Residents to determine future of plan for school consolidation

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Nearly a year has passed since voters went to the polls and narrowly defeated a proposal to consolidate Carbondale's high school system. Supporters of the consolidation plan hope the outcome will be different when a second attempt to get voter approval takes place Tuesday.

Like last year, residents of Carbondale Community High School District 165 will vote on an $8.75 million bond issue to finance the consolidation of the three high school campuses at the East Campus facilities.

Supporters of the plan say the present system, with students split between East Campus, Central Campus and the Vocational Center, causes administrative problems and unnecessary costs.

A citizen committee formed in January to gain support for the proposal, has been busy trying to sell the plan to the public.

They argue that students spend too much time being bused from one campus to another and often are unable to schedule all the classes that they want to take. They also claim that Carbondale high school students lack a sense of unity that normally develops in a one-campus school.

Economically, supporters say it's a pay-now or pay-later situation. Duplication of services on the three campuses is expensive, they say, as is the costs of maintaining three separate buildings, especially in light of declining enrollments.

In addition, they note that if the consolidation proposal fails, District 165 will be required to spend about $3.2 million to bring the Central Campus facilities within the state's health and safety standards.

USO leaders endorse Hutcherson

By James Derk
Staff Writer

The Executive Cabinet of the Undergraduate Student Organization has endorsed Sharon Hutcherson for the position of student trustee in Tuesday's election.

The cabinet made their endorsement following a meeting between five of the candidates and leaders of recognized student organizations.

"While we appreciate all of the candidates' intentions to represent the students, we believe she is obviously the best qualified candidate," said USO President Jerry Cook. "We strongly urge the students to support her as well."

Graduate Student Council President Ann Greeley and Vice President Dan Venturi also support Hutcherson for the position.

"Sharon (Hutcherson) is by far the strongest candidate," Greeley said. "She is articulate, intelligent, concerned and has a good understanding of the working relationship that should exist between GSC, USO and the student trustee."

Greeley said that while she couldn't speak for the whole council, "after attending today's meeting of the candidates, I strongly urge my constituents to vote for (Hutcherson)."

Candidates Hutcherson, Surya Prasai, Laurie Walton, Gordon Wayman and Alex Miceli met Sunday in the Student Center. John Kelly was not present.

"I think the meeting was very important as an avenue of communication for the candidates," Cook said. "It's unfortunate that John (Kelly) couldn't be here."

Cook said Hutcherson was very knowledgeable about the state higher education system and the role she would play in

Student views essential to candidates

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

The main job of the student trustee is to present the student point of view to the Board of Trustees.

That is the consensus of all six of the candidates vying for the chance to replace Stan Irvin, who resigned Feb. 10, as student trustee. A winner, who will serve until June 30, will be selected Tuesday in a campus-wide election.

"The student trustee is like a token student who speaks to the board for the whole student body, trying to get the students' viewpoint across," said candidate Laurie Walton, a 21-year-old senior in economics.

ALL THE CANDIDATES said recently that there are several issues on which voicing student concerns is especially important.

"I am concerned with the general problems that face the student right now," said Surya "Jack" Prasai, a 21-year-old sophomore in political science. "If I'm elected, I think I'll really be able to see what the problems are and make recommendations to solve them."

All candidates agreed that the issue of tuition increases will be an important one, and most said alternatives should be examined. The Board of Trustees is scheduled to consider a 10 percent tuition increase at its meeting March 10.

"Students are fed up with tuition increases," said Prasai, a student from Nepal who is a member of the International Student Council. He said that tuition should be brought down in comparison with other universities.

Sharon Hutcherson, a 25-year-old law student, said she would vote no on tuition increases and ask the board to examine alternatives.

Hutcherson said she is concerned that the board may approve a tuition increase of more than 10 percent if higher education isn't allocated the entire $1.36 billion fiscal year 1984 budget recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. "If there has to be an increase, let's keep it at the recommended level," she said.

Alex Miceli, a 25-year-old graduate student in history, agreed that alternatives should be explored to keep tuition increases nominal. "I would be in favor of a tuition increase only if it is the only logical way the University can keep services it now has," he said.

ALTERNATIVES to tuition increases include increasing revenues by renting University space to groups and rerouting money from some programs to others, said Miceli, an SIU-C graduate from Chicago.

John Kelly, a 23-year-old senior in accounting and finance, said, "The system is in dire need of funding." He said students must work realistically to get more funding.

"I would work to tell both the federal and state legislators that higher education funding is the No. 1 priority," said Kelly, a Skokie native who is president of the College of Business.

Walton, who said she is "wholeheartedly against tuition increases," said the University could save money by consolidating supervisory positions. "From working within the University, I have found that there are a lot of positions that don't need to exist," said Walton, a Roselle native who has been a student worker in housing and is a member of the Undergraduate Student Organization election commission.

Gordon Wayman, a 22-year-old graduate student in political science, agreed. "The University could cut one-third of its executive positions and still not feel any impact whatsoever," he said.

Wayman, a 1982 SIU-C graduate from Benton, said the administrative part of the budget is the root of SIU's budget problems. He said he would form a committee, composed of taxpayers and students, that would look at the administrative budget "to see where cuts can be made so that a tuition increase can be stopped."

He said Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's salary should be cut. "There is no logical reason why he should make more than Gov. James R. Thompson," Wayman said.

TUITION INCREASES may limit access to higher education, said Hutcherson, a 1979 SIU-C graduate from Chicago. "SIU must maintain its quality, but at a reasonable price, a price that will be accessible to all students," she said.

