McAnally may head SIU Foundation

By James R. Brigham

The University and the SIU Foundation are negotiating a business arrangement which would make Stanley McAnally, vice president for external relations and development, president of the foundation.

Under the plan, SIU would control all of its private fundraising activities to the foundation, and McAnally's vice-presidential position would be eliminated, according to an announcement made by SIU President Albert Somit and foundation chairman James R. Brigham.

"The objective of the arrangement is to develop a more tightly focused fundraising activity for the university, located within the foundation's existing corporate organization," Somit and Brigham said.

The foundation endorsed an initial blueprint Nov. 13. That same day, McAnally announced his candidacy for foundation president.

If the plan is adopted, the director of development services in the university administration also would be eliminated.

The director of development services position is unfilled and a search to fill it was suspended last month.

At that time, McAnally said the search had been dropped because none of the applicants had the broad range of experience that he felt was necessary.

McAnally said Thursday that the foundation's current plan would eliminate the need to fill the director's position and also would avoid duplication of fundraising efforts.

"Fewer people would need to be hired in an expanded development organization," he said, "because you could utilize some of the existing foundation people."

Under the plan, the assistant directors of development would become foundation employees at the university salary levels, while all of McAnally's other staff would remain university employees, he said.

The main units under the two offices that would be eliminated under the plan would report to the foundation president as a function of the master contract, the announcement said.

One of the main advantages of the plan, McAnally said, is that the foundation's board is "a strong core group of people who are committed to the university."

Along the same lines Somit said that the plan would provide for "the establishment of a formal relationship with a volunteer organization of committed and dedicated citizens which is already in place," referring to the foundation board.

Mediator brought in for salary squabble

By Andrew Herrmann

Staff Writer

The Civil Service Bargaining Organization and the University will go head to head Friday over permissible positions for civil service employees in "sensitive," according to Lee Hester.

The two groups have been in talks for several weeks and Friday marks the first appearance of Illinois Labor Department mediator Dwayne Linton.

According to Lee Hester, president of CSBO and chairman of the negotiating committee, the CSBO requested that a mediator be brought in.

At question is the pay range between regular CSBO employees and those in sensitive positions which have access to classified information.

The CSBO and sensitive positions are not covered by the CSBO contract because, said Hester, "they have access to certain information which could lead to conflicts between the University and CSBO.

Hester noted the sensitive positions were allowed by the CSBO because the University is willing to pay employees and those in sensitive positions

Congressional panel OKs proposal to keep coal center

By Bob Delaney

Staff Writer

The Carville Mining and Technology Center may be saved yet as a result of a congressional panel's agreement Thursday that would allow the controversial center next year until it could later purchase the center, said an agreement copy in hand.

The two-year moratorium, which expired Friday, would permit the center to continue operations.

The center, which has been a source of controversy among local officials and the Southern Illinois coal industry and the Department of Energy, is scheduled to shut down.

Simon aide David Carle said the DOE had indicated that would accept the panel's plan said it would keep those people on the salary line with civil service employees in similar, but not sensitive positions.

Hester said, however, that the sensitive position employees have been promoted and given raises excessively. He said they were now the mediator to rule on whether to allow the CSBO contract.

Hester said he favors covering the sensitive positions in the CSBO contract because, he said, "the sensitive positions add to the situation."

Hester also criticized President Albert Somit's plan to give civil service employees a 3 percent across-the-board raise, saying that the CSBO has always negotiated its own distribution plan.

He said he expects the mediator to make a decision in the sensitive position issue Friday.

"I don't see this thing draging on any more length of time," said Hester. He said that the CSBO already knows about the situation and "will have a decision shortly."

The CSBO is negotiating body for about 700 SIUC civil service employees.

SCAM fights commission over utility rate increases

By Bob Delaney

Staff Writer

The Southern Counties Action Movement has moved from the street corners to the courthouse and thinks it has Central Illinois Public Service Co. in a corner over the latest rate increase request.

The Illinois Commerce Commission is expected to hand down a verdict Tuesday on record $100 million rate increase requested by the public utility, which has opposed all rate actions in Illinois.

"The ICC is taking a quick decision, probably within the week," said Bob Delaney, SCAM coordinator. "We started out on the street corners."

The plan called for 12 members of the commission to file a notice of the proposed plan.

"We are extremely concerned with this plan," said Delaney. "We'll be able to enlist support from Illinois Attorney General P. F. Fahler and expert witnesses such as Kenneth Meyer, an energy analyst, until the plan.

The ICC ordered the plan because of its deference to the plan's immediate advantages of growth and strength.

"Our greatest achievement has been education," said Delaney. "We want people to be more active in the plan."

The ICC is currently reviewing the plan, which is expected to approve the plan.

The plan was approved by the commission on Monday, Nov. 26.

Since its inception, SCAM's growth has been in line with the current plan.

Some faculty members doubt success of priority ranking

By Robert Green

While the University's 180 or so programs are being ranked by priority, some faculty members are questioning the ranking process.

The committee on academic priorities has been evaluating programs against 12 criteria since October, and all programs are scheduled to be evaluated by February.

At that time, each of the 20 committee members, 13 of whom are faculty members, will vote to recommend each program one of four: furlough, reduction, elimination, maintenance or improvement.

The president and the academic vice president would then make the final decision on which programs to cut if that becomes necessary because of budget reductions.

