SIU president report today

Somit to get board nod?

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees will make an official and "important" announcement Friday regarding the selection of a permanent president for the Carbondale campus.

Informed sources expect Albert Somit to be named to the post.

An official source close to the board said Thursday the board will make an announcement sometime Friday in a press release from University News Service. He would not disclose the exact nature of the announcement.

"I obviously know what it will be. I think it will be important," the source said.

He said that Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott, Jr., was instructed by the trustees to begin negotiations with candidates following two executive sessions prior to the Oct. 10 regular board meeting.

Elliott reportedly flew to Buffalo, N.Y. a week ago to begin negotiating terms of an appointment with Somit.

Contacted at his home Thursday evening, Elliott declined to comment. He said he would not comment on the presidential selection until an official announcement was made.

"I have nothing to announce tonight," he said.

In a telephone interview Thursday, Somit said he could not comment on Elliott's reported trip to Buffalo or his expected appointment as SIU president because of an agreement with the trustees.

"My normal pattern of behavior is to be as free and frank with the press as possible, but I have to say 'no comment,'" Somit said.

"I have an agreement with the board not to comment on these matters at this stage of the game. I have to honor that agreement," he said.

Trustee Margaret Blackshere said she would not be surprised if Somit were named Friday as president. She said "certain matters" needed to be investigated after the board's two closed meetings in Edwardsville, but it did not necessarily entail interviewing all the candidates.

Charles A. Leone said Wednesday he "has heard nothing" from the board since his Chicago interview Sept. 20.

Warren Brandt declined to comment at all, referring all questions to the trustees.

The expected announcement Friday should end nearly a month of speculation as to who the next president of SIU will be.

Somit, 54, has been executive vice president at State University of New York at Buffalo since July, 1970. He taught in the political science department, serving three years as its chairman, before assuming his present duties.

Ford axes press bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford vetoed legislation Thursday designed to strengthen public access to government documents under the Freedom of Information Act.

Ford said he felt the measure could adversely affect intelligence secrets and diplomatic relations.

In a veto message to the House, the President said he objected to the courts being permitted to make what amounts to "the initial classification decision in sensitive and complex areas where they have no expertise."

He also questioned the time constraints in the bill by which agencies would have to comply within a certain period of time to requests for information.

The President said he intended to submit proposals which he felt would dispel his concerns regarding the manner of judicial review of classified material, and "for mitigating the administrative burden placed on the agencies, especially our law enforcement agencies, by the bill as presently enrolled."

Ford said the present bill "is unconstitutional and unworkable," but that the legislation has "laudable goals" and he hopes that it will be re-enacted during this session of Congress with the changes he proposes.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said in a statement the veto "is a distressing new example of the Watergate mentality that still pervades the White House."

Under it, federal courts would have had power to go behind a secrecy stamp and see if documents were classified properly by an agency.

Nixon sues to keep tapes, documents; says government reneged on bargain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Richard M. Nixon filed suit Thursday seeking to force the government to give him possession and control of millions of tapes and documents accumulated during his five-and-one-half years in the White House.

Nixon alleged that the government has failed to live up to an agreement for the swift transfer of his presidential materials to California.

"Such records are still located at the White House and, despite requests, have not at this time been sent to the former president," the suit said.

Named as defendants are Arthur F. Sampson, head of the General Services Administration; Philip W. Buchen, counsel to President Ford; and H. Stuart Knight, director of the Secret Service.

A member of the executive committee of the SIU Faculty Senate said Somit would be a good choice for SIU.

"My impression is, generally speaking, he (Somit) was the most favored candidate by the Faculty Senate," the source said.

He said, "Buffalo is about a decade ahead of SIU" because of the clearly defined role of the faculty in SUNY's university system.

"Somit works within a system where collective bargaining is recognized. With Somit we will be moving along at a fairly rapid pace," the source said.

Somit has been responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Buffalo school in his present position. Buffalo's enrollment is about 20,000.

The native Chicagoan received his A.B. in 1941 and his Ph.D. in 1947, both from the University of Chicago.

In an interview Sept. 21 in Chicago, Somit said what intrigues him most about SIU "is a combination of a tremendous amount of promise and a certain sprinkling of problems."

Asked what the role of a university president should be, Somit said, "a president who would limit himself to one or a combination of roles, wouldn't be doing a total job."

Somit was recommended for the presidency by a search committee Sept. 6 along with three other persons.

SIU lawyers offer Gardiner settlement

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University lawyers submitted a counter offer Thursday to lawyers representing C. Harvey Gardiner, retired SIU history research professor, for settlement of a two-year suit on an alleged denial of a salary increase for Gardiner because of "disservice to the University."

C. Harvey Gardiner

University legal counsel, John Huffman said early Thursday afternoon that American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) attorneys for Gardiner had submitted an offer for settlement and a counter offer would be made later in the day.

The suit, filed in March of 1972 by East St. Louis attorney, Joseph Cohn, grew out of a negative recommendation to the SIU Board of Trustees by then-Chancellor Robert MacVicar.

MacVicar made a comment to the board in which Gardiner, a vocal critic of the controversial Center for Vietnamese Studies, was cited for "disservice to the University."

When the suit was initiated by the ACLU on Gardiner's behalf he said it was based on infringement of his civil rights and liberties.

Originally the suit asked for $100,000 in punitive damages from the board, plus $2,625 in back salaries.

Huffman said negotiations are continuing in settlement of a similar suit against the University by Douglas M. Allen, former assistant professor of philosophy at SIU. Allen was also a leading critic of the Viet Center.

A new 58 foot smokestack was installed at SIU's Pollution Control Pilot Plant Monday to reduce sulfur dioxide fumes emitted by the plant. The new stack allows much of the smoke to dissipate before settling down. (Staff photo by Steve Sumner).

New smokestack reduces fumes

By Kenneth Temkin
Student Writer

A new 58-foot smoke stack now adorns SIU's Pollution Control Pilot Plant as a result of complaints by physical plant employees of sore throats and irritated eyes and noses caused by noxious sulfur dioxide fumes emitted by the pilot plant.

The stack was erected after workers in the coal yard and steam production plant threatened a possible "work action" if the situation was not corrected.

The workers said the old stack, which was only 28 feet high, tended to let smoke from the Pilot Plant settle around the steam plant and adjacent coal yard.

The new stack, erected Monday, rises four feet above the roof line of the Steam Plant, allowing much of the smoke to dissipate before it has a chance to settle.

Funds for construction of the new stack came from the operating budget of the Pilot Plant. The SIU Physical Plant Sheetmetal Shop designed and erected the new stack with the assistance of a "crane truck" rented from Neon Sign Co. of Herrin, Ill.

In early stages of construction, the pilot plant was designed to feed its emissions into the steam plant smoke stack, but construction would have been too expensive so the plans were dropped.

Of the employees contacted Thursday, all seemed quite satisfied with the new stack.

The Pilot Plant, which is under the direction of Howard Hesketh, associate professor for thermal and environmental engineering, had been in operation 10 days before it was required to be shut down for installation of the new stack.

The purpose of the pilot plant is to prove that Illinois coal can be burned, and its emissions of sulfur dioxide and particulate matter cleaned, without polluting the environment.

Employees at the steam plant expressed appreciation for what Hesketh is trying to do with the emissions from the steam plant's smoke stack.

The employees said if the smoke that came out of the stack was free of sulfur dioxide, their jobs would be much safer and far less damaging to their health.

The pilot plant has been in continuous operation since Gov. Dan Walker switched it on, Oct. 1, and is consistently cleaning 90 per cent of the sulfur dioxide emissions from the steam plant.

According to Hesketh, the sulfur dioxide concentrations being emitted by the pollution control pilot plant are of approximately the same concentrations emitted by the steam production plant's chimney measured one half mile downwind at a technology building.

Hesketh pointed out that the sulfur dioxide levels that irritated the workers at the Steam Plant are within legal limits which are "obviously inadequate."

In a letter to Governor Walker explaining the situation Hesketh said, "I do agree with the workers who complained. These sulfur dioxide fumes are noxious and no one should be forced to suffer from these pollutants."

"I feel that the sulfur dioxide from our University stack itself are too noxious and should be controlled to protect the health and welfare of those

Sirica delays Nixon decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—After hearing reports that former President Richard M. Nixon's health is rapidly improving, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica delayed a decision Thursday on whether to order Nixon to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sirica said he would prefer Nixon testify personally in court rather than give depositions in California if he continues to recover from a chronic phlebitis condition.

Sirica said he would reach a decision in three weeks on the issue of Nixon's testimony. His ruling came after the prosecutors played the first White House tape recording relating to the Watergate cover-up.

At the hearing, Nixon sought to be excused from testifying. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said he would have a new health report and "I'm sure it will be favorable."

The hearing was held without the jury present.

Two guitarists will give recital

Two guitarists will give a recital Friday at 8 p.m. in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

The guest artists are Paul Cox, professor of guitar at the University of Illinois and John Myers, an undergraduate student of guitar at the University of Indiana. They are currently on a three-state tour.

Myers is completing his Ph.D. degree in musicology at the University of Indiana. He recently made a guest appearance with the Danville Symphony.

In addition to his studies, Myers teaches at a music studio in Bloomington, Ind.

The recital will include works of William Lawes, Froberger, LeClair, Scheidter, Rodrigo, Stanley Myers, Debussy, Benjamin Britten and Enrique Granados.

The public is invited to attend without charge.

Sirica also asked lawyers for the defendants and the prosecution to submit the names of doctors who could make an independent examination of the former President at his seaside estate in San Clemente, Calif.

The prosecutors and defendant John D. Ehrlichman have subpoenaed Nixon, but his testimony is not likely to be required for several weeks.

The special Watergate prosecutors say they will question Nixon in the courtroom only if Ehrlichman is successful with his subpoena.

Nixon's lawyer argued that written questions and answers submitted by Ehrlichman to Nixon should be sufficient. Prosecution and defense lawyers said that would be unacceptable.

On Oct. 3, in asking that Nixon be excused, Miller said in court papers that the physical condition of the former President was such that if he testified there would be "the risk of permanent injury or incapacitation."

On Thursday, Miller said in court, "The prognosis...is very good at the moment."

Besides asking for doctors' names, Sirica said he wanted prosecution and defense lawyers to determine who should pay for any medical injury.

Of the projected report on Nixon's health, Sirica said, "I'm quite certain it's going to be favorable."

Earlier Thursday, more than one hundred persons in the courtroom, including Sirica, donned earphones to hear the first of more than 30 White House tapes.

With chief prosecution witness John W. Dean III listening as he sat on the witness stand, the jury and spectators heard former President Richard M. Nixon praise his former counsel.

Nixon said Dean's handling of the cover-up three months after the break-in at Democratic National headquarters "has been very skillful because you put your fingers in the dikes every time that leaks have sprung here and sprung there."

The incident marked the first time Dean had been summoned before Nixon to make a progress report on the cover-up. It occurred Sept. 15, 1972, the same day the original seven defendants were indicted by a grand jury. Also at the meeting was former White House chief-of-staff H. R. Haldeman.

During the conversation, Nixon discussed using the FBI and other federal agencies for political revenge during his second term, a move Dean called an exciting prospect.

Ford denies pardon deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford in an unprecedented personal appearance before a congressional panel, said Thursday "there was no deal, period, under no circumstances" in his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said that he granted the pardon for the benefit of the nation, not Nixon, and he is convinced he did the right thing at the right time.

"I wanted to do all I could to shift our attentions from the pursuit of a fallen president to the pursuit of the urgent needs of a rising nation," he said.

Ford said he hoped by coming before the House judiciary subcommittee and giving his account of the pardon personally he had "at least cleared the air" of the rumors and suspicions that have circulated about the pardon since he announced it Sept. 8.

'SIU could adjust to lower drinking age'

By Ray Urchel
Student Writer

Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne said Thursday that action lowering the drinking age in Illinois to 18 is "strictly up to the legislature" but said if legislation were passed by the General Assembly, SIU would adjust its current policy.

Swinburne commented that many states have already lowered the drinking age for beer and wine to 18 and said legislation lowering the drinking age in Illinois would be "reasonably consistent" with other legislation affecting 18 year-olds.

If 18 year-olds have other rights, Swinburne said, lowering the drinking age to 18 "would be a logical step."

