Monty Python, who were responsible for the film’s basic plot and characters. However, the film is not as successful as one might expect, due to a number of factors.

The film begins with a group of dwarfs who are under attack by evil archers. One of the dwarfs, played by John Cleese, is shot down and taken captive by the evil forces. The remaining dwarfs set out to rescue their friend and defeat the evil forces.

The film’s humor is often at odds with its dramatic elements. Monty Python’s brand of humor is often too absurd and farcical to fit well with the dramatic tone of the film. The film’s pacing is also uneven, with some scenes being too slow and others being too rushed.

The film’s most memorable moment is the battle between the dwarfs and the evil forces. The battle is not only action-packed but also filled with Monty Python’s trademark wit and humor. The film's special effects are also impressive, but they are not enough to make up for the film's other shortcomings.

Author fights for WW II ‘kidnappies’

By Kathy Kaminski
Staff Writer

C. Harvey Gardiner enjoys a good read. And being a retired SIU-C history research professor was no exception to his reading habits. He would read books on scraps either.

He’s been going beyond arguing about the quality of a university department or the wisdom of an SIU-C college’s fundraising effort. He’s taking on the federal government.

Gardiner has accused the government of “kidnapping” 10,000 Peruvian Japanese during World War II and treating them more shabbily than the thousands of Japanese Americans held in camps during the war, supposedly to protect national security.

Gardiner’s latest book, his 25th, to be published Nov. 22, weaves the tragic personal stories of many of the Peruvian Japanese with an account of bureaucratic bungling by the U.S. and of its wartime policies toward the Japanese of Latin America.

Gardiner gave advance copies of his latest book, “Pawns in a Triangle of Hate,” to members of the National Commission on Wartime Repatriation and Internment of Civilians, when the commissioners held hearings in Chicago in September. Gardiner used it as a starting point for the commission’s work.

The agency is studying what, if anything, the government should do to compensate Japanese held for no apparent legal reason except the War Department’s opinion that they might become an enemy threat during the war.

Gardiner says he was “shocked” by one commemorative commission’s report in which the word “kidnapping” might have been used.

He replied that the Peruvian Japanese were picked up, loaded on buses and brought to this country when there was no evidence they had done anything wrong or were connected with persons of whom the American government was suspicious.

He stated it was more than an hour by commissioners and said, “I don’t think kidnaping is too strong a term. We had a policy of getting the Japanese of the West Coast. We were afraid of them.”

Then that policy was widened to include Japanese living in Peru and 11 other Latin American countries. Some 3,800 Japanese were taken from Latin America and shipped to this country, Gardiner says.

“U.S. officials were primarily responsible for kidnaping and impoverishing thousands of men, women and children,” Gardiner said.

The State Department and the FBI told Gardiner that this was a policy of the people; the American Army and Navy transported them to America and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service ran the Peruvian camps.

The U.S. encouraged various latent immigration laws and then manipulated the illegal entry of thousands of Latin American Japanese.

Those actions were unrelated to what the Americans did to some 120,000 Japanese Americans during the war, Gardiner says.

He urged commissioners to widen their inquiry beyond the keeping of Japanese Americans in internment camps.

“These are people whose lives were crushed,” Gardiner contends. “The Japanese Americans received to percent of the value for their property. The Peruvian Japanese never got a peso, or whatever. The Japanese Americans were eventually allowed to return to their homes. But 600 Peruvian Japanese were never allowed to return to Peru. They took a beating. Some were shipped back to Japan, a ruined Japan unwillingly.”

Gardiner contends that America still owes the Japanese something for the treatment they got. Talking among the Japanese during a recent hearing, Gardiner found that for every 15 persons, there are probably 14 ideas on ways to make restitution.

Two ideas are to pay money to or set up a scholarship fund for children of those who were detained in the camps.

Gardiner isn't stopping with just a book. He's asking for the commission. He got a call recently from the commission asking if he knew of any Peruvian Japanese living on the East Coast. Another hearing is planned later this month.

He went to his files, found the names of two persons and gave that information to the commission. They have heard of them and urged them to go to the hearing and relate their experiences.

One man was in Peru in 1942 who had a fourth-grade education. He worked in a bakery. Gardiner believes it was really the man's employer U.S. security officials wanted, but that the employer arranged for the man to be taken away.

During the trip to America, the ship he was on was searched for the war. The passengers were dropped off in the Panama Canal Zone and put to work for days clearing brush in the jungle. When the man reached this country he was shuttled between a highway construction project in the Northwest and a camp in Texas.