But some faculty fear that if administrators demand it necessary to eliminate or reduce programs or faculty positions, they may consider that they have already received approval to do so from a faculty committee.

Disenchantment with the priority listing process has been expressed recently by some committee members and by offices of the Carbondale chapters of the American Federation of Teachers and the American Association of University Professors.

One committee member said he thinks it's really tending to be more subjective and more inclined toward reflecting people's biases than I had ever suspected.

"The whole idea of having a set of what are purportedly objective criteria is just foolish. That's not the way it's working and I don't think many of us perceived that it would work out.

Last week, officers of the faculty organizations planned an advertisement in the Daily Egyptian critical of the glaring weaknesses of this whole process.

The advertisement criticized the ranking guidelines for not evaluating non-academic programs simultaneously and for not allowing faculty to make final decisions in program cuts.

The advertisement contended that department program reviews, which committee members use for evaluation, are often self-serving, and the programs which promote themselves the best will be the most successful.

Banker said, "They're under a lot of pressure."

Banker said more than $1 billion in rate requests were pending before the ICC in the first quarter of this year if SCAM wins and the ICC approves them.

Banker said the utility would be forced to have stockholders pay the cost of producing excess capacity or willing to pay it.

CIPS director there is excess capacity created by the Newton II nuclear power plant. It says the capacity is needed to support future growth in the community.

The Newton I plant opened in November 1977, creating a 30 percent reserve of energy. Within three years the reserve had shrunk to 17 percent. The utility says the normal reserve should be 15 to 20 percent.

When the Newton II plant comes on line next month, CIPS says it will result in a reserve of 47 percent CIPS in the early 1970's had predicted annual reserves to be 8 or 9 percent. It has turned out to be 2 or 3 percent. But CIPS insists consumers still should be paying the cost of new plants.

"Whenever you open a new plant you're going to have a reserve capacity," said Ed Cobau, a CIPS spokesman. "We plan to meet the needs of our customers. It's more feasible to bring larger units on line."

Cobau said that was the case after Newton I went into operation. The reserve capacity created by the new plant would be used by consumers. It just won't be as quickly as CIPS expected, he said.

SCAM disagrees. SCAM anticipates growth in demand will continue to slow and that the utilities have their backs to the wall.

"We're asking you to pay for their mistake," Banker said. "Other state commissions have had utilities do just that - sell off excess capacity and not have stockholders take on the costs."

Banker said ICC commissioner Charles Stalon of Carbondale gave SCAM a boost when he stated last year that the Newton II plant was a mistake.

Still, SCAM sees the commission as an adversary and supports an elected commission rather than an appointed one. SCAM had helped put Stalon on the commission, feeling he was an consumer advocate, but now says Stalon has moved over to side with the utilities.

"We feel responsible for him being there," Banker said. "I don't know how he will side when the decision comes down."

News Roundup

Congress may kill tax cut advance

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republican congressional leaders informed President Reagan on Thursday that he simply does not have the votes to advance the last phase of his income tax cut to January.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker and House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel delivered that message in their first conference with the president since the Nov. 2 election.

Reagan is considering asking Congress to push up the date of the tax cut.

Personal income rises 0.7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans' personal income rose a moderate 0.7 percent last month, government figures indicated Thursday. But other than that total, there wasn't much good news in the new Commerce Department report.

Other details said:

- Private wages and salaries actually declined in October.

- More than half the overall increase in income went in government "transfer payments" such as unemployment benefits for workers laid off in the recession.

Court orders new trial for Williams

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A new trial was ordered by the Illinois Supreme Court on Thursday for a man sentenced to death in the murders of a gas station employee and his fiancée.

Reversing an earlier decision, justices said they could no longer assume that Dennis Williams received adequate legal help during his trial.

The court last April had upheld Williams' conviction and death sentence for the 1978 slayings of a suburban Chicago gas station owner and his fiancée.

State suffers sudden drop in income

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Illinois' budget, socked by a sudden and dramatic drop in state income, requires quick action to keep the state from going broke, according to government financial reports issued Thursday.

"We must act now to protect the state of Illinois," Gov. James R. Thompson told a Statehouse news conference.

Neither Thompson nor his budget office could say exactly how much the state must make up. Nor could they explain why revenues were off in October, an experience Thompson said also hit several other states unexpectedly.
Mayoral, City Council primaries set

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

A primary election to select six candidates for the City Council and two candidates for mayor of the City of Carbondale will be held on Tuesday, February 22.

Carbondale residents will vote for three candidates in both primary elections in order to serve four-year terms. The mayor’s term is four years.

Mayor Hans Fischer has been in office since August, 1978, when he was appointed to complete the term of Neil Eckert. Fischer resigned at that time to enter private business. Fischer was elected to a full four-year term in April, 1978.

Fischer said Monday he had not made up his mind whether to seek reelection. “I’m still deciding that myself,” he said. “I will probably make the decision before the first of the week.”

Petition terms for candidates may be obtained in the city clerk’s office beginning Monday. Nomination petitions for city offices must be filed to mail or in person at the city clerk’s office, 311 South Main Street, through 5 p.m. Dec. 13. The general city election will be held April 12.

