About 300 people protested lockdown conditions at Marion Federal Penitentiary Saturday. They were on their way to Lexington, Ky., to protest the formation of a maximum security operation, similar to Marion conditions, but for women inmates.

Groups protest lockdown

By Darci Allen

"Marion lockdown, we say no, control units have got to go!" was the cry of more than 250 protesters at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion during a demonstration Saturday.

Protesters from Chicago and Detroit poured from five chartered busses late Saturday afternoon to march to the prison's main gates, where a rally was held. The gates were heavily guarded and a National Guard earthmover was stationed behind them.

The protest was organized by the New Afrikan People's Organization and the National Liberation Movement of Puerto Rico.

The penitentiary, which houses prisoners considered to be the hardest to handle in the federal and state correctional systems, has been on lockdown status since October 1983 when two guards were killed by inmates.

Melinda Powers, member of the Chicago-based Committee to End the Marion Lockdown, said the goal of the protest was to end the "inhumane conditions at Marion."

"We object to the way prisoners in every prison are treated," Powers said.

The demonstration at Marion was only one of five held Saturday. Others took place at the federal prison in Lexington, Ky., the metropolitan correctional centers in New York City and Tucson, San Quentin State Prison in San Francisco and the State Prison of Rio Piedras in Puerto Rico.

Throughout the rally at

Marion, bongo drums, maracas and tambourines played while protesters walked in a circle and chanted slogans such as "The No. 1 terrorist in the world today is Ronald Reagan of the USA" and "Meltdown the lockdown."

"We want to educate people on the issue of control units," said Jose Lopez, chairman of the National Liberation Movement of Puerto Rico.

Stevenson mum on running mates

Gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson III, sidestepping specific questions about potential running mates for his planned third party ticket, said Sunday that he would likely announce the candidates in a couple of weeks.

But Stevenson, who is home recuperating from an injury sustained in a fall from a horse last week, refused to give any names of candidates, saying only that he is "gratified by the response" that he has received.

"It's a very important decision. I'll take however much time is necessary," Stevenson told a group of supporters and members of the press via an audio hookup at a press conference at the Student Center.

The press conference preceded a $50-per-plate fundraiser, which among others was attended by Stevenson's wife, Nancy; Sen. Paul Simon; other local Democratic leaders; and political cartoonist Bill Mauldin, who was the keynote speaker for the evening.

Stevenson, who is planning a third party bid to avoid running with the extremist LaRouche candidates who won nominations for lieutenant governor and secretary of state in last month's primary, said that quality will be the most important criterion in his selection of running mates.

"I want people — regardless of geography, regardless of race or gender — who will

Still chances for summit, Gorbachev says

POTSDAM, East Germany (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said Sunday a summit meeting with President Reagan is still possible this year despite strains caused by the U.S. attack on Libya.

Gorbachev told reporters the Soviet Union wants to take serious steps to safeguard peace and it is ready to cooperate with the United States.

"However, if the United States attempts to poison the atmosphere and increase tension it will cast a shadow on a future meeting," said Gorbachev, who was in East Germany for the Communist Party congress in East Berlin.

On a visit to Potsdam with his wife, Raisa, Gorbachev was asked by a reporter what he thought of the chances for a summit after the U.S. attack on Libya last week and the latest U.S. nuclear test, which prompted the Soviets to call off their own eight-month testing moratorium.

He said the United States should return to the "spirit of Geneva," and be willing at a summit to consider the Soviet disarmament proposals he made Friday in East Berlin.

"If the United States recognizes that it is necessary to follow the path of detente, the Soviet Union is ready to do so," he said.

"If the American administration continues to do what it is doing now, if it makes the international situation worse, if it attempts to abandon the spirit of Geneva, then all plans for a new summit would be depreciated," he said.

"We are ready for serious negotiations. ... We are ready to take a realistic step for peace," he said.

Reagan and Gorbachev met in Geneva last November and

Arab paper says bomber recovered, sent to Soviets

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — The U.S. F-111 fighter bomber that disappeared during the air raid on Libya last week was recovered from the sea off the Libyan coast and sent to the Soviet Union, the newspaper Al-Itihad reported Sunday. The newspaper quoted Libyan sources as saying the bodies of the plane's two American fliers were also recovered from the sea, and are being kept in the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

Aquino says 'lawlessness' not to be tolerated

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Corazon Aquino, facing persistent communist rebel attacks and demonstrations by supporters of ousted ruler Ferdinand Marcos, warned Sunday her government won't tolerate "lawlessness." The official Philippine News Agency said about 100 rebels Saturday ambushed soldiers aboard three vehicles following their tracks in the northern Philippine province of Cagayan. It said 14 soldiers were killed in the ambush.

Marcos admits he owns U.S. property

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For the first time since he was deposed, former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos has admitted owning property in the United States, according to a newspaper interview published Sunday. In an exclusive interview with the San Francisco Examiner, Marcos said he owns two pieces of property in New Jersey — one an estate worth $3 million and another worth $130,000.

Evacuation of Americans from Sudan ended

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — More than 100 people, most of them Americans, were flown from Khartoum to Nairobi Sunday, completing the evacuation of U.S. personnel from Sudan because of fears of retaliation for the U.S. air strike on Libya. The 130 evacuees arrived aboard a charter airliner and were met by U.S. Embassy officials. They were driven to a luxury hotel in Nairobi, where they were to stay until they could be flown during the next few days to the United States and other destinations.

42-foot dam in Sri Lanka bursts, kills 25

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — A dam burst in northeast Sri Lanka and a 40-foot wall of water flooded 35 villages, killing 25 people and leaving 50,000 homeless, authorities said Sunday. Some victims climbed trees to escape the raging waters when the 42-foot dam, holding back a vast reservoir fed by the nation's longest river, the Mahaweli Ganga, burst Saturday, sending water into 21,500 acres of paddies and 35 villages.

Shuttle Atlantis' solid-fuel rockets dismantled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Rocket engineers Sunday worked to disassemble a shuttle solid-fuel booster to look for anything unusual that might shed insights into whether assembly problems played a role in the Challenger disaster. Two boosters that had been scheduled for use in May with the shuttle Atlantis are the target of the investigation. It is only the second time that the shuttle boosters have been "destacked."

Hudson, civil rights leader, says 100 'no fun'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — H. Claude Hudson, a civil rights leader who celebrated his 100th birthday this weekend, said he has no regrets about the struggle but would not want to do it again. "It's no fun being a hundred. You have all kinds of aches and pains," he said at a birthday celebration Saturday. Hudson, a dentist and banker with a law degree, was instrumental in desegregating public pools and beaches in Los Angeles and was a charter member of the local NAACP chapter.

Man wills $200,000 estate to help retire national debt

CHICAGO (UPI) — A man who died last December willed his entire estate of more than $200,000 to the federal government to help retire the national debt, making him a hero in the annals of deficit-busting but a crackpot in the eyes of his brother. In a handwritten will duly witnessed and attested to, Ben Kamin, 71, ordered his estate handed over to the government. He left no money to his surviving brother, Alfred, 75, of Las Vegas, the Chicago Sun-Times reported Sunday.

Body of American killed by backers of Libya returned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of American Peter Kilburn, held hostage in Lebanon more than a year and killed in apparent retaliation for the U.S. raid on Libya, was returned Sunday to the United States without fanfare.

A spokesman at Andrews Air Force Base said a C-141 Starlifter bearing Kilburn's body landed at the installation outside Washington at 11:40 a.m. EST.

There was no ceremony for the return and reporters were not permitted on the base to watch the plane land.

State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman said the silence and security around the body's return was imposed at the request of Kilburn's family.

Ammerman said late Sunday the body had been positively identified as Kilburn's and was being prepared to be shipped to California, where the family was arranging a funeral.

The body of Kilburn, a native of California's Bay Area who had worked in Lebanon for more than 20 years, was found along with those of two British schoolteachers Thursday in Syrian- and Moslem militia-controlled mountains east of Beirut.

They had been shot in the head at close range, authorities said.

A pro-Libyan group called the Arab Fedayeen Cells claimed responsibility, saying the hostages were killed in retaliation for last Monday's U.S. bombing raid on Libya and Britain's decision to allow British-based U.S. bombers to participate in the air raids.

At a news conference five days before the attack on Libya, President Reagan was asked if he were concerned the hostages in Lebanon might be out at risk by U.S. military action, which was reported to be imminent.

Saying the hostages' plight has "never been out of our minds for a minute," Reagan said, "I would hesitate to think that anything we might do in retaliation for terrorists ... would actually affect them and their well-being."

"But again, we have to deal with this terrorist problem."

Kilburn was one of six Americans, three Britons and several other Westerners kidnapped in Beirut since March 1984. He was the first American hostage to be killed and whose body was found.

National disability group awards Carbondale

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

Fifteen members of a Carbondale group that has championed rights of the disabled will join three city officials in Washington, D.C., Tuesday to receive a $5,000 award from the National Organization on Disability.

Carbondale was selected to receive the award for overall community achievements from more than 80 entries nationwide.

The $5,000 award will be presented to city officials and members of the Partnership for Progressive Approaches to Disability Issues Tuesday in Washington. Mayor Helen Westberg, City Councilman John Yow and City Equal Employment Opportunity Officer Cleveland Matthews will attend the ceremony on the city's behalf.

The award will be presented by former presidential press secretary James Brady, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon is expected to attend.

Partnership President Carol Potter, who will also attend the ceremony, said Thursday that the group is "excited" about traveling to Washington to receive the award.

"I think this really is a wonderful thing," she said. "We have a lot to be proud of in Carbondale."

The group Thursday discussed accessibility problems of disabled voters in the city.

Potter said the group will look into provisions of the state's Voting Accessibility Act to determine whether Jackson County has been meeting accessibility requirements of the law.

Ken Kearns, executive director for the Coalition for Citizens with Disabilities in Illinois, urged the group to join the Coalition to increase the voice of the disabled in Illinois.

Fighting for the rights of the disabled in Springfield will be one of the most important missions of the Coalition, Kearns said, adding that the group will also work to promote local advocacy issues for the disabled.

"The most important thing about this organization is individual members," said Kearns. "The real importance and the real strength of the Coalition will come as it collects all of those individual people and represents them as best we can."

Kearns said 1.5 million Illinoisans have some form of significant disability.

"There are as many as 70 million of us in this country. It's those numbers that impress people," said Kearns. "If we can get 50,000 of that 1.5 million, people are going to sit up and take notice."

Food for thought when going abroad

MANY STUDENTS ARE PLANNING to travel abroad this summer, and a good number are planning trips to Europe. This, for many, is a traditional time to get away, to vacation, to study abroad.

