Tutu’s daughter compares present Africa to U.S. past

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

South Africa ‘teeters perilously on the brink of a fully fledged civil war,’ says Mpho Tutu, daughter of Nobel prize winner Bishop Desmond Tutu.

Tutu, who spoke Saturday in Quigley Lounge, said the government was ignoring the plight of the black South Africans who have been vilified and attacked for their contest with the white regime. Tutu said the policy of apartheid is making more people destitute. "For the first time in our history, the country which is the wealthy and the most prosperous is in the grip of a civil war," he said.

The audience that filled the lounge to capacity gave the 22-year-old senior in electrical engineering at Illinois University in Washington, D.C., a standing ovation more than once.

Tutu’s speech, part of the campus observance of Black History Month, was sponsored by the Black Student Union.

Tutu travels throughout the United States speaking against apartheid.

Her father is one of the leading opponents of apartheid. He won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1984 for his efforts to end the racial segregation used in South Africa.

Tutu told the audience that in South Africa it is young men and women who have taken responsibility for forcing the South African government to change its policy.

"It is they who are forcing their education and they who have already dedicated their lives in the struggle for freedom," she said.

"I have seen too many women at the gravesites of too many children, too many men and women with too manymakes of plastic sheeting that too many people have to call home," she continued. "I have heard of too much torture, too many deaths in detention, too many accidents that claim the lives of too many people."

Many times, she said, she has been told that the apartheid system is being dismantled and each time it is replaced with the same thing for marches, talks and public meetings.

"I have seen too many South Africans today in the United States in the press. She said South Africans have been forced from the civil rights movement, stratégies and tactics used in the past.

Marcos, family file, report says

Reagan threatens to cut military aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan warned Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos on Sunday that he will cut off military aid immediately if the Asian leader uses government forces against a growing rebellion, a spokesman said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president is “assessing the current situation” and indicated a decision to suspend assistance to the military is imminent, possibly later Sunday.

But even as Speakes talked with reporters, reports in the Philippines said Marcos had fled the country he ruled for 20 years. Speakes said special envoy Philip Habib, who briefed Speakes and his national security advisers on his 10-day fast flying trip to Manila, will return to the Philippines this week.

In the north, aいます growing in the 7,000-island nation, Reagan called a meeting Sunday of his security advisers and a weekend at Camp David. The assistant national security advisor, Tom Gadd, said Speakes said Reagan decided to cut off military aid if the Marcos government uses its troops and tanks against the rebels.

When asked if the aid would be cut if the violence grows, Speakes said: "Immediately."

"Attempts to resolve the situation by force will surely result in casualties and cause untold damage to the relationship between the United States and the former U.S. colony. Speakes said."

"There is a serious number of casualties."

See REAGAN, Page 6

"The president announced to Marcos that he would cut off aid if Marcos used his armed forces against civilian leaders. The United States would cut off aid to the Philippines immediately." The ambassador said.

Civilians were being "tormented" heavily, the church radio said.

"This is not the time to pursue the Philippines and remain calm and steadfast," the announcer said.

Candidate assail Thompson’s programs

By William Walker
Staff Writer

Governor Thompson’s efforts to improve the economic conditions of the state have been inadequate and have lacked the proper focus, says State Sen. George Sangmeister, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Sangmeister, who made a campaign stop in Southern Illinois Friday, criticized Thompson’s record, saying that his attempts to bring new industries to the state are simply political moves and do not make up for the jobs lost during his administration.

"The statistics are there," Sangmeister said. "The unemployment rate of Illinois under Thompson’s administration has cost about 385,000 jobs. Now true, we went through an economic recession and we still have jobs posted as well. But the state of Illinois lost them at three times the national average. There’s got to be a reason for that.

Sangmeister said that Illinois not only loses more jobs than many other states, but also has experienced slower recoveries in the nation, with unemployment still running higher than any other industrial state.

The state of Illinois is far ahead of the other industrial states. And we’re not doing anything to encourage a good economic climate in the state of Illinois,” he said.

Thompson, on the other hand, said that the new industries attracted to the state by Thompson, such as the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Bloomington and the auto parts plant planned for Nashville, do not create enough new jobs to make up

Bomb explosion damages buildings in white suburb

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A bomb exploded in a telephone box in a white suburb of Pretoria on Sunday, damaging a post office and shattering the windows of adjoining stores. There were no injuries. The explosion came one day after rioting on Saturday by 500 blacks in the township of Nelspruit, about 200 miles west of Johannesburg. More than 1,100 people — the overwhelming majority of them black — have been killed in almost two years of violence linked to the white minority government's policy of racial separation and discrimination, known as apartheid.

Displiant leader released from house arrest

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Police released dissident leader Kim Dae Jung from house arrest late Sunday, 11 days after a petition campaign for direct presidential elections sparked a nationwide protest on the former president's birthday.

The riot police posted around the house were removed, along with barricades on nearby roads, the leader said. It was the ninth since Kim returned in 1985 from two years of self-exile in the United States. It was the first time the dissident had been refused visitors and telephone services.

Navy recovers more debris from shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A 15-foot long piece of debris that may have been torn from Challenger's external fuel tank has been recovered from the ocean bottom 25 miles off the coast, the Navy reported Sunday. Salvage crews also photographed what appeared to be parts of the shuttle's main engines, lying under 96 feet of water 18 to 26 miles east of the cape, according to Lt. Cmdr. Debora Van Hee.

Pilots say Eastern considering takeover bid

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines board of directors met Sunday on what its pilots union said was a takeover bid coming amid intense union negotiations with a strike deadline looming for the financially troubled airline. The pilots union said Eastern could be sold by the end of the day to a bidder believed to be Texas Air Corp., according to the pilot's union president.

