OVERFLOW: With metropolitan markets saturated, businesses seek expansion locally.

JASON FREUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Driving through Carbondale, one can see many changes taking place. One of the most noticeable is the number of new businesses being constructed, which city officials say is the sign of a good national economy and various other factors.

Tom Redmond, Carbondale Planning Services director, said a good economic climate for the past few years has helped bring new businesses to the city. Nine new businesses are under construction.

"There's been a good climate for quite awhile," he said, "and they (businesses) see Carbondale as another possibility to expand their businesses."

Don Monty, Carbondale Community Service director and assistant city manager, said the good national market is not the only reason for the number of new businesses in Carbondale.

"In part, with national stores, they've pretty well saturated the metropolitan markets," he said. "If they want to continue to grow, they need to look at secondary markets (like Carbondale)."

Both Monty and Redmond said that such saturation does not concern them.

"It's not normally a municipality's role to say who can do business and who can't," Redmond said. "If someone wants to take a chance and compete in the market, they can."

The number of new businesses being built this year is somewhat above average, but not incredibly high, Monty said.

"Looking over the past 20 years, I would not say it is an unusual year," he said. "It's not a typical year, but it's not way out of line."

WORK IN PROGRESS:

Redmond said the construction being seen now is the result of several months of work.

"Most of what is being seen now," he said, "was approved six months to a year ago."

Many of the new businesses are still being constructed, including the following:

- Lone Star Steakhouse and Saloon is renovating the old Shoney's restaurant at 1160 E. Main St. Its owners hope to open early next year.
- Office Max is being constructed behind Applebee's Grill & Bar, 1125

E. Main St.

- Hollywood Video is taking root at the corner of Main Street and Oakland Avenue.
- Ramada Limited is being built

Saluki Express collides with pedestrian near campus

AFTERMATH:

Saluki Express bus driver Steven J. Seibert (left), of Carbondale, speaks to a Carbondale Police officer Wednesday afternoon after the bus hit Lawrence W. Nalsi, also of Carbondale, as Nalsi was crossing South Illinois Avenue.

A Saluki Express bus struck a Carbondale man at 2:43 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Grand Avenue and South Illinois Avenue, injuring the pedestrian.

The bus, driven by Steven J. Seibert, 30, of Carbondale, struck Lawrence W. Nalsi, 45, also of Carbondale. Nalsi was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, 405 W. Jackson St., where he was listed in satisfactory condition as of press time Wednesday.

Seibert was driving westbound on Grand Avenue turning left to head southbound on South Illinois Avenue when he struck Nalsi, who was headed eastbound in the crosswalk.

Hospital officials would not comment on the extent of Nalsi's injuries, though he appeared to be bleeding from his head before he was treated by emergency workers.

Carbondale Police Sgt. Dan Stearns said fault had not been determined, and no tickets had been issued as of press time.

Seibert, who appeared slightly shaken by the incident, said he did not see Nalsi in the crosswalk.

"He was covered by the left-hand mirror," Seibert said. "There's a blind spot there."

Nightclub reopening postponed

AGREEMENT: New manager, owner fight over contract details.

JASON FREUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The reopening of a local nightclub, which has been closed for a month, is being postponed indefinitely to find new management.

Ed Heller, attorney for Ed Wilmering, the owner of the building that contained Smil'in Jaks, approached the Carbondale Local Liquor Commission Tuesday.

Heller announced that a contract has not been reached to manage Mardi Gras, the business that will replace Smil'in Jaks, 760 E. Grand Ave.

"We have had a difficulty in our plan of getting the business reopened," he said. "The arrangement with the people who were going to manage this for the owner have not come to the terms that were agreed to."

Heller requested that the commission delay action until new management could be arranged. Wilmering will hold the liquor license, but new management will oversee day-to-day operation of the club.

The commission was scheduled to vote on a request for a liquor license transfer from Smil'in Jaks Inc. to Mardi Gras Inc. If approved, the club was to be operated by representatives from Chadwick's Bar & Grill, 204 W. College St.

