AAUP Chapter Attacks Parking Fee Increases

By Kevin Cole

Parking fee increases scheduled for the Carbondale campus beginning in September have been attacked in a statement issued Tuesday by the executive committee of the Carbondale chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

The statement says that "recent action by the SIU Board of Trustees markedly increasing parking fees appeared to have been taken without adequate faculty participation and at a time of year which does not allow proper assessment of faculty reaction."

Further the AAUP committee contends that the establishment of the new parking fee schedule constitutes a reduction in faculty salaries "considerably after the time when faculty appointments for the coming academic year have been made."

The committee proposes to make the matter a subject of action this fall.

The target of the AAUP's attack is the increase in vehicle registration and parking decal fees approved Friday by the Board of Trustees to "encourage more efficient utilization of existing facilities as well as to implement the Traffic and Parking Revenue Fund."

The new fees—replacing the formerly universal $3 vehicle registration fee—will be $5 for registration, $25 for a red decal and $45 for a blue decal for the 1968-69 year.

These fees are higher than those recommended in an 11-1 vote by the SIU Vehicle Traffic and Parking Committee. The committee's recommendation—$25 for blue decals and $15 for red—was sent to Chancellor Robert MacVicar.

The fees appeared when the recommendation was submitted to the Board of Trustees.

Red and blue decals will jump to $35 and $65 respectively for the 1969-70 year. In addition, the Board revised part of the University's Motor Vehicle Regulation Policy to place a $90 ceiling on future parking fee increases without Board Approval.

Red decals, according to MVR policies effective Sept. 1, 1967, may be issued to those whose affiliation with the University is primarily as a student and who are accepted in graduate school, residing with parents or guardian and necessarily commuting to the University, married and living with spouse, or parents living with dependent child.

Blue decals may be issued to those whose affiliation with the University is primarily as an employee or to students with severe physical disabilities after Health Service recommendation.

At a closed meeting this Friday, the Non-Academic Employees Council will consider a course of action to be followed by its membership concerning the fee hikes.

Soviets Invade Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE (AP)—Prague radio announced Wednesday that troops of the Soviet Union, Poland and East Germany started to cross the Czechoslovak border at 11 p.m. Tuesday.

It said the crossings were made without forwarding to the Czechoslovak president, the chairman of the National Assembly or the first secretary of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia.

President Johnson called an emergency meeting of the National Security Council Tuesday night to deal with Czechoslovakia, the White House said.

The Presidium of the Czechoslovak Communist party appealed to all people of Czechoslovakia not to resist the advancing troops.

It said the National Assembly and the Communist party of the Central Committee has been called to discuss the situation.

The broadcast came at 2 a.m.

Most of the people of Prague were asleep and, except for night shift workers, unaware of any trouble.

There was unusual activity at Prague Airport, with jet fighters apparently landing.

The developments followed a resurgence of attacks in the Soviet and Polish press against Czechoslovakia's eight-month-old liberalizing reform drive.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk hurriedly left the Democratic platform committee earlier upon hearing of the radio Prague report of Soviet troop entry into Czechoslovakia.

"I didn't expect that report when I came, but I think I will go and see what it is all about," Rusk said.

Without pausing for questions from committeemen, Rusk and a security guard dashed through a back corridor of the downtown hotel where the platform group was in session.

White House press secretary George Christian declined to go into any further detail on the President's action.

"All I have now is that the President has called an emergency session of the National Security Council," said Christian.

Committee chairman Hale Boggs, D-La., read to the committee the Associated Press bulletin which brought the news to the platform writers.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia complained Tuesday night that Sudeten Germans were staging a "revengist bacchanalia" over Czechoslovak territory that Germany lost after World War II.

The Sudetenland is a Czechoslovak frontier territory which had a population of about 3 million Germans and 800 Czechoslovaks before World War II.

The Munich agreement of Sept. 29, 1938, opened the door for Adolf Hitler's occupation of the Sudetenland as peace started to crumble in Europe.

Fall Enrollment High; On-Campus Housing Filled

Fall quarter classes begin Sept. 24 at SIU.

Pre-registration figures are high, President Delyte W. Morris said, and single, undergraduate, on-campus housing has reached the saturation point.

No official registration figures are released until ten days after the beginning of the fall quarter. Late registrations, cancellations, and the uncertain state of graduate enrollment due to the Selective Service situation combine to keep the projected numbers of students changing.

Students applying for university housing are referred to off-campus housing units.

Several private dormitories and other smaller residence units make up the approximate 7,400 spaces in off-campus housing.

Eighty of the 304 married and graduate apartment units built by the university south of campus have been filled, and others will be assigned as they are completed, Samuel Rinella, coordinator of Housing Business Services, said.

Plans for New Student Week are completed and information packets will be sent to new students. (See story, page 10.)

Summer quarter classes will conclude next week when final exams are scheduled. (See exam schedule, page 3.)

Four Appointed To Psych Faculty

The appointment of four faculty members, effective fall quarter, has been announced by the Department of Psychology.

Vincent A. Harren has been appointed associate professor and will also be director of the counseling psychology graduate program. He was formerly acting director of the counseling center at the University of Texas, Austin, where he received his doctoral degree in counseling psychology in 1964.

Gordon Rader has been named associate professor of clinical psychology. He has been assistant professor of psychology and head of the adult psychology section at the University of Colorado Medical School, Denver. He received his Ph.D. from Yale in 1956.

