Board offers Allen previous contract

By Rich Davis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

ALTON — The SIU Board of Trustees Friday voted 5-1 to approve a recommendation by Chancellor Robert G. Layer to offer Douglas M. Allen the contract, with a conditional clause, originally offered to him by Layer.

The Board's action in effect rescinded a vote at its Oct. 16 meeting to delete the conditional clause which would have given Allen an assistant professorship and continuing status with the University upon completion of a Ph.D.

Layer told the Board that Allen, a vocal critic of the Center for Vietnamese Studies, had not accepted the modified contract offered by the Board.

The Board also passed a resolution by Board member Ivan A. Elliott, Jr. of Carmi not to grant Allen tenure with the University at the present time.

The Board had said Allen would automatically have been eligible for tenure in December.

The Board discussed Allen's case at some length.

Board member Martin Van Brown said that during an executive session of the Board Thursday evening "some members recognized that they could not legally rescind the Board's October action. They decided on a course of action that I opposed," he said, "and I stated that I would speak out in open session against modifying the action of the Oct. 16 meeting."

Brown said every member of the Board "spoke out against Allen" at the executive session. "Today they're ready to vote on something that they didn't talk about in executive session. I wish to stand up and be counted."

Brown said the Board's action Friday was a mistake and that he "regretted my colleagues don't realize the consequences of this action."

Elliott disagreed with

Brown, saying all facets of the Allen case had been discussed at the executive session.

Elliott said the Board's October action had not followed the correct procedure since Allen had already taught classes for a month.

"The timing of the action was wrong," he said. Elliott said there should be a grievance procedure in cases like Allen's.

Board's contract satisfies Allen

By Paula Musto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Douglas M. Allen, philosophy instructor, said he was "quite satisfied" with the SIU Board of Trustees decision Friday to rescind its action of last month and approve his contract with a conditional clause.

In its October meeting the Board voted to delete the conditional clause which would have given Allen an assistant professorship and continuing status upon completion of a Ph.D.

Allen said Friday's action will "reinstates my original contract." He had accepted this contract when offered to him by Chancellor Robert G. Layer in September.

Allen said he was not concerned with the resolution the Board passed instructing Chancellor Layer to notify Allen that academic tenure will not be automatically granted to him.

"It was inapplicable because I was not up for tenure in the first place," he said.

Allen said the important thing about the Board's decision, was the "implications that extend beyond my own case."

"Several younger faculty members came to me and said they were intimidated by the Board's action last month. They feared criticizing the University in any way would be a real threat to their jobs," he said.

Allen has been an outspoken critic of the Center for Vietnamese Studies. After the October board meeting Lindell W. Sturgis, member of the board, said that Allen's criticism of the University justified the Board's decision to delete the conditional clause.

"I am happy things were settled in a rational way," said Allen, who planned to bring suit against the Board if they upheld their October decision.

Allen said he believed the great amount of support among the students, the philosophy department and the Chancellor were responsible for the Board's action Friday.

Rendleman joins critics of proposed tuition hike

By Rich Davis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

ALTON—Edwardsville Chancellor John S. Rendleman Friday joined the opposition to a proposed increase in tuition at Illinois Universities.

The proposal by the Tuition and Financial Aids Study Committee of the Illinois State Board of Higher Education would increase tuition at SIU by 43 per cent for Illinois residents. Tuition is already scheduled to increase $50, from $67 to $117, for resident students winter quarter.

Rendleman, speaking at Friday's SIU Board of Trustees meeting said the increase would require students to pay a major portion of the costs of education and that this was contrary to principles of higher education.

Carbondale Chancellor Robert G. Layer endorsed Rendleman's position.

Rendleman said the increase would require students to pay one-third the cost of their education.

In a four-page statement, he said this would be a "drastic, radical step away from the meaning of free public education on any level of reasonable interpretation."

He said there would be a thorough scrutiny of the Edwardsville budget to try to defer an increase should it be approved at the December meeting of the Higher Board.

