Council to review recycling program report

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The failure of the city's newsprint recycling program is a result of "unfortunate local circumstances" and not an indicator of the viability of recycling in general, says a report prepared by the Carbondale Energy Advisory Commission.

The report, to be reviewed by the City Council today, asks the council to take several steps to stimulate recycling in the region. The report recommends that the city:

- Encourage and assist existing recycling programs in the region by providing publicity and financial backing to the programs.

- Set an example for the public of how recycling programs can operate in the workplace by expanding its in-house recycling program.

- Seek "political and

- monetary support" for the development of waste management technologies, including waste-to-energy facilities, source separation, cogeneration and other processes that convert wastes to usable products.

- Monitor federal and state legislation affecting waste disposal.

- Continue to take the lead in exploring recycling alternatives for the area.

- Increase the budget of the city's Housing and Energy Division to "allow for the professional time needed to adequately address" the recycling issue.

"...Recycling is neither uneconomic nor an outmoded, idealistic pipe dream," the report says. "It is unfortunate that current circumstances have made it difficult for us to locally operate successful programs."

The report acknowledges that it is difficult for small recycling programs such as Carbondale's to succeed because of the "cyclic nature of the recycling commodities market."

"Recycling programs must either be of a viable size and diversity or integrated into a larger system of geographically distributed

Dems leading despite odds, says Simon

By JoDe Rimar
Staff Writer

Calling the election of extremist Lyndon LaRouche followers to the Democratic ticket a "test of truth," Sen. Paul Simon said the Democratic Party will endure despite such obstacles.

The Makanda Democrat spoke to about 350 people Sunday at a fund-raising event for Adlai Stevenson, a Democrat running as a third party gubernatorial candidate. The event was held at Simon's Makanda home.

Simon compared the gubernatorial race between Stevenson and Republican incumbent James Thompson to the 1948 Dewey-Truman election, saying that Truman won despite predictions because he "did the right thing."

"In this race in Illinois, Adlai Stevenson is doing what is right by saying he can't be associated with the LaRouchites," Simon said.

"We knew we could do it," Simon said, and held up a Sunday Chicago Sun-Times with a headline that read "Adlai Gaining on Thompson."

Stevenson is running on the Solidarity ticket to escape running with LaRouche extremists Janice Hart and Mark Fairchild.

He charged Thompson with making deals with lobbyists who contribute to his campaign and said the corridors of Springfield are "jam-packed" with lobbyists who "want to make a deal."

"There are more lobbyists in Springfield than there are in Washington," Stevenson said.

Way paved for East-West security accord

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Delegates from 35 NATO and Warsaw Pact nations agreed in principle Sunday on an accord to reduce the risk of war in Europe by setting guidelines for mandatory notification and inspection of troop movements.

The agreement, which came after the delegates resolved the two final stumbling blocks, paved the way for the first major East-West security accord since the Salt 2 treaty in 1979, which was never ratified by the United States.

Delegates said all that remained was to fine-tune the agreement, reached after 32 months of talks that were scheduled to end Friday but were extended in a bid to forge an accord designed to prevent the accidental outbreak of war in Europe through the misreading of intentions during troop movements.

The agreement was expected to be adopted at a plenary session late Sunday attended by delegates representing the United States, Soviet Union, Canada and all of Europe except Albania, or at Monday's final ceremony.

"This is a good agreement which will make Europe a more stable and safe place," said chief U.S. negotiator Robert Barry. "This is not the end of the road but an important beginning. We will now keep a close watch on the implementation."

"This is a very good agreement, perhaps unique in East-West relations," Soviet chief negotiator Oleg Grievsky said. "For the first time, we have inspections, a very deep exchange of information. It forms the basis for a real security system in Europe."

Delegates agreed in principle Sunday to technical

Group hopes to register 5,000 disabled voters

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The Partnership for Progressive Approaches to Disability Issues will resume its voter registration drive Tuesday at the Southern Illinois Center for Independent Living, 780 E. Grand.

The drive will continue Wednesday in the community room of Carbondale Towers, 800 W. Mill.

The drive is part of the national "Disabled But Able to Vote" campaign.

The drive began Tuesday at the Field Apartments, 700 S. Lewis Lane, which was chosen "because of its considerable population of persons with disabilities," according to a partnership news release.

"In planning this local drive, it was decided to take it to persons with disabilities. Rather than require them to go to a possibly inaccessible location, this drive is going to areas where persons with disabilities live," according to the release.

The campaign isn't intended to endorse candidates or political parties, according to a campaign news release.

"We have been challenged by some Chicago organizations to do as much as they do and we're doing our best to do that," said Sam Potter, publicity chair for the partinership.

He said the goal is to register 5,000 people.

"It is a little bit optimistic, but we're going to give it our best shot," Potter said.

This was the first year for this campaign, and Potter said the partnership intends to make it an annual event.

There will be 64 polling places in Jackson County, each with an accessible booth.

IMF managing director to announce resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The managing director of the International Monetary Fund for the past eight years plans to announce this week that he will resign at the end of the year, The Washington Post said Sunday. Jacques de Larosiere surprised the IMF's executive board with his decision at a meeting Friday, the Post said. De Larosiere will publicly announce his resignation during his annual address to the joint IMF-World Bank meeting that begins in Washington this week.

Japan to ask countries to be in Olympics

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said Sunday Japan will use its diplomatic influence to persuade "as many countries as possible" to take part in the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul. Nakasone made the statement before returning home from an overnight stay in Seoul, where he attended the opening ceremony of the 10th Asian Games and held talks with South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan.

Constitution draft faces detailed debate

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Opposition and government officials have begun private meetings to try to resolve key differences that could hinder this week's article-by-article debate of a draft of Nicaragua's first constitution since the 1979 revolution, a political official said Sunday. The private bilateral meetings between opposition parties and the leftist Sandinista Front are aimed at smoothing over the differences and preventing an opposition boycott of National Assembly debate opening Tuesday on each of the 198 articles in the draft.

Doctors urged to take voluntary drug tests

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida Medical Association adopted a resolution Sunday urging doctors to take voluntary drug tests as an example to their patients and colleagues for physicians nationwide to do the same. The resolution was adopted in a unanimous voice vote by the approximately 300 members of the House of Delegates, the policy-making body for the 15,000-member association, on the last day of a five-day meeting.

Scientist compares layers of onion to sun

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The sun, often described as a blazing gaseous sphere, may be layered like "an onion" with each layer of turbulent gas spinning at its own rate, a scientist said Sunday. "Our observations tend to support an emerging view of the sun as a rotating spherical shell containing three separately rotating shells," said University of Southern California astronomer Edward Rhodes.