John F. Snyder has been appointed an assistant professor of counseling psychology. He received a Ph.D. from Loyola University, Chicago, in 1965. He has been a post-doctoral fellow at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago and adjunct assistant professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Thomas O. Mitchell has been appointed assistant professor of social psychology. He holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder.

SIU to Show Color Photos At State Fair

SIU's exhibit at this year's Du Quoin State Fair will feature projection of 400 impressive scenes in color that portray both the University and interesting spots in southern Illinois.

The exhibit, designed, executed, and supervised by Herbert J. Meyer and Charles Daugherty of University Exhibits, will be presented free in SIU's permanent geodesic dome near the grandstand from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily Aug. 24 to Sept. 2.

Meyer explained that the exhibit will feature 400 outstanding color transparencies projected onto a large five-section screen. The sequence will be repeated about every 12 minutes.

Meyer said the pictures will be in two groups. One will cover scenes of the University including areas usually not seen by most visitors. The other group will feature scenes of the southern Illinois area.

Two SIU faculty members will be hosts each day. Rex Karnes, assistant director of University News Services for exhibits, said an estimated 85,000 people saw the exhibit in 1967.

Recital Scheduled

A student piano recital will be presented in room 140b of the Home Economics building at 8 p.m. Wednesday by W. Charles Paul. Paul will play works of Bach, Schubert, Chopin, and Villa Lobos. The public is invited to attend.

Ellis Named Director Of Business Bureau

Robert J. Ellis, Jr., has been appointed director of the Business Research Bureau, Dean Robert Hancock of the SIU School of Business announced.

Ellis replaces Arthur Ely Prell, who has resigned to become dean of the School of Business at California State College, Long Beach.

Ellis, who has been on the SIU department of economics staff since 1962, was research coordinator and economist for the bureau before being appointed director of its Regional Economic Technical Assistance Program (RETAP), in July, 1967. He also has taught courses in the economics department.

Born in Johnson City, N.Y., Ellis was graduated with highest honors from Harpur College, Binghamton, N.Y., and has his Ph.D. degree from the University of Virginia. He has taught at the University of Virginia and was a research associate at Washington University, working on a NASA project.

Two Have Better Than 4.9 Grade Point Average

Two August graduates have a 4.9 overall average. Rozila A. Dhalia from Mwanza, Tanzania, Africa, is majoring in home economics, and Ian G. Sharpe from Blakehurst, New South Wales, Australia, is majoring in business.

His publications include "Goreville, Illinois, the Economic Feasibility of Improving Community Services," "Little Saline River Lake, an Economic Feasibility Study," and "An Overall Economic Development Program (Franklin, Jackson, Jefferson, Perry, and Williamson Counties, Illinois)." He is a member of the American Economic Association, the Southern Economic Association and the Economic History Association.

Nobody Injured

In Loop Wreck

No injuries were reported in a two-car accident about 8 a.m. Tuesday on Campus Loop Road north of Abbott Hall, Thompson Point, according to the Security Police.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Kenneth M. Pearson, 23, of East Alton, collided with one driven by William T. Held, 25, of Murphysboro, who had stopped for west-bound traffic.

Police estimated that damage to the cars exceeded $100 each.

Make-up examination period for students whose petitions have been approved by their academic dean.....9:50-11:50

GENERAL EXAMINATION INFORMATION

Examinations for one and two-credit hour courses will be held during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week. Three, four and five-credit-hour courses will meet at the times listed above. Non-credit courses which give examinations will follow the same schedule as outlined for one and two-credit-hour courses.

A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

A student who misses a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

Area Country Fairs History

Related in Television Show

WSIU-TV, Channel 8, in Carbondale, takes a look at the history of county fairs in Southern Illinois Friday night, at 7:30 p.m. The 30-minute color documentary, called "Fairs -- Southern Illinois Style," was filmed at fairs held in 21 different cities last year. The climax of the program shows last year's DuQuoin State Fair with emphasis on the $122,650 Hambletonian Classic Harness Race, won by Speedy Streak.

"Fairs--Southern Style," directed by Scott Kane, is another in the series "Focus--Southern Illinois" on Channel 8. The series is written and produced by Harlan Mendenhall, faculty co-ordinator of documentary programming at SIU's department of radio and television.

Channel 8 salutes the Murphysboro Apple Festival with a re-run of an hour color special, September 10, at 7 p.m. "Johnny Appleseed Was Here," seen earlier this year, shows last season's Apple Festival and also deals with the Southern Illinois apple industry.

Students in SIU's department of radio and television get valuable on-the-job training while working on film crews that help produce such programs. C.P. Harding, Steve Little, Paul Armetta, and Russ Rayburn all took part in the filming of "Fairs--Southern Style."

SAD and SNAFU Events

Since his commission as commander of the Carbondale garrison's administrative company nearly two months ago, Robert W. MacVicar has come under intensive fire on all fronts of the war between the black-pajama-clad Southern Administrative Divisions (SAD) and the Student Non-Active Faculty Union (SNAFU).

In the propaganda phase of the war, SAD lost the battle for the hearts and minds of SNAFU troops while winning the actual combat engagements. Some of the SAD victories included the defeat of 11 peace demonstrators, eight alleged office invaders, and over 19-thousand motor transport drivers of SNAFU forces (actual body count).

