SIUC prepares to reslice budget pie

By John Patterson and Eric Reyes
Staff Writers

The University awoke from the 1991 budget nightmare only to find a new one a pleasant day. The $236 million fiscal year budget SIU received from the state, but slashed less than it received for 1991. SIU President John C. Goyion said there had to be substantial internal re-allocation to cover the cut and unfunded projects. Four major areas were left without adequate funds and will have to be covered through money from other budgets in the University. Goyion said shortfalls in Social Security payments, Medicare, operation of the Southern Illinois Business Incubator, and continued work on hazardous waste and occupational safety will require money from within the University to maintain their current level, because they were not funded in the recently passed FY 92 budget. Benjamin Shephard, vice president for academic affairs and research, said all areas of the University will feel the pinch of internal reallocation.

"It will be misery across the board," Shephard said. "Hence they received their 'fair share of pain.'"

The areas that will have to be covered by internal reallocation were covered by the University's FY 1992 budget requests and were put under the heading FY 1992 unavoidable costs, Shephard said.

"It illustrates the inadequate funding the University has experienced up until this time and will continue to experience," he said.

The biggest expense for the University will be clean up of hazardous materials on campus, he said. An estimated $1.3 million is needed to clean up chemicals stook for research at SIUC.

Shephard said the University has been cited by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to create closure plans for how to handle the clean up procedures for the chemistry storage room and the SIUC vivarium. But once the University estimated the cost at $1.3 million

Bill to Edgar to require dentists to admit AIDS

By Cyndi Oberie
Staff Writer

Although an AIDS-notification bill rests on Gov. Jim Edgar's desk, local dentists say they already are using strict safety measures. Since AIDS and health care workers have received no training in Illinois and across the nation in recent months, a bill passed by the General Assembly would require all dentists to notify their patients if they have the human immunodeficiency virus.

The law would be the first of its kind in the nation if approved by the governor.

Dan Egler, spokesman for Edgar, said the governor supports the concept because he knows that consumers should be informed if their dentist is HIV positive, but he wants to review the specifics of the bill and cost before making a final decision.

Robert Dudenbostel, who has practiced dentistry in Carbondale for 26 years, said he is in agreement with the legislation.

"I would certainly not hesitate to inform my patients if I had the virus," Dudenbostel said. "I would also hope they would inform me if they were carriers of it."

Jim Houseworth, who has practiced dentistry for 11 years, agreed.

"It would definitely be my responsibility to notify my patients," Houseworth said. "If a patient contracted the disease from his dentist, that dentist would then lose all his other patients and his practice.

In response to the AIDS issue, the Academy of General Dentistry, the second-largest dental association in the nation, recommended dentists voluntarily take AIDS tests and inform their patients if they are infected. Such moves came in part from the case of Kimberly Bergalis of Fort Pierce, Fla., who was orally contracted AIDS from dentist David Acer.

Acer, who died of AIDS-related cancer in September, pulled out of Bergalis' molars during a 1987 visit. Since then, two more of Acer's patients were diagnosed with the virus. According to the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control, Acer was wearing protective gloves and a mask during Bergalis' surgery, and an accident would have had to occur while Acer was treating her to expose her to her blood or other body fluids. Bergalis said she does not recall such

Rainbow's End to cancel program for day-care of infants, toddlers

By Christiana Baxter
Staff Writer

Failure to find a new location for fall semester will force Rainbow's End to close its infant and toddler program Aug. 2, said program director Cheryl Walton.

A facility that met fire codes for day-care centers could not be located, she said.

Nursing homes, churches, the Student Center and the Recreation Center were considered as possible sites.

"I anticipated if they hadn't found a place by now, this was going to happen," Walton said. "I regret that the program has to close."

Parents were notified by letter Tuesday.

Slamir to attend peace conference

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Tuesday night, "I'm coming." To U.S.-brokered Middle East peace talks, but dashed expectations Israel had agreed to attend by again refusing to negotiate with Palestinians from East Jerusalem.

Without formally announcing that it would participate in the talks, the government paced ahead as if it had, suggesting that such obstacles as the Palestinian issue had been cleared, the talks with the Arabs were imminent.

Slamir favored expectations he would agree to talks with his Arab counterparts when he went on prime-time television to answer questions about the issue, but he still stopped short of saying yes to Secretary of State James Baker.

"Yitzhak Prime Minister Shamir says he's ready to come to direct bilateral negotiations? OK, I'll meet him," Shamir said, raising expectations the answer would be yes. But he immediately indicated that he was not ready yet to agree to the U.S. terms.

He said the biggest obstacle remaining was who would represent the Palestinians at the peace table.

Ball rolls away: SIU Foundation loses president

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

The president of the SIU Foundation is leaving for a new job in Texas. Rex H. Ball came to the foundation Dec. 1, 1987.

He was hired as vice president but was named acting president when foundation president Anne Carman resigned. Ball was named president in April 1988.

"I've had a very good experience at SIU," Ball said. "I never found another institution of the same size that does as much. It's not perfect, but it's a hell of a place for people to get ahead."

The SIU Foundation, a separate entity of the University, raises funds for scholarships and research.

Funds in question for athletic adviser

By Rob Neff
Staff Writer

The SIUC Athletic Department budget faced the stormy state budget crisis without any major cuts, but the search for an academic adviser for minority athletes may be in danger of sinking for the second time this year.

The national search for a minority to fill the position was halted last spring when the funding to fill the position was not available. Seymour Bryson, executive assistant to SIUC President John C. Guyon, said last June that the search was resumed when the money designated for the program became available.