Greece has long been a favorite of summer vacationers. After all, it is considered the seat of Western civilization and has some of the world's finest beaches. Another favorite is West Germany. European vacations provide Americans the chance to see cultures they are unfamiliar with.

These are all reasons to go abroad and have a good time. But there is one good reason to consider not going to Europe this summer — terrorist activities in that region of the world will increase because of the U.S. strike against terrorist targets in Libya.

THE ESCALATION OF TERRORISM abroad against American citizens and those allies who stood by the United States during the recent Libyan crisis has already begun.

Six Britons were taken hostage in Lebanon last week, and two have been killed so far. Three American hostages have been taken in the same region, with two escaping and the third shot to death. All three were doing missionary work in the area.

Khadafy may not be directly responsible for these acts. But it is safe to assume that many extremist terrorist groups will act in his name in sympathetic attacks on America and her allies.

THESE ATTACKS WILL ONLY INCREASE over time, and retributive military attacks against individual nations will not stem the tide of terrorism. Terrorist attacks against Israel, citizens have increased since Israel's invasion of Lebanon to root out the Palestine Liberation Organization in 1982.

The issue facing Israel and the United States is the same as always: What should be done with the Palestinians left homeless since the formation of Israel in 1948? Terrorist attacks against the citizens of both countries will not decrease until the Palestinians have been given a homeland.

Khadafy has directed his terrorism against the United States as a reaction to our support of Israel, who he has declared the enemy of all Arabs. He has vowed to destroy the Jewish state by whatever means at his disposal. And the United States has fallen into this war through its support of Israel.

THE UNITED STATES MUST SUPPORT Israel, but it must also support the creation of a Palestinian homeland. Pressure should be applied toward Israel to create a homeland for the people they displaced in 1948. This action would eliminate the reason for many Middle Eastern terrorist groups to exist.

We may continue to retaliate against terrorist groups, and we may bomb Libya and other countries identified as havens for terrorists. But as history has proven, bombing alone never wins wars, but it does make an enemy more resolute toward its aims.

So if you are thinking about traveling abroad to Europe this summer, these are issues to consider. Our government cannot protect you in a war that it has recently escalated. And harbor no delusions — Europe and the Middle East are fast becoming war zones as the lines are drawn between the Arab world and the West. If you travel there, your life is at risk.

Please do not fix University Studies

I am disappointed by the impending removal of Marie Kilker as the director of University Studies and am asking myself, "How could this have happened?"

I transferred to SIU-C in 1983 with 90 credit hours in international studies from another university. I was unsure of how to pursue a degree at this University in regards to my academic record. Fortunately, I discovered Kilker and the University Studies program.

For two semesters I was advised candidly, enthusiastically and, of greatest importance, accurately. Kilker knows this University system inside and out and directed me to the most challenging and rewarding classes within my chosen area of study.

Kilker always kept my individual needs and interests in mind. I am very proud to have graduated from what could justifiably be called "her" fine program.

I recently received a request from the SIU Foundation for a monetary contribution in support of my alma mater. I find it very difficult to justify an economic contribution to a university system that can neither support greatness in its faculty nor understand this simple maxim: if it works, don't fix it! — Cynthia Gibe, Carbondale.

PHILOSOPHICAL QUESTION FROM THE MIDDLE EAST:

Americans should respect the flag

All too often we as Americans take for granted the basic rights and privileges provided us by our Constitution. We often take for granted the symbol that represents America and freedom all across this great nation — our flag.

Now, when we finally take action, people cower from fear of reprisal.

Show some backbone, America, and remember your flag! The following poem is a simple reminder of the glory and the history that our flag represents. — A. Yaman Deniz, senior, University Studies.

I am your flag

I was born on June 14, 1777. I am more than just cloth shaped into a design.

I am the refuge of the world's oppressed people.

I am the silent sentinel of freedom.

I am the emblem of the greatest sovereign nation of earth.

I am the inspiration for which American patriots gave their lives and fortunes.

I have led your sons into battle from Valley Forge to the bloody swamps of Vietnam. I walk in silence with each of your honored dead, to their final resting place beneath the silent white crosses, row upon row.

I have flown through peace and war, strife and poverty, and amidst it all I have been respected.

My red stripes symbolize the blood spilled in defense of this glorious nation.

My white stripes signify the burning tears shed by Americans who lost their sons.

My blue field is indicative of God's heaven under which I fly.

My stars clustered together unify 50 states as one, for God and country.

"Old Glory" is my nickname, and proudly I wave on high.

Honor me, respect me, defend me with your lives and your fortunes.

Never let my enemies tear me down from my lofty position, lest I never return.

Keep alight the fires of patriotism, strive earnestly for the spirit of democracy.

Worship Eternal God and keep His commandments, and I shall remain the bulwark of peace and freedom for all mankind.

I am your Flag.— Author Unknown

Unfair zoning

Slowly but surely the City Council has made the areas between Oakland Avenue and Wall Street more restrictive to student occupation. In 1974 that area was called the student block zone, until the city changed 66 percent of it to a R1 family zone.

At one point, family zones allowed up to five unrelated people to occupy a residence, but today only allows a family and one unrelated person. Although the days of the student block zone are gone, its characteristics still remain. The majority of the houses are still rental, have three or more bedrooms and are occupied by students.

If you believe this area should be made less restrictive toward student tenants, make yourself heard before the City Council Monday April 21 at 7 p.m. at City Hall. — Dave Maflener, USO City Affairs Commissioner.

Readers react to Libyan crisis

When hit, you hit back

As Jeanne Kirkpatrick labeled them, the "Blame America First" crowd is criticizing the United States in the wake of the strike against Libya. The unfortunate aspect of the criticism, though, is that its focus is not the international problem of terrorism but rather the character of the United States. Those critics evidently are willing to take advantage of any opportunity to condemn this country.

With respect to the attack itself, Professor Hardenbergh in the April 17 DE, was said to believe that it is impossible to tell what the results of the American bombing raid will be. He was then quoted as saying unequivocally, "It will only improve Khadafy's support and increase terrorism." The inconsistency is obvious. The professor has reached some conclusions that he admits are premature.

Americans have been subjected to a steady attack by way of terrorists, and the bombing in Germany has been directly attributed to Libya's Khadafy. The U.S. government has sought to end these attacks by diplomatic, economic and political means. All failed for lack of concerted support from our allies. The remaining option — a military response — was the only unilateral action that remained. It can be reasonably argued that a military strike is not the most effective or the most desirable way of fighting terrorism, but when it is the last option available (unless doing nothing is considered an option), then any impact against terrorism it provides should be welcome. Also, the allies will now consider more seriously our proposals for concerted economic and political sanctions against Libya.

Perhaps the most common argument against the military response, a punitive measure, is that it will potentially increase terrorism rather than decrease it. When an individual is being relentlessly beaten and strikes back, there are two potential reactions: the beating may or may not continue. The worse alternative — continued beating — is no worse, however, than the continued beating that occurs when the individual doesn't strike back. Certainly, the effect of the U.S. strike cannot be any worse than doing nothing and may, in the long run, reduce the threat of terrorism by the threat of the imposition of immediate punitive action and generating support for political and economic sanctions among our allies. This alternative, whatever the probabilities, warranted the decision by the president made — Maxine Harry, law student.

Letters

Europe balks before Khadafy

The Europeans are balking once again, overwhelmed by massive inaction. Some sections of the European community determined that our recent Libyan actions were inappropriate, so they protested loud and strong.

Most European leaders, who have seen numerous attacks on civilians, businesses and government institutions from both native and foreign sources alike within their own borders, seem to want to ignore the constant bombings and killings going on in their own countries. Perhaps they have already accepted such activities as part of their daily life.

In order to attack terrorism head on, several positions must be advanced simultaneously. First, a universal definition of terrorism must be clearly defined and accepted worldwide. We cannot say, for example, that certain acts committed by Arab groups are acts of terrorism while other similar acts committed by Israeli groups are not.

We cannot have double standards in the war on terrorism, condemning Palestinians for killing three Israelis on the island of Cyprus while supporting Israelis in their invasions of Iraq, Lebanon and Tunisia, among other activities. Once a universal definition of terrorism is clearly defined and accepted, then there will not be so much confusion as to how to respond to terrorist attacks.

Second, we must establish definitively that human lives are not free targets for furthering a group's cause. In our case, force should again be used to drive this point home.

Next, and perhaps most importantly, it is compulsory that we make progress on establishing a Palestinian homeland. This hope has not waned in the hearts of the Arab world, but instead has led to more extremism in the Middle East. Too many empty words and meaningless gestures have already been passed around and still no progress has been made.

Finally, we must attempt to influence those European sectors that live in Never-never-land, not condemning (or empty condemning) attacks against Westerners, but instead condemning retaliatory acts against the perpetrators of such crimes.

While it takes Americans long enough to recognize a problem and act on it, it seems that many Europeans never escape the passive stage. Such attitudes must be changed if any cooperation is to occur now or in the future. — Shannon Glasgow, graduate student, Linguistics.

Covert action needed

In the wake of Reagan's bombing of Libyan targets, there has been much praise and many statements made in defense of a surgical attack on targets directly concerned with terrorism.

Many of those voicing such praise seem to be conveniently ignoring the fact that the operation was not in fact so surgical. Civilians were killed and injured, and many lost their homes.

Reagan's insistence on the fact that we have no quarrel with the Libyan people will be hard for the civilians of Libya to grasp after this attack. And statements like "we regret the loss of civilian lives in this necessary operation" are not likely to hold much water either. Reagan has supplied fuel for anti-American hatred throughout the Middle East.

Hypocrisy tempers support

Before supporting anything the U.S. government sets out to accomplish, we must first look beneath what is hurled from a biased and pre-convicting news media and seek justifiable knowledge pertaining to domestic as well as international affairs.

There is no place for complacency in today's society because we have suffered at the hands of paternalism for much too long. It is up to black Americans to be active yet rational under circumstances such as international conflict. Rationality must be ever-present. Without it, ignorance controls one's mind, as was the case of the U.S. bombing of Libya, which gained vast support from many irrational U.S. citizens.

Furthermore, we cannot afford to support the expansion of U.S. assertiveness

Along with many others, I believe that it would have been more prudent to attack only military targets and mount a concentrated covert operation to destroy Khadafy's headquarters. That's what covert operations are for.

I find it hard to believe, having some direct experience in the political situation of that area, that such a covert operation would have been impossible.

There are plenty of Libyans and others in neighboring countries who would be very interested in eliminating Khadafy. It seems to me that critics are justified in saying that Reagan did not exhaust all options before making a military strike that endangered the lives of Libyan civilians. — Jo Rubba, graduate student, Linguistics.

and premeditated conviction, while suffering negligence in the name of democracy right here in America.