Other SIU Board members said they disapproved of an increase, but the Board did not formally oppose it.

Melvin Lockard, the SIU Board's representative on the State Board, said, however, he might oppose the increase at the December meeting of the Grand jury plans investigation of anti-Nixon demonstration

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The Santa Clara County grand jury, saying it had evidence "indicating that felonies were committed," plans to launch an investigation of the violent demonstration during President Nixon's visit Oct. 29. It also criticized authorities responsible for crowd control.

The grand jury made the comments in announcing a full-scale probe of the rock and egg throwing as Nixon, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. George Murphy left the pre-election rally in Municipal Auditorium.

Planning of security for the rally has been a controversial issue between the Secret Service and local police.

"Evidence presented indicates that felonies were committed the night of the Nixon rally," said the grand jury foreman, Ernest Renzel.

His statement, issued Thursday night, did not mention reports that a shot was heard during the demonstration or that a man was seen with a weapon.

"It is also the opinion of the jury that better planning and foresight on the part of responsible authorities could have avoided the bulk of property damage and that more manpower could have resulted in better crowd control," Renzel said.

Police Chief Ray Blackmore said after the rally lack of manpower forced him to withdraw his men from a line around the entire block housing the auditorium, where Nixon spoke, to a small area immediately around the building.

The withdrawal allowed an angry crowd estimated at up to 3,000 to swarm through the auditorium parking lot to within a few yards of the door by which Nixon moved to his motorcade.

Several cars in the motorcade were damaged by rocks and 50 to 100 cars in the lot were damaged by demonstrators standing on their roofs.

"When these presidential visits come up, the Secret Service tells you local police what they want from you, and anything else you want to do is up to you," Blackmore said.

Board rescinds decision on Allen contract

He said that in such cases one has to go through an orderly procedure and the timing and the rights of the individual involved are matters to be considered.

William Allen, new Board member from Normal, said the Board was "anxious to set a code of conduct" for faculty.

Accidental damage threatens parking

Eldon Gosnell, a representative of the Community Conservation Board, has requested SIU students, faculty and staff to not park cars in the areas north of Mill Street, between University Avenue and Forest Street, where demolition work is being done.

Gosnell said the demolition work is part of the College Neighborhood Urban Renewal Project conducted by the CCB and there is a possibility that cars parked near the work could be accidentally damaged.

He said the project was begun in March, 1969, and has a 42-month schedule.

Along these same lines, the Board approved a resolution by Elliott based on recommendations made by the Carbondale Faculty Council.

Craftsmen exhibit jewel, metal items

An exhibit of some of the country's foremost metal-smiths and jewelers will begin at an open reception from 3-5 p.m. Sunday.

The display is entitled "Goldsmith '70" and will be in Mitchell Gallery in the Home Economics Building until Dec. 11.

U.S. monetary system established since 1785

In 1785 the United States Congress directed under the Articles of Confederation that the United States monetary system be based on a dollar "of the value of the Spanish milled dollar, as the same is now current." The government did not begin minting dollars until 1795 however.

The resolution said that the Council should review term appointments and contingency clauses; that the Council should immediately formulate a statement policy on professional ethics and responsibilities for faculty; and that the Council should create a Faculty Judicial Review Board, which would make recommendations to the chancellor on matters of professional conduct.

the Edwardsville University Senate, said the resolution should not apply to the Edwardsville campus.

He said plans are already being formulated to present a standard of behavior for Edwardsville faculty to be forwarded to Chancellor John S. Rendleman and that a professional review board for faculty is also planned.

Allen commended the Edwardsville faculty but said he would like to see a uniform standard for both campuses.

Rendleman opposes tuition hike

State Board when a decision on proposed tuition increases will be made.

Board member Ivan A. Elliott Jr., of Carmi said no one on the Board is in favor of higher tuition but "it may be like fighting the tide."

The Board also approved tentative plans for a $29 million School of Dental Medicine for the Edwardsville campus.

Temporary facilities for the school are scheduled to open at the Alton Center in the fall of 1971, depending on approval of $1.5 million for the current fiscal year for renovation by the State Board.

