House to consider proposed 1-cent sales tax cut

By Elia Reddy
Staff Writer

Although the Illinois House failed to override Gov. James Thompson's veto of bill to eliminate the 5-cent state sales tax on food and medicine, the end of part or all of the tax may be still in sight.

The Senate is now considering a one-cent sales tax cut proposed by Thompson, who called for a special session to consider the bill Wednesday. Supporters of the veto override also say there may be another override attempt later this week.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D- Murphysboro, and the one-cent Thompson bill "may be all we get," he asked that it would be vetoed if voted for it.

The override vote was 56-45 in favor of the override, 11 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to override the bill. Richmond, Rep. Vincent Busscher, D-Chicago; Rep. James Hoes, D-Chicago; and Sid Harris, D-Marion, voted for the override. Rep. Ralph Down, D-Ex Quon, and Robert Sachs, D-Midway City, Rosicler, voted against the override.

The vetoed bill would have gradually phased out the sales tax, eliminating it by 1983. It would have provided $100 a year in tax relief to a family buying $1000 a year in groceries and medicine. The state would lose an estimated $6.8 billion over the 19 years if the tax was removed.

Richmond said he still supported the bill to end the sales tax completely and would vote for it again. He said there are other override motions on file and there would probably be another override attempt.

Jim Williams, Thompson's press aide, said Thompson's bill will bring the same tax relief as the other bill would have for next year, one cent. He said the state could not afford anything else.

Williams said there was no way of knowing if there would be a surplus in the budget, especially during a recession. He said it would be "cruel to gamble" for a tax cut and later on, court and budget override to pay for the cut.

State Comptroller Roland Burris has maintained that the state can afford to remove the tax on food and medicine, which he said would benefit lower- and middle-income families. He has said that because of inflation the state will have a $1.6 billion surplus in five years and has a $6 billion surplus in five years.

The Taxpayer's Federation of Illinois says a family earning $7500 a year spends more than 3 percent of its income on the sales tax while a family earning $40,000 a year spends less than 1 percent of its income on the tax.

Interim funding for resource center OK'd

By Mary Ans McNally
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council has voted to continue funding for the Appropriate Technology Resource Center on the condition that it can continue providing technical assistance at little or no resource material on energy and other issues to citizens for at least three months longer.

A resource library contains books, magazines, pamphlets and information on solar, wind and other energy, greenhouses, food drying processes, environmental planning and other topics. The library is run by the Shawnee Solar Project, 211 W. Main St., and has operated since May 2.

The interim funding will pay the Appropriate Technology Resource Center's expenses for three months. Expenses include: resource center developer's salary, $2,700; books, $368.60; supplies, $150; and other costs: library and program orientation, $250; utilities and library materials, $250.

The center, one of few in its kind in the county, according to Chris Robertson, director of the Shawnee Solar Project, has been funded through a $25,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Natural Resources.

"I am confident that the success of our program will keep the city in a competitive position in the next year," Robertson said.

The resource center has about 350 books, 60 documents and 75 newsletters and periodicals.

Motion delayed to intervene in board suit

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

A decision on the SIU-Royaler Board of Education's motion to intervene in the O'Fallon Park District诉 SIU Board of Education case will be delayed until Oct. 31.

In Jackson County Circuit Court Complex Monday, Judge James Williams gave FCBO attorney Wayne Schwarmman until Oct. 31 to respond to a brief filed by the board's attorney John Caves. Schwarmman was not present at the brief and said he needed time to prepare a response.

"If allowed to win the suit, the FCBO will ask the board's February decision to continue SIU's system of governance be vacated," Feirich said.

"The FCBO has not shown that they were inadequately represented by the Madison County State's Attorney's office," which originally filed the suit in June, Feirich said.

Third, intervention was not allowed by a party seeking to be removed from the board by the party which filed the suit, he said.

"The FCBO's attempt to have the board's governing voice for the voice of all other board members, a whole other body," he said.

"Who could have greater influence than the members of this action than the people who work for the University which allegedly made an unlawful decision?" Schwartzman asked.

Schwartzman also said the FCBO was not seeking something different from the state's attorney, but "by broadening the scope of the same thing."

In a brief rebuttal, Feirich said...
Fernandez says he's right for White House

By Vince Hafford

Fernandez believes he is the right man for the White House in 1980. "I know I can win," Fernandez said.

His optimism lies in the first primary election, Feb. 17. The primary is in Puerto Rico, and is held nine days prior to the one in New Hampshire.

"Puerto Rican speak 100 percent Spanish, and I'm the only Republican candidate who speaks Spanish. I should win by a landslide," he said.

He says the Puerto Rican win will give him "about $10 million worth of publicity." In a fiery speech to a small gathering in the John A. Logan College Tuesday in Carbondale, Fernandez (who has never before sought public office) said he doesn't care how big an oil company profits are.

