Pucinski says state legislature will not cut aid

By James Hodl
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

After the demonstrations in May, many colleges received criticism for letting demonstrations get out of hand and some for their closing. However, Congress is apparently not about to lower aid to education in retaliation. And neither is the state legislature. "There are always those people and congressmen who would want retaliation for campus violence," said Rep. Roman C. Pucinski (D-Ill.). "However, these people are now in the minority and should stay that way."

Pucinski, who is on the House Education Committee, said that there are 7,000,000 students now attending U.S. universities. Only a fraction have been involved in violence.

"Why should those not involved in violence have to suffer because of a minority?" Pucinski stated. He added that there are more effective ways to deal with those who cause violence than to cut funds that go to the university.

Rep. Gale Williams (R-Murphysboro) agreed saying that the state legislature is not about to cut funds to university because of violence.

To prove his point, Williams pointed to an appropriation bill that would grant some aid to SIU came up for a vote the day after SIU was closed last May. "Some legislators were extremely critical of SIU," Williams said. "Legislators like myself had to take this criticism, but we got the bill through."

Williams added that public opinion could be a force that could turn legislators against colleges now. However, he still subscribes to the belief that the state legislature is not in the frame of mind to cut off funds for colleges in Illinois right now.

Another retaliatory measure that could be used is one which would remove colleges where political activity is present from tax exempt status.

Pucinski reported that the Internal Revenue Service is now looking into the matter, but he does not think they will rule on this as of yet.

Pucinski also said that Congress may not pass any legislation on the status of universities where political activity is present. Currently, it has been proposed that universities give students a few weeks off in the fall to campaign for political candidates.

Pucinski said Congress at this moment feels that it is up to each university to decide whether students should get time off for political campaigning in the fall. Most, he said, have turned it down.

Everyone is interested in the November elections, Pucinski stated. Why should college students get two weeks off to campaign when the working man will not? This, he said, was the reason most universities will not grant some time off for fall campaigning.

Pucinski does not expect Fulbright or Smith-Mundt scholarships to be lessened or eliminated because of retaliation to college violence.

"Most students on Fulbrights or other scholarships have not been those who have engaged in violence," Pucinski emphasized. "Those who have been involved in violence have generally been those who have not been completing their studies or who have no plans for their future. They have been the weakest students." Williams has been worried about public opinion toward schools.

"It is good to have the right of dissent, but when it hurts the university, this is another story," Williams stated.

Parents of students going to colleges may feel that they are not getting their money's worth from the university when it closes. Their children may feel similarly, especially when they have to take a pre-requisite course over again because they did not finish it after the college was closed, Williams said.

If the University has to close again, it may bring more criticism and smaller amounts of state funds, he added.

Student Mobe organizes

Antiwar rally set for noon

By Bob Carr
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student Mobilization Committee (SMC) has called for an antiwar rally at noon today on the Morris Library lawn.

In addition, the group will present tonight a resolution to the Carbondale City Council asking that (1) "The United States Government cease immediately all military involvement of any kind in Indochina, and (2) The United States Government specifically withdraw immediately all American troops from Indochina."

In a meeting Monday night, SMC members decided that the rally will be "open mike," thus allowing persons of all political persuasions to speak. Thusfar, area poet William Howard Cohen is the only scheduled speaker.

Whatever is done with the anti-war resolution will serve to SMC's benefit, according to Bill Moffett, one of the groups local originators.

"If the motion is tabled, it will give us more time to discuss it," he said. "If they vote positively, we should be able to count on the city for supporting action. If they vote negatively, we then can show that they are complying with the government and we can expose this."

SMC chairman Dale Garre also announced that plans are being made for concentrated antiwar demonstrations August 6 and 9, the 25th anniversaries of the atomic destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The two day's events are planned to contain a march through Carbondale.

Strike halts construction

Painters local to vote on contract offer

By Win Holden
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Painters local 352 will vote tonight on a second contract offer by J. L. Simmons Co. of Decatur which is aimed at ending a 10-day old strike that has halted construction at three on-campus locations.

According to Joseph T. Reames, the painters business representative, the 150-man local is striking and other craft workers are honoring the picket lines. No estimate of the total number of men affected by the strike was available.

Work on the Life Science, University Center and Communications Buildings as well as addition work at Doctor's Hospital has been halted since July 3.

Reames said the main point of disagreement in the contract negotiations is the contractors' insistence on a three-year contract, while the painters are demanding a two-year contract.

He said he believes, however, that the members of the local could be persuaded to accept the offer if the wage and working condition considerations could be altered to meet union demands.

Reames said the contractors and painters agree on one phase of the split scale, that of residential work, but are 40 cents apart on the commercial scale.

"If the other problems are ironed out," he said, "They might agree to a three-year contract."

Reames could not forecast how the vote might come out tonight, refraining from even hazarding a guess. "You never know what the membership might do," he said. "They have proven my guesses wrong in the past, and I have no idea how they will vote on this offer."

Reames said, however, that if the contract offer is rejected, the negotiations will begin all over again, with his membership sticking to the same demands.

A spokesman for the contractors was unavailable for comment Monday.

Seminar opens today

Nearly fifty secretaries from throughout Southern Illinois will participate in the fourth annual Secretarial Seminar which opens at SIU today.

The seminar, designed to upgrade operational skills, is conducted by the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education and faculty members of the Vocational-Technical Institute. Business and manufacturers representatives also participate.

Sessions will be held in the University Center today, July 14, 21 and 28 and Aug. 4 and 11, according to Seminar Chairman Ronald Case of the VTI business faculty.

Topics will include updating typewriting skills, improved shorthand methods, secretarial hair styling and makeup, basic systems and procedures of data processing, the office of the future and a profile of secretarial role-playing. The final session on Aug. 11 will be a banquet at which the speaker will be L. Goebel Patton, director of information services for the Illinois Education Assn.

Some openings remain, according to Case. Registration cost is $15 and should be made through Adult Education, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale 62901.

Stranded students come home

CHICAGO (AP)—About 250 American students, stranded in Europe because of the financial collapse of their tour group, returned to the United States from Rome late Sunday.

The youths arrived at O'Hare International Airport on a chartered Capitol International Airways plane paid for in advance of the European trip.

World Academy Tours, Inc., sponsor of the scheduled six-week tour, declared bankruptcy July 6 in Cincinnati, stranding some 3,200 youths overseas. The tour had started a week earlier.

About half of the students have returned home.

Gary Baldwin, 24, the Lincoln group's adviser, said Stess, Inc., of Rome, Italy, lost money when it continued to supply lodging for students on seven campuses in Rome after World Academy declared bankruptcy.

The students were to visit seven countries during the six-week tour.

Miss Perry to talk for lecture series

The Black American Studies Summer Lecture Series at SIU will sponsor a lecture by Regina Alfreda Perry, art historian and associate professor of art history at Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, at 7 p.m., Thursday in Davis Auditorium. Miss Perry received her bachelor's degree in fine arts education from Virginia State College and a master and doctorate degree in art history from Western Reserve University.

Sphinx Club selects eight Campus activities for today

Eight students have been tapped by the SIU Sphinx Club according to Allan Ludwig, club president.

The Sphinx Club is an activities honorary organization that recognizes students who have shown outstanding service and leadership in the area of student activities. Members tapped by Sphinx Club are included in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

The new members are Darrell Abern, a senior journalism major from Farmersville; Judy Burnham, a senior elementary education major from St. Joseph, Mo.; Robert Carter, a senior education major from Belleville; John Haney, a senior business major from Homewood; Jim Morgan, a senior aviation major from Gurnee; Jim Rhodes, a senior music major from Springfield; Franklin "Buz" Spector, a senior design major from Skokie; and Shirley Swanson, a senior business education major from Bensenville.

Honorary members tapped by the club include Jerry Chabrian, an undergraduate founder of the WIDB campus radio station; Harold Grosowsky, professor in the Department of Design; Wilbur N. Moulton, dean of students; Barbara Rauch, secretary in the Student Activities Office; and Kenneth E. Varcoe, assistant dean of students for fraternities and sororities.