Swinburne's views are in agreement with those of Julia Muller, coordinator of Student Life, who said lowering the age to 18 would be more feasible and easier to administer.

Swinburne said enforcement would be easier if 18 year-olds were allowed to drink since many college freshmen are 18. "I think (University) housing people would think so, also," he added.

Samuel Rinella, housing director, has already indicated support of the movement.

The Thompson Point Executive

Council recently established an ad hoc committee to study the feasibility of lowering the drinking age to 18.

Alcohol is the "number one drug problem in the U.S. today," Swinburne said, noting that if the drinking age is lowered, "It places the responsibility back on the students."

He said SIU students "have responded very favorably" to the lowering of the drinking age for beer and wine from 21 to 19.

Swinburne said that if the Illinois General Assembly makes the age for beer and wine 18, it is not mandatory for the University to follow suit, "but I anticipate the University would."

He noted that when the drinking age was lowered to 19, there was a time "lag" while SIU re-examined its drinking policy.

Muller, coordinator of Student Life, said 18 "is a more sensible age to have a cutoff than 19."

"I think the problems are the same if people are either 18 or 19. They drink or don't drink, if they want to or not," she said.

Frequently 19-year-olds will purchase liquor for 18-year-olds who want it, Muller said.

She said she has "no idea" about the amount of under-age drinking occurring at SIU events.

Gunman robs $50 from arcade

A robber wearing a green Army jacket reportedly held up the Student Center penny arcade Tuesday night and escaped with $50.

Jeffrey G. Altendorf, the arcade's attendant, told SIU police a man held a revolver to his head and demanded all the money.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said the robber was about 6-foot-1 or 2 and wore a brown scarf around his face. The hold-up man also wore brown gloves.

According to Norrington, several persons were stopped in the vicinity and questioned after the hold up.

Norrington reported police have a good lead on the vehicle used, and also a partial license number.

Black students meet with prison inmates

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Every Thursday afternoon a group of SIU black students travel to Marion Federal Penitentiary to participate in the Black Cultural Society program at the prison.

The prison program which began in 1970, was "a demand of the brothers (black prisoners) to have a black organization," according to Mike Epps, outside coordinator of the prison program.

In a recent interview Epps, a senior in administration of justice, explained the purpose of the society. The society is a recognized organization of Black Affairs Council (BAC).

Epps said in 1971, prison officials contacted BAC, asking if there were blacks interested in participating in the prison program.

He said BAC appointed a coordinator to develop a program with the prison, Epps said.

The program has evolved from a "loose organization" to highly organized one "oriented toward developing positive social direction," he said.

Once a week the group of students attend the prison society's program to discuss black politics and participate in debates. Once a month the outside program brings in black entertainment to the prison, such as the east side campus Black Fire Dancers.

Epps said the outside members mingle with the prisoners and sit among them in the audience.

Usually 45 prison members attend the meetings.

Besides having the weekly meetings, the prisoners publish their own newsletter, "Black Pride." Epps said the newsletter "is a reflection on what is going on in the prison."

He said "essays are contributed by various members of the society" on such subjects as "nationalistic revolutionistic expression."

Coloring contest winners get concert tickets

If you see a poster of a girl and a guy of the '40s, boogying to their latest big band hit, grab it and color it. You might win two tickets to the SLY and the Family Stone homecoming concert.

All students are invited to enter the coloring contest, one of this year's homecoming activities. Just color a poster advertising the homecoming theme, "Fad and Follies of the 40s."

Posters can be obtained at the Student Activities Office, third floor Student Center. The deadline to enter is 5 p.m. next Wednesday.

Winners will be announced next Thursday at a roller skating party at the Student Center. The winning posters will be displayed on the first floor of the Student Center in Gallery 51.

Bill Fornadel, graduate assistant homecoming advisor, said, "We thought the posters were nice, but they needed some color. Because the girl and boy are outlined in maroon and the rest of the poster is white, there'll be a lot of room for creativity."

The posters will be judged on the best forthright color styles and the best display of school spirit, he said.

Second and third place prizes will be awarded. The Homecoming Committee will decide what the prizes will be soon.

Tighten seatbelt laws

By Joanne Reuter
Student Writer

"I'm sorry, but you'll have to do something with your seatbelt or the car won't start," my friend said as she leaned forward, buckling her belt and shoulder harness behind her back. I asked her why she didn't just put her seatbelt on properly.

"It's a pain in the neck to hear that buzzer if I jump out for a minute," she replied. "Besides you'd be trapped if the car caught fire or went underwater."

Yes, you may be in one of the five out of every 100 auto accidents that involve fire or submersion. But, there's a 95 per cent chance that if you're in an accident, it will only involve a crash—a crash where a seatbelt can save your life. Driving is always a gamble, but at these odds, wearing a seatbelt is the best bet.

Yet 10,000 people die each year because they don't buckle up in spite of safety campaigns, films of bodies flying through windshields, stories of death and disfigurement and the ingenious annoyance of the interlock system required by law on 1974 car models. The interlock system makes it impossible to start the car unless the seatbelt is buckled after weight is placed on the seat. The most unnerving buzz is also triggered if the belt is unbuckled when the motor is running.

The interlock system has only motivated a small portion of the nation's drivers to protect themselves.

Owners of older cars not equipped with the interlock are unaffected by the legislative effort at protection. And 40 per cent of the owners of cars equipped with the system have it disconnected or manage to get around wearing their belts, just like my friend.

A better alternative to the system is legislation that would make it illegal to be in a moving automobile without wearing a seatbelt when it is present. The federal government has earmarked $94 million for grants to states that pass mandatory seatbelt laws imposing a $10 to $25 fine for violation.

It is often argued that such laws would be an invasion of privacy—that it is an individual's right to decide whether or not he wants to wear his seatbelt. But that's like saying laws requiring a doctor's prescription of tranquilizers invade the individual's right to decide whether or not he wants to cheer up. Drug laws help protect certain people from becoming needlessly addicted. Seatbelt laws would help protect people from becoming needlessly impaled on a steering wheel.

The U.S. Department of Transportation estimates that up to 15,000 lives a year would be saved if people would wear their seatbelts. They won't do it voluntarily, and interlock systems have failed to annoy or cajole them into it. But, if the states buckle down and hit the people's pocketbooks with fines, drivers of all kinds of cars might just buckle up.

Reject Rockefeller on Attica role

By Leonard Sykes
Student Writer

A very thorough investigation should be taken in Vice Presidential designate Nelson A. Rockefeller's actions during the Attica prison uprising. This episode could be considered one of the worst acts of negligence ever committed while he held office as governor of New York.

On September 13, 1971, Rockefeller ordered state troops into Attica to quell the disturbance resulting in the senseless slaughter of 43 inmates and guards. Some have placed the blame on Commissioner Oswald for the Attica shambles, but it is clear to many that Rockefeller's failure to appear at the prison was the cause of the massacre of human lives.

If Rockefeller had taken the time to appear at Attica for negotiations, it probably would have shown to the inmates the state's concern in helping to rectify some of the problems which existed in the prison. Instead, Rockefeller chose to dictate command from Washington, D.C., placing a good majority of the responsibility for handling the riot on Oswald.

It should be on his actions at Attica that his name be rejected by the Senate and House as Ford's vice presidential choice.

His actions at Attica have shown the American public his blatant disrespect for human life and one can only wonder what he would do while serving the nation as vice president.

Just recently, in his testimony before the Senate Rules Committee's hearing on his nomination, Rockefeller admitted his mistake in the tragedy but he only viewed it as one of the bad decisions made as governor of New York.

The Senate Rules Committee was so pre-occupied in investigating his financial worth that they gave very little attention to the Attica rebellion or any of the other atrocities committed by Rockefeller. There was only one day devoted to investigating his actions during the Attica uprising.

"Big Black" (Frank Smith), national director of the Attica Brothers Legal Defense, noted in his testimony before The Rules Committee that Rockefeller devoted more energy in prosecuting those inmates who took part in the rebellion than he did to prevent the disturbance from getting worse.

Since that time the state of New York has provided millions of dollars in prosecuting the inmates without giving a single dime for their defense.

The American public should be the final judge deciding which out-weighs the other: A man's financial wealth or a man who in his negligence ordered a senseless slaughter of 43 human lives.

Abriding rules hurts students and Senate

By Bill Layne
Editorial Page Editor

How can anyone have faith in the members of the Student Senate if they refuse to abide by their own constitution?

A poor situation exists at the senate when a senator, Richard "Josh" Bragg, west-side non-dorm district, admits to the senators that he no longer lives in the district he was elected to represent, and the senators refuse to remove him, as required by the constitution, because Bragg supposedly has a "good record."

Refusing to remove a senator because he has a supposedly "good record" is a highly debatable argument. Abriding specific sections of the constitution is not debatable.

If this abridgement of the rules is standard procedure, perhaps the senators should consider amending the constitution so future student senators can be elected solely on their records, and not have to worry about representing students from any specific district.

Allowing Bragg to maintain his seat on the senate, regardless of what he intends to do or what he has done, the Student Senate is violating the Constitution of Student Government.

No excuses are necessary from the members of the Student Senate or Bragg. They have circumvented the rules they have sworn to uphold, and the only persons they are hurting are the persons they represent—the students.

Correction

In Wednesday's issue of the Daily Egyptian, an editorial on Page 4 stated that 22,002 votes were cast for Mayor Neal Eckert in the 1971 election. That was incorrect. There were 2,202 votes cast for Mayor Eckert in the 1971 election.

Miss Quimby explains the war on inflation

Art Hoppe

"All right, class," said Miss Quimby. "Let us turn to Chapter XII, which is entitled, 'Our Precious Old World Heritage.' This deals, as you will see, with the wave of mass immigrations in the last century."

Little Billie raised his hand. "What's an immigrant, Miss Quimby?"

"Basically, Billie," said Miss Quimby, "an immigrant is a person who renounces his old country and goes to seek a new life in another country."

"Why would anyone do that, Miss Quimby?" asked Mary Jane. "I mean we love our country, don't we?"

"Of course we do, dear," said Miss Quimby. "But you must remember what conditions were like in The Old Country in those days. Our forefathers felt it wasn't a fit place to raise their children."

"Why was that, Miss Quimby?" asked Jimmy.

"Oh, there were many reasons, Jimmy," said Miss Quimby. "One was military conscription. Sometimes the leaders of The Old Country would force all able-bodied young men to join the army. And they had to fight and maybe die in wars they never understood."

"How awful!" said Mary Jane with a shudder.

"And the minorities were often persecuted in The Old Country," continued Miss Quimby. "They were stoned and spat upon and had to live in ghettos."

"That's terrible," said Billie.

"But the primary reason was economic," said Miss Quimby. "The rich were growing richer and the poor were growing poorer. The leaders imposed heavy taxes to pay for their wars. But the rich were clever and many paid no taxes at all. So the burden fell heaviest on the poor."

"That's not fair," said Jimmie.

"Then came the economic upheavals of the Seventies and the Eighties," said Miss Quimby. "Many of the poorer people lost their jobs and saw their savings wiped out. So our forefathers packed what meager possessions they still had and embarked on the long voyage over the water to a new land."

"But why did they come here, Miss Quimby?" asked Mary Jane.

"Oh, there were many reasons, dear," said Miss Quimby. "The air and water weren't polluted by industrial factories. Vast areas of land were still undeveloped. But basically it was a question of economic opportunity."

"Were the streets really paved with gold?" asked Billie.

Miss Quimby smiled. "No, that was a myth. But it was already a rich country. And it grew richer and richer until today it's the richest country on earth. Of course, our forefathers had to live in ghettos and work at menial jobs because they didn't know the language. But their children grew up as citizens in our melting pot and made good."

"What did the people who stayed behind in The Old Country think of those who left?" asked Mary Jane.

Miss Quimby frowned thoughtfully. "Well I suppose, dear, they thought our forefathers were unpatriotic riff-raff who were deserting their responsibilities. But of course, they weren't. They were brave, adventurous souls imbued with the glorious pioneer spirit that has made our country great. Any questions?"

"No, Miss Quimby."

"Good. Now that you understand why our American forefathers immigrated here to Arabia, let's turn to Chapter XIII, 'The Last Years of the 20th Century.'"

Letters

Two addresses not unusual

To the Daily Egyptian:

It appears that a few explanations are in order.