Athletic Director Jim Hart said Wednesday, however, the money for the adviser was never budgeted and the question from where the money will come still is unanswered.

"Originally the president said do it and it will happen," he said at the Intercolligate Athletic Advisory Committee meeting.

"There's some doubt about where that's coming from now, but that's not going to keep us from continuing the search." Hart later said Guyon now has asked him to come up with the money out of the Athletic Department's budget, something he said he is not happy about.

"I think that by hook or by crook, we'll have a third academic adviser," Hart said. "I haven't thought about where I would find the money yet. I don't want to think about it."

Hart said the Athletic Department received a $25,000 academic enhancement allowance from the NCAA, but because he is not sure where that money is, he is not sure if he can use the budget, he cannot say whether the money will be used to pay the new adviser.

The minority adviser position was created to respond to a 1990 survey which indicated that SIUC black student athletes collectively performed well during their early college years but earned a substantial number of failing grades, incomplete grades and withdraw grades in their later years at the University.

Assistant Athletics Director Nancy Bandy said last June a minority adviser is being sought for the position because studies indicate minority students respond in a more positive way when they have another minority as an adviser.

Cubs Dawson, Cincinnati reliever claim innocence

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rob Dibble claims Wednesday he was innocent. Doug Dascenzo disagrees.

Andre Dawson said he was justified in throwing 14 bunts onto the field after a disputed called third strike. Unpipe Joe West probably is still simmering, taking planned to throw at somebody — then I'm real smart, aren't I?" Dibble said Wednesday. "If I wanted to."

Dibble, who might receive his third suspension in less than four months, said he had to hit Dascenzo in the back if he wanted to.

"If (umpire) Joe West thinks I'm so intelligent that while fielding a bunt and running at full speed, that I planned to throw at somebody — then I'm real smart, aren't I?" Dibble said Wednesday. "If I wanted to."

Dibble, who once had been issued suspensions this season for throwing behind Houston's Eric Kiekhefer and Yelding April 28. The game Tuesday night was his first appearance since serving a suspension for the first incident.

College athlete injuries increase in '91

By John Sommerhof
Staff Writer

Injuries to college athletes increased slightly during the 1990-91 season, as baseball injuries reached six-year highs, the National Collegiate Athletics Association has reported.

Softball and baseball athletes sustained the greatest number of injuries during practices and games.

A total of 57 percent of all softball injuries were caused in practice, while 57 percent of all baseball injuries occurred in games.

The study by the NCAA Injury Surveillance System is a yearly survey of representative NCAA institutions.

Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences, said the study defined injuries as those which occurred as a result of participation in an organized sport.

Coaches warn athletes to stay away from unnecessary summer hazards

By John Sommerhof
Staff Writer

Student athletes must be on guard during the summer to avoid injuries that could halt their regular-season play.

Head Saluki football coach Bob Smith knows the feeling of losing an athlete to off-season injuries.

Smith said senior cornerback Jon Cooper may not be able to play this season because of a knee injury.

Smith said Cooper hurt his knee playing a game of basketball and will have to undergo reconstructive surgery.

"It's a shame," Smith said. "We tell our player to stay in shape but ask them to stay away from intramural sports, dangerous jobs and motorcycle accidents."

Ed Thompson, head athletic trainer, said most athletes who are injured in the summer are hurt in car and motorcycle accidents.

Thompson said most summer sports are very aggressive and the chance for injuries always is around.

'86 pick defeats wild odds

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — When Jeff Banister broke his neck in a home plate collision as a freshman at Lee Junior College in Baytown, Texas, his doctor told him he would never play baseball again.

Though he was paralyzed by the effects of three severe vertebral fractures in 1984 and needed a year just to learn how to walk again, Banister never gave up on the physician's prophecy.

"They told me that before," he said.

That was three years earlier. Banister was the senior junior in high school and

The police were injured in both areas during more than six hours of combat in an ethnically mixed area near the Adriatic coast between Croatian security units and members of the militia of the Serb region of Krajina.

Andean villagers await aid near smoking volcano

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Rescue workers rushed aid Wednesday to Andean villagers near the smoking Sabancaya volcano that were hit by land slides touched off by an earthquake. At least 12 people were reported killed, 35 were injured and many were missing. The Sabancaya volcano, in a remote region southern Peru has been belching smoke, ash and mud for more than a year, and a spokesman for Peru's Geophysical Institute said it is on the verge of erupting.

Australian oil spill expected to cause little damage

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — The first oil that spilled from the stricken tanker Kirishi washed ashore on islands and beaches around Juri en Bay, and the ship developed another leak Wednesday, officials said. A government spokesman said the oil came ashore near the islands 125 miles north of Perth, but it was expected the spill would have a minimal impact on wildlife, because it is about equal to 1 percent of the stricken tanker's 500,000 metric ton cargo.

Zimbabwe president, Bush hold South Africa talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush welcomed to the White House Wednesday Zimbabwe President Robert Mugabe, who went to discuss U.S. policy toward South Africa while seeking aid for his country's move toward a market economy. Meeting with the African for his first official visit, Bush said there was much to discuss and that all topics were open for the two leaders. Mugabe also was scheduled to meet with State Department and congressional officials.

$4 million computer causes shuttle launch delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Trouble with a $4 million engine computer forced NASA to postpone the planned launch of the shuttle Atlantis Wednesday, delaying the $200 million mission eight to 10 days to install a new unit. "We have not set a new launch date yet, there's a lot of work ahead of us," said launch director Robert Sieck. "But it would be sometime no earlier than late next week."

