Carbondale drops subpoena request

By Bill Kugelberg
Associate Student Editor

The City of Carbondale dropped its request for a subpoena against the Daily Egyptian and WSIU-TV Thursday after University and law enforcement officials agreed to a compromise requiring police to be more specific in their search for criminal actions which occurred over the Halloween weekend.

Police to submit list of crimes under investigation

The agreement allows for Carbondale police to submit a list outlining the crimes it is investigating to the Daily Egyptian and WSIU-TV.

The two media outlets will then review their still photos and videotape for footage which matches the crimes described. Any photos containing the crimes outlined by the police on their list will be turned over to police.

Walter Jaehnig, director of SIUC's School of Journalism and fiscal officer of the Daily Egyptian, said he was satisfied with the agreement.

"It seems to me to be an amicable arrangement," he said. "I am happy they are not using legal means to enlist the DE on the side of the prosecution and I appreciate the support the University has given us."

Mike Wepsiec, Jackson County state's attorney, said four other area media outlets also were subpoenaed to turn over all footage and still Thomas Public School fourth grader, Brittany Hawthorne is shown the effects that cigarette smoke has on the lungs as it is inhaled. Jenni Clausen, a senior in early childhood education from New Lennox, assists the demonstration. SIUC's Associate Childhood Education put on the presentation as part of the Great American Smokeout, where smokers are asked to stop smoking for 24 hours and non-smokers are asked not to start.

Student among 52 honored

Rubin receives praise for achievements in, out of class

By Stephanie Moletti
Senior Reporter

SIUC undergraduate student, Jenny Rubin, will be honored for outstanding curricular and extracurricular achievement in Springfield Saturday.

Rubin, a senior in political science from Carbondale, is one of 52 students from Illinois colleges being honored by the Lincoln Academy of Illinois at its 20th Annual Student Laureate Awards Ceremony.

Each Student Laureate will receive a medallion, certificate and $150 cash presented by Governor and Mrs. Jim Edgar.

Judy Bartholf, executive director of the academy, said the purpose of the ceremony is to honor overall excellence in curricular and extracurricular activities to seniors from four-year, degree-granting colleges and universities in Illinois.

"These are the top notch students in the state," Bartholf said.

The students are nominated by the presidents of the school. Nominations are reviewed by the academy.

Rubin will speak on behalf of the Student Laureates during the ceremony.

Bartholf said Rubin was chosen to speak at the ceremony by a panel of judges from the participating schools.

"She (Rubin) came with outstanding recommendations," she said. "She has a perfect (grade) point average and is finishing this up in three years."

Rubin was a member of SIUC's women's tennis team for two years. She is involved in the Undergraduate Student Government as a west side senator, president

GATT faces vote

Local legislators say Congress to OK agreement

By Dean Weaver
Senior Reporter

After celebrating Thanksgiving, federal legislators will find themselves back in Washington to vote on a global free trade agreement designed to lower tariffs and trade barriers — an agreement about which many Illinois lawmakers are still undecided.

The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) is scheduled for a vote in the House on Nov. 29, with the Senate voting by Dec. 2. The agreement, which is over 14,000 pages long, is on "fast track" so no amendments or changes will be allowed during this vote.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, said he thinks the agreement will pass this year, but he has not reached a decision on how he will vote.

"This (the agreement) will go a long way towards evening the playing field," Poshard said. "I don't fear manufacturers will leave our country, because this deals strictly with import and export barriers."

Poshard said this vote will either make or break the amendment.

"Nobody gets everything they want in this agreement — its about compromise," he said. "If you start voting to amend it, the whole thing unravels and a decade worth of work is down the tubes."

The United States will be the first country to approve or disapprove the agreement, and will be watched closely by the European community, he said.

John Foster, chair of SOIC's political science department, said he thinks GATT will pass by a wider margin than the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) because there is no significant opposition to it.

Poshard said GATT will benefit the nation's agriculture and coal industry.

Selahattin Dibooglu, an SIUC associate professor of economics, said GATT will benefit the nation because most of the other 216 nations considering GATT have higher tariffs than the United States.

"The U.S. will benefit because it has an advantage over other countries in many industries," Dibooglu, who specializes in international

Cleanup crews bring oil leak under control

By Kellie Huttes
Senior Reporter

A 2,000 gallon heating oil leak, which happened last weekend near SIUC's Greek Row and Campus Lake, is being examined and contained today by a professional hazardous waste clean up company.

James Tyrrell, director for SIUC's Center of Environmental Health and Safety, said although the paperwork was still being processed Thursday, crews would be cleaning the area and excavating the heat storage tank that leaked.

OHM, a company from O'Fallon, Mo., is conducting the operation. Tyrrell said the estimated cost is $9,000 for a provisional two-day clean up, but it will cost that much or more to transport the contaminated soil to a landfill.

Tyrrell said once the contaminated material is contained in a large dumpster, he will begin accepting bids from disposal companies.

He said physical plant employees moved, but left intact, a temporary storage tank and a propane tank Thursday afternoon at 105 small group housing, the Delta Chi fraternity house, so that OHM employees may excavate the leaking oil tank.

The oil leaked out of an underground storage tank, near the Delta Chi house between Nov. 11 and Nov. 14, and seeped into the soil, through a storm sewer and into the lake.

CHRETIAN ALTERS CANADA'S FOREIGN POLICY — OTTAWA—After a year in office, Prime Minister Jean Chretien is crafting a new Canadian foreign policy that politely distances itself from the United States and reorders its diplomatic priorities around new overseas markets for Canadian businesses. As it shifts its emphasis from the geopolitical to the commercial, the Canadian government is quietly moving away from a decade of serving as Washington's reliable second in global affairs. And it is serving notice its commitment to multilateral institutions, notably U.N. peacekeeping efforts, is not inexhaustible or unconditional. The Liberal Party prime minister has just dramatized his government's new approach by leading a delegation of 400 political and business leaders on a trade mission to China that yielded more than $6 billion (U.S.) in tentative contracts with Canadian companies — a quarter of that in a single deal for two heavy-water nuclear reactors.