Heller also told the commission that Wilmering decided not to do business with the representatives from Chadwick's.

"We were not successful in getting the pieces of it put together with them (Chadwick's)," he said after the meeting, "and from Mr. Wilmering's point of view, it's time to move on."

Representatives from Chadwick's were unavailable for comment.

The commission voted unanimously to postpone consideration

FESTIVAL: Recital to be part of 14th annual Beethoven celebration.

JASON ADRIAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The essence of live music will flow through Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday when famed Russian pianist Mykola Suk tickles the ebony and ivory for a recital.

"There is a mission to live music. It brings people together in a very positive way," Donald Beattie, founder of the Beethoven Society for Pianists, said. "There is a certain spiritual energy that is present in a concert hall that is not present on disc."

The recital is one part of the 14th Annual November Beethoven Festival going on this weekend and sponsored by the Beethoven Society for Pianists.

Beattie said Suk's amazing piano playing skills is what allows him to captivate the audience with so much spiritual energy.

"Mykola has complete piano technique, and he's better than anyone I've ever heard," Beattie said. "There is nothing he can't play."

Just watching and listening to Suk play the keys of the piano, Beattie said, can be a great source for artistic stimulation because of Suk's ability to command the instrument.

"He's able to achieve things with the instrument that I've never heard or thought of, and I've been playing for 40 years," he said. "This can be enough inspiration for six months. You'll never forget the performance. I've heard him three times before, and I can still easily pull his performances up in my head."

Though the recital is part of the November Beethoven Festival, Suk will not be performing any music composed by Beethoven.

Suk is scheduled to perform, among other composers, music by Franz Liszt, who has been regarded as one of the best pianists of all time.

Beattie said that because of the complexity of Liszt's music, people are lucky if they hear just one of his compositions at a recital.

"By all accounts, there was just no one that played as well as (Liszt) did," he said. "Most agree that (Liszt) is the greatest pianist that ever lived. His music is the most difficult to play, and Mykola makes it look like child's play."

The Liszt Hungarian Rhapsodies No. 10, 11 and 12 that close the recital program are what Beattie said will be the highlight of the night.

"No one in the world can play Liszt's music like (Suk) can because he carries on the tradition of how poetically, how fast and how beautifully Liszt could play," he said.

Suk was awarded in 1971 with first prize in the highly prestigious International Liszt and Bartok piano

Peaceful solution in Iraq depends upon Hussein

President Clinton says a peaceful settlement to the Iraqi crisis depends on whether Saddam Hussein complies with U.N. mandates on Gulf War disarmament.

Speaking at the White House Wednesday ahead of a big diplomatic showdown in Geneva on the standoff, Clinton clarified a hard-line policy on Iraq's refusal to cooperate with U.N. weapons inspectors.

The president said nothing short of full compliance would be acceptable. He said the U.S. wants a diplomatic solution.

Apathetic?

North has come and gone, but political fervor remains

IF ASKING A CONTROVERSIAL, SELF-styled savior of democracy to speak on campus is what it takes to wake the SIUC community from its apathetic political slumber, maybe reliving "Ollie-gate" was not so bad.

Oliver North's visit to campus Tuesday night revealed the SIUC community is just as concerned about political ideology as it is concerned about bar-entry ages.

North's visit revealed SIUC is just as concerned about questionable U.S. government foreign policy as it is concerned about campus parking problems.

North's visit revealed SIUC is just as concerned about the ideas of patriotism and democracy as it is concerned about partying on the Strip.

And the weeks of debates, opinions and protests leading up to North's speech on campus Tuesday night may not have been just a brief departure from SIUC's long observed tradition of political apathy.

WHETHER OR NOT SIUC COMMUNITY members considered North to be a criminal, a fall guy or a hero, those who espoused any opinions about him contributed to the stimulating, politically charged discussions throughout the campus. North told 950 of us to define our own concepts of freedom, justice and government when he spoke at Shryock Auditorium, but many of us already had endeavored to do so.