Stuntman dies after missing mark in free-fall

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A movie stuntman making a free-fall jump from a seventh-floor fire escape on a downtown building died after hitting the pavement, authorities said. Brett Smrz, 26, hit the edge of a 20-foot-square air bag designed to break his fall and struck the pavement in front of a warehouse at 9:15 a.m., said fire department spokesman Jim Williamson. Smrz suffered massive head injuries and died shortly after 10 a.m. at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Plan to trace Lindbergh flight ends on highway

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — An emergency landing on a highway has snarled plans to follow Charles Lindbergh's historic trans-Atlantic path in an alcohol-fueled airplane, one of the plane's two navigators said Sunday. Baylor University professor Max Shauck, 50, landed the craft on U.S. 331 on the southern edge of Montgomery Saturday. Neither Shauck nor his co-pilot, John Russell, 52, of San Antonio, were injured during the landing that damaged the craft.

Liz Taylor honored for AIDS fund-raising

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor, appearing at an AIDS benefit, pledged her life to fight "the bigotry, the lack of understanding" that is hampering the effort to find a cure for the fatal disease. The Oscar-award winning actress was honored Saturday night at a show that raised nearly $1 million for AIDS Project, an organization that offers educational and psychological services to victims and their families.

People don't support Contra aid, vets say

By Patricia Edwards
Staff Writer

The United States is violating its own Constitution and international law by supporting proxy killers in Nicaragua without the support of the American people, said a group of U.S. war veterans protesting the nation's foreign policy.

Local groups supporting this view include the Southern Illinois Latin American Solidarity Committee and the Pledge of Resistance. The two groups gathered in front of the Federal Building Friday to bring attention to their cause. Some people joined with the veterans by fasting for the day.

Charlie Liteky and George Mizo began a "Fast for Life" Sept. 1, in Washington, D.C. Two other veterans joined them on Sept. 15. Liteky, a Vietnam veteran, recently abdicated his Congressional Medal of Honor at the Vietnam Memorial in protest of United States intervention in Central America, likening current policy to that of Vietnam.

Citing a recent nationwide poll, which indicated that 62 percent of the American people were opposed to Contra aid. The protesters said, "There is no broad base support in the United States for aid to the Contras."

The results of the poll were released just before Congress approved $100 million worth of "killing power" to the Contra cause, said the protesters.

"It is inconceivable to us that a body of legislators could then so grossly depart from the expressed will of the people who elected them," the veterans said.

The memory of Vietnam should remind the nation that a war waged without the support of the people is doomed to failure, said the protesters.

Local protesters said their efforts received positive support from passersby. People waved, smiled, and honked in recognition of their cause. One man on his lunch hour stopped, got out of his car and asked to sign a letter of support that the local groups were sending the veterans in Washington, D.C. One man spit.

S. Brian Willson and Duncan Murphy joined the water-only fast on Sept. 15. Duncan is a World War II veteran and the others are Vietnam veterans. Their goal is to inspire a stronger protest movement.

"It's making a lot of people think," said Georgeann Hartzog, one of the local protesters.

"It's not just an issue that's on the news every once in a while. It is an important issue," says protester Steve Newbill.

People in the State Department leak misinformation about what's going on in Nicaragua, Newbill said, giving the American public a distorted view of the situation.

"It is a terrorist war," Newbill said. "The government is waging pure terror on people, civilians in Nicaragua."

Newbill supports his statements with studies by Amnesty International which indicate that the Contras are guilty of crimes against humanity by killing civilians and burning crops.

Former members of the unpopular Somoza regime, ousted in 1979, comprise 95 percent of the top leaders of the Contra army, a letter from the veterans says.

"There is no broad based support in Nicaragua for the Contras," the letter reads. Ninety-five percent of the top leaders of the Contra army are former Somoza leaders, the protesters claim. The Nicaraguan people already voiced their opposition to that regime when they ousted the Somoza party in 1979, they said.

The U.S. Constitution advocates the right to self-determination by individual nations. International law forbids the intervention of one state in the internal or external affairs of another.

Randy Patchett, Republican congressional candidate, outlines his plan for economic prosperity for Southern Illinois at a press conference Friday.

Patchett says he'll attack acid rain with coal research

By JoDe Rimar
Staff Writer

Calling pending acid rain legislation a Band-Aid solution, Randy Patchett, Republican candidate for the 22nd District, said if elected he will attack the problem by acquiring federal funds for further coal research. Patchett spoke at a press conference Friday at Williamson County Airport.

The legislation, Acid Deposition Control Act of 1986 or the "Waxman" bill, would create more stringent laws for coal burning industries, by raising standards of cleaning up high sulfur coal.

If the legislation is passed, Patchett said it could mean an increase of up to 17 percent in utility costs, and the loss of about 8,000 jobs in Southern Illinois.

"There is going to be a solution to burning our coal, but it is not going to come from passing this bill," Patchett said. "The solution will come from research, which will show people how to clean our coal so that it can be burned efficiently," he said.

Patchett outlined his six point plan for economic prosperity, which includes creating a Clean Coal Research Task Force and plans for an increased share of federal research funds for SIU's coal research facility.

Patchett said he will seek a seat on the House Energy and Commerce Committee to help develop new markets and technologies for Southern Illinois coal industry.

Patchett said he plans to support the Reagan administration in policies to expand export markets for agriculture products through increased funding for the import export bank.

War is on demand, not drug supply

In all the political hype taking place during this election year, let's hope politicians realize it should be a war on demand, not supply.

Washington already spends $1.5 billion on drug enforcement and border interdiction. That's a lot of money for personnel and radar planes. Yet drug trafficking profits are so great, traffickers could match the United States person for person, gun for gun, plane for plane.

Ignorance may be bliss, but not when it comes to drugs. Education about drugs and what they do to a body is the best preventive step. If more people were aware of all the negative effects of drugs, perhaps fewer people would be rushing out to spend money on them.

Drug tests seem to be the "in" thing. Many sports figures are being tested for drugs. Before people can be officially enlisted in the military, they must pass drug tests.

Drugs are here to stay and no amount of money is going to change that. Only education can.

Lady Liberty lies

The elaborate birthday celebration was another slap in the face to many people of color. Her Ladyship has yet to welcome, I think about my brothers from Haiti who sought shelter from political and economic oppression, but at the hands of Ms. Liberty were forced to live in armed camps or died at the mercy of the ocean's fury.

