Halloween ads to be discussed at USO meeting

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

A request to fund advertisements in six college newspapers inviting students to come to Carbondale for Halloween weekend will be discussed at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday.

The bill proposes that the senate pay for 2-inch by 3-inch advertisements in the newspapers of Northern Illinois University, SIU-E, University of Illinois, Eastern Illinois University, Illinois State University and Western Illinois University, according to Tom Wood, east side senator and sponsor of the bill. The exact wording of the advertisement has not been determined, Wood said.

Wood said he would like to see the Halloween celebration given a more "positive" image instead of the negative image it now possesses. He said the advertisements would give students at other universities a more positive impression of Halloween as it is observed in Carbondale.

Todd Rogers, Undergraduate Student Organization president, agreed with the idea of giving the Halloween celebration a positive image, but he said he felt the advertisement idea is "too little too late."

He said it would take "a number of weeks" for a successful campaign to improve the image of Halloween in Carbondale. He said he felt the advertisements "would not accomplish the goals that they seek to accomplish."

"I feel that any use of student dollars out of the student activity fee to sponsor advertising in other school papers would not be the best expenditure of our money."

Rogers can veto any bill passed by the senate, but he did not say if he would use that power if the Halloween ad bill passed.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said it would be "unwise for me to comment" on the proposal, especially since no senate decision has been made.

A police source said, "We would be happier if they did not" take out the advertisements.

Carbondale Mayor Hans Fischer said he would not want the senate to fund the advertisements because of concern that more people would be in Carbondale during the Halloween weekend.

"We're all committed to having a real good party here and everyone enjoying it, making it as safe as possible," Fischer said.

Any increase in the number of people at the celebration would tend to reduce the amount of safety for the participants, he said.

Underwriters to be retained despite problems cited by Fry

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

Despite assertions that plans to construct a downtown convention center were endangered, the Carbondale City Council refused to change bond underwriters for the project.

City Manager Carroll Fry asked the council Monday to remove the firms of Kirchner, Moore, and Co. and Woolsey and Co. as bond underwriters for the convention center. He cited what he said were communication problems and a lack of progress which could threaten federal backing for the project.

Fry told the council that he and convention center developer, Stan Hoye, flew Thursday to Memphis to confer with officials of UMIC Inc., underwriters for the city's parking garage project. He proposed that UMIC replace the other firms as underwriters for the convention center.

Fry said that the underwriters had no representative at a Sept. 16 meeting in Washington where the parties involved established the timetable for project financing. "I've been aggravated by this project about as long as I'm going to be," Fry told the council.

Mayor Hans Fischer, who said he was "embarrassed" about having this come before the City Council, said, "I'd like to be just as respectful of the developer's wishes as possible." He concurred, however, with the majority of council members who considered a change at this time inappropriate. Council Woman Sammie Aikman was the only dissenter in the vote to retain the present firms.

According to Fry, progress on the project hinges on selling the Industrial Revenue Bonds to pay for the convention center by Dec. 1. At that time HUD officials are scheduled to review the program and decide whether to release a $2 million Urban Development Action Grant.

The UDAG funds are needed by the beginning of January to permit the city to purchase property and clear it so that construction on the project can begin by January, 1963. The city and developers have until Dec. 31, 1964, to complete construction.

The Farmer's Home Administration is to guarantee 90 percent of the bonds sold for the permanent financing of the project, with local banks tentatively agreeing to buy the remaining 10 percent. But if the project is not completed by the deadline, the guarantee could be lost.

Developer James Bondurant, an associate of Hoye, said that the work of securing funding for the project has been completed by local financiers. All the underwriters need to do is to arrange the sale of the bonds guaranteed by the FMHA. Bondurant said.

He said his main concern was getting the project completed.

"We don't have time to mess with excuses," Bondurant said. "We're either going to do this project or we're not."

Thomas Langdon, sales manager for Woolsey and Co., told the Council he could present the purchase agreement to them by Nov. 2.

Soviet Union grants recognition to PLO

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, in a strong new sign of support for the Palestine Liberation Organization, announced Tuesday that the Soviet Union was awarding the PLO's Moscow office "official diplomatic status."

Arab diplomatic sources in Moscow considered the move a Soviet and PLO response to the strategic military alliance between the United States and Israel announced in September. They also said the Soviet action—while on the surface little more than a protocol nicety—also appeared to herald still closer political and military cooperation between Moscow and the PLO.

Brezhnev announced the Soviet decision to PLO leader Yasser Arafat at a Kremlin meeting.

Arafat, who arrived in Moscow on Monday, told a news conference after his meeting with Brezhnev that the announcement has "very great political significance for the successful development of our struggle."

He said his talks with Soviet officials have added importance in light of growing military cooperation between the United States and Israel, which he called a "threat not only for the Middle East region but for the whole world."

Arab sources in Moscow said talks between Arafat and Soviet officials could include discussions on air defense weapons for the PLO and some said they expected an agreement on new arms supplies.

In Beirut, Lebanon, a source close to the PLO said, "I don't think this reflects much change unless the Soviets are also providing weapons, such as SAM-6 missiles."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, quoted Brezhnev as saying Palestinians have won "sympathy and respect" for their cause around the world, and that the PLO has gained "extensive international recognition as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people."

An Arab diplomat in Moscow said the granting of diplomatic status to the PLO office could help Moscow's standing in the Middle East. He said that "among the mass of people in the Middle East, it will be another sign that the Soviets support the Palestinians."

Western diplomats believe the Soviet Union is trying to strongly reassert itself in Middle East politics following the Oct. 6 assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, a bitter Kremlin foe.

General disobeys rule, loses post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The top military officer on the National Security Council staff was relieved of his duties and ordered back to the Army Tuesday after saying in a speech that the Soviets have nuclear superiority and "are going to strike."

A senior White House official said Maj. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer was fired because he disobeyed a rule that requires all members of the National Security Council staff to clear their public remarks with Richard V. Allen, staff director and President Reagan's national security advisor.

"It is also clear that the speech does not reflect the president's thinking with regard to the state of world affairs," said the official, who asked not to be quoted by name.

The aide said Schweitzer concurred in the action, taken by Allen at 7:15 a.m. EDT Tuesday after an article on the speech appeared in The Washington Post. "He thought it would be best to return to his normal duties in order to spare the administration any embarassment because of his unauthorized remarks," the official said.

Although the general caught White House officials by surprise, Schweitzer said in his speech to the Association of the United States Army his remarks had not been cleared and might get him in trouble.

"Well, I think we are going to have to get ourselves in trouble...in order to lay out the threat because the threat is believed not to exist," he said in the apparently extemporaneous talk.

Brezhnev demands redefinition of Reagan nuclear war stance — News Roundup

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev on Tuesday rejected President Reagan's claim that the Soviets believe they can win a nuclear war and demanded the U.S. leader to make a public statement declaring nuclear attack a "criminal" idea.

Reacting to the statement that Soviet leaders consider victory in a nuclear war possible, Brezhnev said: "Only he who has decided to commit suicide can start a nuclear war in the hope of emerging a victor from it."

The Soviet president's comments were made in an interview with the Communist Party Pravda and distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass.

Brezhnev was reacting to remarks Reagan made to visiting newspaper editors in Washington on Friday. The White House later released a transcript of the meeting.

In the meeting, Reagan responded to a question of whether a nuclear exchange could be limited or would simply escalate by saying: "I don't honestly know... There never has been a weapon that someone hasn't come up with a defense. But it could... and the only defense would be, well, you shoot yours and we'll shoot ours. And if you still had that kind of a stalemate, I could see where you could see where you could have the exchange of tactical weapons against troops in the field without it bringing either one of the major powers to pushing the button..."

"I do have to point out that everything that has been said and everything in their manuals indicates that, unlike us, the Soviet Union believes that a nuclear war is possible and they believe it is winnable..."

Brezhnev said, "No matter what method of unleashing nuclear war he chooses, he will not attain his aims. Retribution will ensure ineluctably."

Unemployment rise seen by advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration conceded Tuesday that a recession now under way could boost unemployment to 8 percent, but it vowed to hold the same economic course rather than turn to "quick fixes of previous administrations."

President Reagan's chief economic adviser, Murray Weidenbaum, became the latest senior administration official Tuesday to admit publicly that the economy has slid into a recession. He also predicted that the nation's unemployment rate would rise from a 7.5

percent rate in September "perhaps to the neighborhood of 8 percent" in the coming months.