Fall of 1973 is the entry date for the first class at the permanent school at Edwardsville.

Rendleman said a capital outlay of $10 million by the state will be necessary for the University to obtain $18 million in federal funds to complete financing of the dental school.

He said before SIU can be eligible for the funds, a commitment must be made by the state.

The Board's approval of the tentative plans makes it possible for other state agencies, such as the State Board, to endorse the plan, thus strengthening the possibility of getting the funds.

Requirements for a $20 million application fee, $200 advance deposit fee for accepted applicants of the dental school and $100 fee for instrument rental were accepted by the Board, with the stipulation that the fee structure could be modified later.

The Board approved a 17 percent increase effective Jan. 1 in the rental rate at Evergreen Terrace.

SIU Treasurer Robert Gallegly said rises in operating costs made the increase necessary. He indicated still another increase may be requested as soon as the Federal Housing Authority (FHA), will permit.

Police 'bird cage' not totally practical

By Ron Gauthier
Student Writer

SIU's "bird cage" just does not seem to have it.

Its inventors and designers shake their heads and chuckle about it and, believe it or not, even SIU birds avoid it.

The "bird cage" isn't really a bird cage, it just looks like one.

Confusing? Well, it isn't once you understand that SIU's "bird cage" is the brainchild of the SIU Security Police, a child conceived in violent times.

The "bird cage" is a large contraption of steel pipes and fencing designed to keep mobs from damaging police cars. The sturdy skeleton protects the entire exterior of the car from just about anything but bullets.

Virgil Trummer, assistant SIU security officer, gives this account of the bird cage's origin:

"During the riots last spring, SIU and Carbondale police suffered several hundred dollars damage to police cars. Many windshields and windows were broken and many cars were badly dented and scraped.

"What we needed was something that would protect our cars in future similar confrontations. We consulted the University architects and they drew up a blueprint. We acquired the needed materials and sent them, along with blueprint, to Menard State Prison where inmates constructed the protective device. When the finished product came back we realized it just wasn't what we were hoping for."

The SIU police immediately began calling the contraption "bird cage." One policeman said, "I still think it looks like a cage for a 200-pound canary."

The bird cage is 18 and 1/2 feet long, eight feet wide and five and 1/2 feet tall. The framework consists of more than 70 steel pipes welded together and covered with strong wire screen.

Jim Briggs, an SIU sophomore who works at the Little Grassy maintenance shop, described the process of mounting the bird cage to an SIU police car as "a three-hour ordeal."

"First," Briggs said, "we have to attach special brackets to the car. Then the 1000 pound cage is lifted up and the car is backed under it. Next we lower the cage and begin attaching eight steel braces to the frame and the brackets on the car frame."

Once attached the bird cage gives six to eight inches of clearance on all portions of the car. The bird cage includes door, hood and trunk gates that swing open.

"I guess it works," said Briggs. "You can jump up and down on it and never touch the police car, and bricks and rocks just bounce off. However, the cage is only six inches off the ground when mounted on the car. I wouldn't want to drive it down a bumpy gravel road!"

Will police ever use the bird cage?

"Probably not," says Trummer. "Naturally we hope we never encounter a situation where it will be needed. We probably would use it only if we had to push through a large crowd to reach someone who is injured or trapped."

"Another thing to consider," Trummer added, "is that similar equipment to protect police cars is now being designed and manufactured. These professional devices are much easier to attach and are not so cumbersome as our bird cage. But it might come in handy some day, so we're keeping it."

The bird cage is kept only a few feet from the SIU Animal Farm. Every day, chickens, ducks and even peacocks leave their pens and strut past and around it, but never on it or in it.

"The bird cage is like an Edsel," offered one employee at Little Grassy. "Nobody wants to own it. However, spare parts shouldn't be too hard to find."

Sacks criticizes foreign policy

1. Milton Sacks, a visiting professor of government, told members of the SIU International Relations Club Wednesday that the Nixon administration has failed to make its foreign policy clear to the American people.