1) I have never legally given an incorrect address. It is common practice to have two legal addresses. Mayor Eckert, for example, has two, his home address and the City Hall. I receive mail at a northwest side address, and my driver's license is there. Technically, I have two legal addresses. I realize that this is a bunch of bureaucratic nonsense. That's why I submitted my resignation to the Student Senate.

2) The senate didn't "ignore" the rules in refusing to impeach me. They spent quite some time discussing what to do. They decided that extenuating circumstances existed and gave me until the next election (in November, a matter of weeks away) to move to the west side or run in the election as a east-side candidate. If I fail to do either, I will be impeached. I must stress that I volunteered the information that I was not living in my district and never spoke in my own defense.

3) Not living in the northwest side will not hurt my representing that area. I've been in Carbondale for three years and know the town like the back of my hand. Most of the ideas for spending the $8 million will come up in public hearings from people who attend them.

Although I would willingly let someone who lived in the northwest side replace me on the committee, the mayor has indicated that he will not appoint anyone else. Should I resign and leave the area entirely unrepresented, or stay and do the best I can?

Consider: I criticized the D.E. and now reporters carry tape recorders when they interview me. I attacked mandatory on-campus housing rules and a couple of months later the Dean of Students said that those regulations would probably be phased out. I issued a statement that as mayor I would back lowering the hard liquor age to 19 and the mayor said a week later that he supported lowering the beer and wine age to 18.

I'm trying to do a good job. I think I've accomplished some good things and I've got a lot more ideas cooking. What this "scandal" is in reality is the result of a lot of red tape. I'm just glad no one has found a way to put some over my mouth—I'm sure some people would like to.

Abortion plan

To the Daily Egyptian:

Prof. Nowacki's anti-abortion letter raised a serious issue when he wrote, "Judging from the number of doctors willing to perform abortions, finding a doctor willing to take care of your favorite enemy shouldn't be too difficult for a proper fee, of course."

Given the current ethical(?) trends, the "proper fee" will not be an obstacle. The super-humanitarians will press for legislation allowing everyone, regardless of socio-economic status, this "right" through something like food stamps of a nationalized health program.

It's not that the good doctors won't get their "proper fee"—they will—but everyone will have to pay for these vital services.

Naturally, the super-humanitarians won't call it murder; they will have to use the traditional euphemisms: "The Rub Out Program," "Contract Stamps," "The Hit for Health, Education and Welfare," "Search and Destroy," and so on.

Another Goulet

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to know if Michael Hawley in actual fact attended the Robert Goulet Concert of October 5. I noted several discrepancies in his article, and would like the opportunity of putting a few things straight.

Robert Goulet did not have his hair slicked down, he did not wear a tuxedo, and neither of his shirts, (he wore a different shirt for the second half) had ruffles. Goulet does not need ruffles.

I personally did not see Goulet "caress" any kneecaps. I had a pretty good seat and two eyes. If he did "caress" any, I am greatly disappointed that mine were not among them.

I enjoyed the concert from beginning to end, including Ronnie Schemm. His bit on Air Illinois was not funny—it was hilarious! It was also greatly appreciated.

If this is the kind of review that Mr. Goulet is going to receive, I wouldn't blame him if he never returned to this area. But I sincerely hope he does. If only to prove that it is people like Hawley that are mediocre and not Goulet.

On Gale Williams

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reply to Rupert T. Borgsmiller, Craig S. Conolly, Jay R. Johnson, Graduate Students, Political Science. You stated that in his ad "Meet Your Candidate" that:

1. "There is no seniority system in the Illinois General Assembly." I would like to quote a paragraph from a letter by W. Robert Blair, Speaker of the House of Representatives, which clearly shows that Gale Williams will be No. 1 in seniority on the Republican side as he has stated in his ad. Quote, "Seniority counts a lot in a legislative body, and you would have the most seniority of any Republican member from Southern Illinois."

2. "Even if there were a 'seniority system' in the Illinois House, Williams would have lost his seniority in 1972 when he gave up his seat to run for the Illinois State Senate." Again I quote from a letter received by Mr. Williams from John C. Hirschfeld, State Representative 52nd District, on September 19, 1974, quote, "Even though you have not been a member of the House of Representatives for the past two years, you retain your ten years of seniority, as I am certain you are well aware." As you can see again you are incorrect in your statement.

3. You say Williams implies that he is presently a member of the Illinois House of Representatives. I can see no implication in his ad. If he were in the House now he would certainly say so. All he states is that he has been a member of the Illinois House of Representatives for the past 10 years.

You also went on to say in your letter that in the second ad, "Are You Paying High Real Estate Taxes?", Gale Williams said Bruce Richmond had falsely informed the tax assessor concerning the value of his house and property. You say that Bruce Richmond's net worth is $58,128 and that his house is assessed at $9,460 correctly. Williams is the one who pointed out in his ad what Bruce Richmond's house was assessed at, not Bruce Richmond. Gale Williams asked how he could have his house assessed at $9,460 when he states in the paper that it is worth $58,128. Let me quote from the Southern Illinois what Bruce Richmond did say on May 30, 1974. Quote, "Richmond listed his net worth at $82,331.00 with current assets of $24,203 and fixed assets, the largest of which is his house and land at $58,128. Richmond did not list the business in which he is a partner because he did not wish to disclose information which concerns his partner, a non-politician, he said." Now do you say that his net worth is $58,128? I would suggest the next time you make such uninformed accusations you get the facts first.

Letters to the 'Daily Egyptian'

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Doesn't like play

To the Daily Egyptian:

In regard to the most unequivocal entente of trash ever assembled, namely the Southern Players latest attempt to bless our humble student body with aesthetic productions, I would like to interject my opinion concerning "The Tommy Allen Show." I could have produced, directed and witnessed a show containing a greater accumulation of profanities, ambiguities, and childish self-pity identity crisis fantasies had I converted my admission fee into small change and invoked Madison Avenue wines to scramble for it in the sake of a happening. What seemed to be the Communication Department's anti-communication testing grounds turned out more like the Kool-Aid Acid Test. I found Magen Terry's innuendos and insinuations a personal attack on the integrity of my character.

My own standards of better judgment invoked me to depart before this unfortunate incident. Had not personal mitigating circumstances and an innate tendency towards self-preservation not restricted me, I would have considered it my personal duty to stop and/or disrupt the continuation of this production, then informing audience members not joining in this endeavor to form lines in the back (holding hands in buddy system manner) and march to Synergy singing... "I am the egg man, I am the Walrus... Goo, Goo A' Jobb."

The SIU Drama Department has always been held in high esteem throughout our country. Its reputation for excellence in educational theater is the determining factor in many student's decisions to enroll at SIU. Should the integrity of our student body continue to be compromised by such sensationalizations of ineptitude illustrated in the production "The Tommy Allen Show"; we, the student body, have the right to rise in protest the atrophic condition of this department.

Cigarette smoking: kick the habit to live

By John Allen
Student Writer

"Warning—the Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

Everyone who smokes cigarettes, and even some who don't smoke, has seen those words stenciled on the sides of cigarette packages.

The Surgeon General has warned us, the American Medical Association has warned us, the American Heart Association has warned us, in fact, it seems every organization even remotely concerned with the health of Americans has warned us cigarette smoking is dangerous.

For those who don't smoke, the advice these organizations give should be heeded because it is the truth. Statistics have proven the advice these people give is sound advice, and smoking is indeed dangerous to health.

But what about the people who already have started smoking, some of whom have been smoking for most of their lives? What are these "nicotine addicts" supposed to do to protect their health from the dangers of cancer and emphysema? They really only have two choices: risk their lives and keep smoking, or quit smoking.

To quit smoking cigarettes, or to "kick the habit" is not an easy task. People who have tried to quit often find it difficult or impossible to do. It is not impossible to quit, but it takes willpower and determination to do so.

There are several ways to quit smoking cigarettes. None is guaranteed to work for everyone who tries the methods. One of the methods is to go "cold turkey"—to stop completely. "Cold turkey" is probably the hardest method. There are other ways to quit not quite as difficult, but which takes more time.

If the smoker does not desire to go "cold turkey" he can stop smoking on a gradual basis. Many companies market products to help the smoker gradually quit. Gradual stoppage is the method most doctors and health organizations recommend.

Alumni reception to follow game

The SIU Alumni Association is sponsoring a reception for all alumni and faculty immediately following the homecoming football game Oct. 26. The reception will be in the Student Center Ballroom.

The reception is designed to offer an opportunity for faculty to greet former students. Alumni will be grouped with their respective school in designated areas of the ballroom.

No frogs' legs in Holland

AMSTERDAM (AP)—A protest by a Dutch animal protection society has forced cancellation of a frogs' legs party planned by a student group at Leiden University. A Parisian chef had been engaged to prepare the delicacy for celebrations of the 160th anniversary of the University's Minerva Society.

The first step in quitting is to change from a non-filtered or filtered cigarette to a lower tar and nicotine brand. At first the smoker might smoke a little more often to satisfy the nicotine craving, but eventually he will return to smoking only at his habitual times. Consequently, the smoker really won't be smoking any more than he did before he switched brands, but he will be getting the benefit of lower amounts of tar and nicotine entering his lungs.

Step two in the process of quitting is a little more difficult to get used to than the first step, so it takes more willpower. Fortunately, there are several ways in which the second phase can be accomplished, so if one idea doesn't work another might.

One of the ways the second step in the process of quitting can be accomplished is the half-way method. Using this method the smoker smokes only half a cigarette instead of the whole thing. It requires concentration to cut down this way, because the smoker has a tendency to smoke the whole cigarette without really thinking about it.

Another way to get through the second step is the every-other-day method. Unlike the half-way method, the smoker continues smoking the whole cigarette in his normal fashion, but he does not smoke cigarettes every day. Every other day the smoker has no cigarettes at all.

There are several other ways to get through the second step, among them the one-week-per-month plan, in which the smoker takes a week off from smoking; the one-month-on-one-month-off plan, in which the smoker quits for a month at a time; or there is the 12-year plan, in which the smoker quits smoking for one month each year until he runs out of months or dies, whichever comes first.

Once the second step has been instituted and gotten used to, it is imperative for the smoker to move quickly to step three, the most difficult of all. The majority of people who try to quit and fail, do so because they didn't move quickly enough from step two to step three. Step three, essentially is the complete withdrawal from the tobacco habit. It is hard, but the smoker who has willpower, determination and plenty of intestinal fortitude can manage it.

For the smoker who lacks the aforementioned characteristics, a fourth step can be added—the return to the normalcy of smoking cigarettes—who wants to quit smoking in the first place?

S-Senate moves to curb allocations

By Jim Murphy
 Student Writer

Placing a heavy emphasis on decreased spending, the Student Senate Wednesday night heard arguments on campus organizations allocations.

Four campus groups, the Public Relations Club, Council of President's Scholars, Ananda Marga Yoga Society, and the Spanish Club, submitted requests through the Senate finance committee for club-related activity funds.

The Senate voted to trim $100 from the Public Relations Club resolution. The money would have paid for expenses at a national convention.

"We really shouldn't be sending the group to the convention," Senator Richard Lange said. "That's been the rule in the past."

The Senate did approve $125 for the PR Club to bring five guest speakers to campus. Debate along the same lines followed on a resolution to allocate $172.50 for the Council of President's Scholars. The group also requested funds to cover convention costs.

Several senators questioned the feasibility of funding groups not entirely representative of the student body.

Speaking for the bill, Senator Leonard Swanson said, "Not all of the groups that come before us will be representative of the entire student body."

The bill, providing for registration and luncheon fees, passed, 13-6. Little debate preceded the Senate's approval of $110 for the Spanish Club, but the Senate followed this action by refusing to grant immediate consideration to a request for $60 by the Ananda Marga Yoga Society. The bill will be placed on the agenda for the next week's Senate meeting.

In other business, the Senate approved a resolution calling for the installation of more lights in Thompson Woods, particularly in the area behind the Student Center. Submitted by Senator David

Building halted

CHICAGO (AP)—A federal appeals court Thursday ordered a halt to construction of a nuclear power plant on Indiana shore of Lake Michigan.

The 7th U.S. Court of Appeals said construction for the Bailey nuclear reactor must be stopped until it hears oral arguments from the Northern Indiana Public Service Co. and opponents to the plant.

The Atomic Energy Commission on Aug. 29 gave final approval for building the plant, but this was challenged in the court by environmental and consumer groups.