"When I get into the White House, I'm going to call all the presidents of the big oil companies to a meeting in the oval office. At that time I'm going to say: 'Gentlemen, all governmental controls will be lifted from your oil companies as soon as you can come up with a plan to discard your ownership of coal fields,'" said Fernandez.

Fernandez, who was born in a converted bus car in Kansas City, Kan., said oil companies currently own 70 percent of the coal mines in the United States. He says with all companies owning coal companies, the competition is dammed.

"I will deregulate every industry, including oil, to toughen the competitive market," he said.

A good president should be strong, tough, and proud, Fernandez said. While admitting that President Jimmy Carter would win.

CFUT president re-elected for 9th term

By Shelley Davis

Herbert Donow, associate professor of English, was re-elected for his ninth term as president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers.

Donow, who has led the CFUT in its fight for collective bargaining rights for faculty members for the last eight years, said this may be his last year.

"This may be the last time that you are going to stick with me," Donow said to the 14 persons who attended the meeting Tuesday. The group has 100 members.

"For years, you have gotten by with your faculty cutting the rug and doing a good job. You may have to start looking for a successor," he said.

Elected as vice president was David Conrad, associate professor of history; corresponding secretary, Richard Lanigan, associate professor of speech communication; treasurer, Paul Sankston, assistant visiting professor of mathematics; and recording secretary, David Irwin, associate professor of geography.

Donow said that strengthening the union is an important goal this year, even if collective bargaining is not close at hand.

"The union is making some kind of impact," he said. "We may have gotten an extra one percent in our budget as a result of our presence (in Springfield)." If we are to grow as a union even if collective bargaining isn't there, it will happen: "The union is doing a good job." Donow said he felt the delay in the Illinois legislature to pass House Bill 800—which would guarantee the rights of the faculty to bargain collectively—has caused people to become discouraged with CFUT.

"It has a kind of depressive effect on people because a lot of people feel nothing is going to happen," he said. "We are going to have a difficult time but it is critical to maintain the union growing again:"

By Bill Crews

One woman was killed and four persons, including an SIU-C student, suffered major injuries Wednesday afternoon in a head-on collision in the eastbound lane of Route 13 near the Crab Orchard Lake Road in southern Illinois.

Police arrest man suspected as peeping tom

By Bill Crews

University police arrested an SIU-C student early Wednesday morning and charged him with an alleged "peeping tom" incident at Southern Hills.

Police said Steven Hasty, a junior in engineering and technology, was arrested at Southern Hills after officers matched him with a similar description given by several persons who made "peeping tom" complaints from the complex.

Hasty, 24, was released on $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in Carbondale Circuit Court Oct. 25. He has been charged with disorderly conduct under the "peeping tom" clause of the Carbondale city ordinance.

University police said they saw Hasty, who had mud on his hands and knees, near the complex at 12:33 a.m. "No officers followed Hasty to a lime-green Renault car, which was parked near the complex. Police said the car had been under surveillance in connection with some previously reported "peeping tom" incidents at Southern Hills.

When asked about Hasty, the office said: "He is innocent and has not been accused of any crime but he was questioned and released.

The officer was then handcuffed and transported to the Security Office.

Fuel costs to rise, official says

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite milder-than-normal weather and Wednesday's lower energy prices, the president of a leading oil refinery said fuel costs will continue to climb and heating oil and gas supplies will demand this winter and spring.

While organizers of the "Stop Big Oil" protest rally at a number of cities throughout the nation said Oil Co. officials said home heating oil and gasoline supplies will be adequate as long as the price of foreign imports remains constant.

Alaska President Larry Nutter, who heads the demonstration participants, said they are unlikely to continue as long as the cost increases. As far as the oil companies are concerned, they're trying to keep up with the demand.

"As long as the companies have a profit margin, they'll continue to exert their influence," he told reporters.

Fuller said the only way prices can be capped is on the oil industry's "market dominance." He added government can continue to rise because of inflation, and because crude oil costs keep going up.

Man convicted of six murders

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Roger Dale Stanford was convicted Wednesday of executing six Oklahoma City residents in 1977 and 1979. He was convicted of killing Stanley M. Armstrong at 10 p.m. on Dec. 12, 1975. The jury found him guilty on all counts.

"I was not present during the killing," the defendant said in an interview with the Daily Egyptian, a university newspaper. "I did not know the victim." He asked to be represented by a lawyer.

In a statement to the Daily Egyptian, the defendant's lawyer said, "For the first time, we have a man who will admit to committing the crimes."

"The defendant has admitted to our investigation that he was present during the murder," the lawyer said.