Hutcherson said she would work with John Rendleman, SIU-Edwardsville student trustee, to ask the IBHE to research the effects of tuition, fees and student loans on student access, a report the IBHE said it would do a year ago.

One factor that may limit access is the availability of student loans, a concern that Walton said she would express to the board. She said that she would have been unable to complete college without financial aid.

Wayman also emphasized the importance of student loans, saying that loans should be available to anyone who applies and is in need of them. He said that the payoff of loans should be strictly enforced.

Maintaining the quality of education is also of concern to the candidates. One measure of quality, Miceli said, is the library.

"I've always been interested in the library because it's a measure for selecting schools," said Miceli, who has an assistantship in the Student Life Office. He said the University must have an on-campus library storage facility, saying that he would favor the Baptist Student Center over the Bracy Building if a building couldn't be constructed.

"The University is built of students first," Miceli said. "If that's what we want, we should get it."

THE UNIVERSITY has been appropriated $1.6 million for the purchase of a library storage facility. The Board of Trustees is considering three alternatives — the Bracy Building, in Marion; the Baptist Student Center, on campus; and the Wal-Mart Building, in Carbondale.

Walton, Kelly and Wayman also are opposed to the purchase of the Bracy Building. Kelly and Walton said they would favor the University purchasing the Baptist Student Center. Hutcherson said she would ask the board and University executives, in cooperation with the library deans, to gather information from local construction companies to examine alternatives before any decision is made.

Several candidates have also addressed the issue of library hours.

The decision to cut library hours by six hours a week was made last fall without much input from students, said Wayman, who says that study should be the University's priority. "I am frustrated about the lack of student influence that student leaders have in the policy-making process of the University," Wayman said.

Kelly said he would favor reinstating the hours, but said he is also interested in establishing 24-hour study lounges, suggesting the basement of the Rehn Building as a possibility.

Prasai said library hours should be increased by an hour or two a week. He said funding could be found by cutting the amount of electricity used by the University.

"There is a lot of electricity wasted, especially in the Student Center," Prasai said. "When there is a minimum of traffic, some of the lights should be turned off."

STUDENT INVOLVEMENT is another concern of most of the candidates.

Miceli, like the other candidates, said that a major role of the student trustee is to coordinate other student leaders on campus.

"Students need to get involved," Miceli said. "They need to write letters to back up what the trustee is saying."

Hutcherson said she plans to implement a monthly newsletter that would provide "a first-hand account for people who weren't at board meetings." As an undergraduate, she was the editor of two newsletters and was a congressional intern for Carl Byoir and Associates, a public relations and lobbying firm in Washington, D.C.

Miceli, Walton and Kelly all said they would set up office hours so that students could meet with them.

Wayman said he plans to meet with student organizations before and after board meetings, which are usually held once a month. "There are a lot of students that have a thousand ideas, but they've just never been asked," he said.

Wayman also said he would play a more public role as student trustee, saying "people should know who the trustee is."

"I would work to make those who pay the bills more aware of University affairs," Wayman said. The Legislature listens to those who vote, and students are not known as voters, said Wayman, who was an intern in the Illinois secretary of state's office and was campaign manager for Pete Prineas in his race against U.S. Rep. Paul Simon last fall.

"If students just holler and scream, not much will get done," Wayman said. "The Legislature will listen to our parents and the taxpayers."

The candidates also said they would like student trustees to be granted binding votes instead of the advisory votes they now have. "There is no logical reason why the student trustee vote doesn't count," Wayman said. "We are adults, not little-bitty high school students."

He and Hutcherson said they would work with the Legislature to get a bill passed granting binding votes, something Hutcherson said can be done within two or three years.

"A high voter turnout in the student trustee election Tuesday would show that we believe that student representation on the board is important," Hutcherson said.

Moslems killed for defying boycott

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Hindu tribesmen wielding hatchets, spears, machetes and old firearms butchered between 600 and 1,000 Moslem villagers for defying an election boycott in violence-torn Assam state, witnesses reported Sunday.

The latest accounts reaching New Delhi from the remote northeastern state said the tribesmen rampaged through 17 villages Friday, stabbing, shooting and mutilating helpless victims, identified as Moslem settlers from neighboring Bangladesh.

"The victims, mostly women and children, were backed to death," said one account by Shekhar Gupta, a reporter for the Indian Express news service.

House prepares anti-recession bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anti-recession drive picks up momentum this week in the Democratic-controlled House, where committees begin writing bills to provide humanitarian relief, public works jobs and extra unemployment benefits.

The Reagan administration, succumbing to pressure from both parties in Congress, has proposed a $4.3 billion "bipartisan" measure including $4 billion for public works jobs and $300 million for food and shelter for the needy.

House Appropriations Committee chairman Jamie Whitten, whose committee will draft the legislation, is certain to leave his imprint by adding money for rural programs that he favors and social programs favored by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

Nigeria slashes oil prices

By the Associated Press
OPEC member Nigeria broke ranks and slashed its official oil price by $5.50 a barrel Sunday, threatening to trigger a price war within the once-mighty cartel over the world's glutted petroleum market.

The cut to $30 a barrel — announced by the African nation's state-run radio and monitored in London — came two days after Nigeria's chief competitors for European sales, Britain and Norway, lowered their official North Sea crude prices $3-$3.50, to $30.50 a barrel.

Nigeria's announcement brought new pressure to bear on six Persian Gulf OPEC members, who were meeting in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to respond to the British and Norwegian challenge to the cartel's grip on oil prices.

organized opposition to the consolidation plan, the current state of the national economy makes a tax increase unpopular. And the bonds used to finance the consolidation project would be paid off with property taxes.