The reactor was to be situated on a National Lakeshore and about 35 miles from downtown Chicago.

Apes have easy life.

Gorillas really know how to enjoy life. They rise about 8 a.m., eat for a couple of hours, rest between 10 and 2, then eat a little more before retiring to their pads about 6 in the evening. Although they live in the forest or mountains where it is often foggy and rainy, they love the sun and will lie for hours on their backs basking in the warm sunshine, according to Grzimek's "Animal Life Encyclopedia."

Stevens, the resolution cites the need for increased protection and safety for students walking in the woods at night.

The Senate also resolved that a student government information center be established. The information center's purpose is to keep student government better informed to better serve the student body.

The Senate defeated a resolution calling for academic credit to be awarded to students serving on the Student Senate.

Hams' hobby helpful

By Alfred King
Student Writer

If you like to talk to people and perform services for the community then you might be interested in SIU's Amateur Radio Club.

Jan Sonner, associate professor of the department of Technology and faculty advisor for the radio club said, "The radio club's purpose is to foster amateur radio by providing a station and meeting place where members cannot only operate but also discuss radio technology."

The club also uses its resources for service and civil defense," Sonner said.

Amateur radio operators, also known as hams, have provided emergency communications during floods, fires, tornadoes, and hurricanes. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has often praised hams for voluntary work in emergencies, according to an article in the 1974 World Book Encyclopedia.

"If there had been hams in Nicaragua during the earthquake in December of 1972 the situation would have been easier to handle," Sonner said.

"WA9FGX are our station's call letters," Sonner said. "We have a Drake transmitter and receiver with a 2,000 watt linear amplifier. The transmitter generates the signals and the amplifier makes the signal strong enough to be received all over the world."

Many successful electronic engineers first learn the basic facts about electronics by becoming interested in ham radio, according to World Book Encyclopedia.

"Anyone can join the organization," Sonner said. "We will teach and help interested persons get their licenses. You need a license in order to operate the equipment," he explained.

There are five different classes of licenses. These are novice, technician, general, advanced and extra class, which is the highest.

There are 25 members in the radio club, according to Sonner, and most have the advanced class license.

Q-signals are the special language used by radio hams. According to Sonner, this code enables hams of different languages to understand each other. For example, QRA means "what is the name of your station?"

Members of the radio club have called and talked to hams in such places as Panama, Sweden, Germany, and Norway. According to Sonner, every other Tuesday night a member of the radio club, Daniel Fernandes, calls Venezuela and talks to his father who is also an amateur radio operator.

"During the third week in June we compete with other hams in field day activities," Sonner said. On field day hams meet in remote areas to send emergency messages to as many stations as they can. "We finished high in the national meet last year," he said.

Another type of competition held by hams is the DX (distance test). Hams compete in contacting as many stations in other lands as they can in a limited amount of time.

Back in 1920, a ham in Pittsburgh used his station for the entertainment of neighbors listening on small crystal sets. This use of an amateur station led to commercial radio broadcasting.

Approximately 255,000 ham stations operate in the U.S.

Interested persons should contact Jan Sonner in the Tech D111. The phone number is 536-3396.

While most students were done with classes Wednesday night, the residents of Thompson Point were still learning. Jean Cash, a teacher at the Carbondale Park District, demonstrates the proper technique for moving the midsection, commonly known as belly dancing. (Staff photo by Steve Sumner).

This piper plays numerous tunes

By Eugene Green
Student Writer

Webster's Dictionary defines the word "versatile" as being "competent in many things." Very few people can honestly claim this definition as an attribute. Henry Dan Piper is one who can.

Piper, professor of English at SIU since 1962, has taught American Literature in France, England, Germany, the Netherlands and Ireland, with no degree in English.

"I'm simply a screwball in life. I guess," said the balding, 56-year-old professor.

"I hold degrees in Chemistry from Princeton and Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and a Ph.D. in American Civilization from the University of Pennsylvania," Piper said. "Your degree should not dictate what you accomplish, but should be the stepping stone to new ideas," he said.

Piper, who termed the undergraduate degree as "an opportunity to determine the boundaries of your ignorance," has produced 12 books which he has either edited or written. Some of the largest magazines in the country have published articles written by him.

"We have to watch out for the student," Piper said. "Teachers must respond to the student's wants of their own personal biases."

Piper said one of his favorite classes to teach is GSC 335, "The Short Story." "It's the hottest thing on wheels because it gives the students a chance to be exposed to many popular writers. Many times, classes dealing with plays and novels are simply too long to hold the student's interest," he said.

"Student interest is the most important factor for me to accomplish when teaching a class," Piper said. "Without it, you may as well give up and find another profession."

Piper, who held various faculty positions at different universities since 1952, came to SIU in 1962 to become the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, a post held until his resignation in 1967. Since then, much of his time has been centered on helping educate the student to "explore himself."

"I try to teach the students that to be successful, you must understand your capabilities," Piper said. "The undergraduate student shouldn't worry so much about his major."

Having had experience as a teacher, lecturer, chemist, publisher, editor, writer and also a brief background in law, Piper has seen many of the different things which shape one's life. "You must try different things," he said.

Piper is in the process of investigating the possibilities of giving a seminar in India next year. "It's a narrow-minded person who is the specialist in life," he said.

Loans ease financial woes

By Carl Flowers
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For the 1974-75 academic year, the average expenses for an undergraduate student at SIU are about $2,700.

For that same student, the expected parental contribution and student resources is usually about $1,500 short of the amount needed to attend SIU.

The financial problem is solved, for more than two-thirds of SIU's nearly 20,000 students, through financial aid "packages" offered by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance (SWFA), located in Washington Square.

With more than 30 assistance programs ranging from scholarships to loans to grants, SWFA is designed to provide continuing opportunities for students to attend SIU and complete their higher education.

The financial need of a student represents the difference between the cost of attending the University and the amount the student and his parents are expected to contribute toward that cost. The amount of aid to be given to a student is determined on the basis of the American College Testing Program's Family Financial Statement (ACT-FFS), a computerized summary of student and parent resources.

Once the SWFA receives the need analysis form from the student, a financial package is offered to assist the student in meeting his projected expenses.

A typical package might include scholarships, loans, grants as well as student participation in the work-study program, which allows the student to earn a portion of his income to meet expenses.

The most common form of assistance offered by SWFA is the Illinois State Scholarship Commission Monetary Award (ISSC). More than 30,000 ISSC's are awarded annually throughout the state with the only requirements being that the applicant be an Illinois resident and have a financial need.

Sept. 1 is the usual deadline for applications for the ISSC.

Other scholarships awarded by the SWFA include the SIU Scholarship, awarded on a competitive basis to full time students demonstrating a financial need as well as high aptitudinal abilities; the Junior College Scholarship, which is awarded to graduates of Illinois Community colleges who show academic promise and a need for financial assistance; and the Illinois Military State Scholarship (ISMS).

The only requirement for the ISMS is that the applicant have served at least one year of military service and received a honorable discharge.

A total of five loans are available through the SWFA with the amount of each being determined by the ACT-FFS.

The most easily secured for most students is the Illinois Guaranteed Loan, which is available to full time students at all state colleges and universities with graduates as well as undergraduates being eligible under the program. The loans, to be repaid by the student following graduation, are available through local lending agencies and the SWFA.

Other loan programs available to students needing additional assistance include the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) Loan, and a short-term emergency loan program where students may borrow up to $150 to meet unexpected expenses.

Repayment of the short term loan is usually required within 30 days after the loan is approved.

Most of the grants offered by the SWFA are to students having an exceptionally high financial need. One of those is the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG).

The BEOG is designed for students having a great financial need and who began taking university level course work after April 1, 1973. The grant is available only to full time students who are U.S. citizens.

The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG) is also awarded on a limited basis with applicants needing assistance beyond that of the BEOG.

SWFA also offers a specialized grant to students in the correctional field who promise to work at least two years following graduation in some area of corrections. The grant, Law Enforcement Educational Program (LEEP), allows the student to receive nearly $1,000 per year and is available to juniors and seniors as well as graduate students.

The SWFA's work study program allows the student to work part time at one of the more than 8,000 on-and-off campus jobs throughout the Carbondale area.

According to a SWFA's spokesperson, students usually work between 12 and 20 hours per week at a rate of $1.90 per hour.

Disabled treatment differs in Europe

By Karen Decker
Student Writer

Many differences exist between American and European treatment of handicapped persons, according to Kristen D. Juul, professor of special education at SIU.

In Europe, more persons accept the handicapped as human beings with human needs and privileges, Juul said. Greater attempts are made to integrate the handicapped into the community, he added.

And while open expressions of affection are common in European doctor-patient relationships, affection in the U.S. brings charges of medical "unprofessionalism," Juul said.

"Over the last 50 years Americans have taken the lead in theories, research and demonstration programs," Juul said. "Europeans by the thousands have come over here to learn."

"Europeans tend to think that everything progressive and innovative is taking place in the United States," Juul continued.

"Meanwhile, especially since World War II, there has been a silent development in Europe that most of us Americans are almost completely ignorant of."

Juul coordinated and guided an eight-week tour this summer to France, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. The 15 tour members visited institutions and centers in Paris, Vienna, Munich and Copenhagen.

This year's tour, sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education, left the United States June 9 for Luxembourg. Tour members visited psychiatric hospitals, a hospital for the retarded, day schools and daycare centers, government agencies and treatment centers for the maladjusted and delinquents.

According to Juul, the purpose of the program is to acquaint American special educators with progressive and innovative services for the handicapped in Western Europe.

"The students were without exception very fine ambassadors for the U.S.," Juul said. "Numerous times our hosts commented on how enthusiastic, interested and professional they were."

"We did not see one instance of Anti-Americanism in any of the places we visited," Juul said. "Of course, some places (people) were not particularly enthused about us, since some of the hospitals have visitors about 170 days of the year." "In all," he concluded, "people went way out of their way to help us. They wanted to return some of the kindnesses they had received in the United States."

Juul expressed hopes to conduct another tour in 1976. Many students have expressed interest, Juul said.

Oil producers put strain on world economy

LONDON (AP)—One year ago Thursday the oil producing nations began teaching the rest of the world an expensive lesson that could change the economic facts of life forever—the era of cheap oil is over.

Beginning on Oct. 17, 1973, the Arabs and their partners in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries took their first steps toward quadrupling the price of oil in less than 10 weeks.

Rich and poor nations alike still reel from that move.

In the first year alone, oil price rises are expected to transfer more than $80 billion from advanced industrialized nations to the treasuries of the oil producers, far more than the Arabs and their colleagues have been able to invest.

The massive shift of funds has put new strains on world banking and monetary systems, and despite a variety of recycling proposals, no agreed solution is in sight. Nowadays, instead of predicting things will get worse before they get better, economists are fond of saying things are going to get worse before they get still worse.

For an industrialized country like Britain, which imports more than 80 per cent of its oil, the Arab "sheik down," as it has been called in the British press, means that for every dollar increase in the price of a barrel of oil, $1 billion will be added to Britain's balance of payments deficit.

Britain now expects a deficit this year of $10 billion, the prime factor weakening its pound, feeding inflation and causing a variety of economic problems. Over half that deficit is due to rising oil prices.

British Energy Secretary Eric Varley has talked about a 10 per cent over-all saving in energy, but there is no formal rationing of fuel and voluntary measures have yet to prove themselves. A year after the squeeze began, British firms still find it easier to pass on increased oil costs to their customers as price rises.

Other Western European countries have similar experiences. Developing countries like India see their slim foreign exchange reserves going to import oil. Despite promises of preferential treatment, developing countries still must pay as much for oil as advanced nations.

Teacher makes music fun

By M. F. Gabel
Student Writer

He could be known as the Pied Piper of District 95, except a violin would have to replace the flute.

But the fairy tale approach is appropriate for describing Michael Minning, the string music instructor for Carbondale kindergarden, elementary and high school students.

"Minning's Methods" have gained a good reputation among parents, teachers and administrators in the five years the University of Missouri music graduate has been employed here. Currently he serves as a full-time instructor and orchestra director for the elementary schools, while being loaned for one hour daily to the junior high and high schools.

"Michael is a good teacher, he's good with children," said T. R. Thalman, a practicing dentist in town who is also a member of the elementary school board. His daughter, Ann, 5, is one of approximately 45 elementary and preschool children attending Tuesday night lessons at Lincoln Junior High on Washington Street.