The four-year council seats presently held by Helen Westberg and Sammye Adkman will be contested in this election. Westberg was appointed to the council in 1976 to fill the seat vacated by George Karls. A Carbondale dentist who resigned because he moved outside the city limits. She was elected to the council in 1974 and in 1979. Westberg was unavailable for comment Thursday on whether she would seek another term.

Thompson up by 4,914 in final tally

SPRINGFIELD [AP] Republican Gov. James R. Thompson defeated Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson by 4,914 votes in the highest Illinois governor’s race ever, final figures showed Thursday after the official count in a Southern Illinois county.

Stevenson picked up 27 votes on Thompson compared with previous unofficial returns when official results were reported by Hamilton County, the last Illinois’ 102 counties to complete its vote canvass. Thompson had 1,815,482 votes to Stevenson’s 1,810,928 — a margin of barely more than one-tenth of 1 percent or more than 4,2 million ballots cast.

The state Board of Elections is scheduled to certify election results on Monday and declare Thompson the official winner in Illinois for an unprecedented third straight term.

Stevenson has vowed to seek a recount, saying Thompson’s slender lead is within the margin of error that might be expected in counting so many votes.

Letters

Condemnation of registration isn’t condemnation of veterans

In a recent letter (DE, Nov. 9), Steven Haldeman criticized the Graduate Student Council resolution that supported Rusty Martin’s decision to accept a teaching position at the University of Northern Iowa. It is being prosecuted for refusing to register for the draft. The GSC is to be applauded for its stand, as well as for bringing a little real world politics back to SIUC.

Mr. Haldeman was right that the GSC resolution is a disservice to Vietnam veterans. There is no doubt that the suffering and current plight of the vets are not well-recognized by the American public. But Mr. Haldeman errs badly if he equates condemning draft registration with condemning veterans. In fact, to recognize the situation of the vets can only lead one to condemn the draft and draft registration.

The men who fought in Vietnam according to the GSC are members of a government that duped or forced them to fight in a brutal war the United States had no business participating in. Millions of innocent Vietnamese and hundreds of thousands of innocent Americans suffered in the Vietnam war. To condemn the war is not to condemn its veterans, but those who caused it. Vietnam vets, like the people in Vietnam left maimed or without parents, were victims of the war, not its cause.

Today, the United States gives massive amounts of military aid to brutal regimes in many countries. Guatemala and El Salvador are just two examples. Those who oppose the draft and draft registration are saying that we will not let our government start another Vietnam war.

We will not let the government use another generation of young American men to ensure good profits for a few corporations and then throw these men back to some maimed and with nowhere to go.

Surely Mr. Haldeman is aware that there are many Vietnam vets who strongly oppose the draft and draft registration.

Finally, Mr. Haldeman’s letter contains a serious factual error. He says that men can indicate conscientious objection when they register. In fact, the Reagan administration has refused to allow men to do that. There is no way to indicate that objection on the registration forms now being used. Consciousness objection can only be raised at the time of induction.

Several of the men already convicted of non-registration oppose the draft on religious grounds and have said they would have registered if they had been able to indicate their consciousness objection at the time of registration.

Dance-thesis review was laden with moronic errors

I would like to express my deep annoyance at the recent NY & DE review of 'New York Trilogy.' While the review on the whole was well written, it was laden with errors of the most moronic kind.

The first error was a minor one, the mention of Fullilun A as the location of the concert. I believe the reviewer, Julianne Anastasoff, was in Fullilun B when she saw the concert.

The second error is in the spelling of the soloist's name. "Een East, told West" her name was Winifred Hain, not Wilfred Haun. She later received a copy of the program.

The third error (and this is where the reviewer gets really confused) is that in the soloist's Middle East massacre, U.S. is a convenient scapegoat. The soloist, a woman, not a man, as Julianne Sadigoff (who reviewed Ms. Haun) performed the only solo in that particular piece and I believe you will see that no other soloist that performed a "soloist's massacre," had another male dancer.

The mention of the dance that Julianne Sadigoff referred to in that quote was a duet performed by Randy Kein and Frank Thomas. It the editor had taken the time to find these things out or maybe if she had sung, read her program, this gross error could have been avoided.

The fourth error in the review is perhaps the most blatant. The second paragraph read: "And though it may not have been a conscious effort, Jeff Garley's master's thesis concert, 'New York Trilogy,' was an intensely personal statement on life as seen through a dancer's eyes."

I think that if Julianne had been listening to Mr. Garley's opening statement, she would have known that a "personally intense" statement was an acc- cident. It was after all his master's thesis. Everything in that concert was carefully designed and executed in order to get to the point of his message. I believe Mr. Garley expressed his message very well and I do not believe no other soloist that performed a "soloist's massacre" would have a dancer with another male dancer.

I believe the dance that Julianne referred to in that quote was a duet performed by Randy Kein and Frank Thomas. It the editor had taken the time to find these things out or maybe if she had sung, read her program, this gross error could have been avoided.

The United States is a convenient scapegoat for trouble in the Middle East.

It seems a matter of course for everything bad that happens in the Middle East to be blamed on the United States and The general intelligence agencies. In a Nov. 16 letter in the DE, Mr. Winifred Adams again claims to know all the facts of intense secrecy and his limited array of opinion.

Throughout the letter, Mr. Adams claims the CIA six times for everything from the massacre of the famous Hungary, the funding of the state of Israel. This brings to mind the ranting of a certain Anatoleh Khenouchi, who also found it curious that the CIA was not involved in their problems on the CIA and the United States.