Some of us hailed North's arming of Nicaraguan rebels during the Iran-Contra scandal of the 1980s as an example of democracy and patriotism at their best. Some of us were disgusted by North's actions, believing them to be criminal — or unethical at the very least. And still some of us did not like the College Republicans' decision to bring North to campus.

But North offered all of us a unique look at recent U.S. history — for better or worse — and we grabbed it.

About 100 people attended Monday's panel discussion, "Patriotism Never Looked So Bad," allowing themselves to examine the federal government's misdoings — not just North's wrongs alone — during the Iran-Contra scandal. Tuesday night, protesters lined up outside of Shryock Auditorium before North's speech in an effort to convey their own opinions. Some SIUC students were able to discuss North's impending visit in classes — and some of them may return to those classes ready to discuss the ideas North brought to campus with him.

HAD NORTH VISITED SIUC AND LEFT THE campus without anyone voicing an opinion, that apathy would have been unthinkable.

Like it or not, Oliver North brought some good to our campus — and that good did not leave SIUC with him. Campuswide debate and concern about meaningful issues — that fall outside the realm of our small, rural college-town existence — speaks volumes about SIUC's newfound political awareness.

"Our Word" represents the consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

"It's (a protest) usually organized by college professors who are about my age and were the ones out burning their draft cards while I was getting my backside shot off in Vietnam."

Retired Lt. Col. Oliver North, on the possibility of protesters showing up for his speech Tuesday night at Shryock Auditorium.

Nation of Islam needed to combat hate, racism

The other day, a well-dressed, middle-aged African-American man approached me as I idled outside of Discount Den waiting for the rain to calm.

He wanted to know if he could ask me a question. I said, "Sure." I was expecting a question about whether or not I had been saved by Jesus.

Then he caught me completely off guard with his inquiry — he wondered if everyone in Carbondale was a racist.

He had an angry look in his eyes as I proceeded to explain to him that I couldn't answer for everyone, but I knew that I wasn't racist.

He then told me that he was stranded in town and was low on money. He described how he had been desperately walking the streets trying to get enough money to be on his way, when he ran into a wall of discouragement in the form of a harsh remark.

Having to resort to handouts, he asked a white passerby for a dollar or two. He was answered with, "Get a job, n*****!"

As I stood silently listening to him weave his tale of misfortune, I couldn't help but wonder why he didn't beat that bigot down on the spot. I admired this man's pacifist spirit, but I was once again reminded of the existence of society's sickest crime against humanity.

Hate always has existed. And no matter how optimistic one may be, it might be safe to say that hate always will exist. We all hate something — it could be brussels sprouts or waking up early. Our minds have most likely been associated with hate in its most ignorant form — hate against difference.

There are some out there who recently have taken up arms against the Nation of Islam because the group has gained Registered Student Organization status. They claim that the Nation is a hate group, and that they are too militant.

What I have to ask the people opposed to the Nation of Islam is this — after taking a serious look at this country's history, do you blame any African-American for wanting to join an aggressive, pro-black organization? I have to admit that I don't necessarily agree with a lot of what the Nation of Islam has to say, but I'm not surprised at its existence.

The United States has committed — and continues to commit — crimes against the minorities of this "nation." Besides the occasional blatant news reports of race-related incidents, racism has now been candy-coated. It lies beneath the filament of this society in the form of police harassment and job discrimination.

As a customer, I see how African-Americans are overlooked instead of serviced in stores. Accusing eyes will follow them as they try to shop (as a member of the Hip-Hop Generation, I often have to face some of that same treatment since I am labeled a "sell out" to my "race").

Recently, I saw posters for the Outkast concert — that was sponsored by a number of African-American organizations — marred by racial slurs. It's prompted me to wonder how many other posters promoting African-American interests also were scarred.

Every restroom stall that I've gone into on this campus has dehumanizing remarks scrawled on its walls.

I see the fear of African-Americans in people's eyes, and I have to endure sick jokes and impersonations of African-Americans by the media and by my fellow "students."