"We wish we had launched and were up in orbit right now," Commander Bliha told reporters.

Many oil and chemical spills on waterways go unreported

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — The Illinois State Water Survey says 794 oil and chemical spills were reported on navigable Illinois waterways in 1990, but it is likely there were far more spills actually occurred. Laura Keef er, who helped write the report issued earlier this year, said Wednesday because of confusing reporting procedures there is no way to determine whether there were more spills on Illinois waterways than elsewhere in the country. The bulk occurred in Chicago and St. Louis area.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Astronomers announced Wednesday they had discovered what could be the first planet outside Earth's solar system, a mysterious world that appears to be orbiting the flashing remains of a collapsed star.

"It's not 100 percent sure they're right, but if they are it's truly fascinating and historic," said Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan.

Although scientists have long thought other planets exist elsewhere in the universe, the discovery could end the long hunt to provide new reason to believe that extraterrestrial life may be possible, the researchers said.

"It's the first concrete evidence that there may be other planetary systems other than our own in the universe. Ours could have just been a fluke. But if we see other planets it means our star is not alone in having a planetary system," said Andrew Lyne, who led the British team that found the possible planet. "If there are other planetary systems in the universe then it means that there are other possible platforms for life in the universe. Planets are about the only place in the universe that we think that life could exist in any form that we could imagine," he said in a telephone interview.

Lyne said he doubted life existed on the newly discovered planet because any living organisms would probably have been destroyed when the sun collapsed in massive nuclear explosion. In addition, its sun emits most of its energy in the form of deadly gamma ray radiation.

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on meeting times and days listed on the first line of the class entry in the up-to-date Schedule of Classes book which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule printout.

2. The class final exam period is the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the last regularly scheduled class period as listed in the Schedule of Classes.

3. Students who miss a final examination will receive a "F" for the course.

4. Students who fail to pass a final examination will receive a "F" for the course.

5. Students who must miss a final examination for special circumstances may make an arrangement with their instructor to take a make-up examination at a time mutually convenient for both the student and instructor. This procedure is acceptable only if the instructor so approves.

Three-day blood drive to boost summer level

By Cyndi Oberle

Staff Writer

Carbondale residents are called once again to give a bit of themselves for those in need.

The American Red Cross is sponsoring a three-day drive, and is using once more to fill its reserves. Currently they are still below the normal level, said Vivian Ugent, Southern Illinois blood drive coordinator.

The drive will have two stops in Carbondale. The first is today at the Carbondale K mart from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Friday at the Center for Comprehensive Services from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Ugent said donors at K mart will be eligible for a gift certificate, and donors at the Center for Comprehensive Services can have free cholesterol screening.

During the next three days, the Red Cross hopes to collect more than 100 pints. Ugent said, "We are still low, but in terms of our intake from the entire summer, we are doing incredibly well," Ugent said. "So far we have collected in between 600 and 700 pints and our goal is 1,000."

Today, Friday and Saturday, the drives will be at other locations throughout the area.

Today, the drive will be at the Williamstown County Airport, the Du Quoin State Fair, the Benton Wal-Mart and the Mount Vernon Wal-Mart.

Friday it will also be at the Murphyboro Wal-Mart, and Saturday it will be at the VF Factory Outlet Mall in West Franklin.

"We certainly hope everyone who has not previously given blood this summer will come," Ugent said, "We are looking forward to a good turn out."

In order to give blood, a person must be at least 18 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. Sixteen-year-olds must have a parental consent form in order to donate.

John Foster works in his Pulliam studio with two pieces he entered in a national competition in California.

By Annette Holder

Entertainment Editor

An SIUC graduate student in art took a whimsical look at faces to win purchase awards at a national exhibition.

John Foster, graduate student in ceramics from Florida, was one of 67 artists selected out of 459 entries from 38 states. Internationally known ceramic artist Rudy AUTO chose the exhibitors in this summer's exhibit in California.

The two teapots were purchased by two different corporations. The piece "Miracle Teapot 2" was purchased for $250 and "Faces Teapot P2" was purchased for $350.

Foster makes ceramic teapots and mugs that feature faces. The teapots may use the shape of a theater for a handle and hair for the top of the pot.

"Americans are raised with cartoons," Foster said. "My old memories influenced me, and these kinds of things are going to come out in my work."

In addition to non-functional ceramics, Foster also makes functional mugs that sell for $10.
Education working with less once again

NOW THE SCISSORS have been laid down and the air has settled, education appears to have emerged in the best possible position in a no-win battle from the Legislature’s budget-cutting flurry. But some unavoidable costs cast a dark cloud over the future of SIU’s basic programs.

The new budget allocation of $236.5 million for SIU falls short of the University’s 1991 state funding by $500,000. Making this money stretch as far as last year is impossible because inflation will have increased the price of these goods and services.

On top of having inadequate funding to meet old expenses the University faces new expenses that cannot be put off. The state did not appropriate as much money to SIU this year for social security and Medicare payments for employees. The state is also mandating the University meet hazardous waste standards, yet it is not giving funding to accomplish the cleanup. Operational costs for the new small business incubator must be met.

DRASTIC INTERNAL allocations will have to be made so SIU can meet these new needs. All of SIU’s academic divisions will be hurt by these intenal reallocations and their programs will suffer.