Very often people who lack a visible enemy must find one in the form of a tolerant individual or country, to solidify the reputation. Mr. Adams claims the CIA and the United States or his scapegoat for aggression.

Who do you think will pay the cost of the Israeli invasion siSince Israel cannot afford it?" Mr. Adams mentions that he might have guessed, it's "the U.S. government."

I wonder if Mr. Adams ever stopped to think who would pick up the tab for the rebuilding of Lebanon? Syria? Libra? Iraq? Russia? No, Mr. Adams knows the answer as well as anyone. The rebuilding of the country would be funded by billions of dollars sent in response to the president of the United States of America. I wonder who Mr. Adams sent those dollars to.

Roaches rule the apartment

By Don Strickling

Don't move to Evergreen Terrace. Married students. Despite the seductive truth that you just might regret it if you live there, and I regret it for the year and a half that my family has lived at Evergreen Terrace. Our apartment has been taken with cockroaches. That is not an exaggeration. It is true. And it is not funny. We are angry.

Surprisingly, the problem goes back several years, according to our neighbors. Why has our common problem got the upper hand? I have pursued that answer for the entire time I've lived here. I found nothing, save for wind-up flying house personnel and aptly named, short-term tenants who at the height of the problems were more interested in getting group rates for the Hotel Fair in the United States of America.

Closest governor’s race yet revives machine-politics image

By James Liddle
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - The dead
no longer vote in Chicago, but the closest race for governor in Illinois history has revived this city’s image as a town where names travel regularly from the cemetery to the polling booth.
Reports of “most ballots” too wet to feed through vote-counting machines and the disappearance of ballots that later turned up in automobile trunks and shopping bags reminded people of the glory days of the Cook County Democratic machine.

“It used to be such an obvious thing,” mused Chicago Sun Times columnist Mike Keck.
“THERE’S LESS AND LESS
STEALING OF VOTES GOING ON FOR A NUMBER OF REASONS
First there’s more and more exposure for another thing. There’s the U.S. Justice Department,” he said. “A lot of people have been indicted and convicted in the past for the real flagrant stuff.”

And the man who helped drive
such practices underground
James “Big Jim” Thompson is the same man who barely escaped for a second term as governor in the recently completed general election.

Thomas was considered a clear favorite, but an unexpectedly heavy turnout in Chicago lightened the race.

According to an Associated Press survey of the state’s 102 counties, Thompson now leads Stevenson by 436,795 votes out of more than 14 million cast, a margin of less than two-tenths of a percent.

Thompson is expected to be certified the official winner of the election when the State Board of Elections meets Monday in Springfield.

However, Stevenson says he will ask for a recount and even has gone so far as to meet with a “transition team” in case a new tabulation declares him the winner.

Under Illinois law, a count must be done in each precinct
That is where the problems developed. The election pages, aided by the latest in computer technology, made the same old human errors, leaving behind the computer tapes and data packs necessary for an official count.

In some cases, even the voting boxes - the bottom line should tallying disputes arise - were left behind.

Suddenly, the old accounts of the city’s reputation as the last big bastion of graft, intimation and vote fraud were resurrected. Nothing illegal happened this time around - nothing “verifiable” anyway, the Justice Department says.

Even Republicans seemed to get involved, especially after ballots from 64 suburban Cook County precincts, with GOP leanings, were reported as being “too moist” to be tallied by machine. They had to be taken to a warehouse where they were dried and counted.

Suburban election officials attributed the problem to nearly four days of rain and the sweaty palms of voters who stood in long lines to cast ballots.

In Chicago, election officials discovered ballots missing from 15 precincts. The next day, empty ballot boxes were found in five of those precincts.

But by the time the city’s election canvass was completed last week, all the ballots had turned up. Some were discovered in the trunk of car.
Others were found in a shopping bag behind a desk in a precinct office.

But there may be more problems.

Earlier this week, U.S.
Attorney Dan K. Webb said he is looking into “more significant and specific” vote-fraud allegations lodged recently with his office. He declined to discuss specific charges.
Firewood sales increasing in area, forestry student says

By Patrick Williams
Student Writer

With the demand for firewood as a fuel source in the United States growing 15 percent annually, businesses selling wood have increased in number.

As part of a graduate thesis, Mark Giacoletto, graduate student in forestry, has been studying firewood production in southern Illinois to see how it is meeting an expanding market. He discussed his work at a recent seminar.

Fifteen million homes in the United States use firewood as a primary heating source. Giacoletto examined 49 firms in southernmost Illinois to see where the supply of wood for this area is coming from and to find how profitable it is to sell wood.

"In some areas of the country the widespread use of wood as a fuel has some professionals worried as to the impact of firewood use on other forest products," Giacoletto said.

But in Southern Illinois, he said he found that 96 percent of the wood being sold is from private lands, rather than from the public lands of Shawnee National Forest. There is little competition with timber producers.

The businesses Giacoletto studied are producing an average of 27 cords of wood each. A cord is 4 feet deep by 4 feet high by 8 feet wide.

In this area the average selling price for a cord of wood is between $60 and $70 delivered. Most of the sellers deliver.

The cost of transporting the wood makes up more than one-third the cost of production. Giacoletto said it cost an average of about $32 to produce a cord of firewood. The average selling profit was around $12 per cord.