When talking to the two, Gardiner says, “I did my damnedest to get them to go and stand up for their rights.”

Gardiner says he intends to follow the commission's work closely. He doesn't plan to write any more books. At 68, he says, he doesn't think he'll find another issue as exciting or significant.

"This isn't something that's a dead beat of historical dust that ought to be restated. It's a matter of questioning whether we are human and whether we are decent in our treatment of people.

“Right now there are Americans who weren't alive when this happened. They may feel they're not responsible. Others will say it that it only happened once and we should put it behind us. I point out that it was more than once.”

Although Gardiner is on the sidelines now, he's hoping his book will win—at least something.
Southern Comfort pacs punch

By Bill Grove

Director Walter Hill's late-'70s hit, "The Warriors," was an exciting, visionary story of survival in a stylized view of inner-city street gang violence. Much like "The Warriors," Hill's new release, "Southern Comfort," is a story of men trying to persevere through an absurd period of violence. However, this film works on two levels—as a good thriller and, more importantly, a commentary on the banality and futility of men face when at war.

The film opens as a squad of Louisiana National Guardsmen embark on a weekend maneuver in the dense swampland of lower Louisiana. The real action begins when most of these eclectic troopers are little more than "weekend soldiers." They carry blank ammunition and are mentally and physically unprepared for real battle contact. They are tin soldiers out for what amounts to a two-day jaunt in the woods and a rendezvous with prostitutes.

But the mission turns sour when the squad gets lost and comes into contact with the canoe-capturing Cajuns and are mentally and physically unprepared for real battle contact. They are tin soldiers out for what amounts to a two-day jaunt in the woods and a rendezvous with prostitutes.

The film, a loose adaptation of David Dewar's novel, is a powerful statement about the banality and futility of war. The complex plot and the use of slow motion sequences heighten the film's sense of ennui and futility. The movie is a mesmerizing, square-jawed, impersonal, and terminally bored look at normal men thrust into an abnormal life-and-death situation. It tells a simple yet powerful story of man and war story and still packs a powerful punch.

Talk about O'Hare delays...
Sam's layover was 2 months

By Brenda Ingersoll
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO — A dog named Sam with a tag from Japan was headed for North Carolina last summer, following his owner to Pope Air Force Base at Fayetteville.

He took a lengthy detour at O'Hare International Airport. Sam was traveling by air freight, you see, while his owner had somewhat more luxurious accommodations.

So Sam took to his heels when he was let out for exercise during an O'Hare stopover on Aug. 2.

Twenty-six days later the small tan mongrel was picked up by suburban River Forest police. The now lean animal had crossed the Des Plaines River, trotted across expressways and through forest preserves.

"The path he had to take — if you're out in the country, it is or miles isn't too much. How he got here only he knows," Ruth Ormsbee, who runs a pet adoption agency, said Wednesday.

Police sent Sam to a veterinarian, who cleaned and fed him and sent him to Ms. Ormsbee. Ms. Ormsbee zeroed in on an intriguing tag round his neck. A box blocked out several letters, but it said "K.A.D., AB, Japan, 1961."

She had no way of knowing the owner's name was Sam, so she dubbed him "Japan."

"He was a nice little dog, mostly spaniel but just plain dog," she said. "But in two months he never really answered to that name. It always seemed he was looking for someone."

Determined to track down the owner, Ms. Ormsbee called neighboring police departments. See SAM Page II.

ments, the Anti-Cruelty Society and placed newspaper ads.
She found no town on a map of Japan that began and ended with the letters on the dog’s tag. She called Japanese information numbers.
Finally a friend told her the letters on Sam’s collar stood for Air Force Base on Okinawa.
Sam’s owner had been stationed there.
Ruth began telephoning again, even to Japan. “We called day and night, even while we were at the dinner table, and some of those military places we called really bawled us out.
They made me feel like we were sitting on atomic bomb secrets, not one little lost dog,”
she said.
She finally got a man on Okinawa who knew Sam’s owner, Wendell Stevens.
The upshot of it all was that
Ms. Ormsbee finally reached Stevens in North Carolina.
Rather than take the chance of having Sam shipped, Stevens’s wife and daughter drove straight through to River
Forest to pick up their dog.
“Sam was friendly to everyone. He’d wiggle his tail.
But when he saw them, believe me, it was a whole different wiggle.” Ms. Ormsbee recalls.