Prince Charles wraps up tour of Texas

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Prince Charles returned to England Sunday following a five-day Texas tour; followed by a polo match and charities' reception in Houston. He had been a guest of honor at a charity dinner-dance Saturday night at the estate of former ambassador to Britain Walter Annenberg and his wife Leonore, his hosts during his one-day Southern California stay.

Senator suggests states increase taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee told the nation's governors Sunday there was a 50-50 chance of avoiding the "train wreck" of Gramm-Rudman automatic budget cuts this year. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., leader of the key panel, also told the executive committee of the National Governors' Association that the way to avoid the Draconian reductions of the balanced-budget law was with small tax increases.

Officials study suspicious Panadol capsules

NANUET, N.Y. (UPI) — Federal officials said Sunday it appeared unlikely that a suspicious bottle of Panadol capsules was poisoned, but a worried county official urged the public to use caution in buying any drugs in capsule form. Food and Drug Administration spokesman Bill Grigg said tests would be done to check the Panadol bottle found in the New York City suburb of Nanuet, but he said it appeared unlikely the capsules of painkiller were tampered with in a way similar to the Tylenol case.

Halloween non-profit risky, official says

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

The Halloween Core Committee has been advised that forming a non-profit corporation to oversee Carbondale's annual Halloween festival may not be a good idea because of insurance availability problems.

The committee also agreed to send a recommendation to the City Council that only paper cups be permitted as beverage containers during the Halloween festival.

Scott Ratter, assistant city manager, told the group at a meeting last week that "practically speaking, it may not be something that we would want to do.

He said city Attorney Patricia McClenan advised him that the group, composed of business representatives and city officials, shouldn't incorporate.

Coalition, state officials to discuss transportation

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

A coalition representing interests of disabled persons will meet next week with a state Department of Transportation official to discuss a transportation system for Carbondale.

The coalition for transportation has been recognized for a long time," said Madge Smith, chair of the Carbondale Partnership for Progressive Approaches to Disability Issues transportation committee.

Smith added that transportation for people with disabilities could be a stimulus for the economy because it could transport people to and from work and make businesses and medical facilities more accessible.

Potter said that Carbondale would be a model for rural transportation, as outlined by the Governor's Transportation Task Force. "That's where our communities, large and small, come together," Potter said. "This is a must for the development of the Carbondale area."

Some protection could be provided to the community by creation of a non-profit corporation, he said, but added that some Core Committee members could lose their employer's insurance benefits by serving in their capacities as committee members.

"Liability insurance, frankly, is a major concern for the city attorney and it ought to be for us," he said. "We are covered now at least through our employers.

Ratter noted that if the committee were to incorporate, serious potential exists for a "gigantic" lawsuit involving both the committee members and their employers.

"At least at this point we've got some coverage and it appears that we should hang on to that, rather than incorporate and not be able to buy insurance and really be out on a limb," Ratter said.

Search ends; Moslems go home

CHAKRA, Lebanon (UPI) — Hundreds of Moslem villagers, who fled an Israeli search for two captured soldiers in southern Lebanon, returned to their homes Sunday.

Some 1500 Israeli soldiers and helicopters searched southern Lebanon for six days for the two Israeli soldiers. It was the largest Israeli operation there since Israel withdrew most of its troops last year following a three-year occupation.

Several hundred villagers who fled the operation, which left two Israeli soldiers and 12 Moslem guerrillas dead, returned to their homes Sunday.

Many of the houses had been searched in their absence.

In the southern Lebanese city of Chakra, angry villagers displayed what they said was an Israeli torture center used to interrogate Lebanese Moslems during the search operation.

"The Israelis beat me, then they put my head in a nose and tied it to this window and said they would hang me unless I told them what they wanted," said one resident of Chakra, located on the edge of the security zone.

Two classrooms and the laboratory at a school in Chakra were used for interrogations, villagers said.

Legs were torn off wooden stools and used to beat people detained by the Israelis for questioning, they said.

"A Lahd man (from the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia) burned my feet with an electric fire," a woman said. "They tortured us because we would not give them answers but we knew nothing for them.

"It was a torture center," the said the village teacher.

Seven people being treated at the hospital in nearby Tirine said they were beaten or tortured by militiamen of the South Lebanon Army on Israeli orders.
Black victims of advertising

By Leonard Taylor Jr., Junior, Public Relations

I took time to research the psychology of our black history, and this is what I found:

It was not just the extraordinary guidance of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. of the 60's that caused white folks to panic. They also feared the black race regaining black symbols of identity. When black people, male and female, chose to appreciate wearing natural, unpumped and chemically-free, they also began to regain appreciation in themselves. So, their hair was one of the physical features of their black identity.

The government realized that without the two black leaders, the followers' natural identity could be stripped from them once again. There are five physical features that make up visible identity: hair, skin color, eyes, nose and lips. If one is changed or hidden, the perception of the other physical features will eventually deteriorate, and identity is felt.

They knew that identity begins in the home. The black race free if not controlled. So, the government mysteriously prepared for the deaths of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. With the assistance of government public relations, the real butchers of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. would be left a mystery.

The black heroes born in 1968 began a new generation, the lost generation. Without black leaders to save them, the government began selling them harmful hair and facial products to hide their real identity.

Before the Civil War, masters stripped the slaves of their music, culture, history and pride by use of chains and whips. Now, they use a different approach, the psychology of advertising, a sort of mind control.

Government trend sensitive classes were dispatched all over America. Their mission was to gradually convince black people, young and old, male and female, to feel that the blackness in them was the ugliness within them that should be hidden. So, black people began to dislike wearing natural, unless it was pressed, or chemically saturated.

The government trend sensitive classes included black movies, radio, magazines, newspapers, billboards, comic books, and advertisements for pressing combs, curling irons and all types of chemicals especially designed for black folks' hair.