While many of the SNAFU rounds fell around Commander MacVicar, very few have been aimed at the SAD general, Delyte W. Morris. After General Morris ordered Commander MacVicar to defend the SAD front lines, the general crawled into his SAD bunker and ordered the SAD artillery fired into the midst of SNAFU troops.

Public Forum

The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters. Editorials are written by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters, which must be signed with name, address and telephone number, preferably typewritten, and be no longer than 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are urged to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend upon the limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other material on pages four and five includes editorials and articles reprinted from other newspapers, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

Lot in Woods No Solution

To the Daily Egyptian:

In a letter to the Daily Egyptian Mitch Farris proposed the clearing of Thompson Woods as a solution to this University's parking problem.

Hopefully, Mr. Farris was only voicing extreme sarcasm—perhaps arising from recent decisions to increase parking fees, I am in sympathy with his or anyone's reluctance in having to pay additional sums of money for parking—but again feel that with increasing numbers of vehicles and limited numbers of centrally-located parking areas, some measure of control is necessary.

But Mr. Farris' proposal to cut-down Thompson Woods and replace it with parking facilities borders on the absurd and would not be a solution to the parking problem for the following reasons:

1. You don't decrease congestion between pedestrians and vehicles in a central location, i.e., Thompson Woods, by adding more parking spaces for vehicles.

Platform Builder

Williams, Detroit; Free Press

General Morris also made the tactical decisions which Commander MacVicar carried out despite terrible personal losses in the propaganda war. MacVicar's company command post was bombed with propaganda leaflets containing countless signatures of SNAFU troops. The leaflets urged the SAD guerrillas to reconsider a plan for dropping the dreaded Parking Bomb whose poverty rays would penetrate deeply into the logistical units of SNAFU troops.

But the SAD guerrillas dropped an even bigger parking bomb on the SNAFU vehicle drivers and logistics section and their Legal Division artillery pounded away at SNAFU soldiers. (Occasionally, a short round would fall into Commander MacVicar's company, wounding him.)

After the parking bomb was dropped, Commander MacVicar, weary from battle fatigue after only two months in the field, was given two weeks R&R (rest and recuperation).

But MacVicar didn't look forward to returning to the war. He knew that along with the annual turning of leaves in the Southern province, additional mongol hordes of SNAFU troops which had been on a three month leave would return. He especially feared the attack troops of the elite SNAFU Greeks and soul-searching propaganda of the Student Invasion Planning Company (SIPC).

But whatever fears and doubts Commander MacVicar had, General Morris dispelled them with his famous saying: "Some are in jail. Some are in the hospital. All are expelled." It's a SAD victory.

Nick Harder

Rather, you decrease congestion by limiting the number of vehicles, students, or both. (I don't think the Board of Trustees has in mind eliminating the physical presence of students from the central campus; unless of course, automobiles demand more honor, respect and space than students!)

2. Thompson Woods represents a land-use entirely complementary to the central campus. It is both a physical and aesthetic asset. It is multi-functional (not uni-functional as a parking garage, etc. would be).

3. The possession of such natural areas such as Thompson Woods (replete the natural, rotting vegetation); affords one some perspective into the ecological environment of the woodland and should be encouraged. It is indeed complimentary to SIU when so many other newly-planned campuses have made provisions for similar areas in their planning.

4. A university's central campus is similar to that of a small city. What with an increasing number of students and automobiles, together with diminishing space, one must decide which is more important and who should be afforded which privileges and where. To sacrifice Thompson Woods for any form of parking facility would be admitting that automobiles have priority over the aesthetic needs of the entire University community.

The solution to SIU's traffic and parking problems lies with limiting the access to the central campus by automobiles—hopefully through increased fees, and if this proves inoperable, restricting access into the central area to all non-service vehicles. Provisions for parking would then be located only around the periphery of the campus.

Sticker Fee Too Steep

To the Daily Egyptian:

The administration and trustees of SIU are able to disillusion even the blindest and most idealistically enthusiastic of students. When I arrived at SIU in September of 1967, I was on top of the world. As of Saturday, I'm looking for a different school at which to do Ph.D. work.

Over the course of the year, I've been growing more and more upset at the administrative handling of problems. This summer, this upsetness bloomed into genuine disgust. I denounce the administrative hierarchy for its cowardice!! It has put off judgment on controversial issues (i.e., the military recruiters affair) until its decisions would meet with a minimum of resistance. And now—announcing on a Saturday afternoon, with only one week of school left, this new, insane, parking sticker policy—this is too much for words. (I have the words, but I also fear the libel laws.)

Maybe our beloved trustees, suffering under their affluence (do trustees even buy stickers?) don't realize that some people simply do not have the $45 to spend on a parking sticker. I am referring specifically to graduate assistants who merit a blue sticker by virtue of their status, but can't begin to be able to afford this outlay of funds—especially at the beginning of a school—if they, as I, are getting by largely on what I am paid by the University!! Forty-five dollars is almost one quarter of a monthly check! I accuse the administrative hierarchy of cowardice, and failure to comprehend the total effects of their categorical edicts. They have managed to create with their actions, culminated by this most recent one, one more dissident element.