Once again, as black Americans, we are given a slap in the face by the aggressive hand of the Reagan administration. As of April 17, almost two weeks following the bombing of the Berlin disco, no member of the late Sergeant Kenneth Ford's family had received condolences from our "great communicator."

The U.S. bandwagon of hypocrisy waits outside your door, encouraging you to ride, but before you purchase your ticket, find out where you'll be sitting, because it's hard to see where the driver is steering from the back seat. — Ronald G. Williams, junior, Business Administration, and Lynette Adams, senior, Radio and Television.

Force was the only viable action

Ramesh Loganathan's letter (DE, April 17) suggesting that this society takes itself too seriously makes a good point. Have we forgotten that Khadafy is just an excitable boy whose problems likely stem from the fact that he grew up in a family lacking warmth and affection?

Don't we understand that the poor fellow is only manifesting the results of a childhood without love when his agents bomb and machine gun civilians without regard to age or gender?

Give me a break, Ramesh. The sneak attack you refer to was certainly history's most widely publicized. And yes, Americans, even our president, who is no mental giant, are capable of distinguishing between the Libyan people and their savage mad dog of a leader. This was amply demonstrated by the choice of targets. It is both regrettable and unintentional that civilian lives were lost.

What were our alternatives? To do nothing but fire volleys of rhetoric? Our president has been doing that since he took office, with little effect. But wait, there is another way short of military action. We could retaliate economically and diplomatically. That is, we could if our allies were not spineless jellyfish who, instead of standing with us on the issue of terrorism, prefer to cut their own deals with terrorists; they allow terrorists to live in European countries as long as the terrorists do their dirty work elsewhere.

What about the government of your country, Mr. Loganathan? Could it be counted on to join in sanctions against Libya? I doubt it. More likely it could be counted on to whine and snivel about the big bad Americans who pick on poor Moammar and act like the world's policeman.

To paraphrase that sage philosopher, the Ayatollah Khomeini, "Do not cut off the tail of the snake, cut off the head of the snake." This could be accomplished with a lot less bloodshed if the free world stood together on the issue of terrorism. — Thomas Cummings, senior, Electrical Engineering Technology.

The United States became the terrorist

When the United States attacked Libya, we claimed to be striking only military and terrorist targets. We did strike several military targets and for this we celebrate a victory. But as we celebrate, we must remember that we not only destroyed sources of terrorism, we also killed a 15-month-old baby girl who could not have been the source of any terrorism and who could not have been held accountable for being a member of the wrong family. We killed and wounded hundreds of civilians who had nothing to do with terrorism, and we damaged the embassies and residences of the French, Swiss and Japanese.

It is true that terrorists have mounted attacks that have caused similar death and destruction, but is it our goal to be like terrorists?

We have the right to defend ourselves against terrorism, but let us not become too comfortable with what we have done. We are in a war, and war is not simple, painless or short-lived.

You may believe that we were justified in our retaliation, but do not celebrate and do not allow yourself to feel that we have been victorious. Victory will be ours only when the killing ends, and the killing, on both sides, has only just begun. — Tim Larson, Carbondale.

Consumer advocate lecture slated

Howard Hood, chief of the Consumer Protection Division of the Illinois Attorney General's Office, will speak at Shryock Auditorium at 4 p.m. Tuesday as part of National Consumers Week.

The theme for the week, April 20 through 26, is "Consumers Rate Quality." The week is proclaimed annually by the president to insure the protection of consumers from the marketing of goods that are hazardous to health or life, fair hearings of consumer complaints with appropriate remedies, and dutiful consideration of consumer concerns at all levels of government.

The goal of National Consumers Week is to generate or enhance working relationships that improve the standing or functioning of consumers year round and to raise awareness of consumer education and information materials.

"To make responsible decisions in our dynamic and abundant economy, consumers need both information and education if they are to reap the full benefits of the marketplace," President Reagan's 1986 proclamation says. "Prudent, informed, discriminating consumers put pressure on suppliers to keep improving products and services while devising production efficiencies that will permit them to keep their prices competitive," it says.

Hood is an SIU graduate and served as a state's attorney and a judge in Southern Illinois before working for the attorney general.

Chief snatches opponent's body

UMTATA, South Africa (UPI) — A tribal chief defied instructions from jailed black leader Nelson Mandela Sunday, seizing the corpse of a black activist and quietly burying him despite calls for a highly publicized funeral.

The dead man, Sabata Dalindybo, was related to the chief who buried him but also was his political opponent. Dalindybo was a nephew and staunch follower of Mandela, whose supporters accused the tribal chief of "body snatching."

Witnesses said Dalindybo, a leader of Mandela's outlawed African National Congress, was buried after a service attended by moderate tribal leaders, but not by his wives and children.

Dalindybo, 57, who died of natural causes in Zambia, where he was in exile, was buried while authorities in the nominally independent Transkei tribal homeland waged a court battle with his senior wife, Nomoscow, for possession of his body.

His cousin, Transkei Chief Kaiser Matanzima, ended the wrangle when he took the chief's body from a funeral parlor Sunday in Umtata, capital of Transkei.

Matanzima refused to accept a court order to release the dead man's body and pushed ahead with the private burial under military guard, witnesses said.

Witnesses said a light drizzle fell as Dalindybo was buried in a gold casket.

They said about 300 soldiers of the Transkei Army surrounded the Bumbana royal village about 20 miles from Umtata as Matanzima presided over a brief traditional burial service.

The dead chief's wives and children were not at the funeral.

Family members supporting Mandela were believed to be planning to exhume the body and rebury it.

Mandela, jailed leader of the Tembu clan, which is the royal family of the Xhosa tribe, had relayed orders through his wife, Winnie, for a public burial.

Authorities earlier had refused to release Dalindybo's body for burial at a funeral to be attended by leading dissidents and supporters of the ANC, the banned organization dedicated to ousting South Africa's white-ruled government.

The United Democratic Front, a legal movement closely allied to the ANC, accused Matanzima of "body snatching."

"To flagrantly violate a court order and bury Chief Sabata like a pauper is the ultimate in state barbarism," the UDF said in a statement released in Johannesburg.

Matanzima, a minor clan chief, and Dalindybo, who was the hereditary monarch of the powerful Xhosa tribe after Mandela renounced his leadership of it, were lifelong political rivals.

Free diabetes testing slated

All Jackson County residents are eligible for a free diabetes screening Thursday at the Community Human Service Center of the Eurma C. Hayes Center, 441 E. Willow St. in Carbondale.

Participants must call 453-2554 to make an appointment.

Gale Brown, a CHSC staff member and registered nurse, will do the testing. Foster Products, whose regional office is in Du Quoin, is donating the testing equipment.

Participants should not eat or drink two hours prior to the examination.

Scoreboard controls missing

A 15-inch by 15-inch control panel that controls the Saluki scoreboard at McAndrew Stadium is missing from the press box, according to SIU-C police. The panel was last seen on March 25 when a track meet was held at the stadium.

According to police reports, the panel probably only works for the scoreboard, and can't be easily modified for other uses. Whoever took the panel may have entered through a hatch on the roof of the press box that is used to reach a videotaping platform, reports say.

The panel was made in 1974, and the replacement cost is about $500, according to reports.

Somit appoints new Voc-Ed chairperson

John S. Washburn has been named chairperson of the Department of Vocational Education Studies, effective Aug 1.

Washburn, 38, has been research manager for the Illinois State Board of Education's Department of Adult, Vocational and Technical Education since 1980. President Albert Somit announced the appointment on the recommendation of John C. Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research. The appointment will be submitted to the SIU Board of Trustees for ratification.

Donald L. Beggs, dean of the College of Education, said Washburn was selected from a field of 18 applicants, ending a yearlong search.

Washburn will replace Marcia Anderson-Yates, who will return to teaching. Anderson-Yates agreed to continue in the position until the search was completed.

Libya reported training prisoners

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Libya is recruiting terrorist commandos from its prisons and advertising for soldier of fortune recruits in foreign newspapers, a West German newspaper said Sunday.

The Sunday edition of the Bild newspaper, known for having good intelligence sources, said the Libyan terrorists are being trained by East German and Cuban experts and by former FBI and CIA agents.

Khadafy also is buying weapons for shipment to rebels in El Salvador, the newspaper said.

The newspaper attributed its dispatch to Israeli, British and Lebanese intelligence reports.

"The Libyan intelligence service is recruiting terrorists in Libyan prisons," Bild said. "People who committed serious crimes are released on the condition that they are willing to take part in suicide missions outside Libya."

"Khadafy has a new tactic. He is hiring mercenaries for terrorist actions through advertisements in English, Arab and Moroccan media."

Bild said one of the men training terrorists, Patrick Argoalo, took part in an attack in September 1970 on an Israeli airliner.

The dispatch published Sunday in the Bild elaborated on a brief account released in advance Saturday.

Bild said Khadafy is paying

Abu Nidal, leader of a fanatical Palestinian group, $12 million a year to finance terrorist attacks.

It said Khadafy and Nidal at a secret meeting in the Libyan capital of Tripoli last September agreed that American, British and Israeli installations and nationals should be attacked.

The newspaper said Khadafy has worked out a "price list" for terrorist attacks and pays $1,770 for planting a bomb, $3,550 for a hand grenade attack, and $5,330 for an attack with a submachine gun. Organizers of suicide missions and those who take part in them get $53,330, Bild said.

Soviets jam concert of pianist Horowitz

MOSCOW (UPI) — World famous pianist Vladimir Horowitz, who left Russia in 1925 vowing never to return, was hailed by a rapt audience that jammed the aisles and cried "Bravo" at his first concert in the Soviet Union in 61 years.

Hundreds of music-lovers braved a cold rain outside the prestigious Conservatory of Music in the hope of getting a spare ticket or even a glimpse of the 82-year-old Russian-born pianist.

Most of the 2,000 people in the audience were Westerners and Soviet officials, including the family of Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. But some 300 people crashed the concert with fake tickets, bribes or the help of friends. They jammed the aisles, perched on railings and sat two to a seat.

Dozens of students crashed through heavy police guards and made their way into the concert hall where heated arguments and scuffles ensued.

Before the concert, members of the audience buzzed with anticipation and clapped impatiently. They jumped to their feet with cries of "Bravo" when the blue-suited and bow-tied native of the Ukraine shuffled on stage.

Pieces by Rachmaninoff, Scriabin and Chopin were particular crowd pleasers, but Schubert-Liszt waltz-caprice No. 6 left the audience silent.