SIU and education have been working with the minimum amount of funding for too long. Education’s flexibility is sapped. Only so much stretching can be done to make shrinking amounts of money meet growing expenses. And just like a rubber band that has been stretched past its ability, something finally will snap. Students are the ones who will suffer.

Let’s get straight again. The DE already covered a story about two Yugoslavians being killed. Before this the DE covered a story about a mine disaster in Africa where a handful of men were killed. My complaint is that I feel big international stories are being ignored by the DE while smaller stories are prised.

MAKING this money stretch as far as last year is impossible because inflation has settled, education budget-cutting possible position in a no-win battle from the Legislature’s aid for social security and Medicare payments for employees. The state is also mandating the University meet hazardous waste standards, yet it is not giving funding to accomplish the cleanup. Operational costs for the new small business incubator must be met.

THE ONLY AREA WHERE education truly emerged a winner in the 1992 budget was the permanent status given to education’s portion of the income tax surcharge. The surcharge, which was introduced in 1989 as a two-year temporary tax, supplied higher education with $111.2 million and SIU with $7.8 million in 1991.

Thankfully, the Legislature did not play around with education by temporarily extending the surcharge for a couple more years. Education has become dependent on the funding the tax generates. Simply extending the surcharge would have left a dark cloud hanging over education’s future for the next two years.

As it stands SIU’s financial future does not look sunny. Many departments and programs will be forced to operate with less or close down. This will hurt students and the quality of education at SIU. Legislators showed they supported education by leaving its funding intact as much as possible. These efforts are appreciated, but they might not be enough to save the quality of education in Illinois.

Doonesbury

Letters

News worthiness: what's in a story?

A while back I wrote a letter criticizing the DE for not covering the news story of 10,000 children being shot by the Israeli army. Some people said that the DE should not be expected to cover international news stories and that I was wrong in suggesting that they need to be.

Let’s get straight again. The DE already covered a story about two Yugoslavians being killed. Before this the DE covered a story about a mine disaster in Africa where a handful of men were killed. My complaint is that I feel big international stories are being ignored by the DE while smaller stories are prised.

Let’s evaluate my message graphically so that even the DE staff can understand. If we take two dead Yugoslavians and place them in front of the doors of the Communications building (where the DE has its offices) they will make a small pile of flesh which would probably not block the DE editors from entering the door. If we pile a handful of dead miners in front of the doors it may block the doors, however, a person could use one of the other doors to enter the building.

If we piled 10,000 children shot by the savage Israeli army in front of the doors it would block every single door to the DE office and also prevent the DE editors from getting to their desks to take their maps.

The shooting of 10,000 children by the Israelis is the biggest news story I have heard in a very long while and I hope this explanation is finally simple enough to explain why it is a more important story than the nonsense that the DE usually prints.

Included in the story is the fact that the United States gives the Israeli government $11 million a day which they find helpful in fighting their war against children. If we pile 11 million dollar bills a day in front of the DE office doors the editors will soon be the richest editors taking maps at their desks in the entire country. With this wealth the DE would be able to afford decent teachers to explain to them the difference between an important news story and space filler. Obviously SIU has no teachers equal to the task—Wm. Scott Stromberg, graduate student, social work.

Wilderness standing hides resources

The recent letter from the Sierra Club that “wilderness” was too faulty ecologically to pass without comment. It is not true that the Camp Huichica, La Rue-Pine Hills or Bald Knob-Bear Springs areas are unsiutable. These fine areas are what they are because of logging, grazing and severe fires are burned. My complaint is that I feel big international stories are being ignored by the DE while smaller stories are prised.

The Wilderness stands exhibits resources that are unique in the United States. The 30,000 acres last year of additional “wilderness” are only one-fifth of the acreage now set aside in Southern Illinois in Forest Interior Management Units, Research Natural Areas, scenic areas, refugee and other special-use designations. Never before has so much land locally been given up to the federal government. With the areas preserved earlier now have ecological problems.

What kind of forests are most useful, beautiful and desirable? Wildlife, and many people, prefer the oak forests we now have and will surely lose if we turn them into preserves. Every scientific study of a preserved midwestern upland oak forest, for example the Kansaski Experimental Forest in Hardin County, Weaver Woods in Union County and Pioneer Mothers’ Memorial Forest in Southern Indiana, has shown that the oak component is needed. We need to kick the habit of continually setting aside more and more acres of Southern Illinois land for special interest groups and speculative purposes. W. Clark Ashby, plant biology professor and Paul L. Roth, forestry professor.

and submitted the figure in its budget request the result was no funding from the state, he said.

SUIC also must make Medicare payments to employees, but it was not provided adequate funds, he said. The University received $27,500 for the payments, but Shepard said the cost is projected at $65,000.

The newest building at SUIC receiving institutional support is the Small Business and Industry Development, which SUIC intends to build and develop it - $377,000 — must come from inside the University. Also, SUIC must cover a $500,000 Social Security payment shortfall, he said.

Shepherd said the overall situation could have been worse. "On one hand we have to be grateful to the legislators, they showed some support for higher education, but on the other hand it will definitely place a hardship on us," he said.

SUIC deans were informed of the budgets for their colleges and the need for internal reallocation Tuesday at a Dean's Council meeting with Guyon.

College of Communications and Fine Arts dean Gerald Stone said officials in the college were unable to retrieve the budget cuts didn't chop any deeper.

"While the people involved are not in a happy mood, all responded as if shipwrecked and in a lifeboat together," he said.

an accident occurring. Because of the lack of more specific data on the occurrence, the CDC has set questionable odds of contracting AIDS from an infected dentist between one in 263,158 and one in 2,631,589.