Homeowners' property taxes are based on the equalized assessed value of their property, about one-third of the market value. The current tax levy for the high school district is $1,731.63 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation. The total tax levy paid by Carbondale residents is $7,365.22 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation.

According to the Jackson County Clerk's Office, the total equalized assessed value of the property within the school district is more than $132.5 million. The current tax levy brought about $2.24 million to the district in 1982, according to the County Treasurer's office.

The citizen's committee supporting the consolidation plan estimated that a property owner with a home assessed at $25,000 would pay $167.50 per year. Property assessed at $10,000 would be taxed $67 per year, they say.

According to records at the treasurer's office, a person living within the high school district in a home with an equalized assessed value of $26,700 paid $462.33 to the district in 1982; a property owner with a home assessed at $3,735 paid $64.68.

A lingering question in the matter has been what to do with the Central Campus and Vocational Center facilities if classes are consolidated at East Campus. A committee formed to address that question announced their recommendations last week. They said if the bond issue passes, the main Central Campus building, built in 1923, should be torn down, the superintendents office and athletic field should be sold and the Learning Center should be retained by the district.

They suggested that Bowen Gym and some remaining Central Campus buildings could be sold or negotiated for use by the Carbondale Park Board. A similar arrangement should be made for the Vocational Center, which could be used by the YMCA, they said.

Although the bond issue is virtually identical to the one defeated in March 1982 by a vote of 2,270 to 2,084, supporters hope that the a couple differences in external factors will give them the margin of victory.

Last year, they point out, the high school bond issue shared the ballot with a very unpopular proposal to build a new county jail. They also note that last year's election took place during SIU-C spring break and many potential supporters were not in town.

Regardless of the vote on Tuesday, district officials have decided to move close to the Vocational Center, located on East Main Street. If the bond issue fails the vocational program will be moved to Central Campus.

Voters, who must be registered, can vote at regular precinct polling places within the high school district. Polls will be open 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Byrne, opponents ready for primary in last-minute push

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Mayor Jane M. Byrne and her two Democratic rivals campaigned furiously Sunday in a final push for still plentiful undecided votes in Tuesday's primary, while warnings were issued against ballot box fraud.

The 48-year-old mayor got warmed up by pumping hands on friendly turf in the steelmill district, but quickly moved on to a church in the South Side bastion of black Rep. Harold Washington, who was running second, five points behind Mrs. Byrne in the Chicago Sun-Times-Channel 5 poll published Friday.

Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, son of the city's late mayor, was running third among likely voters in the poll, five points behind Washington.

the University decision-making process as student trustee. Cook also cited Hutcherson's background as an important element in the endorsement.

"It is for these reasons that the USO Executive Cabinet unanimously supports Hutcherson," Cook said. "We think she will most effectively represent the views of the SIU-C students to the Board of Trustees."

Hutcherson is a second-year law student who received a degree in public relations from SIU-C. She is a former election commissioner of the GSC and a former congressional intern.

Elect Hutcherson

When the students go to the polls Tuesday to elect their student trustees, they certainly won't be able to complain about a lack of diversity in the candidates. Women, foreign students, minorities, graduate students, undergrads — just about every constituent group on campus is represented. There's a veritable smorgas-board of trustee candidates.

But there is one candidate that we feel stands above the rest and that candidate is Sharon Hutcherson.

Hutcherson, a 25-year-old law student, shows the intelligence and the fortitude needed to represent the students of SIU-C, especially during these troubled times for higher education.

A 1979 graduate of SIU-C, Hutcherson has shown the commitment to being involved. She accepted the sticky position of Graduate Student Council election commissioner following the follies that went on there last month. She is currently president of the local chapter of the Black American Law Students Association. She has served as a congressional intern in Washington, D.C. And, as a minority member and a woman, she fills a gap for those two important constituency groups.

We urge you to vote for Sharon Hutcherson for student trustee Tuesday.

Bevis, Tuxhorn are choices in city race

Carbondale voters will decide Tuesday which two of three City Council candidates will be on the ballot for the April 12 general election. We believe the best choices are Elliot Bevis and Keith Tuxhorn.

Bevis is experienced in city affairs after 20 years on the Zoning Board of Appeals and 22 years as a real estate salesman. He has exhibited knowledge on the issues confronting the city and has made himself accessible during the campaign by hosting an open house in the SIU-C Student Center.

Keith Tuxhorn, an SIU-C graduate who has lived in Carbondale 10 years, is likely to reflect a pleasant blend of student and community interests. Both he and Bevis have attended council meetings — at least since announcing their candidacies — and Tuxhorn is interested in maintaining social services in Carbondale.

Matthew Creen's expertise seems limited to transportation issues. He appears to be a student first who decided to be a candidate, not a candidate who happened to be a student. He wants to improve relations between the students and the city such as during Halloween.

Bevis and Tuxhorn are more likely to wisely serve the city on the council.

'Yes' on bond issue

On Tuesday, voters once again will have the chance to determine the fate of Carbondale's high school system.

This is the second try for approval of a plan that would consolidate all the high school classes and activities at the East Campus facilities. A similar proposal was narrowly defeated last year.

We think the consolidation plan should be approved.

Although an $8.7 million bond issue would be required to finance the $9.5 million cost of consolidation, the increase in property taxes that would result is justified. It has been estimated that the additional property tax on a home assessed at $25,000 would be about $170 per year.

If the bond issue is defeated, the school district will be required to spend about $3.25 million to bring the Central Campus facilities up to the state's health and safety standards. While $9.5 million is obviously a lot more money than $3.25 million the matter must not be viewed as purely monetary.