Blacks, with their hair artificially changed, began to lose their real identity, and were welcomed back into slavery.

It is now 1986, and we are still slaves! Black men and women drop their babies down garbage shoots. Black teenagers search for life down out of schools. Black people are taught to not even tell their children the same. Black families with no fathers. Black friends who know who we are.

Now it's time to take our stand together and face the problem. We have to wash this artificial foolishness from our hair! Covering combs and harsh chemicals don't work like gold, eating away our hair, scalp, and eventually our minds.

Think about it! The warning is mildly stated on pressing combs and chemical boxes, "warning: chemical may cause hair breakage, scalp irritation, or eye injury." If they told you the real damage, you would scream.

I challenge you to think about this. Keep this article in your pocket and remind yourself and others that we are against the government pro-socialist. Our natural black identity and freedom or modern-day slavery!
Letters

Enforce the no smoking rule

Hooray for the letter in the February 3rd issue stating that cigarettes not be sold on campus. However, I have a bonafide reason for opposing this policy that makes me unusually allergic to tobacco products. I am well known for its sensitivity to the needs of handicapped students. I would be able to attend SIU as a student if you allowed me to continue smoking my cigarette. A "handicap" is a respiratory condition. I probably could not walk to class if I were not permitted to class in a classroom. I cannot use public restrooms if it is full of tobacco smoke from recent occupants. I cannot attend informal get-togethers or parties if they take place in someone's home or in a public place where smoking occurs during the event. I could not attend a private office located in a building cluttered by heavy smokers if my smoke circulated through the common areas of my office. I could not have a desk in a grad study without being able to work in a clean atmosphere. My grades as a student would suffer because I would be unable to eat and study in everyday things that most faculty and students take for granted.

I could not attend class if even one person smoked because smoking occurs on the open floor plan at the Reference Center in Morris Library. I would be unable to do library research on campus if I could not check out materials that reek of state tobacco smoke as they trigger my allergic reaction and I could not have them in my home or office. I could attend only if no one smoked. I could not use lounges and study areas reserved or faculty or student use where smoking occurs there. I cannot use a public restroom if it is full of tobacco smoke from recent occupants. I could not attend informal get togethers or parties if they take place in someone's home or in a public place where smoking occurs during the event. I could not attend a private office located in a building cluttered by heavy smokers if my smoke circulated through the common areas of my office. Should USO fund the ISA?

The Illinois Student Association is a state-wide organization whose goals are in terms such as "good," "efficient," and "economical." But to have any meaning, there has to be student involvement in the organization.

A recommendation was made during a Wednesday night asking for membership dues for travel and telecommunication expenses for this organization. I am of the opinion that the "goals," "mission," and "vision" of the ISA are sound enough to rationalize spending the few remaining dollars the USO has left when students on campus don't even participate.

What are the goals or mission of the ISA? It's not totally clear whether its mission is to educate the student population on state issues, or the state on student issues. There seems to be a lack of a cohesive body of work that the ISA would have to be involved in, to support the organization. It is a well known fact that the ISA, political party on this campus, would have us believe that if we want to give the organization a shot in the arm to make it stronger, I think that funding the ISA has been an ugly and expensive habit.

As the adage goes, a wise man shall not put all his eggs in one basket. Likewise, the USO needs to stop funding the ISA campus committee's junkets and pave the way for other students to become self-sufficient. Trips are sometimes necessary in order to make the ISA visible, but taking the money along while denying others is self-serving. It does nothing to enhance the prestige of the group, nor mention being against USO Finance guidelines. An alternative to your costly proposal would be to write letters. It has already proven to be your group's most effective form of communication. Write to Jerry G. Heller, Public Relations.

Get SIU money out of S. Africa

As a concerned student and black American, I would like to express my concern about the very important issue of apartheid in South Africa. As recently as last Thursday (Feb. 13, 1986) SIU's Board of Directors held their usual agenda meeting with seemingly concrete resolve. However, after members of "People Living A Dream" in association with the SIAA (Southern Illinois Anti-Apartheid Alliance) briefly met with one of the trustees to discuss the SIU Foundation's role in South Africa.

Sandy Merlie's letter (Feb. 3) is quite shallow in its assessment of morality and pornography, so much so that I fail to understand what she has as a goal. A curious question constant arises to what pornography. A difficult question, but simply ignoring it is not a solution. As to Ms. Merlie's assertion that women who appear in pornography are not free, she is either naive. Does she really support the right of some adults to produce works of child pornography? "Is that protected by the First Amendment?" Has no one any right to say that children should not be in an absorbed, power in pressuring the foundation to diversify itself in such businesses. Maybe too, this member of the board also moved to believe that the SIU Foundation functions independently of the University. A quick review of an SIU Faculty Handbook would resolve the mystery of the SIU Foundation. Although the book describes the foundation as separate it also states that the foundation exists for the benefit of the University.

Child porn violates Consitution

As I understand it, pornography is not protected by the First Amendment. The question constantly arises to what pornography. A difficult question, but simply ignoring it is not a solution. As to Ms. Merlie's assertion that women who appear in pornography are not free, she is either naive. Does she really support the right of some adults to produce works of child pornography? "Is that protected by the First Amendment?" Has no one any right to say that children should not be in an absorbed, because the result is printed? And as far as Ms. Merlie asking who cares what they do? If John Wayne Gacy felt he was right to rape and murder about 30 young men, who are we to say "shame," and lock him up? Yes, I have a bonafide reason for opposing this policy that makes me unusually allergic to tobacco products. I am well known for its sensitivity to the needs of handicapped students. I would be able to attend SIU as a student if you allowed me to continue smoking my cigarette. A "handicap" is a respiratory condition. for those that have been lost. He also said the incentives offered to the new industries have been far too generous.