Houseworth said the contracting of AIDS by dentists is rare, though Ace's gloves may not hold up to proper sterilization, but there is no way to tell for sure.

The American Dental Association specifies that gloves may be eliminated when dentists practice standard safety procedures. These include protective gloves, masks, eyewear and steam-sterilizing equipment are a major part of the procedures.

DUDEs respond to budgets

By John Patterson and Eric Reyes

Deans of each college were informed of their 1992 budgets Wednesday, and they expressed mixed views on the SUIC economic situation.

John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said the cuts were inevitable, but overall higher education came out of the 1991 legislative session faring better than most state agencies.

"The budget was manageable in the past fiscal year. Now it is on the verge of being very difficult," Jackson said. "I don't know what the long-term effects are. I hope the cuts are detrimental."

Jill Adams, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, said a tight budget will be something new to the college and will have a damaging effect on faculty research.

"Faculty will have to work much harder to get grants to replace whatever we lose," she said.

Chen said his staff had been working on temporary budgets for the college, but during the cuts had received opinions from Gerald Stone, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said he heard different figures on the size of the reduction, and the real figure ended up being the highest mentioned.

"All commitments are on hold," (Vis President for Academic Affairs Benjamin) Shepard said all previous promises are of," Stone said. Other deans said in a time when SUIC wants to expand, the budget does very little to aid that cause.

Dean of the College of Education Donald Logsdon said all flexibility for staffing and section opening is lost.

"We're literally looking at everything that isn't committed," he said. "Everything else is subject to reduction. But in the future beyond we'll have to take a look at those programs that we've already committed to this year."

"There are cuts are permanent reductions. This is the first time we've had to deal with permanent reductions," he said. Russell Dutcher, dean of the College of Science, said the cuts are a drastic blow to science because the equipment budget is affected.

He also said the problem immediately will affect positions.

"Our budget before was permanent and we'll have to work with permanent reductions," he said.

"It's just not a very happy time," Dutcher said.

Musical mystery finished by audience

By Allan Towell
Staff Writer

Rupert Holmes’ “Drood,” a musical adaptation of an unfinished Dick en novel, will be coming to town tonight through Sunday at McLeod Theater.

“Drood,” directed by Alex Chestropoulos, professor in the theater arts and choreographed by Joan D. Briggs, is a play within a play. McLeod Theater contains the “Music Hall Royale,” where the Royale’s players are performing “The Mystery of Edwin Drood.”

This lends an extra comedic element to the show, because the actors in the cast slip in and out of their “Drood” roles to play their “Hall Royale” characters throughout the play-within-a-play. Characters often break out of their Drood characters to squabble over who is passable, but none of the show’s characters are particularly memorable. Some of the songs were sung so fast and contrived so many lyrics that from the audience it was often hard to determine what the characters were singing.

Despite the show’s weaknesses, the Summer Playhouse cast is to be commended. “Drood” is carried off with the same vigor and enthusiasm that has marked this year’s entire Summer Playhouse series.

The department of theater and the School of Music assembled an excellent cast this summer and they have done a very good job with each of the shows.

Before the show begins, the actors mingle among the audience, introducing their characters and lobbying for votes when it comes time to choose the murderer.

Different cast members also come out into the audience occasionally during the show. This adds to the fun and contributes to the old British music hall atmosphere that the show tries to create.

This is a good show. To see if you enjoy big, silly musical numbers and vaudeville-style one-liners. Only for these elements there is not much left to show.

The show’s plot, the “mystery” of Edwin Drood, is a disappointment, is entirely secondary to the song and dance numbers and actors’ stopping them for applause.

The McLeod cast and production staff does a very good job and their performance will not disappoint audiences, although parts of the show are predictable.

McLeod Theater performances times are at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. Ticket information is available from the McLeod Theater Box Office, or by calling 453-3001.

University offers unique special library collection

By Christian Baxter
Staff Writer

SIUC’s Morris Library Special Collections features unique research materials for students needing in-depth information. Special Collections contains rare books, manuscripts, and archives, said curator David Koch.

“In the areas that we specialize in, we’re very well-known,” he said.

A manuscript is an author’s draft of a book, not published or letter from an author.

Archives are records of historical, legal, or monetary value. Theses and dissertations produced at SIUC are also part of Special Collections.

The department features 19th and 20th century research material. Other libraries specialize in different sorts of collections.

For example, University of Illinois has a good Renaissance collection, so SIUC doesn’t try to compete with that, Koch said.

“We’ve tried to avoid duplication of other resource libraries near us, such as Urbana, University of Indiana and Washington University in St. Louis,” he said.

Special Collections focuses on several famous authors, such as James Baldwin and Robert Cooper. Books and manuscripts of these authors are available.

A collection of correspondence and books from American and British ex-patriates also is available. Ex-patriates are people who left their homeland for freedom or because they didn’t like what was happening politically in their country, Koch said.

Modern American philosophy is another feature of Special Collections. The papers and library of John Dewey, the archives of the Open Court Press, which is a U.S. philosophical publishing company, and the Library of Living Philosophers are included in this section of the department. The Library of Living Philosophers is a ready source of material critiques about modern philosophers. The philosophers’ comments about what was written on them are also included.

Special collections also has a 12,000 volume collection on First Amendment freedoms.

Modern theater is another section in Special Collections. Plays, contemporary manuscripts, correspondence and set designs are available in this area.