Other administration economists have predicted that by early next year, the jobless rate could exceed 8 percent, the highest level in six years.

An unemployment rate of 8 percent translates into about 8.5 million jobless Americans, 500,000 more than were reported to be without jobs in September.

The Commerce Department's chief economist, Robert Ortner, cautioned, however, that September's 0.1 percent decline in personal consumption spending was mostly due to erratic car sales, which plummeted after rising rapidly in August.

Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, told a group of businessmen that Reagan's current program includes a major tax cut and a significant increase in defense spending that will stimulate the economy and create jobs in the long run without fueling a new surge in inflation.

NATO assured of U.S. support

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger assured European allies Tuesday that the United States would not "abandon" them in time of limited nuclear war.

However, he said Washington would not necessarily stage a nuclear missile attack if a battlefield nuclear weapon were released against Western Europe.

Weinberger's remarks during a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense ministers were in reaction to Western European controversy over whether the United States would sit back and let a limited nuclear war rage in Europe while keeping U.S. territory safe from Soviet attack.

Anti-nuclear activists have questioned the willingness of the United States to get involved in a limited nuclear war in Europe. They have called a decision to deploy 572 new U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe an attempt to remove the nuclear link between the two continents.

This sentiment swelled over the weekend after President

Reagan told visiting European editors that nuclear attacks were possible "without bringing either one of the major superpowers into pushing the button."

A spokesman for West German Defense Minister Hans Apel said Apel is satisfied that Reagan's remarks did not constitute a change in U.S. policy. That policy calls for use of U.S. intercontinental missiles as the ultimate deterrent against a Soviet attack in Europe.

Reagan briefed for Mexico summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan returns Wednesday to the world of international summitry, prepared to preach "the magic of the marketplace," but aware that he could face "a hostile atmosphere" in a Mexico meeting of nations rich and poor.

Reagan received a briefing Tuesday from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan as he prepared for the 22-nation summit in Cancun, Mexico.

ROMEVILLE (AP) — A 23-year-old man who recently graduated from SIU-C was killed Tuesday in the crash of his home-built, experimental airplane during an emergency landing attempt at Lewis University airport, authorities said.

Authorities identified the victim as Scott Perry of Hampshire, in Kane County. Perry, the pilot of the plane, recently graduated from the University's aviation program.

Cigarette, alcohol taxes may rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering a boost in cigarette and alcohol excise taxes and a variety of other ways to increase federal revenues, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Tuesday.

Regan did not elaborate on the proposals under study. But other officials said they include such politically volatile ideas as eliminating income tax deductions for interest payments on virtually all credit except home mortgages and auto loans, and limiting exemptions for health insurance premiums.

Polish protesters continue sit-in

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Thousands of striking textile workers, protesting food shortages in defiance of Communist government orders, appealed Tuesday to new party chief Wojciech Jaruzelski to improve the quality of life for the "women who are toiling so hard."

About 12,000 workers—most of them women—at the Zyrardow textile mills ignored the party's demand to end protests and were in the eighth day of a sit-in.

Suit filed in alleged murder attempt

BELLEVILLE (AP) — An elderly woman who says her life insurance agent tried to kill her last year has sued the insurance company and the late agent's estate.

Irma P. Lee, 82, of Hoyletown, argues in the suit that she suffered "physical and emotional" injury when New York Life Insurance Co. agent Harold G. Wisniewski allegedly attacked her in her home last year.

Out-of-town landowners win freedom from city zoning laws

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Owners of land in an area west of Country Club Road, by their own request, are no longer under Carbondale zoning laws.

The property owners addressed the Carbondale City Council during a public meeting Monday night. Their message was clear—they wanted Carbondale to remove zoning jurisdiction over them. The council granted their request.

Carbondale controls zoning 1.5 miles outside of its city limits, but will give up jurisdiction over the half-mile wide and three-fourths mile long area west of Country Club Road between Chautauqua and Lake roads.

As a result, the area will not be under any zoning jurisdiction. Murphysboro Mayor Sydney Appleton has said there were no plans for Murphysboro to assume jurisdiction.

An agreement made in June between Carbondale and Murphysboro restricted Carbondale's control over the area, but in September Carbondale decided to retain its zoning jurisdiction until Murphysboro enacted some control in the area.

Before Monday's hearing, Mayor Hans Fischer had said that the purpose of the city's zoning ordinance is to protect the property rights of residents and to promote "orderly growth" in areas that may eventually be annexed by Carbondale.

The residents of the affected area, however, viewed the situation differently.

Harold Halterman, a land owner west of Country Club road, presented a petition opposing Carbondale zoning control in the area. It was signed by 88 of the 94 people affected by the city's ordinance. Six property owners could not be reached, Halterman said.

"We have no services from Carbondale, we have no representation or voting rights for Carbondale city officials and we have no water or sewage from the city of Carbondale," he said.

Jim Zimmer, also a land owner in the affected area, said Carbondale has "no business out there."

McCormick says he won't run again

By Liz Griffin
Staff Writer

State Rep. C. L. McCormick, R-59th District, a 19-year-veteran of the House, said Monday he will not run for a state seat in 1982.

McCormick said earlier he was seriously considering campaigning for the office of State Sen. Gene Johns, D-59th District, or seeking re-election.

Meanwhile, George A. Williams, who lost to Johns in 1978, said his chances of running for Johns' seat again are even greater in 1982 as a result of McCormick's announcement.

Williams, a former SIU-C faculty member in engineering and technology, is a regional administrator for the Illinois Department of Administrative Services.

For McCormick, it was "just me and my God, that is all," who made the decision.

"It breaks my heart to tell you that I thought about it considerably. When I left home this morning, I told my wife I'd be a candidate for the Senate, but I figure that it's time for the younger people," he said.

McCormick took office in 1966 and retired in 1974. He was re-elected in 1980.

McCormick said he would retire in 1983 to spend time with his family and work in his store and campgrounds in Vienna.

McCormick said he did not make his decision based on whether he could win or lose.

Johns said Monday he would unquestionably run for the State Senate seat in 1982.

"He would have been a very formidable opponent," Johns said of McCormick.

Williams said he has a greater chance of being elected since his 1978 loss. Since then, he said the remapping of the state districts has given him more votes.

SIU-C analyst recommended for board

An SIU-C institutional research analyst has been recommended to fill a recent vacancy in the Jackson County Board's District 5.

Kay Allen, a Democrat, was unanimously chosen by four Democratic precinct committeemen to fill Sharon Kowalik's vacancy. Kowalik resigned recently when she moved to Murphysboro.

Mrs. Allen is the wife of the acting chairman of SIU-C History Department Howard Allen, a precinct committeeman. She has had no previous political experience.

She said she has lived in Carbondale since 1962 and graduated with a master's degree in economic history from SIU-C in 1977.

Electrical system repair scheduled to begin soon

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

The first phase of a complete renovation of SIU-C's aging electrical distribution system will begin within 60 days, according to Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services.

The project will involve removal and replacement of about 4,200 feet of underground electrical equipment, most of which was installed in 1955. It will include the installation of new ducts, manholes, switch gear and related equipment, Dougherty said.

"Most of the system is 20 to 40 years old, and we've had a series of problems over the past few years," Dougherty said.

"The past three winters have been particularly hard on the system."

University officials hope the remodeling will prevent power outages, Dougherty said. "We're doing this to prevent emergencies," he said. "The last few winters we've had power outages in places like Thompson Point because the old system didn't hold up. We're trying to prevent that."

The project will proceed in three phases and may take three to four years to complete, according to Dougherty. He said the first phase will be finished in about 18 months.

The first phase will cost $287,500, which has been allocated by the Illinois Capital Development Board, according to Dougherty. The project will cost more than $800,000, he said.

"The money for this phase has been appropriated, and the dollars are being released to us," Dougherty said. "We have requests in for the money for the next phases, also."

Application deadline set for council spot

The Carbondale City Council has set noon Monday as the deadline to receive applications for the council seat soon to be vacated by the Rev. Charles Watkins.

Resumes of interested residents will be distributed to council members Monday evening, and the council will narrow the list of candidates down to three at its Nov. 2 meeting. The council will interview the final three candidates at its Nov. 9 council meeting and select the replacement at its Nov. 16 meeting.