Repression cited by antiwar group

WASHINGTON—An American antiwar group just returned from a visit to South Vietnam said today it had found "extreme political repression" with "police and police agents...everywhere."

David Hunter said the group "did not find a single person who supported the Thieu-Ky regime" or who felt America's military presence was necessary, in either pre-arranged or spontaneous interviews during the eight-day tour.

Hunter, deputy general secretary of the National Council of Churches, said the 10 Americans in the group were given opportunities to speak with South Vietnam government leaders.

But in meeting with local antiwar groups and ordinary citizens, he said, the delegation found "not Communists," but people who did not choose to be fascists, either.

And Hunter declared "The thing I didn't expect was to find what looks like total fascism."

SIU faculty members begin two-year Brazil assignments

Two SIU faculty members, Joe H. Jones, associate professor of plant industries, and Harold P. Engelking, assistant professor and supervisor of adult education in the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education, arrived in Brazil for two-year assignments at the Federal University of Santa Maria under the United Nations-SIU program in agricultural education development.

The two faculty members and their wives left Carbondale by plane Tuesday for the flight to Brazil. There they will join William Doerr of SIU who arrived about a month ago as international director of the program.

Jones will be serving as a specialist in soils and soil physics and Engelking will be working in areas of agriculture education and extension improvement at the university.

Jones came to the SIU faculty in 1964 from a research position in soil physics at Ohio State University where he had received his doctorate in 1960. Previously he had taught veterans training courses in Missouri and was with the U. S. Public Health Service at Cincinnati. He is a graduate of Murray State University, Ky., and received his master's degree at the University of Kentucky.

Engelking has been at SIU since 1966. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Illinois. Before joining the SIU faculty he was a supervisor in vocational agriculture with the Illinois Board of Vocational Education, serving in Springfield, Gibson City and Rochelle.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization-SIU program provides for helping the University of Santa Maria more fully develop and use its teaching, research and rural extension resources for agriculture development in the region.

Why do men who are going places become Jesuits?

Because we are a team of men serving Christ in the world. In today's complex society, Jesuits have chosen various direct and indirect means of service. Some of our current involvements are:

- Accounting, American Studies, Anthropology, Biology, Business Administration, Chemistry, Classics, Communications, Economics, Education, Counseling and Guidance, Engineering, English, Fine Arts, Geophysics, History, Hospital Administration, Industrial Relations, Law, Mathematics, Medicine, Modern Languages, Philosophy, Political Science, Physical Education, Physics, Psychology, Social Work, Sociology, Speech and Theology.

We are artists, administrators, educators, missionaries, preachers, researchers, social workers, spiritual counselors and writers. In truth, Jesuits can use almost any skill which you may have.

We have been in action for four hundred and thirty years since an ex-Spanish soldier named Ignatius Loyola and nine of his friends began the Society of Jesus in 1540. Today, we are 24,000, in almost every nation in the world—2,000 American Jesuits are at work in many countries. Now, as then, our purpose is total dedication of our lives to Jesus Christ in a unique community of men for service to people everywhere, any job—in and through the Catholic Church.

From the beginning, Jesuits have been asked to provide leadership service to people in need, both in the Church and in the world at large.

For instance, many of the expert advisors at the Second Vatican Council were Jesuits. We publish America magazine. Jesuits are organizing Catholic radio and T.V. communications in Latin America and Asia. We operate hundreds of high schools, colleges and universities. We man the Cambridge Massachusetts Center for Social Research. We have Jesuit painters, poets, novellists, sculptors, and musicians. Others are concerned with business ethics (everything from the corner store to international power for alleviating poverty, ending racism and improving education for the poor).

These are just a few of our activities. As we become more and more diversified, we demand a greater unity ourselves because we are, first of all, a team. We are continually seeking new ways to integrate our efforts—by bringing the university services to the ghetto and the parish;

by international cooperation, sharing with Jesuit universities and parishes in Latin America and Asia; by encouraging interdisciplinary research; by using whatever is useful.

As aids to our total commitment to Jesus Christ, we Jesuits:

- 1) use money and power for Christ's work, not for personal fulfillment. Christ's work is our fulfillment.
- 2) maturely choose abstinence from marriage as written to our faith in the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.
- 3) select fellow-Jesuits to easily divorce activities and resolve conflicting priorities.
- 4) live in community in order to grow deeper in prayer life and do more effective work as individuals in community, than as individuals alone.

Within the Jesuit vocation, some Jesuits choose the priesthood, while others do not—all are Jesuits in the fullest sense.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:
 • a basic desire to serve Christ
 • age 18-50
 • Single or widower without dependents
 • Roman Catholic, at least three years average intelligence
 • confidence in yourself that you can do good work with long term dedication willingness to obtain a Bachelor's Degree and probably a Master's Degree in your chosen work.

 ability to live in a community of mature men—you can live the Jesuit life for two years before deciding whether or not you wish to become a Jesuit.

Church tax answer to Catholic school problem

Priceless artworks, $102 billion in U.S. real estate, stocks, companies, an entire city in Italy, the 273-carat Grand Mogul diamond.

If this is not enough, the Roman Catholic Church is now asking for money from the U.S. government to aid its parochial schools. Such a request is absurd when one considers the vast amount of wealth already controlled by the Vatican, both in Italy and in the U.S.

Vatican City itself is a dazzling community with all the splendor of Dorothy's Land of Oz. Pope Paul VI, who might be compared to the Wizard of Oz, recently increased the salaries of all Vatican employees by ten per cent. This was the second pay raise in the last 18 months. Over 1,000 employees in the Vatican also enjoyed bonuses of $160 given by the Pontiff to mark his fiftieth year as a priest.

Church income in the U.S. is earned through real estate and stocks. Total land holdings are estimated to exceed $102 billion, much of which is tax exempt. Vatican stock investments, totaling tens of billions of dollars, are said to include such companies as Standard Oil, General Foods and Chase Manhattan Bank.

Ironically enough, it was reported by Simon

Spivac in "L'Actualite," a Vatican-owned company in Denmark produces birth-control pills. Another church-controlled firm is rumored to be involved in the manufacturing of military weapons.

With such an accumulation of capital through both moral and immoral means, it is amusing that the church now has the nerve to cry on the U.S. government's shoulders for public aid to its schools. If one looks more closely at the situation, however, the humor in it is soon reversed. A country which is supposedly based on the idea of separation of church and state has literally become wrapped around the Catholic Church's little finger.

Over 90 per cent of American school children now enrolled in private schools are attending Catholic schools. If these institutions fold due to a lack of funds, there would be no room in our public schools to accommodate the overflow of students.

Is the American educational system then at the mercy of the Catholic Church? Not exactly. The compromising solution may be found in an ironic statement put out by the National Council of Churches.

"The First Amendment is in perfect balance. It forbids the state to give to, or to take from, the church."

The church's interpretation of this statement appears somewhat contradictory in that the state should give to parochial schools but may not take taxes from church property.

If, however, the government and the church could reach an agreement whereby the state could collect taxes on church property, social security and unemployment from church workers and income taxes on business transactions made by the church, then the revenue to be had from these sources might be poured into depreciating parochial schools. Revenue from church property alone would be about $6.5 billion for state and federal taxes.

Although not advocating a unity of church and state, it seems that a solution of the sort stated above would be more feasible than other alternatives. The church would no longer fear for the shutdown of its schools, and the U.S. taxpayer would not complain about shelling out extra dollars for a cause which violates First Amendment rights.

'Atheist' says Eshenaur beliefs are 'superstition and anti-free'

To the Daily Egyptian:

Ruth Eshenaur seems to be trying hard to live up to Marx's statement, "Religion is the opiate of the people," to the pleasure of old Karl and the horror of all the liberal theologians.

As an atheist, I find her beliefs superstition and anti-free, but if and when her God exists, my disbelief could not conceivably insult Him as much as Ruth's arrogance at having Him locked up in a tiny intellectual box.