The government passes laws of pacification — not laws of change.

I just can't figure out where the hate comes from. It's unwarranted and has no reason whatsoever for existing.

For 400-plus years, African-Americans have had to face unspeakable turmoil based on nothing more than ignorant assumptions of superiority. No, I don't agree with the all that the Nation of Islam has to say — and I pray that I will be judged as an individual and not as a member of the whole.

But I sure as hell don't blame African-Americans — or any other minority, for that matter — for being a little pissed at this society. I know I am.

Namasté (The God in me honors and respects the God in you).

...after taking a serious look at this country's history, do you blame any African-American for wanting to join an aggressive, pro-black organization?

Another hiccup for beer disposal

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — When U.S. Park Police Maj. J.J. McLaughlin smashed 50 cases of beer in a compactor, he thought he finally was rid of the problem of how to dispose of the brew confiscated during a Fourth of July celebration on the Mall.

The foamy stream of beer from the crushed cans disappeared when it flowed into a Potomac River culvert, but the problem did not, partly because McLaughlin had invited the media to witness the Oct. 30 destruction.

The Clean Water Act allows for only cool, uncontaminated water to be dumped into rivers and streams, he said.

He said the agency had not been charged with any violation.

For months, various groups offered to take away the trash containers filled with cans and long-necked bottles, but — for liability reasons — McLaughlin said the police decided to destroy it.

competition.

Beattie said Suk's piano-playing abilities singled him out in Russia and allowed him to be regarded as the best pianist in his homeland. Suk was able to affirm the claims during a trip to Carbondale in 1989, which happened to be Suk's first engagement in the United States.

This year's memorable and inspirational Suk performance is the just one part of the Beethoven Festival taking place this weekend.

Young pianists between kindergarten and grade 12 will perform pieces composed by Beethoven from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The performances will take place at the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall. Suk will be present for a special program for the young pianists.

Even though the awards recital at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Mitchell Art Museum in Mt. Vernon will honor the young pianists' performances, Beattie said Saturday's event is not a competition but a celebration.

"It's about bringing great music to young people, and, in turn, having them bring great music to the world," he said. "That is what great music is about. It takes you to places you've never been, and it knows no age limits."

Admission for the Mykola Suk piano recital is $10 for the general public and $5 for students. Admission is half-price for Beethoven Society members.

Admission for the Young Pianist Awards Festival Saturday is free for general admission and $5 for Society patrons and members.

of the license transfer indefinitely, allowing Wilmering to secure a management contract.

City Clerk Janet Vaught noted that the applicants need only appear before the commission and not the Liquor Advisory Board because the business still will be called Marli Gras.

Heller said Smil'in Jacks initially closed a month ago because of a lease violation by Leland Hartsfield, the business' owner.

"Smil'in Jacks closed down because he violated his lease in about every way you could violate a lease," Heller said. "We went to court and were going to throw him out, and we made an agreement to resolve the issue by which he would agree to leave, and he did."

Hartsfield could not be reached for comment.

Heller could not predict a reopening date for the business, but said he hopes to be ready for the license transfer at the first December commission meeting.

"We cannot reopen until we have the liquor license transferred," he said. "We hope to be back to accomplish that next month."

At the regular Carbondale City Council meeting, the council voted 5 to 0 to approve $ 3,125 for cultural diversity workshops for city employees. Each employee will be required to attend one of five sessions.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said Carbondale Police officers will be exempt because they have attended similar workshops, the most recent of which was last summer.

The council also voted 4 to 1 to appoint Councilman Larry Briggs to the Carbondale Convention and Tourism Bureau.

bus, said he and other passengers saw Nalsi in the crosswalk immediately before the accident and yelled in anticipation of the collision.

"We shouted 'Oh my God!'"

Kim said.

Kim, a graduate student in accounting from South Korea, said the afternoon sun in the western sky made visibility difficult.

Cory Bosley, a freshman in broadcasting from Schaumburg, observed the accident about 20 yards away.