Although the council is not legally bound to fill the vacancy until Dec. 31, members decided

Monday to complete the selection process before Thanksgiving week, when Councilwoman Sammy Aikman will be out of town.

It was agreed that candidates considered for the council vacancy left in June by retiring councilwoman Susan Mitchell must restate their interest if they want to fill Watkins' vacancy but do not need to resubmit resumes.

The person selected for the council position will serve until the next general election in April 1983, at which time the remaining two years of Watkins' term will be up for election.

Knee-jerk reactions don't help waste issue

There are some subjects that provoke a knee-jerk, bleeding-heart reaction that forsakes a rational discussion of an issue and replaces it with an emotional outpouring of uninformed outrage and half-baked assumptions.

The debate over the disposal of low-level radioactive wastes is one such issue and was the subject of a panel discussion last week at the Carbondale Unitarian Church.

The concerns of all who were present are valid. Radioactive waste of any sort is a potential health hazard. But it is simply wrong to place low-level waste in the same category as spent reactor fuel or toxic waste, and it is folly to ignore the need for a dump site.

Low-level waste refers to a wide variety of radioactive garbage generated by nuclear plants, hospitals and research institutions. It includes such things as contaminated rags, protective paper shoes, and gloves and medical instruments. These are all solid wastes (the dumping of liquid wastes in Illinois is illegal) and have a half-life of a few weeks or months, as compared to high-level wastes from nuclear reactors, which have half-lives that number in the hundreds and thousands of years.

The legal and illegal dumping of toxic wastes should be a far-greater concern than that of low-level radioactive wastes. But such is the power of the buzz word "radioactive."

The fact is that Illinois generates more low-level waste than any other Midwestern state. We now ship out those wastes to sites in Nevada, Washington and South Carolina, but we will not be allowed that luxury for long.

Last December, Congress passed the Low Level Waste Policy Act which set a deadline of January 1986 for the states to work out disposal plans either individually or collectively with neighboring states. In other words, the federal government is backing out of its previous responsibility to manage the disposal of low-level wastes and is telling the states that they must assume that responsibility whether they like it or not.

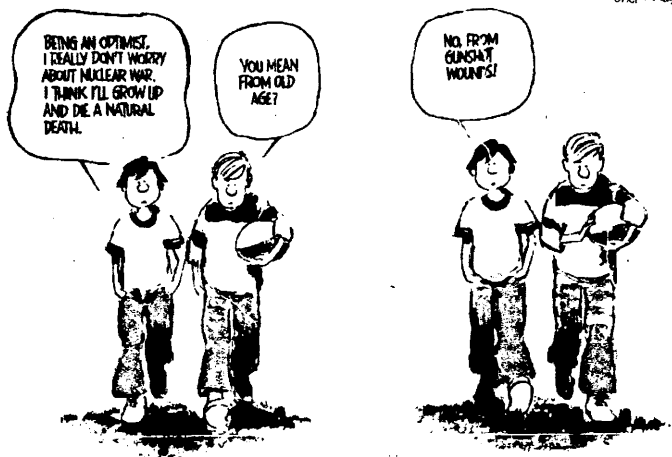

The effect of that law is already being felt. Negotiators from nine Southern states met Sunday to work out a regional plan for low-level waste disposal that would exclude the rest of the nation from using the South Carolina dump site. Similar negotiations are going on all across the country. Washington, Idaho and Utah have already enacted into law a regional agreement for waste disposal. In short, if Illinois doesn't act soon, we may find ourselves locked out of using the few available dump sites that exist.

We could feasibly propose a dump site in one of the surrounding Midwestern states, but it is unlikely that any would accept such a proposal, given our dominant position in the production of low-level wastes. We simply must take the situation into our own hands. Central and Southern Illinois provide the best areas for dump sites, both in terms of geography and population.

It is, of course, understood at the outset that, despite the relative lack of danger posed by low-level wastes, these materials must be properly packaged and properly stored. The dump site must be located away from population centers, water wells and floodplains. The slope of the land and the permeability of the underlying bedrock are also factors that must be taken into account. Most importantly, the consent of the people nearby must be obtained. A dump site cannot be chosen arbitrarily.

To that end, the Illinois General Assembly has introduced legislation that would prohibit the licensing of any dump site without the consent of the legislature. State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale justified his co-sponsorship of the bill by saying that it addresses "a problem that faces all of central and Southern Illinois."

Indeed, it is our problem and it is our responsibility to solve it. Everyone who lives in Southern Illinois should be concerned, but that concern should not be reflected in knee-jerk opposition to anything that relates to radioactive waste. Our options are few and we simply will not be given the time for emotional debates that ignore the facts.

Stupid shifting standards of style personified in "designer" jeans

IT IS inspiring that, in an age of excess and in a nation not long on understatement, Bill Blass has given an example of almost Athenian moderation. Blass, a "designer" who has just given the world its first "designer chocolates" (candy with his initials on it), has rejected a request to bring forth designer caskets.

But perhaps it is immoral for such a promising field of enterprise to be left fallow. The living are denied the delicious anticipation of being laid to rest in a casket with green-and-red Gucci stripes, or with an Oscar de la Renta fragrance, or Yves St. Laurent emblem. Death, where would your sting be then?

The most ubiquitous designer things are designer jeans. They raise this question: Why do millions of Americans pay a premium to turn their bottoms into billboards advertising Bill Blass, Calvin Klein and other entrepreneurs? John Brooks, a writer who senses hysteria beneath the skin of American consuming, suggests an answer in his book "Showing Off in America."

George F. Will

Books deploring "conformity" were mass-marketed—everyone was reading them. They expressed the perennial American anxiety about being submerged in an homogenous crowd. Today's "designer" products are little lifebelts for people eager to bob to the surface.

The proliferation of "designer" products serve what Veblen called "conspicuous consumption." It is the old business of seeking reputation through competitive display. But today, unlike earlier eras, the coveted display is of "style," not wealth. Brooks argues that today the most effective style of status seeking is a style that mocks status seeking. It is status seeking with a clear conscience, or at least with minimal embarrassment. It is seeking status in demim.

BROOKS APPLIES to contemporary America the categories of Thorstein Veblen's "Theory of the Leisure Class" (1899). Veblen argued that snobbery and social pretensions—"fighting with property"—play an especially large role in egalitarian societies. American society is ideologically and actually egalitarian, with upward mobility and no hereditary aristocracy. So status is tantalizingly up for grabs. For that reason, status is much more of an obsession than it is where it is limited and assigned. Remember the 1950s?

SOCIETIES ARE defined, in part, by their regularities. A regularity of our democratic civilization is regular elections; but another characterizing regularity is the annual model change in the automobile industry. It injects inequalities into one of the most egalitarian markets. Everyone can own a car, but you still have to hustle to keep up with the Jones' new model.

Jeans have given rise to sociology. Charles Reich, author of the worst book since the invention of printing ("The Greening of America" in 1970), saw jeans as symbols of Consciousness III, "the sedulous beauty of a creative, loving, unexpressed life." Marshall McLuhan said, "Jeans represent a rip-off and a rage against the establishment."

What rot. Designer jeans (the "designer" element is, I gather, stitching on the back pockets) are a response of corporate commerce to the masses' desire for individuality.

I like Brooks, am intrigued by magazine advertisements for Dewars scotch. You know the kind: "I'm Judy Jones, 28. I am your basic sky-diving, Everest-climbing, Mozart-adoring, Proust-memorizing, Boston astrophysicist, and I drink Dewars."

TO WHOM are such ads supposed to appeal? Twenty-eight-year-olds? Bostonians? Mozart listeners? Proust readers? Mountain climbers? Sky divers? Astrophysicists? No, such ads are supposed to sell whiskey to middle-aged businessmen in Duluth who read Luke Short westerns and listen to Dolly Parton and who (or so Dewars hopes) want to think they are like that paragon, Judy Jones.

I think—I hope—hell's bells, I know: Duluth businessmen have more sense. But there is a low hum of anxiety in America. It is too low for the ear to hear, but it is insistently felt by the American soul. It is the fear of not measuring up to shifting standards of style.

It is enough to drive a person to drink, perhaps even to drink Dewars, or to offer a friend chocolate candy adorned with the initials of a stranger like Bill Blass. That is something for the sober middle class to ponder as it grazes through Bloomingdale's in search of the Jordache look.—(c) 1981, The Washington Post Company.

