Tax amnesty rejected by Treasury Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department rejected President Reagan's ideas for overhauling the income tax. Several states' recent success with amnesty has prompted members of Congress to suggest similar proposals at the federal level.

In general, those who had failed to file a return or had cheated on their taxes would be given a brief time to pay up without the government imposing a penalty on post-due taxes or threatening criminal prosecution. In return, advocates say, the government would get a substantial amount of revenue that otherwise might be lost.

The Treasury report concluded that amnesty is not worth the risk.

Even without amnesty, the agency said, its sweeping overhaul plan will make a big dent in the $90.5 billion tax gap, the Internal Revenue Service's 1981 estimate of what cheaters cost the government each year in lost revenue.

Primarily, the report said, the department's proposal to restrict itemized deductions would cut the number of tax payers who itemize and, in the process, the number who cheat on their deductions.

The IRS estimated that it loses $52.2 billion a year because people fail to report all their income from legal sources; failure to file any return costs $2.3 billion. Another $6.3 billion is lost to overstated business expenses and $8.4 billion to exaggerated personal deductions, exemptions and adjustments.

Carbondale teachers may go on strike Friday

By Lisa Eisenhauer

Staff Writer

Carbondale High School teachers are pleading to go on strike Friday if contract disputes are not resolved with the school board before then, Robert Taylor, spokesman for the teachers association said Wednesday.

A member of the school board, Robert Brewer, said the board has no plans to meet with teachers before the strike date pending differences.

Taylor said that at a meeting between the board and association officers held Tuesday no compromise had been reached on the contract the board has proposed, so the city's 82 high school teachers are planning to uphold the strike date they set earlier in the month. The teachers have been working without a contract since August although they have been trying to negotiate one for more than nine months.

Taylor said that the major dispute between the teachers and the board is over a $900 bonus contained in the proposed contract. The bonus is being offered only for 1985 but the association wants to see $900 added to the base salary of each teacher permanently.

"I think it's safe to say that if that were added 26 percent of our teachers would agree to the contract," Taylor said. "We have no problem with the money it's the form in which they're trying to offer it to us, we feel that what the board is trying to do is buy us off so that we don't go on strike."

If the $900 was added to the teacher's base salary, he said it would bring the salaries paid to experienced teachers at Carbondale High School more in line with those paid in the rest of the district. The starting pay for teachers at Carbondale is among the top quarter of the state, Taylor said, "but by the time you've been here 14 years you're in the bottom quarter."

The contract the teachers rejected Tuesday included a 2.5 percent increase in total benefits over their last contract. Of this increase, which amounts to $199,200, the $900 bonus constitutes 3.5 percent. If they go on strike, High School Superintendent Reid Martin is saying it is his understanding that the teachers will forfeit the bonus.

Taylor said that in his opinion the offer made to the teachers was "more than reasonable."

Brewer said the board was offering the bonus to the teachers only next year because the district happens to have enough money.

Carbondale's 1984 Halloween festival cost the city more than last year, which city officials attribute to the large number of revelers and the expansion of the party on East Grand Avenue.

Additional costs for the city this year included a band stage and clean-up on East Grand Avenue. A canopy and electrical work for the stage on Friday night of the festival amounted to $643, according to Wayne Wheeler, public works street superintendent. The street department's bill for the festival came to $7,963 as opposed to $5,552 for the previous year.

Ratter said, however, efforts to attract the crowd to East Grand Avenue were successful.

"The city handled the situation relatively well," he said. "I think we're all pleased with the way it's been functioned. The visible location of the bands was an improvement."

Bands for the "City Fair Days" performed on a temporary stage on East Grand Avenue, instead of on the east side of the SIUC Recreation Center.

Ratter said as the Halloween festival becomes more established the crowds are becoming larger. About 20,000 people turned out for this year's party as compared with 13,000 people for Halloween weekend.

Dole chosen over four rivals for top spot in Senate majority

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Robert Dole, wisecracking chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and a likely 1988 presidential aspirant, defeated four rivals on Wednesday in the hotly contested battle to succeed Howard B. Baker Jr. as Senate majority leader. The 61-year-old Kansas Republican was elected 28-25 over his closest competitor, Ted Stevens of Alaska, on the fourth secret ballot in a caucus of all 53 GOP senators who will serve in the upcoming 99th Congress. Three other contenders - James McClure of Idaho, Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico and Richard Lugar of Indiana - were eliminated one by one in the first three rounds.

Famine causing handicaps, fund director says

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) - Ethiopia's famine will produce a generation of people unable to help themselves, the head of UNICEF said Wednesday, predicting that 500,000 children will survive the disaster with mental and physical handicaps. Three-quarters or more of Ethiopians who are now facing death from starvation are very young children, and even if they live, the deprivation they have suffered as fetuses and babies has already done permanent damage, said James Grant, an American who serves as director of the United Nations Children's Fund.

Artificial heart recipient "alert and cooperative"

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - An "alert and cooperative" William Schroeder sat up in bed Wednesday, joked with his nurses and ate his first solid food since receiving a mechanical heart - warm lemonade and a 7-UP. Schroeder, 50, is a quality assurance specialist continuing making an excellent recovery. At midday, Thursday, he sat up in bed with help from his doctors and briefly dangled his feet over the side of his hospital bed. Dr. Robert R. Goodin, a cardiologist who cared for Schroeder before his operation, said he was "amazed that he has this kind of strength and progress" so soon after surgery.