Freedom is the objective prerequisite to all values, since no values can exist without their being chosen. As long as religion opposes freedom, which it historically has, all free and thinking men must oppose religion.

Finally, Ruth presents the idea that religion is a working system; if that is so, then we must observe the way it works. As the Crusades, the Spanish Inquisition and Salem witch trials testify, the history of religion is one of hatred, greed and bigotry. That religion is also opposed to truth and freedom also can be shown historically.

Galileo's case is not atypical of the interference of religion and science. The persecution of heretics, religious minorities and atheists is also too well documented to need mention here.

If the religious are the upholders of morality as they claim, then they must be seen as being hypocritical as long as they destroy freedom, which is the ultimate value. And, dear Ruth, if you doubt one word of this letter as the absolute truth, then consider that I claim it to be Divinely inspired. And I can do it with the same justification you can make for something being divinely inspired—nothing.

Observations on current history

Most blue collar workers back Nixon's Indo-China war policies. However, when it comes to Nixon's war on inflation, workers can be heard saying "Make love, not war!"

After the Supreme Court ruled on deferments for moral or religious grounds in the draft laws, hundreds of soldiers began to feel that they were born only a few years ahead of their time.

"Sir, Company C wants to know if the new draft ruling is retroactive?"

Adam Clayton Powell said he could win an election with Mickey Mouse as his campaign manager. Then he lost an election. He is expected to get a new campaign manager for his next campaign.

Woman's Liberation has sent hundreds of women to the streets demanding equal rights, and one major result has occurred. Sales of Swansons and Chef Boy-Ar-Dee products to men have increased.

Window transformations taking place downtown

By Vernon Kirby
Student Writer

Window shoppers who have visited downtown Carbondale recently may have been disappointed by the lack of variety in store windows.

Plywood may be good for many things, but somehow it just doesn't seem to replace the carefully laid-out displays in clothing store windows or the colorful hodgepodge of merchandise spread out behind the glass fronts of book and dime stores.

Plywood, it seems, makes a better door than a window.

After the rock-throwing spree accompanying the campus disturbances in Carbondale this spring, local merchants, as well as University officials and some homeowners, had little choice but to cover shattered windows with plywood.

The scene has been slowly improving. Gradually the opaque facades are being replaced by the familiar transparencies. The buildings are beginning to look less like earthquake victims.

Insurance companies and glass installers are catching up to the huge and sudden demand for their services. But many wooden scars remain to remind passers-by of the spring's violence.

At the height of the disturbances, the plywood was being put up at a rapid pace. One Carbondale lumber yard reportedly sold about 700 sheets of the material in a 48-hour period. "We were open until about 8:30 one evening selling plywood," the lumber yard manager said.

The manager said he would recommend Masonite if such disturbances broke out again. Masonite—a thin, sturdy, dark brown material—has a certain amount of water resistance and it will bounce back when rocks strike it, he said.

Masonite is also easier to handle and store, reusable a number of times, and generally less expensive than plywood, the manager said.

But those in charge of the damaged buildings apparently preferred plywood to cover the jagged holes. The substance combines sturdiness with relative economy of time and money to put up. In most instances, a frame of two-by-fours was constructed to keep from driving nails into the aluminum window frames. Then the large plywood sheets were hammered into place.

The monotony of the uniform store fronts was broken somewhat by the colorful signs painted on the wood, most of them reassuring prospective customers that the business was open in spite of its condemned appearance. On one store's "windows" are painted messages entreating the onlooker to "Love."

Some of the plywood in Carbondale is deceptive...for behind it stands healthy windows. Norman Crawshaw, owner of the Campus Beauty Salon, said that someone threw a rock at his window but failed to break it. That's when he decided to put up plywood, he said.

What is to be done with all of the used plywood as it is taken down? The answers are varied.

One businessman said he was going to leave his windows boarded up for awhile longer. He said he would keep the wood handy when he did take it down.

The University will store its substantial supply of plywood for future use in construction work—and for future breakage—according to Maurice Lam, supervisor of crafts at SIU's Physical Plant. Large amounts were used by the University, especially at Wheeler and Woody Halls, and at certain residence areas, Lam said.

Bob Coatney, manager of the 710 Bookstore, said several persons had come in asking if the wood was for sale. Some were possibly responding to the sign in front of the store which read jokingly, "Used Plywood and Scrap Glass". The wood is actually being donated to the Carbondale Little League's concession stand, he said.

One of the more pragmatic ideas for use of the plywood came from Ed Appel, the proprietor of Diener's Stereo. "I'm going to build a boat with it. Maybe I'll start on a houseboat."

Whatever the fate of the plywood, students and Carbondale residents are not likely to soon forget the austere and somewhat foreboding image that was presented to a sizable portion of the campus and city.

Met baritone, KC orchestra featured in 1970-71 concerts

Metropolitan baritone, Robert Merrill, the Kansas City Philharmonic and duo pianists Hodgens and Howard will be presented by the Southern Illinois Concerts during the 1970-71 season at Shryock Auditorium.

The opening of the 36th concert season will be delayed until February 1971, due to the truck strike which halted construction on Shryock Auditorium.

David Bar-Illan, an Israeli pianist will be featured in the first concert, tentatively scheduled for Feb. 8. A concert by Bar-Illan was to have closed the 1969-70 season on May 13, but was cancelled due to the city curfew.

Students will be able to purchase tickets for individual concerts at the University Center Ticket Office before each performance.

Prices are $2 for the Merrill concert and the Kansas City Philharmonic concert and $1 for the Hodgens and Howard concert. Ticket prices for the Bar-Illan performance are not yet available.

The University has been allocated 400 tickets, which will be sold on a first come first serve basis, according to Paul Hibbs, co-ordinator of special programs.

Bus service to and from Shryock Auditorium will be provided for a nominal fee, according to Mrs. Calvin Gillespie, secretary of Southern Illinois Concerts.

The new president of the Southern Illinois Concerts is Forbes Alexander of Murphysboro who succeeds Mrs. J.M. Marberry of Carbondale.

Commission money vetoed

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has vetoed appropriations for salaries and contingent expenses of the Illinois Crime Investigating Commission.

Ogilvie's veto leaves the commission with a budget of $103,400, of which $49,500 is earmarked for personnel hired under contract.

In a message explaining his action, Ogilvie said the types of investigations which have been performed by the commission should "most properly" be done by the new Illinois Bureau of Investigation.

The commission can continue to provide information connected with legislative matters, he noted.

Illinois law permits the governor to withhold approval of specific lines of the printed bills which reach him after passage by the General Assembly.

AP News Digest

WASHINGTON—The National Cancer Institute reported Monday that whole new approaches to understanding the cause and possible prevention of cancer have been opened up by recent findings of several government-supported researchers. The findings involve the so-called master chemicals of life—the cellular nucleic acids DNA and RNA.

SAIGON—U.S. trained mercenaries launched mortar and ground attacks Monday against strong enemy forces in the mountain resort of Kiri Rom, 30 miles west of the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh.

JERUSALEM—Israel proposed Monday talks with Egypt of "the most unofficial nature" to prepare the way for peace negotiations.

WASHINGTON—A series of government economic reports to be issued this week could signal the beginning of the business revival the Nixon administration is predicting. Most important is the quarterly report on the Gross National Product which measures the market value of all goods and services.

SEOUL—Prime Minister Chung Il-kwen said Monday he and all 19 members of his Cabinet will resign if the United States carries out a planned reduction of 20,000 troops in South Korea.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—A jury that includes three Negroes begins hearing testimony Tuesday in the trial of one of eight Black Panthers charged in the slaying of a fellow party member 14 months ago.

MIAMI, Fla.—Middle-aged mommas joined teenagers Monday in a mini parade, a "hems up" protest to the midi-skirt. The group of 50 leggy ladies truded in front of a group of Miami stores, carrying homemade placards bearing messages such as "Up Your Midi."

Hoover attacks violent groups

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society now stands "as a principal force guiding the country's violence-prone young militants," FBI director J. Edgar Hoover asserted Monday.