The suspect was convicted of multiple crimes, including murder, rape, and armed robbery. He was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

The trial began on May 1, 1979, and lasted for two weeks. The defendant was found guilty of all charges.

The defendant was initially sentenced to death, but was later resentenced to life in prison.

Final Statement

"I regret the actions I took," the defendant said in a statement released by his lawyer. "I did not mean to hurt anyone."

Mr. Stanford's lawyer added, "We believe Mr. Stanford is remorseful for what he has done and is sincerely regretful for the pain and suffering he caused."

The defendant is scheduled to be paroled in 2025.

Symbolic guidelines will not end secrecy

The SIU Board of Trustees, in the words of Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, took a "forward-looking step" last Thursday in "rewriting" the board's guidelines for executive sessions before each public meeting, thus removing an aspect of the board's operation that had been criticized by student and public groups. The guidelines would allow the board to hold executive sessions periodically and at the discretion of the board. The new rules are expected to be implemented in the next few months. The guidelines were drawn up after a series of discussions by the board members and university administrators.

Housing to be thanked for all the benefits

Dear Mr. Rollins,

I am one of the many students who have been living in the new housing complex on campus. I would like to express my gratitude for all the benefits that come with living in this community. The housing complex is well-maintained and provides a safe and comfortable living environment. The staff is always available to help with any concerns or issues. The location of the housing complex is convenient for students, as it is close to the university and other amenities.

Some senators have commented that Carter's response to the Carter Commission's report on medical and psychological issues is not strong enough. They feel that the Carter Commission's report was a missed opportunity to address the serious problems facing the nation. If the president is not going to take action, then Congress must take the lead.

The pacificists never passed beyond the front door, where they found five security checkpoints before getting to the "open" part of the facility. The viewpoints of the protesters were not allowed in the display floor. The activists were forced to pay for the immense cost of moving to a remote location where they had no influence over the weapons on display. This was a clear violation of the protesters' First Amendment rights. We should support these efforts to keep the government accountable.

To many people Special Olympics are a year-round, no-longer a weekend, sports and field events held each spring for over 1,000 mentally handicapped individuals in the 18 southernmost counties of Illinois.

To the participants, however, Special Olympics is a year-round training program for mentally handicapped individuals and a lifestyle they have become accustomed to.

The Southern Illinois Special Olympics activities planned for the fall include Tag Day, a Special Olympics fund raiser, scheduled for Oct. 26 in Carbondale and Carbondale Special Olympics Relay for Life Oct. 27 at Evergreen Park in Carbondale, which will feature a baseball clinic, basketball, wheelchair events and a volleyball game.

Special Olympics are competitive, but they are not intended to produce a world-class athlete.

It is a slogan that has become very popular for Special Olympics: "These are not events, these are opportunities."

The emphasis is on involvement. The course is self-paced. The athlete can compete at any level he or she chooses or he or she can simply participate.

The Olympics is a way of life for some athletes.

In Carbondale, which has won the most Special Olympics events, there are 231 athletes who participate in the Olympics.

This year Special Olympics Coast to Coast is going to try to increase the number of county coordinators from three to 18 in the Southern Illinois district, which will be achieved by implementing Smith's plan.

"These coordinators will be involved in dealing with local media and gaining exposure for Special Olympics at the local level," Smith said.

"In addition, we will emphasize the need for on-going fund raising to enable Southern Illinois Special Olympics to continue to provide sports training and athletic competition for mentally handicapped children and adults in the area," Smith said.

Like most non-profit agencies, volunteers play an important role in Special Olympics, McDougal said.

"According to Smith, they will also try to increase exposure and participation by increasing the services offered by Southern Illinois Special Olympics to include individual on-campus and off-campus competition.

Alternatives to usual mortgages are available for real estate buyers

By University News Service

Prospective home buyers, have heart. Infla.tion money may be almost nonexistent and interest rates may be out of sight, but there are still some ways to purchase that house, according to a SIU-C real estate expert.

"There definitely is going to be a lack of available mortgage money for traditional lending institutions like banks and savings and loans," said George R. Karvel, an instructor in the College of Business and Administration and author of the nation's leading real estate text "Real Estate Principles and Practices.

"And the money that is available will go only to buyers with excellent credit ratings who can produce a substantial down payment of 30 percent or more.

But potential buyers should keep in mind that prevailing conditions in the money market also will have the net effect of reducing the seller's ability to sell. Karvel said.

"The seller is affected as adversely as the buyer under the current high rates of inflation. Someone who must move from one location to another will, of course, face more pressure than others," Karvel said.

"In some cases it might be beneficial for buyer and seller to explore such alternatives as land sales contracts or the seller providing second mortgage money to help in purchase of property," he said. "Buyers should discuss the possibilities of financing through the seller before giving up that dream of home ownership."