Special collections tries to keep very in-depth collections of the authors they collect, Koch said.

Their students change over time because of rewrites, censorship and publishers cutting material out for financial gain.

Copies of every printing and edition made of the works of the authors carried by the department are necessary for accurate transcriptions of text, Koch said.

“If you read something, you know that you’re reading the right thing,” he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said Wednesday he will pursue strict conditions on preferential trade status for China despite a narrow victory that appeared to make a veto insurmountable.

The Senate approved S-44 granting an extension of MFN - short for most-favored-nation trading status - to China but faced it with conditions Tuesday.

However, the margin is 12 short of the two-thirds needed to override a veto, a feat that Congress has failed to achieve since President Bush took office.

Mitchell said the nation's "unique" system gives the president the veto power and allows losers to claim victory and winners to be accused of losing.

But the Maine Democrat also said: "The most significant message is that after Frank and open debate, Congress has decisively repudiated the president's China policy.

He said an overwhelming majority in the House and a clear majority in the Senate "rejected the president's policy on China."

The House passed the MFN extension several weeks ago by a 313-112 margin, but the legislation contains conditions not as restrictive as those in the Senate. The differences will have to be reconciled by House and Senate negotiators before a bill is sent to the White House. Bush seemed to have narrowed the defeat by vowing days before the vote to push the trade pact and push for Taiwan membership to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, an international economic organization.

The Senate measure requires China to meet an extraordinary set of conditions to qualify for continued most-favored-nation trade status, commonly referred to as MFN, in July 1992. In a last-minute move, lawmakers softened language on missile and weapons transfers to China.

The Senate exempted Pakistan, which has received missile launchers from China, and extended until 1992 the deadline for determining whether such sales have been made to Syria and Iran.

Hearing: Poor nations fed weapons, not food

WASHINGTON (UPI) - U.S. aid programs to reduce world hunger came under sharp attack Wednesday at a congressional hearing.

Members of the House Select Committee on Hunger and representatives of relief organizations questioned why the Bush administration is giving Third World countries only $1.3 billion in food assistance, but $7.9 billion in military and other security assistance.

"It's true that we provide more (food assistance) than anyone else," said the committee's chairman, Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, "but it's also true that we have these enormous surpluses of grain. It's also true that we have millions of people who are at risk, and that we spend $7.9 billion dollars on security assistance."

John Swenson, deputy director of Catholic Relief Services, told the committee that he has noticed "a tendency to deprecate activities that are considered purely humanitarian or charitable" when dealing with officials in the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID).

But John Hicks, acting assistant administrator for AID's Office of Food for Peace, told the panel, "I think that we are quite responsive to global needs."

In an attempt to help an estimated 1 billion malnourished people around the globe, countries annually contribute about 12 million metric tons of food to Third World nations.

Health officials project little national insurance

NEW YORK (UPI) - Health care professionals do not expect implementation of a national health insurance program in the United States in the next five years but do foresee doctors and hospitals scrambling in competition for scarce reimbursement funds, according to a survey released Wednesday.

The study - third in a series by Arthur Anderson and the Chicago-based American College of Healthcare Executives - surveyed doctors, hospital executives, hospital financial officials and both government and private buyers of healthcare services.

It asked what changes members of those groups expect in the healthcare delivery during the next five years.

"Universal health insurance is often discussed as a remedy for the nation's healthcare woes," said Dr. Stuart Wesbury Jr., president of ACHIE and co-chairman of the study.

"Although interest in universal health insurance has grown ... the majority of our panelists say universal insurance will not exist by the mid-1990s."

Healthcare buyers are especially pessimistic about the establishment of a universal health insurance system. Only 17 percent of those respondents see a national healthcare insurance system in the next five years.

However, all four groups surveyed said they anticipate proposed changes in the Medicare reimbursement system will be put into effect and also will be adopted by private payors within the next five years.

Those changes would base payments for medical care on a fee schedule that considers total resources consumed by physicians to deliver service.

Senate lock over Gates CIA move

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Bush accused some members of the Senate of chasing "phantoms" and "shadows" Wednesday in delaying action on the nomination of Robert Gates to become director of central intelligence.

"Every question should be looked into," Bush told reporters at the start of a meeting with Republican congressional leaders. "But what you shouldn't do is have a gay guilty until proved innocent in this country. It's just backwards."

The Bush of anger came as Bush vented impatience at Senate delays in acting not only on the Gates nomination, but that of Clarence Thomas to serve on the Supreme Court.

Vowing to stand by Gates, who now serves as his deputy national security adviser, Bush said, "There's a system of fair play in this country and I think it should apply to both nominees, frankly."

"I'm not worried about them," he said, "but I wish the system had been able to take care of both those nominees, whoever they are.

The Senate Intelligence Committee has postponed hearings on the Gates nomination until mid-September to explore allegations and doubts about the Iran-Contra scandal.

Three women charge Smith charmed, then attacked them

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Three women who claim William Smith charmed them in 1983 and 1988 said he lured them into his home with his charm and manner and then turned violent once they were alone, according to police.

One of the women said she was raped. The others said they were sexually assaulted.

Descriptions of the attacks often paralleled a story of a 29-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman who claims the 30-year-old married man lured her to Kennedy Palm Beach estate March 30. Smith is charged in that attack with sexual battery — Florida's rape statute — and battery.

If last February, the last woman who denied any wrongdoing, would face a maximum penalty of 15 years for rape.