I say to America's people of color, let us not be deceived by the glorious celebration in honor of the Statue of Liberty. Let us simply look at it for what it is—a statue of a woman in muddied waters. — Ronald Wright, senior, Accounting.

Michael Cadena grabs a quick drink on the run during the 10-kilometer run segment, the second leg of the triathlon.

David Bomalski dashes toward shore, where he will change to running gear and mentally prepare for the final two events.

Bess Maxwell makes a hurried change to running shorts, after completing the opening leg, a 1,500-meter swim.

Triathlon . . . Mind over matter

The ultimate test of strength, versatility and endurance was experienced by 113 people Saturday as they competed in the Fourth Annual Little Grassy Lake Triathlon.

Six of the 119 people who were signed up by Saturday apparently regained their sanity and decided not to compete.

The triathlon opened at 8 a.m., when the competitors dove into the chilly water of Little Grassy Lake for the first leg, a 1,500-meter swim. Even at that early hour the temperature had reached 74 degrees on a day forecast to be hot and humid with highs in the low 90s.

Many racers showed signs of fatigue as they made the first turn in the 10-kilometer run, a warm breeze drying them after the grueling swim.

By 9:30 a.m. the sun was shining brightly, beating down upon the racers. Many runners were somehow able to draw on reserves of strength and put in extra effort in the final 100 yards of the race, setting themselves up for a strong start in the bicycle race.

For some runners, a moment's pause while changing from running to cycling shoes offered a chance to catch a much-needed second wind. Race officials and fans offered moral support to the tiring participants.

Fatigue became apparent as the racers started the last leg of the race. Urged on by crowd members shouting such encouragements as "you only got 20 kilometers left," racers received an extra incentive in a competition that was almost over.

"It's something to do and it feels awesome when you finish," said Bill Sullivan. "Not many things make you this tired."

Ruben Rodrigues was the top male finisher with a time of 1:38:41. Sandy Schreiber was the top female finisher with a time of 1:44:47. In the 18 to 21-year-old age group, Ben Widoff was the top male finisher and Lori Rea was the top female finisher. Michael Lloyd and Nora Lee were the top male and female finishers in the 22-25 age group.

Bryan Warren was the top male finisher in the 26-35 age group, while Elizabeth Heller was the top female competitor. Robert Tucker was the top male finisher in the 36-45 age group, while Bonnie Summers took top honors among female finishers in that age group. In the masters group, those over age 45, Richard Francis took first among the men while Dorothy Burke was the top female finisher.

It was a turn for the worse for Patrick Worst-cycle Dohwick as he crashed near the finish line of the third and final segment, a 20-kilometer bike race.

Workers rally at Catholic shrine

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (UPI) — About 80,000 workers demonstrated at Poland's most sacred Catholic shrine Sunday in support of the outlawed trade union Solidarity and gave founder Lech Walesa a hero's welcome.

"Holy Mary: Defend us before communism," said a banner waved by Solidarity activists, who made a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Black Madonna from Lodz, the textile center of western Poland.

"We demand genuine dialogue and rights for the nation!" said another.

The pilgrims gave Walesa a thunderous ovation, chanting "Solidarity! Solidarity!" when he appeared before the crowd in a black suit with a Solidarity badge, waving and flashing a victory sign.

But Walesa did not address the crowd, estimated at 80,000 by reporters, explaining later, "Somebody might think that we are plotting in Czeszochowa."

Among the crowd were several Solidarity leaders freed this month under a government amnesty for political prisoners. They included Bogdan Borusewicz and Bogdan Lis, leaders of the Solidarity's underground leadership committee known as the TKK.

Walesa and church leaders have said the amnesty set the stage for new talks with the communist government on legalizing Solidarity and other outlawed unions.

recyclers who, with their combined strength, have the capacity to survive the uncertainties of commodity prices, government policy, variable citizen participation rates and a variety of other negative factors."

City Energy Coordinator Bob Pauls, in conjunction with the Shawnee Solar Project, is seeking funds for a feasibility study of a comprehensive, region-wide recycling program, according to the report.

The report states that the termination of the city's newsprint recycling program should not be considered "a blanket condemnation of the success or failure of recycling in general, only an example of what can happen under unfortunate local circumstances."

The program was suspended June 30 after the city failed to attract bids for the operation of the program. Donald McWhorter, the most recent franchisee, did not seek to renew his contract with the city, citing a depressed market for recyclable newsprint.

A similar recycling program run by the University was canceled shortly after the suspension of the city program.

Man charged with waving gun

A student was charged with unlawful use of weapons at The American Tap Friday after reportedly waving a gun in the men's restroom, according to Carbondale police.

Police received a report at 9:50 p.m. from John Wyrostek, a doorman at the Tap, who said he disarmed a man who was waving a gun in the men's room of the bar.

Police arrested Carlos M. Acosta of 800 E. Grand, Apt. C for unlawful use of weapons. The gun was not loaded at the time, police said.

Acosta was released after posting $100 bond, police said.

Student robbed of keys, wallet

A student was robbed, assaulted and his home burglarized Saturday after walking in an alley on the north side of 201 N. Washington, according to Carbondale Police.

Ramin Bahramitash reported to police at 10:53 p.m. that he was attacked from behind, knocked to the ground and had his wallet and keys stolen. Police said his wallet contained identification and $1.

Bahramitash described the suspect who attacked him as a black male, 20 to 25 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing 155 pounds.

"We shouldn't do business like that in Illinois."

Economic growth in Illinois has declined, he said, adding that Thompson has increased spending on welfare, penitentiaries and economic agencies that haven't produced economic development.

In 10 years, funds for education have dropped 25 percent, Stevens said, saying he wants to put human resources, such as education, at the top of the agenda "so we don't have to go on raising taxes forever" to pay for more welfare and penitentiaries.

Stevenson said Thompson plays politics with prisons by promising to build new prisons for economic growth instead of emphasizing what is best for the correctional system.

When asked about efforts to build a medium-security prison in Murphysboro, Stevenson said the decision should not be based on economic need, but on correctional standards.

guidelines for on-site inspection of military activities in Europe and the size of exercises requiring prior notification and outside observers.

The agreement would be the first in which the Soviet Union, or any other nation, accepts mandatory on-site inspection to verify compliance with the security agreement.

After resisting Western proposals for on-site inspection for years, Moscow last month said they would allow them.

Under the agreement, European nations must accept at least three on-site inspections annually. To avoid cheating, a member of one alliance may not carry out a mock inspection of another member of the same pact.