Nearly all the specific money figures in the bill were classified. However, Rep.
Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, noted that the legislation includes $1.8 million for FBI efforts to combat terrorism in the United States.

Rep. J. Kenneth Robinson, R-
Vt., the committee’s ranking
GOP member, said the bill “provides for real growth in the intelligence programs over last year’s levels.”

Robinson said the bill provides for purchase of a new system for technical collection of intelligence.

Museum gets Romano art gift

By University News Service

The University Museum will become the archive for the personal art collection of internationally-known painter Umberto Romano.

The 75-year-old Italian-born artist will donate several large paintings, sculptures, prints, drawings, letters, books, catalogs and other materials in his private collection, according to Museum Director John J. Whitlock.

"This is, without a doubt, one of the most significant gifts ever made to the University Museum," said Whitlock. "Eventually we will open Mr. Romano's letters, books and other written materials to students interested in doing research on him."

Romano lives and works in New York City. His paintings hang in galleries and museums throughout the U.S. and Europe, and the awards he has won include a Pulitzer Prize.

Romano's paintings, prints and drawings are expected to arrive at SIU-C before the end of the year and will be exhibited sometime in 1982, Whitlock said.

"The Best From Land & Sea! Tender juicy Sirloin steak plus golden fried shrimp. Served with choice of potato & toast."

"A Tasty Combination! Batter-dipped Fish. Fried to perfection, accompanied by crisp & golden shrimp. Served with choice of potato & toast."

"Take a number please..."

Joseph Janeczek of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will lead a discussion on the Upper Mississippi Basin Commission draft master plan during the Sierra Club meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Carbondale Savings and Loan. The film "A Tale of Two Rivers Visions of the Upper Mississippi" will be shown.

Rickert-Ziebold Trust Award calendars and information will be available in Allyn Hall, Room 406, this Friday for art students graduating in December or May.

ROTC cadets to go to Colorado

Air Force ROTC cadets at SIU-C will travel to Colorado over Thanksgiving break, but the trip won't be just for fun. About 35 cadets leave Sunday for a visit to Peterson Field, an Air Force base at Colorado Springs.

Two such visits are scheduled for SIU-C cadets annually, according to Maj. Robert McCleer, who is in charge of the trip. Air Force planes, which usually transport the cadets, are all bed up, he said, as the Air Force is in a state of readiness due to Middle East issues. The cadets will travel by bus.

"Coping with Health Care Problems," a workshop sponsored by the International Student Services Office, will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday in the Mr.-king Room. Information at the United States' health care system will be provided to international students and the SIU-C Health Service will be discussed in detail. Information can be obtained from Pat Bruner at 452-3774.

The film "Mammals of the Sea," third-place winner in the 1981 North American Outdoor Film Academy competition, will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday in Life Science II, Room 406. The viewing is sponsored by the SIU-C Marine Mammals Society.

Students interested in gaining practical work experience in a spring outdoor environmental education program designed for kindergarten through 12th grade students may call Environmental Workshops at Touch of Nature at 532-4161, Ext. 48. Academic credit is available.

The Marana Katha Christian Center will have a pot-luck Thanksgiving dinner at 6 p.m. Thursday at 715 S. University. Everyone who is interested in coming is asked to bring a dish.

Engineers, contractors, consultants and attorneys will present techniques for investigating failures in building structures at the engineering seminar Monday and Tuesday in the Student Center. Registration can be made by calling Judy Pauri, Division of Continuing Education, at 529-7751.

The Leisure Exploration Service will be closed Friday through Nov. 29.

"A Night at the Theater," a variety show sponsored by the Quality of Life Services, will be at 8 p.m. Friday in Farr Auditorium in Pulliam Hall. Advance ticket donations will be $5 apiece or $6 for couples, and can be obtained by calling 529-2262. Tickets at the door will be $6 and $11. Proceeds will be used to provide homemakers and health care services to individuals.

The Carbondale Public Library will sponsor a free children's film program Saturday in honor of Children's Book Week. Films for preschool through second grade students will be shown from 10 to 10:30 a.m. and films for older children will be shown from 1 to 3 p.m.

Gas station robbed of nearly $600

A man armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed the Speedway Service Station, 940 E. Main, Tuesday night and escaped with nearly $600, according to Carbondale police.