POLICE MISTREATMENT OF FOREIGNERS RISES — BERLIN—Fifty-five cases of German police mistreatment of Vietnamese black-market cigarette peddlers are being investigated by Berlin authorities. The probes have already led to charges against four officers and are described by human-rights organizations as part of a systematic police campaign targeting Vietnamese. And the accusations concerning the Vietnamese peddlers, in turn, are only one example of numerous cases of alleged police brutality aimed at foreigners reported in recent months, not only in Berlin but across Germany. Human-rights organizations such as Amnesty International have chronicled a sharp increase in such attacks over the past several years and continuing in 1994. While most agree that German police as a whole are not racist, they say a significant number of police have mistreated foreigners, and they call for measures to combat the trend.

FIVE SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN JEWELRY THEFT — Five Philadelphia men have been arrested in the "smash-and-grab" theft of four watches worth $66,000 from a jeweler in Montgomery County, Md.'s White Flint Mall. Montgomery County police said the men were mulling around Khouri Brothers Jewelry about 9 p.m. Tuesday, a half-hour before closing time, for several minutes before one of them pulled out a sledgehammer and smashed a display window. One man reached through the broken glass and plucked out pairs of Swiss Piaget and Concord watches, ignoring $10,000 sapphire necklaces and bracelets and other precious gem pieces in the showcase. Rockville, Md. detective Jayne Bowers said the crime was similar to other burglaries committed in Montgomery and elsewhere along the East Coast in the last two years by various gangs.

TOBACCO COMPANIES HIT OVERSEAS MARKET — Americans keep smoking less, but tobacco companies are finding more than enough people in other countries to take their places. From the smoke-filled cafes of Eastern Europe to the billboard jungles of Asia, the companies are out there pitching — often using TV and other strategies they cannot use at home. In chain-smoking Eastern Europe, the U.S. companies are becoming a huge force in cigarette manufacturing, with Philip Morris and Reynolds between them having entered into 14 joint ventures with state tobacco companies. In the United States, tobacco companies are circling the wagons, fighting to save what they can of a shrinking market. But the industry's big three — Philip Morris, R.J. Reynolds and Brown & Williamson — are seizing new turf in the developing world, where smoking is on the rise and American cigarettes still symbolize elegance and style.

BIOLOGIST PROTESTS GENETIC EXPERIMENTS — WASHINGTON—In a move that has become the talk of the scientific community, 46-year-old molecular biologist John Fagan is returning nearly $614,000 in grant money to the National Institutes of Health, while withdrawing his previously filed request for an additional $1.25 million in support. He is doing so to protest what he sees as rampant and unwise genetic tinkering with plants and animals and the release of these novel organisms into the environment. Jerome Green, director of the NIH division of research grants and a 39-year veteran of the institutes, said this may be the first instance of a scientist returning grant money in protest.

List of demands given to Guyon

By Kellie Huttes
Senior Reporter

Members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) submitted a list of demands to President John Guyon Thursday morning proposing changes in the University's approach to several areas of student life.

Tyronex Gray, president of SNCC, a group which is not an SIUC Registered Student Organization, said by giving the list to Guyon he hopes to alert him to the concerns of students.

The list begins with a statement that said there is a recognizable pattern of neglect of African-American students at SIUC. It states that the University receives contributions and federal support to ensure the general safety of each student, sustain diversity through multicultural programming and to develop a partnership with the college community.

Gray, a graduate student from Chicago, said although the group continues to protest, they have no set time to meet with administrators to discuss or define issues they see as problems.

Instead, Gray says, he is concentrating his efforts on additional student support for the committee.

"We're going to be going door-to-door and knocking on dorm rooms telling people about our rights," he said. "We'll be passing out fliers, meeting a couple times a week and protesting."

Gray said he thinks protesting at Anthony Hall and around campus will increase the group's membership. He said he knows Guyon will not be able to address SNCC's concerns "overnight" because the demands deal more than one department or administrative area.

He added the administration will have ample time to address these demands. President Guyon, however, maintains Gray has indicated SNCC does not wish to meet with him yet because Gray says the time is not right. The best Guyon said he could do was take the demands under advisement.

Gray said he wants to see more security on campus, and University officials involved with off-campus residential housing and recent student deaths.

"Whether something happens on or off campus it should still be a University concern," he said.

SIUC international students travel, celebrate over break

By Katie Morrissey
Staff Reporter

While many SIUC students are preparing for the usual turkey dinner and trimmings on Thanksgiving, some international students will be heading off for vacation or trying out the American holiday for themselves.

Jason Chew, a senior in finance from Singapore, will be in Boston and New York during the week-long break. He said he was thankful for a break from school.

"I think all of us need that right now," he said.

Chew said this is his last holiday in the United States so he wanted to go far from Carbondale.

"I'll meet friends and celebrate with them," he said.

Chew said he thinks Thanksgiving is pretty neat, and while he's not an American, he says, he can appreciate the idea of giving thanks.

"I think I see the significance of Thanksgiving," he said.

Japan's Junko Tsuchida, a graduate student in education, said she will be celebrating Thanksgiving twice this year.

She'll be attending a dinner at James Quisenberry's house on Thanksgiving day. Quisenberry is SIUC's director for international programs and services.

"It's really nice, he does this every year," she said. Tsuchida said she and her friends who have been to the dinner appreciate and enjoy the holiday and feel thankful for Quisenberry's interest in them.

Tsuchida said she will also get together with some friends at her church to celebrate the holiday.

She said she would have liked to go away for the break, but is too busy with school right now.

"Other people are going south for the break, but I'll be here," she said.

Kay Inn Tan, a retail design senior from Malaysia, said she chose to remain in Carbondale for the break. She will be spending Thanksgiving with friends from her church. She said Thanksgiving is a holiday she has enjoyed since coming to America.

"I think it is very meaningful. It is good to give thanks and have a time of appreciation," she said.