Reform the Conventions

This is a prime-time moment, betwixt the Republican and Democratic conventions, to consider the need for reforming and updating the method by which the United States selects its presidential nominees. That the nominating convention, a combination of Mardi Gras and the Smithsonian Institution, is in need of reform, is agreed doctrine to all who suffered through the Republican performance at Miami Beach. But improvement divides itself into two parts: better rules to govern the convention process as it stands; and changes in the whole nominating method, as by resort to national primaries.

There is something to be said for the glory and hullabaloo of the conventions. They dramatize the size of America, the diversity of viewpoints, the essential compromises that build consensus and make representative government workable—even the exuberance of this irrepressible nation.

But, considering the convention itself, there is no justification for so many nominating and seconding speeches (which really reflect little credit on most of the speakers) as to shove the actual balloting for the presidency into the early morning hours, when most TV viewers have gone to bed. There is no need for long-winded opening-night oratory, for stretching into four days what could be finished off in two, for balloon cascades and snake-dances when there is nothing truly exciting to parade about. Yes, and no need for TV commentators to carry on drearily when nothing of consequence is being discovered by their assiduous floor-wanderers with their Martian headpieces.

Basically, all that is wanted is a reasonable method by which potential candidates may be located, may come forward, may display their wares. And by which the public can intelligently select the nominees. To improve on present processes—relics of the pre-electronic, slow-transportation era—should not be beyond the wit of a political nation.

In Africa Engineering Feats Change Restless Land

By Tony Koenderman
Copley News Service

LUSAKA, Zambia -- A man with seven wives lives in a grass hut next to a road grader on a Zambian hillside.

In the valley 1,000 feet below him, an international team of engineers is building a $170 million hydroelectric power project.

The man is Alfred Mwilinga. He owns neither a radio nor record player, cooker nor kettle, and has never used a telephone. He scratches an existence from the soil.

The project is the Kafue Gorge scheme, which will come into operation by Christmas 1970, just in time to prevent a critical power shortage in this copper-rich African republic.

The grader belongs to road constructors who have laid a network of metalled roads in an almost trackless area of bush.

Alfred Mwilinga is unconcerned that his age-old way of life is about to be changed forever. Nor is he concerned that new roads now fork on either side of his exposed hut.

"I was here first," he says simply. Four miles away, in the spectacular canyon with its raging torrent of water, work has begun on the diversion tunnels preparatory to building the main dam.

The project comprises two storage dams, one at the head of the Kafue Gorge, and the other 170 miles upstream.

The most interesting fact of the scheme is the underground workings. There will be eight miles of tunneling to bring water to the six 150-megawatt turbines and release it several miles downriver.

In the center, six vertical pipes of water, 15 feet across, will plunge from the head-race tunnel 1,300 feet onto the turbines.

Engineers envisage ultimately a string of dams and power stations in the wild Kafue Valley to meet the country's ever-growing power needs, which may exceed the supply soon after Kafue comes into full operation.

The Kafue Dam is more than a symbol of modernity in unspoiled Africa. It has also become part of the political and economic wrangle between Britain, her runaway ex-colony of Rhodesia, and Zambia.

The scheme is being built instead of a cheaper north bank power station at the giant Kariba Dam which is jointly owned by Zambia, and neighboring, white-ruled Rhodesia.

Kariba, which straddles the River Zambezi border between the two hostile countries--and throws back on of the world's largest manmade lakes--has become a Central African flash point.

Zambia has turned down the north bank scheme because Rhodesia, as co-owner, would have to authorize it, and Zambia refuses to negotiate with what it calls a "rebel regime." Additionally, it is feared here that going ahead with the north bank project would put another economic weapon in the hands of the Rhodesians.

The victim of eight acts of sabotage in 2 1/2 years, most of them believed to have been carried out by Rhodesians, landlocked Zambia is already at the mercy of its neighbor for its main links with the sea.

And it has not yet been able to break its traditional dependence on Rhodesia for a large proportion of its imported consumer goods, (Rhodesia is still this country's largest supplier.)

With hostility between the countries continually mounting -- because of Zambia's vociferous opposition to the Rhodesian government and its support for Rhodesian-banned African nationalist parties -- the fear is ever-present that the Rhodesians could use their traditional links with Zambia to strangle it in a gesture of retaliation.

Because of this hostility, the Higher Authority for Power--a body comprising representatives of both governments which theoretically controls Kariba--has never met.

Instead, a committee comprising the same representatives sees to the day-to-day control of Kariba operations, and hopes that at some future date when the Higher Authority can meet its decisions will all be ratified.

Power Play

The Kafue Gorge power project in Zambia is expected to be complete in late 1970, just in time to avoid a power shortage in the African country. Such projects are changing the face of Africa.

New Breed of Barbarians Invades Rome's Colosseum

By Jack C. Starr
Copley News Service

ROME -- "Until daylight, this place will be taboo for everyone with good sense and good taste."

The speaker was not commenting on New York's Central Park or the streets of Washington D.C., but on Rome's grandest monument, the Colosseum.

According to the handful of night custodians who must patrol the vast stadium, it is overrun by prostitutes and sex perverts. Unwary tourists who stroll into the massive arena to marvel at it by moonlight are in danger of being accosted by purse and camera snatchers.

The ruins also are littered with rubbish and garbage, and some of the interior caverns are used as public latrines.

"It's a disgrace," said one custodian, with an impotent shrug of the shoulders. "One doesn't know what more to do."