Sacks said the administration's "doubletalk" has led to misunderstanding among Americans.

Sacks criticized Nixon's decision to send American troops into Cambodia in May. He said the South Vietnamese soldiers alone would have Fowl-up at mint works, geese eat up profits

Until recently, mint farmers in Oregon and Washington, the country's biggest growers of the fragrant herb, relied on flocks of geese to keep fields free of weeds. However, new generations of geese were constantly needed because after a couple of seasons veteran geese learned to tolerate, even enjoy, the concentrated taste of the mint plant. And if left in the fields their usual meals of weeds became mint flavored.

The South Vietnamese army is "far better than our perception of it in this country," said Sacks whose most recent visit to Southeast Asia was in August.

Sacks said he foresees continued Vietnamization by the United States in the future. He also predicted that the Southeast Asian countries will work as a region to neutralize their own problems.

Recital features Spanish organ

A recital of Spanish organ music will be offered at 3 p.m. Sunday in the First United Methodist Church in Carbondale.

Clement F. Heverly, instructor of Portuguese and Spanish at SIU and organist and choir director at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Carbondale, will play a selection of compositions written during the past four centuries.

The public is invited to attend the concert, which is sponsored by the Keith Pierce Music Studio of Carbondale.

Sack's speech was interrupted by a girl who carried a poster which read "SIU's Viet Studies Center Still Smells Fish(ely)" to the front of the room.

The poster referred to Wesley R. Fishel, who had Sacks' position as a visiting professor last year. While at SIU Fishel was criticized by opponents of the Center for Vietnamese Studies for his connection with the late Ngo Dinh Diem.

Sculpture in steel

"Running Hybrids," a sculpture of welded steel created by Richard Hunt, a Chicago artist, has been purchased by SIU for its permanent art collection. According to Evert Johnson, curator of University Galleries, the piece was commissioned by the University for $2,500 after Hunt's exhibition here last winter.

The Hunt sculpture is on display in the main corridor of Morris Library.

Although his technique is concerned mainly with welding and forging, the artist creates abstract pieces from the natural environment, such as trees, plants and animals, and interprets in steel, copper and aluminum.

Workshop's aim to promote police community relations

By David L. Mahan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"We're not trying to get people to like the police, but get them to understand what's happening."

Jesse Pauksta, of the Illinois' Human Relations Commission said this understanding is one of the aims of a "high-intensity workshop" this weekend in Vandallia with five Carbondale police officers are representatives of the Carbondale community. Miss Pauksta said the workshop is also to educate the police on the problems and frustrations of the community.

Mike Blackburn, also of the Commission, said the workshop will try to create better police-community relations. Blackburn said that community residents are involved in what is primarily police training, because "such training is not valid without the people the police serve." He explained that 90 per cent of police work is in noncriminal activities.

Miss Pauksta said the session is being held in Vandallia to avoid any distractions. She said the session will be conducted by two clinical psychologists and will consist of some sensitivity concepts, although this is not "a pure sensitivity session."

Those participating will also hear lectures on the art of communication, which Miss Pauksta said is the art "of how to listen." Lessons will also be taught on the civil rights struggle and the frustrations of being a police officer in 1970, Miss Pauksta said.

The result will be a list of priorities as seen by the residents and police. This list will be recorded and brought back in an information session for city officials, Miss Pauksta said.

Carbondale Mayor David Keene, City Manager William Schmidt and Carbondale Police Lt. Clarence Johnson, who is acting police chief in the absence of Acting Chief Don Johnson, have been "extremely cooperative," Blackburn said. "They want a total 'go' situation," he said. He said the police are taking the first step, and they (the police) want the community to level with them.

"We're trying to find the reasons for different hate reactions. Then we can see if a meaningful agreement can be reached in Carbondale. If not, there will be a situation like in Cairo," Blackburn said.