Hoover said the Weatherman, a splinter group of the SDS, were during the last year "in the forefront of much of the violent activity deliberately calculated to provoke violent confrontations."

Presenting the FBI's report on activities in the fiscal year ended June 30, Hoover directed some of his sharpest criticism at the Black Panther Party, which he said "continued to be the most dangerous and violence-prone of all extremist groups."

He decried financial support by some white liberals of the militant black organization "despite its record of hate, violence and subversion."

Hoover said the Panthers and the Weathermen could be blamed for much of the turmoil on the nation's campuses and in its major cities during the past year.

The FBI director cited as an example of Weatherman violence the group's rampage in Chicago last October 6-11, for which 12 of the group's leaders are under indictment on federal charges of crossing state lines to incite a riot.

"The following month," Hoover said, "they were in Washington, D.C. protesting the Vietnam war by hurling rocks, sticks and bottles at the Department of Justice Building and leading screaming hordes through Washington's business section, causing severe damage to buildings and automobiles."

In the seven months since then, Hoover said, Weatherman have dedicated themselves to urban guerrilla warfare, have taken intensive self instruction in the use of guns and bombs while their leaders have gone underground to escape prosecution.

Scott says U.S. might sell jets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said Monday the administration may soon agree to sell new jet warplanes to Israel, at least to replace down Israeli aircraft.

"I would suspect something like that may be in the wind," Scott told newsmen. He said he had discussed it with State Department officials and with Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

He said they will decide whether to issue any new call for approval of the warplane sales. "It may not be necessary," Scott said.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Israel should get the planes "as a counter to expanding Soviet involvement in Egypt." "I think it should be done to maintain the balance," Mansfield said. He also urged new efforts at negotiation to obtain some kind of settlement in the Middle East.

The Soviet Union has sharply increased its shipments to Egypt, including amphibious troop-landing craft, according to Asst. Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco.

Cities impose curfews after weekend violence

By The Associated Press

About 100 National Guardsmen stood by in Michigan City, Ind., Monday but city police resumed regular patrols after two nights of racial disorders.

The northeast Indiana city was under a tight dusk to dawn curfew, as were New Bedford, Mass., and Highland Park, Mich., where racial violence erupted over the weekend.

Sen. Edward W. Brooks, R-Mass., met with city officials and leaders of the black community. The Negroes told him that although the city received large sums in federal aid there were few visible results in housing, education and jobs, the areas of their main complaints. Brooks promised to investigate the charges.

The curfew, originally imposed for 72 hours, was made indefinite.

Disorders broke out in New Bedford last Wednesday when police arrested a Negro on a driving charge and a scuffle ensued. A Negro youth was killed and three others wounded Saturday night by shotgun blasts fired from a passing car. Police charged three white youths with murder.

The Indiana Guardsmen stood by in a naval armory and a city park, subject to call by Mayor Conrad Kominarek. The Guard was called in Sunday night after bands of Negroes roamed the streets hurling bricks and rocks at cars. Police reported sporadic fire from snipers but no one was hit.

Police Chief Leon Shiparski said the trouble began Friday after three Negroes were arrested in a tavern for disorderly conduct.

The disorders in Highland Park, a Detroit suburb, followed the fatal shooting of a Negro in a white-run bar Saturday. A white bartender was arraigned on a second-degree murder charge.

Robert Blackwell, mayor of the predominantly black community of 40,000, said police were enforcing a 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew.

Panthers establish info center

A Black Panther Party Community Information Center has opened in Carbondale.

The Center, located at 221 1/2 N. Washington, is one of many operating under the Party's National Committee to Combat Fascism.

The purpose of the Center, according to Jimmy Brewton, community worker, is to disseminate information about the people's national, as well as international, struggle.

Books, pamphlets and the party newspaper are available at the Center which is open from 8-11 a.m.

In addition to maintaining the facility which opened Saturday, various programs are being planned by the community workers, according to Brewton.

Some of them are a community political education program, dealing with problems of the community such as land, housing and education; a theoretical presentation of Marxist and Leninist ideology; a session on the contradictions present in American society; a technical education program which will give information on the proper tools for liberation as well as first aid; a liberation school for the younger children dealing with black history and the blacks' role in present society and a program on the social and economic concerns in Southern Illinois.

Through the Center, petition committees will also be set up, Brewton said.

These will deal with community control of the police

Ogilvie to address state GOP meeting

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will address delegates to the biennial Illinois Republican state convention in Peoria Saturday.

Secretary Rogers reports to Nixon on Middle East tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers reported to President Nixon Monday on a two-week tour overseas which centered on American policy in Indochina and the Middle East.

Rogers came back Sunday night after visiting Manila, Saigon, Tokyo and London. It wound up with a two-day conference on these areas with Britain's new governmental leaders and with U.S. Ambassadors David K. E. Bruce and Philip C. Habib. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was will be implemented, Brewton said.

Workers at the Center are from the Panther Party as well as the community at large. Some SIU students are involved, according to Brewton.

The ultimate outcome of such programs, Brewton said, is to link the party and the people.

asked about a report that Rogers thought the prospects are for protracted war in Indochina. Ziegler said it was a "thought piece" and he would have no comment on it.

Court bars theater tax levy

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A federal judge has barred the city of Clearwater from levying a special tax on theaters showing X- and R-rated movies.

U.S. District Judge Joseph Lieb issued the temporary injunction Tuesday after a hearing at which attorneys for three Clearwater theaters—Capitol, Cariband Trans Lux—contended the tax represented "a flagrant type of censorship and taxation of freedom of speech."

After passing the tax June 22, Clearwater officials said revenue on theater admissions would be used to finance youth activities. The city placed a 15-cent levy on R-rated films; a 25-cent levy on X-ratings.

Censors make military losses appear good

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Cambodian censorship shows little interest in military security and increasingly is being used to put the best face on government military defeats.

Censors say their orders are to prevent unpleasant news from undermining the government's drive for political and military help from other nations.

Despite censorship of cables, international telephone calls and the mail, the news seems to be getting out one way or another.

Regulations here are almost the reverse of those applied by the United States and South Vietnamese commands in Vietnam. There censorship is designed to prevent premature word of troop movements and military operations, needlessly endangering lives. Military and political reporting and analyses are not interfered with except on security grounds, no matter how damaging they may be to the picture of the war. Saigon and Washington wish to present.

Here the chief military spokesman, Maj. Ath Rong, routinely reports the dispatch of reinforcements often even before they have reached the battle zone.

Censors who monitor all international traffic at Phnom Penh's main post, telephone and telegraph headquarters serve almost as press agents protecting the government's image abroad.

Reporters returning recently from the battle around Kiri Rom, a mountain resort 50 miles from Phnom Penh, attempted to report that the 300-man government garrison had for its life after running out of ammunition during an attack by 1,000 enemy troops. In blocking one reporter's stabbing wounded prisoners-story, a censor said such a report would be "bad for morale and international opinion."

A reporter filing a story on the fighting at Saang, 20 miles from Phnom Penh, included the fact that government troops, infuriated by their heavy casualties, had hanged one dead enemy soldier in the central market area. A smiling censor said, "That is not a nice thing to say." He disallowed the paragraph, together with the reporting that government troops boasted openly of shooting and

Orangemen celebrating battle parade in troubled Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—More than 100,000 men of the Protestant Orange Order paraded with five bands, squealing and banners waving Monday in a massive demonstration of their determination to remain British.

A security force of 20,000 troops and police kept watch on major towns of the troubled province.

By late afternoon only three youngsters had been arrested—Roman Catholics charged with disorderly behavior in flying the flag of the Irish Republic to the south.

A total ban on liquor sales and a cut in the number of rally speeches helped to keep tempers down on this 280th anniversary of the Protestant victory over Catholics at the Battle of the Boyne.

The speeches that were given underlined the powerful Orange Order's growing dissatisfaction with the moderate policies of Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark and particularly his insistence that reforms demanded by the Catholic minority must go through.