CIA spy investigation took more than 2 years

NEW YORK (AP) - An investigation that led to the arrest of a former CIA employee accused of spying for the Czechoslovakian intelligence service took more than two years and included an interview in which he admitted spying, a federal prosecutor said in court Wednesday. Karl F. Koerner, 50, gave the Czech intelligence agency "virtually any classified or other material, information, assessments and CIA personnel identifications" that he obtained, an FBI affidavit said.

Section of I-24 bridge closed for repairs

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) - One traffic lane remains closed on the Interstate 24 bridge while workmen repair new cracks found in the structure for the fourth time since it opened in October 1974. Carl De Witt, maintenance engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said the cracks aren't as serious as those which forced the span to be closed for repairs five years ago. De Witt said the cracks were discovered near porthole openings in at least 10 floor beams which run the width of the $11.5 million bridge.

Mandatory seat belt measure defeated in state Senate vote

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - The Illinois Senate on Wednesday narrowly defeated a bill that would have required seat belts to be worn by drivers and front-seat passengers in automobiles and pickup trucks. The final vote was 29-21, one short of the number needed for passage. It was the second attempt this year to win Senate approval of the measure, which cleared the House last spring. Under the proposal, failure to buckle up could bring a $25 fine. The measure was sought by a coalition of safety groups, who say it would save hundreds of lives, and auto-makers who see it as a way to avoid having to install air bags or automatic seat belts in new cars.

Former Nazi camp guard ordered deported

CHICAGO (AP) - A 63-year-old man accused of hiding his past as a former guard at a Nazi death camp where at least 50,000 people were said to have died has been ordered deported to West Germany. The deportation of Reinhold Kuhle was ordered by Olga Springer, a judge at the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, who ruled that the former guard assisted in persecuting civilians during World War II. Springer said that while Kulle "did nothing more than guard prisoners" he should be regarded as one of their persecutors and deported.

Reagan studies budget cut plans

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan studied but made no decisions Wednesday about a series of defense and domestic spending cuts his aides proposed for fiscal 1986 as a way to reduce the federal budget by about $38 billion in the first year, administration officials said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan met for about 90 minutes with budget director David A. Stockman and other aides and told them he wanted more time to consider their recommendations.

"It was his decision that he wanted to hear more," Speakes said.

Decisions on where to trim spending could come later in the week, he said.

The president and his advisers have begun the process of drafting a spending plan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, 1985, which Reagan will submit to Congress early next year.

Their task is complicated by a burgeoning deficit in the current fiscal year now expected to exceed $260 billion, and the president's insistence that tax increases or cuts in Social Security be ruled out in any attempt to reduce the deficit.

Stockman gave the president a black, loose-leaf notebook with suggestions for paring the deficit.

Speakes refused to list the programs outlined as candidates for spending cuts. But other officials have said they range from Medicare and farm subsidies to veterans health care and civil service retirement.

Defense was also on the hit list, officials said, even though Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has indicated he intends to seek a nearly 14 percent boost in military spending.

Weinberger, at a National Press Club luncheon, refused to say what he would recommend to Reagan.

Other Defense Department officials, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, said their fiscal 1986 budget request will total about $335.7 billion.

Patchett workers finishing petitions

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

The race is still not over in the 22nd Congressional District as far as Republican candidate Randy Patchett is concerned.

Patchett campaign workers expected to finish filing discovery recount petitions by Wednesday evening, Patchett Campaign Manager Mark Maddox said.

If an unusual trend is spotted in any of the 14 of 21 counties being recounted, then a full recount will be requested, Maddox said. However, "if we don't find anything, then we don't do anything," he said.

The official State Board of Elections canvass Monday showed Ken Gray narrowly defeated Patchett by 1,172 votes, Gray's 116,952 votes to Patchett's 115,775. Early unofficial vote totals showed Patchett behind by 1,202, giving the Patchett camp renewed optimism. "We feel the results are possible to turn around," Maddox said.

The discovery recount results are expected to be in by late next week, Maddox said. The procedure will cost $10 per precinct, and approximately 25 percent of the precincts in each county will be recounted, a Patchett campaign worker said.

The Patchett for Congress Campaign Committee will absorb the cost.

Patchett and Gray campaign workers will be present during the recount, Maddox said, and the actual process will be done by a local board of canvassers.

U.S. productivity drops 7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. business productivity dropped 0.7 percent in the third quarter of this year, breaking a two-year string of increases and reinforcing recent indications of a sharp national economic slowdown, the government reported Wednesday.

Economists inside and outside the government said the figure would almost certainly climb above zero again before long.

However, the analysts also said strong future gains in productivity depend heavily on increases in the money that businesses spend on new plants, machinery and technology development. And they said no spending burst seemed likely as long as the economy in general was growing as slowly as it is now.

The Labor Department's productivity figure measures efficiency in terms of the volume of goods and services the economy puts out in an hour of paid working time. The third-quarter decline means that during the July-September period, output from businesses other than farms rose less than the working hours of their employees.

The discovery recount results are expected to be in by late next week, Maddox said. The procedure will cost $10 per precinct, and approximately 25 percent of the precincts in each county will be recounted, a Patchett campaign worker said.