"Transportation is one of the major factors." Giacoletto said. Because of the price of transport, he said the businesses would likely remain local.

Almost two-thirds of the businesses Giacoletto studied were in their first year of business. The older firms reported an increase in sales over the past five years.

"Given the likelihood of increases in energy costs and technical improvements in wood burning equipment, there is likely to be an increase in firewood businesses," Giacoletto said.

James Barnes has musical roots in gospel music considered giving four years to the study of opera and now has tentatively chosen to sing the lead in various Carbondale night spots.

What the lead singer of James and the Flames is really itching to do is "make it in music." James, 22, said he first felt the power of his own voice while in the choir at Carbondale's Greater Gillespie Temple, a Church of God in Christ that the Barnes family attended until James was 14. James was often featured in solos. "But I never thought I wanted to go into gospel. The pay isn't that great," he said, and he thinks it's a difficult market in which to be established.

James sang in high school chorus, in swing choir and in a couple of small bands with friend Grant Morgan, currently lead guitarist for James and the Flames. He continued developing his keen interest in music and dance, watching "Soul Train" and catching the choreography of his idols, the Jacksons, whenever he could. But it wasn't until last year that he really became aggressive. After reading a book from the California Institute for the Arts, James knew he wanted to study within their music specialization. Submittal required sending a tape of himself singing three classical songs. Instead, James took a bus to California. "I wanted them to see what I could do in person rather than on tape," he said between sips of tea.

So James auditioned before members of the academy's music department singing, "On Broadway" and "I Still Have My Voice," he said, "but saw that I wouldn't be happy studying opera for four years and then coming back and trying to make my way that way. Not many people make it in opera."

The music director directed James towards pop, which he realizes is more his style of music. After all, he said, Michael Jackson and Stevie Wonder are his major influences. While in California, James also could have acquainted himself with schools at which to study pop music, but time was becoming short. So he headed for Carbondale, and James and the Flames.

But the Flames may soon be breaking up, if things go as planned. Members Tony Lopez, drummer, Morgan and James will be sticking together to join with others from De'Bombay. The new nine-member band will feature live drum rhythm and blues sound, James said. "We'll be singing a lot of Rick James and Stevie Wonder," with James still in the spotlight as lead singer. He says his favorite numbers to perform are "Working Day and Night" by Michael Jackson and "All I Do" and "I Wish" by Stevie Wonder.

James and the Flames began playing together last spring, their first gig being at the Club Wonder. "We'll be singing the first set of our gig being at the Club Wonder. "We'll be singing the first set of our gigs," James said and he thinks they may call it quits in the near future. "I'm not too sure," he said. "But it's been great."
Watt prohibited from approving oil and gas leases

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House Appropriations subcommittee voted Thursday to prohibit Interior Secretary James G. Watt from approving oil and gas leases in federal wilderness areas for another year.

With little debate the subcommittee on the interior approved the limitation as a rider to a $5.6 billion money bill financing the department through the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

The spending bill now goes to the full Appropriations Committee led by Sidney Yates, D-Ill., subcommittee chairman, who expects the full panel to act on the bill Nov. 20.

The prohibition approved by the subcommittee also covers areas in national forests that have been temporarily designated for study as possible wilderness areas.

The subcommittee also attached a provision to the bill prohibiting Watt from approving offshore oil and gas leases on some 9 million acres of the outer continental shelf lying off northern and central California.

first received notable attention from their Springfest performance. Although James is pleased with the way the group packs Carbondale nightspots, he said it frustrates him that they haven't stretched much beyond their Carbondale boundaries.

He sees the collaboration with members of Dr. Bombay smart in the publicity sense, as well as musically, since that group has established itself in St. Louis and has played at Chicago Fest. It's uncertain whether James and the Flames will break up, James said, but the formation of the new group is certain.

Although he is thrilled about a fresh start with a new arrangement of musicians, he longs to visit New York where he will look down another artistic avenue - ballet. He said he dreams of performing with the Dance Theater of Harlem, a black ballet company. Right now he practices his stage dancing at home, but he said he's intrigued by "the kind of stuff on 'Soul Train' and in ballet - any kind of dance."

After making it in music James wants to incorporate his musical skills with "dancing and acting. I want to become an all-rounded entertainer."

Mid-America Peace Project sponsors talk by arms analyst

By Jack Wallace
Staff Writer

The nuclear arms race will be the subject of a talk by Adm. Gerald Rocque, director of the Center for Defense Information, at 8 p.m. Monday in the Marcus Civic Center. The talk is sponsored by the Mid-America Peace Project.

The Center for Defense Information, located in Washington, D.C., is a private, non-governmental organization. La Roque heads a staff of military and civilian analysts who try to evaluate the military situation in the world. Rocque was commissioned as an ensign in March of 1941. During World War II, he served in the Pacific aboard destroyers. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Commendation Medal for action against the enemy.

After World War II, he attended the Naval War College and later served on its faculty. He has also worked on strategic planning in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations and for the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for his work as a strategic planner at the Pentagon.

Admission to Monday's lecture is free. Brian Hall, vice president of the campus MAPP, said the organization started as "a grassroots community movement and it still exists off-campus."