Despite the facts of everything from continued inflation to a major recession, real estate continues to be an excellent investment, and that is not likely to change, according to Karvel.

Many people are concerned about the possibilities of high levels of unemployment, accelerating inflation or a severe recession," Karvel said. "But I don't expect such eventualities to cause a decline in the value of housing."

He said increases in the federal discount rate and other actions being undertaken or considered by government economists are similar to those taken during the recession of 1974-75.

"Those actions reduced the rate of inflation by from 10 to 8 percent annually, but they did not produce a decline in the value of housing," said Karvel. "Inflationary rates in the value of housing continue to be anywhere from 15 to 20 percent, and I expect the price of housing to continue to inflate—meaning it is still going to be an excellent investment."

Olympics planned

"The SIU-C Department of Recreation has been a tremendous sponsor of Southern Illinois Special Olympics, but we are taking that support to a new level," Karvel said. "It's a good feeling working for Special Olympics, especially watching the enthusiasm and determination of all participants."

Walk-in sessions offer legal aid

By Amy Young
Student Editor
Students who have landlord problems or have questions concerning first court appearances can still attend walk-in sessions held from 5 to 7 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays in the Student's Legal Assistance Office.

D. J. Fontilla, 33, a second-year law student at St. John's and a lawyer in the Legal Assistance Office, said the Monday evening walk-in sessions on landlord-tenant problems. The sessions, which are run on a first-come, first-served basis, are "aimed at cutting down the workload" in the office.

The Monday and Wednesday sessions are open to anyone who wants to learn, Fontilla said, and his program is "still in a state of flux."

"What I want to be able to do is weed out those students who do not have real legal claims," he said. "I would say that from 30 to 50 percent of the students who come into the office with landlord-tenant problems don't come back.

Fontilla said that when Legal Assistance moves into its new office space in the next few weeks, he will like to organize a seminar on basic tenant rights and responsibilities.

"Hopefully, by the end of the lecture, only those who have real legal claims will remain for consultation," he said.

"However, we have to wait before we can run, and the walk-in sessions are a step in the right direction," Fontilla said.

The Wednesday evening walk-ins, for students who are about to face their first court appearance, are handled by law clerk Clifton Jackson, 29, a third-year law student. Jackson says he explains court procedure to the students and gives them "basic information on what is likely to happen.

He said most of his clients are charged with minor criminal offenses and local ordinances charges such as reckless driving, driving while intoxicated and obstruction of a police officer.

"The major problem I have faced with first court appearances is the time limitation in pleads "not guilty," he said. "Students often call for an appointment at the last minute, and because appointments are often booked solid over a week in advance, I often have no time to fully research the clients' cases."

Jackson said that when these cases, he has usually advised the clients in his initial consultation to plead "not guilty," so he could research the problems and "be better prepared to advise the clients fairly before their next court appearance."

Jackson said that "having evenings designated for those with first court appearances will help in the efficiency of running the office, and can be advantageous for the clients as well.

Calibre play makes novel adaptation

By Janel Olson

The Calibre Stage performance of "Beyond the Bedroom Wall: A Family Album" represents an attempt to bring a novel to life. The attempt proved successful during the dress rehearsal Tuesday night, for the play was touching, compassionate and enjoyable.

Director Eric Peterson, a doctoral candidate in speech communication, adapted the play from chapters of the novel written by Larry Woiwode. The play will be presented at 8 p.m. Oct. 18, 19 and 20.

Each scene, which is dramatically narrated by different members of the cast, enables the audience to experience the novel without having to read it.

The action begins on Jan. 31, 1923 in a small, North Dakota farmhouse. Martin Neumiller, played by Fred Corey, a graduate student in speech communication, proposes to Alpha, played by Theresa Pucek, a senior in speech communication.

The play then depicts scenes, taken from their family album, of their lives together.

"The Fragile, Metallic Grip" is a sentimental scene about the Neumiller's son, Charles, played by Tim Mooney, a junior in theater, who is dying of pneumonia.

The anguish, frustration, confusion and distrust of God is excellently conveyed by both Corey and Pucek. While the wife's grief is dynamic, her husband's is silent, resulting in a lack of communication between them.

The most powerful scene in the performance is "Blue China-Snowfall Along the Illinois." A real tear-jerker, this scene is intensely emotional. It conveys the tragic event of death and the grief associated with it.
Student organization initiates local draft-Kennedy movement

By Conrad Staats
Staff Writer

The national draft Kennedy movement has spawned a student organization at ISU-C called Southern Illinois Citizens for Kennedy.

The organization’s President, Steve Katsinas, a graduate student in History, said the organization intends to be part of the movement formed by five congressmen last June to create “an irresistible urge to draft Sen. Edward Kennedy” for the 1980 Democratic National Convention from the 24th Congressional District.