WITH THE 1984 ELECTIONS OVER, the political signs in support of various candidates have become rather useless. Signs that once urged voters to choose particular candidates for political office are now either menaced or useless lest. It is borne of life problems that the Carbondale City Council has rejected the Planning Commission's recommendation to amend the city's sign ordinance. The part of the ordinance dealing with political signs was at the heart of proposed changes. The present and unchanged version of the city's sign ordinance considers political signs to be as follows: Signs are permitted to remain up 30 days prior to an election and must be removed within five days after the election. The commission's legal staff concluded that prohibition may arise concerning the constitutionality of the ordinance’s restrictions on time and content, under the First and 14th Amendments.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS arose recently when an ordinance in Normal similar to Carbondale's was struck down. The court there ruled that Normal's sign ordinance was unconstitutional because it kept political signs to a particular election and, because of the size restrictions imposed on political signs, it in effect gave greater protection to other non-political kinds of signs. Carbondale's sign ordinance isn't quite as flawed. While all signs, political and non-political, are subject to the same size limitations - hence consistent with the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment — the Carbondale ordinance still suffers from the same content-neutrality requirement problem.

Though, as city councilman and SIU's Law Professor Patrick Kelleher points out, Carbondale's ordinance reads as follows: Signs and the tabulation of the number of words, numbers, or letters that appear on the sign shall be paid for, in any manner, by the person, firm, or corporation that places the sign on any public street, road, or highway. The sign shall not be altered, removed, or changed to any material extent after installation. Advertisements that are not political are affected, but other kinds of signs are not.

YES, THE ORDINANCE ALLOWS for any type of political sign — within the 30 days before, five days after restriction — but it totally prohibits other signs of political influence being displayed during non-election periods. This includes signs that address such issues as public concern as abortion or nuclear weapons.

Carbondale citizens face being ticketed by Code Enforcement officials if they erect signs on their property dealing with anything political. The Carbondale ordinance was struck down on exactly this kind of stipulation.

It is unclear a federal district court might rule on the constitutionality of Carbondale’s ordinance, should it be challenged. But in a number of similar cases involving time restrictions — the Normal ruling being the most recent and closely aligned — the courts have been consistent in striking down such restrictions. Although the city council seems comfortable with its unanimous decision to ban political signs, even in the face of the recent federal district court decision in Normal, it should be prepared for a future challenge. It should be obvious which concern — a little unsightly litter or the U.S. Constitution — should take precedence.

When job search "experts" say not to offer too much information, they fail to warn us that for every 30 seconds of legitimate qualification, four or five minutes of dead silence occur. And one gets the feeling in those moments of white noise that the interviewer is not impressed by one's ability to speak or stumble through.

Interviewers will deliberately ask questions requiring one-word answers, then giggle and ask if you figure out a way to occupy the generous time they leave for replies.

The only way to truly impress them is to ask a question back at them. They can't possibly answer.

I once was, sir, I'm married. And I rent. So why hasn't your newspaper seriously investigated charges of job stealing at City Hall?"

You'll be either fired or thrown from the tallest building. Either way, you're sure to make an impression.

Spirit of Marti Brejle lives on

Marti Brejle died at only 4 years old. She was always drawn to life not only to this community, but to the world. Marti's enthusiasm was fueled by her exceptional career in counseling and civil service, was rare. Her aura — that hundreds of people claimed to feel at sight of the Kingdom of God shared this with Marti. She was a beautiful woman.

A legion could testify on her caring nature for the people with all-told, social problems seeking her help as a therapist at the University of Illinois Family Practice Center.

Members of Carbondale's First Methodist Church always knew an unusual person was in their midst. So it was not surprising that this University who elected her president of the Women's Club, and chair of the Women's Club of the Year. Her colleagues and friends everywhere held her in esteem.

Above all, her husband, Terry, her son, Matthew and Mark, her parents, Matthew and Mark, felt the power of her love in daily life. In our often-cold, uncaring, contemporary society — riddled with every disease of pestilence, poverty, and pornography — Marti Brejle was a beacon of caring. Her magnificent character came through clearly for years while cancer continued its relentless course. Hope and courage never failed for herself or those around her.

For those who kept in communication with her after the move to Springfield last summer, her spirit became larger than life itself during the last months of daunting progress of her illness.

Marti Brejle remains living proof of the truth that one can experience her presence of the eternal Christian spirit. A kind of recognition andREDIENTS...

One sign over the phone interview is the key to success in any job search. Offer a primer for those unfortunate who have yet to commence the hunt.

A job search, you see, is a baring of the soul not unlike running naked down South Illinois Boulevard on a Friday night. Except that sprinting stripped on the Strip would be twice as much fun.

Good job seekers groveled. They whine. They beg. But they do it in the guise of a cover letter that reeks with doctored-up descriptions of "Experience." And they send them to hundreds of places nationwide — most of which they would rather never see, let alone work.

I know of two ways to produce hundreds of personal validated cover letters. One is to buy a computer. The other is to marry a secretary. I chose the latter — secretaries are of a far superior disposition. Computers can't make homemade bread.

A GOOD RESUME doesn't enlighten prospective employers on a seeker's qualifications. It contains long-haired, highly technical information that employers to grant interviews just to find out what the bell it means. After all, why say you're friendly when you can say you're capable of interfacing with complex personalities of various personal appearances in highly stressful office environments?

Better yet, say you have at least two years of interfacing experience. With a capital b. For that matter, capitalize the whole word — it's the only one most employers pay attention to anyway.

The most dangerous aspect of any job hunt, though, is the interview. Face-to-face entanglement is treacherous because most job seekers are told all the wrong things to prepare for it.

Next, we're told. Answer the questions. Don't offer too much information. Don't be overbearing. Thank your interviewer. Ask for the job.

IN RECENT MCJTHS, I have been through eight job interviews over the phone. Last phone interviews are a specialty all their own. I dressed up for all except the phone interview ("Uhh, yes, Mr. Shalbotnik, I hope you can how how nice I look.