Constant data flow a must, Army officer says

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

A lesson the Army learned from the crash of a DC-8 in Newfoundland Dec. 12 is that "rapid response is paramount" in a crisis, says Col. F. William Smullen III, chief of the Army Media Relations Division.

"It's an important thing to keep the flow of information in a crisis," Smullen said. "When there is a delay in that flow of information the media will begin searching in places you don't want them to search in."

SPEAKING FRIDAY to members of Sigma Delta Chi, the society of professional journalists, Smullen discussed what his division did to try to maintain the flow of information about the crash of a chartered Arrow Air Flight which was headed for Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Soldiers of the 151st Ranger Airborne Division had just completed their six month peace keeping duty in the Sinai and were returning home on the plane for Christmas. The 248 soldiers and eight civilian crew members aboard were killed in the crash, the largest military air disaster in history.

ARROW AIR HAD been cited for numerous air violations by the Federal Aviation Administration and the DC-8 that crashed had several FFA violations. Smullen said that the Army was unaware of the airline's record.

Smullen said that on the morning of the crash his division received information from Cable News Network faster than it did from its own sources.

Air Force personnel briefed Smullen's people on what to expect, since the Army does not usually deal with air disasters. It was difficult to provide information about the crash to the media, Smullen said, because the disaster occurred in Canada.

"WHEN IN A foreign country you can't always play by your rules," he said. "Canada is almost restrictive in developing information for the media."

Smullen said that one of the Army's biggest problems after the crash was its inability to release the names of those killed. He said regulations require the notification of the next of kin specified by the soldier and some of those people were difficult to notify.

"ON THE FIRST day we received 1,000 phone calls," Smullen said. Toll-free numbers were established to manage the flood of calls from distressed relatives and friends of servicemen abroad, whether or not the soldiers had been on the flight.

Smullen said another problem the Army faced in the following weeks was searching for and identifying the victims' remains to be sent home for burial. He said the Army's position was made even more difficult by an article in The New York Times Jan. 10, which reported that 135 of the victims were still unidentified, and that the Army was considering a mass burial.

SMULLEN SAID that the newspaper reporter had misinterpreted a statement made by Maj. Ilona Previtt, who worked in the Military Personnel Department. The report, Smullen said, increased the sorrow, anxiety and anger many of the victims' families felt, and that his division had received hundreds of calls regarding the report.

"Those people (the families) went through a living hell for the next few days," Smullen said. "We were dealing with fragments of bodies and in some cases just a few fragments and remains."

HE SAID SEARCHERS had to set up tents to melt the snow to find some of the remains. He said it was not until Feb. 25 that the last victim was positively identified.

For the most part, however, Smullen said that media coverage of the crash was comprehensive and positive. "The press was very balanced and car.ng," he said.

HE DISCUSSED an interview on NBC's "Today Show" with Maj. Gen. Burton Patrick, commander of Ft. Campbell, the day after the accident. The interview, Smullen said, helped convey a positive image of the Army to the media.

Smullen said that Patrick's discussion of the "proud history" of the 151st Airborne Division established a precedent which was reported in the media the days following the crash.

Reservations still available for canoe, hiking excursion

Reservations are still being taken for a six-mile canoe and hiking trip on the Big Muddy River and the Cedar Canyon area of Southern Illinois scheduled for Saturday.

Registration deadline is Tuesday and the cost is $12 for adults and $8 for children under 15. The trip is sponsored by the Touch of Nature Environmental Center.

Call Donna Minter at 529-4161 to register.

The trip is part of the center's Southern Outdoor Adventure Recreation series, which is open to the public. Fees cover trip-related equipment, transportation and specialized materials.

Also on SOAR's spring schedule is an outdoor cooking workshop, which is designed to familiarize the participants with the techniques and concepts of outdoor cooking. The workshop will be held May 3 and the cost is $3. Registration deadline is April 29.

A six-day primitive camping and outdoor adventure for women at Touch of Nature and surrounding Shawnee National Forest will be held May 17-23. The cost is $167 for the "Shawnee Wilderness Experience." A pre-trip meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in Room 113 at the Student Recreation Center on May 6, which is the registration deadline.

control units, which is based on behavior modification, came from a secret conference held in 1978 in Puerto Rico, Lopez said. The system is based on isolation, particularly toward political prisoners, he said.

"They are isolated from their supporters, isolated from their families, isolated even from other prisoners ... and it says in the documents from the secret conference, to drive them to commit suicide," Lopez said.

Lopez said the protesters were there to "stand behind the people who dared to struggle, who dared to win."

Lopez motioned to the guards and said, "These men are paid to stop us at this gate. There's nothing that is going to stop us because ultimately, what is going to happen in this country as we look at prisons and the explosions in prisons, nothing is going to stop the ever-growing movements within the prisons themselves to stop the inhuman treatment of prisoners in these prisons."

Chowke Lumumba, chairman of the New African People's Organization, called the guards "clones" and said they were trying to "stop our babies from walking through these prison gates."

"The spirit of people is greater than man's technology," he said.

Prisons are wholesale concentration camps, Lumumba said. They are being used as a tool to repress and incarcerate freedom fighters, he added.

"We look at a totally lawless nation that has been totally lawless throughout its existence, has not yet paid us back for slavery," said Lumumba, a black lawyer from Chicago, "not relinquished its occupation of Puerto Rico yet."

"We see that the United States regime is not only unpopular here amongst our people, but that virtually every country around the world has problems with the kind of banditry the United States is involved in," Chowke said.

Chowke said he and his organization are aware that the United States has a problem with crime.

"The problem of crime has to be solved at its roots," he said, adding that to do this the structure of society has to be changed.

"When we get to the point when all that has been stolen from us has been returned, then we can talk about a social system that will stop crime," he said.

make first-rate candidates and first-rate public servants and help to break Illinois out of this dismal performance," Stevenson said.

The 55-year-old former senator criticized the policies of Governor Thompson's administration, which he said makes its decisions based on "political efficiency" rather than on what is right.

"We have a job to do if Illinois is going to be the great state it was just 10 years ago," Stevenson said. "We have to signal to the world that Illinois is awaking from its slumber. So I want people who are demonstrably qualified to serve in these positions."

Stevenson and Simon both said that the primary victories of LaRouche candidates Mark Fairchild and Janice Hart, who upset party-backed candidates in last month's primary, will hurt the Democratic Party, but they agreed that the problems can be overcome.

Simon said that the fault for the LaRouche upsets lay with the Democratic Party and the press, both of which failed to take notice of the potential problem.

But Stevenson said what is needed now is for him to get back on the campaign trail and take the campaign to the people, who he says want to be saved from "four more years of Thompson."

As for the LaRouche candidates, Stevenson said strong campaigning is all that is needed to show the voters that they will have an alternative to Thompson that will not involve the LaRouche extremists.

"What matters now is that I get back on the trail and we ... resume the race and save Illinois from four more years of Thompson, and in the bargain make Illinois the Waterloo for these LaRouchites," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said that he will return to his office Monday to resume work and that he would be back actively campaigning within a week.

agreed to meet again in the United States this year. No date has been set for the second summit and the Soviets called off a May planning meeting aimed at setting the groundwork in response to the U.S. bombing raid on Libya, a Soviet ally and arms recipient.

In Washington, White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said, "In our view, a summit is in the interests of both countries. The president takes the commitment that he and General Secretary Gorbachev agreed to at Geneva seriously and assumes that Gorbachev does, too. — i.e., that there will be a summit meeting in Washington in '86, to be followed by a summit meeting in Moscow in '87."

"We, on our part, are willing to talk and to negotiate because we want to solve the problems that divide our two countries. We also want to work with all nations, including the Soviet Union, to resolve the threat of international terrorism."

In a speech to the East German party congress in East Berlin Friday, Gorbachev proposed a reduction of troops and tactical aircraft "from the Atlantic to the Urals."

He also said the U.S. attack on Libya could damage Soviet-American relations.

"The invocation of terrorism in no way gives the American administration the right impudently to set itself up as an international judge, to helplessly punish other countries and to replace the principles of international coexistence with the law of the jungle," he said.

He accused the United States of pursuing a "militaristic and aggressive" policy that threatens world peace.

Salvadoran bishop accuses army of murdering children

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas accused government soldiers Sunday of assassinating three children, disfiguring a corpse and raping a girl.

Rivera y Damas also charged leftist guerrillas with killing three children and two adults and wounding three people during the past week when the civilians set off land mines meant for government troops.

"Although we have found the high command of the armed forces to be understanding of our efforts to humanize the conflict, we find acts by soldiers that sow fear and terror," the archbishop told parishioners at Metropolitan Cathedral.

"Among them are the raping of a young girl in the Faith and Hope Home of the Lutheran Church in Nejapa by soldiers of the 1st Brigade, and the assassination of three children in San Francisco Morazan by soldiers from El Paraiso," he said.

Women writers focus of lecture

The fifth annual Harry T. Moore Lecture will be presented by Nina Baym, director of the School of Humanities and professor of English at the University of Illinois, at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Baym's struggle to have more women writers included in the "Norton Anthology of American Literature," which she co-edited, will be the topic of her speech "Ideal Canons and Real Anthologies."

The lecture will be open to the public and is sponsored by the Department of English, the Women's Studies Program and the College of Liberal Arts.

How affordable is it? Like $50 a month*

It's all how you look at it. Some students wouldn't be caught dead in a mobile home/trailer. Others wouldn't be able to get by without it.

Let's face it. Unless you're living in a geodesic dome, your "home away from home" has four walls. Within those four basic walls are 1 or more baths, and none or more roommates.

At Carbondale Mobile Homes, you have access to that, and then some. Like a year-round indoor heated pool open to tenants only. A convenient nearby laundromat and post-office. Even free roundtrip transportation to SIU on school days.

Oh yes, there's free water, free lawn care too!

Look. If you're driving a 'vette and living off dad's credit cards, we're probably not your kind of place. But if you count pennies between meals and still want luxuries unheard of on a tight budget, give us a call!

Paratore concert a family affair

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

The Paratore brothers, Anthony and Joseph, are known around the world as a superb duo pianist team. However, in Carbondale, they may be better known as Jean Paratore's cousins.

Jean Paratore is the assistant to vice president for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne and was obviously very proud of her cousins as she listened to their performance in Shryock Auditorium Friday night.

The brothers negotiated with Shryock for an admission price of $4.50 so that more people might be able to attend—including those who couldn't afford a $10 ticket, their cousin said.

Robert Cerchio, director of Shryock, said the brothers received "nowhere near their normal fee" for performing. In fact, what they received was probably just a little more than their expenses, Anthony said.

The Paratore brothers come from a family of musical performers. All five Paratore children received degrees in piano, Anthony said.