Nick Ronn, president of the campus MAPP, attended the Consortium on Peace Research Education and Development, held in Little Rock in October, to seek funding for a grant. He wants to start an "information clearing house for peace education here in Carbondale," he said.

"I was able to get a pledge of some money, between $800 and $1,000, from the Institute for World Order located in New York," he said. "A larger grant request will be submitted to some foundations at a later date."

Search for UFOs ends in tragedy for Minnesotans

GRAND MARAIS, Minn. AP - Drawing by messages from "some higher power," Gerald Flach and Laverne Landis drove last month from St. Paul to the snowy wilderness of northeastern Minnesota to wait for a flying saucer, authorities say.

For more than four weeks they waited in their car, apparently eating vitamins and drinking water from nearby Loon Lake.

On Monday, a motorist found Flach, 38, an electrician from West St. Paul, semiconscious on Gunflint Trail, 41 miles northeast of here. Rescue squad members found Ms. Landis, 33, dead in the front seat of the car a few hundred yards off the main road.

An autopsy determined she died from a combination of hypothermia, dehydration and starvation.

Flach, described by a friend as having become obsessed with UFOs in recent months, was taken to Cook County North Shore Hospital in Grand Marais, where he remained Thursday.

Cook County Deputy Sheriff Frank Redfield said there was no evidence of foul play and no criminal charges were filed.

"Flach said he had been receiving messages through Ms. Landis from some higher power," Redfield said.

Flach received first aid for hypothermia — lower than normal body temperature.

Meatless feast stuffs all but a turkey

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

Stuffing oneself with meat and high-calorie foods on Thanksgiving is a habitual act, but it doesn't necessarily have to be that way.

An alternative to the traditional Thanksgiving feast was prepared at a cooking workshop led by Pam Gubin and Ronni Vaccaro of the Wellness Center.

Gubin, a holistic health designer, said the meal was high in fiber and protein, but low in calories.

Gubin said that if tofu is used in the pumpkin pie, there is no need for a lot of sugar in the pie filling.

"I baked a whole pumpkin and then cleaned out the meaty part for the tofu pumpkin pie," said Vaccaro.

Paley said she is about 75 percent vegetarian. "It is not for the sake of the animals. I grew up on a farm with meat all the time, but in the past few years I have learned a lot about the fat content of meat and now I stay away from it," she said.

After eating their fill of the meatless meal, the cooks took the extra food home to test it out on their families.

Students join ‘I quit’ effort

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

It was probably hell for the 75 or so SIU-C students who signed up to quit smoking Thursday, but as it was probably hell for 3 million other Americans who did the same thing. But it was a hell worth living through.

Well, not everybody who signs up to quit actually makes through the experience, said Joyce Combes, lifestyle coordinator of the Wellness Center. “But just coming back long as one person can surely help,” Combes said. Combes manned the Student Center branch of the American Cancer Society’s Great American Smokeout Thursday and armed with a video machine and some good cheer he set out to “help some people change their lifestyle.”

“Hey great. Good luck. Hope you make it,” she said to the smokers willing to kick the habit “I know you can do it.”

Combes’ message was straightforward. Simply, you smoke you die.

Combes, a registered nurse who formerly worked in an intensive care unit, said that she has seen all the horrors associated with smoking cigarettes.

“I’ve seen the worst of what can happen,” she said. “I’ve seen people who are dying from lung cancer and their noses are bleeding and there is blood coming from their ears and it’s from smoking cigarettes. It’s a terrible way to die. It’s terrible to see a 30-year-old man who’s dying from emphysema and can’t even blow out a match.”

Blames the media and peer pressure for the abuse of tobacco, saying that people get caught up in the seduction of cigarette smoking.

“It’s being cool, it’s smoking cigarettes with your friends and being cool. They see ads and they identify with them and they smoke cigarettes. It’s a dangerous way to be cool.”

Most people tell her the reason they smoke is because it relaxes them. But, she says, “The relaxation comes from breathing deeply. Not from the tobacco itself. The first drag on a cigarette doesn’t relax you. It’s the drags after that. The mind plays tricks on you. You think you need a cigarette. But many times what you need is some deep breathing.”

She said the Wellness Center offers group and one-on-one counseling sessions and they are free to the students. “Hey, your tuition pays for my salary. Why don’t you let us help you?”

Old McDonald's golden arches eee-eeee to go

DES PLAINES, Ill. — It's McPasture for Ray Kroc's McDonald's restaurant.

Its Golden Arches will fall next year and a new McDonald's will go up across the street, officials say.

Kroc opened the red and white tile stand in this suburban northwest of Chicago on April 15, 1955.

Kroc's stand had golden arches on each side of its roof. The arches became the symbol of a fast-food empire that has grown to 7,900 restaurants worldwide, with 500 new ones opening yearly. Total sales were $7.1 billion in 1980.

The current restaurant is profitable, but "we don't have enough physical space to offer modern conveniences for customers," said Win Christiansen, McDonald's Chicago area vice president.

The company plans to build a larger, more modern restaurant across the street with a decor devoted to the history of McDonald's.

"It's not the Pyramids. It's probably the lowest class McDonald's I've ever been in in terms of amenities," said Bruce Krathy of Mount Prospect.
To give his secondary some help against that onslaught, Dempsey is moving safety Adrian White to John McGowan’s defensive end spot. Mc-

Goan, who had two interceptions coming off the bench last week, will start in that particular home.