In every single interview, I was repeatedly better dressed than my interviewer. Some (I won't say which — one's options must remain open) wore slabs. Collars to which starch is a foreign language. Hair only Texaco could love. The kind of complex personal appearance to which interfacing becomes overly stressful.

In the end, I came to the conclusion that one of the most frightening aspects of a job search is the phone interview. One of the most frightening aspects of a job search is the phone interview. One of the most frightening aspects of a job search is the phone interview.

Congressional races key to realignment

Was 1984 an historic election, the results of which are likely to be felt for years to come? Numerous signs suggest that it has the potential. The size of the Republican Party's gains to date has caused many to speculate that the majority party in the country, the first great partisan realignment since the 1930s, is on the verge of breaking through. It is not only the party's economic philosophy which has become the major issue, but also its tactics of campaigning, which have contributed to the party's success in the races.

The Illinois elections of 1984 illustrate the problem any popular politician has in converting his personal majority into a congressional majority. In the 26th Congressional District, of term incumbent Dick Durbin (D-Springfield) was re-elected with about 56 percent of the vote while Reagan carried the district with about the same margin. First term incumbent Democrat Lane Evans similarly was re-elected in the 17th District. Nationwide, over 90 percent of congressional incumbents were returned to office. In most congressional districts, however, the personal majority has not been able to translate itself into a majority in the House. The key to a truly historic election, a re-election of both parties, control of Congress. That control eluded President Reagan in 1984. That goal is likely to elude any Republican president as long as congressional elections continue to be decided by local issues and candidates, as well as incumbent incumments have a decided advantage.

It looks as if we are witnessing a realignment, a particular context of Congress. That control eluded President Reagan in 1984. That goal is likely to elude any Republican president as long as congressional elections continue to be decided by local issues and candidates, as well as incumbent incumments have a decided advantage.

The analogy is simple: The ISC is a student body that represents all students of the campus and body that is represented at the congressional level. In the case of Dan Crane (D-Danville) in the 19th District shows this. Crane was defeated by Terry Bruce (D-Oney) in a contest in which Crane's censure by his colleagues may have played a role. But challenges to congressional incumments start with real disadvantages in name recognition and financing in the more typical case. So long as so many Democratic congressional incumments, the fact that congressional races are so affected by incumbency tends to propel the Democratic congressional majority.

performance in every job you have held.”

The president said he knew at the time that Ruckelshaus’ decision to return to Washington was very difficult, since it involved an extraordinary personal sacrifice in putting aside your career in the private sector and moving, with your family, across the continent. “I know you did what you have consistently done: you looked first and foremost toward the public interest.”

Ruckelshaus told Reagan that he is convinced “that properly led, the dedicated people of EPA will continue to serve well your administration and this country.” And he assured the president that in spite of his decision to return to private life, “you can call on me to help any time, should the need arise.”

There was no immediate word from the White House as to who might be under consideration to replace Ruckelshaus as the nation’s environmental chief. The resignation will take effect Jan. 5, 1985.

Ruckelshaus was the first chief of the EPA, serving as administrator from 1970 to 1973. He moved from there to the Justice Department, serving as deputy attorney general before resigning in October 1973 rather than follow President Richard Nixon’s order to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

He was a senior vice president of Weyerhaeuser Co., a Seattle-based forest products company.

FESTIVAL: Halloween cost up

1983 Code enforcement reported a cost of $800. The cost for the Police Department totaled $6,244. Ratter said police officers put in about 438 hours of overtime during Halloween weekend. Sergeants, lieutenants and the police chief, however, worked 152 hours of non-paid overtime.

Ratter said additional lights on East Grand Avenue made the street more attractive, and party vendors. The number of vendors decreased from last year, however, which resulted in the city booth revenues decreasing from $4,100 in 1983 to $1,500 in 1984. The reduced revenue also figured in the increased cost to the city for Halloween.

Ratter said the number of booths this year was more reflective of the market demand. He said many people operated booths last year because it was the first year the city allowed booths.

Applications, nominations rise as search for dean continues

By Carys Edwards
Staff Writer

Applications and nominations for the position of dean at the College of Liberal Arts at SIUC have been coming in daily since the nine-member search committee for a suitable candidate was formed early this month.

The national search began after James F. Light, who has held the post since September 1979, announced his resignation in April. Light, 61, plans to step down in August 1985.

John G. Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, says he expects a large number of applications to be submitted before the mid-January deadline because of the status of the position.

"It's a desirable position," he explained, "as it's a reasonably large unit with a substantial budget. There's the opportunity to do program development in the unit to enhance the student experience and to do things attractive to a person in academic counseling."

The College of Liberal Arts is the largest college at SIUC in terms of the number of faculty and departments.

Guyon said the Dean will administer academic and research programs for the departments of anthropology, computer science, economics, English, foreign languages and literatures, geography, history, linguistics, mathematics, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies and sociology.

Other responsibilities include the administration of fiscal matters of the college and representing the college to the higher administration, Guyon said.

Good academic judgment, fiscal management and leadership skills are qualities that will be looked for in the applicants, Guyon said.

David M. Sharpe, associate professor of geography and head of the search committee, said the position is being advertised through the Chronicle of Higher Education. Letters announcing the availability of the position have also been sent to institutions around the nation. Nominations also are being received from SIUC faculty, he said.

A list of suitable candidates will be selected by the search committee and then referred to Guyon and the SIU Board of Trustees to make the final choice, Sharpe said.

