Air Illinois officials plan memorial for 3 crew members

By John Racine
Staff Writer

Air Illinois officials are planning a memorial service for its three crew members who died when Flight 716 crashed last week.

Alice Mitchell, vice president for marketing with the Carbondale-based commuter airline, said a memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at McLeod Theatre in the Communications Building.

"We have not made any decisions about how long the service will be," Mitchell said. "The service, she said, will be for Capt. Lesler Smith, First Officer Frank Tudor and Flight Attendant Barbara Huffman. They were among the 10 who died Oct. 11 when a passenger Hawker Siddeley flying from Springfield to Carbondale crashed near Paxtonville.

All three crew members were local residents. They had flown a weekday route together for more than three years, she said.

"We've had so many requests from so many people who were regulars on that flight (from Chicago-Meigs to Carbondale)," Mitchell said. "They were so highly thought of by those who worked with them and flew with them. And by those both inside and outside the company and the industry."

The airline, which services a six-state region, has begun a scholarship fund in honor of the three at the SIU Foundation.

"We said that all contributions should be forwarded to the SIU Foundation."

Siu names governmental liaison officer

Sharon Buchanan McClure, deputy executive director of the Illinois Community College Trustees Association, has been named SIU's new governmental relations officer. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw announced Monday, McClure, 31, will coordinate SIU's relations with the General Assembly and the rest of the state government. Shaw said the responsibilities are similar to those she had with the ICC- TA, an organization of locally elected boards of trustees representing 29 state community college systems.

Sen ate crushes move to block King holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, in a bitter revival of the civil rights debates of the 1960's, crushed 76 to 12 on Tuesday efforts by Rep. John Conyers Jr. of Michigan to block establishment of a federal holiday honoring the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Leading a small group of conservatives, the North Carolina Senator said King's affiliations with "leftist elements and the Communist Party USA" disqualified him for status as a national hero.

Senate leaders agreed to celebrate the civil rights leader's birthday denounced Helms for running a "smear campaign.

A few hours after Helms' arguments on the Senate floor, a federal judge rejected his appeal for release of Federal Bureau of Investigation files on King, saying the documents would further his case that King, a Nobel Prize winner, was influenced by top aides in the civil rights movement who were communists.

He argued that the Senate should have access to the tape in order to investigate claims by civil rights leaders that the FBI was bugging them.

Not only did U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. deny Helms' request to unseal the documents, he also ruled that Helms had a "protectable interest" that would give legal standing to intervene in the 1977 case that sealed them.

King was assassinated on the balcony of a Memphis, Tenn., motel, April 4, 1968. The Senate was scheduled to vote Wednesday on the holiday legislation itself, and Republican officials said it is expected to be approved by a wide margin.

Before the Senate voted against sending the bill to conference committee, Helms sparked a personal exchange with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and FHA officials on King's residences and hotel rooms when Robert was registered.

"His argument is not with me," said Helms, peering across the chamber at Kennedy. "His argument is with the attorney general."

After Kennedy's face flushed and his voice quavering with emotion, replied, "I am appalled that Senator Kennedy is responsible for the memory of my brother Robert Kennedy and misuses it as part of a smear campaign."
City to pay for brick street; lower cost estimate received

By Paula J. Finley
Staff Writer

Restoring the brick street on North Washington Street will cost about $20,000 less than was first expected. The restoration project will cost at least $10,752.

The Carbondale City Council voted Monday night to use up to $12,000 in surplus revenue sharing funds from capital improvement projects to replace the brick street on the 100 block of North Washington Street, instead of using concrete paving as in the original plans. The street will be replaced after a wastewater transfer sewer is laid there this fall and merchants from that block asked the council last week to replace the brick pavement on their block. It maintains the historical character of the area.

A preliminary estimate of $10,752 from a Paxton, Ill. brick restoration company was the winning bid. A Carbondale contractor J. and L. Robinson Development, also bid on the restoration. Robinson is doing the sewer work on the street.

The Paxton firm was able to give a lower estimate because it is accustomed to doing brick restoration and the Robinson firm wasn't. Said Edward Reeder, director of public works. A 5 percent "pass-through" charge that will go to the Robinson company was included in the preliminary estimate.