"The Mitsubishi plant is good news," he said, "but we're already giving out the amount of tax dollars that are committed to that project alone, $200,000 a job. We can't continue to pursue that kind of a program."

Adams said the study in South Africa for equality between races is both longer and more perilous than in the United States because the U.S. constitution guarantees equality, but the South African constitution specifically denies it.

Tutu implored the students in his audience to make themselves aware of the issues that affect the world they will inhabit.

"It is time we made sure we are familiar with the international scene," she said. "They will affect us now and they will affect us far more in the future."

Although it is a common belief, Tutu said, the confines of the world do not begin and end in the United States.

"I am not suggesting that you single-handedly solve the forest of world problems," Tutu said. "I am saying that you've long since been of age to start talking at the trees."

Tutu said that people became outraged last year when television screens began showing reports of the situation in South Africa.

She questioned whether people's interest will "fade from fashion" and they will return to those who characterize the apartheid 1980s now that "South Africa has closed the shutters so that the world can no longer witness her genocide."

"The final solution did not die with Hitler," she said.

During a question and answer period after her speech, Tutu responded to a question about the impact of divesting from companies that do business in South Africa by explaining that in South Africa it is economic sabotage to advocate divestment and carries a mandatory sentence of five years in prison.

When asked what people in America can do to help South Africa, Tutu listed several things.

She said they can continue to help by continuing to protest, gathering financial aid for refugees and people living in South Africa because of religious beliefs and to contact the organizations that work with the issue.

A true democracy is the type of government she said she would like to see replace the present government but added that all South Africans should get together in making that happen.

Communism, she said, is "a monster under the bed" that is an oppressive system.

"I don't think that we're going to trade one variety of oppression for another variety of oppression," Tutu said.

Amer:ans'" in the Philippines but "at this moment there are no reports" that they are in any danger.

Speakers said as far as he knew no American forces have been put on alert.

Attendees at the White House meeting with Reagan included Treasury Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Defense Secretary George Bush, Budget Director David Stockman, Treasury Secretary James Baker, CIA Director William Casey, White House chief of staff Donald Regan, U.S. Marine Corps Commandant P.X. Kelley and national security adviser John Poindexter.

White House officials said combined military aid and sales to the Philippines in 1985 was $40 million, $35 million in the 1986 fiscal year and Reagan had requested $100 million for the 1987 fiscal year.

The rebellion was triggered by the Feb. 7 presidential election between Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino.

The Marcos-controlled National Assembly declared Marcos the winner Feb. 15 but independent vote countings said Aquino — wife of assassinated opposition leader Benigno Aquino — had won.
Taxes, streets on campus agenda

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will consider a resolution to use $224,951 of funds from the motor fuel tax for street maintenance, from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 at its meeting Monday at 7 p.m.

The resolution proposes allocating $106,217 for repair and maintenance materials, $11,792 for maintenance services, $89,652 for contracted maintenance, $59,141 for equipment rent paid to Street Maintenance, and $11,792 for day labor to the Street Maintenance Division.

The improvements include the oiling and chipping of several streets, resurfacing parts of West Freeman Street, Lewis Lane, Dresson Street and Grand Avenue.

Grants available for safety studies

The Campus Safety Fee Board announced the availability of grants for students involved in studies related to student welfare.

Priority will go to investigations of campus safety issues and concerns. Funds are available for such expenses as postage, commodities, and the purchase or analysis of survey instruments.

To apply, a student must complete an application form available at the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, present a proposed budget and submit a letter of support from one faculty member. The Campus Safety Fee Board will review all applications.

All studies awarded grants must be completed by the end of the semester following the term in which the grant was awarded. In following completion of a study, a written report must be presented to the board.

The name of Maryanne Dalzell, Southern Counties Action Movement board member, was misspelled in a story in Friday's issue of the Daily Egyptian.

A photograph in Friday's Daily Egyptian depicted the victory celebration of the Illinois Kibbutz, a speakeasy. The photo caption incorrectly identified the team as the Giant City Giants.

This is the year we bring motor tax home," said the 35-year-old Casanova as he thanked rally organizers for their efforts.

Mary Matejovic of East St. Louis, said she would not give up hope for her missing son, Joseph, until she heard if he was dead or alive.

"The government has deserted our men," she said.

During Traong, a diplomatic attaché for the Vietnamese Mission, said officials had no comment on the rally.

The Reagan administration has been involved in a joint American-Vietnamese commission investigation into the matter. U.S. officials said recent contact with the Vietnamese show they are more cooperative on the issue.

Last week, United Press International reported seven case histories of MIAs who have been seen alive in Southeast Asia.

Other improvements scheduled, but not budgeted for motor fuel tax funds, include resurfacing a portion of West Freeman Street and Glenview Drive. They are to be converted from oil and chip surface to a bituminous concrete surface. The improvements are expected to cost $10,000 in the street maintenance program from revenue sharing funds.

According to a report from Ed Reeder, director of public works, converting these surfaces will make them eligible for motor fuel tax funding in the future.

The council is also asked to formally ratify its position on the Railroad Relocation Project at Monday's meeting. Several council members have expressed concerns about the project's last meetings.

Proposals for the city's health insurance program will also be discussed.

Contrary to American popular belief, close ties between business and culture in Japan do not explain the current international success of Japanese business and industry. The United States has a bit of culture on its own side in industry," said Coral Snodgrass, assistant professor of management. "Other variables should be looked at to determine Japanese business success.

Snodgrass spoke Friday on "Strategic Control and Cultural Homogeneity: An Empirical Investigation of Japanese Strategic Control Systems" in Quigley Lounge.

Snodgrass defined "strategic control" as the ability of a corporation or business to follow its own definition of itself. Her talk focused on a study she has been conducting on how Japanese culture fits into the strategic control of Japanese business and industry.

In business, "Americans try to find the best question, whereas the emphasis in Japan is to find the right answer," she said.