Minning uses an adaptation of the "Suzuki" method in teaching the violin, which he admits is a difficult instrument to play, especially for youngsters, with their limited attention span. Suzuki training, according to Minning, says that "music is for everybody, and is fun, not just art."

Parents are actively involved also, by actually learning to play with their child, at least through the first nine months of lessons. All the parents attend classes, however, and supervise home practices.

Konishi to Detroit

Frank Konishi, chairman of the Food and Nutrition Department, will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Michigan Dietetic Association Oct. 24 in Detroit.

Konishi will speak on "The Need for Continuing Education." As part of his speech, he will talk about a course he initiated at SIU three years ago entitled "Nutritional Ecology of Man" (GSE 236). The course deals with environmental influences in terms of nutrition, man's effects on food supplies, malnutrition and genetics.

"The child who does best, has related some of her feelings of the musical learning process: 'I have to set time specifically at this age, working with them at every step.' She added, 'This teaches you to be more patient with your children.'"

Elaborating more on his tactics, Minning explained, "of course, I teach by rote, through playing records and having drilling exercises." The latter entails things like walking around the room with the violin perched under the child's chin, while receiving no assistance from their hands. The basic grips for holding the instrument and its bow are stressed.

"By parents taking an active part in the learning, mistakes are corrected right away," Minning said. "Then the instrument becomes an integral part of the child's environment."

Another parent, Ellen Drake, mother of Laura, 6, and David, 7, said, "I believe this is good basic training, whether or not they continue with violin, or start playing other instruments."

Last year was the initial period for teaching the kindergarden-age kids, and the program was successful enough to stage a concert at Christmas. This year, said Minning, another "family involvement" concert will be held, although the date has not been set. Then some parents are allowed to play along with the children, which is always good for reinforcing the will to learn more about the violin, Minning said.

R.T. dept. founder is honored

By William Livek
Student Writer

The founder of the SIU Radio and Television Department, Buren C. Robbins, was honored recently at the Illinois Broadcasters Association Convention in Chicago.

The IBA awarded Robbins with a lifetime membership and a plaque. WGN Radio General Manager and Vice President Bob Henley, a former student of Robbins, read the inscription on the plaque to the convention gathering.

Robbins came to SIU's Speech Department in 1950 after working at many radio stations and left SIU last year in retirement.

Alan Frank, program director of WSUU (FM) who was at the convention, said Robbins accepted the award humbly and expressed warmth for former students and faculty members.

Frank said, "Buren expressed deep thanks to William Dixon (chief engineer for the broadcasting service who has worked with Robbins since 1960) and to John Kurtz (assistant professor in radio and television at SIU) for their help in making the department what it is today."

Ron Land, a student in R-T from Elgin said, "Mr. Robbins was an innovator in radio for the whole Southern Illinois area."

Antipollution limit extension requested

By Brian Sullivan
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK—The federal deadline for a 90 per cent reduction in automobile pollution emissions should be extended to 1980, according to a study issued Thursday by three leading research institutions.

The study, by Columbia and Harvard universities and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the delay from 1977-78 would give the auto industry time to develop the best possible antipollution technology.

A majority of the study group said Detroit's commitment to one basic device, the catalytic converter, is an unwise gamble when other technologies offer potentially better results.

The report, the result of study from September 1971 through June 1974, strongly endorsed the aim of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970.

"All indications are that the 1970 action of Congress in requiring a crash program for dramatic reduction of pollution from automobiles was a wise decision," the report concluded.

But the study also warned that any delay should be coupled with measures such as economic sanctions to make sure the auto industry uses the additional time seriously to reach the 90 per cent goal.

One of the report's eight authors, James A. Fay of MIT, dissented from the recommendation for a delay, arguing there is no weighty evidence that any one technological approach is superior and that delay would not be beneficial to public health.

The study, supported with a $320,000 National Science Foundation grant, was made by legal scholars from Columbia, economists from Harvard and scientists from MIT. Co-directors were Professors Frank P. Grad and Albert J. Rosenthal of Columbia.

The report will be published and distributed by NSF to members of Congress, state legislatures and environmental and other agencies.

The 1970 amendments mandated 90 per cent reductions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions by 1975 and of nitrogen oxide emissions by 1976. The deadlines were subsequently extended, first to 1976-77 in the Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974 to 1977-78.

Man found dead

Jesse Howell, 521 S. Illinois Avenue, was found dead at 11:15 a.m. Thursday by Carbondale police.

Police Sgt. Willard Cross said two death notes were found close to the body.

According to Cross, the death was reported to police by Elizabeth Hooper, 521 S. Illinois Avenue.

Cross said a statement obtained from a friend reported Howell was at a local bar at midnight Wednesday.

Cross said drugs were found in Howell's apartment.

Cause of death is unknown pending a coroner's inquest.

Illinois Ave. serving bar-goers with gusto

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Gone is the romance that was so divine," but here is a lounge that is so, well, unique.

Capitalizing on the revitalization of F. Scott Fitzgerald's classic, "The Great Gatsby," J.P.W. Enterprises of Carbondale is opening a bar on S. Illinois Ave. next week with an atmosphere that will attempt to put the patronizer into the 1920s. It will be named Gatsby's.

Complete with spoked wheels and license plates from the '20's on the walls and an authentic 1920 gas pump in front of the building, the bar will open "sometime next week," according to Jim Winfree, one of the owners.

The bar will feature live entertainment on weekends consisting of a combination of ragtime, bluegrass, and dixieland music.

Winfree, an antique car buff, has accumulated over a period of five years scores of old-time car wheels, license plates, headlights, taillights, horns, and steering wheels from the vintage cars.

There is even an authentic 1929 traffic signal from Louisville, Ky. in the bar.

"The book had an emphasis on the automobiles of the time," Winfree said. The theme which he said comes from "a revival of the movie and the nostalgia it brought back," was his idea.

"I think it'll be the nicest place in Carbondale," Winfree said, adding that it will also have a crystal ball hanging in the center of the room.

The bar with a seating capacity of approximately 150, will serve Pabst and Michelob beer on tap, bottled beer and imported beer. Winfree said the food specialty will be hot ham and swiss cheese on rye. Also served will be polish sausage and hot dog sandwiches.

The bar will have cable television Winfree said, accommodating football fans with Chicago Bears games.

In addition to Gatsby's, SIU bar hoppers will have another new mecca, Das Fass, a bar with a Bavarian atmosphere will open Wednesday with a grand opening Oct. 26, the night of SIU's homecoming, Jack Griggs, manager, announced Thursday.

Quintet to perform free

By Joanne Reuter
Student Writer

Combining revolutionary with the classical music, the St. Louis Brass Quintet will perform at University Convocations at 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium.

Along with works by Bach and 17th century composer Daniel Speer, the quintet will play "60 Seconds" by John Cage and "Variations on L.B.I.F.D." by contemporary American Alfred Reed. Using "London Bridge is Falling Down," Reed attempts to show how composers of different nations vary a musical theme with harmony and counterpoint.

Illinois expands coal production

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Illinois coal production in September topped August's and was higher than September 1973's, the latest state figures show.

The Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals says coal production from the state's 50 working mines totaled 5,332,171 tons in September, compared with 4,728,081 tons in August and 5,145,791 tons last September. Total tons mined through September 1974 are 49,922,352.

Three men died in mine accidents in September, compared with one in August and none in July. So far in 1974 eight miners have been killed.

Perry County's five mines led the state in production last month with 1,128,994 tons. St. Clair County, with two mines, was second with 569,252 tons.

Saturday wheelchair repairs available

Wayne H. Gawlik, SIU wheelchair repairman, says the Wheelchair Repair Committee has granted him four additional hours on Saturdays to repair chairs.

"The repair will be done at the leisure of the student because neither the student nor I have to run to a class," Gawlik said.

Saturday hours are from 10 to 2 p.m. Weekday services are Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 11 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Wheelchair Repair is located in the Specialized Student Services wing of Woody Hall.

The quintet will play thirteen works at Shryock, written during the Renaissance, Baroque, and Modern eras. During the concerts, the musicians comment on the history and mechanics of brass instruments and the compositions being performed.

Four members of the quintet, Susan Slaughter, trumpet; Carl R. Schiebler, horn; John MacEnulty, tuba; and Mel Jernigan, trombone play with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The fifth member of the quintet, Robert Ceccarini, plays principal trumpet with the St. Louis Municipal Opera.

Admission to the Shryock performance is free and open to the public. Following the program, a free coffee hour will enable the audience to meet the performers.

Pre-school for all

By Kathleen Takemoto
Student Writer

"Child Horizons," a pre-school program at Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace, will now be open to all children of SIU students, according to director Thelma Kraft.

"We're opening it up to any student who has need for our services," said Kraft, an associate professor in the Child and Family Department.

She said the pre-school previously accommodated primarily children of Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace residents and students living in the immediate area.

According to Kraft, openings remain for both the morning and afternoon sessions. The Southern Hills pre-school operates from 8:30 to 4:30 daily, while the one at Evergreen Terrace operates in the morning only.

Less than anticipated enrollment is one of the program's problems Kraft said. "Unless we get a bigger population, it would be difficult to pay the added personnel," she added.

The 50 cents an hour charge per child pays the morning and afternoon supervisors. According to Kraft, when the program was located at Pulliam Hall last year, it was supported by Continuing Education for Women. This year, however she said, the program is self-supporting.

A test operation of the pre-school at Evergreen Terrace during the summer was very well supported. Kraft said. But she feels road construction in the area between Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace discouraged students from enrolling their children in the program this fall.

Kraft said she does not want to raise the program's rates because of the financial limitations of students. "I think if I raised it any higher, it would be prohibitive," she said.

Soviet Center head man of many talents

By Dennis Rezap
Student Writer

Herbert Marshall may be a modern day Einstein, complete with rambling genius, endless projects, and a harum scarum hairstyle. Marshall, director of SIU's Center for Soviet and East European Studies and professor in theater, recently returned from the International Conference on Slavic and East European Studies in Alberta, Canada. He was invited to form and chair a panel on Soviet Performing Arts at the conference. Marshall said the conference was later joined by top Soviet scholars and proved a huge success.

Professor Marshall, a six foot tall, heavily mustached native Englishman whirls around his library office fielding questions, digging through papers and files, and occasionally barking into his telephone.

He is working on a five-year project of researching and translating the collected works of Russian film maker, Sergei Eisenstein.

In January 1973 Marshall was awarded a grant of $14,724 from the National Endowment for Humanities and from Mr. and Mrs. Clement Stone to finance the project.

"The grant will cover the cost of researching, translating, editing, typing, re-typing, and preparing negatives, prints, and captioning for this huge mass of material," Marshall said.

Marshall has completed the first of six volumes which is in proof form at MIT Press in London. He is now editing volume two and is starting volume three in his spare time.

Volume one is Eisenstein's autobiography and the other five volumes, each containing from 600 to 700 pages, include Eisenstein's writings on the theory of cinema art, history and philosophies of cinema art, critical essays and articles on cinema art and writings about Eisenstein's battle with Stalinism.

Eisenstein is acknowledged by experts the world over as the outstanding thinker and philosopher of cinema art, Marshall said.

Marshall, said to have the best collection of material on Eisenstein outside Moscow, describes Eisenstein as the most original thinker ever on the methodology of the art and theory of cinema.

Marshall, the only English-speaking graduate of Eisenstein's research group at the All-Union Institute of Cinematography, Moscow, in the 30's, is said by colleagues and experts in his field to be the best qualified person to undertake the translations.

Marshall said this type of translation is painstaking because of Eisenstein's philosophical style and because it is multi-lingual and international.

"Eisenstein's notes are in French, German, and Russian, and to translate some of the words and expressions I've had to research in Chinese and Hebrew," Marshall said.

"I've had to spend as long as two weeks on the translation of a single word," he added.

The volumes contain thousands of cross references to all aspects of world history and world art that Eisenstein quotes. The index includes over 500 proper names.

Behind Marshall's desk, the wall is hidden by a sea of framed photographs and caricatures. There are pictures of Marshall with friends, among them—Eisenstein, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and John F. Kennedy.

There is also a glossy of India's Indira Gandhi shaking hands with Marshall after he finished designing India's national theaters.