"The SIU Campus Police need the same training immediately," Blackburn said. He said the SIU Security Police have been approached to participate in a high-intensity workshop, but the offer was refused. The rationale behind this, Blackburn said, is that the Security Police already have a program in police-community relations.

"But it is obvious that something is wrong," he said.

Thomas Leffler, SIU security officer, said Thursday that he had never been approached with such an offer.

"I don't know who they asked, but they never talked to me," Leffler said. "I've never talked to anyone from that department (the Commission).

"We're always interested in public and community relations. It is true that we have our own program, but we would be happy to participate in any other program. We don't claim to be experts in the field," Leffler said.

Man handcuffs 2, holds 3 and flees

LISBON, Ohio (AP)—A heavily armed prison parolee who handcuffed two policemen to a church sink, then took three persons hostage and fled, was sought Friday by state and local authorities over a wide area of northeast Ohio.
 A man identified by police officials as prison parolee James Edward Kelly, 42, Cleveland, was last seen with the two women and a man hostage on a state highway north of Carrollton.
 Kelly earlier took two enforcement officers hostage, handcuffed them to a sink in a church and fled. Officers said he was armed with a .45 caliber pistol and two revolvers taken from the officers.

What was supposed to be a lecture on linguistics turned into a battle over the integrity of the Center for Vietnamese Studies when several students verbally attacked the Center Thursday during a lecture by Dale I. Purtle, a linguist from American University in Washington D.C.

After the lecture on teaching Southeast Asian languages, which was sponsored by the Center, Purtle opened a question and answer period. It then became obvious that many of the students present were more interested in talking about why the Center should not be at SIU, than how to teach foreign languages.

The confrontation began when a student quizzed Purtle on the history of the Center. "I am not familiar with the Center," the linguist said.

But he wasn't let off that easy. Did not Purtle, himself, teach language to those who someday might work for the United States government? another student asked.

Purtle said he has worked for the Foreign Service, and asked what was wrong with that. He asked how else can people be trained for diplomatic purposes.

The student persisted, however, and said this was training people to spread propaganda.

At this point I. Milton Sacks, visiting professor of government, who is associated with the Center, decided to help out in answering the questions.

Teachers should not determine what students they should teach on the basis of what the students may do with this knowledge in the future, Sacks said.

"Should I have to sign a loyalty oath that says I won't teach anyone who will work for the government in the future?" Sacks asked.

The student seemed to be about to say yes, it was a good idea but Sacks quickly added that there is nothing wrong with training people to work for their government.

"It's necessary," he told the students who shouted "academic garbage" when a member of the audience, who was more interested in linguistics than loyalty oaths, tried to get back to the lecture topic. Someone then asked at what stage should writing be introduced to the language learning process.

But the anti-Center forces were determined to get back to the "evils" of the Southeast Asian Study Programs, even if they had to incorporate language into the discussion. One student charged that the books used to teach Vietnamese at SIU were government books.

Author to speak on black literature

Sam Greenlee, author of the controversial novel, "The Spook Who Sat By the Door," will be guest lecturer at a Black Studies course, GSB 309 (Introduction to Black American Literature).

Greenlee will speak at 6 p.m. Monday in Lawson 171. His subject will be Black literature. During his week long visit he will also speak at the Marion Penitentiary.

James Joyce scholar to give lecture Monday

Fritz Senn of Zurich, Switzerland, an internationally known scholar on James Joyce and co-editor of a magazine devoted to Joyce's writings, will lecture on "James Joyce and his Reader" at 4 p.m. Monday in Temporary Building 0721, room 102.

Today we find Priscilla Alden busily mending her favorite pinafore in preparation for the holiday feast. She hears a knock on the door. "Who's there?" she asks.

"It's me, John Smith," says a masculine voice.

"You advertised for a plumber in the Daily Egyptian, didn't you?" says John.

Is the visitor really John Smith, dashing captain of the colonnade, or is he really the Boston Stranger, or maybe Jack the Ripper... Stay tuned for the exciting finale.