Because previous empirical studies had been done in this area—studies by observation without reliance on theory—Snodgrass said, she retained the bulk of her information through questionnaires she distributed while visiting 11 different manufacturing and construction firms in the United States and Japan.

Snodgrass had 1,089 questionnaire responses. 278 from Japanese managers, 272 from Japanese workers, 251 from American managers and 250 from American managers. She had 38 Japanese bankers also fill out a questionnaire "to more accurately get an analysis of Japanese industries."

Snodgrass found that merit and tenure figure prominently in climbing the corporate ladder at those Japanese firms she surveyed, as opposed to skill and individual development in the American firms.

"There is some evidence that people with key abilities are jumping ship to other companies in Japan. Snodgrass said "Workers who are younger are not as pleased with this kind of evaluation." Snodgrass warned that business hierarchies could break down if the good people at the bottom continue to complain.

In the area of business administration, she said, Japanese companies are "more homogeneous, or have a greater similarity of business characteristics among managers and workers, across levels of managers and workers but less so among groups of managers and workers.

Snodgrass attributes this cross-level cooperation to Japanese integration of unions and businesses. "People in management have come up through the organization and union in Japan. They were once members of union," she said. By comparison, the United States "has institutionalized its unions," so that there is "one more layer of bureaucracy between the two groups that try to get together."

But she added that "unification is on the decline because of the economic hard times today." Trying to arrange an agreement between management and worker groups "may be a mistake" because in American industry the effort to grow on the strength of our diversity. That is a key to our success," Snodgrass said.

She praised the flexibility of the Japanese across levels of workers and managers. "It is a key to lightening working relationships and getting things done," she said. "Successful organizations that are tight, that is, where a clear vision of what organization is doing, are very good."

But she added that this flexibility "can tighten up resources as well." Snodgrass said that Japanese managers should be concerned with cultural influence upon strategic control to avoid a crisis of limited resources which could hinder Japanese business.
Californians begin flood cleanup

LINDA, Calif. (UPI) - More than half the 24,000 residents forced to flee the storm-swollen Yuba River four days ago returned home Sunday in sunshine to begin the heart-breaking task of cleaning out mud and debris from water-soaked houses.

The biggest trouble has been everybody trying to return home at one time, causing traffic jams," said Patrick McGrath of the Yuba County Office of Emergency Services. "We have upwards of 12,000 people in the area who were moved out of their homes traveling over basically rural roads.

The residents were hampered in cleanup efforts by the lack of power, gas, telephone service and safe drinking water. Days and weeks may pass in some areas before services can be restored.

Twenty-five miles south, 480 residents of the farm community of Robbins were kept from their homes for a second day while seeping curten levees were shoved up along the Sacramento River to prevent a break.

State flood control officials kept a close watch on levees protecting the tracts of Tyler, Staten and Twitchell in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, 25 miles northwest of Sacramento.

Crews also worked to close a 300-yard break in a levee along the Mokelumne River that last week forced 1,300 residents to flee the homes of Thornton and closed Interstate 5 between Stockton and Sacramento.

But for the most part, officials were optimistic that two days of blue skies and sunshine would ease the flood hazards from the waves of Pacific storms that caused more than $13.5 million in damages in 29 Northern California counties, damaged or destroyed 12,332 houses and 957 businesses and killed 13 people. The damage was expected to exceed that of the last great Northern California Flood in 1955.

"We have periodic patrols on the levees, checking the bols and seepage along the Sacramento River which are expected under the circumstances," said a spokesman for the State Flood Control Center. "Generally speaking, the system is getting back to normal."

Inspired dances highlight Feld Ballet performance

By Maureen Cavanaugh

The Feld ballet of New York brought well-rehearsed and fine-tuned version of dance to SIUC.

The performance, part of the Shryock Auditorium Celebrity Series, was presented for the last time by the Feld Ballet at the Shryock Auditorium Wednesday.

The program opened with "The Grand Can". Seven of the 23 company members were involved in a repetitious, lengthy routine. Their movements were often gossamer, and synchronized, before two would detach themselves from the group and initiate more relaxed contours. The dancers spread their arms and contorted their heights to calm, delicate music.

Music for "The Grand Can" was composed by Ransom Wilson, was similarly arranged with a repetition of the new New York City Opera Ballet. The Russian Prokofiev Festival ballet "Night and Day" was performed byblue and black.

The second dance called "Medium Rare" was an ensemble solo by James Sewell, who has performed in the New York City Opera Ballet, the Tchaikovsky Festival Ballet, the Russian Prokofiev Festival ballet "Night and Day" and the Nutcracker in Chicago, among others, exhibited mostly his Fraternity gets renewed status with recharter

Thirty years after having lost its charter the beta Delta Colony of Theta Xi Pi Fraternity was rechartered as a "full-fledged" chapter at the fraternity house on South University this weekend.

Beta Delta Colony lost its charter in the late 1940s during the Vietnam era when drugs were heavy," said Charles Chapman, faculty adviser.

Three years ago, John Kocik, student from Western Illinois University; Robert Richardson, faculty adviser at SIUC; and Chapman, the alumni board president, combined their efforts to help get the charter back.

When Beta Delta Colony was rechartered Friday and Saturday, Mayor Helena Westberg presented a certificate of honorary recognition to James Vredenburg, executive director of Theta Xi national headquarters at St. Louis.

Timothy Pearce was named chapter president, Ronald Foltz, vice president, and Derek Feeder, secretary. Chapman is faculty adviser and Steve Serrot is the graduate adviser.

Beta Delta Colony has 25 undergraduates and 11 alumni members.

Dance Review

Muscular strength Sewell wore a happy, childlike face as he bounded up and down on a trampoline and darted up on an easel-like board props. He demonstrated his plasticity by extending his torso to the ground and rolling into gymnasical shapes.