Members of the search committee, who were selected by Guyon and the council of liberal arts, are M. Lionel Bender, professor of anthropology; Sheila R. Bruten, assistant professor in linguistics and the Center for English as a Second Language; Uday Desai, associate professor of political science; Helmut Liedleff, professor of foreign languages and literatures; Katherine Pedersen, associate professor of mathematics; Richard F. Peterson, professor of English; Brockman Schumacher, professor in the Rehabilitation Institute; and Dave J. Madlener, a member of the Undergraduate Student Organization.

Guyon said Light's resignation was accepted with regret. Light said he plans to request a sabbatical in the near future. He holds tenure in the English Department.

Rock group gears its show to deaf

CHICAGO (AP) — Many of the youngsters who dance and sway to the music of the rock band "Foxfire" have never heard a note of the group's music.

But Foxfire's hearing-impaired audiences never miss a beat, thanks to the work of Clarenda Gaudie Johnson who interprets the band's lyrics with sign language and mime.

The four-piece rock band has traveled the country, often providing deaf students their first taste of live rock music. "The reactions from the children are exciting," said Johnson, who describes herself as the band's voiceless vocalist. "Teachers have told me it's the first time they've seen their students dance." Johnson, who also acts in theatrical performances for the deaf, said she always thought it unfortunate that so few deaf people attend concerts or plays.

Johnson received the 1984 Governor's Award for Artist of the Year in Illinois for breaking down some of the barriers that have discouraged the hearing-impaired from enjoying the performing arts. Foxfire is part of Silent Sounds Inc., a non-profit Chicago-based corporation that believes music and art should be available to everyone.

The band's music had served as a sort of bridge between the hearing-impaired and regular students at the more than 500 schools the group has performed in. Johnson said, "All the students -- the hearing-impaired and the students with normal hearing -- have a chance to share the same experience. I think they feel more comfortable with each other after a show."

Crib death may result from overheating, study suggests

LONDON (AP) — Bundling babies too warmly or placing them in overheated rooms increases the risk of crib death, a new study suggests.

Its author, Dr. Anthony Stanton, wrote that parents need to be educated "away from the folklore that babies catch cold to the reality that many are at risk from overheating."

The pediatrician said previous scientific studies have linked overheating to crib death, but that researchers assumed elevated body temperatures in the bodies of the dead infants were caused by undiagnosed infection.

His study published in the current issue of the British medical journal The Lancet, Stanton said, found that a baby too warm was a possible cause of crib death.

"Nobody is saying it is the only cause," he said, "but the coincidence that they were very hot come up again and again."

Crib death, or sudden infant death syndrome, is the name given to the unexplained death of an apparently healthy baby. It strikes an estimated one in three babies in every 1,000. Its cause has long been classified as unknown, but it has been linked to a fault in breathing.

Stanton, a consultant at Scarborough Hospital in northern England, has studied crib death for seven years, investigated the deaths of 34 babies in Scarborough and Oxford between December 1981 and May 1984.

The babies, 12 girls and 22 boys, ranged in age from 27 days to 9 months. All died unexpectedly at home and were certified by coroners as victims of sudden infant death syndrome. Of the 34 babies, all but two were found to have been in danger of overheating, Stanton wrote.

Twenty-four, he wrote, were excessively clothed or bundled under layers of blankets; 19 were unusually hot or sweating when found dead; 17 had evidence of infection that would cause a fever; and 14 died in aggressively hot rooms.

Some of the babies fit into more than one category. The two in which excessive heat was ruled out as a factor both had low birth weights.

Policy allows judges to charge public defense fee

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

Judges in Jackson County may now charge some defendants a fee when a lawyer from the county public defender's office has been appointed to represent them, Richard E. Richmond announced earlier this month.

Richmond, presiding judge of the Illinois first judicial circuit, said that the new policy is part of a series of recommendations released by a committee he appointed to look into the financial problems of the public defender's office. Richmond said that Dennis Waks, acting public defender and chairman of the committee, had indicated to him that the committee was going to recommend a "recoupment" policy anyway, and that Richmond simply "jumped the gun a little" by approving the policy before the committee put it into writing.

Richmond said he approved the policy because "there is a provision in Illinois state laws that allows clients of the public defender to be charged a limited fee for services," and because the Jackson County public defender's office is experiencing financial problems. "One other reason is that people are more cooperative with their lawyers when they have to pay them," Richmond said.

The new policy allows both county judges and the Jackson County state's attorney to charge limited fees to clients of public defender's office only if they are found guilty in court. The maximum fee will be $250 for felony cases and $150 for traffic and misdemeanor cases. Richmond said, "I don't think it will hurt clients because we've put limits on the sizes of the fees." the judge said.

Richmond said that money collected from the new practice will go into the county treasury, and that he is "hopeful the County Board will use the funds to strengthen the public defender's office."

Not all clients of the office will be subject to the fee, Richman said, only those who the judges or state's attorney deem capable of affording such a charge based upon their financial status.

Waks said that the committee on the Jackson County public defender's office supports the policy, although he said it recommended that the fees should not be used in every case and not to their maximum amount.

Richman said the new policy is important to the public defender's office because "it shows the County Board that we're attempting at least to recoup some of the county's money." Waks said that the same policy has been used in other Illinois counties with some success.
Acid rain research talk set

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

An expert on rainfall acidity will discuss the state of acid precipitation research in the United States at 11 a.m. Thursday at Student Center, Ballroom B.