Traditions to mix with 'Oktoberfest'

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

Homecoming is one of the biggest college traditions and this weekend's festivities will be filled with just that—tradition.

Even Oktoberfest, this year's Homecoming theme, is a traditional German celebration which easily lends itself to the fall season.

Traditionally, SIU-C alumni and their guests visit the University during Homecoming weekend. The class of 1981 will celebrate its 50th reunion with a SIU-C Half Century Club dinner at the Ramada Inn at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Alumni from classes ending in "1" and "6" plus members of the Class of 1980 will also be honored at a reception in the Student Center's ballrooms after Saturday's football game.

President Albert Somit will give the State of the University Address at the Alumni Recognition Luncheon in Ballroom D at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The 1981 Alumni Achievement Award and the 1981 Great Teacher Award will also be presented.

Current SIU-C students can participate in a variety of traditional activities as well.

The Marching Salukis, Shakers and cheerleaders will lead students in a snake dance to a bonfire Friday night. The trail will begin at 7 p.m. at the residence halls and end in the south Arena parking lot in time for the bonfire at 7:30 p.m.

The football Salukis will be the guests of honor at the bonfire, and individual residence halls will compete for a $25 prize in a "ye-1-like-hell" contest.

No Homecoming would be complete without the crowning of new royalty. This year's king and queen will be announced during the bonfire. Students will finish voting Wednesday to select from a field of five pairs of candidates.

The Homecoming royalty will ride in Saturday's parade down Illinois Avenue. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will be the grand marshal of the parade, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Main Street, proceed south on Illinois Avenue and finish at McAndrew Stadium.

The Marching Salukis and 21 other bands, 11 floats, 25 cars and 30 other marching units will participate. A few novelty-stunt acts, including a kazoo band formed by the Veterans Club, will also march, competing for a $25 prize and a plaque. The kick-off of this year's Homecoming football game against the University of South-west Louisiana will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The Homecoming court and distinguished alumni will be recognized during the halftime show.

The football game although the highlight of the weekend, is not the only sport involved in this year's festivities. The basketball team will play a game-like scrimmage at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Arena, and five Saluki women swimmers will attempt to break the world record in a 24-hour swim relay to start at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Recreation Center.

The Student Center will host an open house Friday night featuring German food, ompah bands and dancing. The Joe Gill Polka Band will play in the Roman and Oasis Rooms and the Phi Mu Alpha band will play in the International Lounge, both beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Students and alumni can bob for apples or demonstrate their skill at a dunking booth at the south escalator area. Student yodelers will be filmed at the main solicitation area.

Hypnotist Tom DeLuca will perform at 9 p.m. in Ballroom B. Admission is $1. Dallol, an Ethiopian reggae band will play at 10 p.m. Saturday in Ballroom D. Admission is $1.50.

Swinburne and Guyon to co-chair commission

President Albert Somit has appointed a nine-member commission to advise the administration on recommendations made last spring by the Recruitment and Retention Task Force.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, will co-chair the commission.

Also named to the commission were: —George C. Brown, director of the University Honors Program, representing the Faculty Senate.

—Michael Brown, a graduate student in psychology, representing the Graduate Student Council.

—B. Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records, representing the Deans Council.

—Jerry Cook, a junior majoring in pre-medicine, representing the Undergraduate Student Organization.

—Billie Jacobini, chief academic adviser in SIU-C's general studies program, representing the Ad.

Administrative-Professional Staff Council.

—Dennis W. Leitner, associate dean of the Graduate School, representing the Graduate Council.

—David Saunders, public information officer for the School of Technical Careers, representing the Civil Service Employees Council.

'King Cool' reaches height of mediocrity

By Bill Turley
Staff Writer

Mediocrity reaches new heights on "King Cool," the latest album by Donnie Iris and Cruisers.

One definition of mediocrity in Webster's Dictionary is an "average capacity or worth regarded as dull or uninspired or poor; conspicuous lack of distinction or excellence."

Bingo. While this album is not trash, there is no music here to get excited about. On most albums, some songs are better than others. On "King Cool," some songs are more mediocre than others.

Iris has some minor fame as the author and original artist of "The Rapper." On "King Cool," his second album with

Review

King Cool, Donnie Iris and Cruisers, MCA Records. Reviewer's rating 2½ stars (4 stars tops)

the Cruisers, Iris pens most of the songs along with Mark Avsec, keyboardist and producer of the disc.

The songs are the typical "you-love-me-and-I-love-you" or the "you-hurt-me-so-the-hell-with-you" variety, with a few slight twists. The one exception to the mold, the title cut, almost escapes mediocrity because of some good guitar riffs and a nice hook. But trite lyrics, about a rock star who loses his woman because she won't share him and his music with fans, ruin a potentially fine offering.

Side two, the side with "King Cool," is definitely the best half of this disc. "My Girl" and "Color Me Blue" are two okay songs. But the rest of the album is nothing to write home about, especially the first side. It will kind of grow on you if you like it, but then, so will fungus.

The band does sound like it would be good in concert. The press release that came with the album claims the group's stage show has gotten "rave" reviews, and the songs, with their simple harmonies and beats, probably sound great in a crowded bar. The problem is that with this album, one can sit down and listen carefully and soberly to the music, and notice the music's inherent mediocrity.

"King Cool" will not put you to sleep, despite its ordinariness. However, the Beatles' "White Album" has nothing to fear from "King Cool."

Waste site owners' appeal denied

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court has slammed the final state legal door on owners of a toxic waste site who appealed a court order to clean up a landfill in Wilsonville, officials said Tuesday.

Justices denied a request by Earthline Corp. that they consider their May 22 ruling that the firm must close its toxic waste disposal site at the town and remove contaminated materials and earth.

The court's denial was delivered late Monday, said court Clerk Clell Woods. The state attorney general's office, which in 1977 joined Wilsonville's 700 residents in battling Earthline, was told of the decision Tuesday, said Don Ramsell, a spokesman for Attorney General Tyrone C. Fahnner.

Henry L. Mason III, a lawyer for the Boston-based SCA Services Inc., parent company of Earthline, said the normal course for the firm now would be to appeal the Illinois ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Illinois justices ruled last May that evidence showed the site, which contained toxic chemicals such as PCBs, posed a clear danger to area residents. The state's highest court also upheld lower state court decisions closing the site and ordering Earthline to remove hazardous wastes stored there.

"We are very pleased the justices denied the request by SCA," said Ramsell. "It's quite rare they would rehear a case that was decided unanimously."

Ramsell said the attorney general's office expects SCA to continue its legal struggle before the nation's highest court.

Local residents became alarmed that toxic materials could leak and contaminate water supplies and soil after Earthline opened the landfill in 1977.

A suit on behalf of residents of Wilsonville, 30 miles northeast of St. Louis, was filed in 1977 in Macoupin County Circuit Court, and joined later by then-Attorney General William J. Scott.

Some Cut-Rate Comedy skits are hysterical, some puzzling

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

Comedy is alive in Carbondale. And if it isn't exactly thriving, that could be the fault of the people who pass up Cut-Rate Comedy's Show at The Great Escape on Wednesday nights or Just Desserts on Saturdays.

Cut-Rate Comedy, a local troupe of SIUC students and Carbondale residents, keeps its audiences sometimes in hysterics and sometimes scratching their heads.

The troupe consists of Todd Alcott, a junior in English; Toni Thompson, a junior in radio and television; John Zakhar of Carbondale, who works at Just Desserts; Michael Meadows of Carbondale, a folksinger; and Cynthia Riley of Carbondale, who works for the Southern Illinoisan.

Meadows starts off the shows by singing his own composition, "Southern Illinois," and sometimes the Roger Miller tune "Summertime," which he sings with a good amount of energy and humor. Then the group goes into a number of skits that sometimes seem to fall flat on their faces. This does not mean that the sketches are without potential; they just need to have the bugs worked out.

However, the skits get better as the show goes on, which is a credit to the writing. It is done solely by Alcott.

The best of these choice skits has to be the one with Alcott playing a pervert reading himself for a dinner date. He makes spaghetti for her seasoned with an aphrodisiac. His parrot, Zakhar, mouths obscenities to Alcott's date, Thompson, whenever Alcott leaves the room. Thompson is shocked as she tells Alcott what the parrot had said upon his return from the kitchen.