Four options for the blocks were presented by the council: brick restoration, a bituminous surface costing $23,000, moving the street five feet after a restocking brick restoration at a cost of $7,000, and going with the original $4,500 bid concrete-pave the street.

"The original plan that Kelley voted against the project saying the price was too high. "All things considered I would certainly be in favor of preserving the street, but I think this is too much to pay for it," Kelley said.

Office, staff directory delivered

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

The 1983 Office and Staff Directory has been delivered to University Graphics, and on-campus distribution should be completed Wednesday.

A.B. Mifflin, director of University Graphics, said the directory is the university's annual directory in composition, listing University office locations and phone numbers as well as listings for University faculty and staff members.

Most of the 5,000 directories will be distributed through Telephone Service to on-campus offices, Mifflin said. University offices will receive one directory per telephone, according to Kai Malott, director of Telephone Service. Campus Accessories Service is distributing the directories on campus, he said.

The best way of producing the directory, about $1.25 per copy, was determined by Mifflin and phone bills, he said. The Student Center Bookstore will sell copies of the directory to individuals who want a personal copy, Mifflin said.

The directory, printed by Phillips Brothers Inc. of Springfield, also contains a university directory that provides topical entries and the proper office to contact in regard to that topic. University Graphics conducted a survey of offices listing in the directory to determine if any changes in the directory format were desired, Mifflin said.

The results of that survey indicated that the directory content was satisfactory, and no changes were deemed necessary, he said.

Mifflin said University Graphics considered selling advertising to cover the cost of the directory, but about 85 percent of the people contacted in the survey said that they preferred no advertising in the directory.

communists, "counselor." He said a special Senate committee set up in the 1970s to investigate CIA and FBI abuses of the 1960s had found that the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover had run a "reckless campaign" against King, but turned up nothing to show any foreign control or influence over the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King headed.

The House voted $38 to 99 on Aug. 2 to set aside the third Monday in January as a paid federal holiday by a vote of 338 to 96.

Scientists warn of weather change

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The only way to avert catastrophe from an inevitable buildup of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is to learn to live with major changes that will start showing up in a decade and eventually disrupt food production, and maybe lead to mass starvation by the year 2050, scientists at the Environmental Protection Agency warned.

Scientists at the Environmental Protection Agency warned a world in the next century in which New York City could have a climate like Daytona Beach, Fla., and the wheat belt could belt significantly northward into Canada.

USO to consider bike safety

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

The Student Senate will consider a resolution calling for improved safety measures for bicyclists on campus at its meeting 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Renaissance Room of the Student Center.

The improved safety measures include the posting of "slow" signs at the base of the pedestrian overpasses over U.S. Highway 51 and at other locations on campus. Under the USO directive, speed tape would also be placed on the overpasses about 3 feet above the base. Speed tape is similar in purpose to rumble strips on highways, but does not possess a danger signal, the council will begin an investigation of a possible project.

leave that to the journalists

I'm tired of journalists being berated for doing their jobs well.

First, there is no such thing as "good news," or "bad news" for that matter. News is defined as a change in the status quo that is significant. Whether that change is beneficial or detrimental to the status quo is the issue. In either case, the change is news, not whether or not journalists are using "proven" arguments and statistics mentioned by Sharon Huston, the Hamburg teacher, who has addressed the operational problem discussed above.

These "insensitive acts," as Huston termed them—personally picking up a photograph of an unfortunate local air crash; burning issue of a peace newsletter at a NIRG cameraman filmed while he was shot and killed by the residents of the Guyana; broadcasting the assassination of President Kennedy—by a Nicaragua soldier as the cameraman filmed it—are in line with a more recently, coverage of the shootings of Korean Air Flight 007—are not insensitive acts of journalists and should not be considered near that derogatory.

The freedom of the press that is guaranteed in the First Amendment rests on a firm protection, too, Huston says. While if everyone was allowed to print whatever they wished to, there would be no difference in what should be printed of what was filmed or broadcast? Leave that to the trained journalists, not to the religious sect or the government, i.e. Russia's treatment of KAL 007. Don't they have the right to run their own papers? Is it not their right to inherit qualified of their own that they can never eliminate.

As for the commercialization of newspapers, do you think that just because they are daily fee those journalists on the DE staff should treat news differently? The facts of circulation and the business operation of a publication enter into the minds of as many journalists as you think. Thank you for that, too.