Resolutions at the Orangemen's rallies pointedly omitted the usual declaration of support for the province's Protestant-based Unionist government.

Chichester-Clark, breaking his usual practice, did not march with his local lodge and instead watched the giant security operation from British army headquarters at Lisburn, seven miles from the capital.

Almost 12,000 armed troops were on the streets, the largest

Eight enrolled in music workshop

Eight persons are attending the first session of an electronic music workshop at SIU.

Under the direction of Will Gay Bottje, professor of music, and Alan Oldfield, assistant professor of music at SIU, workshop members are attending formal classroom presentations as well as having individual studio practice in the composition of electronic music.

The two-week course is designed primarily to help the secondary or small college instructor to develop and utilize the facilities necessary for working with electronic music.

The second two-week session will begin July 20 on the Carbondale campus.

est number since the British army took control of internal security during last August's bloody riots.

They were backed by 3,000 police and 5,000 men of the Ulster Defense Regiment, Northern Ireland's equivalent to the national guard.

Orange Order officials in Belfast said the turnout of 30,000 for the capital's parade was the largest in memory. The parade took three hours to pass through the city center, watched by crowds 12 deep in places.

Reouting worked out by the government's security committee kept the parades away from predominantly Catholic areas where the Orangemen's banners—with their pictures of victorious King William crossing the Boyne on his white charger—are considered a provocation.

Troops manned 100 machinegun nests along the "peace line" dividing the capital's main Protestant and Catholic areas. Others manned scores of road blocks, searching every vehicle entering the city.

Eaton claims U.S. caught in full recession

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industrialist Cyrus Eaton testified Monday the United States is in a full-scale recession that will lead to a devastating depression unless the war in Southeast Asia is ended.

Eaton, 86, and a Cleveland millionaire, has visited Hanoi and has campaigned for better United States relations with Communist countries, particularly Russia.

He testified before Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Eaton said in his talks with Hanoi leaders he was led to believe they would regard 18 months as a reasonable period for U.S. troops to withdraw.

But, he said, he is convinced that President Nixon does not intend to stop the war.

Sending troops into Cambodia "isn't designed to end the war," he said. "That is to bring in other allies... You don't bring our boys home quicker by starting a new war in a new country."

Eaton, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Co., said the war is having a devastating effect on the U.S. economy.

Kurt Wagner (left) is still a high school student at Carbondale Community High School, but he's already involved in a research project at SIU. Here, under the supervision of John Wotiz, professor of chemistry, Wagner prepares for a reaction of chemical compounds in a dry box experiment.

Student, 17, conducts project

Summer isn't just 'fun in the sun' for the one local high school student.

Kurt Wagner, 17-year-old junior at Carbondale Community High School, is working on a research project for the chemistry department at SIU.

Wagner was selected by his high school for his ability and aptitude in chemistry. The selection was made on behalf of the American Chemical Society and the Department of Chemistry at SIU.

The ACS is sponsoring Wagner's work with a $500 grant. He is under the direct supervision of John Wotiz, professor of chemistry and head of the research project.

According to Wotiz, the research is on propargylic rearrangement, known as the Wotiz rearrangement. Wotiz added, "In laymen's terms, this is the molecular rearrangement of hydrocarbons. This is a study which the chemistry department at SIU is noted for and it will contribute to a general understanding of the makeup of our environment."

Wotiz said "Kurt has an excellent understanding and aptitude for organic chemistry and we expect valuable suggestions from him for implementation into the program."

Fire bombs thrown

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Vandals threw flaming newspapers and a gasoline bomb at the church adjoining the fresco of Leonardo da Vinci's famous "Last Supper," police announced Monday.

The fire bombing only damaged the door of Santa Marie delle Grazie, a 15th century brick and terracotta church built by Bramante. But police said the fire, which broke out Saturday, could have damaged the Leonardo painting if it had spread.

VISA plans three kinds of trips for 70-'71 year

Members of the Visiting International Student Association and International Relations Club made plans last week for trips to be taken during the 1970-71 school year.

The committee decided that all final plans for any trip would be formalized by those students interested in participating.

The types of trips were divided into three categories:

—Long, which is 650 miles or over and for the student who has about $100 to spend.

—Medium, a trip between 350 and 650 miles for the student willing to spend $50 to $75.

—Short, less than 350 miles designed for the working student who would like to make a short trip at the beginning or end of a break with a price of about $50.

This program, according to the VISA newsletter, is based on the success of last spring's break's New Orleans trip.

The trips concentrate on the historical-educational aspects of each location selected.

Interested students, international or American, should contact Frank Sehnert or Dan Stracka at the International Center located at Woody Hall, Room 112. Sign-up deadline is July 24. Only trips for which students have expressed interest will be planned.

VISA has also planned an all-day trip to St. Louis for Saturday, July 25. Buses will leave the International Center at 8 a.m. and return at 11 p.m. Cost is $1.

Anyone interested in the St. Louis trip should contact the International Center.

Family doctors show decline, number of patients have tripled

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has only one family doctor for each 3,171 persons, according to the president of the American Academy of General Practice.

In testimony prepared for a Senate health subcommittee, Dr. Edward J. Kowalewski said the number of persons depending on one general practitioner has tripled since 1931.

The percentage of physicians going into general or family practice dropped from 75 per cent in 1931 to 21.3 per cent in 1967, he added.

Kowalewski testified in favor of a bill which would authorize money for family-practice residencies at teaching hospitals and medical schools, establishment of family-practice departments in medical schools and training of paramedical personnel to aid family doctors.

In 'fairly good shape'

C'dale water—not the dirtiest in Illinois

By Fred Brown
Student Writer

Crab Orchard Lake may not be the cleanest water supply in Illinois, but it's not the dirtiest either.

Mike Hines, a sanitary engineer with the newly-created Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, feels that Crab Orchard, which supplies drinking water to Carbondale and SIU, is in fairly good shape.

There are some problems, however. Crab Orchard Lake takes drainage from Crab Orchard Creek, as well as other streams. Cartersville presently dumps effluents from an overloaded sewage treatment plant into Crab Orchard Creek. Hines' department has imposed a sewer ban on Cartersville which prevents the city from adding to its present sewer system. The city has been given an immediate deadline to upgrade its waste treatment facilities, Hines said.

He added that most of the areas which dump into Crab Orchard Lake use secondary sewage treatment facilities. This, he explained, usually consists of some type of simple settling, followed by a biological process such as the activated sludge process used by Carbondale.

"This is the best form of sewage treatment for domestic installations, as far as I am concerned," Hines said.

Hines explained that neither Crab Orchard or Lake-on-the-Campus is recognized by his department or the Department of Public Health as "a decent place to swim."

This is not due to pollution, but to the fact that natural beach areas cannot be controlled to meet the requirements for safe bathing areas, such as swimming pools. These requirements, he said, are among the toughest in the nation and are actually more demanding than for water supply areas, Hines said. This is because drinking water is treated before being used, but swimming water is not.

Regarding other water supplies in the area, Hines said most are in fairly good condition. However, some areas of the Big Muddy River are seriously affected by mine wastes. The Ohio River is in better condition than the Mississippi, he said.

Part of the problem is a lack of trained personnel to operate the sewage treatment equipment in the smaller communities in this area. Usually the pay is not high enough to attract "technically competent" people to run the facilities. Also, some communities just don't care, Hines said.

"They either will not spend the money or do not think they are part of the problem."

The biggest problem, however, is a lack of money.

Under present federal regulations most of the communities in Southern Illinois are required to have complex, extremely expensive tertiary (three-stage) sewage treatment plants. Some of these communities do not need this equipment, said Hines. "I personally believe that everybody should have secondary treatment. Tertiary treatment should be optional, due to the expense involved," Hines said.

The federal government does provide some money with which to fund sewage treatment plants, but it is not enough. Of some 245 applications for federal funds last year, only 30 to 40 will be funded with the money provided.

The biggest enforcement problem faced by the Environmental Protection Agency is in the courts.

"When we go to court, we actually feel like the villains when we walk out," Hines said.