The superintendent of antiquities puts it even more harshly, saying that the Colosseum is being desecrated by barbarians worse than those who sacked Rome over 2,000 years ago.

This giant arena, 157 feet high, which could hold 50,000 spectators, was originally called the Flavian Amphitheater, after the emperor who began its construction. It was completed by Emperor Vespasian in 80 A.D. It was here that some of the most outstanding gladiatorial combats were fought. Its common name, the Colosseum, is derived from the colossal statue of Nero that stood near it.

The Colosseum was originally covered by travertine and other fine stones but was stripped of these in later centuries for use in the facades of other Roman public buildings.

It is said that Michelangelo contributed to this denuding when he needed some marble for St. Peter's Basilica. Finally, Pope Benedict XIV, in the mid-18th Century, ordered a halt to the dismantling of the Colosseum's marble.

That the ruins are littered is apparent to any observer, and the caverns, like dark corners throughout Mediterranean Europe, are undoubtedly sometimes used as latrines. But, like the still debated tales that Christians were thrown to the lions here, the claims of degenerates carousing in the shadows of the moonlit stadium seem exaggerated.

The current furor about the Colosseum dramatizes a problem that concerns all Roman antiquities: a desperate lack of funds to maintain an adequate custodial staff.

The treasury of the city of Rome is scraped bare and the city has been operating at a budgetary loss for years. As a result, the Roman ruins are overgrown with weeds and long grass and are badly littered.

At the Colosseum, it is apparent that a force of six men is not enough to keep it clean. The litter is everywhere, though it shows no more signs of being left by alleged underworld characters than by the 5,000 to 6,000 tourists daily.

Coke and beer bottles abound, as do empty cigarette packs, crushed paper cups and half-eaten ice cream cones and Popsicle sticks.

The tourists are not really to blame either. Where are they to put their refuse? A stroll around the entire wall of the Colosseum reveals not one litter bag or waste basket.

The statement by the superintendent of antiquities drew an instant reaction from Rome police, who immediately tripled their night patrols around the Colosseum.

In typical Roman fashion, however, the superintendent of antiquities takes the long way around to find a solution to the problem. Instead of installing litter baskets and squeezing out enough money from a government or private group to pay the salary of another custodian or two, he proposes to build a fence around the entire Colosseum.

That way, admission could be charged (with proceeds going to finance maintenance crews), and the Colosseum could be closed at night.

The Colosseum stands in the midst of an enormous piazza as its age and dignity demand. The distracting appearance of a fence would be such an artistic affront that the proposal stands little chance of approval from the Italian Parliament, which must okay such a project.

Battles Rage Near Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Three days of savage fighting along the Cambodian border, in the central highlands and the northern provinces cost the enemy 739 dead, most of them in Tay Ninh Province northwest of Saigon, allied spokesmen said Tuesday.

American casualties were reported as 69 killed and 361 wounded. South Vietnamese casualty figures are still being compiled.

Ground action tapered off to scattered skirmishes Tuesday. In one small bloody fight Viet Cong guerrillas wiped out a U.S. — Vietnamese Combined Action Platoon after overrunning an outpost 12 miles south of Da Nang in the north.

Military officials said the raiders killed all 11 Americans — 10 Marines and one Navy Corpsman — and 24 Vietnamese militiamen guarding the camp. Eight Viet Cong bodies were found.

Reinforcements from a government militia brigade at Hoi An pursued the Viet Cong but reported no contact.

The enemy's lightning attacks that began Sunday ended a two-month lull in the ground war, but allied commanders said it would be pure conjecture at this time to assume that it was the start of a big enemy push toward Saigon.

All believe the capital is the probable target of an expected third major offensive. But they also expect heavy attacks in the northern provinces below the demilitarized zone where a significant enemy buildup has been reported.

President Nguyen Van Thieu

visited Tay Ninh City, where one of the fiercest battles was fought Sunday and Monday. He said he could not guess when the enemy might launch a major drive on the capital but added: "I can assure you it will not be a surprise to us this time."

The U.S. Command reported Tuesday that two American aircraft were lost in combat.

Enemy machine-gun fire downed an F4 Phantom fighter-bomber over the eastern flank of the DMZ. Two wounded crewmen bailed out and were rescued. It was the 879th fixed-wing aircraft lost over North Vietnam. The helicopter was the 84th shot down.

Terrorist attacks ended a week of what authorities called "unnatural quiet" in Saigon.

Street Development Priority Approved for Grand Avenue

By Don Mueller

The Carbondale City Council last night approved a recommendation from the Carbondale Planning Commission that Grand Avenue be given priority over Park Street for development as a major thoroughfare.

The Council passed companion motions that the city (1) cancel a contract with consulting engineers for developing Park Street as a major thoroughfare and (2) request the Public Works Department to investigate ways of providing for pedestrian safety along Park Street.

One suggestion offered by the city planning commission was that of constructing a blacktop walkway along one side of Park to alleviate the safety problem.

The City Council directed City Attorney George Fleerlage to draw up an ordinance prohibiting hunting on city property where posted and that hunting on unposted city property be restricted to the use of shotguns.

The action came after the Council received a letter from a Murphysboro and three Carbondale residents requesting exclusive hunting rights on the city farm property.

Councilman Eaton amended a motion to prohibit all hunting on city owned property, made by Councilman Randall Nelson, to prohibit hunting in areas where posted.