Health department encourages safe behavior during holidays

By John Kmitta
Staff Reporter

The Jackson County Health Department will kick off the holiday season by encouraging driver safety at places where quite a few celebrations occur.

The Holiday Safety Challenge is a contest that recognizes and rewards responsible behavior on the part of liquor stores and bars.

The goal is to reduce the amount of Driving Under the Influence and alcohol-related auto collisions.

Miriam Link-Mullison of the Meriah Education Department of the Jackson County Health Department said the program is designed to give notice to establishments that promote responsible driving.

"We want to encourage bar owners to serve alcohol responsibly and reward those who do," she said.

The program awards points to bar and liquor store owners who promote designated-driver services, identification card checks, and employ well trained servers, Mullison said.

Points also are given for development of new policies and promotion of responsible behavior, she said.

The establishment with the most points at the end of the challenge wins.

"We want to encourage bar owners to serve alcohol responsibly and reward those who do. Liquor establishments get press for negative things. We believe in positive reinforcement."

—Miriam Link-Mullison

The winner will be advertised as the winner and congratulated for its efforts, Mullison said.

The health department will pay for the newspaper advertisement.

"Liquor establishments get press for negative things," she said.

"We believe in positive reinforcement."

The program is for establishments throughout Jackson County, beginning with the kickoff today, at 4 p.m. at Beach Bumz, 611 S. Illinois Ave., and ending New Year's day.

Mullison said the holidays are a key time to remind people to act responsibly and drive safely.

Roland Davis, owner of Beach Bumz, said he thinks the program is an effective way to make people aware of their drinking habits.

He also said the issue should be carried on throughout the year and not just over the holiday season and would be more effective if held when students were not on break.

The Holiday Safety Challenge is an award-winning program of the National Commission Against Drunk Driving and is part of the National Drunk & Drugged Driving Awareness Session.

Between 20 and 25 liquor establishments signed up for the program.

That is an increase from the 14 who participated last year.

The participants of the challenge will be announced at the kick-off and Davis will speak about the perspective of the participants.

Davis said he will encourage other bar owners to think of more creative ways to keep patrons occupied than just drinking.

"I will encourage activities to promote entertainment more than drink specials," he said.

"We will also be running a designated driver program and giving free Cokes to the drivers, and running specials on non-alcoholic drinks."

At the kick-off there also will be someone from the police department speaking about the problems related to drinking and driving, Mullison said.

Comet-hunter shares awe with lecture audience

By Aaron Butler
Staff Reporter

A story which has fascinated the scientific community ever since it began to develop early last year was told to a packed auditorium Wednesday, by one of the world's most prominent amateur astronomers.

David H. Levy, a writer and teacher at the University of Arizona, presented a lecture on his discoveries as a comet hunter, focusing primarily on his most famous find: the comet that hit Jupiter.

The comet Shoemaker-Levy 9,

Levy speaks to packed auditorium about discoveries

named after Levy and two co-discoverers, collided with Jupiter in July of this year, the first such collision astronomers have ever witnessed.

Levy discovered the comet in March 1993, while taking pictures of the sky with his two friends at the Palomar observatory in California.

At the lecture, Levy described the events leading up to the discovery, admitting he and his co-discoverers were "very lucky".

Once the comet was found, it

Levy

Attempting to describe the importance of this event to the audience,

Levy said

"There should have been signs posted around Jupiter saying, 'Caution: solar system under construction'."

Levy has a romantic vision of stargazing, describing his "quest for comets" in very "unscientific" terms, using poetry, slides, music and video to share with the audience the awe he feels when he looks at these heavenly bodies.

Levy said the comet-planetary collision brought a great deal of good attention to the comet — watching community, and was a good learning experience for everyone involved.

"The best thing about Shoemaker-Levy 9 is that it had astronomers acting like little kids, and little kids acting like astronomers," he said.

Levy said he focuses his attention of comets because they have an important meaning for him, and for people in general.

"Comets are really special," he said.

"They have fascinated people throughout history, because there is something magical and poetic about them."

Count your blessings: Thanksgiving is here

IT'S FINALLY HERE WHETHER WE WANTED IT or not. Thanksgiving break: Nine days to catch up on homework, prepare for finals and to stuff ourselves with enough turkey and sweet potatoes to last until Christmas. But as students prepare to go home or visit friends, they should remember one thing: This is the time to give thanks and to count our blessings. In this day and age, people tend to take the small things for granted. On this day of thanks, people should be grateful they are in good health, have shelter and something to eat.

People complain about such trivial things such as not finding a good parking space or having to wait in line for lunch at McDonald's. They should just glance at the headlines and read how much worse their world could be. If people took the time to think about other people who have no food or shelter, they would be less inclined to complain.

Look at the headlines today. Illegal immigrants worry about their lives out in California, the war in Bosnia goes on along with other conflicts around the world and people are struggling just to make ends meet. With all these blessings, why would we not give thanks? If you cannot think of any blessings on your own, here are a few that are often taken for granted.

FREEDOM IS A BLESSING. AS THE PILGRIMS gave thanks at the first Thanksgiving dinner, we should give thanks for our freedom and being in this country. Even though we all complain about losing our rights and dirty politics, what ties us together is having freedom and pursuing our dreams. Give thanks to the land in which we harvest the food we eat every day.

As we return home or afar, we should give thanks to our families who support us, financially and emotionally. Where would we be today without our families? If your family, such as your parents and grandparents, is still alive, be thankful. Many students are without their families because of distance or death.

On a local level, students should be thankful for attending higher education. A lot of people, the same age, are unable to go to school for different reasons, whether financial or otherwise. Pursuing a college degree is an honor, not an instant service. Be thankful for having the chance to learn.

WITH STUDENTS' YOUTH AND VITALITY, WE should strive to do good for our fellow man. This Thanksgiving, while counting blessings, we should think about some ways we can share those blessings with others. By volunteering our time, donating blood or giving to a charity, students would set an example for the rest of the community. Some students are already taking the initiative, how about you?