Hines said he is optimistic about the future.

"If we would just upgrade the operation of all the plants in Southern Illinois, we would do more good than building tertiary treatment plants," he concluded.

Romney projects housing goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, said Monday he fully expects to reach by next year an annual goal of producing 60,000 federally assisted low income housing units.

Romney said that as of June 26, more than 200,000 low income units had been started or almost half of the 425,000 which is HUD's goal for this year.

If Romney's projections are fulfilled it would mean that after a rocky start the government would be well on its way to providing the six million low income housing units that are estimated to be needed by 1978.

This goal is contemplated in housing legislation approved Congress in 1968. Funds were slow in coming however, and last year there were only 159,000 low income housing starts.

Testifying before the housing subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, Romney said the real problem in housing was in the conventional area, not in providing for low income families.

White citizens group urges Cairo to boycott Nazi rally

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Directors for United Citizens for Community Action, a white citizens group, condemned the scheduled appearance of American Nazi party leader Frank Collin.

Collin and members of the American National Socialists White Peoples party, plan to be in Cairo Sunday for a speaking engagement and other activities.

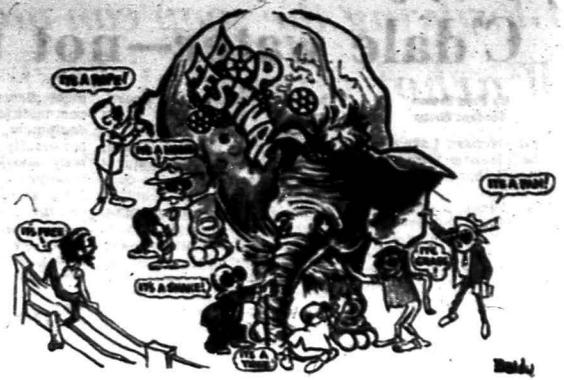

In a statement issued Friday, the UCCA directors urged the membership to "lend no encouragement to and avoid any appearance of support of his rally by total lack of attendance."

The statement, signed by Bob Cunningham, pointed out that UCCA members complained to police last July when Collin and his followers were in Cairo distributing anti-Negro literature. The Nazi party members were picked up by police and questioned.

"There is entirely too much outside influence by the Black Panthers and other anarchist black revolutionary groups in the Cairo black community. We reject out of hand any attempt by radical white groups to fan the fires of hate and racial polarization."

"If the leaders of the Cairo United Front would do likewise the problems of Cairo could be solved in Cairo by honest citizens working for a better community," the statement said.

PM celebrates birthday

Heath doggedly pursued rise to power

By James Worsdale
Copley News Service

LONDON—Ted Heath, the builder's son who laid the foundations of his own political career at the end of World War II, finally and firmly has cemented himself in position as undisputed leader of this nation's Conservative Party and as prime minister.

It has been no easy task. But on July 9, the Right Honorable Edward Richard George Heath celebrated the happiest of his birthday anniversaries—his 54th.

It now is history that Heath confounded all opinion polls and press predictions resoundingly to lead the Tories to victory over Harold Wilson. What is not so widely known outside Britain, however, is the obstacle-ridden course that has taken the chubbily handsome figure to 10 Downing Street.

Heath was born in 1916 in a little terraced home in the Kentish coast town of Broadstairs. In those days, the Conservative Party was the party of the titled and the rich—and Heath, as a builder's son, hardly fitted the then popular Tory image. Not for him the expensive private school background—he was educated locally at grammar school.

But Heath won a place at Oxford University and, as a would-be lawyer, he studied politics, philosophy and economics—subjects that were to prove invaluable in the career he was to choose years later. He also traveled extensively, including a tour of America with a varsity debating team.

His capacity for leadership showed during the war when he reached the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Royal Ar-

Fair selects judge

SPRINGFIELD—Charlie Skillington, Santa Fe, Tenn., has been selected to judge mules at the 1970 Illinois State Fair, Aug. 13-23. Judging will take place Aug. 17 in an outside ring south of the Coliseum.

Whiter bears now

LONDON (AP)—A spokesman for Regents Park Zoo said one result of London's clean air policy is the polar bears are whiter. He said they used to be grimy despite spending most of their time in the pool.

Ted Heath

tilery. He was decorated for gallantry in the northwest Europe campaign.

That fighting spirit showed again when, in 1950, he made his first bid for Parliament in the Labor stronghold of Bexley, a constituency on the fringe of suburban London.

Heath leaped that hurdle by winning the seat from the Socialists and he has held it ever since.

From that time onwards, Heath quietly and determinedly worked his way through the "ranks" of parliamentary office until, on the retirement of Sir Alec Douglas-Home from the party leadership, there was a bitter battle to appoint a successor.

Heath was on the edge of that tussle, the rank outsider. But his confidence, his wide experience and his determination saw him through as the man to challenge Wilson. It was another massive hurdle overcome—and, not for the first nor the last time, Heath had shaken the pundits.

Perhaps the biggest obstacle, however, was in the more personal aspect: the fact that Heath still is a bachelor. And many in the Tory ranks were disturbed, before the recent general election, as to the possible reaction of the countless women voters.

Heath himself, in a radio interview last year, said he believed in keeping personal and family life out of politics. Many wondered just how this could be achieved in these days of mass communication and searching media.

Heath, asked if he ever had tried to find a wife, replied: "If I say yes to that one, the number of letters in my office will require an enormous staff to answer, I suspect. Yes, I...yes. But it hasn't worked out that way."

Yet Heath, though unmarried, remains much the family man. Regularly he returns to his home town of Broadstairs to attend church, to visit his 81-year-old father and his stepmother, or to sail his yacht "Morning Cloud."

He clearly has appealed to younger Tory supporters, too, by managing to mix the dashing bachelor image with that of staunch family man: he has young folk crewing his yacht and, last year, he won the formidable Sydney-Hobart race over 630 miles.

Life for the bachelor at 10 Downing Street could seem lonely—but Heath, now, is unlikely to have much time for personal matters. He has been choosing and shaping his team and, after the initial balmy days of triumph and settling-in, he must face numerous and massive problems: the Mideast situation, unrest in Ulster, preparations for membership application to the European Common Market, wage and productivity negotiations and rebellious trades unions.

Retirees useful

CHICAGO (AP)—A new employment service, Mature Temps, now is using older persons' skills on a part-time or temporary basis.

John Deere tractor works in Waterloo, Iowa, for example, is using retired employees from the plant to conduct tours.

The former employees not only know something about plant layout, tractor-building processes and job skills involved, but they also enhance Deere's image.

The outside agency handles the hiring, payroll and other paper work for the tour guides.

Glorifying the soup can makes Warhol master of high camp

CHICAGO (AP)—Andy Warhol was not an initiator in the pop art movement but he, as the artist who constrained soup cans, is probably the best known of all contemporary American artists.

By glorifying the banal, this shy, withdrawn commercial artist plummeted himself to fame in a field he later abandoned to devote himself to making incredibly boring movies.

This pictorial period of the productive life of Warhol is now being seen in a retrospective show. After its initial showing in Pasadena, Calif., it opened July 4 in Chicago at the Museum of Contemporary Art. It runs through Sept. 6.

Later it will travel to Holland, Paris and London before a final showing at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York.

It is a huge showing of huge pictures. More than 200 pieces are in the show, some of them portions of serial views of subjects and objects.

The work covers the period 1961-67 and, at Warhol's request, concentrates on Campbell soup cans, portraits of movie stars and public figures, disasters, Brillo boxes and flowers.

After laboriously painting soup cans when he first became involved in the pop art movement, Warhol discovered that images could be mass produced by silk screen and much of the work was turned over to assistants.

While cool detachment characterizes Warhol's pictorial, as well as cinematic, approach, there is nevertheless a particular horror in what he calls the "disaster" series.

Serial reproductions of a single photograph of an empty electric chair at Sing Sing in various seemingly electric color tones carry a powerful impact.