Nations can send four inspectors on 36-hour notice to ensure an exercise is not threatening. The host nation would provide planes, helicopters and crews for inspectors — a concession by the West, which had wanted neutral planes.

Inspectors would decide on flight paths, speed and altitude and would have access to crew charts and maps to ensure locations during the tours, which can last a maximum of 48 hours.

The document requires a 42-day advance notification of military activities involving more than 13,000 men or 300 tanks. The nation holding the exercise must invite two observers from each of the other 34 nations to any exercises involving more than 17,000 soldiers.

The agreement raises the number of notifiable exercises that each side can hold from four to five annually to 17 for the Warsaw Pact and 20 for NATO. The Western alliance was allowed more exercises.

Aquino tells students she was shy in school

NEW YORK (UPI) — Philippine President Corazon Aquino returned to the Bronx college where she graduated 33 years ago and told more than 1,000 cheering students that her election proves "we know what democracy is all about."

Aquino spoke to the enthusiastic crowd of students, faculty members and alumni at the College of Mount St. Vincent after returning from Boston, the city where she and her husband lived for three years in self-imposed exile.

"We have proved to the world that we know what democracy is all about," she said, referring to her victory over deposed Philippine leader Ferdinand Marcos.

Aquino, who wore a conservative blue suit, told the audience she was shy in her years as a student, and few would have guessed the leadership role she would one day fill.

"I would never have believed that I could face the thousands and the millions of people and give them my message," she said. "Most of my classmates will remember me as a very shy girl."

Several times she gestured to the audience and greeted her "fellow Mounties" — students who were her classmates when she graduated in 1953.

The gesture brought further applause from students in the audience.

One of Aquino's classmates said the Philippine president was probably the most successful student in her class.

"I was in math class with her and I'm not worried about the Philippines' finances," said Rose Conte. "She was good in math."

"We lived in the same dorm for four years and she was always quiet and unassuming," said Janet Hannon, another Aquino classmate.

Earlier Sunday, Aquino thanked a congregation at St. Ignatius Church of Loyola, in suburban Newton, for helping fill her husband's "cup of joy before he went home to drain it in sacrifice."

Her address was a tribute to her husband, who spearheaded efforts to overthrow the Marcos government. His murder on their return to Manila sparked internal dissent that climaxed in February with a civilian-backed military revolt.

Critic says women create new film style

By Mary Wisniewski
Entertainment Editor

Film critic Julia Lesage, who spoke after a showing of Euzhan Palcy's "Sugar Cane Alley," said that women directors like Palcy are creating a different style of film making.

"These film makers are aware of imperialism, racism and community survival," said Lesage. These films are spreading a new form of feminism throughout the world, she said. Lesage spoke at the Student Center Auditorium Thursday.

Co-editor and co-founder of the radical film magazine Jump Cut, Lesage is also a teacher who has directed her own films and videos, including two on Nicaraguan home life. The two videos, "Las Nicas" and "Home Life," were shown at a special presentation in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room Thursday.

Lesage said she has noticed the differences between men's and women's directing in feature films particularly.

"The pacing is less toward a climax in women's films," said Lesage. "The action is more in the middle of things — it doesn't build the way it does in men's films."

Lesage said the less dramatic rising and falling action in women's films reflects qualities from women's labor. "Women are always doing the tedious jobs like cooking and cleaning that have to be done over and over again," said Lesage. She said that women's work gives a view of life on a continuum rather than moving toward a climactic goal.

Other aspects of women's social status change how they make films, Lesage said. "We're looked at as the ego tenders," said Lesage, "the ones who look after the children and help the men fight their own battles."

Lesage says that women, like servants, must build a thorough knowledge of their authorities to tend their egos properly. Lesage said because of this women can use that intimate knowledge of people and social situations in their art.

She said that another difference in women's films is that there is more emphasis on ordinary-looking people. "My body would never be accepted in regular Hollywood movies," said Lesage, who weighs more than 150 pounds.

But, in a film like "Sugar Cane Alley," Lesage said, characters like Leopold and his father can be ordinary or even ugly looking.

Bluegrass festival a musical success

By Mary Wisniewski
Entertainment Editor

A Review

When is a bluegrass festival not a bluegrass festival? When it becomes, as did the second annual music event at Evergreen Park Saturday, a Bluegrass and Country festival. This slight change in title, which barely altered the design of the posters, brought an enormous variety of music and people to Saturday's all-day show.

The Southern Harvest Bluegrass Festival is co-sponsored by JPC Consorts, the Carbondale Park District, the Student Center and Anheuser Busch, Inc. Last year's festival drew about 4,400 people.

LAST YEAR'S Southern Harvest Festival featured bluegrass heavyweights Vassar Clements and Doc Watson along with several local combos. Saturday's program represented a wide range of bluegrass and country music with John Hartford, Hoyt Axton, J.D. Crowe and the New South Band, and Michael Martin Murphy. While the show perhaps lacked the purity of last year's festival, each act had its own group of loyalists as the program ranged the history of country music from solo fiddlers to country pop.

The festival, which began an hour later than the scheduled 1 p.m. opened with Carbondale's own bluegrass ensemble, the Wamble Mountain Ramblers. Using all string instruments and sticking to classics like "Foggy Mountain Breakdown," the band insisted on a kind of bluegrass purity that made the Wambles a clean start for Saturday's mixture of country styles.

FOLLOWING THE Wambles at 3 p.m. was the John Hartford, a Grammy Award-winning artist who is one of the most amazing folk musicians in the outdoors. Dressed like a snake oil hawker in a bandless black derby and a neat grey vest, Hartford sang, played fiddle and banjo, and provided his own percussion by dancing on a plank of amplified plywood in his tennis shoes.

Never content with the three-edged sound of fiddle, feet and vocals, Hartford asked the audience to "clap me a little rhythm" and sing along throughout his two-hour set. At one point Hartford paraded through the crowd like the pied fiddler of Hannibal and led them in a free-style square dance.

ONE OF the most interesting aspects of Hartford's music is that while most bluegrass songs are set in Tennessee hills or beneath Kentucky blue moons, Hartford fills his songs with Illinois place names like Pekin and Springfield. Hartford's introduction of Illinois into the bluegrass geography is a reminder of how truly American bluegrass is.

As the second performer of the festival, singer-songwriter Hoyt Axton swung from Hartford's Illinois to Texas, California, and, perhaps unfortunately, the mountains of concert sponsor Busch beer. Though Axton sang a satisfying collection of good-time country music, there couldn't be too many reminders of who was sponsoring the festival.