The real issue is what is best for the high school students.

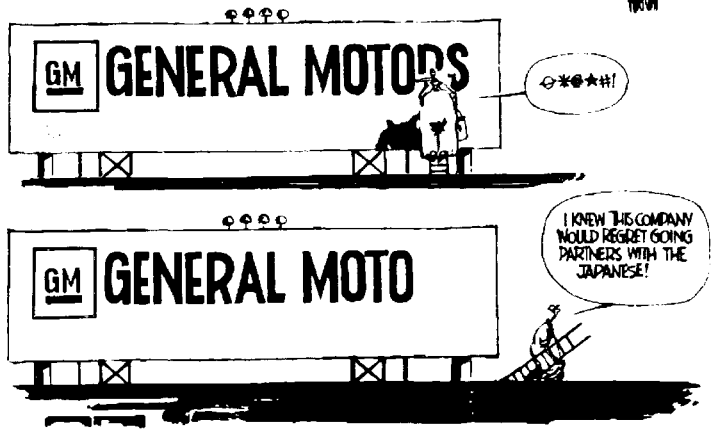

The current arrangement splits the student body in three separate units: Central Campus, East Campus and the Vocational School. Consolidation would eliminate student class time lost in traveling between the three campuses, reduce students' scheduling conflicts and possibly end some of the disciplinary problems that occur at the "open" Central Campus. But perhaps even more importantly it would give Carbondale High School students a sense of unity that is lost with the present system.

These improvements would allow Carbondale High School students to spend more time in more classes that they want to take, thus raising the quality of their education.

Regardless of the referendum's outcome, people will continue to argue as to whether the projected long-run monetary savings of a consolidated high school system outweigh the initial costs.

But the real concern here is the effect on the students; they deserve a quality education and the residents of Carbondale can certainly afford to make it available to them.

That is the real issue here, and that's why voters should say "yes" to the consolidation plan.

Channel 8 needs some game shows

Andrew Herrmann

Editorial Page Editor

I WAS LOOKING for something to watch on TV the other night and I came across a listing for Channel 8 — the Public Broadcasting System station in Carbondale. WSIU-TV had a show on called "Miles of Smiles, Years of Struggle". The 100-year-old widow of a Pullman porter narrates this film about black men's smiling and efficient service which became the hall mark of the Pullman Co.

Sound pretty dull? That's what I thought, too. And it dawned on me that I find just about everything on PBS dull — MacNeil-Lehrer Report, The Ring of the Nibelungs, Life on Earth, Outdoors with Art Reid, Wall Street Week. The only thing that really caught my eye on channel 8 was this show called Sign-Off, but it was on too late and I never got to catch it. PBS is geared toward intellectuals, I'm told, so that's probably why I didn't find anything I'd like.

AND I THOUGHT that there were probably many people like myself in Carbondale who were bypassing Channel 8 because it was programmed over their heads. But since WSIU-TV is affiliated with the University somehow I thought it was my duty to make a few suggestions as to how the folks over there could attract more viewers like myself. I'm convinced that what WSIU-TV, channel 8, needs is game shows. And plenty of 'em.

The game shows could originate here on campus so they certainly wouldn't cost too much and maybe Channel 8 could sell more ads in the bargain. Here's a sampling of some game show ideas I have. And, hey, WSIU-TV people, feel free to take any of them you'd like at no charge. It's my pleasure.

Boxing for Bucks — Since we are constantly hearing the faculty gripe and moan at the administration that they don't get paid enough, I suggest that the two sides stop their futile discussions and slug it out like men. Even the women members of the faculty — slug it out. Televised by Channel 8 and held in a special ring constructed in McAndrew Stadium, professors and administrators could don boxing trunks and gloves and put on a real show. Shut up and put up. With professional boxing scorers, points could count toward (or against) prospective pay raise dollars. Knock-downs could be worth, say, $50 raises or cuts, and severe facial wounds could be worth maybe $25 either way. And to get this show off on the right foot, the premier card could feature Faculty Senate President Herbert (Destroyer) Donow vs. Albert (the Comet) Somit.

Morris Madness — One hour is all that would be allowed to the graduate student contestant to look in the periodical index in Morris Library for information. One hour is all that would be allowed for the contestant to try to find the elusive 1976 November back issue of Time magazine and, one hour is all that would be allowed to locate pages 48-56 of that particular periodical. Watch the player anger as he looks through stacks of loose magazines. Watch 'im grind his teeth when he finds pages 48 to 56 have been torn out by some dunderhead. Watch as his hopes for a good grade disappear like, oh, so many bound periodicals from Morris Library.

Clean Seat — Female students are given one evening to find a clean toilet in a downtown bar. It'll be a tough search, ladies. They're far and few between, but rumor has it there is one or two up there somewhere. For finding a washroom fit for human beings the player wins but if she finds one with toilet paper, too, it can mean some heavy, heavy bonus points. Good-luck, ladies! You'll need a miracle!

Civil Service Search — Players are allowed to make a mess somewhere in the housing area. This is the easy part of the game. Most players naturally master this facet of Civil Service Search. The trick is to find a civil service worker (no easy task in itself) and — remember you must complete this third phase of the game to win — awaken the worker and persuade him to clean the mess up.

Maverick — Players interested in student government are put into the USO maze and try to gain ground, brownie points and get into strategic positions WITHOUT becoming part of the Maverick party.