Nelson sighted safety for persons using the community park and reservoir facilities as his main objection to granting hunting privileges on city farm property.

Councilman Ragsdale said he thought it would be very difficult to enforce regulations involving the posting of part of the property involved.

Under the ordinance as proposed by the Council, the city manager and director of public works would decide which areas are to be posted for safety precautions or other reasons.

Gov. Shapiro Explains National Guard Callout

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (AP) — Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro issued the following statement Tuesday in connection with his ordering the National Guard to duty beginning Friday for the Democratic National Convention in Chicago:

"I took the action in calling out the National Guard after conferring with a number of people including Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago who requested the troops.

"Saturday I met with State Adjutant Gen. Boyle and with Brig. Gen. Dunn who heads our emergency operation headquarters.

"I hope and pray that these troops do not have to take to the streets of Chicago but they will be ready if they have to. The people of the state of Illinois will not tolerate violence as a tool of political action.

"It is our hope that the national convention of one of our great political parties will not be marred by such violence. We hope our militia will act as a strong deterrent. If not a deterrent, it will be a ready force to protect the lives of all people."

Carbondale Schools Experiment With Ungraded Skills System

By Al Manning

Students at Lewis Grade School may not have to worry about taking bad report cards home next year.

The school, on the east side of Carbondale, may initiate a program in which the children will not receive grades. Instead, they will advance to the next level of learning according to the progress they have made.

The idea is the result of work done by Lewis School Principal George A. Mendenhall and Elementary School Supt. Laurence Martin.

"About 40 per cent of the pupils are disadvantaged at our school, and our old program just wasn't working," explained Mendenhall. "We talked it over and did some research on other ungraded school systems in the country. We then wrote a program for our own school, and it was approved by the Board of Education."

According to Mendenhall, the school will be divided into various skills, such as spelling, reading and arithmetic. There will be 18 levels for each of the various skills. Because the student will advance according to his own ability, he may be in level 10 spelling, eight in reading and six in arithmetic. In this way the student will not be urged to catch up with or slow down for other students.

Another change in the curriculum will be addition of a cultural program. The principal is planning short field trips, visits by various glee clubs, bands, art workshops and exhibits.

"The cultural aspect is definitely lacking in our school," said Mendenhall, who is summer director of the Jackson-Williamson Community Action Agency. "We took our children and wrote a program for them, rather than make the children fit a certain program. I think it can be done."

The new program is not without its problems. If a student transfers to a different school with the usual graded program, it may be difficult for him to adjust. When this happens Mendenhall will try to explain the Lewis School system to the new school and recommend placement of the student in a certain grade.

Another problem will be that of administering the program properly.

"When a program such as this fails, it is usually because the teachers have not been properly initiated into the program. Many still revert to their old habits of giving grades. I'm optimistic though. We have 14 teachers and 240 pupils, which is a good ratio."

There has been no opposition to the program as yet. "We sent out letters to the parents explaining what we want to do," said Mendenhall. "I don't think they understand it yet, but we will hear from them when school starts."

Mrs. Sam Silas, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, thinks it is a step in the right direction. She is planning a PTA meeting for early August to familiarize the parents with the program. Martin is also optimistic.

"Remember," he said, "that this is just a pilot program but if it is successful, we may put it in other schools."

Research Project Change Announced

George A. Flummer, Assistant Director of the Data Processing and Computing Center, has announced the use of a new system of control and distribution of research projects for "7044 Batch."

The 7044 Batch, a reference used for the programs handed in by students to be processed at the center, will have the following procedures:

Faculty, staff and graduate students using the Computing Center 7044 Batch for research, dissertation or thesis work have the option of having their output placed in the bins, as in the past, or picking it up directly from the clerk in Distribution.

Persons wishing to have their output held by Receiving and Distribution will be given a receipt card containing a job number. An ID card containing the same job number will be placed with their batch by the Receiving and Distribution clerk so it can be matched with the receipt at time of pick up. The user will present his receipt card to the Distribution window to obtain his output.

Persons using the receipt card instead of the bin can pick up their output only during normal office hours. These hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on week days and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Persons using the bin method assume responsibility for loss of the material after it has been placed in the bin.

Flummer stated not all students are affected by the receipt system. He noted that classroom problems and program testing students will continue to pick up their output from the bin. Facilities do not permit using the receipt system at this time, he said.

According to Albert Griese, manager of operations at the center, "all students may use the services we have." He added that the student needs authorization from the department because a fee of $100 an hour is billed the department.

Griese said the new system for 7044 Batch was to improve efficiency and give the person access to his material.

An electronic secretary records the batch and job completions and may be reached by dialing 3-2741.

SPORTS FANS

I
KNOW

By Sidney N. Starr

Did you know that the famous American food — the "hot dog" — was invented because of baseball? A man named Harry Stevens was in charge of the concessions at New York Giant baseball games in the last century, and one day it was cool and he wasn't selling much of the cold food which was all they had at ball parks in those days. During the game he went shopping for something warm he could sell. He bought sausage at a neighborhood butcher shop and rolls for the fans to hold the sausages with — and the hot dog was born. However, it was a newspaper cartoonist, Tad Dorgan, who coined the name "hot dog". He drew a cartoon one day soon after a baseball fan holding a sausage that looked like a dachshund enclosed in a bun, and it was known as a "hot dog" from then on.