Katsinas said, “1980 is a critical election year.”

“We need the strongest Democratic man at the top of the ticket to offset a Republican money advantage created by the 1974 Watergate Elections Reform Bill.”

The bill originally called for federalizing of state and local elections, but a watered-down version passed Congress and now only the presidential campaign is funded, and that with $20 million, he said.

Kennedy’s legislative record and his experience in Congress are reasons why Katsinas feels that Kennedy is the strongest Democratic presidential candidate.

“Senator Kennedy stands against powerful, entrenched, self-serving interests,” Katsinas said. “He stands for basic good government which serves the people’s interest.”

As an example of good government, Katsinas cited Kennedy’s support of a national health insurance plan. This support “shows that he (Kennedy) is supportive of a minimum national health insurance plan that will guarantee American’s adequate health care not based on income but rather as a fundamental right,” he said.

Katsinas also cited Kennedy’s support of a moratorium on the licensing of nuclear power following the Three Mile Island incident and his authoring of a federal student loan bill which would make more loan money available to students as a reward for work to support his nomination.

“Kennedy has the ability to compromise to get things done and to move the country forward,” Katsinas said.

“He’s not loyal to any special interest group,” he said.

Anthropology students to take 'crack' at peering into future

By Child HempateR
Student Writer

Forecasting the future has preoccupied man for thousands of years. Palm reading, astrology, and even Jeanne Dixon have told us of things to come.

But Paul Diener, assistant professor of anthropology, will use the process of scapulimancy to peer into the future.

Scapulimancy, as practiced by the Naskapi Indians of northeastern North America, involves breaking the shoulder blade of an animal, usually a deer, and interpreting the resulting cracks and spots. Diener said.

Scapulimancy is known to have been practiced as early as 1253 in Mongolia, though Diener suspects it may be thousands of years older.

Diener, in conjunction with the Anthropology Club, graduate students and members of his human experience class, will test the widely accepted random-crack theory proposed by anthropologist O.K. Moore in 1957.

Moore's theory, which has never been tested, assumes that the burnt bones crack in a random pattern, permitting many useful applications. One advantage of randomness is choosing hunting grounds in a way which alleviates the overuse of a single location and its resulting reduction of yield, Diener said.

Diener's hypothesis is that the bones do not crack in random patterns and he will determine whether they do, as well as use another method to divine answers to questions of the future.

He plans to test these hypotheses at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 15 at the bonfire area behind the Allen-Wood Hall. The handles will be tied to 200 deer scapulae, and the bones will be placed over a softwood fire until they crack. Diener said. The bones will then be broken at the base of the tongue in cheek — will (foretell) the future before measuring the cracks and spots on a diagram — a grid-like measuring instrument that indicates the degree of randomness of the cracks.

"School is too often dull; we can have some fun at the same time that we test Moore's theory," Diener said.

He joined the SIU-C faculty this semester after completing his Ph.D. in anthropology at Stanford University.

"By investigating strange behaviors in other cultures, we gain insight into the reasons for our own behavior, which is also sometimes strange."

Programs to continue at Giant City

Giant City State Park will continue its series of interpretive programs as it offers a variety of sessions this weekend, including a special day on appropriate technology. At 10 a.m. Saturday, a meeting will be held for persons interested in helping maintain the river to river hiking trail. At 3 p.m., park staff members will describe how to use more appropriate technology such as solar devices can increase energy efficiency at home. A discussion of wood heating for beginners will be held at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Paul Yembert, professor of forestry, will join the park staff at 7 p.m. at the campfire program to discuss how to evaluate and determine the best energy system for one's home and lifestyle. "All of the above programs will meet at the Amphitheater by the Interpretive Center.

Sunday's programs begin at 1 p.m. at the Interpretive Center as the Southern Illinois Woodcarvers Association carve a totem pole until 4 p.m. A geology hike will leave from the Giant City Nature Trail head at 2 p.m. and return at about 4 p.m.

All programs are free and open to the public.

Fernandez bases presidential hopes on Puerto Rico

Fernandez has various degrees of each of the traits, Fernández still called Carter "the most courageous man I've ever met". Fernández said he would try and fail, but the communist movement by industrializing the island, which would likely bring the CIA to the Western Hemisphere.

"Soviet President," he says, "I've talked with them about the Western Hemisphere." Fernández added that the communist movement by industrializing the island would likely bring the CIA to the Western Hemisphere.

Fernández said he would try to keep the United States out of the Western Hemisphere.

Fernández was born in Paraguay, said he could reduce the 14 percent inflation rate and the 14 percent lending rate by balancing the budget so that the budget could be balanced by eliminating the bureaucratic waste, which has been eliminated by deregulating industries and taking a tough stand on energy problems.