In 1936 Marshall designed London's Unity Theater. Under his direction Unity's actors became the first in England to portray major figures on the stage, such as Hitler and Queen Victoria.

"This practice was illegal but we skirted the rule by calling our theater a private club," Marshall said.

Unity's production of "Til Death Do Us Part" was adopted by BBC, and later inspired the creation of ABC's "All in the Family."

"Actors and students of mine performed in 'Steptoe and Son,' the original version of today's 'Sanford and Son,'" Marshall said. He added that both shows were toned down considerably for American television.

Next semester SIU students will have the opportunity to learn the Stanislavsky method of film direction from the 68-year-old, director, actor, architect, journalist, translator, critic, and international scholar, Marshall. He is the only person in America who studied the Stanislavsky method at its source—the Moscow Art Theater.

Housing industry up in September

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government reported Thursday that the number of new houses started inched upward in September, but the report gave no indication of a revival in the slumping housing industry.

The number of houses started rose four-tenths of 1 per cent to 1.120 million units at an annual rate after four straight months of decline.

The level of activity as measured by the starts is now down by 55 per cent from the peak of 2.506 million units in October, 1972, when the latest slide started.

Although the September total was up, officials generally discount month-to-month variations in the volatile industry and still expect the housing industry to remain in the doldrums for at least the rest of the year.

Supporting that expectation were figures appended to the housing starts report and showing new building permits issued in September totalled enough to support 825,000 units, for the sixth straight month of decline.

Permits usually anticipate starts by from three to six months.

Meanwhile, despite some misgivings, the administration's top housing official is urging President Ford to sign a bill earmarking $7.75 billion in federal money to help home buyers.

The convention officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday with registration of guests, that will be followed by an evening of services and singing.

Student aid problems under fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government moved Wednesday to curb defaults on federally insured college student loans, which have cost taxpayers an estimated $22 million.

Among a series of proposals, the U.S. Office of Education threatened to "limit, suspend or terminate" participation by certain lending and educational institutions failing to obey the new restrictions.

The nine-year old guaranteed student loan program provides up to $2,500 a year for college and vocational study. The loans are insured by the federal government or guaranteed by state and private non-profit agencies.

About four million students have received more than $7 billion since the program began.

The General Accounting Office told Congress last month that one out of every four student borrowers could be expected to default.

In an effort to keep the default problem from spreading, the Office of Education proposed new record keeping arrangements requiring schools to notify lenders and the government when a student graduates or drops out.

In most instances, under the proposed new rules, commercial lenders would disperse loans no sooner than 30 days before tuition payments were due. If the student consented, the loan would be paid directly to the school.

Loan payments would be made in several installments, based on the school's academic schedule, rather than in a lump sum. The agency said this would reduce the amount of potential default for early dropouts.

Any loan would have to be repaid immediately if the student failed to enroll, under the new proposal.

VW finds skyway

Police arrested a student at 1 a.m. Thursday for a driving-while-intoxicated over the pedestrian overpass on Rt. 51.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said police observed a car with lights off headed west on the overpass.

A Volkswagen was stopped at Anthony Hall by police Norrington said and Paul W. Boelter, 23, Rt. 8 Carbon-dale, was arrested.

Norrington said Boelter, an SIU student, was taken to police headquarters where he failed a breathalyzer test.

Boelter posted $50 and his driver's license as bond.

$1 each for bike registration plates to arrive shortly

By Patrick Douglas
Student Writer

Get your dollars ready because the bicycle registration tags are on the way.

According to August Lemarchal, SIU Co-ordinator of Parking and Traffic, a partial shipment was supposed to have arrived Oct. 15. He said they did not arrive on that date however he expects they will any time now.

Norman Parmley of the SIU Purchasing Office said the delay has probably been due to a scarcity of material and a backlog of orders for the contracted seller—the Indianapolis Badge and Nameplate Co. of Indianapolis, Ind.

The company was contacted last week and reportedly said that at least a partial shipment of the 5,000 plates ordered would be sent by Oct. 11 and arrive this week.

Police arrest student in theft

SIU police arrested a Schneider Hall resident Wednesday for stealing a microwave oven from the Technology Building. Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said Alan B. Cislak, 18, of 335 Schneider Hall was arrested while entering Schneider Hall with the oven.

Cislak was apprehended by Patrolman Virgil Claunch at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday, Norrington said.

Norrington said Claunch saw Cislak acting suspiciously in the area of Schneider Hall. After following him into the northwest wing of Schneider, Claunch noticed the oven. After questioning, Cislak was arrested for theft over $150.

Norrington said Cislak admitted to stealing the oven and was taken to the Jackson County Jail. Bond was set at $2,500.

The Indiana based company was offered the contract because the city of Carbondale placed their original order there. The University followed suit so that the plates would be similar in style, according to Parmley.

When the plates do come in, they will immediately be issued to everyone who has picked up a temporary registration and a $1 fee will be charged to each.

SIU Security Officer Jim Lindsey said that until that time, neither SIU nor Carbondale police will be ticketing bicyclists for not being registered. But once the majority of people have had the opportunity to pick up their plates, ticketing will begin.

Lindsey also pointed out that before a bike can be registered, it will have to meet state and local safety standards.

'Smithy' takes life easy, tries 'to help somebody'

"Under the spreading chestnut tree
the village smithy stands."
Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

By Gary Marx
Student Writer

The smithy, a blacksmith's shop, stands next to the railroad tracks in northwest Murphysboro where James Deal contentedly pounds his anvil every day. He has never made a lot of money, but he has enjoyed the independence of the blacksmithing trade for 58 of his 78 years.

"What I get done, I get done," he said with a slow drawl and a smile. "What I don't get done, nobody's there to say 'Go do it.'"

Jim, as he is known to most people, is a big black man seemingly taller than his five-foot ten-inch frame. His shoulders are slightly stooped over age, but he holds his head high and speaks with a voice mellowed with humility and love for his fellow man.

His work day is split between the smithy and a tiny grocery store attached to his house on the cobblestone corner of 17th and Logan St. The store supplements the income from the smithing business.

Jim takes his time and will gladly talk about his life, recite some original poetry or sing an old song from the top of his head.

Born in Macon, Miss., where he attended high school, Jim moved to Tuskegee, Ala., to attend Booker T. Washington trade school. But blacksmithing was not his desire at that time.

"I wanted to take up the automobile trade, but they told me the mechanics class was all filled

Over 21,500 students register

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—More than 21,500 students were registered to vote in their college towns this year, a coalition of student governments reported Wednesday.

Scott Nixon, head of the governing board of the Association of Illinois Student Governments Inc., termed the voter registration drive conducted by AISG "the largest single mobilization of student voters in Illinois history."

But he was unable to provide figures on the number of students who are already registered or the number of students who normally register in election years.

As a result of the AISG drive, Nixon gave this tally of new student voters: 5,000 at SIU Carbondale; 3,000 at University of Illinois-Urbana; 2,950 at Northern Illinois University; 1,432 at Western Illinois University; 1,344 at Illinois State University; 4,400 for Chicago-area colleges and 1,782 for 14 community colleges.

National Symphony commissions 11

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Symphony has awarded grants to 11 composers to create works for performances in honor of the Bicentennial, during the 1975-76 and 1976-77 seasons.

Composers are Stephen Burton, Kensington, Md., a song cycle for baritone and orchestra on poems by Sylvia Plath; Luigi Dallapiccola, Florence, Italy, an orchestral work; Robert Evert, Washington, a cantata for small orchestra and choir on texts by Mark Twain; Gene Gutche, White Bear Lake, Minn., an orchestral suite on the theme of Columbus; Ulysses Kay, Teaneck, N.J., a work for orchestra and narrator; Benjamin Lees, Great Neck, N.Y., a passacaglia for orchestra; Frank Martin, who is Swiss, living in the Netherlands, a symphony for wind instruments; Juan Orrego-Salas, a Chilean teaching in Bloomington, Ind., an oratorio on a theme of Genesis; Robert Russell Bennett, New York, a choral work set on themes by William Billings; Gunther Schuller, Boston, an orchestral work; and William Schuman, New York, his 10th symphony and a choral work.

up, so they told me that I could take up blacksmithing until there was an opening." He rubbed the top of his head, sparsely covered with short grey hair.

"Well, I had been there in blacksmithing for two or three months when they told me to move over, but I liked it in blacksmithing so I stayed. Been at it ever since."

He doesn't bother with automobiles at all. "I'll drive 'em. Let someone else repair 'em."

Jim came to Murphysboro in 1922 and married in 1936. Ida and Jim will celebrate an anniversary Oct. 26.

Welding and repairing lawn mowers and farm implements is about all the blacksmithing he does. Horseshoeing is something he hasn't done for a long time.

He suffered a serious accident in 1945 while shoeing a horse and was almost killed by the trampling animal. "I haven't shod a horse since," he says.

He corrected himself and recalled a time he was in Canada visiting the Niagara Falls one year after the accident.

"There was this big ole Canadian smith shoer in a horse out in the road," he began. "He was goin' about it in a different way, so I asked him if he'd like to see how we do it in the States. He moved over and I shod one foot for him."

After the accident he opened the grocery store.

"The doctor told me I couldn't lift anything heavy and no horse shoer and no stoopin' around. So I told Ida, I said, 'Think I'm goin' to put up a couple of walls and a roof and open up a grab-all,'" he said referring to the store.

"If we sell a loaf of bread or a quart of milk and eat the surplus, we'll get by."

Jim has no ambition to increase his livelihood. He is perfectly satisfied to toil in his dark and cluttered smithy and sell a loaf of bread every now and then. His expectations are modest and his one simple goal has lasted a lifetime.

"The only goal I guess I got is to do something to help somebody," he said in a lowered voice.

He is presently building a ballpark bleacher for the Jackson County Extension Service. He purchased the steel and sold it to the agency at cost and is donating the labor.

Jim, a member of the board which directed the construction of Bald Knob Cross in Anna, is still helping to raise money to fulfill the proposed plans for the site.

Jim wrote the poem "The Origin of the Cross" which appears in the Bald Knob souvenir booklet. Much of his poetry revolves around his deep belief in God.

Jim has memorized some of Longfellow's works, including "The Village Blacksmith." He recited, in a reverent tone, some of his favorite lines.

"His brow is wet with honest sweat,
he earns what'e'er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face

For he owes not any man."

He confesses to the influence of that stanza on his life.

"I've had people offer me more money to do their work before someone else's and I told them no, bad as I could use a dollar. I charge you a dollar and that's all I want, but you'll have to wait."

He sat with his hands on the knees of his overalls looking at the floor. "I guess I could get two prices for what I do today because there ain't no competition. But I don't believe in takin' advantage of people just 'cause I could."

He looked up from the concrete floor.

"I guess I could be a richer man if I hadn't thought too much about that stanza."

Plants for experiment, exhibit

By Calvin Dreger
Student Writer

A fight for survival is going on in a small, glass-roofed building at the edge of Thompson Woods.

In fact, several fights are—as Bob James, manager of the Botany Greenhouse points out.

The "fights" are actually experiments involving different types of plants which have been planted together to see which survive.

Tuck Russell, a student worker at the greenhouse, said the experiments involve the concentration of different amounts of plants in a given space.

"There are three treatments. One involves having pots containing only bush beans, another containing only corn and the third containing one-half corn and one-half beans. These pots can contain 10, 20, 30, and 40 plants each."

Russell explained that the experiment is being conducted to see which would grow more "total dry weight" and which one exhibits the best growth.

Another experiment deals with the effects of highway salts, oil, and carbon monoxide on plant life. Again corn and beans are being used in the experiment, Russell said.

The experiments are part of different botany courses, James, who has been greenhouse manager for 25 years, said.

The Botany Greenhouse is comprised of four greenhouses, each with its own climate.

Although some of the plants are used in experiments, many are not in a survival struggle.

James said many of the more than 200 plant families are on display for visitors.

"We have tourists from schools and senior citizens groups," James said.

James noted that the Botany Greenhouse is also used by student artists who come in to sketch plants.

A project will be undertaken shortly to label most of the thousands of plants in the complex to make it easier for visitors to identify them, he said.

James said that during his 25 years, a large number of plants have been donated to the greenhouse.

He pointed to a large banana stalk which reached to the roof and said, "this banana stalk was a gift from Herman Peters, who donated it to SIU after it grew too large for him."