"The "disaster" pictures also include a nuclear bomb explosion, a grisly automobile accident with the victims pinned in the wreckage, police pursuing Negroes with dogs in a race riot, and a closeup of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy at her husband's funeral.

The famous soup cans are in the show as pictures, and stacks of packing boxes for Brillo scouring pads are heaped in full dimension in the middle of the gallery.

The portraits include a series of reproductions of the famous Mona Lisa. Also included are series of Marilyn Monroe done in various hues, Elizabeth Taylor, self-portraits—and the best of the lot—some full length views of Elvis Presley with a drawn pistol.

The most pleasing part of the show is a series of brightly done flowers, taken from a picture in a photography magazine and rendered in several colors on huge wall panels as well as smaller canvases.

While the work of Warhol as an artist, and as a movie-maker, is not very substantial, he does rate an important place in pop art, and, if it matters, as one of the masters of high camp.

Inmates borrow name

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Inmates at Kentucky State Penitentiary have borrowed the name of nearby Ken-bar Resort to call their present place of abode: "Ken-Barred Inn."

College of Agriculture, will talk about rural development, and William Cammack, manager of the Tri-County Feeder Pig Cooperative at Mounds (Ill.), will speak on cooperatives in rural development.

Talking about the outlook for agricultural credit will be W. Everette Specht, vice president and secretary of the St. Louis Bank for Cooperatives.

A. M. Feland, III, executive vice president of the Southern Farmers Association at North Little Rock, Ark., will give some hints to managers and directors of cooperatives for the decade ahead. A. F. Kemnitz, public relations director for FS Services, Inc., Bloomington, will talk about the need for cooperation.

Walter J. Willis, chairman of the SIU agricultural industries department, will be featured at the luncheon session with a report on his experiences in Turkey where he has been a Fulbright lecturer at Ege University for the last nine months.

Stepping into the 70's theme of ag workshop

Stepping into the 70's will be the general theme of discussions at SIU's 12th annual Workshop for Farmers' Cooperatives in Carbondale today.

Such topics as financing rural electric cooperative, agricultural credit, rural development, and management for farm cooperatives during the decade of the 70's will be explored by specialists in workshop sessions.

Lyle Solverson, SIU associate professor of agricultural industries and program chairman, says the workshop will have interest for management personnel, directors, officers, and active members of farm cooperatives.

J. K. Smith, Louisville, Ky., will discuss rural electric cooperative financing. He is general manager of the Association of Kentucky Electrical Cooperatives and president of the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp.

Revenue Dept. unveils mobile

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The Illinois Department of Revenue unveiled its first Taxpayer Service mobile unit.

The unit, a 24-foot van, will visit county fairs and major public events during the summer to provide information on all tax laws administered by the revenue department.

Revenue Director George Mahin described the mobile unit as a "major innovation in taxpayer education and information."

"Formerly taxpayers had to come to us if they had a question about state taxes or a problem in filing or filling out state tax forms," he explained.

"Now we're bringing the service right to the taxpayers. The estimated attendance figures for the events this unit will be visiting will total more than two million. To reach just a tenth of those people will be a major achievement," Mahin continued.

Mahin said the mobile unit was "an experiment in taxpayer service." He noted that such service, used as an adjunct to the nine revenue department district offices, could become a permanent part of the department's taxpayer program.

China may conduct NPC session

By Copley News Service

Hong Kong—Reports are circulating here and in the diplomatic community in Peking that Communist China may soon hold a new session of its National People's Congress (NPC).

The NPC is the equivalent of a parliament in China, and according to the constitution of the Chinese People's Republic it is the "highest organ of state power" and the "only organ exercising the legislative power of the state."

In reality, however, the NPC has never been more than a rubber stamp for decisions taken by Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the other senior Chinese officials.

Its one interesting function in terms of conditions today is that of selecting the chairman of the state. China has been without a state chairman since 1966 when Liu Shao-chi came under attack, thus interest in the convening of a new NPC session is especially great.

The NPC is supposed to meet every year and elect a new membership every four years. The first National People's Congress was held in September, 1954, the second in April, 1959, and the third in December, 1964.

The next meeting of the Congress would no doubt be officially designated the fourth. Although meetings of the NPC were held every year from 1954 to 1964 (with the one exception of 1961), the Congress has not met for the last six years.

The cultural revolution and the chaos and confusion it generated are largely responsible for that fact.

Also much of the state machinery was disrupted by that upheaval and a number of leading government and NPC officials were purged, starting from the top with State Chairman Liu Shao-chi.

Now, as China is attempting to reconstruct its administrative apparatus and is stepping up its diplomatic activities, the time indeed appears ripe for putting the state's house in order and holding the fourth National People's Congress.

One of the early indications, albeit a subtle one, that China might be thinking of a new NPC is that the Chinese press has started to identify certain leaders by the titles of their positions in the National People's Congress. This practice stopped during the cultural revolution.

The reappearance of senior officials who have not been seen in public since 1966 has provided another hint that a new session may be in store. Many party and government figures in the provinces also have reappeared after long absences.

If a new NPC is held, the most intriguing question is who will be named chairman of the People's Republic of China.

Mao Tse-tung originally held that post, but it was transferred to Liu Shao-chi at the Second National People's Congress in 1959. Liu, now disgraced and reported to be under house arrest in Peking for his alleged opposition to Mao, is politically dead and has no chance of being re-named state chairman.

Considerable speculation thus surrounds the question of a new chairman. The two names most frequently mentioned as possible successors to Liu are NPC Vice Chairman Tung Pi-wu and NPC Standing Committee Vice Chairman Kuo Mo-jo.

Tung, if he is able to take the job (he is now 84 years old), would seem to have the inside track.

On at least one occasion Tung has been referred to as acting state chairman. That was last October when a message he sent to the new president and vice president of North Vietnam, elected following the death of Ho Chi Minh, was signed "acting chairman of the People's Republic of China."

Surprisingly, however, Tung has never again been referred to as acting chairman. In later references to him he has always been identified as vice chairman of the NPC, or People's Republic.

Kuo Mo-jo, a literary man and long-time associate of Mao's, is no younger either. He currently is 70, though apparently still active in the leadership.

On a number of occasions during the last couple of years Kuo has fulfilled some of the functions of the state chairman. This is one of the reasons he is mentioned as a possible successor to Liu Shao-chi.

The reports now circulating in this China-watching post and in the Chinese capital indicate that if a new Congress is held, it probably will be convened before China's National Day on Oct. 1.

L.A. groups pick up bottles, clean up city and make money

By Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES—That old peanut butter jar and no-deposit glass bottle are not as useless as you might think.

Such objects not only can be disposed of at a small profit to the individual who really cares about cleaning up the environment, but they can be melted down and the glass used to produce new containers.

Eight glass container manufacturing plants in greater Los Angeles are participating in what officials here say is the first industry-wide glass container cleanup campaign.

"The campaign in Los Angeles is a pilot program for the entire nation," explained Paul Griem, chairman of the Western Public Affairs Committee for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

"It began in April, and it has been so successful that plans are being made to expand the program to other parts of the country."

There have been campaigns in individual communities in Michigan and elsewhere to get rid of solid waste, including glass containers. But the Los Angeles project seems by far the largest and best organized.

Up to 2 million bottles a month are being collected, Griem said, and the number is increasing.

There are three days each week when bottles and jars can be redeemed for one-half cent each.

Not only individuals, but groups, such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, women's clubs, churches and "pollution activists"—as Griem describes them—are gathering used glass containers and submitting them to offices of the glass manufacturers.

Boy Scouts use money collected on the glass waste objects to replenish camp funds. Community groups contribute the cash they receive to needy organizations.

On a single day recently, the Girl Scout Council of Orange County collected $500 when they picked up 100,000 bottles in a "Glass Safari." A "pollution solution" day at North Hollywood High School mounted two-thirds of a ton of glass containers.

Municipalities are considering participation in the cleanup campaign, offering city trucks to transport the refuse to glass container manufacturing plants.

In other words, anyone who wants to get into the act can do so.