"My top priority will be inflation, I'm an economist," said Fernandez. "I've made my living at solving financial problems and I know how to tackle the inflation problem," Fernandez said.

Fernández said he would try to become the first American president to be impeached and the first American Roman Catholic president.

Donor also said a new push for campaign financing is necessary. But because of the current economic climate in Chicago and Springfield, he said he isn't sure whether Bill 800 will be pushed next year.

"The sponsor may not even call it Bill 800," Fernandez said. "It is on the docket for spring 1980 but we may see a school out for another year."

Donor said the union must develop a "broad coalition" to support collective bargaining issue with the Board of Trustees and Chancellor.

"Should we approach them with a proposal at this time? he said. "It's keep the tape rolling or agree to the chancellor, that depends on the situation and something of what the board will do, something. The question is whether Bill 800 is needed right now or not."

Dowen said he and the board were not trying to deny the FOCA access to the documents.

"Simply say they ought to be in a lawsuit of their own," Dowen said. "The FOCA doesn't need to go through anything they get good and ready."

Former Illinois Attorney General Michael Thompson said his office was taking no position on the FOCA suit.

The state's attorney's suit asks that the 'court be required to seal the minutes of the FOCA meetings or to transmit the records to the state's attorney's files.'
Open access system for books to continue at Morris Library

By Michael P. Jones Student Writer

The open access of library materials at Morris Library will continue, though perhaps in less access, reported missing are filed as in that, books and other materials are missing from the shelves.

"We believe more strongly in access than in less access," said Kenneth Peterson, the dean of library affairs.

Peterson referred to the growing number of libraries that have been changed to a limited access system. This system operates with the library user in a "library" room, of the material he wants to a "library." The librarian then gets that material from a more secure, possibly locked room.

Peterson said the library has tried to do everything it can to provide ample copying machines in working order to deter theft or mutilation of library materials. "We worked hard to get the contract for the copying machines," he said to maintain "and we were able to keep the price at 5 cents per copy."

Woman killed, four hurt in automobile accident

according to a deputy.

Police said a Chevrolet Monte Carlo, driven by Virginia Vanhook and the two uninsured passengers, was traveling on Route 13 when the car swerved to the left, drove through the guardrail and hit two cars on the opposite side of the road. Police have not yet determined the speed at which the car was traveling.

Both cars came to a stop in the ditch next to the shoulder of the eastbound lane, police said. Deputies said both cars caught fire after the collision. The accident occurred at about 12:35 p.m.

Deputies would not reveal any other details of the accident.

Capt. Carl Kirk of University police said officers from University and Carbondale police and Williamson County Sheriff's deputies all assisted in the rescue efforts.

Bob Beck, an employee of Epps Dairy, informed police of the accident. He said police arrived at the scene rapidly.

"The police got here real quick after I called them," Beck said. "It was just amazing how fast. Their response was unusually good.

Beck said the accident occurred about 500 yards east of the Epps Dairy junction on Route 13. Beck added that the Monte Carlo had "pretty bad damage" at the time it reached the accident scene.

OFFICE FOR FAMILIES

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - President Carter, declaring that the family unit is in trouble, told a Roman Catholic audience that he is establishing an "Office for Families" in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter also formally announced that the United States is giving $7 million "to help feed tens of thousands of starving humans beings in Cambodia."

Along with the 21 copying machines in the library, which serve as indirect security, there is also an IBM security system at both library exits. Yet books and other materials continue to disappear.

"Any security system won't prevent all theft or mutilation of library material," said Linda Davis, manager of circulation.

"Our security system has to deter the potential thief, but maybe not the hard-core thief," she said.

"If the alarm goes off we will hear them if they have something in their hand," she said.

"We can't tell who took it," she said, "so we can't tell who put it back." The security system was purchased and installed in the library in 1974 at a cost of about $25,000. No one is certain if the system has reduced the theft and mutilation of library materials.

Library materials which are reported missing are filed as missing and if not found within a year, are possibly replaced.

"People often steal books in hiding places in the library," said Judith Harwood, undergraduate librarian, "but this isn't necessarily deliberate."

From the $1.2 million library budget for 1978-79, only $6,650 was spent to replace missing books. This amount includes money which is collected from those who lose their books.

"With any security system you're simply keeping the honest people honest," Harwood said. "Those that really want something will get it one way or the other."

With the continual operation of the library it isn't feasible for an inventory to be taken, according to Darrell Jenkins, the administrative assistant to the dean.

Golfers face tough course

By David Garack
Sports Editor

Leeds is deceiving. Take the site of the women’s regional golf tournament.

The rolling hills and woods of the Purdue South course make a lovely portrait beauty but betray reality, even for a Saluki club that played around two weeks ago.