Paul G. Meador, assistant manager, told police he wasrobbed about 8:20 p.m. when the suspect entered the station wielding a 10- or 12-gauge shotgun and demanded money. The suspect then fled on foot with the money, holding west. No injuries were reported.

Police described the suspect as a black male, 25-38 years old, 190 pounds, wearing a calf-length grey coat, blue jeans, brown gloves, a dark-blue pull-over hat and a blue scarf over his face. Police are investigating the incident.

Reagan concedes

Stockman is going to have ‘problems’

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan concedes budget director David Stockman is going to have ‘problems’ — selling the administration’s budget cuts on Capitol Hill, a syndicated columnist has reported.

But Reagan, in an exclusive interview with Donald Lambro of United Features Syndicate, said he still has confidence in Stockman, whose remarks as quoted in an Atlantic Monthly magazine article.

“T still believe that he believes in our program,” Reagan told Lambro in the interview this week.

Asked if Stockman’s critical assessment of the administration’s budget and tax cuts has harmed the administration’s credibility, Reagan said, “I still feel that it shouldn’t.”

“I still believe in this plan,” Reagan said. “Very frankly, while that article used a few quotes from Stockman, I think that the real cynicism and double of the plan is being written by the author and were his interpretations.

In the interview with Lambro in the Oval Office, Reagan also said he might “accept some tax cuts in a trade for spending cuts, but flatly rejected any alteration in his three-year tax-reduction program.

It costs less to ask for money after five.

Parents understand these things. You just bought a small library for English Lit. The dorm's Chicken Surprise was no longer a surprise, so you went out a few times. It'd be a crime to miss that concert coming up.

So you pick up the phone and explain the situation. (And if you call after five, when the explaining is 20% cheaper, you'll have that much more money.)

It's one of those times when long distance can be better than being there.
CAGERS averaged 18.7
tarters.

The No. 1 recruit is 6'11, 340-ound center Winfred King. The transfer from Anderson Junior College in South Carolina, averaged 18.7 points and 6.6
rebounds per game. He could be the dominant big man the Sycamores have been lookingor.

Names to watch include returning starters Robert McFiel and Lester Wright at guards. Both averaged more than 13 points per game. The Sycamores finished second to last in the Valley at 6-12. They had an overall record of 9-18.

NEW MEXICO STATE:
Coach Willis Reed's Aggies will count on second-team All-conference forward Jaime Pena to lead the 10-17 conference and 10-17 overall team.

Pena, 6-7, averaged 18.1
points per game, 21.1 against Valley opponents. He also averaged seven rebounds per game.
The Aggie return four of five starters, but will be hurt by the loss of 17.4 point per game forward Paul Atkinson, who is academically ineligible.

ILLINOIS STATE: The Redbirds, a predominantly defense-oriented team, will be faced with the challenge of shutting down the high-scoring, offensive-minded Valley trio, too.
Coach Bob Donewald has a habit of winning games without big-name players or overwhelming statistics, finishing last year with a 16-11 record.

CREIGHTON: The biggest news from the Bluejay camp is that last year's stars, Kevin McKenna and George Morrow are gone, as may be the hopes of another 11-5 conference and 21-9 overall finish.

New Coach Willis Reed landed only three new players in a short recruiting season.

The Bluejays return five lettermen, but only one, 6-4 guard Daryl Stovall, averaged over 10 points per game.

WEST TEXAS STATE: The Buffaloes will probably have to run to win.

With only one man taller than 6-4, Coach Ken Edwards says,
'"this is the shortest college team I've ever coached.'
The Buffaloes' 7-9 in the Valley and 16-11 overall—success may depend on how well recruits can fill the void left by first team all-conference point guard Terry Adolph.

DRAKE: The Bulldogs are not the same team without Lloyd.

The 6-4 All-American forward led the Bulldogs to a 19-4 conference and 18-11 overall record last year, averaging 26.7
points and 16 rebounds per game.

Also gone is second-leading scorer Top Wright.

Under new Coach Gary Garner, Drake's hopes ride with junior college All-American transfer Devi Parks.

to keep busy
during break

By Steve Metack

For most students, Thanksgiving break means a chance to relax. For the wrestling team, it means a lot of hard work.

The grapplers will be competing in 12 meets during break. The Salukis will compete in dual meets at Oklahoma State and Southwest Missouri on Nov. 21 and Nov. 24. The Salukis will compete in the Oklahoma Open on Nov. 26.