PLAYING WITH Axton were Rhys Clark on drums, Donna Axton on piano, Buffalo Barlow on bass, Dennis Fitchet on fiddle, Hank Bairo and Michael Curtis on guitar, and Jana Lee Dare and Diana DeWitt on vocals. Curtis, who has worked with Neil Young's Cnr. Horse and co-wrote Southern Cross with Rick Curtis and Stephen Stills, said the group calls itself "The Banana Band" and has played on two of Axton's albums.

Axton, known for such compositions as "Joy to the World" and "Greenback Dollar," is a mountain of a man in a big black suit with a big rich voice that rode over in nine-piece combo like a diesel truck.

IN AN interview before his performance, Axton said he thought interest in country music has gone down in the last twenty years because of Hollywood's music values. "Hollywood thinks in the short term," said Axton, "they think in terms of music fads, but country isn't a fad. It's the best kind of music there is."

One group that has come full circle from being bluegrass purists to country pop stars back to mandolins and fiddles is J.D. Crowe and the New South Band, the third big-name performers of the evening. Featuring J.D. Crowe on banjo, Terry Johnson on mandolin, Bobby Sloan on bass, and Tony King on guitar, the New South Band used the high harmonies and fast picking reminiscent of Lester Flatt and Bill Monroe.

THE NEW South Band, which became big in the 1970s with such hits as "Showboat Gambler" and "Devil in Disguise," has just released "Straight Ahead," an album King says contains a lot of new material, though fewer group compositions.

Crowe said that the band has returned to a more heavily bluegrass format in the last few years. "Every time you add someone, it changes the sound," Crowe said, "and we've had a lot of different people in and out of this band."

Unlike Axton, Crowe thought that the interest in country and bluegrass music "has definitely gone up." Crowe called the Evergreen Park event a "great festival because people like a variety."

CLOSING THE Southern Harvest Festival was Michael Martin Murphy, the three-time Grammy Award winner known for such hits as "Wildfire" and "Geronimo Cadillac." Playing with Murphy was the three-year-old Rio Grande Band that includes Dave Hoffner on piano, Gary Roller on bass, Lee Roy Peeler on drums, and Carmen Accolla on steel guitar and fiddle.

Though Murphy drew a huge following, his more streamlined style of country seemed a little out of place at Saturday's festival. Though a fine musician and singer, Murphy admitted himself that songs like "Once Upon a Time" from his latest album "Tonight We Ride" don't even sound like country.

Assertiveness mini-class set

Individuals may learn how to become more positive, confident and assertive in their behavior at a mini-class offered through the Department of Continuing Education.

A seven-week assertiveness mini-class will meet 7:30 to 8:55 p.m. Thursdays in room 30, John A. Logan College. Brenda Sprague will teach the course.

Students may register at the first class, Sept. 25, providing course openings are still available.

For information contact or call the Continuing Education Department, John A. Logan, Carterville, 543-7335, 542-8612, 985-3741, 937-7456 or 1-800-851-4720.

Annual yard sale a treasure hunter's dream

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

It was a bargain hunter's dream come true Saturday when the Arena parking lot was turned into a giant yard sale.

With wallets at the ready, shoppers explored the 17th annual Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Auction-Yard Sale. Some were searching the rows upon rows of booths for specific items. Everything from a butter churn to a Parmese Python could be purchased. Others were anxious to bid on merchandise at the auction.

As the day began, people searched the clothing racks, paged through old magazines and books and hunted for plants, furniture, homemade crafts and antiques.

THE MORN'NG heat gave a hint of things to come, and as the day wore on vendors turned to homemade fans and to umbrellas for protection from the scorching sun.

But the temperature did not seem to harm business. Bobby G. Windeknecht of Scott City, Mo., who was selling comic books, estimated he would sell about 300 books.

He said comic book collecting has become more popular in the past 10 to 15 years. "Twenty years ago there were not too many people doing it," Windeknecht said. "There were people burning up comics and just throwing them away."

COMIC BOOKS from the 1940s, as "Leave It To Binky" and "Our Gang," were for sale. Also in the collection were "Little LuLu" and "Pat the Bat" from the 1950s. Comedian Bob Hope was featured in the 1965 comic book "The Adventures of Bob Hope."

Ed and Debbie Brantley of Murphysboro attracted quite a crowd around their booth as they tried to sell kittens, puppies, rabbits, chickens and a six-foot male python, "Kaa." Debbie says her 3-year-old daughter, Amber, enjoys playing with Kaa because he is so gentle. "She holds his head and gives him kisses."

YOUNGSTERS SQUEALED with excitement as Debbie picked up the friendly reptile. After being told that Kaa was not poisonous, a few children cautiously reached to touch the python.

Ed Smith of Chester had many customers also. With a real cow skull, a snapping turtle head and a stuffed armadillo, one couldn't help but notice Ed's booth. Ed says his duck decoys are his most popular items.

"There are a lot of friendly people and it's nice weather," Smith said. "It's a little warm, but really nice."

FURTHER DOWN the rows, camouflage outfits, ceramic trinkets, apples and pumpkins, boxes of nails and old washboards were for sale. A lone swan in need of a home swam in a bowl.

Children in strollers reached for stuffed animals and balloons.

People at political booths offered pamphlets and bumper stickers endorsing various candidates.

Mike Stallard of Creal Springs said he was "selling mostly junk, a little of everything." He had old buttons with such slogans as "Dewey for President" and "Remember Pearl Harbor" printed on them.

Shirley Sisi of Carbondale sat nearby, selling her homemade Cabbage Patch dolls. "I look forward to the sale every year," she said.

THE AUCTION was a big attraction for many people. Auctioneer Dick Hunter, as he summoned visitors to the auction, said, "This is probably one of the nicest auctions we've had and we've had some nice ones!"

People gathered quickly to bid on a truckload of merchandise donated by local businesses. A washer, a dryer, a canoe, a computer, a wok and a 1986 Ford Ranger pickup were just a few of the items.

Lee Blankenship of 710 Bookstore worked at the auction and said afterwards that the truck "went for about $7000." The auction "was really successful," he said. "There was a lot of excitement and we sold everything we had. Next year we hope to have about twice as many items and twice as many people."

BLANKENSHIP ALSO explained the slight confusion over how many years the auction-yard sale has been held. "Even though it is the 15th by number, it's actually the 17th," he said. "Some year way back we used the same number twice. Next year we hope to correct that and make it the 18th."