"I was on my bike over there (in the median dividing South Illinois Avenue) and I saw this guy walking in the crosswalk," Bosley said. "When I saw him (Nalsi) on the ground, I dropped my bike and ran over to help him."

Carbondale Police identified Nalsi as an SIUC student, but SIUC Admissions and Records could not confirm that Nalsi is a student.

Saving SIUC

The Faculty Association is the last best hope for saving SIUC as a quality institution. Administrators, past and present, Board of Trustee members, and the infamous Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), continue to peddle the false proposition that in the name of productivity SIUC should eliminate a variety of graduate and undergraduate programs. The Faculty Association will resist all such attempts when they adversely affect the terms of employment and working conditions of our colleagues.

We start by asserting that this is a Carnegie II doctoral granting institution that has as its purposes different goals from other types of institutions. Society benefits when scholars pursue a vocation of original research and creative activity. And this is true of both pure and applied research. At SIUC we proudly do both. At the same time, students benefit enormously when their professors operate at the frontiers of knowledge. SIUC students are years ahead of their peers at lesser institutions where instructors typically have little understanding of research because they are not actively engaged themselves.

Carnegie II status is achieved by meeting the minimum threshold of $15.5 million in federal grants annually, and the conferring of at least 55 Ph.D degrees in each academic year. SIUC and the University of Illinois are the only public institutions in the state that measures up to those criteria and we should be justly proud. Though we roundly applaud and honor our colleagues who are recipients of large research grants, beware of the claim that those faculty contributing few dollars to the annual grant totals are expendable or are any less important to our community. Depending upon the academic discipline, such as those in the humanities and social sciences, faculty members possessing national and international reputations often make significant contributions to knowledge without bringing overhead dollars to the graduate school.

The State of Illinois has already invested tens of millions of dollars in making this a research institution. It would be a shameful waste of taxpayer dollars and human capital to throw away the investment. And this is true even on a piecemeal basis wherein only a few programs are sacrificed on the altar of budgetary expediency. This point is central to the arguments about enrollment trends, course loads, faculty remuneration, roles and responsibilities, and academic standards.

Do not accept the false notion that downsizing is a public good. Rather, it is a destructive tactic of those devoted to the ideology of the bottom line. In this period of a state budget surplus, University officials should seek to expand and improve our programs, not to destroy them. Your Faculty Association pledges to negotiate a contract consistent with our Carnegie II mission. We shall resist all attempts to reduce this institution to anything less. You are invited to read our detailed negotiation position on program elimination at <http://siuc-faculty-assoc.org>

Did you know...?

- that Carnegie Research I status is defined as, "offers a full range of baccalaureate programs, is committed to graduate education through the doctorate, gives high priority to research, and awards 50 or more doctoral degrees each year;" (Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching)
- that Research II status is defined as, "meets all the criteria for Research I institutions; except that its annual federal support averages less than $40 million;" (ibid.)
- that SIUC is one of only 37 Research II institutions in the country and the only Research II institution in Illinois; (Chronicle for Higher Education, 1997 Almanac)
- that SIUC professors' salaries are the second lowest of the 37 Research II institutions; (SIUC Faculty Association, based on Illinois Board of Higher Education data)
- that SIUC professors' salaries are lower than those at all public and private doctoral-granting universities in Illinois ranked lower than SIUC in Carnegie status? (ibid.)

One of fifty pieces of artwork to be auctioned at the silent auction benefiting the Women's Center.

The Women's Center opened its doors 25 years ago for abused women in Carbondale

STORY BY DONNA COLTER
AND LINDA A. KRUTSINGER

Doris, 65, of Carbondale, walks slowly along the path beside Campus Lake.

Her eyes stare intently at the calm water reflecting the yellows and browns of leaves clinging to gray tree branches. Her hands play absently with a twig as she leans on the bridge railing and talks about what the help she received from Carbondale Women's Center means to her.