According to transcripts of interviews with prosecutors, two of the three women are from a suburban neighborhood in Smith's home in the Georgetown district of West Palm Beach, FL, while a third occurred at a family home in New York City.

Each of the women said they did not go to police because of Kennedy family influence. Smith denied any wrong doing.

One of the women said she was dating Smith's cousin, Matthew Kennedy, at the time of the attack. The woman claimed Kennedy played down the incident when she told him about it, but called within a week the Palm Beach incident to apologize.

"He said, 'Sounds like Willie has a really big problem. He needs some help,'" the woman told prosecutors.

Kennedy then added, "You know, there's another girl, Willie attacked." Kennedy, 26, a University of Virginia law student, bought the same homegrown honeymoon after his July 17 wedding.

Smith's lead attorney, Roy Black of Miami, has asked the prosecution to order on the allegations because of a gag order placed on all parties in the cases by Palm Beach County Judge Mary Lupo.

The new allegations were made public when prosecutor Moira Lach filed notice to the three women and six others as witnesses in the trial, scheduled to start Aug. 3 in West Palm Beach.

In a June 13 statement in Newark, N.J., the woman who claimed Smith raped her said she met him at a party in the spring of 1988. She said a medical student, who was engaged, took her to her two-story "cottage" nearby, where he was alone. She then pinned her down and raped her.

"I couldn't do anything," she said. "I did want him to get off of me, but I was powerless to do anything about it."

The woman said she passed out and later woke with Smith trying to fondle her in her sleep. She stayed overnight and had breakfast with Smith the next morning.

The woman described Smith as "terrific" and "almost animal-like," but said she never pressed charges on the advice of a lawyer.

Deputy's wife allegedly performed sex favors

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A deputy's arrest was announced late yesterday for allegedly having his wife perform sexual favors for customers solicited through a 900 telephone number, a sheriff's spokesman said Wednesday.

The Broward County sheriff's Deputy Jeffrey Willets, 40, was arrested Tuesday night, after detectives staked him out at his home. Evidence indicated Willets had been engaged in an act of prostitution with a client when the officers arrived with a court-issued warrant, a sheriff's spokesman George Collier.

"Kathy Willets advertised a frequent customer over the 900 number with a 900 series number. Customers when calling this number were directed to write their age and contact information to a post office box in Immokalee," he said after directing her activities. He had all the records. He kept the money.

Collier, who said he did not know where the personal ad appeared, said the couple made about $3,000 a month in six months they were in operation based on a standard $125 per customer. He said a former customer tipped police to the scheme.

Willets was charged with one count of deriving support from the proceeds of prostitution, a third-degree felony punishable by a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine. He was released on $1,000 bond immediately after his arrest.

South African women busted in prostitution, heroin ring

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police have cracked a sex and drug ring in which more than South Africa 300 prostitutes plied their trade at Taipei nightclubs and returned to South Africa with drugs including heroin, published reports said Wednesday.

The women had been recruited by a South African businessman at a Johannesburg nightclub since 1985 and flown to Taiwan where they worked at the city's notorious Centurion Nightclub. They were attacked at the complex's night club and Lucky Star Piano Barn, South African newspapers reported.

Capt. Peter Meyer of the South African Narcotics Bureau said his squad had uncovered the vice export ring and an investigation of the flow of drugs from the Far East into South Africa.

The girls were put under the control of the prostitution ring after arrival in Taiwan and closely watched as they traveled between the hotels, freelancing outside the ring.

The men looked after the girls and took the money off the customers, Meyer said.

Report of bleeding cross draws hundreds

HILLSIDE (UPI) — With hundreds of people in attendance, Queen of Heaven Cemetery and claiming to see a bleeding cross, group of believers said Saturday, whether they fear vandalism and other problems.

The crowds at the suburban Chicago cemetery have been growing, mainly because of the reports circulating that an 81-year-old retired railroad worker claims he has seen a cross bleeding blood after making a pilgrimage to Medjugorje, Yugoslavia, where he was once directed to the cemetery spot.

Joe Rentwisch of Westchester said the "miracle" occurred five years ago, but he is spreading word of it. He said he saw a vision of the Virgin Mary at the Holy Cross cemetery and has collected pictures he said show the cross bleeding and changing colors.

Cemetery owner Henry Polonsky Vellend said the faithful have been gathering to look at a crucifix in the military section.

Some say they have seen the cross bleed and others say their rosaries turned to gold after they prayed at the site.

"We do see a quiet cemetery," Vellend said. She said cemetery administrators are worried about curiosity seekers and large, unruly crowds blocking access to the grounds. She said none of the cemetery's employees has reported seeing any bleeding or any cross, either.

This cemetery report follows numerous accounts in the past few years of weeping religious art, the bleeding of crucifix icons in Chicago-area churches.

Reinholtz was among thousands who have visited Medjugorje since 1981, when six children reported seeing apparitions of the Virgin Mary on a hilltop. Many of the faithful who visited Queen of Heaven said they also have been to Medjugorje.

TV program wants copy of sex video

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The neighbor who videotaped a couple having sex in their front yard said the couple wants to release a copy to several national television shows who have requested it.

Meanwhile, a friend of the woman said she had written a song about the incident.

Chicago rookie gets another chance

PlATTEVILLE, Wis. (UP) Chicago Bears rookie running back Darren Lewis feels he looks like a winner, although he came close to being the biggest loser in the 1991 NFL draft.

He had been rated among the best running backs in the draft but slipped until the Bears selected him in the fourth round, 104th overall, out of East Tennessee State.