"Oklahoma State will be challenging for the dual," said Coach Linn Long. "Southwestern Missouri was real good last year and I've heard they are even stronger this year. At this point we are ranked 13th; they have 2 teams ranked 7, 8, 10 years," said Long.

"Those Big Eight schools have a lot of talented wrestlers in the nation," he said. "They put a lot of money into

I met Carla at the last concert of George Fabricer and with my old band Stryder. Carla said she wouldn't know the bassist or drummer but she thought they were hot. The Missouri Valley Conference is often overlooked when basketball coaches and the media choose the top teams. The MVC has its "big" conference—Big Eight, Big Ten, Big East and Big Sky—and it has the perennial basketball powerhouse teams of the Atlantic Coast, Southeastern and Pacific.

The MVC may not be a big conference in terms of athletic enrollment, but it is a force to be reckoned with this season.

Wichita State, ranked sixth and Tulsa 11th, in The Associated Press preseason college basketball Top Twenty. A Valley team, Wichita State, won the National Invitational Tournament last year, and another conference team made it to the final eight of the NCAA tournament.

The average scoring output of Valley teams, 76.12 points per game, was the highest in the nation last year.

Here's a look at the Salukis' Valley foes.

WICHITA STATE: There are two big reasons the Shockers are favored to repeat as conference champs after reaching the final eight in the conference tournament year-bookend forwards Cliff Robinson and Antone Carr are returning to the starting lineup.

Levington, 6-4, and Carr, 6-5, are 220-pound juniors, combined for more than 13 points and 18 rebounds per game last year. Levington was selected first team all-conference and led the team in rebounding with 11.4 per game.

The loss of point guard Randy Smithson (6-1, 161 pounds) and 6-1 center Otell Jones, who is ineligible and will sit out the year, was a high school transcript, was expected to hurt the Shockers. But Coach Gene Smithson always seems to have an ace, or in this case aces, up his sleeve.

Coach Smithson, in need of a point guard this year, recruited 6-4 guard Aubrey Sherrod and 6-5 center Greg Drelling—both high school All-Americans from Wichita.

Clark is 'quarterback'
of spiker team's attack

By Michael Marcotte
Staff Writer

On the football field, one person is responsible for calling the plays and putting points on the scoreboard. That person is the quarterback.

The same is true in volleyball, except the quarterback is called a setter. The setter plays in the pressure position and is the key to the team's offense.

SIU-C's backcourt is a hard place to be named. Both Clark, Clark, a junior, was named to the all-tournament team at last weekend's Illinois Intercollegiates Classic held in Chicago.

The tournament format consists of two teams that have to play in order to win the NCAA or the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. The Salukis took third in the tournament after a loss to No. 1-seeded Northwestern.

"After the match with Northwestern," said Clark, "I just thought about how good it felt. At the beginning of the season the team wasn't as strong as the team and we didn't have very many seniors in the backcourt. I was walking around the locker room and everyone started yelling at me to come back. I think I earned a trophy and said congratulations, you've been named to the all-tournament team. Then I did start to cry."

Clark's volleyball career started playing as a junior at Waskeagan High School. He took a year off from volleyball and basketball before turning to the sport he loves.

"I started as a hitter," she said. "It was then I realized the backcourt was where I was good, so I started thinking about college just so I could play volleyball."

After watching SIU-C play in the NCAA regional in Chicago, he took it upon himself to talk with Coach Debbie Hunter, who stood him up to be a walk-on.

"During a practice session, Debbie came and said to me, 'I know you want to play,'" Clark said. "I knew there was a lot of responsibility being a setter, and I took it as a challenge. I was honored that Miss Hunter would give me the opportunity to play volleyball."

After many long hours and a lot of hard work, Clark earned a starting position. She is known as the team's opposition offense, but has input from the other players. The assistant coach Robin Detmold

"I call the plays, everyone is on the same level as

TULSA: The defending NCAA champion Oklahoma Hurricanes lost 6-1 guard David Thrillkill, 6-9 center Donald Reaves, and 6-5 first team all-conference forward Mitchell Anderson.

Anderson was second only to Drake's Lewis Lloyd in the conference scoring race, averaging 19.4 points per game. He also grabbed 8.8 rebounds.

Coach Dick Versace had an excellent recruiting year, landing lights-fs. 51 point guard Willie Scott from Ferris College in Michigan, and 6-7 forward Vose Winters, who led the nation in scoring with 40.3 points per game last year at Chicago-Cage Park.