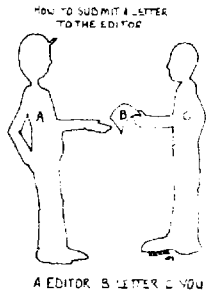

Unfortunately there are few winners in this show and losers must cry out "Maverickeconomics" at various intervals of the game.

Egyptian Connoisseur — Average intelligent college students are given clippings of Daily Egyptian articles. They have 10 minutes to read them and answer elementary questions such as "What is the story about?" "Are there any people mentioned in the story?" "Did you want to know this information?" and "Are you confused?"

Whozat-whazzat? — Freshmen students are shown photocopies of their instructors, textbooks and homework assignments and asked to identify them. Freshman students who can answer the most questions correctly, win. Vague answers such as "I think that's one of my teachers" don't count.

Education — Contestants pay roughly $20,000 to spend eight semesters at Southern. Rules of the game are to get good grades, do as much extra-curricular work as possible and gain practical experience where ever necessary. Goal is to secure a diploma and find employment. Like Maverick, winners are scarce in this game.

This is just a sampling, Channel 8 but, like I said, feel free to use them at no charge. In the meantime, put something good on, will ya?

Spring break trips offer relaxation

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Three spring break trips, sponsored by the Travel and Recreation Committee of the Student Programming Council, are offering students a chance to alleviate the tensions brought on by the study sessions of the spring semester.

Two trips to the south will provide days of deep frying in the sun in Daytona Beach, Florida or on South Padre Island, Texas. The other excursion provides the snow Carbondale was lacking this winter with skiing in Breckenridge, Colo.

All of SPC's trips offer first class accommodations. Shauna Hagopian, SPC Travel and Recreation Committee chairwoman, said. At South Padre Island students will stay in condominiums with kitchens and in Daytona they will stay at the Plaza Hotel.

Only 15 people will be traveling to Breckenridge for the ski trip, Hagopian said, because SPC had just two weeks to sign people up before they had to make reservations. Reservations for the ski trip is closed.

The Florida and Texas trips, which cost $199 and $209 respectively, are still taking reservations. The two buses to Padre Island will accommodate 96 individuals. Three buses to Daytona Beach will take a maximum of 150 people, she said.

All buses are coaches, as opposed to school buses, and will leave from the Student Center. The last day to sign up for the South Padre Island trip is Monday, Feb. 21. The final day to register for Daytona Beach is Monday, Feb. 28.

The SPC Travel and Recreation Committee began planning these trips during the summer. They took bids from travel agencies and accepted the lowest one, she said. The bids were made on a group rate basis which allows SPC to charge less than an individual would pay on his own.

The major advertising campaigns and promotional activities for these trips commenced immediately following the semester break. The committee used radio, newspapers, posters, flyers and solicitation tables to interest students in their trips, Hagopian said.

Over half the spaces for the trips were filled in the first two weeks, she said. "There is usually a lull and then people come back at the end. Lots of people are waiting for loans and to see if they have the money."

"We found that people are really comparing this year," Hagopian said. "More people are asking what they will get."

The economic crunch may have made students more cautious about how they spend money, but they are still spending the money. The number of people travelling through SPC, however, has not increased or decreased.

The SPC trips have a reputation that students never get less than what they are told they will get. "Plans don't change," Hagopian said, but, "if something goes wrong on a trip, we're there to deal with it."

Hagopian said she thinks SPC's trips are best suited to students because, "we're students working for students."

she said. She explained that during the planning stages, "we think about what we would like," and then apply that to the actual trip. A lot of little details are looked at just because the travelers are students, she said.

For this reason, SPC books its reservations in places with either kitchens or kitchenettes, because students can cook and save money. Reservations are also made, wherever possible, within walking distance to save bus fare, she said.

Free video passes to be given away

The Student Programming Council's Video Committee will be giving away 30 free admission passes away at 12 noon Tuesday at the Student Center's central escalator and vending area.

According to Valerie Hall, the Video Committee's account executive, the giveaway is part of a newly undertaken effort to make more students aware of the location and offerings of the fourth floor video lounge in the Student Center.

Throughout the semester, the Video Committee offers a wide variety of films at the cost of $1.

'Die Walkure' to air on WSIU-TV

"The Ring of the Nibelung," Richard Wagner's epic masterpiece, continues in two parts at 8 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 21 and Monday, Feb. 28 on WSIU-TV, channel 8, when "Great Performances" presents "Die Walkure," the second of the four operas that make up the "Ring."

"Die Walkure," like the other operas of "The Ring" was originally staged for the Bayreuth Festival's Centennial Celebration in 1976 by Patrice Chereau. It was videotaped for television, under the direction of Brian Large, on the stage of The Wagner Festival Theater in Bayreuth, Germany where "The Ring" premiered in 1876.

SEE THE BUDWEISER OLYMPIC ART COLLECTION AND HELP RAISE $1 MILLION FOR THE U.S. OLYMPIC TEAM.

We're bringing six famed Olympic gold medalists to town in a way you've never seen them before: on canvas. They're all part of Budweiser's Olympic Art Collection, a unique program to raise $1 million to help train our Olympic Team for the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

The athletes—Olympic hockey great Mike Eruzione; basketball star Bill Russell; swimmer John Naber; discus thrower Al Oerter; track star Wilma Rudolph and distance runner Frank Shortz—were all commissioned by Budweiser to create original paintings using the tools of their athletic trade: the discus, hockey stick, running shoes, even a basketball!

The result is truly something to see. And after you're done looking, you can look into buying a signed high-quality lithograph of any one of the paintings. They're available on a carefully controlled, limited-edition basis for just $198.40. Or select a colorful poster for just $4.84.