Richard Semonin, assistant chief of the Illinois State Water Survey in Champaign, has worked on weather radar, cloud physics, weather modification, urban effects on local climate, and atmospheric chemistry. He received a degree in meteorology from the University of Washington in 1955.

Besides publishing material on chemical deposition, water resource issues and new monitoring techniques, Semonin has also gotten involved in national monitoring networks such as the EPA's 19-station National Acid Precipitation Assessment Program.

It is part of the ongoing Coal Research Center Seminar Series, which is sponsored by the center and SIU-C's Department of Forestry.

Plenty of rest, fluids help rid flu

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

Mom was right. The way to treat most colds and flu is to get plenty of rest, drink plenty of fluids and let your body heal itself, said Karen Dodge, wellness educator who works in the Stafuski Health Assessment Center.

Most colds and flu are caused by viral infections, Dodge said. The body has to fight viral infections on its own — no medication can make the infection go away.

Rest and relaxation are very important in helping get rid of a cold or flu. The body fights the cold while it is at rest, Dodge explained. It may take several days to feel like getting up and going to classes.

Cold and flu sufferers also need to drink plenty of fluids, she said. These fluids help flush the body of dead white cells and replace fluids lost from fever and perspiration.

Smokers, who tend to get two-thirds more colds than non-smokers, should stop smoking during a cold or flu, Dodge said. Smoke irritates the bronchial passages and prolongs cold symptoms.

Hot showers or adding humidity to rooms by using a vaporizer can help to relieve congestion in the chest and nasal passages.

Most viral infections are passed "hand-to-mouth," Dodge said. That is, from touching things that have the virus on them and transmitting the virus to the nose or mouth.

"If your roommate has a cold, it's a good idea to wash your hands several times a day," Dodge said.

Colds and flu are often stress-related. People who burn the candle at both ends are more susceptible to colds and flu, she said.

Even though it may not easy to avoid completely, the best way to prevent colds or flu is to avoid getting rundown and overly tired.

Staying in good health is very important. Eating regular, well-balanced meals and getting plenty of rest and exercise may be the best cold and flu preventions available.

Man attempts to win free air travel

CHICAGO (AP) — In a modern version of "Around the World in 80 Days," Alfred Elliott is flying around the country trying to hit 50 states in 50 days so he can win a prize — even more time in the air.

"At first, I think my friends thought I should perhaps spend the time better in a mental institution," said Elliott, who has spent the past month and a half crisscrossing the country trying to hit 50 states in 50 days.

"But when they saw, after the first couple of weeks, that I'd passed the halfway mark, they became like a cheering section," he said. "I try to call at least one of them each weekend to tell them what strange place I'm in..."

United Airlines is offering a year of free first-class travel anywhere in the nation to mark its expansion into all 50 states as of Oct. 28, said United spokesman Joseph P. Hopkins. It goes to anyone in United's frequent-flyer program who hits every state by midnight Dec. 16. "It's not a contest to finish first," said Hopkins. "It's a contest to finish, period."

Elliott, a 40-year-old unmarried lawyer, spent one weekend flying from Chicago to Denver; Denver to Boise, Idaho; Boise to Salt Lake City, and back to Denver, on to Billings, Mont., then back to Denver. From there he flew to Casper, Wyo., took the same plane back to Denver again, boarded another plane to New Orleans, and finally returned to Chicago.

Nuclear threat
Professors strive to give students hope for future

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

Nuclear war — many say it is the most terrifying prospect Americans face today, but as the fear grows, it generates action — people demonstrate, they make films, they write editorials.

To deal with the growing threat, a group of SIU-C faculty members also decided to take action on the fears by volunteering their time to teach a course called "War and Its Alternatives: A 20th Century Survey," which about 15 students are attending.

IN THE CLASS, five faculty members from the disciplines of history, philosophy, anthropology, political science and geography are all working together to try to help students understand why wars happen and what can be done to prevent them in the future.

These faculty members volunteered their time because, as history professor Robert Hallissey said, "We're very concerned about the offerings of a major topic to be dealt with among the concerns in today's world."

"We're concerned about the threat. And it was a very important topic to be dealt with among the offerings of a major university."

EACH SPENDS a few weeks discussing war and alternatives to war from the viewpoint of his particular field of study. For instance, M. Lionel Bender helps students trace the evolution of war from an anthropological standpoint.

Hallissey concentrates on nonviolent movements in the 20th century, such as the Indian nationalist movement led by Mahatma Gandhi and the American civil rights movement led by Martin Luther King Jr., as alternatives to violence.

He said he hopes the one thing students learn from the course, is that individuals can make a difference. "When we think of great societal movements, we tend to think of the dominant personalities" of Gandhi and King, "The reality is it was just people like you and me," he said, who changed the society by participating in sit-ins and boycotts.

ANOTHER SECTION of the course is taught by Leland G. Stauber, an associate professor of political science, who brings his knowledge of political realities to the discussion of war and peace.

Christensen, in his section on geography discusses such things as population gain rates, the unequal distribution of resources, and transportation abilities as they relate to war and its alternatives.

PROFESSOR John Howie of the philosophy department said he tries to make students aware of the complexity of the situation. "We try to understand the causes of war, and what can be done about that sort of thing," he said.

"Some people think the causes of war are inevitable," but he says there is no need to give up hope. "You can pick out patterns of behavior...that bring us to the brink of war and do something to disturb that pattern of behavior," he said.

For one thing, he said, "We need to be talking globally instead of nationally," he said. "We can't be autonomous. We are interdependent, we need to work together to try to solve human problems."