An active musical tempo for "Medium Rare" was "Ver-ment Counterpoint", which was performed by Ransom Wilson.

The third performance, "The Conquest" was the most elaborate and sentimental. Set to minstrel music, 12 dancers, moved about the stage romantically.

Costumes by Milo Morrow and Gary Jones enhanced the dances. The men looked like Romans dressed in striped leotards, bluey shirts and blue pants. The women were colorful, sheer dresses and hats. The ballet conveyed the chivalry of courtship and final betrothal.

Eight company members ended the performance with a light-hearted jazzy number titled "Straw Hearts." The selection was not one that ballet would immediately come to mind. The men wore straw hats, barber shop shirts and suspenders. They carried cases, and the women carried parasols. The two prominent dancers for "Straw Hearts" were Cheryl Jones and James Sewell.

Jones, valedictorian at the National Academy of Arts and Field Ballet member since 1960, added to the performance a blending of acting and dancing.

Jones played the relentlessly prudish girl in the age for the bicycle built for two.

Sewell exaggerated everything trying to impress her, and finally, he appealed to Jones, who was dressed in a white dress and ribboned hat.

All the dances were choreographed to perfection by Elois Feld.

The performance included a pause and two 20-minute intermissions between the dances. For four sets, the interruptions seemed appropriate.

Activities of the Feld Ballet were made possible in part by the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation, the Ford Foundation, the Shubert Organization, the New York Community Trust, the National Corporate Fund and Logo and Nach Foundation from the New York State Council on the Arts.

Women tracksters chalk up 14 best times, 4 records

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer
Salki women's track coach Don DeNoon believes the Purdue Invitational helped his team break some records.

With 14 personal bests achieved Saturday and four team records shattered, DeNoon seems to have gotten his wish. "I really think we went up there and accomplished what we set out to achieve," DeNoon said Sunday. "We did exactly what we hoped we'd do."

But the biggest part is that almost everybody we look up there had an individual best effort."

Leading the Salukis' drive for the second week in a row was sprinter Denise Blackman, a senior from St. George, Barbados. Blackman knocked .01 second off the team record in the 35-meter dash, finishing second overall with a time of 7.05. DeNoon said that Blackman probably would have taken first in the event had track officials noticed a false start.

"The girl had too much speed coming out of the blocks for Denise to catch up," DeNoon said. Blackman teamed with Angelia Crawford and Felicia Veal to turn in a season's best in the 4x100-meter relay, setting a team record of 51.55. Blackman had an outstanding 54-second-55th time in the event.

"That was a strange record that we went up there trying just to break 4 minutes and we ended up well under the 4-minute mark," DeNoon commented. Also turning in record-setting performances were hurdles harriers Kathy Raske and runner Lisa Judiscaek. Raske, a sophomore from Calumet City, set a team record in the trial heat of the 35-meter hurdles, finishing fourth with an 8.16 effort. She also finished fourth in the final heat, breaking her previous personal best of 8.31. Judiscaek finished sixth in the 800-meter run, setting a team record of 2:21.91.

Turning in first-place performances for the Salukis were sprinter Angela Siong and distance runner Vivian Sinou.

Sinou ran the 400-meter dash in 1:06.47, putting her at No. 1 in the conference in the 400-meter, one slot behind Saluki Carlon Blackman. Blackman has been sidelined since Wednesday with upper respiratory problems.

Siong missed a team record in the 3,000-meter run by a second and a half, finishing at 9:31.46. But the effort was as personal best for Sinou, whose previous record was 10:15. Also turning in a solid performance for the Salukis was jumper Christina Phillou, of Nicosia, Cyprus. Phillou finished second in the triple jump with a personal best of 27-3. She also finished second in the long jump with an effort of 17-7. DeNoon said he believed the Salukis would carry the strength of their performance at Purdue into the Gateway Conference meet Friday and Saturday at Charleston.

"If we can go into the conference championships and come up just as good again, I think it will reflect on the outcome of the meet," he said.

"Hopefully, we'll get some decent weather this week to be able to train effectively," he added. "The next three days are crucial to our performance."

DeNoon said he also hopes that Carlon Blackman, who runs the longer sprints, will be back in the lineup by Friday. It would set the team back tremendously if she was not, he said.

"She's a quality athlete and hopefully we can expect a good performance from her."

But he added: "It's one of those illnesses that you don't replace track too lost from because her condition could relapse or even get worse."

Invitational prepares track team for Missouri Valley indoor meet

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer
WEST LAFAYETTE, Indiana - One of the main reasons Saluki men's track coach Bill Blackman knocked a team in the Purdue Invitational was to get his athletes ready for the Missouri Valley Conference Indoor meet. Judging by the Salukis' performance Friday night, the five-hour journey to West Lafayette was well worth it. Paced by first-place performances from middle-distance runner Mike Elliott, sprinter Connor Mason, and weightlifter Tom Smiths, the Salukis turned in one of their most impressive performances of the year.

"I think we looked sharper at Purdue than in any of our other meets this season, considering the competition we faced," Corrall said. Elliot, a first-place finisher in the 1000-meter run, said, "I think we're ready for the conference meet and Illinois State knows they'll have a fight on their hands," he said.

Women gymnasts balance good score with meet loss

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

There's some good news and some bad news about the women's gymnastics team's meet over the weekend.

First, the good news: The Salukis scored a season high of 172.10, well above the 172.61 that they scored in their victory over Jacksonville State University Jan. 27.

Now the bad news: Southeast Missouri State University scored 169.15 to defeat the Salukis and drop the team's record to 2-2.

It was a meet of ups and downs for the Saluki team. Junior Michelle Spillman grabbed first place in the all-around with a score of 37.25, bettering her previous high of 36.15 against Jackson State University. Vogel said Spillman's score moves her into 12th place in the nation and second in the Midwest region.