McGowan has handled bills

all year and Dempsey said the threat of that has to be in the Saluki arsenal.

This came as Anderson and Corky Field will start in the SU-

UC backfield, and might engage in a duel for the Saluki rushing title. Derrick Taylor and Jeff

Ware might have something to say about that, too.

Field leads the team with 205 yards. Ware has 186 and Anderson has added 200.

Johnson needs just 104 yards to become the third Valley quarterback to pass for 3,000 yards. Kansas State was passing, and 186 to break Jim Hall’s passing mark of 3,779 yards.

And the defensive coaches

need a respite from watching

Metcalf completing pass after pass after pass.

Local swimmer makes the big time

By Brian Higgins Staff Writer

In the world of sports, there are enough stories of individual heros to fill a dozen volumes of encyclopedias. Few of these sagas, however, have as much local flavor as the local favorite making it to the top.

Fam Ratchiffe's story is just that - a local girl gone big time. Ratchiffe, a junior at SIU, has graduated from the prep circuit at Carbondale Community High School into the national limelight in the swimming realm as a collegiate athlete. Her math major was named to the All-American team as a freshman, earning an invite to the NCAA meet.

Ratchiffe repeated that accomplishment as a sophomore, being named in addition to the previous year's events, for her NCAA National performances in the 100-, 200- and 400-meter individual medley races.

The holder of four individual school records, as well as a member of two relay records holding down the four individual events, to downdraft her own accomplishments in favor of filling into a team role.

"I just feel like a regular member of the team," Ratchiffe said. "Some people look up to me. I just try to encourage anyone. We're a real team oriented and a good team, but won't pose as much of a challenge. We'll set up our strongest against Alabama and the lineup against Kansas will have to take care of itself," he said.

The Saluki divers also face some serious competition from Craig Ford of Alabama and Mike Prange of Kansas. Ford is comparable to SIUC's Johnny Consenue and Jim Watson, according to Steele. Ford scored about nine points higher than Consenue on the one-meter at the NCAA's.

Prange is one of Kansas's strongest athletes but the Jayhawks also hope to gain points from Brad Wells, who will face Jennings and Porta in the backstroke.

Ratchiffe began her bid for a third straight All-American turn in grand fashion last weekend with winning four events in two meets and finishing second in a dead heat in another.

Hall credits Ratchiffe's consistency and selflessness as a key factor in her success.

"She's real reliable, always comes through in the clutch," he said. "She's a good key role swimmer. She always puts forth a really good effort or performing whatever she's asked to do, even if it's something that's not her forte."

Although there are few events that aren't Ratchiffe's forte, she will need a lot of help Friday when SIUC competes in its biggest home meet of the season, hosting Alabama and Kansas in a double-dual meet. The All-American has no intentions, however, of letting the two powerhouse stands between the Salukis and a perfect season.

"We're going for an undefeated dual-meet record, winning the NKIs (National Independent Champs rings) and be one of the top five or six at nationals. We have a good team, good in meets and good in people."

And good for Carbondale.

times, according to the Saluki coach, Still Alabama, which finished seventh in the nation last year and drubbed Indiana 41 last to take the team to beat.

"I'm more confident of a split but there is a chance of a win," Steele said. "We do have pride in our performance and a lot of self-confidence. Alabama is not untouchable because we have some good people."

Steele added that Kansas has a good team, but won't pose as much of a challenge.

"We'll set up our strongest against Alabama and the lineup against Kansas will have to take care of itself," he said.

The Saluki divers also face some strong competition from Craig Ford of Alabama and Mike Prange of Kansas. Ford is comparable to SIUC's Johnny Consenue and Jim Watson, according to Steele. Ford scored about nine points higher than Consenue on the one-meter at the NCAs.

Men swimmers to 'get on with it'

The men's swimming and diving team will take the energy that has been building up since practice began three months ago and release it during a double dual meet at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Recreation Center pool.

"Practice, practice, practice" goes so far," said swimming Coach Bob Steele. "We've been training hard and we're anxious to get on with it against Alabama and Kansas teams. Several fast and CAGERS from Page 20

Scoring mark. Warring is a strong rebounder and a co-captain on both ends of the court, and was described by Scott as the most improved player last season.

The Salukis open their season Nov. 27 at the Arena against Oregon State, a team that posted a 2-5 record and captured the National Invitational Tournament last year. The Beavers were ranked 18th in a preseason poll.

"I wish we weren't opening with them, but when you can get a team like Oregon State to come in, you can't be picky," Scott said.

She said that the Salukis must be able to pull off an upset through strong (SU) or in the most-likely on a road trip for OSU and Oregon State might work in the Salukis favor.

SU C also has tough games with Vanderbilt, DePaul, Virginia, and GAC foes Illinois State and Drake. Scott admits that the latter two could be considered ahead of the Salukis when it comes to top tier Mid-American Conference teams. But that suits her just fine.

"I can't think of any one thing we are capable of doing," she said. "Both those schools should be considered ahead of us in the preseason, but I have no doubt in my mind we'll be on top of some of them when the season is over. Call us the darkhorses of the GAC."

But before that darkhorse is saddled, the Salukis are going to have to play to their potential.

"If we do that, then we will all enjoy a successful winning season. But they have to want it. All of them," said Scott. And that's the bottom line.