Zelig' one of Allen's best films

By Robert A. Howard
Student Writer

Woody Allen may still be one of America's most misunderstood film makers. At almost every market where a film is being discussed, Allen's name pops up. He has been called everything from an artist to a ninnocompo. The reason? A lot of people still don't understand what it is that he's trying to say, or has been saying since his first film, "Take the Money and Run" in 1969.

He might be more easily understood by contrasting him to another director of equal status. Frank Capra. Capra is best known for his tribute to the common man, which he would always make a hero, in movies of the '30s and '40s. One of the best examples of his work is
"It's a Wonderful Life." (RKO '46).

On the other hand, Allen takes the common man and makes a complete idiot out of him. He does it in such a realistic style, that it will often, if not always, seem overly corny. What he's actually trying to say is society makes an idiot out of the common man, simply by calling him a common man is enough to make the people who know him and care about him.

Capra would take his mental characters and make them bigger than life, giving the audience that you couldn't help but like them by the end of the movie.
Throughout most of Allen's common man characterizations, however, you can't help thinking to yourself, "what a jerk."

"Fifth of July" opens Thursday

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

Weeks of practice have been put in by the director, cast, crew and set designer of "Fifth of July," in anticipation of Thursday evening when the play opens at McLeod Theater in the Communications Building.

The full-length play written by Lanford Wilson is set in the year 1977 and deals with the lives and loves of former student activists who gather at the Tallcy residence in Lebanon, Mo. to recall their college days at Berkeley.

Kenneth Tallcy Jr. and his lover, Jed Jenkins, host the two-day gathering.

"This is a show about people coming to terms with themselves," said director George Pinney. "It's about people finding the beauty within themselves, people learning to face their problems and come to terms with them.

The play involves a tremendous amount of ensemble work. In order to help himself and the eight cast members prepare for the production, Pinney, a visiting instructor in the Theater Department, threw a two-hour improvisation party to help the actors adapt to their characters and the other characters they will be working with.

Pinney directed last December's production of "Cinderella" and choreographed Summer Playhouse's productions of "Oliver" and "Guys and Dolls."

The manner of preparation for effective role-playing isn't the only extraordinary feature of the play. Instead of implementing the conventional theatrical use of flats and backdrops, the set design involves actually building a house on stage -- complete with wall construction.

The set was designed by Peter Michael Beudert, a visiting set designer whose first SIU-C design effort was "Much Ado About Nothing."

"During the first act, the audience will see the interior of the house and part of the porch. Then, for the second act, we'll rotate the house so they'll see the outside of it," Beudert explained.

"Fifth of July" will open at 8 p.m. Thursday. Curtain time is the same for Friday and Saturday, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday. Tickets, which are $4 for the Thursday and Sunday performances and $5 for Friday and Saturday's, can be purchased Monday through Friday from noon to 4 p.m. at the McLeod Theater Ticket Office.

The "Fifth of July" cast gathers for an improvisation party.

Medical practice doesn’t help drug problem, doctor asserts

By Dave Saless
Staff Writer

Doctors are the biggest "pushers" of them all. At least, that’s what Dr. Robert Mendelsohn said in a lecture titled “Confessions Of A Medical Heretic,” delivered at the Fifth Annual Dinner House Banquet in the Student Center Monday night.

Mendelsohn has appeared on numerous national and local television and radio shows. His interviews, book reviews and syndicated newspaper columns have appeared in hundreds of newspapers and magazines, and his numerous professional activities in the field of medicine make him a highly sought-after speaker.

Mendelsohn praised Hill Hall, a drug and alcohol rehabilitation program, claiming the main reason for its success was that it has no physicians on its staff.

"Students in medical school don’t learn about drug abuse and alcoholism," he said, "and that’s why I founded medical school in the country today which requires training in that area.

"Stating that ‘doctors are the biggest pushers of them all,’ Mendelsohn said physicians begin to prescribe drugs for patients before they are even born.

"In 1969, he said, doctors started to prescribe different types of drugs to pregnant women, and today doctors prescribe up to 19 types of drugs to pregnant women. He added that 80 percent of the Valium prescribed nationwide today is given to women.

"I guess doctors just believe women are born with a congenital valium deficiency," he said.