Another high came in the form of senior Lori Steele's all-around score of 36.85. This second-place score topped her previous season best of 35.30 and moved Steele into 21st place in the nation and fourth in the region, Vogel said.

The biggest disappointment for the Salukis was the injury incurred by senior Gina Hey during her floor exercises routine. During her first run, Hey landed wrong and suffered a severely twisted knee and was unable to finish her routine. Vogel said that Hey will not make the next trip but should be available for competition later in the season, depending on the seriousness of the injury.

Spillman, an All-American, was able to raise her top vaulting score from 9.40, which she scored at a meet against Iowa State University Feb. 6 to 9.65. This personal best was good for first place in vaulting for the Salukis.

Steele finished in the vault taking first, third (Steele, 9.10) and tying for fourth place in the floor exercise with a score of 9.30. She also added a sixth-place finish for the Salukis in the balance beam with a score of 9.0.

The Salukis' attitude, said Vogel, is to "do as well as we can, perform as well as we can. We did just that," he said.

"I think our team is ready to click," Steele said.

Even though the Salukis failed to qualify any individual for nationals, they had several outstanding individual performances.

Steele won the 100 meters in 2:31.90, missing the NCAA qualifying standard by only .3 of a second.

Elliott got off to a slow start in the race but was never seriously challenged after passing teammate Andrew Pettigrew on the fourth lap. Pettigrew finished third with a 2:35.96.

"I didn't like the way I went out at the start of the race," Elliott said. "For the rest of the day, I felt I was running over 1:40's to make up the time I lost in the first lap but I wasn't enough." It marked the second consecutive week Elliott came with an overhand of qualifying for nationals in the 1000.

"I'd better qualify for the nationals two weeks from now at the Last Chance Invitational. If I don't, it would be a major disappointment for me because I've come so close," he said.

Elliott also had the second-best split in the 4x400-meter relay to help the Salukis record a season-best 3:15.75 in the event. It bettered their previous best of 3:18.62 by almost three seconds.

The anchor runner, Bret Garrett, had the best split time in the relay with a 48.13. Garrett and Elliott teamed with Kevin Steele (48.65) and Marvin (56.15) as they combined for second in the relay behind Georgia Tech, which had 3:15.45.

Mason, a sophomore from Paducah, Ky., ran his best race in the 300-meter dash. He was in fourth place halfway through the race when he applied the afterburners and won going away with a personal best 34.60.

Mason credited his teammates encouragement as the key to his victory.

"My teammates always tell me where I am during the stages of the race and when I hear them screaming, that's my signal to go," Mason said. "For the last two weeks, I've been hearing the signal at the right time."

The other Saluki first-place finish was recorded by Smith, who won the shot put with a 37.63 effort. Smith was disappointed with himself after the meet because he failed to qualify for nationals.

"I really wanted to qualify but I'll take it," said Smith of his first-place. "On my last attempt I didn't do anything right. I hope to qualify next week at the Missouri Valley Conference meet."

Third-place finishers for SIU-C included Steele with a personal best 49.88 in the 400-meter dash; Garrett with a 1:54.81 in the 800-meter run and Felipe Martin with a 47.75 in the triple jump.

Weightlifter Ron Hargreaves added a sixth-place finish for the Salukis in the shot put with a personal best 51.2-5.

The Salukis will return to action this week at the two-day MVC meet, which will be held on Feb. 26 and March 1 at Illinois State University.

It looked as if the game at West Texas State might be an easy win for the Salukis. The Buffaloes were playing without their rusted-star player, David Frazier, and SIU-C had easily handicapped Gerry Moss' squad 71-59 two weeks before. The Buffaloes had lost five games in a row.

However, the West Texas State offense ignored the odds and dominated against stymied Saluki defense to emerge with a 66-58 victory Saturday night in Amarillo, Texas.

"We didn't come out easy to play as a unit, as they did," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said. "Their players felt Graham led them down, and consequently, the defense seemed they didn't need him."

Steve Middleton was the top Dog with 30 points, while Billy Ross grabbed eight rebounds and canned 6-of-9 free throws for a double double.

The Salukis had a poor start similar to Thursday's game at Tulsa and the Buffaloes jumped out 4-0 with guard Earl Davis' jumper. On a bomb by Singley. Not wanting to fall into the Herzy trap, called time out with only 1:10 expiring to rejig his troops.

With some energetic inside work by Redbird Keith Damush, the Dogs battled back to lead 16-14 with eleven minutes left in the initial half. The Salukis abruptly chilled, and West Texas State pumped in eight unanswered points to regain a 22-16 advantage.

David Busch, the 6-foot-10 center from Indiana East, Lynn Cornjerkers has signed a letter of intent to play with the Salukis. The team has been selected for the Associated Press Class A All State first team.

Busch, who signed with Saluki coach Angela Beck during the fall signing period, has an impressive 3-point shooting percentage for the 27-1 Cornjerkers, who are ranked third in the state's Class A polls. Besides averaging 19 points and 10 rebounds per game, Busch also averages 8.2 assists and 5.2 blocked shots per game.

"David has worked very hard and put in a lot of time and effort," Felder said. "He really deserves All-State honors."

According to Felder, Busch is still growing and will "continue to develop as a player with good, hard training."

"He still has a way to go, but all the necessary tools are there for Rich Herrin to make him a quality college basketball player," Felder said.

Feller said that a priority of Bush's training should include an extensive weight lifting and training program to build up strength.

"He's strong for 195-pounds, but he still needs a lot of work on his weight."

"His size makes him an intimidating factor on the court," Felder said. "He's a tremendous shot blocker and is one of the players some defensive freedoms to cheat and hold, which will improve as he gets stronger."