As they stare at the parrot, it reverts to saying "Pretty girl! Pretty Girl!" The date leaves Alcott depressed, so he and the parrot go out and get drunk.

Another sketch has Alcott, with a stage mustache, playing a psychiatrist. He has a patient, played by Meadows, who tells him that he is going through a down cycle of a manic-depressive state and that he wants to kill himself.

"My wife left me, my dog died, I lost my job," he whines, "after all that, I get kind of depressed." Alcott tells Meadows that he is sick of hearing his complaining and forces him to stand on the window ledge of his office ready to jump.

Another sketch is about two SIUC freshmen, Buffy (Thompson) and Billy (Zakhar). Buffy is an art student and Billy is a military technology major. Both have jobs waiting for them with the military, they tell a local bug (Meadows, once an SIUC student).

"I'm going to design tanks," Billy says. "And I'm going to paint them," Buffy adds.

These sketches are well worth weathering the uncertain moments at the beginning of the shows.

Alcott, who is from Crystal Lake, said he has been writing comedy since high school, where he played drums in the school band before he broke his back. After he broke his back, he joked, "I held clarinet."

Alcott said he suffered his injury by falling out of a tree in his back yard where he was talking to a couple of script collaborators. "We used to hold story conferences in the tree," he said nonchalantly, "and I fell out and broke my back."

Zakhar, who was born in Chicago, said he has only done one semester of college coursework, at Joliet Junior College in 1972.

"When I got out of high school," Zakhar said, "I just traveled around the country." Zakhar said he went to Alaska, lived in the mountains, did some commercial fishing and played saxophone in a rock band.

After all that traveling, Zakhar said, he returned to Joliet. "I did about eight productions with the Joliet Drama Guild," he said, "the oldest drama guild in Illinois."

Zakhar said he did comedy and theater work and with other members of the guild performed sketches in nursing homes.

During that time, Zakhar said he took a course at Chicago's Second City, a school that produced the comic talents of Alan Arkin, David Steinberg,

Mime duo takes dual approach

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

Minutely Mime's Jacqueline Wildau and Kate Bentley, because of their different backgrounds, approach the art of mime from different perspectives.

Bentley's dance background and Wildau's theater background, along with their contrasting personalities, give a different flavor to each of their parts in their performance.

Bentley's mime work tends to be smooth, fluidly graceful and occasionally solemn, whereas Wildau's tends to be more spontaneous—her facial expressions can be maniacally expressive and quirky, and she seems always ready to surprise the crowd. Bentley's personality, in a slightly more serious vein than that of the impish Wildau, makes her a good straight-man—oops!—straight-person for Wildau.

Wildau, originally from Cleveland, said she was 8 years old when she became interested in mime. She saw Marcel Marceau perform, and "I decided that's what I wanted," she said.

Active in theater from childhood, she joined The Moving Company, a San Francisco street theater, in 1969 and found she could make a living at acting.

Wildau attended the L'ecole Jacques Lecoq School of Mime in France, where she said she learned how to create material. In 1972, she met Bentley when both performed with the Pocket Mime Theater in Boston. Though Bentley stayed with the troupe for six more years, eventually taking over as its female lead, Wildau said she left shortly after they met because Pocket Mime was a silent company. "It was too silent," she said.

Wildau said she then worked as a teacher, freelance clown and mime. She founded the Maily Mime series in New York at the Westbeth Theater. An old friend with whom she had gone steady in the seventh grade offered her use of the theater on Monday nights, she said.

"In New York," Wildau said, "it's true that it isn't what you know, it's who you know."

In 1978, Bentley too went to New York, and "We decided that we wanted to do it together," Wildau said.

Bentley, from Skaneateles, N.Y., studied dance in college. Before that, she said, she entertained an interest in theater, but nothing serious. She studied mime under Kenyon Martin in Boston before joining the Pocket Mime Theater in Boston in January 1972.

After playing the female lead for a number of years, Bentley said she left the troupe. "I wanted a change," she said.

"I wanted to do something with music and words. Pocket Mime was a silent company." After she joined Wildau, Bentley said, the two of them took their act on the road. "We've done store windows, cruise ships, discos and theaters galore," said Wildau. Bentley said they both were once part of a Christmas window display at W.J. Sloane's when the store was competing with Lord and Taylor's for the most distinctive window display.

The believability of their act was tested when Bentley was forced to perform in the display window with a cast on her foot.

The reason for the cast, according to Bentley, was because "I tore every tendon in my foot."

"Yeah," Wildau said laughing, "she was the Lame Mime."

But the two utilized their ingenuity and integrated it into their performance. According to Wildau, their spectators were fooled—they just thought it was part of the act.

COMEDY from Page 7

Dan Ackroyd, John Belushi and Bill Murray.

"The Second City school is one of the best schools of theater," Zakhar said, "not just for improvisation." Zakhar said he learned a lot about stage awareness at Second City from his instructor, Josephine Forsberg.

After all that, Zakhar said, "I came to Carbondale this summer and met Todd." Zakhar said that Cut-Rate Comedy was born because Alcott put out pamphlets announcing he was looking for comedic talent over the summer. So he, Meadows and Tom Kagy, a junior in cinema and photography, tried out. Kagy has since left the group.

Now, Zakhar said, Cut-Rate Comedy is trying to get airtime on local television. "We may appear on WSIL, KFVS, WPSD, WSJU or Cablevision," he said, "whatever outlet is open to us." Thompson, who was born in Clinton, said she has always been interested in comedy and even went to Chicago to try writing for the Second City comedy troupe, which did not work out.

However, Thompson looked upon the experience positively.

She said she had the chance to meet the associate producer of Second City, Joyce Sloan, and the producer, Delbert Close.

Thompson said that when she read an ad in the Daily Egyptian about Cut-Rate Comedy looking for a female lead, she thought that she would try out. "If you want to accomplish something," she said, "go after it."

Meadows said that soon after his birth in Las Vegas, his family moved to Bartlesville, Okla. He said he had performed in several New York and Chicago stage productions, but would not say which ones. "Who wants to know?" he said.

Cynthia Riley, the newest member of the troupe, said she is a native of Carbondale who was educated in theater at the University of New Mexico at Santa Fe.

Riley said she had children's roles in a number of stage productions at SIU-C between 1971 and 1972, having been in children's theater before that. Riley's most recent role, she said, was the tiny role of Jenny in "Death of a Salesman."

Riley said she tried out for Cut-Rate Comedy because "I was getting morose."

seriously auditioned and I waited."

Alcott said Riley indeed waited, auditioning the day after Thompson, for an opening. Her waiting paid off, as she got a part after Kagy left the troupe.

Thompson was picked over Riley for the female lead.

"I'll bet my curtain call was longer than my part," she said.

FCC to consider permit for station in Mount Vernon

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — It appears Mount Vernon is one step closer to having a television station to utilize the last remaining VHF frequency.

The Federal Communications Commission is scheduled to review a long-standing building permit application filed by Pyramid Broadcasting Corp. in 1977. If it is approved, the station and transmitter could be built and would use channel 13. Action may come before Thanksgiving, officials said.

The application, filed by William Varecha of Murphysboro, the former owner of WTAO-FM radio, has been delayed because of a large number of petitions against the application. Another application for construction was dropped.

Bookstore sale starts Wednesday

They're not hot off the presses, and the prices could make them sell like hotcakes at the University Bookstore's Ballroom Booksale Wednesday and Thursday.

Old textbooks, trade books and books from wholesalers will be offered at discount prices at the sale. Paperbacks will be 25 cents each, five for $1. Hardcover books will be 50 cents or five for $2. And bookworms will be able to cart off a boxful of books for $7.50.

Books will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

Piano recital and music exhibit to be held Friday

"Music of Women Composers: A Piano Recital and Exhibit" will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in Quigley Auditorium.

A library exhibit displaying selected accomplishments of women in music history will be available for viewing before and after a recital by pianist Elsie Cadieux.

Cadieux will also present a narration of some of the composers' views concerning their works and lives.

The program is sponsored by Illinois State University and supported by grants from the Illinois Humanities and Illinois Arts councils. Arrangements to bring the program to Carbondale were made by the Women's Center.

The program is free and open to the public.

Campus Briefs

A campus blood drive Nov. 9 to 13 will be the topic of an organizational meeting at 5 p.m. Wednesday in the Mackinaw Room, sponsored by the American Red Cross. Representatives of campus groups and individuals will be asked to help with the drive.