"I have a feeling that if we get ourselves to a point where pregnant women and babies are being given fewer drugs, we still have a chance of getting rid of a lot of social problems — drug abuse included," he said.

Mendelsohn did, however, say this has been a very good year in medicine since four drugs were removed from the market — two of which were Orasphen and Benedicen — and leukemia was linked to the ultrasound tests used on pregnant women.

Within the lecture dealing with physicians and drugs, Mendelsohn mixed in his personal experience of being a physician himself.

"After college, I tried a number of things, one of which was becoming a rabbi," he said. "My mother said that was no job for a Jewish boy." He said he later joined the Navy and tried to enroll in radar school, but failed the enrollment test twice.

"I then was given an aptitude test by the Navy, and that’s how I got into medicine," he said.

On his way to becoming a physician, he said he also took training in psychiatry.

"I learned to never argue with a psychiatrist," he said. "If you’re early for an appointment, the psychiatrist will say you’re anxious. If you’re late, he will say you are hostile and it is the only time you are compulsive.”

Mendelsohn’s experience in the medical world includes serving 12 years as associate professor of pediatrics, preventive medicine and community health at the faculty of the University of Illinois Medical School.

Teachers say junior high kids more grown-up, aware today

By Phillip Fiorito
Staff Writer

Their crazes, distractions and heroes have changed in the last ten years. Three junior high students tend to be more aware and give more thought to the world and the community, a panel of five Southern Illinois teachers agreed.

"We know more," said Edward Bradley, a science teacher at Mahaffie Junior High School in Harrisburg.

"They're aware of current events and of things like sex, earlier," Barbara Byrd, a librarian and Spanish teacher at Central Junior High School, said.

"I don't know why," said George Hopkins Jr., a language arts teacher at Central Junior High School in West Frankfort, agreed.

The teachers compared changes that have occurred in junior high and middle school students since they were that age in a brief session Tuesday night in Wham. David Byrd, a professor in journalism and instruction and media, was moderator.

In terms of support for the teacher and the school, the panel agreed that while parents today are more respectful of their children's education, they are more critical of what goes on in the classroom.

"Parents are more actively involved," Bradley said. "They seem to be genuinely concerned about their kids' education — about what they're learning and not learning."

Hopkins said "They expect something out of us and we deserve some of that criticism."

Catherine Hammersley, a science teacher at Mahaffie Junior High School, said parents are more supportive, but many seem unsure of their role.

Students from ages 10 to 14 have found different ways to spend time outside of the classroom. Video games and "Dungeons and Dragons," a popular fantasy-action game, have replaced baseball cards and comic books. And, of course, television creeps into another problem.

"I varis said she has to compete for students' time more than ever now."

"Competition with TV and other things is a real problem for us," she said. "They would rather do that than listen to nous and prouls."

Hammersley said some students spend a lot of time on games where they can make "their own decisions," which she said may be the attraction students find for "Dungeons and Dragons."

The most appealing aspect of junior high students is their will, Hopkins, who will sometimes stop class and laugh because a student has said something funny.

But because they lack experiences, Hopkins said, students can sometimes come off as obnoxious.

Hammersley said another problem is the students' lack of respect for their peers, though at times, she said, they can be very "vital and dynamic."

"Bradley said it's not necessarily the brightest student that makes his day, but the one who's always prepared and ready to work."

Park board seeks candidates to fill seat

Carbondale Park District commissioners are seeking candidates to fill a seat vacated by Jesse L. Warriner, who resigned from the board last week.

To be eligible for the board, candidates must be qualified voters in the district and may not be serving on any other office.

Three arrested for resisting Mall police

Three Carbondale residents were arrested and charged with battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct after a fight between the two in May, University Mall security officers Monday night.

Carbondale police said the fight occurred at 6:24 p.m. when they were called to a report of shoplifting at Meijer Department Store, were approached by the officers.

Arrested were Terry S. Brown, 29, 306 S. Graham Ave., police said.

Miss Brown, charged with battery, resisting arrest disorderly conduct and damaging property, was released after posting $100 cash bond. Scott, charged with obstructing a police officer and disorderly conduct, was released on a notice to appear in court.

Brown, charged with battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct, was released to Jackson County jail to await an initial court appearance.

Three candidates seek junior high school spots

Three Southern Illinois University Carbondale students have submitted the necessary paperwork and are qualified to be considered for the Board of Education to fill the vacancy that has been created by Jesse L. Warriner's resignation.