There's no more beautiful way to support the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team than through Budweiser's Olympic Art Collection. So come join us at the exhibit. After all, as Mike Eruzione said, "Picasso made many paintings, but there's only one Eruzione."

Edgar proposes bill package to toughen drunk driving laws

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

A legislative package announced last week by Secretary of State Jim Edgar will "fine tune" Illinois' drunk driving laws if passed by the General Assembly, Edgar said at a Saturday night news conference in Anna.

The nine-bill package will "make a good law even better," Edgar told reporters before speaking at the annual Lincoln Dinner sponsored by three Union County Republican groups.

One of the proposed laws would mandate a 30-day jail sentence for drunk driving convictions. Some drunk driving offenders still drive, although their licenses are revoked, Edgar said. If potential drunk drivers are convinced they will be punished, he said, many will be discouraged from driving intoxicated.

Another bill would require names of persons convicted of drunk driving be filed with the Secretary of State's office. Presently, names of convicted persons sentenced to court supervision are not recorded. A subsequent arrest may be mistaken for a first offense, Edgar said.

Edgar also proposed laws to disallow court supervision sentences for two-time offenders and to change the procedure for handling cases of persons who refuse to take breathalyzer tests.

Anyone who refuses the test to determine blood alcohol content automatically has his driver's license suspended, but is allowed a court appearance to fight the suspension. About 75 percent of those cases are dismissed, a fact Edgar said increases the number of drivers who won't take the test.

His proposed bill will require a hearing by an administrator from the Secretary of State's office, as well as a day in court. The administration can't convict drunk drivers, but only 10 percent of such cases are thrown out in court in other states which require hearings, according to Edgar.

Substantial improvements have already been made by drunk driving laws which took effect last year, EDGAR SAID. Illinois State Police have made 70 percent more drunk driving arrests and 45 percent more of those have resulted in convictions. Auto accident fatalities have dropped by about 11 percent, he said.

Edgar believes more accidents can be prevented by requiring a provisional driver's license for 16- and 17-year-olds. Under the new law, a driver could still get a license at 16, but would lose it for three months for his or her first moving violation. The law would not be unfair to good drivers, Edgar said, but would punish the 15 percent of Illinois' 290,000 16- and 17-year-old drivers who he said cause accidents.

Edgar said he plans this year to reintroduce a mandatory auto insurance bill which died in the election-year General Assembly session.

"Driving is a privilege, it's not a right," Edgar said. "This is the minimum that should be required."

He said some large insurance companies are opposed to the law because they say it will force them to insure "high risk" drivers. Advice from insurance companies to lawmakers could help form an equitable law, Edgar said.

Student financial aid awareness week begins

By Duane Crays
Student Writer

The week of Feb. 20-26 has been proclaimed Financial Aid Awareness Week in Illinois by Gov. James Thompson and SIUC will participate in a statewide effort to pass information about financial aid.

According to Joseph Camille, director of student work and financial assistance, aid is still available to students.

"We want to make students and parents aware of that fact and encourage them to apply for aid," Camille said.

This year, SIUC plans to award about $50 million in aid, an increase of about $3 million over last year, he said.

A variety of activities aimed at students, parents and high school counselors have been planned. They include campus distribution of the aid application, information on the new draft registration requirement and a balloon drop at the SIUC-Drake game on Feb. 26.

The major financial aid packages are the Illinois State Scholarship Commission's Monetary Award Program, the National Direct Student Loan and the Illinois Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

"Seventy-five percent of the students receive some form of aid," Camille said.

The key to obtaining financial aid is to apply early and re-apply every year, even if a student is not sure of eligibility, he said.

Bad news for men tracksters

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

The good news is that the men's track and field team are finally realizing that winning means more than just showing up.

The bad news is that the realization didn't set in until after their fourth place finish this weekend at the 57th Central Collegiates at Kalamazoo, Mich.

"Still," said Coach Lew Hartzog, "we are in the same same spot as before. But I think it's finally setting in that we're going to have to work and work hard to win. I'd say we're in pretty good shape now. I'm not dissatisfied at all. They did well."

The Salukis didn't do well enough to take any first places, though, as Michigan won the 19-team meet with 103 points. They were followed by Wisconsin's 89 and Eastern Michigan's 76. SIUC came within a whisker of losing fourth place to Missouri Valley conference opponent Illinois State 53-51.

It took an array of third place finishes to hold off the pesky Redbirds, who will be waiting anxiously for the MVC championships next week in Normal.

It also took good performances from high jumper Stephen Wray and the mile relay team, both of whom, according to Hartzog, "had a very good day."

Wray went to the wire with Michigan State's Paul Piwinski before placing second at 7-2. Piwinski also cleared 7-2, but was declared the winner because of fewer misses.

The mile relay team galloped to its fastest clocking this year, 3:12.20, but it wasn't good enough to beat the Wolverines' 3:10.0. Hartzog was pleased with leadoff runner Parry Duncan, who turned in a brisk 47.97 leg. He was followed by Mark Hill, Tony Adams and anchor Mike Franks, who circled his share of 440-yards in 46.8.

"We ran two super legs, and two horrible legs," Hartzog said of the relay quartet that placed sixth in the NCAA Indoor Nationals last year.

Junior David Greathouse captured only fifth in the long jump, but it may have given the up and down Waukegan native the lift he needs. After missing the outdoor season last year because of injuries, the struggling Greathouse leaped 24-5, his best this year. He was sandwiched by two other Salukis, Kevin Baker and Terry Taylor, who took third and sixth respectively, and gave the Salukis a boost in the point column.