"I remember feeling so lost and alone with no place to go and no one to care about me or my kids," Doris says. "I didn't have any family and no friends that I could turn to, at least not any that I wanted to bring that kind of problem to."

Doris did not know that the Women's Center existed until one night in 1982 when the police officer arresting her husband for domestic abuse calmly placed a small white card in her hand advertising the Women's Center.

"That little card had a number on it that he said I could call if I was sick and tired of being a punching bag for the S.O.B.," Doris says.

"Until then I never knew that such a place — a wonderful place — existed."

The place Doris is talking about started 25 years ago when local women attending a Carbondale Women's Political Caucus had a vision of a place where women could go for social functions, communication and help.

That vision turned into the facility currently known as the Women's Center, 408 W. Freeman St., which meets the needs of thousands of women each year through its Rape Action Committee, information referral and programs for domestic violence, sexual assault and public education.

Clara McClure, one of the seven women to attend the 1971 caucus and envision the types of services a Women's Center could provide, said the growth rate of the Center will continue as the demands of the community increase.

"The shelter also needs to be available for women who need a time out," McClure said, "not just for women escaping an abusive situation."

In celebration of the Women's Center's Silver Anniversary, a dinner, dance and silent auction will take place at 6 p.m. Friday at the Carbondale Civic Center, 200 S. Illinois Ave.

Fifty pieces of art work are expected to be auctioned. This event is expected to raise about $6,000 of the estimated $40,000 needed by the Center to receive federal and state grants, which help pay for the Center's programs.

In 1972 when it first opened, the Center received its funds from yard sales, craft shows, bake sales and donations from the women who helped start the program. The shelter provided services to about seven women at a time.

In 1997 those figures increased to 32 women housed on a daily basis and literally thousands served in the various programs.

"We know we have to raise $40,000," Mary Kay Bachman, executive director of the Women's Center, said.

"The organizations providing the grant want proof of community support, which may be provided by the public's participation in the art auction."

Bachman said many of the pieces scheduled to be auctioned will have a holiday theme, which will make them extra special purchases.

"We are hoping when they purchase the items, if they don't keep them, that they will give them as gifts," Bachman said. "It is a gift all year long because it helps the Women's Center."

Doris can remember arriving on the doorstep of the center 15 years ago after walking several blocks, carrying three large garbage bags full of clothing for herself and her two daughters.

The Center provided Doris with guidance on how to obtain legal advice that would ensure her freedom from an abusive husband.

"They didn't just help me with getting rid of him, they helped me to find myself," Doris says.

"I learned that I was worth loving and that I could think and do for myself. Independence — that's what I learned."

Doris says the guidance and emotional support received from the workers at the Women's Center enabled her to have the courage to return to school for her general education diploma and her associate's degree from a community college.

"I was able to get the education I needed to get a good job. More important, I was able to set an example for my girls," Doris says.

"They don't know what it was like growing up with the fancy clothes some kids have, but they don't know what it was like growing up in fear and violence without love either."

"That is what the Women's Center did not only for me, but for many, many women."

The Women's Center anniversary dinner, dance and silent auction will begin at 6 p.m. Friday in the Carbondale Civic Center.

The women who founded the Women's Center will have a chance to share their remarks about the founding of the Center.

Tickets for the event are $25, and a limited amount are available.

For more information call Mary Kay Bachman at 549-4807 ext. 231.

• Arby's is constructing a new restaurant next to McDonald's, 1396 E. Main St.

• A second Saluki Bookstore is being built next to Hangar 9, 511 S. Illinois Ave.

• Johnny B's Pro Lube is being constructed west of Mugsy McGuire's Pizzeria, 1620 W. Main St. Dirtbusters carwash will be at the same location.

• BP Economart gas station is being built next to Warehouse Liquor Mart, 829 E. Main St.

• A new branch of the SIU Credit Union is being built on East Sunny Acres Road off of North Giant City Road.

Redmond did not know when the businesses will open.