James noted the vast height difference among the various plants and recited an anecdote. "The taller plants represent the heavens, the middle sized plants signify man, and the ground covering plants signify earth," he said.

With the many thousands of plants in the greenhouse, James is worried about adequate space.

"We're really overcrowded," he observed. He has proposed that more space can be utilized between the greenhouse east wings.

James also plans to utilize some space in the southeast corner of the greenhouse, presently a garage.

"We would like to set up space in the garage for an auditorium for different garden clubs and groups," he said.

He is also in the process of training a student to give tours in the greenhouse.

"Our tours take about 45 minutes to conduct," he said.

The greenhouse is a good place for students to relax or to just come and enjoy the "tropical gardens," he added.

Old stoves back in use

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—On the eve of the nation's bicentennial, Americans have turned to Ben Franklin for help in defending their pocketbooks against rising heating costs.

Manufacturers say the Franklin stove, first designed in 1740, is in such great demand they can't keep up with orders.

Adrian Bauer, 63, president of the Empire Stove Co., says he's turned out 8,000 units in six months and would have made at least 3,000 more if steel wasn't so hard to get.

One of the reasons for its popularity is that the stove burns wood instead of oil. Another is its decorative appeal.

"It's good business," said Bauer, one of two manufacturers in this Southern Illinois city. "It was born out of necessity because of the energy crisis. I think a lot of people are getting into it. We've made nothing but gas heating appliances before."

Michael Oesterle, 29, vice president and national sales manager of Rosech Enamel and Manufacturing, says his 58-year-old company began producing modern Franklins this year.

By January, he expects to have sold about 2,500 units.

"It just blossomed so quickly," said Oesterle. "It's people who are looking for heat and want something decorative."

He said builders of new apartment buildings and persons adding new rooms to their homes are among the biggest customers.

"The long range forecasts are that this isn't just an overnight thing," said Oesterle. "Most of us in the fireplace business think that this is going to last at least another four or five years."

The stove Franklin designed was made of cast iron for installation in colonial fireplaces where it trapped and radiated heat that otherwise went up the chimney. It improved heating efficiency by about 66 percent.

Steel and ceramics are used in most 1974 editions and several models can be installed in homes without fireplaces.

Retail prices began at about $225 and there is money enough to be made to encourage small manufacturers, like Belleville's, to compete with larger firms. Ironically Franklin never turned a dime on the device, declining even to patent it.

He wrote, "As we enjoy great Advantages from the Inventions of others we should be glad of an Opportunity to serve others by any Invention of ours."

All veterans' benefits decided by discharge

By Jerie Jayne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Veterans who left the service with anything other than an honorable discharge face a long wait and bureaucratic red tape to receive educational benefits, said Bob Feusahrens, a campus Veteran's Administration representative.

Five categories of discharges exist: honorable, general, general under honorable conditions, undesirable and dishonorable for bad conduct.

He said if a veteran receives anything other than a dishonorable discharge they have a good chance of receiving benefits.

"If you were thrown out of the service because of a drug bust this was considered a bad condition. They didn't receive benefits. Now with he changing times, they're considered a social problem and they're allowed benefits in some cases," Feusahrens said.

He said if a veteran has a discharge besides honorable his

Speed reading possible for all

By Scott Mones
Student Writer

Wouldn't it be nice if you could get your homework done and still have plenty of time for other activities? Here is a method which could help you do just that.

Have you ever rated yourself as a reader? Do you read 200 words per minute, which is poor; 260, which is average; or 400, which is excellent?

Test yourself to find out, you probably will fall into the 240 to 260 rpm range, which is far below human capacity. With a little time and effort, students could easily triple or quadruple their reading speed.

Suppose you now read at a rate of 50 wpm, and you read two hours a day on the average. Double your rate, and you will, in a sense, make yourself seven extra hours a week. You will be able to do 14 hours hours of reading in only seven hours. Triple or quadruple your rate and you may gain 21 hours.

How can this be done? By taking off the brakes. You wouldn't think of driving a car with both the foot and brakes on. Yet as a reader you probably have several brakes slowing you down.

One common brake is regressing—looking back at something you have already read. It's like taking a step backward every few yards as you walk—hardly the way to get somewhere. Regression can be caused by habit, lack of confidence or the actual missing of a word or phrase. It is easy to see how his would slow down one's reading speed.

A second brake is vocalizing—pronouncing words as you read them. This is a very common reading habit which can bring the rpm rate below 200. The way to find out if you do this while reading is to place your thumb and forefinger on the side of your voicebox. If as you read silently you feel slight movements, you know your problem.

The third and most hindering brake is word by word reading. Eye movement photographs show that in reading the eyes move jerkily along line of print. Research done at the University of Minnesota indicates many college students are word by case is sent to an adjudication officer, to decide if he deserves benefits.

"If they're denied benefits, they can appeal. This takes anywhere from one to eight months, but it depends on the situation," he said.

Benefits are based on the hours veterans are enrolled for and how many dependents they have, he said.

Veterans discharged between Feb. 1, 1955 and May 31, 1966 are eligible for benefits until May 31, 1976. He said those discharged after this date are allowed ten years to complete 36 months of education with benefits. The ten year period begins when a soldier is discharged from two years active duty, he said.

Feusahrens said the 36-month period may increase to 45 months if President Gerald Ford approves a bill passed by Congress. According to the Associated Press the extra nine months could only be used for undergraduate work.

Reserve troops aren't eligible for veteran benefits because they serve six months instead of the six months and one day required to receive benefits, he said.

If a veteran is a full time student and single he is paid $220 per month. If he is married, this goes up $41. With one child that amount increases by $37 and $18 is given for each additional dependent.

"If you have 134 dependents, they'll pay for them," he said.

Feusahrens said any veterans who haven't received checks should come to the Veterans Benefits Office at Washington Square, annex B.

Where are they?

There is no law which requires attendance of any member of Congress at any session.

Galloping Ghost of past spurs Illini hopes against Spartans

By Jerry Liska
Associated Press Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The University of Illinois' Fighting Illini are pretty excited about meeting Red Grange, but the famed Galloping Ghost is only a vague legend to them.

Grange, coming from his home in Indian Lake Estates, Fla., will be honored at Saturday's Red Grange Day game with Michigan State, commemorating the 50th anniversary of Memorial Stadium and his epic performance against Michigan at its dedication Oct. 18, 1924.

Old 77, who streaked to four touchdowns on long runs in the first 12 minutes of that memorable game, was to be introduced to the Illini players Friday afternoon before being feted at a $20-a-plate Red Grange Scholarship Fund banquet.

"It's hard to compete with a legend, but we'll be thrilled to meet him," said Jim Chubby Phillips, leading Illini rusher.

"I've studied up a little about Grange to see what went on at that time and I'm looking forward to meeting him."

"It's something special for us backs and the whole team," said fullback Larry Schulz.

"We all feel excited about meeting him because of the great tradition he left at Illinois. We don't know, though, what kind of affect it will have on our play against Michigan State."

Illini Coach Bob Blackman, pointing his club for an expected tough battle with Michigan State and a third straight Big Ten victory, said he didn't expect Grange to give his players a pep talk.

"He will meet the squad, but I don't think he'll give any big oration," said Blackman. "He's an extremely modest type man."

"To any man who is a football fan, he is a real legend. There's no question about it, he's the most famous college football player of all time. He certainly means a lot to me, but I don't know how much he means to the young people."

"Few people realize that after Grange scored 31 touchdowns in his fabulous Illinois career, he also scored 56 touchdowns in pro football."

Grange, 71, who will be introduced at halftime to an expected crowd of 60,000, said before leaving his Florida home, "I'm glad to be going back to Champaign and I'm not coming 1,000 miles to see Illinois lose a football game."

The years probably will roll back for Red to that sunny day 50 years ago when he singlehandedly demolished Michigan, 34-17, in perhaps college football's most classic performance.

A Michigan team which had allowed only four touchdowns in a previous 20-game undefeated streak kicked off to start the game and Grange zig-zagged 95 yards on a touchdown return.

After a Michigan fumble, Grange took a handoff and streaked 67 yards for his second touchdown.

Following an exchange of punts, Grange sped 56 yards on another scrimmage run. Then, with three minutes left in the first quarter, Grange darted 44 yards for his fourth touchdown.

Later in the game, he sped 13 yards for his fifth touchdown and produced a sixth TD on a 20-yard pass.

Chief of the Springfield, Ill. Bureau

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — There are two races for the state legislature of particular interest in Southern Illinois this year — one because of below-the-belt campaign tactics, and the other because a young man is showing that it's possible to win a legislative seat without organizational backing.

The first mentioned race is in the 58th legislative district, which covers the south half of St. Clair County, as well as Monroe, Washington, Randolph, Perry, Jackson and part of Williamson counties.

The dirty-fighter in this case is Gale Williams, a former state legislator apparently too familiar with Springfield politics.

The District race for the House is between Democrats Vincent Birchler of Chester and Bruce Richmond of Murphysboro, and Republicans Ralph Dunn of DuQuoin and William J. Murphysboro.

Birchler and Dunn (an incumbent) are considered shoo-ins, with Richmond and Williams fighting it out for the third spot. To their credit, Birchler, Dunn and Richmond have conducted good, clean campaigns — unlike Williams.

Williams HAS decided to take the low road this campaign, taking out newspaper ads attacking Richmond for one silly thing after another. The whole Williams campaign is negative, and he apparently can't find anything good to say about himself, so he prefers to attack Richmond — who has shown himself not only to be a good campaigner, but a good mayor of Murphysboro.

On the basis of his campaign, Williams deserves to be soundly defeated.

This reprint was placed, without comment, by the Bruce Richmond Campaign Committee, Bill Wolff, Chairman, Murphysboro, Illinois.

Former Olympian Johnson conducts competition

The sky will be full of vaulters Sunday when SIU and visiting pole vaulters compete at 1 p.m. in McAndrew Stadium. Jan Johnson, graduate assistant to track coach Lew Hartzog will be in charge of the competition, which is open to the public.

"They're aren't too many vaulters in good shape now," Johnson said, "but we asked some of the vaulters from around the mid-west if they would like to compete."

"This will be the first of three competitions I want to hold during the upcoming years," remarked Johnson. Johnson, a former Illinois High school pole vaulting champion, won the bronze medal in the 1972 Olympic games.

"I hope that this competition will promote vaulting and develop interaction between the vaulters," remarked Johnson.

Johnson is planning on sponsoring pole vault meets in the SIU Arena this winter. "We can jump on the upper-concourse of the Arena."

Competing from SIU will be Randy Ullon, who holds the SIU school record at 15-7. Gary Hunter a freshman from Indiana who jumped 16-8 in high school, Chris Thomas, a sophomore from Carbondale who set a freshman pole vault record jumping 15-5, and Mark Conrad.

Johnson, who will also jump said that several vaulters from other universities will attend including, Gary Eason from Austin Peay who placed last year in the indoor pole vaulting competition at the NCAA meet.

"I hope everybody shows up on Friday so we can practice together a few times before Sunday," said Johnson. "The main thing I want to accomplish is to create a good atmosphere for vaulting."

Parking plans set

Because of the congestion and other problems caused by construction at SIU, Virgil Trummer, acting director of the SIU Security Office, today announced plans for handling traffic and parking for persons who drive to McAndrew Stadium Saturday for the football game between the Salukis and Northern Illinois University.

Trummer, who urged people to walk if possible, said officers would be on hand to direct parking and the traffic flow. Plans are to fill Lots 2 and 10 in the Anthony Hall area, the area east of Lot 10 if weather permits, the construction area east of Fayer Building, Lot 13 (pay lot), the area around the Physical Plant buildings, and the small lot north of the tennis courts before allowing street parking.

Then parking will be allowed on both sides of Lincoln Drive to the entrance road to the tennis courts.

From there around the curve parking will be permitted only on one side, and on the west side only of the street between the Arena and Technology Building. There is parking also in the lots south of the Arena and Technology Building, and in the lot immediately west of the Neckers Building.

Trummer advised people that the Reservoir Road has been blocked off from U.S. Route 51 due to construction and people cannot enter the campus area from that point.

He asked cooperation of motorists parking on streets to refrain from blocking wheel-chair ramps, fire hydrants, and crosswalks.

"I am hopeful people will take advantage of the fine weather and beautiful scenery and walk through the campus to the stadium," he said.