Do not be blind-sided to be the world around you. Count your blessings and make good with what you have. Remember those who are less fortunate and reach out to those around you. On a final note, bring on the food.

PBS privatization deserves look

This is in response to the article in the DE on Wednesday which was critical of privatizing the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. PBS was founded in the Pre-Cable era when existing broadcasters were not providing the quality programming that PBS specializes in. Thus, I would agree that it was once a vital services worthy of taxpayer support.

But the onslaught of new cable services has changed the picture. It is much harder to justify spending billions of dollars to support nich programming which could be either offered commercially or via cable. In fact, PBS specializes in many niches, but they are not alone. There are a dozen or so other programmers which offer programs similar to those of PBS, and they are successful without taxpayer dollars ( examples: The Discovery Channel, The Learning Channel, A&E, CNN, CNBC, C-Span, Nickelodeon, and others).

Of course, the article mentioned the inevitable slam against privatization; " I'd like to think no senator or congressman will go back to their district and explain why there's no Sesame Street." This is the biggest irony of all; it is programming such as Sesame Street which is most viable for commercial success.

Thus, it is important to at least have an open mind on this issue; it is not as radical as one might think .

—Chad Moutray, graduate student and instructor, Economics

Republicans win big in county

One of the most bizarre results of this last election that we had, occurred in the election of Jackson County Board members.

Before the election, there were 13 Democrats as Board Members, and only one Republican member.

The Democra party was so confident of winning that they decided that the only incumbent board member that needed support was Bonnie Long. Bonnie Long had never run in an election, and became an incumbent Board Member by appointment. Also, she was running against a hard working, well known, well liked candidate Greg Prineas.

The Democrat backed Bonnie Long with a district 7 mailing, door to door campaigning, telephone campaigning, and many, many signs. The only mud thrown in the District 7 campaign was by the Democrat Party. In other words, The Democrat Party did everything they could to get Bonnie elected. Since they concentrated on electing her, the Democrats ignored the other Democrat Board candidates almost totally. The result was that the Democrats lost five incumbent County Board Members to save one. The Board is now 8 Democrats and 6 Republicans. The Democrats 13 to 1 free ride is gone, thanks to the Bonnie Long Campaign. This is why I say the Republicans got the "Last Laugh."

—P.G. Prineas, professional engineer

Pulliam clock strikes again, soon

The clock faces atop Pulliman Hall soon will be back ticking off more than minutes, would you believe the hours, the minutes and the seconds will all be working in rhythmical fashion soon again.

Yes, I made my monthly storm to the Chief Engineer's office to find out what was being done about getting the clock back in motion again. And to my surprise to my surprise the chief shares good things with me concerning the fate of the clocks.

First of all the Simplex Time

Recorder Co. has been awarded the task of making necessary repairs to the clocks; second of all, a Simplex representative has already picked up the non-workable gear box from the tower so that a complete new gear box or system might be made to operate the existing clock faces, and third of all, the delivery of the new system is supposed to happen before Christmas meaning that the clock will be back in operation before the end of the semester.

Wow, what a Christmas present to all of those who have tried to keep the clocks running through the years, the Carbondale Community who glance at the clock in going to and from each day, and the students and faculty here who have depended on these clocks to get them to there destinations on campus. I say this is a big Christmas for me and I hope it will be for you all here on the Campus and the City of Carbondale. Holiday greetings to you all.

—Robert Reid, alumnus.

finance, said.
He said the United States has gone from 50-percent tariffs on goods in the 1930's to an average tariff of only 5 percent today, with the highest tariffs on clothing, textiles and footwear.
Although Poshard said the nation's coal industry could benefit from GATT, David Arey, assistant director of SIUC's coal research center, said Southern Illinois would have little to gain.
Arey said the problems with exporting Southern Illinois coal are not tariffs, but transportation costs combined with the high-sulfur content.
He said exports of cleaner-burning coal, like that found in Western states, would increase.

Brian Lott, spokesman for U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, said Costello has not decided how he will vote.
"He wants to make sure the U.S. will remain sovereign in the World Trade Organization, and he wants to know what revenues will replace the lost tariff revenues," Lott said.
The GATT agreement establishes a World Trade Organization that allows each country one vote.
Poshard said his concerns are with the anti-dumping and patent infringement provisions in GATT.

He said he wants stricter provisions against other companies dumping their products in the United States at below-cost prices.
Tougher patent infringements would keep developing countries from producing products that have a U.S. patent, he said.
David Carle, a spokesman for U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Simon still is studying the agreement and has not decided how he will vote.
Chip Azano, a spokesman for U.S. Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., said Braun is supporting GATT and will vote for the agreement.

pro tempore and a member of the Internal Affairs Committee.
Rubin also is president of the Gamma Beta Phi honors society and helped create a pre-law society for undergraduate students this year. She is also the student representative from SIUC for the Illinois Board of Higher Education's student advisory committee.
"The theme (of the speech) is that students like myself, who have had the opportunity to be leaders, have a responsibility to continue to exercise leadership after college," Rubin said.

She said because Governor Edgar and other state officials will be present at the ceremony, she plans to address a few questions to them and "tell them what I'm wondering as a person who aspires to follow in their path."
One individual from among all Illinois junior college students, recommended by the Illinois Community College Board also will be recognized.
The ceremony is at 11 a.m. Saturday at the State Capital's House of Representative chamber in Springfield. A reception will follow at the Illinois Executive Mansion, hosted by Governor and Mrs. Edgar, where music will be provided by Fourscore of Springfield.