One of the strangest nicknames in sports history belongs to the famous "Home Run" Baker. Most people don't know that Baker actually hit very few homers. The most he ever had in one year was 12, and he averaged only seven a season in his 13-year career. He got his nickname when he helped win two World Series games in 1911 with home runs. The nickname stuck even though he never hit many before or after that.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — lower death rate and are living five years longer on the average than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men may be possible broader benefits and greater cash values in College Life policies. This certainly makes good sense.

But the Show Goes On

Stage a Sissy's Sanctum? Injuries Indicate Otherwise

By Kevin Cole

While theater and gridiron are as remote as greasepaint and football, player-injury is one unforeseeable, inescapable, undesirable factor that plagues both fields.

Let no one say that the Summer Music Theater Repertoire Company, currently wooing SIU audiences with repeat performances of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "Most Happy Fella," "Sweet Charity" and "West Side Story," does not have its share of the unforeseeable, the inescapable and the undesirable.

But the show must go on. Loren Comer, "West Side Story's" Bernardo, received minor knife wounds with a real honest-to-goodness knife in the rumble scene, but the show went on.

In the same production, Ron "Chino" Holder was relaxing backstage in Muckelroy Auditorium when the drummer's stool fell from the orchestra's second-story pit onto the actor's knee, but the show went on.

Vance Fulkerson, choreographed to dive over a rolling barrel, in "West Side" did so successfully, but sat down hard on a nail. His recovery was instant and complete—straight up—and the show went on.

To watch the split-second choreography of the fast-moving productions is to wonder why the bicycle chain-flailing and knife-slashing and the downright rugged action does not result in more series injuries.

Holder, who has had both knees dislocated on the set this summer, theatrically threw Jet gang member Jim "Arab" Propes across the stage during an actual performance. Upon landing, Propes untheatrically broke his wrist, but the show went on.

The fracture reportedly gives him some pain, but his roles prohibit the use of a protective cast, so Propes goes on castless.

For Holder many injuries occur after his stage death in "West Side." As if a fatal knifing by arch-rival Tony weren't enough, once that blood-thirsty rolling barrel (witness Mr. Fulkerson, above) passed over Holder's "Dead" head, and the show went on.

Another time, he ran off stage during a blackout and slammed into a two-by-four-inch board, and the lights stayed out but the show went on.

Petite Nancy Pearl, the "Anybody's" of "West Side," suffered an undetermined foot injury in one of the earlier runs of the play and has been on crutches since, and the show goes on.

"Sweet Charity's" Linda "Charity" Sublett barely escaped being steamrolled under a piece of moving stage equipment during a dress rehearsal, and the show went on.

Stoics all? Temporarily, yes.

"When you're on stage, there is so much adrenalin pumping through you that you actually don't feel pain at the time," Miss Sublett said. "You can run around with cuts, bruises, sprains and even serious breaks and not feel them until later offstage."

Aid for wounded performers is just a stage whisper away. For sprains and other minor injuries, someone usually drives to the Health Service for medication or ice packs, according to Dan Vance, the Company's business manager.

"For fractures and serious injuries, the performer is taken to the Health Service for treatment either during or after the performance, depending on if he thinks he can perform with his injury or not," he said.

And the show must go on, because in the words of "West Side Story" director Z. J. Hymel, "Those are the breaks of the game."

New-Student Activities Begin September 20

New Student Week will get off to an activity-filled start Sept. 20.

Special new student activities have been planned to extend through Sept. 28. Four hundred new student week leaders have already been accepted, but any student with a 3.0 overall may still apply for a position, according to Edward Yaw, orientation consultant.

Students will get settled in on-campus residence halls Sept. 20-21, and a dance will follow at 8 p.m. Sept. 21 at the University Center Patio.

Parents and students will assemble at separate orientation programs Sept. 22. New students will be welcomed by SIU President Delyte W. Morris and student body president Sam Panayotovich at 2:30 p.m. in the SIU Arena. Parents will be received and addressed by William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs.

A watermelon feast, hosted by President and Mrs. Morris, will follow at 7 p.m. in the Morris' backyard.

Transfer students will meet Sept. 23, and other activities will be planned for designated new student groups and led by their assigned leaders.

Tryouts for a new student talent show will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 24 in Davis Auditorium in the Wham Education Building. Rehearsals for the show will begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 25 in Davis Auditorium. The show will be staged at 8 p.m. Sept. 27 in the University Theater in the Communications Building.

A dance and activities fair will be sponsored from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sept. 28 in the Arena. Music will be provided by the "Boxtops" and descriptive displays and booths will be set up by the extra-curricular student groups on campus.

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar will speak at the first university convocation at 1 p.m. Oct. 3 in the Arena.

Robinson Interviews Planned

Walter Robinson, director of University Services to Carbondale, will be featured in two radio interviews this week. Robinson will be interviewed on his work in the newly-formed University office at 2:05 p.m. today on WJPF-Radio in Herrin. He will be interviewed again at 10:30 p.m. Friday on WDQN in DuQuoin.

Chem Chairman Quits; Remains As Teacher

John Wotiz, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, has resigned from that position, which he has held since May, 1967.