"This is one way in which every citizen can help in the nation's battle to clean up the environment," Griem concluded.

Meet the coach

SIU places three on U.S. gym team

SIU's 1970 national champion women's gymnastics team will be well represented on the U.S. team competing in the Student World Games August 22-Sept. 5 in Turin, Italy.

At the tryouts at Indiana State last week, SIU gymnasts took three of the four places on the regular team.

SIU's Terry Spencer placed first in the overall competition at Indiana State, teammate Barbara Baur was third and Carolyn Riddell was fourth. The other member of the regular team is Pat McGarity of Southern Connecticut, who placed second in the tryouts. Donna Oliver of the University of Nevada was fifth and Jo Ann Conolly of Southeastern Louisiana was sixth. The latter two will be the alternate members of the U.S. team.

The other two SIU competitors in the tryouts, Carole Donnelly and Margi Schilling, placed 11th and 12th, respectively.

SIU coach Herb Vogel pointed out that this was a tremendous feat for the Saluki gymnast team. In 1959, three members of Vogel's Flint, Mich., Club team made six-member the Pan-American team. This was the record until 1968 when the Champaign, Ill., Club placed three members on the U.S. Olympic team. Last year a Seattle, Wash., women's gymnastic club had three of four members on the Cup of America team.

In 1967, two members of Vogel's SIU team made the U.S. team entered in the Student Games.

Vogel said Spencer led the competition all the way. The SIU athlete is recovering from mononucleosis and was cleared for limited practice and competition recently. Her lowest score came in the uneven bar competition which she had had very little practice due to her illness.

The biggest surprise of the meet was Miss Bauer, a freshman transfer from Southeastern Louisiana this summer. Vogel only discovered she was eligible to compete in the tryouts two days before the meet.

Vogel had projected Miss Riddell to place high in the competition but she had to overcome a bad fall in the balance beam competition to come back and take fourth place. She returned to win the uneven bar event and turned in her best exercise routine of her college career.

Lambert tells audience: new job among the best

New SIU basketball coach Paul Lambert officially "met" the community Monday afternoon at the Holiday Inn during a press conference arranged by the University and attended by the local media, University officials and community leaders.

Athletic Director Donald Boydston introduced Lambert to the audience, commenting that SIU has had many great basketball coaches in the past that have brought the institution to its present heights in college competition and that Lambert is equally capable of maintaining that tradition and pushing the school's status to even greater heights.

In a brief statement to the guests, Lambert emphasized that he considered the position as head coach of the Saluki cagers as one of the best jobs in the nation. He added that the job ahead for the SIU basketball staff was one of recruiting top personnel and making an even greater name for SIU in college basketball competition.

"I am proud to announce that Assistant Coach George Lubelt has decided to remain as my No. 1 assistant," said Lambert. "Lubelt has a fine reputation as a coach and as an individual. I am very happy that George, who has such great ability, is willing to stay and work with me."

Lubelt and Assistant Coach Jim Smelzer were candidates for the head coach position. Smelzer decided not to renew his contract for next season.

In addition to Lubelt, Lambert will have the services of SIU graduate student Paul Henry and Max Brownlee. Brownlee played under Lambert at Hardin-Simmons for three seasons.

Lambert said no decision had been reached on another assistant coach but he hoped to discuss the matter with his staff and Boydston in the near future.

Lambert, who compiled impressive records at Hardin-Simmons and Kansas State College as head coach and as a freshman coach at Drake, made it clear that the style of play utilized at SIU would depend on the personnel available. At Hardin-Simmons Lambert's teams played a fast break, running game.

"My philosophy of basketball is to win. When a player or coach can't do his best, then he should get out. A lot has been said about my emphasis of the fast break, a lot said about scoring. I'm going to play to win. If we have to run, we run; if we have to play a conservative game, we play conservatively.

"We probably will play a little faster than SIU teams have played in the past few years but I will have to evaluate the personnel more—look at the depth—to determine our style or play."

Lambert also added that more emphasis and work will be placed on defense. The team speed appears to be very good and they will be capable to pick up on the press, he said.

The new Saluki coach said there will be little change on the offensive. I realize there will be some adjustment on the part of the players and coaches but this is something we will have to cope with."

Concerning the offensive play, Lambert added: "I like my offensive to move a lot. Usually any team doesn't have five first-rate defensive players and the key is to find the weakest defensive player and move the ball against him."

"The best physical attribute I think a basketball player has to have is mobility. Speed and quickness enables a team to move well, offensively and defensively."

Lambert said the primary point in recruiting good players is to have a good product to sell. "We have an excellent product to sell here at SIU with the excellent basketball tradition and a fine schedule. Our job will be to sell these kids on the program."

The new Saluki mentor commented he has not had the opportunity to meet all the players personally. "I contacted them by telephone and next week the staff and I will have a meeting with as many of them as possible. I want to make the adjustment period as short as possible."

On the subject of the new conference affiliation SIU has made, Lambert commented that he felt an independent in the NCAA is dying. "Affiliation with some organization always has its pros and cons but the independent school is going to have to be affiliated to survive."

Lambert also pointed out that in the area of recruiting, the SIU staff has a great deal of high school and junior college talent within a 150- to 200-mile radius of Carbondale. "Naturally, we'll be going to other places for some athletes, but we feel that we have a wealth of talent here close to the University."

"We will utilize the junior college players as supplements to our team more and more, as well as developing our freshman program more."

SIU's Greendale wins title, upsets defending tennis champ

Chris Greendale defeated Mike Fishback Friday and won the Eastern Junior Division Tennis Championship. Greendale came from behind after losing the first two sets of a five set match to beat Fishback and win the crown.

In the final match, the scores for Greendale were 1-6, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-4. Greendale's win came after upsetting John Peckscamp, the defending champion, on Thursday.

Greendale is a junior at SIU and hails from Auckland, New Zealand. He has been playing the summer tennis circuit this year.

The tournament is sponsored each year by the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association and played at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, N.Y. To win the championship, a player must win eight matches.

Greendale now heads for the National Claycourt Championship in Louisville, Ky.

Nixon to attend All-Star game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball fan Richard M. Nixon is going to the All-Star game in Cincinnati tonight at the close of a day that will include a conference with the governors of the 13 Appalachian states in Louisville.

The President missed last year's game between the National and American League all-stars and didn't want to pass up another one, since either by design or coincidence he would be in the general area.

The President's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, who is on the summer payroll of the Washington Senators as club statistician is going along on the presidential jet. And Mrs. Nixon and David's wife, Julie will join up in Cincinnati for dinner with the president and the big baseball classic in the new Cincinnati ballpark.

The President will warm up his pitching arm and toss out a first ball for the National League and a first ball for the American League.

Softball games for coeds set

The SIU Women's Softball team will play in area competition this summer. No intercollegiate games are scheduled according to Kay Brechtelsbauer, faculty coach and instructor in physical education for women.

Home games scheduled include Eldorado, July 21, 6:30 p.m. and Herrin, August 12, 6 p.m. Out-of-town games scheduled include Piopiola, July 13, 8 p.m.; Mill Shoals, July 18, 6 p.m.; 4-H Team of Murphysboro, July 27, 8:30 p.m. and McClansboro, August 7, 8:30 p.m.

Today's schedule of softball games

Five games are on schedule in the Men's Intramural Softball League today. All games start at 6:30.

The schedule, with officials listed, include:

Field No. 1—Math vs Raphy's Raiders, Carr-McKay; field No. 2—Schneider Sixth vs Aggravation, Patterson-Pile; field No. 3—Schneider Second vs Long Balls, Buhs-Robak; field No. 3—Schneider Third vs Skunks, Dorton-Stafford; field No. 6—G.D.I. vs The Undeclared, Bunting-Patridge.

No game will be played on field No. 4.

Willie tops list

CINCINNATI (AP) — When Manager Gil Hodges was assembling his lineup for the National League All-Stars who'll face their American League counterparts in tonight's 41st renewal of baseball's mid-summer ritual, he penciled San Francisco's great Willie Mays in the No. 1 position.