Taylor and Franks took third and fourth, respectively, in the 45-meter dash. Gavin Harshbarger was fifth in the triple jump. Tom Smith placed fourth in the 35-pound weight throw and Duncan placed fifth in the 55-meter hurdles.

Women tracksters gain sixth place

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

The women's indoor track team dashed, relayed, jumped and shot-putted its way to six school records and still only mustered a sixth-place finish out of 11 teams last weekend in Normal.

Ohio State won the meet by defeating second place Purdue 165-127. Illinois State placed third with 82, followed by Western Illinois, 54; Murray State, 34 and SIUC, 29.

Northwestern, Bradley, Ferris State, Southwest Missouri and SIUC-E rounded out the Illinois State Invitational.

Denise Blackman ran into some tough competition in the 300-meter dash as she was outrun by Diane Dickson of Ohio State. Dickson broke the American Collegiate 300-meter dash record with a time of 37.5 seconds. Blackman placed second behind Dickson with a school record of 39.26 seconds. Blackman also placed sixth in the 60-meter dash with a time of 7.78 seconds.

The relay teams did exceptionally well this past

"She freaked out when she saw it, but she showed courage in going on."

The problems that began with the first event, vault, carried through the rest of the meet.

"On vault, we were less than 50 percent efficient," Vogel said. "I think we are the better vault team, but the scores didn't show it."

Oklahoma State is one of the strongest uneven bars teams in the country and displayed a definite advantage there, scoring 45.30 to SIUC's 42.65.

weekend as the 4-by-400-meter, the 4-by-200-meter and the 4-by-800-meter relays all set school records.

Overall, Coach Claudia Blackman was pleased by the performance of the Salukis. "We didn't end up high as a team," she said, "but we did set six school records, and we are now very much ready for our conference meet."

Swimmers drop last dual meet

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

The men's swimming and diving team was missing some of the competitive edge that has resulted in several good performances this season and ended its dual meet season with a 60-53 loss at Arkansas Saturday.

The meet, a close one throughout, was tied 53-53 going into the last event, the 400 freestyle. The Razorbacks finished at 3:04.9, ahead of the Salukis' 3:07.4, to pull out the victory.

SIU-C, 6-4, did turn in some good times, and won the 400 medley relay with 3:23.3, two seconds ahead of Arkansas, to start the meet, but the needed strength down the line was not there. "Before the meet, I figured we needed 18 swimmers that had to be good," said Coach Bob Steele. "We got nine, and if we had only two more, we would have won. We needed to have them before the last relay."

The Salukis took first and second in the 1000 free "without any trouble" as Anderz Grillhammar and Gary Brinkman gathered eight points for SIU-C in that event, as they did in the 500 free.

Pablo Restrepo, who was behind most of the time in the 200 breaststroke, came back to win it in 2:05.2. Conrado Porta won the 200 backstroke in 1:52.4, a good time he's been at consistently, according to Steele. Another first for the Salukis was earned by Chris Shaw in the 200 individual medley, who went

1:53.7, his lifetime best. "Chris swam it well," said the Saluki coach. "He had a lot of control going out."

Points were missed in the butterfly, diving and sprints. "The 200 fly killed us," Steele said. "We needed swimmers like we had last weekend."

The diving squad was out-scored 4-14, as Tom Wentland finished second on three-meter and Nigel Stanton placed third on one-meter.

Arkansas, with several strong sprinters, monopolized the top spots in the 50, 100 and 200 freestyle. The Salukis' strongest sprinter, Keith Armstrong, was a little off and finished fourth in the 50 and third in the 100

Lack of aggression hurts gymnasts

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

Lack of concentration and aggression on the part of the Saluki women gymnasts Saturday night resulted in a loss that was a lot worse than it should have been, according to Coach Herb Vogel.

Although Oklahoma State, which reached 180.30 last Monday in defeating Brigham Young, was the favorite going into the meet, the gap in the 175.85-169.50 Saluki loss was too large, said Vogel.

"With a few exceptions, it was poorly competed," he said. "We had far too many errors for this stage of the season."

One of those exceptions was the aggression shown by Lori Steele, who dislocated a finger while attempting a double back in the first few seconds of her floor exercise routine. Steele did most of her routine before abruptly ending it when she became aware of the injury. How long she'll be out of competition will not be known until she sees a doctor on Monday.

"Had she not gone out aggressively, she could have gotten hurt worse," he said.

Women cagers split weekend, secure third seed in tourney

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

They're not going to climb any higher on the conference seeding ladder, but, thanks to a leagu<sup>e</sup> lacking in parity, they probably won't slip any lower.

That's how the Saluki women stand after Friday night's 82-68 loss to Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference rival Drake in Des Moines. The loss marked the second time this season that the Bulldogs have gotten fat on the Salukis, topping their 82-79 win in Carbondale three weeks ago.

All-American candidate Lorri Bauman scored 26 points to pace Drake. The senior center also pulled down 11 rebounds, while teammate Kay Riek chipped in with 21 points. Freshman guard Wanda Ford added 10 points, and continued to haunt SIU-C in the middle, adding 10 rebounds to the 18 she had in the first meeting.

For Coach Cindy Scott's club, Char Warring led in the scoring and rebounding departments, netting 20 points and pulling down 16 boards. Connie Price, playing in her first ball game since the last meeting between the two clubs, came off the bench to hit for 10 points and six rebounds before fouling out with 5:17 remaining.

The Bulldogs have now clinched the second seeding in the GCAC tournament, finishing the game with a 7-1 conference record. SIU-C dropped to 5-3 in the conference and will be seeded third.