The Lincoln Academy was established 29 years ago to honor Illinois citizens whose contributions or achievements brought honor to the state because of their identification with it, Bartholf said.
Bartholf said the academy will present an Order of Lincoln Award on April 22, 1995 in Carbondale. The individual to be recognized has not been determined.

photos taken during the evening hours of Oct. 28, Oct. 29 and early morning hours of Oct. 30.
The media outlets — The Southern Illinoisan, WPSD-TV, WSIL-TV, KFVS-TV — complied with the broader request.
However, Jaehng said the Daily Egyptian did not comply with the subpoena originally because it was too broad and did not ask for anything specific.
"The reason (we do not want to comply) basically is that this is a boxcar subpoena and asked for everything we have shot," he said when the subpoena was served to Daily Egyptian managing editor Lloyd Goodman Nov. 2. "It does not ask for anything specific."

Don Strom, Carbondale police chief, said he was not sure if he was happy with Thursday's agreement.
"Our preference would have been for our staff to review the photos," he said. "But I do appreciate the cooperation."

Strom declined to comment on what crimes are being investigated.
Sheri Rhode, chief trial attorney for the office of SIUC's University Legal Counsel, said the agreement was reached after the two parties worked together.
"The city and the University worked together to work it out," she said.

Debate prepares for next season

By David Vingren
Staff Reporter
The SIUC debate team's early elimination in its last two fall tournaments has pushed team members to forget about this season and look ahead to spring debates.
The squad's recent performance, losses in the last two tournaments, is a shift from earlier semester performances which saw it qualify for the quarterfinals and the semifinals in its first two tournaments of the season.

The team's season ending slip leaves Greg Simerly, team director, dumbfounded.
"I can't figure out what it is," he said. "Our strategy's improved. It's not like we're making the same mistakes. Maybe the competition got better than we did."
The team will not be focusing on the late season slump, but are wasting no time beginning research on next semester's debate topic, of "how can we best utilize the earth's ocean resources?"
The upcoming research will serve as a fresh start for team members, some of who were growing weary of the fall semester topic of criminal punishment.

Simerly said the second semester will see more consistency in terms of team pairings. The Saluki's experimented with different team pairings throughout the first semester.
SIUC opens spring semester competition at the Georgia Bowman Invitational at William Jewell College in Liberty, Missouri, on Jan. 4.

Honor society recognition goes to 2 SIUC professors

1994 Phi Kappa Phi bestows awards on Davidson, Stemper

By Diane Dove
Staff Reporter

The SIUC chapter of Phi Kappa Phi honored a finance professor and a music professor during a ceremony Tuesday night.

Professor Wallace Davidson, III, of finance, received the chapter's annual scholar award, sharing the honor with Frank Stemper a music professor who received the annual artist award.

Davidson, who came to the University in 1989, said his interest in finance came naturally.

"I've always been interested in finance and economics," he said. "Some of the best professors I've had were in finance. It just seemed to click."

Though his field has similarities to personal finance, Davidson said his work involves corporate finance.

"Usually, when people find out that I'm in finance they think personal finance, he said.

"My research gets into the corporate control area. It means who controls corporations, who's running them and does that matter."

Davidson's recent research shows a trend in U.S. corporations involving shareholders taking over corporations previously operated by managers.

Davidson said research and teaching often complement each other. "What is researched now, in five years is going to be in the text books," he said. "I think students appreciate hearing what goes on in the business world. It's very useful to be able to bring up specific cases."

Stemper said his recent work, which incorporated computerized music into his composition, benefited his students by bringing new technology to the department.

"When I was a student I felt my best education didn't come from the classroom, but from watching my teachers.

"I'd see how they act like professional composers and what there was to composing."

While his work influences his teaching, Stemper said teaching sometimes leads to discoveries in new perspectives that can influence his work.

"Everything I do influences my music," Stemper said.

Being born in Milwaukee, and having worked in Berkeley, Cal. and Paris, Stemper said living in Southern Illinois for the past five years also influenced his recent music.

"I think my music has changed quite a bit by living here," he said. "It would have changed quite a bit differently if I was living in New York City."

Former TV head dies, leaves 50-year legacy

By David Vingren
Staff Reporter

A retired SIUC television station manager who helped elevate an SIUC operated station died last week.

Criswell

At 67 years old, William Criswell passed away at Wheeling Medical Park in Wheeling, West Virginia.

Criswell, who spent nearly 50 years in television and radio broadcasting, joined the SIUC staff in 1971 as sports coverage director at WSIU television and radio, where he was a sports broadcaster, and taught classes in the radio-television department.

"Bill followed them all the time, whether it was football, baseball, or basketball," Ken Garry, who worked with Criswell as a radio manager at WSIU, said. "Students really learned a lot of play by play, statistics, and how to do color (broadcasting) from him."

Ten years later, Criswell was promoted to station manager and program director at WSIU's sister station, WUSI in Olney, where he produced and aired special programs for the station, which was a breakaway from simply repeating broadcasts of WSIU programming. His efforts led to an increase in WUSI's audience share and number of financial supporters.

"He gave it new life when he went up there. He came up with innovative programming and local shows. They didn't do that before. The new programming led to more viewer ship," Erv Coppi, who worked with Criswell as the WSIU production director for eight years, said.

Criswell retired from SIUC in 1989 and moved to West Virginia.

Former coworkers say Criswell's accomplishments at WUSI are an example of his aggressive attitude. "He was a go get'em kind of guy, a hard worker," Jerry Parks, WSIU business manager, said. "He was able to publicize and gain support for the station."

"In my 42 years of broadcasting, I've never worked with a guy who was as hard a worker and who was as dedicated in sports broadcasting," Coppi said.

"It was a pleasure to have known him."

Criswell in the mid-1980's, suffered a heart attack which required open heart surgery, but it did not slow him down at th service.

"He had open heart surgery; but he jumped right back up and got a promotion to WUSI in Olney," Coppi said.

Funeral services for Criswell will be held on Nov. 12 in McMechen, West Virginia.

Weekend Spotlight

St. Louis singin' the blues

By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

Entertainment is thriving under the arch of St. Louis during the Thanksgiving break, and students and others traveling in that direction may want to stop and check out some of the events.

The St. Louis Blues Society is having a birthday blues celebration at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at Mississippi Nights located on Laclede's Landing. The celebration will feature five bands, including the Souldard Blues Band which has appeared in Carbondale on several occasions. Other bands include Benny Smith, True Blue, Cryin' Shame and Alvin Jett.