Fourth turkey trot will be run today

By Fred Weinberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A turkey trot? All right, the name may be misleading—turkeys aren't running it and three miles is no trot—but there is no event each year which causes more extra-curricular workouts on the cross-country course. And, hopefully, of the 80 odd runners expected for the fourth annual event at 2 p.m. Saturday, one will emerge to take over the crown Matt Wray has held for the last two years.

Wray won the event last year with a time of 14:03 over the modified SIU cross-country course which has a loop removed to carve it to three instead of five miles.

And it couldn't have been an easy win either. The course was covered with an inch and a half of snow.

"I asked the fellows whether I should put it off last year and they all said no, that they wanted to run," reflected intramural program director Glenn "Abe" Martin.

"So we took a scooter and ran it over the course and they followed the scooter around the course," he said.

Which may answer several questions about the time.

"You know, I've seen fellows out here running for the last month," said Martin, "and almost everyone I've asked says that he's training for the Turkey Trot."

This is the fourth year the event has been run and Martin said that no one has ever dropped out of the race once they've started—which is much better record than several major track meets can boast.

Three frozen turkeys, will be handed to the top three finishers and passes to a local movie theater will be given to finishers four through ten.

Anyone who could not qualify for a regular physical education program must have a note from their doctor or the health service stating that they are capable of participating.

Martin said that, as of Friday morning, 85 people have signed up for the race and that he expected a few more would show up at the race, which begins and finishes at the start of the SIU cross-country course, south of the SIU baseball field.

There is a 10 per cent chance of rain for the event, according to Martin, but the temperature is supposed to go up which could drop the winning times by several seconds.

Frosh set for varsity

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Good defense is the "key" to a possible, freshman upset victory over the varsity in the annual basketball scrimmage at 7:30 p.m., Monday night in the SIU Arena.

The younger Salukis last defeated the varsity in 1968 when John Garrett, Stan Powles and Marvin Brooks were freshmen. The varsity got revenge last year with a 63-55 victory.

"There has been a great deal of improvement at practice," said freshman coach Paul Henry, "and the freshman have played real well against the varsity in practice scrimmages."

"We hope to play good defense—our key for victory."

Henry said the freshmen also must execute well offensively.

"Rebounding may hurt us but if we can get our share, we should stay in the ballgame," Henry said.

Henry will start 6-5 David Burt as center along with Eddie James, Charles Brown, Jay Benn and Jim Adamson.

In new conference

Swimming programs strong

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Competition in Midwestern Conference swimming will be strong and the new league's standards will be high.

After a meeting of conference swim coaches in Terre Haute, Ind., Wednesday, SIU coach Ray Essick said the outlook for the conference is bright and final plans for this year's conference meet were made.

Steamrolling over every conference school it faced last year, SIU went on to a 17th place finish in the NCAA finals. Naturally, Essick's first reaction to SIU's entrance into the league was one of disappointment. Now that thinking has changed.

"I'm more enthused now than I was when I went up there," Essick said. "I was a little depressed at first... Not anymore."

"I think the conference swimming program is going to be real strong. Everyone is interested in running a national class program. Our standards are going to be real high."

Essick said final plans were made for the conference swimming meet at Ball State, March 4-6.

Essick also said league commissioner Jack McClelland had been a great help because of his desire to promote all sports and not just some in the new alignment.

Officially called the Midwestern Conference in relation to athletics, the new league will no longer be known as the Conference of Midwestern Universities (CMU).

SIU hosts the University of Evansville, Dec. 11, in its first home meet. Southern's only dual meet against a conference school will be Feb. 13 at home against Indiana State.

Harriers skip NCAA's

The Saluki harriers will not be present Monday when the annual NCAA cross-country championships are run in Williamsburg, Va. on the William and Mary University course.

Coach Lew Hartzog had been planning to take a full team to the NCAA finals but an injury to David Hill coupled with injuries to Gerry Hinton and Phil Mikalk and Gerry Graig, spelled disaster for SIU.

SIU's team is working out now for the indoor track season which could commence as early as Dec. 12 at the United States Track and Field Federation meet in Omaha.