Donald Cameron of Carbondale was the proud owner of the canoe donated by American Fiber-Lite. With the winning bid of $150, Cameron was pleased with his purchase. "I thought it was a lot of fun," he said. "I've been looking for a canoe for about a month now, so this was a really good deal."

Throughout the day, children lined up for pony rides. Some children were anxious at first and clung to a parent walking beside the horse. After a few times around the ring, the children were more relaxed and willing to learn about good horsemanship.

THE CONCESSION stand was a popular place as barbecued pork, sandwiches and soda were served.

As the auction-yard sale drew to a close, there were many tired but happy people. People drove away in pickups loaded with furniture as a few people tried to stuff large plants into small cars.

Children, still full of energy, clutched new toys and raced from booth to booth searching for more treasures. A few weary parents, dragging bags filled with purchases, followed the children for a final race around the booths.

Trying to stay cool, Fred Taylor of Ave sat in one of the rocking chairs at his booth and as he watched some other vendors begin to pack, he reflected on the day. "We've been coming here for about 13 or 14 years. It's a lot of fun," he said.

'Clams' to take regatta challenge

By Ed Smith
Staff Writer

The cardboard boat that won last spring's competition is on its way to legendary status in the rapidly growing sport of cardboard boat racing.

The craft, a pedal-powered-twin-sidewheel creation, will face new challenges at a regatta in St. Louis Sept. 27 and Cardboard Super Bowl I, America's International Cardboard Cup Challenge, Oct. 4 at the Dr. Quinn State Fairgrounds.

The boat was designed and constructed by 12 engineering students who are called the Bearded Clams. It was a class project for associate professor William E. Bower Jr.'s materials science class. It won SIU-C's Great Cardboard Boat Regatta, the Lake Springfield Cardboard Boat Regatta and the America's Cup Regatta in Crystal Lake.

"We knew it was good," said John Guido, one of the designers, "but we didn't know it would do this well."

A racing-canoe-type hull and a ten-speed paddle system contribute to the boat's success. The power plant is graduate student Lynn Irons, winner of this year's Illinois State Championships bicycle race.

Richard Archer, a design faculty member, organized the first SIU-C regatta 13 years ago. Last spring's event drew thousands of spectators and media attention from across the country. Regattas are planned in Texas, Tennessee, Montreal and Paris.

Reflecting the international character of cardboard competition, a boat and crew flew from Australia to compete in the Crystal Lake event last June. Powered by four employees of an Australian boat builder, the cardboard champion of Australia proved to be no match for the Clam's creation.

Academia, world gap concern of instructor

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

In an office with one wall adorned in a Scottish backdrop of blue and green checkered curtains, a brass lamp on a table and a brass hall tree in a corner, Cash Baxter sits with an enthusiastic air of confidence about him.

Baxter, a new instructor in the theater department, teaches advanced acting and directing. He brings with him a lifetime of experience in all aspects of performing arts, including acting, directing, writing and producing.

Baxter's first contact with the University was a musical theater workshop in 1984. He has presented numerous workshops at other colleges and universities and in New York.

"IN MY work — in New York and in show business in general — I inherit the results of those academic efforts on behalf of the other people," Baxter says this is one reason he is motivated to continue his work as a teacher. "I get those kids who get off the bus and say 'Gee, I wanna be a star, what am I gonna do?'"

Bridging the gap between academia and the commercial world is fun, he said.

Baxter says he began teaching in the theater department because "this is where the focus is. It's where people can afford to experiment. It's where well-established stars and personalities are finding more opportunity to work as guest artists."

TWO CAMPUS-based television stations also played a part in Baxter's decision to come to Carbondale. SIU-C is the only university that has two campus-based stations that employ efforts in two departments to feed into the PBS network.

Baxter says that if someone is to survive today in the performing arts, they must know a good deal about all of the ways they can survive.

"In today's market, the director is more and more asked to be a creator in order to maintain control and, as such, that control begins with the idea," he said.

"So, you see more and more in film, television, and in theater — written, directed and produced by — and the reason for that is to maintain control so that you don't lose artistic value in the overall image," Baxter says.

ANOTHER PROBLEM in teaching performing arts, Baxter points out, is non-involvement in the world outside the realm of academia.

"I think that more and more the academian should get involved with the commercial world. He should make himself available to see everything possible in the world of performing arts," Baxter says.

The involvement of outside professionals in the theater department is to be praised, Baxter says, because it keeps everyone on both sides refreshed.

"It seems to me that a danger in academia is that one is a teacher teaching people to be academics and they go off and teach others to be academics and it can become a tiger chasing its tail."

BAXTER SAYS that those who teach performing arts have a great responsibility to answer the needs of those people who pay their hard-earned money to see a live production.

"One evening in the theater is a lifetime of memories," Baxter says.

With the tight economy, many people can only afford to see an event once, it has to be satisfactory or the customer is unhappy, he said.

Baxter says that he tries to teach his students positive thinking.

"I tell my students to always answer the question 'How are you?' with 'I'm terrific!' because it puts everyone within earshot in a positive mood."

AS FAR as advice to unsure theater majors, Baxter says that no one should go into the performing arts if there's anything else they can do that will make them happy.

However, he adds, "even if you aren't talented enough to be on stage, there are many other jobs available within the realm of show business."

Baxter said he is excited about his upcoming year of teaching and directing. "It is my desire to instill in the student the desire to learn," he said. "I want them to try to continue to find ways to answer those creative needs, to live the life of responsibility and to take hold of their lives with realistic goals."

"I'm trying to put the student in touch with himself," he said. "I want them to try to department is a "good department, a department on the grow... and I'm proud to be a part of it."

Baxter will direct "Our Town," which will be presented in McLeod Theater in December.

Women harriers run tough; finish sixth

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The women's cross country team "ran tough," said coach Don DeNoon, but not tough enough to break into the top five at the Midwest Collegiate Invitational held Saturday at Wisconsin-Parkside.

The Salukis finished sixth in a 27-team field with a score of 218 points, slightly by a fifth-place, 178-point performance by Gateway-rival Western Illinois.

Wisconsin-Madison, the defending national champions, secured an overwhelming first-place finish with a score of 21 points. Five Badger runners finished in the top seven to give Wisconsin-Madison an "awesim" performance, DeNoon said. Ohio State trailed a distant second with 91 points.

Vivian Sinou, the Salukis' top runner, finished 11th in the meet with a time of 17:45. The Gateway-leading Sinou challenged the best runners in the beginning, DeNoon said, but she faltered in the last mile.