Cindy Fehmel, an employee at Mississippi Nights, said the blues society hosts about three or four events a year.

"Most of the time, the events are centered around special instruments," she said. "This event will simply feature blues music."

Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 on the day of the show.

For more information about this and other blues society events call 314-241-2583.

Also at Mississippi Nights at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 22, KSHE 95 radio station presents Foghat in concert. The band is known for songs such as "Storwride" and will feature all the original band members.

Tickets are $10 in advance, $12 the day of the show. For more information about future events at Mississippi Nights, call 314-421-3853.

Phish will appear at 8 p.m. at the Fox Theatre on Nov. 23. Tickets for the show are $20.50.

The band is promoting "Hoist" and features a show in which the bandmembers jump on trampolines while playing guitars. They also do a cappella versions of "Freebird" and "Purple Rain."

Also appearing on Nov. 25 at the Fox Theatre is Martin Lawrence from the Fox network television show after his name. Tickets are $40, $30 and $25.

For more information on future Fox Theatre presentations, or to order tickets, call 314-534-1111.

Appearing at the Westport Playhouse at 8 p.m. on Nov. 19 and at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 20 is David Lanz. Lanz ranks among the best-selling artists in contemporary music's adult alternative/new age category.

His new album, "Christmas Eve" is currently number one on the Billboard adult alternative chart and his album "Cristofori's Dream" spent 27 consecutive weeks at number one on the same chart.

Also appearing at 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. on Nov. 23 at the Westport Playhouse is the Little River Band with their harmonious singing and instrumentals.

The band, which released its debut album in 1976, has made some changes over the years, but is still popular today with hits such as "Baby Come Back."

Tickets for the Lanz show are $24.50 and tickets for the Little River Band show are $20 in advance and $22 the day of the show.

Tickets for both shows are available locally at Disc Jockey Records in the University Mall or can be charged by phone by calling 314-291-7600.

Head gear required: Helmet to play

By Dave Katzman
Staff Reporter

When the 5,351 SIUC students from the Chicagoland area return north to enjoy turkey and vacation, they will also have the opportunity to see several popular bands.

Helmet, from New York City, has been around since 1989. The band's heavy, precisely-timed sound quickly gathered national attention and, within a year, it released "Strap It On" on the popular underground label, Amphetamine Reptile.

Helmet's reputation for energetic shows reached the ears of Atlantic's subsidiary Interscope Records, and it quickly snatched the band up for the 1992 release, "Meantime."

"Meantime" was embraced by the expanding alternative community and went gold, fueling the "In The Meantime" and "Unsung" singles. A nationwide tour with Ministry and Sepultura fanned the fire of ascent, and "Guitar World" magazine praised singer/guitarist Page Hamilton as a leader in a new crop of musicians.

"Betty," Helmet's newest release, has not seen the popularity of its predecessors, although it shows Helmet at its most diverse. While retaining the crunch of the first two releases, "Betty" also enters the realms of softer guitars, multi-chord melodies and even a bastardized form of jazz.

Helmet will display its legendary live aggression November 19 at 6 p.m. at the Riviera. 4746

Film offers bloody good time

By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

Those who enjoy brilliant acting, blood and gore with a twist of a vampire theme and thriller movies should definitely check out the Anne Rice movie based on her novel "Interview with the Vampire," now playing in theaters.

With all the hype surrounding the movie, people may expect more than they get out of it, but the movie is still enjoyable and quite intense in parts.

Tom Cruise, Brad Pitt and Antonio Banderas round out the role of the fang-toothed, blood-sucking vampire males. All three did an excellent job portraying vampires realistically, especially Cruise, who's role was surrounded by controversy because many skeptics thought he would not do the part justice.

It is Kirsten Dunst, who portrays the vampire Claudia in the movie, who stole the performance with her eerie, yet tender and comical approach to killing people for blood. She also works extremely well with her male counterparts, at many times stealing the spotlight away from them.

Movie Review

The movie follows the life of Lestat, played by Cruise, and his encounters with changing people into vampires. With many ironic twists, the movie takes the viewer through a journey of several centuries and encounters the vampires face while trapped in a world between life and death.

One ironic twist in the movie places Pitt and Dunst in a situation where they are attending a theater where vampires portray people portraying vampires. The audience in the theater is clueless that the people on stage are actually vampires and are, in reality, consuming the blood of the humans brought onto the stage.

Christian Slater plays an eager biographical interviewer who is talking with Pitt about his experiences. As Pitt leads him through his vampire life, Slater becomes interested in becoming a vampire himself. The end of the movie leaves the viewer hanging as to whether he will become one, making a sequel entirely possible, just like "The Vampire Chronicles" written by Rice.

The List

Senior entertainment reporter Aleksandra Macys' top five albums of all time:

1. Grateful Dead's "Bears Choice" — because it offers a wide variety of Dead songs and is great to listen to again and again.
2. Megadeth's "Countdown to Extinction" — except for the title song, it rocks. It deals with a lot of current social issues in a unique manner.
3. Led Zeppelin's "Presence" — it's one of the less overplayed albums and the songs on it jam.
4. Jane's Addiction's "Nothing's Shocking" — all the songs on it sound different, offering a diverse range of music.
5. Edis Armoshkaas' "Tarp Girnia" — because my uncle in Lithuania wrote it and it includes a song written about me.

● Take it, Ringo: Capitol Records will release a new Beatles package containing 30 previously unreleased songs and 26 classics. All selections were recorded live for British radio between 1962 and 1965. "Live at the BBC" also includes a 48-page booklet containing many rare photographs. It is due for release Dec. 6.

● Road weary: Billy Joel announced his current world tour would be his last. Joel said he would still perform live, but there would be no more long road trips. He plans to spend more time composing.