"I had my doubts," Lewis was quoted as saying by the Chicago Tribune. "I'm a football player, and I'm a winner," the 5-foot-10, 219-pound Lewis said after a morning session of two-a-day practice. "And I'm going to do whatever it takes to win.

Lewis comes back from drug treatment

But a day after the draft, it became clear Lewis had lost another two weeks. He had been the only player at the NFL scouting combine in Indianapolis to test positive for drugs.

Chicago vice president of player personnel Bill Tobin said the team would not have drafted him had they known.

"When you work so hard, try to get somewhere, a place you've been dreaming about since you were 9-year-olds — playing in the NFL — just to watch it going down the drain, that was one of the hardest things you can go through," Lewis said.

Actually, the NFL had sent a letter to each team warning of the drug tests results before the draft. An administrative official said the Bears thinking it was another player and not Lewis.

After an internal meeting, the Bears announced Lewis had admitted himself to a drug rehabilitation center and would be able to report to camp if he did clean drugs.

"I feel like football is played, I'm a football player, I'm a winner," the 5-foot-10, 219-pound Lewis said after a morning session of two-a-day practice. "And I'm going to do whatever it takes to win.

American players advance into tennis cup quarterfinals

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — Jennifer Capriati returned to the Federation Cup competition when she won singles and doubles matches Wednesday, lifting the United States to a 3-0 sweep of Argentina and into the quarterfinals.

In the singles, 15-year-old Capriati defeated 16-year-old Magdalena Maleeva, 7-5, 6-2. Maria Fernandez beat Katerina Maleeva, 6-2, 6-1. Capriati then teamed with Gigi Fernandez to defeat Ana and Carolina Gutierrez, 6-2, 6-1, over the Maleeva sisters.

The United States, however, a winner of the last two Federation Cup titles, will be in second place in the team standings behind Spain.

The United States plays Austria Thursday in the Federation Cup quarterfinals. World champion Steffi Graf suffered a recurrence of an old shoulder injury but still helped lead third seed Germany to a 2-1 victory over Canada.

Peecham Claveroiy, 32, won the stage in seven hours, 26 minutes and 47 seconds on the second and last long leg of the race. Countryman Thierry Bourguignon, 26, won the second, six seconds behind, followed by Claudio Chiappucci of Italy 30 seconds behind the leader.

Claymore took the lead at the summit of Joux-Plane, the last difficult climb of the day. Lemond arrived more than seven minutes behind, apparently dashing his chances of retaining his title. He began the stage in fifth with an outside chance of victory. Armstrong and Dalsw left Wednesday as American Andrew Hampsten. He moved from seventh to eighth. Hampsten lost 18 seconds to Indurain, however, and now trails the overall winner.

Indurain maintained his 3:09 lead over Italian Gianluigi Guelfi.

Track invitation: Chi says run with it

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — The head of the International Amateur Athletics Federation said Wednesday that it is in recognition of the merits of the SIUC athletic programs.

This is the first year the school received a distribution from the NCAA.

The state of the distribution, some programs had to endure cuts. Football received the biggest cut at $49,000, but Hart said that was due largely to the decrease in the number of%( sponsoring their teams.

"Last year we had two charted trips to South Carolina and Central Italy. Two days before the Aug. 24 Start of Championships. Under the NCAA quota system, South Africa is entitled to send 25 athletes and five officials to the World Championships, whose costs will be picked up by the organizing body.

Some senior sports officials in South Africa, including Sam Ransmay, the long-time anti-apartheid spokesman and president of the United National Olympic Committee of South Africa, have said it is too soon for the Republic to return to major international sporting events.

Nebiolo brushed aside any such doubts.

"Athletics has made the best efforts to change the situation in South Africa, so South African sports can go outside and compete," he said. "We think after 26 years of isolation, this isolation must stop."

BUDGET, from Page12

The rest of the Athletic Department's budget, however, exceeded the limit.

Even with the 6 percent cut applied to all University departments and the Athletic Department's overall budget for fiscal year 1992 is $3,801,873.

There are less than 2 percent lower than the about for the 1991 budget.

"We aren't going to pull something that I know is wrong but something they have no control over," Hart said.

"If I don't want the athletes to be walking on eggshells worrying about their injuries," Hart said.

Baseball, men's basketball, women's basketball, men's golf and women's golf, men's tennis and women's tennis and volleyball received increases in their program budgets.

"I think we are very fortunate that our program is not hurt by the budget cuts," Hart said.

"We're in good shape and proud of it," he said.

would have to be done to see if the December surgery was related to the limiting of the contact practices.

"The number of days of contact has been cut down to 10 instead of 15," Dick said.

"We don't know if this is the reason for the decline in injuries, because most coaches will go ahead and cram 15 days of contact into the 10," he said.

Head Saluki football coach Bob Smith said practices have to be slowed down.

"We practice at that tempo," Smith said. "We run a fast pace with a fast whistle to stop fast.

"If you didn't control your practices you would never make it to Saturday," Smith said.

Smith said, having his players stay at physical shape round is the team's injury insurance.

E. Thompson, head athletic trainer, said Smith's practices produce small numbers of serious injuries. He said his preventive practices of ex-coach football coach Dar Rod.

Bob Smith, assistant athletic trainer said the number of injuries which occur in practices are greater because the players are not as bad as a game.

Smith said the injuries in games are more severe because of the intensity level at which the players are playing.

"I think we are very fortunate that our program is not hurt by the budget cuts," Hart said.

"We're in good shape and proud of it," he said.