But some of the runners that the Saluki senior was up against include Badger Stephanie Herbst, one of the best in the nation, and Westwind Patty Murray, who edged Sinou in the 3,000-meter run at the conference meet last year.

This weekend, Herbst crossed the line first with a time of 16:43. DeNoon said he had no doubt that Herbst would win the race. Murray finished fourth with a time of 17:02.

In other Saluki results, Lisa Judisack improved her lifetime best with a time of 18:31 for 24th place. In early action Judisack has steadily made her name known in the ranks of top Saluk runners, notching a third at the Eastern Illinois triangular meet and 13th at the Bradley Open.

Amber Wiencek finished in 58th place with a season best time of 19:21. Freshman Cathy Brown also set a season-best time of 19:29 in the 70th-place slot. Santha Gore placed 82nd with a time of 19:41.

Pettigrew fifth at Kentucky Invitational

By Peter Rechenberg
Staff Writer

The men's cross country team finished 10th in a field of 18 teams at the Kentucky Invitational Saturday. Saluki Andrew Pettigrew placed fifth overall with a time of 25:35, followed by David Lamont at 28th with a time of 26:24.

Indiana won the meet with 70 points followed by Edinboro's A team with 100. Brown University with 126. South Carolina with 151 and Ohio State with 166 points.

Saluki coach Bill Cornell said the Salukis did not run well at all.

"In this type of race you have to start out in the front of the pack," Cornell said. "We lost the race in the first half mile, but I think the team learned a lesson from this meet."

Cornell said the team lacks experience, and this kind of meet will help the team.

Cornell says the Salukis will have a week off before hosting the Saluki Invitational on Oct. 4. Cornell says he will use the full week for practice. He was happy with his runners even though they started out slow.

"Bily Darling is only a sophomore and he ran awfully well," Cornell said. "He turned an ankle and I thought about taking him out, but he was able to finish the race."

"Jack Shepherd is a transfer from DePaul, and he was hurt so he hasn't been able to practice," Cornell said. "David Beauchem is a sophomore and he lacks experience."

Cornell once again praised Pettigrew's ability and thinks he can only get better.

Saluki coach Ray Dorr lectures one of his players on the sidelines during the EIU game Saturday. Dorr and the Salukis had a bad time in a 52-7 loss in which even the lighting system at the stadium didn't work the way it was supposed to.

PANTHERS, from Page 20

Panthers' repeated attempts for two-point conversions late in the game. "And we wanted to show our kids and Southern's kids what we were capable of doing. Maybe we were trying to run it up—they sure buried us the last two years."

Although the Saluki offense moved at times, the effort was dismal at best. Quarterback Pat King, superb last week against Murray State, hit on just seven of 21 attempts.

King was responsible for a poorly-thrown interception that was returned for a touchdown.

EVEN MEL KIRKSY, the Saluki's most dependable offensive performer, was shut down, collecting just 63 yards on the night.

The lone Saluki score came on Paul Patterson's 94-yard kickoff return.

It was even a tough day for the Saluki mascot, who was carried by Eastern's cheerleaders into a crowd of rowdy Panther fans in the stands. After a sparring match with the Panther mascot, the Saluki escaped what the Dogs were getting on the field—a mauling.

Besides Patterson's touchdown scamper, the only thing the 500 or so Saluki fans had to cheer about was the periodic updating of the Nebraska-Illinois game at nearby Memorial Stadium in Champaign. The Illini lost 59-14.

DORR COULDN'T pinpoint an exact reason for his team's collapse.

"It was one of the worst defeats I've been around in my coaching career," Dorr said. "I'm sorry for the players, I'm sorry for the coaches and most of all, I'm sorry for the fans—they deserved to see better and I think they will next week—if they still wanna pay the price to watch—heh heh."

The Panthers' newly-installed lighting system was operating at only two-thirds power because of damage by heavy thunderstorms Thursday and Friday. Full power was not used because Eastern officials feared a power outage.

ALTHOUGH THE lights were on before the game started, they went out and were not on again until well into the first quarter. The 25-second clock was also affected, but was repaired and in use during the second half.

Women netters undefeated in three weekend meets

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team accomplished its weekend goal of winning all three dual matches.

The Salukis, 3-0, started off with Murray State and defeated the Racers 5-4. "Murray State was the toughest team," coach Judy Auld said. "It was a good win to start off dual play."

Last year the Racers beat SIU-C 5-4.

The netters then faced Gateway Conference foe Eastern Illinois and revenge a 5-4 loss from last year with an 8-1 victory.

"EIU lost their top recruit and are a different team from last year," Auld said.

The Salukis third dual match was against a much weaker St. Louis University team, and the netters won 9-0.

"Some of the players let up a little and let their opponent back into the matches during the weekend," Auld said.

Auld said that each player needs to go out with the intention to win and play every match hard. Auld also pointed out that weaker opponents must be put away earlier.

Salukis that went 3-0 in singles play were Ellen Moellering, No. 1, Beth Boardman, No. 3 and Sherri Knight, No. 6.

The other three singles players Dana Cherebetiu, No. 2, Sue Steuby, No. 4 and Julie Burgess, No. 5, finished with 2-1 records. Cherebetiu, Steuby and Burgess each suffered their loss to a Murray State player.

The doubles teams that were able to win all three dual matches were Moellering and

"We still need to work on our intensity and mental concentration," Auld said.

Men golfers tie for 12th place at Murray State Invitational

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Bad luck and nervousness fell upon the Saluki men's golf team, which finished tied for 12th in the 22nd Annual Murray State Invitational this weekend.

Kentucky came from behind to edge Memphis State 891-832 to win the 54-hole event played Friday and Saturday.

After a disastrous first day, the Salukis pulled into a 12th-place tie with Vanderbilt at 932 total strokes.

Before the meet even started, an omen of bad luck followed the Salukis, as torrential rains prohibited practice Thursday. The next day, one Saluki got severe blisters and another had his brand-new putter stolen. But on Saturday despite difficult pin placements, the Salukis fired a 309 — the eighth-best team score of the day.

"We started cold Friday," Saluki coach Lew Hartzog said. "I'm not disappointed. I think they tried too hard. They wanted to win so badly, they got a little tight."

Bobby Favelonis led the Salukis with scores of 77, 78 and 79 for 235 total strokes.

Spikers cage Bears and Tigers; lose to Iowa

By Wally Foreman

The volleyball Salukis trounced the host Tigers but didn't meet their September goal of winning a tournament when they finished with a 2-1 record in Columbia, Mo., at the Missouri Invitational.