● Buddy Ball: Rumor has placed Buddy Guy's Carbondale performance sometime in late April. Guy may perform with Eric Clapton at Legends this weekend in Chicago. Legends is Guy's blues bar, where he has taken the stage before with guests like Keith Richards.

● New Releases: Due out on Tuesday, new releases from John Hiatt, Redman, Slick Rick and Pearl Jam (only on vinyl). Also, the Epitaph Sampler, with unreleased cuts by Offspring and Rancid, an Aerosmith 12-CD boxed set, and videos of Woodstock '94 and the Eagles.

World famous pianist to play SIUC

By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

A man hailed as one of the world's greatest pianists will begin a weekend of performances by young piano players sponsored by the SIUC Beethoven Society for Pianists this evening.

Fernando Lares, who made his fourth appearance at SIUC in February, will perform at 8 p.m. tonight in Shryock Auditorium as part of the eleventh Young Pianists Festival sponsored by the society.

His solo recital will feature music by Hummel, Chopin, Liszt and Debussy and will include Beethoven's C Minor "Pathetic" Piano Sonata.

Donald Beattie, an SIUC music professor and director of the society, said Lares grew up playing the piano and by the age of 18 learned all 32 Beethoven Sonatas.

"He learned to play all the sonatas in one year," Beattie said. "That's more than 750 pages of music."

On Saturday, Lares will interact with more than 40 children who will be performing one Beethoven piece and one piece of their choice in association with the Young Pianist Festival.

The performances begin at 10 a.m. at the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall.

Beattie said the performances are not part of a competition, but a celebration.

"There are no losers at the festival," he said. "Every young person walks away feeling honored."

Besides interacting with the children, Lares will give a lecture and performance.

The G. Henle Publishing Company, publishers of piano music, will be exhibiting piano music as part of the festival.

On Sunday, about 10 children will be chosen from the previous day's performances to take part in the Young Pianist Award Recital at 7:30 p.m. at the Mitchell Art Museum in Mount Vernon.

The event is part of the Cedarhurst Chamber Music Series and is the only event that involves children.

Carl Schweinfurth, originator of the series, is responsible for making the recital an annual event.

There will be more than $1,200 in gifts awarded and judging will be done by music teachers.

"I'd like to have all the children play at the recital, but realistically they can't all be heard," Beattie said. Tickets for all performances will be available at the doors.

Tickets for the Lares performance this evening are $10 for the public and $5 for students with a discount admission for members and patrons of the society. Admission to the Saturday performances is $5 for the public, with free admission for society members and patrons and admission to the Sunday performances is $12 for the public and $2 for students and music teachers.

Spotted owl fate to be decided in court

Los Angeles Times

SEATTLE—President Clinton's timber plan, designed to resolve the long-running dispute over the need for forest habitat and the need for forest products, Thursday came before a federal judge, who will decide whether the proposal is acceptable under environmental law. If approved, the plan could settle one of the most divisive environmental battles of recent years—the fight over logging in the old growth forests of the Pacific Northwest, home of the threatened northern spotted owl.

But if it fails to pass muster with U.S. District Judge William L. Dwyer, the detailed document could be in for extensive retooling—or might be scrapped altogether.

For three years, Dwyer barred new timber sales in the region while he waited for a comprehensive federal plan that would ensure the owl's survival.

VAMPIRE, from page 8

Christian Slater plays an eager biographical interviewer who is talking with Pitt about his experiences. As Pitt leads him through his vampire life, Slater becomes interested in becoming a vampire himself, and the end of the movie leaves the viewer hanging as to whether he will or will not, making a sequel entirely possible, as is the case with "The Vampire Chronicles" written by Rice.

Slater's performance is intermittent, but good because he is convincing in that he seems genuinely interested in and shocked about Pitt's vampiric tale.

The intense performances by some actors and some of the shocking scenes in the movie make it a must-see for people who enjoy fictional tales.

From the Champs to Queen 'Jock Rock' has got it all

By Grant Deady
Sports Editor

If there is a sports fan who seems to have everything on your Christmas gift list this year—don't sweat it.

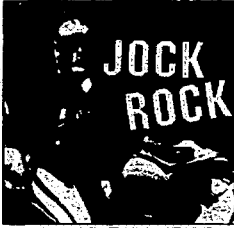

ESPN, the all sports cable network, recently released "Jock Rock," a compact disc loaded with stadium music used across the country to get crowds pumped up.

If songs like Queens, "We Will Rock You," and Gary Glitter's "Rock and Roll Part 2," (the hey song) aren't enough to get your Super Bowl party bumping, then the authentic Madison Square Garden crowd noise mixed-in between the songs will.

The Garden's public address announcer comes to life during a Rangers' hockey game with a "he shoots- he scores," while 40,000 Knicks fans debut their "three-point and "Dee-fense" yells in unison.

And what would the disc be without some stadium organ music and the sounds of a vendor hawking out potential hot dog buyers.

Music Review

"Jock Rock"

"Jock Rock" has got it all.

But possibly the biggest surprise of the disc came during the final cut when the original ESPN Sportscenter theme kicked in.

Hearing the famous "DA DA DA- DA DA DA" on television is one thing, but having it blaring out your own stereo speakers is another.

The Champs' "Tequila," Steppenwolf's "Born to be Wild" and Todd Rundgren's "Bang the Drum All Day," highlight the rest of the 15 song disc. "Jock Rock" does go into some lulls, though, like during Tommy

But possibly the biggest surprise of the disc came during the final cut when the original ESPN Sportscenter theme kicked in.

James and the Shondells version of "Mony Mony" (Billy Idol's would have been better), and the Isley Brothers "Shout" just can't compare to Otis Day and the Knights.

ESPN's "Jock Rock" is definitely not for everyone and even I'll admit some of the songs on it are a bit corny, but it's guaranteed to at least bring a laugh to anyone who's ever been to a game.

Overall, "Jock Rock" is worth the price of admission.

FINALE, from page 20

Springfield Thursday.

Saluki defensive coordinator Linwood Ferguson assumed many of the head coaching responsibilities this week, but Coach Watson said he should be on the sidelines for the EIU game.