Several other businesses recently have opened, including: Lowe's Home Improvement Warehouse, 1170 E. Rendleman Rd., which opened in January; Blockbuster Video, 1330 E. Main St., which opened in February; Staples, 1325 E. Main St., which opened in April; The Hobby Lobby, 1150 E. Main St., which opened in April; Barnes & Noble Booksellers, 1300 E. Main St., which opened in April; and Schnuck's, 915 W. Main St., which opened in August.

Monty said controlling the types of businesses in the city is not necessary.

"You let the free market do its thing," he said. "The ones who have it figured out will survive."

Monty said although failed businesses sometimes leave empty businesses behind, they are usually filled within a year, and there is no need to limit business.

"You just roll with the punches and let the businesses build as long as they meet the zoning requirements," he said. "In the long run, the economic growth benefits the entire community."

An increase in the number of businesses also can attract other to Carbondale.

"Business attracts other business," Monty said. "A strong retail economy tends to grow on itself."

The businesses not only benefit the city through sales and property tax, but also for the state because more people are working.

"From a broader perspective there's a benefit to the state in virtue of more income tax Monty said.

And a percentage of collected state income tax is allocated back to city governments.

Redmond's office approves development requirements of new businesses within the city.

"We usually are working with businesses to meet the city requirements," he said. "We're not recruiting businesses."

"There's been a pretty steady growth over the past three years impres Brechtelsbauer the most. At Jenks High School in Tulsa, Okla., Laughry had a .998 fielding percentage in centerfield.

The combination of Laughry's speed on the bases and her defensive play allows her to contribute in many ways.

Laughry stole 127 bases during her high school career. "She may be stepping in as a freshman, but she's got that much speed," Brechtelsbauer said. "And she's an excellent left-side slap hitter."

Brechtelsbauer enjoys the idea of having such talented players come in as freshmen.

In the preseason, she received strong contributions from first-year players Marta Viehhaus, Julie Meier and Erin Stremsterfer.

Brechtelsbauer said strong freshman play forces the more experience players to work harder in practice.

"It creates a little bit of an atmosphere of competitiveness," Brechtelsbauer said.

"If somebody is going to step up and move forward in the program, it's a plus."

said. "But I think you get the most experience from live wrestling." Koopman wrestled in high school and went to the state sectoral qualifiers.

He is looking forward to competing, but he is a little disappointed that wrestling is not as big in college as it is in his high school.

"I am sure that it will be as much of a challenge as it was in high school," Koopman said. "

Regardless of our experience, every one is on the same page.

JOE REYNA
WRESTLING CLUB PRESIDENT

But it will not be as hyped up as it was in high school."

Because wrestling is not a major college sport, Reyna said it is difficult to find tournaments.

"It definitely hinders us because it is hard to find these type of tournaments," Reyna said.

"They (the St. Louis tournament officials) don't care if you are a club team or an interest group."

Finding tournaments has prohibited the club from gaining more experience in wrestling, but Reyna said that has not kept the club from improving.

"Regardless of our experience, everyone (in the tournament) is on the same page," Reyna said. "Everyone is gradually getting better. We have some real talent."

Three Salukis named to All-Conference team

The SIUC volleyball team placed three members of its squad on the 1997 Missouri Valley Conference All-Conference team Tuesday.

Middle blocker Laura Pier and outside hitter Marlo Moreland were named to the five-member second team, while setter Debbie Barr was one of eight players named honorable mention.

Marisa Brickley was named the conference's Player of the Year, while Kendra Haselhorst earned Newcomer of the Year honors. Both players helped lead Illinois State University to a conference-best 17-1 record.

Joe Wattenberg finished second in the 190-pound division, Glen Wortham placed fourth at 136 pounds, and Rick Barrington earned fourth at Heavyweight.

The team competes at the St. Louis Open Friday and Saturday and is looking for more team members. For more information, contact coach Kirby Keith at 529-2272.

Esiason to replace Blake as Bengals' starter

The Cincinnati Bengals decided to make a change at quarterback Wednesday, as head coach Bruce Coslet has given the starting role for Sunday's game against Jacksonville to veteran Boomer Esiason.