On the line

Those are the three words accompanying Saturday night's Maroon-Saluki basketball game that all fans in both camps have been waiting to hear. The line has been drawn, the camps have met and the game is play to its potential. If it does that, it will have crossed over one of the very good seasons that we will each remember.

"I don't know how good we can be," said the six-foot-three coach. "I know how good we should be and how good we could be, but I don't know how good we will be."

"We said they could be means taking the trip to the NCAA Tournament. Good thing that's not the case, according to Scott, is good enough to best the Salukis. He feels that the Saluki schedule, good enough to win 20 games, and good enough to win 25 games, and good enough to be a reference to the Collegiate Athletic Conference (C-7) and the Big East, is all that is accomplished. Scott said he is team a trip to Nationals."

"We really didn't think that it was going to win," said Scott, noting that the Salukis possess speed, good rebounders, and good defensive play. Scott remains "cautiously optimistic" as the Salukis, and the Salukis don't know how to be the winners, she said. "They did it by last year." She were. "We were 12-11, but we started to have a better record than that. Right now, this team is better than last year's team ever was, but they don't know how to be true winners, because they have never been true winners. It's not something that can be taught, it's something they have to teach themselves. We have the talent, but they're not as hungry as they should be."

"The Salukis are four starters from last year, and the fourth is a small forward, and that kind that delights coaches. Junior forward, Chris Nance, is one of the nucleus of the squad, having held the key role from the bench. Sue Faber, the lone senior, gives the team steadiness. Transfers Eleanor C' uomo and Rebecca Kolbing are just about even in their fight for the open spot, guard and both are worthy of the position, according to Scott and Assistant Coach Julie Beck.

Carr, a point guard, comes to SIU by way of Maudin Junior College, where she led her squad to the Junior College title last year. Peoples, a shooting guard, is one of the four starters from last season, has but one season under his belt. It may only be four points that he is elected to make the move anyway. She was a starter for the Salukis last season.

The open guard spot leaves the Salukis with the open guard who combines razzle, dazzle, can play both the point and the wing, has a good outside shot, comfortable when not having to take the ball to the hole, is a great passer, assists and was second in scoring last year.

"I don't know how good the team will be, but I do know that the team has talent. The team is led in scoring, Faber, the team's leading rebounder and fourth leading scorer, and is just five points shy of breaking the three-year-

The Salukis' defensive coaches were watching films of West Texas State quarter back Bob Dempsey, whom they hope to sign after pass after pass on his way to Champaign. Bob Dempsey self obliged to stop in and cheer with the Huskers. McGee has a season that could bring down the most positive of optimists. "He is really outstanding," said Dempsey. "It's going to be hard to stop the kid. He's going to get his completions. The object is to Coach Dempsey's defense."

The Salukis is about to become only the third Missouri Valley Conference quarterback in history to throw for more than 2,000 yards. In an average game he has completed 3 of 10 passing for 290 yards. He has thrown 19 touchdowns and 17 interceptions.

But most of that has come in losing causes. West Texas State will arrive at McAndrew Stadium Saturday with a 7-3 record. The Salukis will have to give Dempsey his fifth winning season in his seventh coaching tenure.

"It's going to be great to see how the Salukis can be so we'll be happy with that," he said.

The game will be at 1 p.m. moved ahead one half hour to accommodate the delayed telecast of the game by the NBC Network Corporation in an effort to fill the stands, all of which have been sold. High school students will be admitted for $2, and the small crowd will probably see a lot of passes.

With McGee it's a reason and Dempsey said the Salukis will be playing very heavily on their ground game, which they managed to do last week.

"I don't think we'll get away with throwing 18 or 19 or 20 passes," he said. "We have to be careful we don't get caught, because we're a good passing team."

Neither team can run much with its ground game. The Salukis is averaging only 44 yards a game, worst in the conference, and the Saluki rushing attack is only slightly better. It has picked up 111 yards a game.

The Buffalo defense, as bad as its ground game, West Texas State can pass, it seems, but it can't do anything else. Under first year coach Don Davis, a former offensive coordinator at Buffalo, the team have allowed a staggering 496 yards per game, almost all of that on the ground. Davis has tried to camouflage defenses to keep weaknesses by hiding his players.

You hardly ever see the same defensive look," said Dempsey.

The maroon team that sat with Coach Allen Van Winkle during Wednesday's intra-conference scrimmage at Eldorado High School looked surprisingly like his starting lineup. The white team at the other end of the court, under the tutelage of two Saluki assistants, looked a lot like the SIU U Bench.

But Van Winkle wasn't saying anything. Even after the maroon squad had routed the white team 60-23 after leading by as many as 23 points, he played it close to the vest.

"No, we don't have a starting lineup," he said. "We're going to evaluate the next few days before we make any final touches."

The Salukis open their regular season at home against Charleston (West Virginia), Friday, Nov. 26, and then play Northern Illinois in Rockford the following night.

Van Winkle didn't say anything concrete, but he may have made up for it by dropping hints.

"I will say this," the maroon team played pretty good. They ran the break very well and they rebounded against bigger kids. Things flowed very naturally, I feel better about how we line up than sitting there with the position, according to Scott and Assistant Coach Julie Beck.

Carr, a point guard, comes to SIU by way of Maudin Junior College where she led her squad to the Junior College title last year.