Regardless of his personal situation, though, Watson said he expects his players to continue their normal game preparation.

"When times of crisis hit I'd rather them (players) go on than have a pity party," Watson said. "I'd rather have them go on with business."

And with veteran Mark Neal serving as one of the team's consistent leaders, Watson's orders have been carried out while he was away.

"We've stayed on the same level. It's back to business," Neal said. "We know what he's (Watson) going through and we'll help him, but we can't break up because he's not there."

SIUC will have its hands full at Eastern with senior tailback Willie High, who ranks as one of the most prolific runners in Panther football history.

High burned the Dawg defense for 221 yards on 41 carries last season in a 42-35 Panther triumph in Carbondale.

EIU is fresh off a 28-20 win over Western Kentucky and posts a 5-5 record on the year.

The Salukis upset WKU back on Oct. 1 when the Hilltoppers were ranked among the nation's top-25 in Division I-AA and Watson said another performance like the one his team put on at WKU would be a great way to go out.

"I'd like to see us put a Western Kentucky effort together," he said. "In that game the defense was flying around and the offense took care of business."

The kickoff, for a Saturday afternoon's final game of the season is slated for 1:00 at EIU's O'Brien Stadium.

have to worry about, and they got young (Danny) Hurley back so they have good people."

"We feel we can play with them and pull the upset."

The Salukis will either play St. Bonaventure or Hawaii on Nov. 27, in the championship game or consolation game.

After winning their two exhibition games, Herrin said the Salukis are ready for the regular season, but the team still has work to do.

"We still have a lot of rough spots to iron out," he said. "We had some problems with our offensive sets, but we've had a couple of good practices and should be ready."

The Salukis women are coming off a preseason win against St. Louis AAU. SIUC will have one more preseason game against the Finnish National team on Nov. 20 before traveling to Vanderbilt.

The Commodores who have been picked as high as 11th in some polls, will be a powerful force inside with Mara Cunningham, 6-7, and Angela Gorsica, 6-4.

SIUC women's basketball coach Cindy Scott said Vanderbilt's size is a concern for her team.

"They're definitely a problem for us," Scott said. "If we can press their ball-handlers and put pressure on the perimeter people, we might be able to keep the ball out of their (Cunningham and Gorsica) hands." Scott said her squad is progressing well in practice, but there are things that still need to be improved.

"We need to see improvement in our motion offense. It's the first year we've run a motion offense, so it's a little difficult for everyone," she said. "Defensively, boxing out and rebounding are the big things."

Aside from Vanderbilt's size and high ranking, Scott said there is another advantage the Commodores maintain over SIUC. "They're in the preseason NIT, and they'll probably play three games before we go there," she said. "In terms of game preparation, they'll be well ahead of us."

Despite the obstacles in facing Vanderbilt, Scott said she is confident going against them.

"We're used to playing ranked teams. That's nothing new to us," she said. "We like to go against ranked teams because we feel they'll make us better. Vanderbilt will definitely make us better."

HUNTING, from page 16

Bill Smith, a local hunter, said deer hunters must also wear 300 square inches of blaze orange when they are hunting during shotgun season, which is usually equivalent to a vest and a hat. According to the Illinois Department of Conservation, it is unlawful to hunt upland game, pheasant, rabbit, quail or partridge, when not wearing a cap of solid blaze orange. It is also unlawful to hunt for any species, except migratory waterfowl, during the gun deer season in counties open to shotgun deer hunting.

Hunters have been planning this yearly hunting ritual since April when they had to send away for the first drawing for deer tags, said Smith.

In order for a hunter to get a deer tag, they must first send in an application to the Illinois Department of Conservation in April for the first of three tag drawings before the opening of the season, said Smith. The first drawing is in late April.

After the first drawing, hunters who did not get a tag or who were rejected in April will be thrown back into the hat for the second drawing. After the second drawing, the state totals the number of tags given out from the first two drawings and determines how many tags are left over. The left over tags are then given out to anyone who is still has not gotten a tag, or to those people who want another tag, Smith said. The third drawing is called the multiple-tag drawing.

When a deer is killed, the hunter must first attach one of four tags to the leg.

The second tag is given to the check station, where the Department of Conservation requires hunters to turn in the tag and answer seven questions about the kill and the area where it took place. When this information is recorded by the check station, the hunter is free to take the deer home and butcher it.

If the hunter wants to have the hide tanned or the head and rack mounted, the hunter must present the other two tags, the antler and head tag and the hide tag, to the taxidermist before the taxidermist can mount or tan the deer.

"The sole purpose of the head and antler tag and the hide tag is for the taxidermists records," Hinde said.

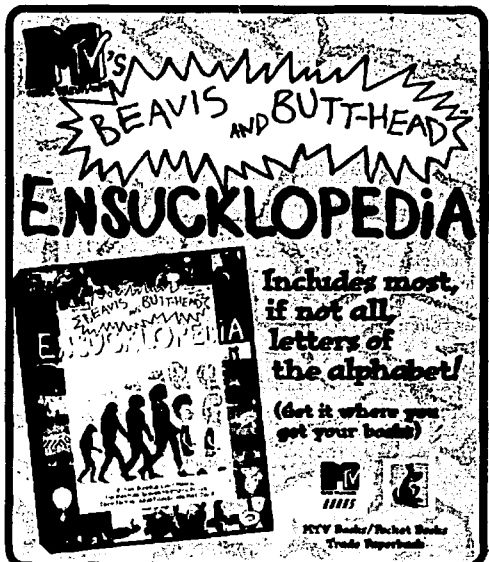

There are three check stations in the "hot corner." Williamson county has a new check center located at the Little Grassy Fish Hatchery. Jackson county's check station is located at the Murphysboro Lake State park, and the Union county station is at the Union county Fairgrounds in Anna. Hinde said the deer population in Southern Illinois is high this year, and the deer are mating, so the opening weekend should be a good one.