However, of their three sisters, only the youngest, a pop singer and writer in Los Angeles, is a professional musician.

The Paratore parents,

A car belonging to an SIU-C building service worker was stolen between 12:45 a.m. and 3:10 a.m. Sunday morning, according to SIU police.

Ruth C. McDaniel told police she returned from her building check rounds and noticed her 1980 Lincoln Continental missing from the parking lot west of the physical plant.

Police are still investigating the theft.

Brothers show versatility, virtuosity as dual pianists

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

Concert Review

Joseph and Anthony Paratore, world-famous duo pianists, performed superbly at Shryock Auditorium Friday.

The program, "Gershwin Plus," began with the "plus section"—Mozart's "Overture to the Magic Flute," beautifully played on two grand pianos.

Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" was perhaps the best piece of the evening. The "echoing" of one piano to the other and the wonderfully expressive interpretation of the music sounded as though they were done by one man instead of two.

The audience of elderly people, grade school children and every age in between, seemed to appreciate the full, rich sound of the music and the very expressive phrasing of the pieces, for there was no sound at all while the brothers played.

Schubert's "Fantasie in F Minor, Opus 103" and Samuel Barber's

"Souvenirs, Opus 28" rounded out the first half of the performance. These were played with the two pianists sharing the same keyboard for the duet.

The Gershwin pieces were played with two pianos. "Fantasy on Themes," from Porgy and Bess, and "Rhapsody in Blue" showed the brothers' immense talents.

After a standing ovation and seemingly endless applause, the brothers played "Carnival of Animals," a lively arrangement meant for two pianos, which the two adapted to the same keyboard.

The arrangement was quite a crowd-pleaser as four hands crossed over and under each other at incredible speeds, never missing a beat.

Those not attending the show surely missed one of the best cultural performances on this campus this semester.

although musically inclined, did not play professionally, but were anxious to nurture the talents of their children, Anthony said.

Both Anthony and Joseph credit the encouragement and inspiration of their parents and teachers for their success.

"If it weren't for our father, we wouldn't be playing the piano," Joseph said.

Their parents often travel with the brothers as they perform and have accompanied them to Europe for performances.

At one time, there were five pianos in the Paratore house. Anthony said it was a "conservatory atmosphere" because everyone played and everyone needed to practice.

Anthony began playing piano when he was 9 and Joseph began when he was 12. Anthony is older than Joseph, but the two would only say they are "in our 30s."

The most difficult aspect of duet playing is interpreting the music as a team and putting together the details, the nuances and the phrasing, they said.

Instead of talking about how to play a particular section, they suggest imagery that seems to fit the music. They work toward a musical effort instead of a verbal one, they said.

They also like to trade parts of the duet once in a while, they said.

Practicing takes about five hours of their day "whether we want to or not," Joseph said.

When the two attended Julliard School of Music, they practiced about eight hours a day, they said. Their instructor, Rosina Lhevinne, encouraged them to continue their studies and pursue careers in music.

Lhevinne "made us want to practice," Joseph said, adding that they feel very fortunate to have had her encouragement.

In 1974, the Paratore brothers won first prize at the Munich International Music Competition, the first American duo-pianists ever to do so.

Anthropologist, Dewey scholar, chemist honored by University

University News Service

Three faculty members have been named Distinguished Professors for their national and international reputations in the fields of chemistry, anthropology and editing scholarly texts.

Jo Ann Boydston, Cal Y. Meyers and Carroll L. Riley will receive the permanent title and unrestricted grants of $3,000 each for support of professional activities. The grant will be renewed annually as long as they remain active, full-time faculty.

THE SIU Foundation established the Distinguished Professorship program in 1983 to honor full-time, tenured professors who have established singular reputations in their fields.

President Albert Somit announced the awards Friday. "We are pleased to honor the extraordinary achievements of these three outstanding faculty members," Somit said. "Their accomplishments truly warrant special recognition."

Boydston is professor of Library Affairs and director of the Center for Dewey Studies. She has helped establish the definitive collection of American philosopher John Dewey's published and previously unpublished works. She has been a pioneer in the field of modern textual editing and criticism.

BOYDSTON JOINED the faculty in 1961 and became director of the Dewey Center in 1966. Under her direction, 28 volumes have been published in "The Works of John Dewey" series.

Boydston is chairperson for the Editorial Advisory Board of the Charles Sanders Peirce Edition at Indiana University and is textual consultant for the Frederick Douglass Papers at Yale University.

SHE WAS graduated summa cum laude in 1944 from Oklahoma State University, where she earned a master's degree in 1947, and a doctorate from Columbia University in 1950.

Meyers, professor of chemistry and biochemistry, is an internationally recognized authority in the field of electron transfer reactions, estrogens and estrogen receptors. He has patented a method for removing inorganic sulphur compounds from Illinois coal. Meyers has written three books and more than 50 journal articles and holds 14 patents and other invention disclosures.

MEYERS JOINED the faculty in 1964 and was promoted to full professor in 1968. He earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Cornell University in 1948 and a doctorate in chemistry from the University of Illinois in 1951.

He held a post-doctoral appointment at Princeton University with Nobel Laureate E.C. Kendall in 1951-53, served as visiting research professor at the University of Bologna, Italy, from 1960-63. He has also been a researcher and project leader for Union Carbide Corp.

Riley is a professor of anthropology and a curator at University Museum. He is a prolific author and scientist who has been successful in combining archeologic ethnology and anthropology.

IN THE last decade, his work on Adolph F. Bandelier and the "Spanish contact period" has emerged as a major contribution to the documented history of the American southwest.

Riley's books include "The Origins of Civilization," "The Southwestern Journals of Adolph F. Bandelier," and the controversial "The Frontier People," which will be published this year by the University of New Mexico Press under the title "Wherever Your Roads Come Out."

HE JOINED the faculty in 1955. He directed the University Museum from 1972 to 1974 and was chairman of the Anthropology Department from 1979 to 1982.

U.S., British citizens evacuated from W. Beirut due to terrorism

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two Americans and 32 Britons were evacuated from west Beirut to the Christian east Sunday to escape pro-Libyan terrorists who murdered two Britons and an American to avenge the U.S. bombing of Libya.

The exodus from the mainly Moslem sector of the war-ravaged capital of Lebanon coincided with the return to the United States of the body of American hostage Peter Kilburn, who was killed with two Britons last week after U.S. warplanes bombed the Libyan capital Tripoli and the port of Benghazi.

A shadowy pro-Libyan group claiming responsibility for the killings cited the attack and Britain's decision to allow British-based U.S. bombers to participate in the air raids.

Officials at the British Embassy — which along with the U.S. Embassy moved to east Beirut in 1983 — said Sunday's evacuation was the last of the remaining Westerners living in west Beirut.

Earlier this week, several Americans and Britons secretly crossed over into east Beirut, helped by Lebanese friends who took them in cars across the Green Line dividing the capital.

Sunday's evacuees, including 32 Britons, two Americans, an Irishman and a New Zealander, were driven across the "Green Line" dividing the capital in a two-bus convoy escorted part of the way by Druze Moslem militias of Tourism Minister Walid Jumblatt.

Jumblatt was the only Moslem leader who condemned the killing of the two British teachers — John Leigh Douglas and Philip Padfield — whose bodies were found Thursday with that of Kilburn, chief librarian at the American University of Beirut missing since Dec. 3, 1984.

Jumblatt also charged unnamed Arab countries were behind the slaying of the three men and said "they provide facilities and protection for foreigners in their countries and revenge against the peaceful ones who decided to stay in Lebanon."

Most of the evacuees were teachers, doctors and journalists who, undeterred by the violence that engulfed Lebanon since the civil war erupted in 1975, stayed and worked in the mainly Moslem half of the Lebanese capital.

A 52-year-old American woman who has worked in Lebanon for five years, said, "I don't want to leave but whenever I look to the pictures of the three executed men, I think it is stupid to stay."

"It would be foolish to return to Lebanon where my friends were murdered," said a British woman.

Several of the Britons expressed hope that they might be able to return to Beirut once the anti U.S.-British campaign eases off.

But another Briton, a teacher, said, "Hatred for the Britons and Americans is growing instead of calming down. There is no hope for us to stay in the Middle East."

Farmer-turned-banker relives early experiences in 'Heritage'

By Maureen Cavanagh
Staff Writer

"Heritage" passed on to a small audience an inheritance of original dramatic quality. Its performance was a virtual birthright.

"Heritage" was written by Kenton Kerling, theater graduate student. Brent Lappin, theater graduate student, performed the 50-minute monodrama in a corner of the Laboratory Theater Friday.

LAPPIN PLAYED Robert, a middle-aged banker, who returns to his family's farm during the Christmas holidays. The story revolves around his adversarial relationship with his father.

The set, designed by Vicki Neal, consisted of a wash tub, a crowded coat stand, muddy boots, a desk and a variety of trivial items, which gave it the essence of a farm workshop standing since time began.

UPON ENTERING the set, Robert immediately trades his expensive suit and office keys for a "Cat" farm cap, old denim jacket, jeans and work boots. "You can take the boy out of the country, but not the country out of the boy," he says.

Although he hates wearing $280 suits, he'll "be damned" if he's going to come back to the farm "to work 18 hours a day to get $20,000 more in debt each year."

THE SURROUNDINGS, apparel and smell of manure transport Lappin's character back to a myriad of fond and not-so-fond instances, which, although locked away in his memory alone, are relative to everyone's life.

He remembers the idiosyncrasies of his family, down to the "screechy" music his grandfather used to play, and the two times he ever heard his mother swear.

SPEAKING ABOUT his grandfather, Robert says, "Now here's a man with a sixth grade education and with an understanding and knowledge of Shakespeare that would put most English teachers away. Maybe because he was denied an advanced education, learning became so important to him."

Lappin uses a downhome tone, delivering it to the audience with a process as natural as osmosis. His speech agrees with his storytelling and does not overshadow it.

Civil Service Council seeks award nominees

Nominations are being sought by the Civil Service Employees Council for the seventh annual Outstanding Service Award. Funding for the award is provided by the SIU Foundation.

Any current civil service employee may be nominated by any member of the University community. All nominations must be in writing and received by the award committee on or before June 16.

Nominations should be sent to Henrietta Miller, awards committee chair, Library Affairs. The award will be presented during the Annual Service Award ceremonies in July.

Brent Lappin

Theater Review

The subtle slurs create a man of substance and not a robotic character who knows nothing but the color of dirt.

THE DIALOGUE succeeds in creating vivid images of characters who are not even on the stage, a difficult feat. When Robert remembers his grandmother's cooking, running into a skunk in a ditch, chasing a bull with a car and knocking his mother over to get to a pig, it is easy to see. If the characters were each on trial, the artist's rendering would be on the money.