ALONG WITH the five teachers, other experts gave guest lectures on topics like international law, the United Nations, the civil rights movement, and Amnesty International.

The instructors did say they felt there were problems in integrating material presented by so many different lecturers, but despite these problems, the course will be offered again next fall, although some changes will probably be made and the same teachers will not necessarily be teaching it then.

MOST OF THEM said they felt that the students had got something from the course, in spite of the problems. "You're talking about making radical differences in the way people think and you just don't do that overnight," said Howie. "But, we are taking baby steps in that route." He said if each person who takes the course can share what he learns with those around him it would make a difference.

Variety of community services can be found at Hayes center

By Justus Weatherby

Staff Writer

In the beginning Carbondale created a community center—an attempt to reach the hearts and hands of Southern Illinois optimism and motivate residents to seek out federal funds.

In 1972 to impact the economically disadvantaged, the Carbondale City Council created a community center with more than 26-city sponsored programs targeted at reducing dependency, providing education, job training, health care and increasing community involvement.

BOB STALLS, director of human resources, said, "At that time in the nation's history, we were fighting a war on poverty."

"It’s more than just a building its appearance," said stalls. "We don’t think the essence of Urna Hayes will be wiped out.

The city now sponsors a chum-housekeeping program, a 12-hour-a-day program for children under five and a dormrant youth program at the center.

ON ITS SURFACE, the center exemplifies a model of an architectural art featuring oblique angles, square corners, and a wall sharpened from its roof, pointing at the planks of redwood paneling neatly along its sides, which gives the building a unique appearance.

In the main corridor of the center, a caffeine-filled woman placed squarely against the top of a large brown placard commemorating Eurma C. Hayes.

FURTHER INTO the center is heightened activity—a clutter of people sit patiently in the City Job Service Office waiting for counselors.

Across from the employment office stands a staircase that leads up to an empty dark area that does not serve an apparent purpose for the center.

Job Service manager Richard Harris said, "The center has been maintained but the space isn’t being properly utilized.

Tim Weber, the center’s Hill House director, said the city is perplexed about what to do with this "so-called community center.

"I SEE CITY officials parade through the building, but that’s not enough. The bottom line is the city has to have concern," Weber said.

"The city has taken no responsibility for the building, and that reflects in the community," Weber said. "I’ve even seen the building deteriorate over the years. That’s not just on the janitorial staff, there’s no support from the city.

"I think it’s a good possibility that it will be shut down unless they can find a solution," Weber said. "There’s no city interest in it. It’s valuable asset.

"ON THE OPPOSITE" side of the staircase, which stands midway into the main corridor, is the lunchroom for children of the Comprehensive Child Care Program.

Donna Haynes, child care coordinator, said she has a 22-member staff and between 110 to 150 attending children that range in age from toddlers to 12-year-olds.

At one time, however, "we had a staff of 47 with 300 to 400 children.

The city is obligated to keep the center open. I really don’t see the closing of child care. There’s no justification for the center to be closed in total. The possibilities are endless for revamping the center," Haynes said.

CHILD CARE, which has classrooms that line the south section of the center from end to end, "is the babysitting program," she said.

"It’s the way to teach people to teach" after becoming certified by the office of education, Haynes said.

"Paper apples and oranges made from bright red, orange, and yellow cut-outs extend the length of child care’s corridor and dangling above the heads of children as they file out of the lunchroom and bounce, nosily, into their classrooms.

The city officials say they are uncertain about how a shutdown of the center would affect the Carbondale community.

City Councilman Archie Jones said federal cuts in grant funding have forced the city to use a process of elimination when it comes to the distribution of funds to sustain other city services.

“There will be the last to go,” Jones said.

THE HEALTH, safety and general welfare of Carbondale lunches is the No. 1 priority of the city Council when fiscal decisions are made, Jones said. The job service is revamping courses for monies for streets, traffic, police, fire fighters, train-safety repairs and a proposal to depress the railroad tracks beneath ground level.

"If health care goes, and child care goes, and job service moves out of Urna Hayes, the building will go in another direction. It will close down if nothing replaces these services,” Jones said.

Donald Monty, director of community development, said the Home-Health Care Program, which was eliminated in October, was costing us far more to continue than we could afford.

"If you don’t have patients to generate fees, then you don’t have the money to cover the costs," Monty said.

Monty said, however, that the city may continue to receive a "substantial amount of money, that’s not likely to diminish."
Eckersley agrees to Cubs deal

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Dennis Eckersley, one of four free agents leaving the Chicago Cubs, has agreed to sign a new contract with the team that will pay him almost $3 million over the next three seasons, according to today’s Sun-Times. "I think it’s a good indication to all our fans and players that we are serious on signing our people," General Manager Dallas Green was quoted as saying in Wednesday’s Chicago Sun-Times.

The verbal agreement with Eckersley calls for annual payments of about $2,050,000 a year, the Chicago Tribune reported in Wednesday’s edition. It leaves the Cubs negotiating with three other free agents: starters Rick Sutcliffe and Steve Trout and reliever Tim Stoddard.

Angels, Braves chase Sutcliffe

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe’s agent probably will meet with representatives of the California Angels and Atlanta Braves next week to entertain offers for the free-agent Cy Young award winner.

"The best way to characterize what we’ve been doing up to now is, we’re kind of in a fact-finding situation," the agent, Barry Axelrod, said Wednesday. Axelrod said the meetings with California and Atlanta most likely would take place at the owners’ annual winter meeting in Houston Dec. 3-7.