Bankers give 'all-saver' mixed reviews

By Randi Hansen
Student Writer

Bankers in Southern Illinois give the new all-saver certificates mixed reviews. While they are generally enthusiastic about offering tax-free interest, some have questions about whether the all-saver certificate will fulfill the program's objective of easing mortgage rates.

The all-saver certificate is a new saving program proposed by the federal government to help financial institutions attract more savings deposits. It is not actually a savings certificate but an investment which yields a fixed rate of interest for one year, pegged to the money market rates. The first $1,000 in interest is tax-free ($2,000 in joint account). The institution, in turn, is required to use 75 percent of all-saver funds for real estate loans, including mortgage and home-improvement loans.

"It's definitely been well-received by the public, depending, of course, on what tax bracket they're in," said Don Jackson of First National Bank of Carbondale. "Those in a 32 percent tax bracket or above could definitely benefit." A person with income in the 32 percent tax bracket could earn the same rate of interest on a 12.5 percent all-saver certificate as on an 18.33 percent certificate of deposit with taxable interest.

"Another advantage that most people aren't talking about is the benefit to the small saver," Jackson said. "Because the certificate requires only a $500 minimum deposit, many small savers could easily switch from a 5.25 percent passbook account to a one-year all-saver certificate earning approximately 12.61 percent interest, of which $1,000 would be tax-free ($2,000 for a joint account)."

According to Jackson, the all-saver will provide a source for money for real estate loans at a lower interest rate than is presently available, although he is cautious in predicting what that rate will be. "We have no idea where the rate may settle out. We don't know if the rate will be low enough that the average consumer will be able to afford it."

Saline Valley First Federal in Harrisburg began a program this summer offering a savings account with a high rate of interest with the condition that customers put those deposits into all-saver certificates on Oct. 1. Federal Regulations issued later kept institutions from requiring that the deposits go into the all-saver program, but according to Ronnie Mitchell of Saline Valley, public enthusiasm remained high even without that incentive.

All-savers have attracted a substantial amount of "new money" (deposits new to the institution) which will now be available for real estate loans. According to Mitchell, that, in turn, will benefit the housing market in the community.

Ed Farrell of the Bank of Harrisburg is not as optimistic about the impact of all-savers on real estate loans in rural areas. In fact, the Bank of Harrisburg ran an advertisement in local papers in which it stresses that all-saver accounts may not be for everyone.

"For example," Farrell said, "if you are in a 30 percent tax bracket and most of your income is derived from interest, all-savers won't help you one bit." The bank gives each customer who inquires about all-savers a slip of paper clarifying the "once in a lifetime" aspect. Only $1,000 in total interest is tax free, not $1,000 per year or per account but $1,000 total.

Farrell acknowledges the certificate will be a boon to small savers, and he likes the idea of offering some interest tax-free. But he thinks it will take a lot of small deposits to make a difference in the amount of real estate money available.

Another problem for many small banks will be the paperwork involved.

"At the end of each quarter, the bank has to prove to the government that it invested 75 percent of all-saver deposits in real estate loans," Farrell said. "If the bank can't prove that, it's barred from offering them for the next 90 days." Documenting those loans and deposits could be a problem for smaller institutions.

Farrell wasn't sure just how much response the bank would have after all-saver certificates became available Oct. 1.

"It's hard to tell the lookers from the takers," he said. "A lot of people in rural areas like to keep their money fluid. They're willing to take a lower rate of interest to have ready access to it."

Campus Briefs

The Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports has announced hours for the Recreation Center climbing wall from Oct. 19 to Nov. 21. The hours are 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday. Clinics will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays and 4 to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Groups may schedule times to use the wall by contacting the office at 536-5531.

David Fauri, head of the Division of Social and Community Services in the College of Human Resources, has been invited to be on the Committee on National Legislation and Administration Policy for the National Council on Social Work Education. He will serve a three-year term on the 10-member committee, which monitors federal legislation and regulations affecting social work education, makes recommendations to the board and represents the council through testimony before Congress and administrative agencies.

Dawn Harriett, graduate student in recreation administration, has been appointed program director of the Jackson County YMCA, according to Gil Kroening, president of the YMCA's board of directors. Harriett will be responsible for administration of the school-age youth and adult programming in both aquatic and non-aquatic activities.

Two students in the School of Agriculture have received Alpha Zeta scholarship awards. Rodney Clark, a senior in agrribusiness economics, received a $300 Leisure Scholarship, awarded annually to a member of the SIU-C chapter of Alpha Zeta who is continuing his or her education. James Lewis, a senior in agricultural education, received a $450 National Alpha Zeta Scholarship.

Service projects now have a home in Anthony Hall

The Office of Regional Research and Service has moved into permanent quarters in Anthony Hall.

The creation of the office was proposed in May by the University Task Force on Service in a report to President Albert Somit. The office was established to concentrate on regional economic development, Somit said.

It will serve as a clearinghouse and organizer of service projects by SIU-C faculty and staff, according to Elmer Clark, director of the office.

Clark, dean of the College of Education, said he hopes to "implement and stimulate a program of regional research and service."

"We've talked a great deal about this idea," Clark said, "but we need an agency which will give service a focal point in the University."

Informing guests of parking rules may avoid hassles

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

Students planning to entertain out-of-town guests
 Homecoming and Halloween weekends should inform visitors about SIUC's parking regulations so their cars won't get towed, according to Lt.
 Marvin Braswell of the SIUC
 Security Police.

He doesn't want to see repeat performances of Parents' Day weekend, when "quite a few"
 cars were towed, he said.

"Students need to inform their guests that if they park on lawns or in spaces designated for the handicapped, their cars will be towed," Braswell said.
 "People visiting for the weekend are usually on tight schedules and it's a real hassle
 if their car gets towed."

Braswell said the Brush
 Towers and Thompson Point parking lots are the biggest problem areas regarding illegal parking.

"We try to bend the rules as much as possible for special events," Braswell said. "But we have to tow where cars are blocking traffic or parked on lawns and in handicapped spaces though."

Towing charges vary, from $15 between 6 a.m. and 5 p.m., to $20 between 5 p.m. and midnight, to $25 between midnight and 8 a.m.

Three-day guest parking permits are available from the Parking Division, Washington
 Square Building T. The parking office is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On weekends, permits can be obtained from the security office in Washington Square Building A

Bills would require Legislature's OK

for waste plants

A three-bill package that would require Illinois legislative approval of nuclear waste or reprocessing plants before they can be licensed to operate in this state has been introduced in the Illinois Senate.

The bills would prohibit licensing of any low-level nuclear waste dump site by the Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety or any state agency unless the site has been approved by the Legislature; prohibit the licensing of a commercial reactor for fuel reprocessing plant without legislative approval, and require that any agreement by the governor relating to nuclear waste be approved by the Legislature. Any such agreements would have to be kept on the public record for 30 days.

Sponsoring the package are Senate President Philip J.
 Rock, D-Oak Park, and Sens.
 Kenneth V. Buzbee, D-
 Carbondale, and Jerome J.
 Joyce, D-Essex.

Last February, the Illinois
 Geological Survey released a report that showed many areas in downstate Illinois to be geologically suitable locations for low-level waste dump sites.

"The governor has mentioned repeatedly his desire to make Illinois the host state for a 12-state, low-level nuclear waste repository. I submit that he will first have to sell such a package to the General Assembly before even an ounce of waste crosses our border," Buzbee said.

'Rich and Famous' talks, talks and talks an old tale to death

By Michael Schmidt
Steadfast Writer

"Rich and Famous" is a film which offers lots of talk and little more.

The film is based on John Van Druten's play "Old Acquaintance." First made into a film in 1943 by Vincent Sherman, it starred Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins. "Rich and Famous" is a "modernized" version of the old film, which simply means there is some swearing and sex.

Jacqueline Bisset plays Liz, the intense, New York artistic and intellectual writer. She goes through periods of self-debate and often has conflicts with her best friend, Mary (Candice Bergen). Mary is a divorced, down-home, self-driven woman who writes very popular but trashy novels.

The movie drops in on the women at four times in their lives: 1959, 1969, 1975 and 1981. Most of the film, though, concentrates on Liz and her assorted affairs as a middle aged woman in 1981.