That decision ends Jeff Blake's AFC-leading 52-game starting streak. Coslet has been under media and fan pressure to make the move ever since Esiason replaced Blake Nov. 9 against the Colts and led the 3-8 Bengals to a 28-13 win with two touchdown passes.

The Bengals are coming off a 20-3 setback in Pittsburgh last week, where Blake completed 15 of 21 passes but lost three fumbles and failed to produce a touchdown.

Starting for the Bengals is a familiar role for Esiason, although he has not done so in five years.

ENDURANCE:

Lack of experience does not dim hopes for once-defunct club; technique is everything.

There is not much in the way of experience in the SIUC Wrestling Club, but team members have no doubts they will be able to place well in their first tournament of the semester.

Joe Reyna, club president, said the team has improved since he re-formed the once-defunct club last year. He anticipates some of the wrestlers to finish as high as the top three in the St. Louis Open Wrestling Championships Friday.

"I expect everyone to do above average," Reyna, a sophomore in graphic arts and secondary education, said. "There are a lot of guys with a lot of good talent. But it is just fun to wrestle."

The team has a few juniors and seniors, but the entire team is allowed to compete in the freshman and sophomore division because of the lack of experience.

Team member Chris Verble had never wrestled prior to joining the club. He played football in high school and is trying to join the Saluki football team as a walk-on. In the meantime, he is wrestling.

Verble said he is confident he can do well in the tournament because he has learned so much in practices.

"Before, I used to get thrown a lot," Verble, a sophomore in cinema and photography from Chicago, said. "But I have been working on my defense, and I am not getting thrown around as much."

Verble has learned some of the technique in wrestling that is needed to be successful.

"You look at someone who is big and menacing, but that person may not be a good technique wrestler," Verble said. "I thought I could come in and throw everybody around because I am strong, but it is not all just brute force."

The tournament will be an individual-style tournament with no team scoring. There will be eight schools, including Oklahoma State University, Iowa State University, Indiana University and Eastern Illinois University.

The tournament will consist of 10 weight classes in the tournament, ranging from 118 to 275 pounds.

One of the keys to doing well in the tournament is to be in good shape, Reyna said. His main focus in practice is live wrestling, but he said cardiovascular shape is an important aspect of getting in shape for wrestling.

"Half of practice has to be endurance," Reyna said. "The last half is technique. That is where you get the teaching. And by the time you get there, you can concentrate on live wrestling."

Team member Brad Koopman learns more from the live wrestling in practices.

"We don't do a lot of drills," Koopman, a freshman in psychology from Bloomington,

BATTER UP: Loss of seniors after season adds importance to attracting recruits early.

SHANDELL RICHARDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer decided Monday that it is never too early to begin planning for the future.

With the Salukis' 1998 season still three months away, Brechtelsbauer signed two new recruits during the early signing period for the 1999 season.

Catcher/first baseman Andrea Harris and outfielder Jessica Laughey became the latest athletes to join the Salukis' program. Although the Salukis have no seniors on this year's club, Brechtelsbauer said she recruited this season to prepare for their departures.

"We have no senior class, and it is important for us to bring in two quality players," Brechtelsbauer said. "One (reason) is to bolster the team we already have and also not to have a big gap the following year when we're going to lose five seniors."

Harris will be looked upon to help relieve junior catcher Brooke Hattermann from the daily grind of games. As a junior at Harrison High School in Evansville, Ind., Harris hit .475 with 33 RBI. Harris was a third-team all-state selection and holds the school record for career home runs (11) and RBI (97).

But Brechtelsbauer is not limiting her options with Harris.

"She'll have to do some catching because Brooke won't be able to do all the catching," Brechtelsbauer said. "(It is important) particularly when you get into tournaments and you have to play two or three games a day. She may be doing a little first base to get some experience behind [junior] Theresa [Shields]."

Laughey also put up stellar offensive numbers as a prep, hitting .447 with 33 runs batted in as a senior. But her defensive abilities