Sutcliffe went through the free-agent open draft last November after leading the Chicago Cubs to the National League West title with a 16-1 record. Sutcliffe was drafted by eight clubs: Atlanta, Baltimore, California, Kansas City, New York Yankees, St. Louis, San Diego and Texas — and the Cubs retained the right to negotiate with him.

So far, Sutcliffe and his agent have met with Kansas City and San Diego, and Axelrod has spoken to several other teams by telephone.

Sutcliffe currently is on an ocean cruise with his family, but Axelrod says he has remained in touch with the Cubs in the meantime.

"I talked to Dallas Green (Cubs general manager) yesterday, basically touching base," Axelrod said.

Axelrod said he believed the Cubs had decided to wait and see what Sutcliffe would bring on the open market before making another offer.

"They had made an offer before the draft and changed it a couple of times," Axelrod said. "I think it got to the point where they felt they were negotiating against themselves, and that wasn’t the wisest thing to do.

"We don’t even know what the market value is on Rick," Axelrod said via telephone from his Encinitas, Calif., office. "Our main thrust is now is seeing what Rick is worth."

Axelrod said he also had positive feelings from the Orioles, "although from what I read they’re in hot pursuit of Bruce Sutter, Andre Thornton and Fred Lynn. It may be that if they’re successful in any or all of those, they won’t be able to go after Rick."

Axelrod said he considered Sutcliffe and Sutter, the reliever from St. Louis, to be the keys to the free-agent auction this year. Sutter reportedly is very close to signing a contract with Atlanta.

Byars receives Heisman support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Thomas "Pepper" Johnson, Ohio State's All-Big Ten linebacker, says yardage is harder for teammate Keith Byars than Boston College's record-breaking passer Doug Flutie, the leading candidates for the Heisman.

The Heisman, which goes annually to the nation's No. 1 college football player, will be announced Saturday night in New York City. Junior邹 Pars of the Buckeyes' top defender, said of yards: "Every game, whether he's playing against the Heisman Trophy winner, he's had an outstanding year also. But I'm not going to take a back seat."

"It would be disappointing because I feel I have had a good enough year, worthy of the Heisman Trophy. It would be a setback to me," he said.

Ohio State coach Earle Bruce said he didn't know if he'll be the Heisman Trophy winner: "In the back seat."

Byars' running led Bruce to his second Big Ten title in his first six years as Ohio State coach. The Buckeyes were 9-2 last year, and got the top spot for the women's basketball title by Bill Baier. "I'm not going to take a back seat."

"It would be disappointing because I feel I have had a good enough year, worthy of the Heisman Trophy. It would be a setback to me," he said.

How the votes go. There's no doubt Flutie is an outstanding football player. He means a lot to the offense because he's the man people want to edge Jeff Baier," he said.

Rowe selected to diving team; Tough season faces Salukis

By Martin Folse
Staff Writer:

One position was open on the SIU-C men’s diving team and three divers — John Becker, Gary Anderson and Scott Rowe — were competing for it. It was a hard choice for Coach Denny Golden, but he selected Rowe.

Golden said Rowe was selected on the basis of competition in two intra-squad meets, in which Rowe won three of four events on the 1- and 3-meter boards.

"It wasn’t an easy choice to make. I wouldn’t say there’s that much difference between them," Golden said. "He makes progress daily, and considering he has almost no diving background, he’s making tremendous progress."

Except for Nigel Stanton, who competed in the 1984 Olympics, the team is in a learning stage, Golden said.

"Andy (Pryzybszewski) and Chad (Lucero) don’t have the experience Nigel has. Andy last year was in the same stage Scott is in this year," he said. "With them it’s not so much refinement, it’s learning." Stanton, on the other hand, is in the stage of polishing his skills, Golden said.

Because of Rowe’s lack of experience, Golden does not believe his performances will have any immediate impact on the team. This year will be used to make up for the years he didn’t dive, Golden said.

"He’s putting more focus on trying to gain a strong background, develop his skills and give himself a greater basis to develop future skills," Golden said.

Rowe’s skill levels on the 1- and 3-meter boards are about the same, Golden said.

A great amount of pressure now lies upon Rowe, Pryzybszewski and Lucero because the team is prohibited from using Stanton, for reasons concerning his admission records and the NCAA, until February 15, 1986. Also, Eric Schnissier, who placed fifth at the National Independent Championships last season, was killed last summer, and the team lacks depth, Golden said.

"They know there’s a lot more pressure on them to pick up the slack," he said.

More pressure means greater responsibility and extra motivation, which will have a cumulative effect by the end of the year, he said.

The Salukis do have a challenging season ahead of them, with meets against such top-ranked teams as Nebraska, Iowa, Miami and Alabama. But even with such tough competition, Golden feels the team will have a good year.

"We can go into the NICs and look for Chad and Andy to score for us," he said.

KATTREH: Cager battles injuries

In the Salukis opener against the University of Tennessee, Kattreh held All-American Sheila Collins to just 7 points. She was also the most successful Saluki at stopping the penetration of the Evansville guards, while she scored 17 points, her second best point total ever.

"I was happy with it. It felt good to score a lot of points after my high school career and there haven’t been that many games where I could," Kattreh said.

Her biggest challenge this year will be to use her potential to its fullest to be in pushing herself. She said she feels some pressure, but she does not need to think about it because the team has great potential and they are all pushing.

"The people who work hardest will get a chance to play, so I concentrate on giving my all in practice and when I play in games," Kattreh said.