Wotiz said he resigned to devote more time to research and teaching, which he will continue to do at SIU. He said further that he hoped his resignation would serve as a personal protest supporting changes which need to be made, both outside and within the department. Wotiz declined to make further comment.

Wotiz will continue to act as chairman until a replacement is found.

At Health Service

The University Health Service has reported the following admissions and dismissals:

Admissions: Margie J. Watson, 201 N. University Ave.; Mary Jo Harlan, Smith Tower.

Dismissals: None.

Ex-KSU Men Dominate SIU Football Staff

Coming from Kansas State University may not be a prerequisite for membership on the SIU football coaching staff—but it sure helps. Five of the six football mentors now playing their skills here had Kansas State University scribbled in somewhere on their application blanks.

Bob Mazie, SIU's defensive line coach, is the lone member who never walked the Kansas State campus either as student or coach.

Dick Towers, who came to Southern two years ago before accepting the head coaching spot last year, graduated from Kansas State in 1953. While attending KSU he roomed with none other than Ron Marciniak, who is presently employed as SIU's offensive line coach.

Tom O'Boyle, who coaches defensive linebackers and ends for Southern, also played football at KSU with Towers and Marciniak and earned four varsity letters in the sport from 1950-54.

Jerry McGee, also a product of you-know-where, played his collegiate ball for Duke where he was voted "Most Inspirational Athlete" in 1961. He coached freshman football at Kansas State two seasons ago before coming to Southern last year.

Mark Bolick completes the KSU domination of the football staff. A graduate of KSU in 1966, Bolick stayed on to assist McGee with the K-State freshman team.

Both Bolick and McGee journeyed to Southern last year and joined the rest of the KSU alumni.

As a collegiate, Bolick played the 1961 and 1963 seasons with Northern Oklahoma JC before completing his playing career with K-State in 1966. He was his conference's leading scorer at Oklahoma and the 10th leading pass receiver in the nation.

Mazie, who despite his background receives no prejudice from the rest of the staff, was still not a stragler to the staff on his arrival in 1967. He was a high school teammate of Marciniak's at St. George High School in Pittsburgh from 1949 to 1951.

Mazie came to SIU from Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla., where he was line coach for two seasons. He played his college ball at Waynesburg State in Pennsylvania and earned four letters from 1953-57.

Coaching Lineup

SIU Coach Plays Role In Gymnastics Conclave

Bill Meade, SIU's gymnastics coach, recently played an instrumental role in the recognition of the U.S. Gymnastics Federation at the Federation of International Gymnastics (FIG) in Rome.

FIG outlined a proposal that would allow dual supervision of U.S. gymnastics by the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the U.S. Gymnastics Federation (USGF).

Meade, a supporter of the USGF for the past five years, served as one of the spokesmen of the group which hopes to gain recognition by FIG.

"The AAU tries to dictate instructions to 17 sports while we (USGF) are only interested in one sport," Meade said. "We are better equipped and have the interests of the athletes at heart; whereas, AAU can't spend any time on the individual. It looks to the group as a whole."

A battle for supervision of American gymnastics has been going on for the last five years.

"With the competition of the USGF, we have forced the AAU to better their standards," Meade said. "We have better facilities, more trained personnel and better athletes."

FIG President Arthur Gander announced the AAU has been given a deadline of Oct. 4 to approve the proposal by the commission. It was indicated by FIG that further corrective action would be taken regarding the American situation if the AAU approval is not received by the deadline.

"In my opinion the AAU is not serving the U.S. gymnastic world in the best interests. Politics play a big role in the AAU organization," Meade said. "To them money has all the answers. To us, gymnastics is an art; winning per se is not what we're after. It's being as close to perfect as possible that is our goal. The AAU people don't understand this."

According to the official text of FIG, the proposal was made to "bring any technical contribution to the U.S. in the best spirit of cooperation and progress in order to secure a full program for gymnastics in America."

Another important part of the proposal is that the USGF no longer would have to have AAU sanction for the staging of meets or to bring foreign teams to this country for competition. The proposal says both organizations can jointly sponsor an event or that an event may be sponsored by either group independently.

"All of the other foreign countries in Olympic competition have been exposed to a lot of international competition; whereas, the U.S. teams are way under par in this area," Meade said. "A step toward more international competition will improve U.S. Gymnastics a great deal."

USGF was formed in 1963 to help the sport in America in the face of repeated poor showings in international competition and the apparent lack of domestic development and administration of gymnastics.

"With dual supervision of U.S. gymnastics the whole program will show tremendous improvement," Meade said. "The gymnastics have a lot to gain in the future."

Phillies Rip Cards, 8-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Cookie Rojas and Clay Dalrymple tagged home runs as the Philadelphia Phillies ripped the St. Louis Cardinals 8-2 Tuesday night.

The Phillies rocked Cardinal starter Nelson Briles for seven hits and seven runs in three innings and ended the right-hander's winning streak at five.

After retiring the first two men in the opening inning, Briles was reached for four hits and a pair of walks for four runs. Rich Allen doubled home one run, Bill White singled in another, Gary Sutherland singled across a third and the final tally came on a throwing error.

Briles, who had won eight of his last nine and was seeking his 17th victory, gave up a home run to Rojas in the second and was touched for a single by Tony Gonzalez and a home run by Dalrymple in the third.

Larry Jackson, recovered after a bout with the flu, checked the Cardinals on 10 hits for his 11th victory against 15 defeats.