Throughout the movie Mary acts as a foil to Liz and, when at her best, as comic relief. Mary says many lines which have the potential of being humorous, but fall short because Candice Bergen does not have the delivery of a comedienne.

Jacqueline Bisset's radiant face fills the screen a good part of the time. This was intended either to be the film's only redeeming visual value, or might have something to do with the fact that Bisset helped produce the film.

My biggest complaint is the weariness of all the talk, talk, talk. The director, George Cukor, 82 years old and a veteran of Hollywood cinema, seems to have just discovered that a person's voice can be synchronized with their moving lips.

Talking heads dominate the film. After one conversation is finished and a new locale established, another conversation soon ensues. The scenes end when the conversations end. Often, the conversations are shot in long, lingering takes of two people simply talking. These long takes add to the slow, plodding pace of a film intended to be light and humorous.

Review

The only time anything besides talk happens is when Liz takes time out for a bit of sexual fun. These little flings are strategically placed so as to keep the viewer's attention.

"Rich and Famous" deals with two independent, "modern" women. "Rich and Famous," however, was directed by a man. The screenplay was written by a man, as was the original play, and you can bet your boots that anyone behind a camera or light in this production was a man.

It is true Bisset helped get the production under way but Cukor, according to Film Comment, obviously took the reins of control once production got under way.

Very simply, what we experience when we watch "Rich and Famous" is another film about women made from the male perspective.

The next time Hollywood delights in depicting the independent woman, or any woman, it would not only be nice, but appropriate and well overdue for a woman to write and direct it.

However, don't hold your breath.

Poll finds public believes insanity defense overused

NEW YORK — Americans believe too many people accused of murder use the insanity defense to avoid prison, and say court rules should be changed so there is no 'insanity plea in murder cases.

The latest Associated Press-NBC News poll, of 1,601 adults telephoned Sept. 28-29 in a nationwide random sampling, said 87 percent think too many people accused of murder are using the insanity defense to keep from going to prison.

In addition, 69 percent said court rules should be changed so that defendants accused of murder cannot plead innocent by reason of insanity. Twenty percent said courts should continue to allow people on trial for murder to plead innocent by reason of insanity.

Traditionally, defendants who prove they did not know right from wrong or could not control themselves at the time of the crime can be found innocent by reason of insanity. Instead of receiving a prison sentence, they can be sent to mental institutions and released when psychiatrists say they have recovered.

Former SIU-C student has received a Fulbright Research Scholarship from the government of the Netherlands to do research on the geology of coal formation.

Robert A. Gastaldo, who received his doctorate in botany from SIU in 1978, will leave for the Netherlands in March to do research on the geology of coal formation. He will be participating in the Netherlands-American Commission for International Exchange Program. Gastaldo was one of five Americans chosen to participate in the program, which will last until September 1981.

Gastaldo is currently an assistant professor of geology at Auburn University in Montgomery, Ala. He is researching conditions for coal formation in the southern Appalachian Mountains during a geological time-period known as the Westphalian stage.

In addition to giving lectures, Gastaldo will research the coal-forming process of northern Europe, which he said was similar to that of the southern Appalachians. He said he will be comparing plant fossils from the two regions to see if the same plants existed in the regions during the Westphalian stage.

Gastaldo, 30, also holds a master's degree in botany with a minor in geology from SIU. He completed his undergraduate studies in 1972 at Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pa. Gastaldo is author of many publications on paleobotany.

New president appointed for Du Quoin State Fair

John Jabr, 31, has been named president of the Du Quoin State Fair.

Although Jabr's father, Saad Jabr, bought the fair in 1979 from William Hayes, the appointment marks the first time the Jabr family has been directly involved in the fair's operation.

Jabr's appointment results from the resignation of Curt Greene, who recently left his post as the fair's vice president and director of public relations to become general manager of one of the nation's largest standardbred horse sale companies, Tattersalls Sales Co., in Lexington, Ky.

Greene remains as an advisor to the fair's World Trotting Derby.

Jabr fills the post of Norbert Bartosik, who left the fair for a post at the Antelope Valley Fair in Lancaster, Calif. Greene was to have filled the vacancy left by Bartosik.

David Emerson will serve as the fair's chairman of the

Protest group posts 4,000 anti-nukes signs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Greenpeace Foundation claimed responsibility Tuesday for plastering 4,000 bogus radioactive warning signs along highways in four Western states in a protest against nuclear waste shipments.

The signs, saying "ALERT. Radioactive Zone," were discovered Tuesday on highways in California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah. They triggered some phone calls from anxious motorists, authorities said.

Officials in at least two states planned to bill the environmentalist group for the cost of removing the signs. A Utah official said prosecution was planned.

Susan LeFever, a Greenpeace spokeswoman, said the signs were posted on the route that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission approved in August for shipping waste fuel from the San Onofre nuclear power plant in San Diego County to a storage facility in Morris, Ill.

The San Onofre plant is owned and operated by Southern California Edison Co., where spokesman David Barron said the signs were "a disservice to the public, as well as littering the landscape."

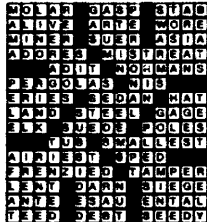

He said Edison has shipped "hundreds" of spent fuel assemblies to a General Electric storage facility in Illinois in the past, but has stored them at San Onofre since Illinois passed a law last year barring storage of out-of-state nuclear wastes there. The law was overturned in court but an appeal is expected.

The 8 by 10-inch yellow signs bore a radiation trefoil insignia and this message: "This warning is being posted in anticipation of a marked increase in shipments of Radioactive Wastes on nearby roads and highways."

Dixon reiterates AWACS opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Alan J. Dixon said Tuesday he is still against the Reagan administration plan to sell AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia but "I will pray on it."

Emerging from a lobbying session in the White House with President Reagan, the Illinois Democrat said, however, that he might change his stand if the administration made two major changes in its AWACS proposal.

Dixon said he told Reagan he might back the AWACS deal if the planes were put under a joint U.S.-Saudi command and certain "enhancement devices," including missiles and bomb racks, were not part of the sale. But following the 20-minute meeting he told reporters in the White House driveway: "I didn't get any impression that those options are available."

"In its present form, I don't see how I can possibly support it," Dixon said.

Dixon was one of 50 signers of a petition circulated last month on Capitol Hill asking Reagan to call off the sale, which is opposed by Israel. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., is believed to be leaning in favor of the sale. The Senate is considering a resolution to disapprove the plan.

Dixon was one of six senators summoned to the White House, one after another, Wednesday to discuss the proposal, most of them opponents. Besides Reagan, he said, the meeting was attended by Vice President Bush and "two fellas that, to be frank, I don't know."

A White House official later identified them as national security adviser Richard V. Allen and chief administration lobbyist Max Friedersdorf.

Asked if Reagan tried to "cut a deal" to get his support on the AWACS matter, Dixon said no. "We just had a nice visit," he said.

"The whole discussion was on the merits," he added.

Dixon said Reagan told him the vote in the Senate "was very close." His own estimate, he said, is that it could be a matter of two or three votes.

Dixon said an unspecified number of senators, including himself, might change their votes if Reagan eliminated the enhancement devices from the sale and arranged to have the AWACS, themselves, under joint command. He said he brought up both suggestions in his talk with the president.

Dixon said he told Reagan he would "pray on" his AWACS decision and the president replied that when he started to pray: "If the line is busy, that's me on the line."

11-3 record gives netters best season

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

What a difference a year can make.

Last year, the women's tennis team finished its fall season with a 7-8 record and lost to top teams like Louisville, Missouri and Memphis State.

One season and four freshmen later, the team finished at 11-3 and defeated all of those teams.

Coach Judy Auld attributed part of the team's success to a great recruiting year. A part of her job she doesn't enjoy.

"Last year was my best recruiting year ever," Auld said. "For the first time I signed my top three recruits. I'm a low key recruiter. There is a lot of time involved and you have to compete with many others."

Auld signed freshmen Amanda Allen, Heidi Eastman and Alessandra Molinari who were important in helping turn things around.

In the No. 2 singles spot, Eastman finished with a 14-3 record. Molinari played in the No. 3 singles slot and compiled a 12-4 record. Allen played in the No. 4 position and ended up at 10-6.

Freshman walk-on Maureen Harney saw limited action in the No. 6 position and ended up at 8-2.