The greens are elevated, and slope in every possible direction. Woods shelter the fairways. Make a mistake, and the ball sails out of bounds.

"It’s a super course, but it’s tough and long," Coach Mary Beth McGarr said. "There are a couple of holes that you need to hit the greens on. If not, you’re in trouble."

Trouble is what the Salukis would all like to avoid in the two-day, 36-hole tournament, where the competition should be tougher than the course. McGarr believes Ohio State, which won the Indiana Invitational by 30 shots last week, will have no trouble winning the regional crown. The first at coach said 20th Rockeyey had defended regional champions.

"They’re excited," McGarr said. "They believe they’re capable of a strong finish."

McGarr believes the Salukis’ performance at the Purdue Invitational may help build confidence. SIU shot a team record 365 on the Purdue North course, which has much a easier layout than the one on which the regional tournament will be played. The Salukis shot 369 on the South course, however, one of the lowest team scores this season.

"I’m waiting for them to click at the right time," McGarr said, hoping to repeat the performance. "We need a couple of scores in the low 70s.

SIU finished fifth last year’s meet, third shots behind Ohio State, with a team total of 897 strokes.

“Last year, the score was good for fifth,” McGarr said. "We want to be in the top five this year."

McGarr said the Salukis need to develop a support cast behind Sandy Lemons, who will seek to improve her fourth-place finish of a year ago. She hopes Judy Storrmann, who won the individual title at Purdue, can reproduce her effort. Storrman shot a 3-over par 74, one of the highest scores of any player, in the South course.

Also entered are Sue Fazio, Lodi Sackman, Kim Birch and Penny Porter.

Football kicks-off new IM season

By Gregg Cress
Student Writer

With the changing of the season and cooler weather fast approaching, many students of all ages are turning their attention to flag football and volleyball.

The flag football and volleyball seasons consist of six games each, with the teams winning three of those six contests will be able to compete in championship tournaments.

Tournaments are always a risk of injury in any football game, the coordinators of intramural sports are taking extra precautions to protect the teams in their games, at least three student officials will be present and the game is to be played the way it is declared the winner.

In women’s action, the Salukis Equalizers beat the Fighters, 10-12, 12-5 and 12-8. Sigma Tau Gamma defeated Delta Chi Stingers, 15-10, 15-8. In Division B, GCT beat the Hopeless, 15-5, 15-8.

Three of the players competing in the tournaments are scheduled to compete in the championship tournament.

Football players started last Saturday, with games being played throughout the week. In games played last week, the Hayward Sons beat the Suburbs, 20-6. The All-Star Hall Stars edged Gargantuan, 20-14. Dark Horse beat the Street Gang.

Netter Kohler teaches in Kenya

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Mauri Kohler what she did this summer and you'll get an idea that might cause you to wonder if she needed your hearing checked.

Kohler is from Monsey, N.Y., and a member of the Saluki Summer Program (ASAP), an organization based in New York.

This year works for them, she was a secretary for about a year. "That's how I learned," she said. "I decided last summer would be a good summer for me to do something like that, because next summer I'll be graduating and I'll have to look for a job."

"I called my mom and asked her if it would be possible for me to go to East Africa for the summer," Kohler continued. "They sent me forms to fill out, told me what to do, and took care of the rest."

Kohler said most of her time in Kenya was spent working with Mauri Maganda-Visual Company, an organization sanctioned with AIM. Most of her work was done with tape-recording teams, as teaching was her main way.

"A Canadian girl and I were teaching women's teams smaller cities, and we taught the people there how to make cassette recording teams. Most of the work was done with tape-recording teams, as teaching was her main way."

Kohler said that after an introductory week in Nairobi, Kenya's largest city, she was taught how to make the cassette recording teams.

"We went through a training course where they taught us how to teach it, how to record it, and how not to make a lot of mistakes in the process."

Coaches pick ISU in Intercollegiates

By Scott Stahmer
Bloomington (June 7)

Cross country coaches Gary Wienen of Illinois, John Couglin of Illinois State and Jeff Hartog of SIU usually agree to disagree. But there is one thing they are in complete accord with going into Saturday's Illinois Intercollegiates: ISU is the meet favorite.

"If everybody will be chasing ISU," Wienen said.

Agreeing with Hartog, "The overwhelming favorite has to be Illinois State," Couglin said.

Couglin agrees with Wienen and Hartog, but reservations about hastily predetermining a Redbird first-place finish.

"I would have to say we're the favorite, but I'm a little reluctant to say it," he chuckled.

"We feel we're definitely the team best going into the meet." Wienen has begun to establish itself as a national power, as the Redbirds recently finished second at the Notre Dame Invitational, besides defeating Big Ten contender and host of other Big Ten and Mid-American Conference teams. ISU also finished ahead of Eastern Illinois. The Redbirds also own a 31-3 win over SIU.