The candidates are: Mae Brown, 20, 336 S. Lake Heights; and Jacqueline Scott, 20, 336 S. Graham Ave., police said.

Mrs. Brown, charged with battery, resisting arrest disorderly conduct and damaging property, was released after posting $100 cash bond. Scott, charged with obstructing a police officer and disorderly conduct, was released on a notice to appear in court.

season records in pass completions, with 182, pass attempts, with 388, passing yards, with 2,119, total offensive yards, with 2,118 and most offensive plays, with 400.

He won't be able to equal those totals this year, though. The game-ending knee and ankle injuries that Johnson suffered in the season opener at Western Illinois sidelined him for the next two games and for most of a third.

"I felt terrible when I was soaking my knee and ankle in an ice bucket. I felt alienated, left out of the family. It sure made me appreciate practice when I came back." Even though Johnson completed 24 of 43 passes for 310 yards and three touchdowns last year against Arkansas State, the game is not his favorite performance.

"I didn't enjoy it because we got beat," he said.

"I completed three of seven passes for six yards against Northern Iowa this year," Johnson said. "That doesn't sound good, but it was the first game I had played since I was injured. I felt grateful to be back and contributing to the team. "When I was first injured, I thought that I had ripped up my knee. I was afraid I wouldn't be able to play back." He has come back. In the three games since he returned against Northern Iowa, Johnson has completed 43 of 78 passes for 593 yards and four touchdowns, along with four interceptions. But Johnson said he is not thinking about individual glory.

"When your team's winning," Johnson said, "that's all you think about. When your team's losing, the players tend to go for the individual performance." We've come such a long way," she said. "I'm not feeling bad. Everyone has improved, not just our top runners. It didn't come easy, though. We had to work hard. We're always rewriting our personal best times. The team is not at a standstill. We're getting better, not worse. Whatever we're doing must be right.

"The team is more motivated to run than last year. Everyone is out to run. Plus, this year Don has come back. In the next two games and for the rest of the season, the players tend to go for the individual performance. "The team is more motivated to run than last year. Everyone is out to run. Sophomore is leading the way for rapidly-improving harriers

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

Lisa Reimund has set the pace for the women’s cross country team.

Reimund has moved into the No. 1 position on the team and holds the third spot on the all-time list of best Saluki times. Despite starting the season as a question mark because of an injury, she has fully recovered and is enjoying a banner season. The best part is that she’s only a sophomore.

Reimund, from Troy, Mich., was involved in our track her sophomore year of high school, but that didn’t last long. “My coach wanted me to run cross country so I could improve in track,” Reimund said.

“I needed up liking cross country better. I had a lot of fun, but I didn’t get interested until high school.

“My family is really athletic,” Reimund said. “My dad influenced me to run and he still motivates me. In high school he got upset with me when I didn’t run well, but he would always tell me I could do better.”

Considering Reimund’s high school situation, it’s hard to believe she is still involved in cross country.

“My high school coach was the most negative person in the world,” Reimund said. “He never praised me. No matter what I did, he wasn’t satisfied. My dad would have to tell me I was good after my coach told me I was bad.”

Reimund was in a cost for eight weeks last summer because of a double stress fracture she suffered at the end of track season in May. After the cast was removed, three weeks of physical therapy followed. Reimund said she was apprehensive about coming back to SIU-C after the summer. She was not in shape and a new coach, Don DeNoon, had replaced Claudia Blackman.

“When I came down for practice, Don was real good,” Reimund said. “He was very careful with me. He worried about what he wanted me to do and he wouldn’t let me do more.”

“He has helped me so much,” Reimund said. “When he says something, I believe it. He has helped me to believe in myself. He’s always giving positive input, saying things like ‘You’re the best.’

While there are other things important in Reimund’s life, running does not take a back seat to many.

“If I couldn’t run, I’d die,” she said. “I can’t see my life without running. There are days when I don’t want to work out, but I think about how much better it will make me for my next performance. If I don’t want to make myself better, I won’t improve. The harder the work, the better.”

Reimund does not let her body feel being tired. She believes in giving 100 percent, whether she is tired or not.