The audience learns why Robert vowed never to follow in his father's footsteps: being told again by his father that Robert was not help to him and couldn't do anything right.

THE AUDIENCE could feel the sensitivity and anger of the man, especially when he spoke of the joy he experienced while he was married. It turned into a nightmare when his bride died of cancer "with the clap of God's hands," leaving him with a son, Brandon, to raise.

Robert is melancholy as he speaks about eating alone, going to movies alone and sleeping alone. He feels sad that he never hears his wife telling him to "waste not, want not" as "she washed and folded a piece of aluminum foil for the sixth time." And he misses seeing holes in newspapers, where the coupons used to be.

ROBERT IS bitter that when he, his father and Brandon were riding in a truck, Brandon pointed out the Star of Bethlehem. Robert proceeded to inform him it was actually the planet Venus. Brandon's grandfather interrupted to say that it was indeed the boy's Star of Bethlehem. "It was the same man that told me when I was five that my Star of Bethlehem was the planet Venus," Robert says.

He also recalls his dad yelling at him for not returning a screwdriver to its proper place. It shocks him when he does not yell at Brandon for not replacing a drill.

LAPPIN MOVED from tragedy to comedy without constraint. Even some of his comedic passages convey an explicit bitterness or remorse, without Lappin falling into a painstaking, soap-opera-type, egotistical sob story about "what could have been."

It is known that he is just like his father in temperament and working habits, which fuels their opposition and encourages distance. He does not know "whether he is a better son than a father, or a better father than a son."

HE IS ENGAGED to a woman, who he confides is more his son's babysitter than his preferred mate. When Robert reads a letter from his father, telling him that he loves him and asking if he might raise Brandon, nothing is confirmed, and the audience may freely decide Brandon's fate.

All can relate to the story, if they have ever returned to a place and the people responsible for molding them.

KERSTING AND LAPPIN are farm natives. They collaborated on "Heritage" as roommates last year, when Lappin needed a performance for his thesis. It was directed by Lee Eric Shackelford, also a theater graduate student.

Alumni chapter awards Kenney

David T. Kenney has been awarded the SIU Springfield Area Alumni Chapter's 1986 public service award. Kenney taught political science at SIU-C for 26 years and held two state government posts in Gov. James Thompson's administration.

Kenney, a Carbondale native, is a two-degree graduate of SIU-C and has a doctorate from the University of Illinois. He is author of the textbook "Basic Illinois Government."

Concerns about exercising in heat topic of presentation

A slide presentation and lecture on what people should know about exercising in the heat will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Michael Sawka, chief of physiology for the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine at Natick, Mass., will talk about the influence of hydration level and body fluids on exercise performance in the heat.

Sawka, a 1977 graduate of SIU-C, has conducted extensive research on exercise and environmental physiology.

Practical implications of exercising in the heat will be stressed. Runners, tennis players, golfers, other athletes and people who work outdoors are the target audience.

Tornado prompts request for aid

SWEETWATER, Texas (UPI) — Gov. Mark White, standing among debris Sunday, promised state loans and a plea for federal disaster aid for the estimated 1,500 residents of this West Texas town left homeless by a tornado.

"I don't see how anybody could have lived through this," White said. "It's as bad as I've seen."

Two twisters converged just before touching down about 7 a.m. Saturday, cutting a path two miles long and a half-mile wide through the southeastern section of the West Texas town of 12,000. No warning was issued of the twister, which the National Weather Service said did not show up on radar.

An 87-year-old man was killed and 92 people were injured, three critically. The five people who were reported missing Saturday had all been accounted for Sunday.

Twisters that struck Hill, McLennan and Limestone counties Saturday night, about 100 miles east of Sweetwater, injured at least nine people. Two remained hospitalized in fair condition Sunday in Waco.

White sent 115 Texas National Guard troops to keep order in Sweetwater, about 215 miles west of Dallas, Saturday night and flew in Sunday morning to assess the damage.

The governor, dressed in blue jeans, a work shirt and cowboy boots, toured the wreckage for an hour and a half, talking to survivors who were picking through the rubble.

The governor promised to seek federal disaster aid for the area and said the county had already been approved for state housing loans, the process of which would be accelerated.

He made a stop at Sun Village, the housing project for the elderly, where Henry Earl Tatom was killed and 124 residents, ranging in age from 65 to 96, had lived.

"We easily could have seen 100 to 150 lives lost," White said.

Kathleen Lewis, director of the housing project, said few of the elderly had returned to their apartments Sunday.

About 600 homes were damaged by the twister, more than half of those demolished, said Mayor Rick Rhodes. None of the units in the housing project was livable

Conference set on exporting, world business

The International Business Association is sponsoring International Business Day from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Auditorium.

"Your Future in International Business" is the topic of the morning session. Discussions in this session will cover the following topics: careers in international business, 9 a.m.; "The People Side of International Business," at 9:40; "International Business: Who Gets the Jobs and Why," at 10:05; "What I as an Exporter Would Look for in a Potential Employee," at 10:30; and an open forum for questions and answers at 11 a.m.

The afternoon session's topic is "International Business Practices and Opportunities." Discussions include "Services an Export Management Firm Can Offer a Client," at 1:30; "The People Side of International Business," at 2:15; "Can a Foreign Bank Help You Find Overseas Opportunities," at 3:15; "Consequences of Trade Protectionism," at 3:45; "Help from Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs and U.S. Department of Commerce," at 4:15; and another open forum for questions and answers at 4:30 p.m.

A break is scheduled from 2:45 to 3:15 p.m.

Four business professionals will lead the panel discussions. The speakers are Richard Kotlar, manager of Mitsubishi Bank in Chicago; Clyde Wendall, manager of the international division of Center Bank in St. Louis; John Lulard, president of OPIECO, an export management firm in Mobile, Ala.; and Robert Wilson, partner in Chicago's Heidrick-Struggles management placement firm, specializing in international executive placement.

Sturgis award nominations open

Nominations for the 1986 Lindell W. Sturgis Memorial Public Service Award are now being accepted.

Nomination forms should include the nominee's name, title, department, and an explanation of the public services performed. Individuals who were nominated previously but not selected are eligible for renomination.

Send all nominations to Mr. Jack R. Dyer, Executive Director of University Relations, 1008 S. Elizabeth St. before May 16.

1986 Spring Semester Final Examination Schedule Information

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

38-00	T	Th
69-00-10-50	W

The listed starting time for the first line of entry is "8:00." The meeting days of that first line are "T TH," and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH." The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '86 Final Examination Schedule to be Friday May 9 at 10:10-12:10 a.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

Iran, Iraq claim to inflict heavy casualties in gulf war

By United Press International

Iran said its forces killed more than 1,500 Iraqi troops and wounded 2,600 others in heavy fighting Sunday on the Faw peninsula near the strategic Shatt al Arab waterway.

But a military communique in Baghdad, Iraq, said the Iraqis made two attacks in which they inflicted "heavy human losses" on the Iranians.

The fighting began late Saturday and continued until Sunday evening after the Iraqis attacked Iranian positions on the road running along the southern coast of the peninsula, Tehran radio said. Baghdad, meanwhile, said Iraq jets raided northwestern Iran near Mianeh, destroying a concrete railroad bridge connecting Tehran to Turkey and the Soviet Union.

The fighting near Faw took place on the road from the port city to Umm Qasr near Kuwait as an Iranian naval force carried supplies to the Iranians on the peninsula.

An earlier report from the official United Arab Emirates news agency WAM said a missile fired by an unidentified plane hit a Turkish oil tanker off the UAE coast Sunday

Police arrest Libya protesters

By United Press International

Police used water cannons and rubber bullets Sunday to disperse violent mobs at U.S. facilities in West Germany and Spain and arrested protesters at a British air base used in the American raid on Libya.

Demonstrators in the Spanish port of Barcelona, a regular port of call for the U.S. 6th Fleet, threw rocks and a gasoline bomb at the American Consulate, authorities said.

Police said more than 10,000 protesters marched through central Barcelona demanding the removal of four U.S. military bases in Spain and the withdrawal of the 6th Fleet from the Mediterranean.

The protesters, angered by the U.S. air strikes a Libya April 15, chanted, "Reagan, Thatcher — murderers!" and threw rocks and bottles as they passed the U.S. Consulate, police said.

Police fired rubber bullets at participants in a smaller demonstration after they tossed a gasoline bomb at police trucks guarding the consulate.

Security forces in Bilbao, Spain, used a robot to detonate a bomb left outside the window of a building that was once the U.S. Consulate.

In West Germany, police used water cannons to disperse more than 1,000 demonstrators who blocked the entrance to a barracks of the 2nd U.S. Armored Division at Garlstadt, near Bremen, to protest the attack on Libya.

Police acted when demonstrators refused to disperse and hurled stones and bottles, a spokesman said. Two demonstrators were arrested.

British police arrested nearly 100 demonstrators at several protests organized by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament at air bases across Britain.

More than 500 protesters attended a rally at the Lakenheath air base in eastern England, one of the launch sites for the F-111 fighter-bombers that struck the Libyan cities of Tripoli and Benghazi. Six people were arrested inside the base after they sprayed a plane with paint.

Police also arrested 61 protesters who cut the wire fence surrounding a Royal Air Force base at St. Mawgan's, at England's southwestern tip, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

In northern England, 30 people were arrested during a protest by about 100 people at the Menwith Hill signal base.

In Brussels, an estimated 2,000 demonstrators shouting, "Reagan, assassin!" marched through the city. The demonstrators, many of them Arabs, carried pictures of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat and the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of Iran.

Gorham youth dies in crash of car and train

An accident involving a car and train early Sunday morning left one 16-year-old dead and another hospitalized, according to Jackson County Sheriff's department reports.

Mark Twenhafel, of Jacob, was westbound on Skeeter Park Road west of Murphysboro with Dean Shuffleburger, of Gorham, when they were struck by a southbound Missouri-Pacific train shortly after midnight, according to reports.

Shuffleburger was pronounced dead on the scene. Twenhafel was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Murphysboro, and later transferred to Cape Girardeau for further medical treatment, reports say.

Women tracksters set 4 records at Kansas

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Despite heavy competition, the Saluki women's track team turned in a strong performance at the Kansas Relays in Lawrence, Kans., Friday and Saturday, finishing first in two events and setting four new school records.

"We had a great meet," Saluki Coach Don DeNoon said Sunday. "I was really pleased with the kids' performance. We stood out among the teams as far as competition goes."

DeNoon said that among the 35 teams that competed in the non-scored meet, Kansas State won more events than any team.