The SIU Police have urged SIU football fans to walk to the game. If that is impossible, this map will pin-point all parking facilities.

Not All-American, but Hanlon's happy

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

She's not a star of the All-America caliber, but Patty Hanlon, SIU gymnast doesn't let that bother her. "I like to think of myself as being right up there with the rest of the girls," said the friendly, cheery Hanlon. "Of course, then it comes down to competition. Who does the best in competition, that's what counts."

The arena was bouncing with activity as Hanlon spoke of her early days in gymnastics. She gazed occasionally from her seat in the chair section, up at the concourse where her teammates were loosening up for practice.

"I took dancing lessons before going into gymnastics. But then I got to high school and it had all the gymnastic equipment. I found out about a gymnastic clinic in Connecticut, got an application for it and went. That's where I met my high school coach."

She went to high school at Ocean-side Senior High in Long Island, N.Y. She didn't compete on the high school team, however, but a private team called the Lighthouseettes.

The ever smiling Hanlon was asked how much she has progressed since coming to SIU.

"I've progressed a lot in the sense that I have learned to compete. When it comes to learning new tricks, I haven't progressed. I have a real strong fear of learning new tricks."

Hanlon's not an All-America or a member of an international team and she says that is one goal which has eluded her.

"I always wanted to be one of the best in the country and make an international team, but I was afraid to go for things," Hanlon said, sounding slightly disappointed. "Then I hurt my back, things changed. I couldn't overcome all these things."

"Herb (Vogel, coach) never makes me feel inferior though. I kind of do that myself."

Dressed in blue sweats with light brown hair hanging down the sides of her face, Hanlon told what gymnastics means to her.

"Gymnastics used to come first. I lived for the gym," the soft-spoken gymnast said. "Then freshman year I found new things, the social life, classes, things like that. Gymnastics is still my life, however."

Concerning herself and the team this year, Hanlon thinks they will be super again.

"Herb told me if I don't start cutting for things, I won't be competing much this year. It's up to me. The team will be real good. Everyone's back from last year plus there are a lot of good recruits. We'll win the nationals for sure. I just hope I can compete in them."

"This is the closest team I've ever been on," she added. "We all work together. There's never one girl trying to out do another. All the girls help each other."

Football rosters

Teams wishing to sign up for flag football can still do so. The latest application can be turned in by Friday at 5:00 p.m. Applications should be handed into the Intramural office in room 128 of the Arena. The IM office announced that 76 teams have already submitted their rosters.

Saluki match

The Saluki tennis squad will take on the Missouri Tigers in an exhibition match Friday on the SIU courts at 2:00 p.m.

The Salukis should be in for a good workout from the Tigers according to Coach Dick LeFevre.

"Missouri has improved tremendously under the guidance of new coach Bill Price," LeFevre said. "He has a reputation for producing national champions."

SIU will be led by brothers Felix and Mel Ampon of Manila, Philippines, who are ranked one and two respectively on the SIU squad. Felix won the Murray State Open in September and Mel was a finalist at Evansville two weeks ago.

Following the Ampons in the lineup are Scott Kidd of Alexandria, Va., at the number three spot, Gary Stains of Melbourne, Australia, number four and Greg Vindbladh and Kip Hutchison, both of San Diego, Calif., hold down the fifth and sixth positions.

The Salukis should face their toughest competition from Missouri's Frank Mitchell who beat the Salukis' number one man last year.

Missouri has also recruited another top notch player in Jack Gorsuch, who was ranked sixth among all juniors in the United States last year.

"The Missouri coach called me and asked for this match," LeFevre said. "And when a coach calls and offers to play you on your own courts, they have to be good."

Suspended Bulls gore team's hopes in opener

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bulls, who Friday night open their National Basketball Association season, indefinitely suspended stars Bob Love and Norm VanLier Thursday for their continued holdouts.

Love, a forward and leading Bull scorer last season, and play-making guard VanLier, have been trying to renegotiate existing contracts for higher salaries.

A Bull spokesman said undisclosed fines will be assessed against both players for failure to report.

On Tuesday, another Bull mainstay, Chet Walker, came to terms after holding out most of the training season.

Thus, the Bulls, regarded a solid title contender on paper, will look otherwise on the floor in the Chicago Stadium opener against the Atlanta Hawks.

Flying tryouts

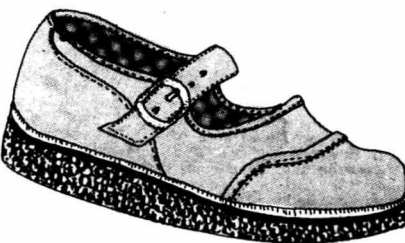

The SIU Flying Team is holding tryouts for six spots on the team that will go to the regional air meet in Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 2. The tryouts will be held Sunday at 7 a.m. at the SIU Airport.

The tryouts are open to SIU students who have the minimum of a private pilot's license. Participants will be judged on pilot technique and proficiency in power-off accuracy landings.

Injury plagued Huskies visit Salukis

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

SIU will face a severely injured Northern Illinois football team Saturday when it opens the 1974 home season at McAndrew Stadium. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

"This is the worst injury situation I have ever seen," Huskie head coach Jerry Ippoliti remarked Thursday. "Injury wise were right back where we started before the Marshall game."

Last week Northern Illinois defeated Marshall 20-17, snapping a three-game losing streak. "We were lucky to beat Marshall considering the injuries," Ippoliti said.

Huskie placekicker Jim Gilbert has provided the margin of victory in both of the Huskie's triumphs this season. Northern, 2-4, defeated Long Beach State earlier in the year, 16-14. McNeese State, Western Michigan, Indiana State and Ohio have defeated the Huskies thus far this season.

Thursday morning, Ippoliti was still trying to figure out a starting line-up for Saturday's game. "We have a lot of players who are question marks," explained the Huskie coach, now in his fourth season at Northern.

The tailback position has been a constant problem for Northern. "Our offensive plan changes about every week because we usually start a different backfield each game due to injury," Ippoliti said.

Vince Smith, a 192 pound sophomore from Chicago, returned to the tailback position last week against Marshall, however he saw limited action. Smith injured his right knee on the opening kickoff against Indiana State.

Calling the signals for the Huskies will be Jerry Golsteyn or Bob Gregolunas. Golsteyn, a junior from West Allis, Wis., has completed 35 passes this season for .466 average. Gregolunas opened the season as the Huskie's starting quarterback, but Golsteyn has improved during the last two games. Golsteyn started last week after Gregolunas sustained an ankle injury in practice.

Northern is averaging 15.5 points a game, while their defense has given up 22 points per game.

Ippoliti may be viewing Saturday's contest from the press box. Last week the Huskie coach ran his team from the press box after becoming ill shortly before kickoff time. Ippoliti was quite impressed with the view he got of the game.

"I call all of the plays on offense and I can do it just as well up in the booth," Ippoliti said. "I was really surprised at the view you get of the defense and the suggestions you can make."

Ippoliti hasn't decided if he'll continue coaching from the press box this weekend. "I won't know where I'll coach from until Saturday."

"Northern Illinois is a talented team which had some tough luck earlier in the season," SIU coach Doug Weaver remarked. "They are coming off a nice victory and have some momentum."

Weaver said Thursday that the Salukis have bounced back this week during practice, after losing to Temple 59-16. "We had a great week of practice," Weaver said. "This team still has a lot of fight left in it."

SIU will see several formations from the Huskie offensive unit. "We have had a hard time preparing for Northern because they use multiple formations out of the I offense."

Physically the Salukis are in good shape except for the usual bumps and bruises.

Fred McAlley will once again get the call at quarterback. During the last four games, McAlley has gained over 100 total offensive yards.

McAlley will be joined by Joe Laws and Lawrence Boyd in the backfield. Andre Herrera will suit up for Saturday's game but may not see action due to a pulled hamstring muscle. Weaver will suit up 53 players for the Northern game. "I suppose we could dress the entire team," Weaver said, "but most of them probably wouldn't get a chance to play and there would be a lack of discipline and congestion on the sidelines."

After playing their first five games on the road Weaver is glad that the home town fans will finally get a chance to see the 1974 Salukis in action. "I'm real excited about playing at home," remarked Weaver. "I hope we play well in front of our fans."

Sutton Death

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Where was Mike Wilbins when the Gashouse Gang needed him?

He wasn't around. He was born a generation late, or else he would have driven Gang leader Jay Hanna—or Jerome Herman, or whatever—Dean dizzy.

Wilbins, last year's Saluki first baseman, may become a legend in his own time—a Pepper Martin without talent. Hopefully, though, he can improve on his .216 average and 19 RBI to match his off-the-field antics, which are impressive.

Tom Sanchez, a former Saluki player now coaching with the San Francisco Giants' Class A Decatur team where Wilbins played this summer, could tell stories about the 6-foot-2 righthanded infielder-outfielder all day.

"His most frequent act was in restaurants," Sanchez recalled recently. "You'd just look up and he'd be doing headstands on the table. He might be there two or three minutes, and he wouldn't stop until either a waitress told him to get down or the people started cheering."

In Davenport, Iowa, Wilbins pulled a slow-motion streak. After leaving a local restaurant in the 80,000 population city, he stripped and walked back to the team hotel—via downtown.

In Dubuque, he came up with a hotel caper that left his teammates almost in tears.

"The team was all in the lobby in its uniforms waiting for the bus to a Saturday night game," Sanchez said. "A wedding reception was going on there at the same time and the bride and groom were walking in as the team was walking out."

"Wilbins just ran up to the bride and gave her a big kiss and said, 'Hey, it's been so long since I've seen you!'" Sanchez said. "Then he took a flower out of her bouquet, ate it, turned around and walked away."

"The team went crazy, and the bride and groom were just kind of dazed. The groom saw everybody in their uniforms so he just turned around and walked away with his bride."

The action doesn't end with boarding the buses, though. Wilbins' highway antics are among his best.

On one bus trip, he had the team playing a quiet game of Strip-When-I-Point-To-You in the back of the bus. Midway through the ride, the managers and coaches looked back to see what was going on and found the back half of the bus filled with nude men.

On another trip, the team was using two mini-buses instead of one biggie, because of financial difficulties. Always one to capitalize on another's mistake, Wilbins came through again.

"I was driving one van with the manager, and the trainer was driving the other one," Sanchez explained. "I was driving the lead one, when all of a sudden, about 4:30 or 5 a.m., between Galesburg and Peoria, his van passes mine going about 90 miles an hour."

"About five minutes up the road, we see the van stopped and there is Wilbins on Interstate 74 hitchhiking—wearing just a Halloween mask."

It was fitting after all his antics that Wilbins should make it in the Midwest newspapers in a caper not entirely his doing. It concerned a $5,000 bonus he received—or was to receive—from the San Francisco Giants for signing.

The Decatur club's general manager arranged with Wilbins to mail the five-grand check onto his parents while Wilbins was gone on a road trip. When our hero returned, he found his parents had heard nothing. When Wilbins found out, he questioned the general manager, who subsequently left town for four days. When he finally returned, the arrangements were made, and the player followed his employer to the bank.

Of course, they didn't get there.

"He came to a spotlight that said 'No right on red,' but sure enough, he went through it," Wilbins recalled. "I tried to follow him, but then he seemed to be getting away down an alley, so I just rammed my car into his."

"He started running away, and I chased him down the highway, but couldn't catch him. I flagged a cab and ended up paying a $9 fee, but still didn't get him. The police finally caught him."

The general manager went to court this week on charges involving grand larceny. He also owes his creditors $40,000, says Wilbins, and a morals charge.

Meanwhile, Wilbins is back at home in Arlington Heights with his money, soon to undergo elbow surgery to relocate an ulnar nerve.

Just hope they don't hit his funny bone.

Oakland wins World Series

OAKLAND (AP)—Joe Rudi's seventh-inning home run broke a tie and gave the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and their third straight World Series championship Thursday night.

The A's took the Series four games to one and in four of the five games the final score was 3-2.

Rudi, an under-rated star who is often lost in the glitter of more outspoken

Oakland teammates, smashed Mike Marshall's first pitch into the left field stands for the run that won the game and the title.

In the relief ace Rollie Fingers came on to nail down the victory and when the A's recorded the game's final out, a huge celebration started on the field with fans and players swarming over each other while fireworks exploded behind the outfield wall.