“When I run at workouts, I’m quiet,” she said. “I always give it my all and the best I can. If someone gives me a challenge in practice, I do my best to meet that challenge. I never tell myself I’m tired and just stay in the back. It seems like running is 90 percent mental. If you think positive, positive things will happen. You’ve got to want it.”

“Getting completely satisfied with performances can be a woman’s worst enemy,” Reimund realizes this.

“I feel like a whole different runner compared to last year,” she said. “I guess it’s a combination of my preparation and my coach. It has definitely been beneficial.”

Women netters rest with 11-5 mark

By Darryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The women’s net squad will benefit from an 8-2 mark. Sophomore is leading the Women netters rest with 11-5 mark

When Auld’s netters were swept by Vanderbilt, according to Auld, her team was good enough to beat Louisville, Illinois, and probably Illinois. The Salukis fell by a 5-4 count to SIU-E and lost some matches away. Our mental game was not strong at that point in the season.

It was difficult to knock SIU-C’s game last weekend. Alessandra Molinari and Heidi Kramer will be tough to dispose from the top three positions next season, but the four through six spots could be altered somewhat.

Junior Mary Pat Kramer gave Auld a steady performance throughout the season at No. 3 singles. Kramer went 14-2 and won one big of MaureenHan- nery’s team-leading 15. According to Reimund, who had set the third spot on the doubles team, Kramer was the most mentally tough and never out of a match until the handshakes are completed. Last weekend Kramer lost the first set in every match before coming back to win.

Hamry continued to pile up victories at No. 6 singles, going 10-4 to lead her career mark to 51-22. She broke the Saluki career win record of 74 wins held by Sue Briggs-Krmatanis.

Molinari, Eastman and Kramer will be tough to dispose from the top three positions next season, but the four through six spots could be altered somewhat.

Amanda Allen played at No. 4 and finished at 5-10. Allen was bothered by tendinitis in her wrist the second half of the season, but Auld says an improved mental approach would benefit her game.

Reimund, Auld’s only senior, got out of the gate quickly in passing.

“Auld had said she has the nize strock plays both the baseline and the net well and has become more aggressive in her fourth year. She has a tendency to get down on herself, though. She has the equipment but so much of tennis is mental.”

Auld said her decision was at the top of her game last spring when instead of being side tracked with mononucleosis, and has not regained her confidence since then.

Johnson grateful about getting second life from NCAA ruling

By Jim Leza
Staff Writer

He holds almost every passing record for SIU-C football.

But he could be in the midst of his first undefeated season since he was transferred when he was a senior. He is the starting quarterback for the No. 2 ranked team in 1-A.

Yet, for Rick Johnson, this season could be as a “could have been” year.

Two decisions—one by the NCAA and one by Johnson himself—have enabled him to make this his finest season.

Last year as a senior, Johnson was playing what he thought would be his final football season at Saluki. But on Jan. 21, Johnson found out that the NCAA had granted him an extra year of eligibility because he did not meet the NCAA’s transfer rule.

Johnson found out about the NCAA decision on his 22nd birthday.

It was a beautiful birthday present,” said Johnson, a Carol Stream native from Wheaton North High School. “It felt great when I found out. It was like a second life for me.”

Johnson’s decision, though, was one that he did not make.

“I wanted to quit here and transfer when I was a freshman,” Johnson said. “I felt lousy because I was not playing as a freshman. I thought I was better than what I was.”

One of the four universities that actively sought Johnson out of high school was Missouri Valley Conference foe Indiana State, which is rated No. 14 in the NCAA-AA this year and which the Salukis play Saturday. He kept that in mind during his freshman year.

“I followed Indiana State that season,” Johnson said. “When its coach was recruiting me, he pretty much said that I would be starting as a freshman. The coach told me that the quarterback he had would be moved to wide receiver.”

Johnson said he felt he had been “coached” by Indiana State, because the quarterback turned out to be Reggie Allen. All Allen did in 1979 was lead the Salukis to a 13-0 record.

“It wasn’t until I got to SIU-C that I found I was good enough to be a starter,” said Johnson.

Johnson’s career has taken off since his disappointing freshman year. He has completed 389 of 756 passes for 4,588 yards, each a Saluki record, as well as his 21.4 career completion percentage. Johnson has also thrown for 32 touchdowns, along with 29 inceptions.

Last year was Johnson’s biggest season at SIU-C. He set 11}