Although it was Auld's best recruiting year, it also may have been one of her toughest. Allen committed to SIU-C early but Molinari had to be imported from Sweden. Eastman had to make a tough decision between SIU-C and Northwestern.

"I'd call Heidi one week and she'd be coming here, the next week she would be going to Northwestern," Auld said. "I told her when she made her final decision she'd know it was right. The last time I talked to her she said she was going to Northwestern, then I got a call in late July and she wanted to play here."

"I was surprised but not completely shocked," she said. "Heidi could go to school and play most anywhere but I think she felt she would be happier here."

Although the newcomers played a vital role in the team's turnaround, Auld pointed out SIU-C's success wouldn't have been possible without her veterans. Two of those veterans are top seed, Lisa Warren, a junior, and sophomore, Stacy Sherman.

"We wouldn't have had the success without the upperclassmen," Auld said. "Lisa did real well in the No. 1 spot. She never had an easy match. Stacy helped us in our doubles. She has an excellent singles game but needs a little more confidence."

As a team the Salukis won 70 percent of its doubles matches with a 44-18 record. The No. 1 team of Eastman and Allen finished at 14-9, the No. 2 team of Warren and Molinari compiled an 11-2 mark and the No. 3 team of Sherman and Mona Etchinson was 13-5.

SIU-C won 60 percent of its single matches by winning 62 and dropping 40.

The 11-3 record is the best in Auld's seven years of coaching at SIU-C, and the nine game winning streak was the longest in the team's history.

Fielders beat St. Louis for first time in 4 years

By Michelle Schwent
Sports Editor

The field hockey team beat arch-rival St. Louis University 2-1 at Musial Field in St. Louis Tuesday.

It was the first time the Salukis had beaten the Lady Billikens since 1977, and SIU-C plays SLU two or three times every season.

The win was more than satisfactory, according to Coach Julee Illner.

"This win was more than satisfying because St. Louis' former coach, Dr. Will Van Beaumont, refereed the game. The kids felt like they beat him too," said an ecstatic Illner.

"We played very aggressively and very offensive minded," Illner said. "I think we played better than we did on Friday against Southwest Missouri. In the past we were too defensive minded, but we went all out offensively against St. Louis. I think St. Louis was a little tougher than Southwest, too."

The first half was scoreless, but SIU-C outshot the Lady Bills 11-0. Goalie Lisa Cuccci made four saves while the SLU goalie made five.

Ellen Massey scored her 19th goal of the season at 6:13 of the second half.

SLU knotted the score on a penalty stroke by Judy Smith at the 25:25 mark. Smith was given the penalty shot because her previous shot on goal had hit Saluki defender Dore Weil in the leg.

The Lady Bills outshot the Salukis 11-9 in the second half and Cuccci made eight saves in goal for SIU-C. Cuccci held the 10-6-2 Salukis in the game through the second half and drew praise from Illner.

Ruggers named all-stars

By Beth West
Student Writer

Two SIU-C Rugby Club players have been chosen to play for this year's Illinois Select side rugby team.

Dave Hanetho, a senior in public relations, and Dan Maher, a first-year law student, have been selected to represent SIU-C on the all-star team, along with players from 10 other teams in the Illinois Rugby Football Union.

The select team is a "springboard to bigger things," said Hanetho, who hopes to someday make the Midwest select team, which is selected from the Midwestern Trials.

Captain of the rugby club and a four-year veteran, Hanetho also has been chosen captain of the select team for the second consecutive year. Hanetho played for the select team last year along with former SIU-C player Keith "Sparkie" Wilcox.

Maher has played for the select team in two previous years but is playing for SIU-C for the first time. Maher began playing rugby six years ago in the Chicago Area Rugby Football Union, while attending Northwestern.

The duo competed in a practice game for the select team Oct. 11 in Champaign and will play against other state teams Oct. 25 and 26 in the Midwestern Trials in Milwaukee, Wis.

SIU-C will host a rugby tournament Halloween weekend at the rugby pitch south of Abe Martin field.

Women athletes deserve inclusion to Hall of Fame

DO THE NAMES JIM HART and Walt Frazier ring a bell?

How about Dot Germain, Candy Miller, Judy Wills, Marie Ballard, and Helen Meyer.

The former are famous members of the SIU-C Hall of Fame. The latter probably are not as familiar. That's too bad, because they should.

They are five of the many outstanding women athletes who have worn Saluki uniforms. And they also belong in the SIU-C Hall of Fame.

Dot Germain, now a professional golfer, helped lead an undefeated women's golf team, coached by Charlotte West, present women's athletics director, to the National Collegiate team championship in 1968. As a senior in 1969, Germain finished second in the National Intercollegiate championship.

Candy Miller became the first woman swimmer from SIU-C to earn All-America honors in 1976. In 1973, her freshman year, Miller won the state title in the 100-yard backstroke and the 200-yard individual medley.

JUDY WILLS BROUGHT recognition to SIU-C with her fine career in gymnastics. Her list of national honors includes being chosen the national Amateur Athletic Union trampoline champ four times, collegiate tumbling champ four times, and an All-American gymnast each of her four years as a Saluki.

Softball Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer insists that Marie Ballard and Helen Meyer both would have won many recognitions, had any been available during their Saluki careers.

Ballard was an outstanding hitter and defensive catcher, and Meyer had the ability to play several positions for the softball team, said Brechtelsbauer.

Meyer, whose nickname is "Hockey", was also a standout in field hockey from 1975 to 1978. She scored an incredible 126 goals in her Saluki career; a feat that still stands unmatched. Although Meyer graduated in 1978, she should be given consideration as a Hall of Fame nomination in the future.

THE SIU-C HALL of Fame was created in 1977 by the SIU-C Lettermen's Club. It was designed to honor male athletes who had earned a varsity letter, were out of school for five years, and had made a contribution to SIU-C's men's athletic program or be successful in his chosen professional field.

The athletes were divided into two groups—before and after 1968. Two selection groups, consisting of lettermen and others familiar with Saluki athletics, were organized to nominate former athletes for selection into the Hall of Fame. Up to 10 athletes were nominated from each group.

Last year the two selection groups were combined. Seymour Bryson, Hall of Fame chairman, said that starting this year only four new members will be inducted annually. On Sept. 12, tracksters Phil Coleman and Terry Erickson, and griders Amos Bullocks and William Freeberg were added to the list of 59 previous inductees in the Hall of Fame.

"The selection committee is made up of 12 men," Bryson said. "They include ex-athletes, professors, and people in the Carbondale community familiar with SIU-C. A nominee needs nine votes to be admitted."

Bryson declined to reveal the identity of the committee members. He said the four-year program is "open for review" concerning its all-male policy.

HARVEY WELCH, DEAN of student life and recording secretary of the Lettermen's Club, said "no woman has ever had a varsity letter from a men's athletic program, which is why none are in the Hall of Fame."

"There has been speculation concerning the possibility of including women," said Welch. "The idea will be put on the agenda of the next meeting of the Lettermen's Club Board of Directors. We will discuss the possible invitation to the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics letter winners to join the hall or perhaps the creation of a varsity letterperson's club."

Welch said the board consists of past letter winners. He said he is "not certain when the board will next meet."

Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West said "if the men want an organization to honor men, it's their right." She said the women's program would "feel awkward, imposing ourselves" if they weren't invited to join the program.

"IT WOULD BE DIFFERENT if University money was used to sponsor it," West said. "It may be a good idea to take another look at the program because of the changing attitudes toward women's athletics. Now women have the chance to play professional sports like basketball. It would be a welcome change if outstanding women athletes received the public recognition they deserve."

Currently, WIA has a banquet each spring where the top coaches and athletes receive awards.

Those awards are, said West, "very prestigious," and receiving one is an honor.

But inclusion in the SIU-C Hall of Fame is what the top women athletes really deserve.

Although the hall was created by a men's organization for the sole purpose of honoring top male athletes, it's time its doors were opened to women athletes. The Hall of Fame selection committee should no longer overlook the outstanding women athletes who have worked hard for and brought national recognition to SIU-C in the past.

The Lettermen's Club Board of Directors should extend an invitation to West and the women's coaches to nominate those athletes they feel deserve places in the Hall of Fame.

Germain, Miller, Wills, Ballard, and Meyer would be appropriate choices for the first women athletes whose pictures should hang beside those of Jim Hart and Walt Frazier.