In the sprints, Denise Blackman, a senior from St. George, Barbados, placed first in the 200-meter dash with a time of :23.43, qualifying her for the NCAA championships. The time was also a new SIU-C record.

The Salukis turned in another winning performance in the 1,600-meter relay, achieving a time of 3 minutes, 38.17 seconds, setting a new school record but narrowly missing the NCAA qualifying time of 3:37.0. The Salukis defeated top-seeded Nebraska in the event.

"We didn't have any competition from the first leg on," DeNoon said. "We expected a major challenge in that relay and it never materialized. Hopefully we'll put things together next week" and reach the NCAA qualifying mark in the 1,600."

Carlton Blackman's :54.90 split time "basically broke the race open," DeNoon said. Other members of the 1,600-meter relay team are Dora Kyriacou (:56.34), Angie Nunn (:55.22) and Denise Blackman (:52.09).

The Salukis also showed fortitude in the 400-meter relay, finishing second with a new school-record time of :46.29. DeNoon credited Denise Blackman with moving the Salukis from sixth to second place with her excellent anchor leg.

"Denise was just absolutely awesome for the whole meet," he commented.

In the field events, throwing specialist Rhonda McCausland, a senior from Valparaiso, Ind., finished second in the discus with a 157-3 effort and third in the shot put with a throw of 47-6.75.

Freshman Audra Corson finished fourth in the javelin with a 147.4.

In the 100-meter hurdles, freshman Kathy Raske of Cartersville, showed "a tremendous improvement," DeNoon said. Raske came in fourth in the event with a time of :13.98, a new school record.

Sophomore Felicia Veal of Saginaw, Mich., finished fourth in the 400-meter hurdles with a :64.12 effort.

Distance runner Vivian Sinou, a junior from Athens, Greece, finished sixth in the 3,000-meter run with a time of 9:48.03, moving her into the No. 2 position on the all-time best performances list. She came back later in the day to finish third in the 5,000-meter with a time of 16:51.07, achieving another No. 2 slot on the Saluki all-time best list.

DeNoon said the Gateway Conference was well represented at the meet. In addition to the Salukis' first-place performances, GCAC counterparts Western Illinois and Illinois State made strong showings in several events.

"We can pretty well hold our head high among the other conferences in the country," DeNoon said. "I think the kids came out of the meet with more confidence in themselves."

Women golfers win 1st tourney in two years at Stephens College

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Led by tournament medalist Jill Bertram, the Saluki women golfers easily claimed first place this weekend in a three-team field at the Stephens College Invitational.

Bertram captured the honors with rounds of 79, 76 and 74 for a 229-stroke total on the par-72, nine-hole Stephens College Golf Course at Columbia, Mo. The tournament, format split 54 holes into 27-hole rounds Friday and Saturday. To win, Bertram played just two over par Saturday and beat teammate Pat Putman by five strokes.

The scores Bertram posted built a streak of six straight 70's rounds, a streak she started in her seventh-place finish at the Illini Spring Classic the previous weekend. The first ended a long dry spell for the senior, as her only other win came at the Illini Classic her freshman year.

Saluki coach Sonya Stalberger said, "Jill sparked all weekend and played tremendous golf. She's thrilled with the way she's been playing, and it's a real boost for her confidence. She's a legitimate favorite for the Gateway Conference Championship next weekend."

Netter's consistency mixed at SIU-E

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

The Saluki women's tennis team hit mixed results this weekend at an individual match at SIU-Edwardsville.

Maria Coch, No. 5 singles player, returned as the most successful Saluki in the tournament, scoring 3-1 on the weekend to take second place in the second flight.

Coach Judy Auld said she was very pleased with Coch's performance, saying that the sophomore has "really come on in the last couple of weeks." Coch is 9-3 since spring break.

No. 1 singles player Ellen Moeller went 0-2 in the first flight, but No. 2 singles player Dana Cherebetiu went 1-1, losing to highly-touted Christina Bokelund of SIU-E, a Division II school.

"Bokelund has a good shot at winning the Division II

The junior Putman carded rounds of 80, 79 and 75 for a 234 total and tie for second place. The 75 she fired set a career low, and her second place became her best collegiate finish.

Vicki Higgerson shot 80, 78 and 82 for a 240 total, followed by Tina Kozlowski with rounds of 80, 80 and 81 for a 241. Stalberger said the pair of sophomores had opportunities for great scores but she was still pleased with their consistency. Higgerson's 78 marked her second collegiate 70's round, another encouraging sign to Stalberger.

Peggy Ellsworth tallied rounds of 82, 87 and 85 for 254 total strokes and Kelly Mason recorded an 87, 88 and 84 for a 259. Stalberger said they tried a bit too hard, but will gain from experience.

The team effort chalked up low after low for the year, with 319, 313 and 312 18-hole totals for a runaway 944 stroke total. Not since the Gateway Conference Championship third place last year have the Salukis totaled below 320 for three straight rounds. Also, the tourney victory was a first for second-year coach Stalberger.

"I'm excited to win our first tournament in two years — it's very gratifying," Stalberger said. "Hopefully they can carry it through to next weekend."

Stalberger expects stiffer competition at the GCAC Championship, which SIU-C will host. Northern Iowa placed second at Stephens College trailing the Salukis by 36 strokes with a 980 total, and Southwest Missouri State could not field a full team due to illness.

Missouri canceled because of a schedule conflict and Stephens College could not complete a team, depleting the team to three. Northeast Missouri State finished last with a 1042 total.

"It was a disappointing field," Stalberger said. "We were prepared to battle with Mizzou. Scores are usually even lower when you're pushed harder, so it's a tribute to our team to play hard even when nobody breathed down their necks."

Men netters defeat Bears 5-4; rain spoils remainder of meet

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

Rain washed out four of six tennis meets at the Saluki's quadrangular tournament last weekend, but the Salukis won the one meet they did play, defeating Southwest Missouri State, 5-4.

Despite showing poor net play and playing with weak backhand strokes, No. 2 singles player Chris Visconti tallied on overhead smashes, well-placed lobs and errors of his opponent, Rodney Kowis, to win the match, 6-3, 7-6 and 7-3.

Visconti won the first set before Kowis discovered Visconti's weakness and took the first three games in the second set.

Kowis lost two of his service games and split the next two games with Visconti to lead 4-3. Visconti tested Kowis' net play and appeared to have control of the match, as he reached back on a high lob and nailed a shot in the corner for the winning point of game eight.

BUT KOWIS retaliated by bringing Visconti to the net and scoring on his errors.

Visconti held his serve and capitalized on an overhead smash and successful net play to tie the set at six.

The tiebreaker, highlighted by baseline rallies and an ace, was clearly dominated by Visconti.

Reassessing his play throughout the match, Visconti said, "I had plan A, plan B and plan C."

Plan A won him the first set, he said, but the second set called for a new plan. "I had to change my strategy. He was definitely in control from the baseline."

WHEN KOWIS took control of the match, Visconti again changed his strategy — plan C — and played at the net until the end of the match.

Saluki No. 3 singles player Jairo Aldana also played a tiebreaker with his opponent, Oijay Uerkatejeh, before defeating him 6-2 and 7-6 (7-5). Southwest Missouri's John Isaacs avoided a tiebreaker with Fabiano Ramos at No. 5 singles, but lost to Ramos in three sets, 6-2, 5-7 and 6-4.

No. 1 Saluki ace Per Wadmark scored the fourth point for SIU-C by winning, 6-3 and 6-3, against Doug Elly.

LARS NILSSON and Juan Martinez lost their matches at Nos. 4 and 6 singles.

Saluki No. 1 doubles player Rollee Olliquino said he had "one of those days when I just hit a lot of stupid shots."

Olliquino and Wadmark lost their match, 6-3 and 6-2, on a sequence of the Bears' offensive attacks and SIU-C errors.

Wadmark's acrobatic performances and aggressive groundstrokes entertained spectators at the match.

DOWN 4-1 in the first set, Wadmark hammered several consecutive smashes into the Bears' court and at his opponents to cut the lead to 4-3.

Though Wadmark's three forehand shots at Kowis and John Isaacs were unintentional, Kowis and Isaacs became tense and quickened their reactions to counter SIU-C's offensive attack.

Earlier in the match Wadmark displayed a true showing of die-hardness to the sport by bursting forth to chase down a drop shot in the doubles alley and falling over the cyclone fence to send the ball across the net in return.

KOWIS AND ISAACS added up their points and the Salukis' errors to net a 6-2 second-set victory.

Content with his play, Wadmark said, "I thought I played well, but they played well too, so I give them credit for winning."

Wadmark recalled having played the Bears' doubles team three times before and said, "We lost to them twice. If I were to play them again I wouldn't do anything different. Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose."

Visconti and Aldana teamed up for their second win of the day by beating Rod Zerni and Doug Elly, 6-2 and 7-6 (7-5).

Southwest beat Indiana State.

Men tracksters show signs of consistency at Arkansas

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's track and field team has been as inconsistent as the weather throughout most of the outdoor season, however have recently showed signs of maintaining some consistency with their second-consecutive solid performance Saturday in the non-scored Arkansas Invitational.

If the meet was scored, Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell said his team would have finished second among the seven-team field.

Cornell calculated that defending NCAA outdoor champion Arkansas scored 118 points to lead the field, SIU-C was second with 98.5, Illinois finished third with 97 and Missouri was fourth with 39.

But Cornell said Illinois, a perennial Midwest track power, would have scored more points had it not sent some athletes to compete at Eastern Illinois last weekend.

"Illinois didn't take everybody to the meet," Cornell said. "But overall, I was happy with our team's performance. We've been getting some steady, individual efforts recently and I think we're on the right track for the conference meet."

The Salukis were paced by weightman Ron Harrer, who finished first in the discus (175-5) and added second-place finishes in the javelin (187-5) and the shot put (49-10.75).

"It was a good, steady performance by Harrer," Cornell said. "He was disappointed because he didn't set any personal bests but I told him he can't set personal bests every week. I think Harrer is hitting a good plateau right now."

The Salukis also fared well in the 800-meter run, with Mike Elliott finishing first with a time of 1 minute and 49.18 seconds and teammate Bret Garrett finishing third in 1:52.12.

Cornell said if the 800 wasn't run in a torrential rainstorm, Elliott would have qualified for nationals.

"Elliott is ready to qualify, he just has to be in the right race," Cornell said. "In Saturday's race he took the

Gymnastics recruits add depth to No. 7 nationally ranked squad

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

Saluki men's gymnastics Coach Bill Meade plans to strengthen an already strong team with two recruits. Scott Belanger, an all-arounder from Londonderry, N.H., has signed a letter of intent and will be a "good back-up man," according to Meade.