"When I came here three years ago, the cross country program was terrible," Wienen said.

"Things have gotten progressively better every year. This is the first year we've been favorite going into a meet like this.

"The Redbirds have all seven of their top runners returning from last year's team, which finished fourth in the Intercollegiates. Couglin said the top four ISU runners have been performing well. We've been able to establish a team, and we're going to be a team," he said.

"It was nice to win," Wienen said.

"Illinois, the defending Intercollegiates champ, has had to fight it experience. Wienen has three firsts, three seconds, and one third place back from last year's meet.

"We think we can improve," he said.

"If we haven't, we're in trouble," he said. "If we expect everybody else in Illinois to have improved, then we've really got our hands full this year."

Wienen said the Fighting Illini have improved since the Salukis defeated them, 25-33, in both season opening meets.

"I think we can improve," he said.

"If someone's going to beat us, it will be SIU," he said.

"That is, if you're going to beat us, the game is going to be a heck of a ballgame, and I'll be happy with that. We feel like we're the favorite, but I feel like we're the underdog at who we have to beat to win."

"We're the team the Redbirds are the most worried about, according to our coaches," Wienen said.

"If someone's going to beat us, we think it will be SIU," he said.

"I think we're the best team, but there's no question SIU is a very, very fine team."

"If someone's going to beat us, it will be SIU," Wienen said.

"If someone's going to beat us, it will be SIU," Wienen said.

Basketball tryouts set

Tryouts for the 1979-80 women's basketball team will be held at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 18 at the SIU Arena.

Cagers return home as pros

Former Saluki basketball players Bonnie Foley and Jeri Hoffman will return home when the St. Louis Storm makes its debut against the Chicago Hustle in a women's professional basketball exhibition game at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 7 at the SIU Arena.

"This will be a great opportunity for people to see that professional women basketball players really are good," Cindy Scott, cousin of the lady Salukis, said. "Chicago is one of the best in the Women's Basketball Association."

"Foley and Hoffman were senior starters for the Salukis last year. Foley, who played center and Hoffman was at forward. Foley was a first-round pick in the expansion team's draft. Hoffman was a third-round choice."

The Saluki women's team will also be making their first appearances of the season when they play an intra-squad game during the winter months, halftime period.

Tickets are available at Department Store in Room 35, or by making ticket reservations at 569-5956. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for seniors and children.

Meet will begin in November. Contact Tim Platz at the pool during off-season hours for more information.

Spikers to 'rest' in Champaign

By Mark Paulich
Staff Writer

Illinois' volleyball team is headed for a well deserved rest this weekend. That is, if a three-way match in Champaign can be considered a rest.

As opposed to last week's grueling 12-team Windy City Invitational, however, Coach Debbie Hunter remembers this coming weekend as time for her team in recuperation.

"The match at Illinois will be a good challenge, but it will allow our team a chance to rest," Hunter said.

"We've been on the road for five weeks."

Hunter also said she was worried about our team first place in the season at the Windy City Invitational. She said it was good reason to be worried.

"We are also in the class and to the Redbirds this season because we've reflected a nice and the Salukis' play declined toward the end of the season."

Hunter said that it was important for her squad to reach their peak later this season because of the national championships, which will be held at the Arena Dec. 6-8. We reached our full potential now, we might fall short when it comes time for post-season play," Hunter said.

The Salukis won two matches, split two, and lost two in the 12-team, two-day tournament. ISU defeated George Willia, s and Iowa State and lost to Indiana and Chicago. Illinois, the went 2-2 against the Windy City tournament undefeated, took the championship.

"Last weekend, I felt badly for our team. Our play was up and down throughout the whole tournament," Hunter said. "It was like a chain reaction. When something went wrong, everything went wrong."

Hunter said that despite the problems at the tournament, her team is playing better volleyball.

"We've incorpoured all the stops and offensive weapons in our game plan for our team a while still to perfect them," Hunter said. "We had some good individual performances in Chicago.

Freshmen Sonya Locke and Barb Clark put on strong consistent performances throughout the tournament. Hunter Clark was in back after being sidelined with an ankle injury for the past few weeks.

"It was nice to have everyone healthy for a change," Hunter said.

"It's nice for us coming off her injury." Hunter said that playing in the 12-team tournament gave her young squad more experience, something they can't get enough of. "Everytime we play in a tournament against tough teams, it's good for us. No matter when we finish it's the playing time and competition that counts."

The Salukis will return home on Tuesday at 7 p.m. when they host the Illinois State Redbirds. The Invitational will feature No. 10 or 16 teams, depending on prior commitments of some of the schools.

"After this weekend in Champaign, it will feel so good to play at home in front of our fans," Hunter said.