The Saluki spikers pounded Mizou 15-11, 15-4 and 15-10 in the opening match Friday. The Tigers wound up with a dismal 0-3 record for the tourney.

All of the Salukis got to play in the Missouri match and, "this helped us work on our depth as a team," Coach

Debbie Hunter said.

Hunter credited an all-around performance from Pat Nicholson and setter Sue Sinclair for the Salukis' win over the Tigers. Hunter also noted the Salukis only had two errors from outside hitters Joan Wallenberg, Teri Noble and Dorothy Buchanan.

On Saturday the Salukis faced Iowa and lost 6-15, 16-14, 13-15 and 8-15.

"We got into a whole different speed in the Iowa match and were not sharp," Hunter said. "Iowa was ready for our hard attack."

Hunter said the Hawkeyes started hitting to Nicholson, made her handle a lot of initial serves and took her out of the offense some.

Collsen Gerrity and Sinclair saw about equal time at the setting position in the loss to the Hawkeyes.

Iowa joined the Salukis and Southwest Missouri with 2-1 records as tops for the journey.

The Salukis handed Southwest Missouri its second loss of the year in a five-game marathon 16-14, 9-15, 15-1, 5-15 and 15-11.

Hunter used "fatigue" as the word to describe the lopsided scores in the third and fourth games against the Bears.

"We were a little tired from the match against Iowa earlier and from being on the road for the third weekend," Hunter said. "Our controlled serving allowed us to emerge victorious."

The spikers got a fine performance from Beth Winsett in the Southwest Missouri match when she replaced Nicholson, who got tired. Winsett had a

.417 attack percentage.

Gerrity paced the Salukis as the setter for the majority of the match. Buchanan was also a key factor with 13 kills and a .303 attack percentage.

Hunter said the spikers need to work on varying the style of play from just hard to just soft and that "could have been a real help in the tournament."

The Salukis' next match is against Evansville Tuesday, Sept. 23 at 7 p.m. The match is the home opener for the spikers. The Salukis take a 7-5 season record into the match.

Panthers eat Salukis alive in 52-7 rout

CHARLESTON — Everything but the lights worked for Eastern Illinois Saturday night, and by the time they came on, all the lights were out for Ray Dorr's Saluki football squad.

The Salukis lost 52-7, and Dorr probably wishes the Saluki offense could have been repaired along with the Panthers' new lighting system. Just about nothing went right for the 2-2 Salukis.

The Panthers won the coin toss and about everything else that followed, racking up a Gateway Conference record for points before the final gun sounded.

A GAME-OPENING inside kick enabled the Panthers to march downfield and score just six plays into the game, setting the tone for what would be a long night for the Saluki defense. And it was only the first of nine Panther tallies.

It was the worst beating a Dorr-coached squad had endured and the worst SIU thrashing since a 59-8 humiliation at the hands of Florida State in 1982.

Third-year EIU coach Al Molde, who had failed to beat SIU in either of his first two seasons at the helm, explained his team's dominating performance as "a quest for respect."

"We felt SIU had lost a little respect for us the last two seasons," Molde said. "We wanted to get that respect back and establish ourselves as contenders for the Gateway title."

MOLDE ADDED that he wanted to prove "Panther football wasn't tucked away in the back of a closet somewhere."

And the Panthers came out of the closet big time.

All-America quarterback Sean Payton, who suffered the worst game of his collegiate career a year ago against SIU, had his best day of the season, throwing for three touchdowns and running for two more in just three quarters of play.

PAYTON'S 400-YARD passing performance set a new Gateway record for passing, snapping his old mark of 383 yards against Southwest Missouri last season. His three scoring strikes in one game also tied his own conference record.

Slotback Calvin Pierce, open all night up the middle, set a new Panther mark for receiving yardage in a game with 199 yards. This also was accounted in just three quarters of play.

A trio of Panther receivers — Pierce, All-America wide receiver Roy Banks and running back James Marable — accounted for 360 yards and three TDs on 24 catches.

AFTER THE GAME, Molde even hinted he may have been trying to run up the score.

"We wanted to get some work on our two-point conversions," Molde said of the

Surprise, upsets highlight Gateway gridiron action

In the Gateway's surprise game of the week, Western Illinois rallied from a 10-point deficit to beat Southwest Missouri, 27-10.

Quarterback Paul Singer threw a 2-yard touchdown to put the Leathernecks on the board after SMSU had jumped to a 10-0 lead. Western led 14-10 at halftime via a 7-yard touchdown run by Chris Chiaro.

With the win, Western joins Indiana State as the only team without a conference loss.

In nonconference action,

Indiana State was victimized by Iowa State, 64-9.

The Sycamores took a 3-0 lead early in the game, but an unsurmountable 29-3 Cyclone lead at halftime put the game on ice. The Cyclones came out of intermission and promptly scored four touchdowns in the first 9:20 of the third quarter.

In another nonconference matchup, Division II opponent Wayne State downed the Redbirds of Illinois State, 17-13.

Wayne State scored three times on field goals set up by Redbird fumbles.

Fielders grab short end of stick on Midwest trip, record at 1-4

The Saluki field hockey team broke a two-game slump Thursday, shooting down the Rockets of Toledo, 3-1. The Salukis did not completely turn around, however, losing the next two games by scores of 2-0 to Kent State and Ohio.

In the Toledo game, Saluki senior Kathy Crowley scored all three Saluki goals. To make the game-winning goal, Crowley powered an assist from the one of the Salukis' top stickhandlers, Nadine Simpson.

"It was a beautiful set-up by Nadine," Saluki coach Julie Illner said. "She made a perfect pass in front of the net to Kathy."

With the win at Toledo, the Salukis proved they prefer to play on an artificial surface.

"We played pretty well on the turf. I think mentally we're a turf team," Illner said.

The Saluki coach described the Kent State game as "kind of slow, not aggressive" and "a poor game by both teams." She added that the Salukis were not playing together and seemed a step behind the Flashes.

Illner said neither team passed the ball very well, but Kent State managed to score two goals on Saluki senior goalie Mary Mazz.

"The second goal she should've had, but she made some nice saves," said Illner.

The Salukis took more shots in the games this weekend than they have previously and that pleased Illner. But even though the Salukis outshot Ohio 21-20, they lost. Illner cited accuracy as the critical factor in a day when one Saluki shot bounced off the goalpost and another rolled just wide of the net.

"A few breaks wouldn't hurt us either," Illner said.