Belanger should add some depth to the Salukis' horizontal bar, floor exercises, vaulting and rings squads, Meade said.

It will be hard to replace senior Brendan Price's vaulting performance, said Meade, but the Salukis have been strong in that event all season and should continue to do well with juniors Preston Knauff and Mark Ulmer.

Joel Wasserman, a specialist in rings, parallel bars and horizontal bar, has verbally agreed to attend SIU, Meade said. Wasserman, hailing from Niles North High School in Chicago, will not be on scholarship, but expressed interest in attending SIU-C when he spoke with Meade at the Salukis' Jan. 26 meet at Northern Illinois University.

Another possible recruit is Brent Johnson, from Miamisburg, Ohio. The all-arounder has been offered an academic scholarship to SIU-C, but is also considering attending Stanford University. Stanford finished third in NCAA competition with a score of 279.50.

left runner on base in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

The Shockers' winning run was tallied with a Dan Raley RBI single that sent home his brother Tim in the fourth.

In the first Sunday game, Todd Neibel wasn't in the best of form, allowing seven hits, four walks for six runs in four innings. George Goich and Jay Hammond pitched scoreless relief in the last two innings, but it turned out to be all the runs the Shockers needed.

The killer blast was Terry Elliot's three-run homer in the fourth inning off Neibel.

Chuck Locke drove in two runs with a double in the seventh, but Joe Hall couldn't drive his teammate home for the tying run as he struck out to end the game.

In the bombing of the second

Saturday game, neither team's starting pitchers lasted an inning. Shocker pitcher Shawn Pumphrey retired no batters while giving up two hits and two walks for four earned runs. David Henley didn't do much better, getting bombed for two runs in one-third of an inning.

The Salukis scored all of their five runs in the first inning with the help of an error.

lead with 300 meters remaining and ran away from a pretty good field."

Cornell said he was also pleased with David Beauchem's performance in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. Competing in the event for the first time in his career, Beauchem, a freshman, finished fourth in 9:28.20.

"It might have been our performance of the day," Cornell said. "I think I may have found a steeplechaser in Beauchem."

In the pole vault, SIU-C's Mike Michels and Shane Weber each cleared 15 feet. Since Michels cleared 15 feet on his first attempt, he was awarded second place. Weber cleared the height on his third attempt and finished third Saluki freshman Scott Szezech posted a third-place finish in the shot put (45-1) and a fourth-place finish in the discus (145-2.75).

Adding third-place finishes for the Salukis were Gerard Horan in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles (:55.92) and Felipe Martin in the triple jump (47-9.25).

Rough MVC road wrecks Salukis at Wichita St.

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

The baseball Salukis discovered that the Missouri Valley road is rough, as they dropped three of four games at Wichita State over the weekend.

Dale Kisten produced the only Saluki victory of the series, twirling a masterful four-hitter in a 2-1 pitching duel in Saturday's first game.

SIU-C lost the second Saturday game, 9-5.

On Sunday, the Salukis lost the hard way, dropping a pair of one-run decisions. Thrower Todd Neibel was hammered for his fifth loss in a 6-5 game. Rags-to-riches pitcher Lee Meyer had another fine outing, but lost the second contest 2-1.

The Salukis' record dropped to 28-16-1 and fell to a third-place tie with Wichita State in the Missouri Valley standings with a 6-6 record. The Shockers' overall record improved to 31-11.

Kisten, who has recently emerged as the Salukis' stopper, prevented a Shocker sweep with his sixth victory in as many decisions. Kisten struck out two and walked two, but didn't get the win without a little help from his friends.

Terry Jones won the game in the top of the seventh when he sent home Chuck Locke on a single. Shocker pitcher Rich McIntyre took his first loss of the year in eight decisions.

The score was also 2-1 in the second game on Sunday, but this time the Salukis came out on the losing end. Saluki starter Meyer and Shocker thrower Shane Durham both allowed just five hits. However, Meyer walked three and struck out six, but Durham walked just two and registered 10 K's.

Tim McKinley lifted a sacrifice fly to send home Robert Jones in the second inning for a Saluki run. But Locke, after popping a double, was stranded after Jay Burch and Terry Jones fanned.

The Salukis subsequently

Softball team sweeps four from 2 GCAC foes

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

The Saluki softball team swept a pair of weekend twinbills to extend a season-long winning streak to seven games.

Paced by freshman pitcher Lori Day's second no-hitter of the season and a solid performance from sophomore Lisa Peterson, the Salukis began the sweep by downing Northern Iowa, 1-0 and 6-3.

In game one, Day threw a no-hitter and got the game-winning hit with a two-out double in the fifth that scored shortstop Jenny Shupryt.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said that although it wasn't a spectacular game, Day "worked hard, kept the ball down and moving and kept the UNI hitters guessing."

In the second game against the Panthers, the Salukis rallied in the sixth and seventh innings to overcome a 3-1 deficit and win 6-3.

After scoring one run in the second on a Kelly Fox triple to cut the margin to 3-1, the Salukis got three consecutive singles in the sixth by Becky Rickenbaugh. Susan Wissmiller and Rhonda Snow to load the bases with one out. Shupryt then knocked one run in with a sacrifice fly with another scoring on a passed ball.

The Salukis sewed the win up in the seventh, with a two-run single by Jane Eider which scored two for the 6-3 final. Lisa Peterson picked up the win.

On Saturday, Day came back from her no-hitter with a three-hit performance to stifle the Drake Bulldogs 1-0.

The Salukis scored the only run of the game in the fifth on singles by Eider and Susan Wissmiller and a sacrifice fly by Rickenbaugh.

In the second game, the Salukis kept the Bulldogs leashed up with Peterson picking up another win on a five-hit performance. Drake drew first blood, scoring in the first but the Salukis once again scored crucial runs in the sixth and seventh innings to take the game. In the sixth, Espeland singled and pinch-runner Amy Swingle was sacrificed to second by Dana Ridel. Susan Wissmiller then hit a long single to left field that hit the umpire at second base on the return throw. Ridel scored easily on the play but the Drake defense, apparently thinking the ball was dead when it hit the umpire, stood while Wissmiller went all the way around the bases to score and give the Salukis a 2-1 lead.

SIU-C added an insurance run in the seventh on a pair of singles by Fox and Eider.

The clean sweep puts the Salukis at 16-12 on the season and 6-2 in Gateway Conference play.

"It was a very productive weekend," Brechtelsbauer said. "Anytime you win four straight conference games, you have to be pleased."

The winning streak of seven straight includes the four wins this weekend as well as a sweep of Southeast Missouri and a split at Western Illinois on April 4.

With a busy week ahead, the Salukis will travel to Charleston for a Tuesday twinbill with GCAC foe Eastern Illinois.

Expos blank Cardinals 2-0

MONTREAL (UPI) — Tim Wallach doubled home pinch runner Herm Winingham in the eighth inning Sunday and Jay Tibbs pitched an eight-hitter, helping the Montreal Expos blank the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0.

Jim Wohlford hit a one-out double to left field and was replaced by Winingham. Mitch Webster grounded out to losing pitcher Rick Horton, 0-1, and Winingham moved to third. Hubie Brooks received an intentional walk and Wallach lined a double off the third base bag, with the ball rolling into left field to score Winingham.

Jeff Lahti relieved Horton and walked Andres Galarraga. Vance Law singled in Brooks to make it 2-0.

Tibbs, 2-0, walked none and struck out five to pitch the first complete game by a Montreal pitcher this season.

The Expos threatened in the second inning.

Libya situation halts gymnasts' appearance at Algeria event

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The Libya situation has reached into Carbondale and touched Saluki and U.S. National Gymnastics Team member David Lutterman.

The senior gymnast from Nelson, New Zealand, and Mike Rice, a University of Oklahoma gymnast, were scheduled to represent the United States in the fourth International Championships of Algeria on April 25-26, but the U.S. Gymnastics Federation has decided not to send the gymnasts for precautionary reasons. Algeria borders the western boundary of Libya.

Although Lutterman calls New Zealand his home, he has been an American citizen his entire life. Lutterman moved to Nelson in 1972 and began his gymnastics training.

Gymnastics coach Mark Williams of Norman, Okla., and judge Sam Sargent of Colorado Springs were to accompany Rice and Lutterman on the trip. Algerian officials understood the withdrawal.

Lutterman, who is ranked the No. 21 all-arounder in the nation, would have been making his first appearance in the Algerian meet. The U.S. team has sent gymnasts to this meet before, but Lutterman qualified for the national team last June and will have to re-qualify this June in order to remain on the team.

Celtics sting Bulls 135-131 in overtime; Jordan hits 63

BOSTON (UPI) — Jerry Sichting hit a 15-foot jumper with 51 seconds to break the final tie score in double overtime and Robert Parish added an 8-foot jumper with 9 seconds remaining Sunday as the Boston Celtics defeated the Chicago Bulls 135-131 to take a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference playoff series.

Michael Jordan set an NBA playoff record with 63 points, eclipsing the old mark of 61 set in Boston by Los Angeles Laker Elgin Baylor in 1962. The Bulls guard, who scored 49 points in Game 1, hit 22 of 41 shots from the floor and 19 of 21 free throws.

Jordan hit a pair of foul shots after regulation time had expired to tie the game at 116 and cause the first overtime.

Danny Ainge hit a driving layup with 12 seconds left in the first extra period to tie the game at 125-125 and force the second overtime.

Boston led 131-127 after Ainge hit a 16-foot jumper with 2:01 left in the second overtime, but a pair of jumpers by Jordan tied the game and set the stage for Sichting's winning shot and Parish's insurance basket.

Larry Bird scored 36 points for Boston, which could clinch the best-of-five series Tuesday night in Chicago. Kevin McHale added 27 and Ainge, who did not score in the first half, contributed 24 for the Celtics.

Orlando Woolridge backed Jordan's offense with 24 points. Charles Oakley was the only other Bull in double figures with 16 points.

Cubs, Pirates game called in 13th at 8-8

CHICAGO (UPI) — Keith Moreland's two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth tied the score 8-8 and Sunday's game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs was suspended after 13 innings at Wrigley Field because of darkness.

The game will be resumed in the top of the 14th inning with the score 8-8, Aug. 11, prior to the regularly scheduled game between the Pirates and Cubs. Wrigley Field is the only major-league stadium without lights.

Chicago tied the score 8-8 by scoring three runs in the ninth. Pinch hitter Thad Bosley tripled and scored on Davey Lopes' double to knock out Bob Walk. Jim Winn relieved and threw a wild pitch, sending Lopes to third. Winn struck out Shawn Dunston and Ryne Sanberg before Keith Moreland launched a two-run homer on a 2-0 pitch into the left-center field bleachers.