The tide turned for the Salukis on Saturday when they invaded Omaha and the Creighton Lady Jays. SIU-C left Nebraska a happier team after it puffed off a 59-44 victory to raise its season slate to 17-7. Warring continued with the hot hand that she departed Iowa with, nailing 20 points and muscling down 16 rebounds. Price, starting her first game since a broken finger sidelined her for three weeks, hit for 16 points and contributed seven rebounds. Forward Sue Faber had an all-around performance, scoring six points, grabbing nine rebounds, adding six steals and dishing out eight assists to add to her team lead in that category.

The Salukis, who led at halftime by four, fell victim to a Creighton comeback and fell behind 35-34 with 12:57 remaining. But a nine-point unanswered spree by SIU-C quickly put to rest all Lady Jay upset hopes. Creighton slipped to 13-11 on the year.

The Salukis will play their last regular season home game Monday night at 7:35 in Davies Gymnasium against Eastern Illinois. The contest will also mark the final conference game for Scott's squad before the tourney. The Panthers currently stand at 4-3 in GCAC play.

Salukis cling to ninth despite losses

By Dan Devine
Associate Sports Editor

The battle for the final Missouri Valley Conference playoff berth heated up over the weekend.

The Salukis continued to lose, dropping an 89-81 decision to West Texas State Thursday and a 99-72 knockout at New Mexico State Saturday, but they continued to share possession of the MVC basement with Indiana State.

If the season ended today, those two teams would flip a coin for the dubious honor of playing in the first round of the playoffs against either New Mexico State or Illinois State. League-leading Wichita State is on probation and ineligible for the eight-team tournament.

SIU-C is 3-11 in league play and 7-16 overall.

"Probably at this point it's more important to the players than to the coaches," said SIU-C coach Allen Van Winkle about the Saluki playoff drive. Van Winkle said he would prefer to see fewer teams battling for the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

Van Winkle made his remarks on his postgame radio show following the Salukis' loss at New Mexico State. He was philosophical, and more candid than ever about this loss, SIU-C's fourth in the past five games.

"We just got beat and got beat by a good team," said Van Winkle. "It's tough to analyze and pick apart what we did because we got beat by a better team. Quite frankly, we've been outmanned."

SIU-C actually had control of the game for a while, taking a 23-12 lead midway through the first half after some fine early shooting and defense, but the Aggies solved the SIU-C zone pressure, took a 40-32 halftime lead, and then ran away in the second half, taking advantage of numerous Saluki turnovers.

When Aggie guard Steve Colter blocked a Benny Smith jump shot, plucked it out of the air, and raced for a breakaway slam, it was 46-36 New Mexico State. And when Ernest Patereon the Aggies' other scintillating guard, hit a rare four point play, it was 64-40. Patterson hit a three-point shot, was fouled, and then sank a free throw.

Both teams played their subs down the stretch.

Colter led New Mexico State with 20 points, and both Aggie guards had eight assists. Lindsay McEimell added 15 points for the victors, who had six players in double figures.

SIU-C was led by Ken Byrd, who had his best back to back games in a long time. Byrd had 20 points and nine rebounds. Johnny Fayne added 15, Benny Smith scored 13, Pie Walker had nine and Dennis Goins had eight.

Byrd and Fayne were also factors in the 89-81 loss at West Texas State. Fayne had 17 points and Byrd tallied 12, as did Walker and James Copeland, but the Salukis shot only 43 percent from the floor.

That poor shooting negated a 48-36 Saluki edge in rebounding. Charles Nance had 16 rebounds, seven on the offensive boards, but was one of nine from the floor. Harry Hunter turned his ankle in practice and missed the game. He played only five minutes at New Mexico State.

West Texas State was led by guard James Jackson, who had 19 points, 10 assists and only two turnovers in 40 minutes. The Buffaloes put six players in double figures, and with a 4-9 record, moved into seventh place.

SIU-C continues this road trip with a game at Illinois State Thursday night.

Brian Babcock held Saluki gymnastics records in the all-around and five of the six individual events.

Men Gymnasts take third with season high score

Brian Babcock set records in three events as the men's gymnastics team took third in the seven-team UCLA Invitational with a season high score of 278.80.

Babcock scored 57.90 in the all-around to tie for third with UCLA's Tim Daggett, topping his previous high of 57.80 set earlier this season. Peter Vidmar of UCLA and Scott Johnson of Nebraska tied for first in the all-around with 58.50.

Another record set by the Saluki senior was in the vault, where his 9.85 broke the 9.8 set in 1966 by Frank Schmitz. Babcock finished in a three-way tie for first on that event with Nebraska's Chris Reigel and Johnson.

The third record was achieved on parallel bars, where his 9.75 was good enough for the top spot on that event at the Invitational. In the other events, Babcock was fifth in floor exercise with 9.65, tied with Saluki Tom Slomski for fifth on rings with a 9.6, and third on the pommel horse with 9.7. Herb Voss placed sixth on pommel with 9.55.

Brian Price scored 9.75 to take fourth on vault and John Levy finished ninth on high bar with a 9.55. Levy also finished 11th in the all-around, with his best score, 55.50.

The team competition was won by the host Bruins, 287.20, followed by Nebraska, 282.80; SIU-C, 278.80; Louisiana State, 277.25; New Mexico State, 273.45; Minnesota, 273.35; and Michigan 269.85.

The high score helped keep the Salukis among the top 10 in the nation. Their bid for a berth at the national championships was also aided when they placed above Minnesota, a regional opponent.