Feller said that even though the Corn-Jerkers have been good without Busch, "he didn't know if we'd be 27-1 right now without him."

Busch said he was excited about the possibility to play for SIU and Coach Herrin, but he was more concerned right now with making it to the Class A Finals.

Right now, I'm thinking about getting to Champaign."

Busch said the Corn-Jerkers will next play Wednesday night at the sectional tournament. A win there and two wins at the super-sectional would put the Corn-Jarkers in at the Assembly Hall.

Busch said he would prefer to play center at SIU, but said that there has been no badness on what position he'd play.

In what could turn out to be an excellent recruiting year for SIU, 6-7 Jay Schafer from Benison, 6-3 Tim Richardson from Effie Community College at Darlington Liberty of Chicago High School as early signers for the Salukis.

Women's basketball coach Cindy Scott saluted Bradley coach Angela Beck for her display of poor sportsmanship at the SIU-Bradley game. Beck continually blasted the officials throughout the contest, which the Salukis won, 66-58.

Winning streak extended with clean sweep on road
By Anita J. Stoner

TERRE HAUTE, Indiana — The Saluki women's basketball team collected two road wins over the weekend, getting victories at Illinois State and Indiana State to improve their record to 14-0, 21-3, and extend a school-record winning streak to 19 straight.

The Salukis held their fifth consecutive opponent below 50 points with a 56-46 win over the Redbirds, but the Sycamores broke that streak, 62-32 in Sunday's game.

The Salukis challenged against Illinois State's tightly-packed two-three zone due to cold shooting. Some Saluki starters hit the bench early with foul trouble and the Sycamores tied the game at 27 on the closing play of the first half.

Siu fell behind by two on the Sycamores' first play, but then broke the game open with good defense and improved outside shooting from Anne Kattreh and Petra Jackson, which opened up Bridgett Bondi inside the lane.

Kattreh picked the Sycamore guards clean and took the ball all the way to boost the Salukis' lead, and Indiana State called time out to organize with 6:35 left. However, the Salukas went to ball-control offense and built their biggest margin of 40-22 with a little over two minutes left.

The Sycamores pressed, but the effort came too late as the Salukis found Calby Kampfberth by the basket and held on for the final score.

Bonds led the game's scoring and rebounding with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Kattreh followed with 15 points and Kattreh hit double figures for the first time since her return with 10. Kampferth added eight.

In Friday's contest at Illinois State's Horton Fieldhouse, the Salukis appeared to realize the pressure of being in first place.

A balanced attack and initially impressive shooting put the Salukis ahead by as much as nine points in the first half. But the Saluki defense collapsed, allowing the Redbirds to rally while SIU's offense sputtered for about five minutes.

Kattreh, who returned to action for the first time in a month, came off the bench and canned her first shot to give the Salukis breathing room, 29-26, with 24 seconds left in the half.

The Redbirds momentum carried into the first seven minutes of the second period, as Redbird Tammy Turner struck from the top of the key to tie the game at 38 with 13:26 remaining.

The Salukis mounted a breakaway led by Jackson. From the outside and Bonds from the inside, to build a 52-42 margin by the six-minute mark. The Salukis coaches took two time outs in the final minute to initiate a slow-down offense to ensure the win.

The Salukis rebounding made the biggest difference, as they crushed the Redbirds on the boards, 22-15 in the second half, for a 37-28 total margin. SIU also shot better for the game, hitting 52.9 percent to the Redbirds 41.1 percent.

Jackson earned game-high honors with 20 points and five steals her eight rebounds were second to Bonds' 12. Along with game-high rebounds, Bonds pitched in 16 points. However, most of Bonds' effort came in the second half.

"When I went up to shoot in the first half, they were hanging all over me, fouling me. So I knew I had to go strong in the second half, even if I had to take their whole team with me," Bonds said.

Redbird coach Jill Hutchinson blamed the loss on cold streaks in her team and SIU's inside rebounding advantage.

"We're not big enough or strong enough to stay with Bonds on the boards," Hutchi-son said.

The two wins kept the Salukis on top of the Gateway Conference title chase, with only four conference games remaining.

The Salukis will be at home on Friday and Saturday against Northern Iowa and Drake.

Frazier beats 'Bonecrusher'

RICHMOND, Calif. (UPI) — Heavyweight Marvis Frazier got up from the canvas in the fifth round and rallied to win an unpopular unanimous decision Sunday over James "Bonecrusher" Smith in a 10-round, nationally televised fight.

Smith pinned Frazier against the ropes and battered the younger boxer with a flurry of body punches from the opening bell of the fifth round. However, Frazier seemed to have weathered the barrage.

SIU-C cut the margin somewhat in training 27-24 at intermission.

At around the 14:00 mark, the Buffaloes capitalized on a series of events which ultimately led to the decision.

After Todd Kruenger fouled Johnson on a shot, Ross drew a technical foul for punching the call. Fred Johnson stood at the paint and was free to throw the shooting foul and sank a third for the technical, increasing the Buffalo lead to 45-36.

"You just can't have that," Herrin said. "You have to keep very level-headed even when things aren't going your way."

West Texas State also received possession after the technical, and Childs, on an offensive rebound, nudged the ball in for a 47-36 advantage. Woods also hit a shot on the next trip down the court for a 13-point lead.

Middleton swished through a late three-pointer with 1:17 minutes to pull within nine, 55-46.

Desperately needing some good chemistry, Herrin en-tered Childs, Harre and Dan Weiss in the game at 32.5 second mark, Weiss replaced through three shots and Harre turned the ball over with 1:45 left, 58-41.

Childs actively removed any doubt of a Buffalo victory when he sank two one-one free throws with 1:05 left to give them a five-point lead.

The Salukis abruptly chilled, and West Texas Childs had converted only three of 11 foul shots in the other 36 minutes of the game.
