Health Service study still in works
By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer
University administrators still haven't decided on whether all or part of Student Health Services should be run by a private company.
A committee charged with studying a School of Medicine proposal to mesh the program with the Family Practice Residency Program at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale met Thursday. However, they did not recommend a course of action to President Albert Somit, who was unable to attend the meeting.
A decision was expected last month, said John Baker, director of planning and budgeting, but disagreements among committee members, particularly about whether it move the infirmary off campus.
The Medical School report recommended the existing eight- to 10-bed infirmary be student.

In these days of spiraling prices for everything from new cars to candy bars, $750 still buys a lot of a four-year-old aerial hook ladder discovered this week when the City of Carbondale accepted its $750 bid for a mothballed, 1981 American LaFrance ladder truck.
After soliciting bids for the decommissioned fire truck four times—three times with less than fruitful results, the City Council decided Monday to sell the truck to Lannom, the lone bidder. The truck was put to rest last year when the city purchased a new aerial hook truck.
Lannom, a retired coal miner who rebuilds old automobiles for a hobby, said Wednesday he is uncertain what the future holds for the fire truck. "I won't make any plans until I take the money over to them and they tell me it's mine," he said.
"I've bought a lot of other silly things," he added. "My kids and grandkids want me to keep it if for parades so they can ride on it. I really have no use for it. It's just one of those things that you catch." However, Lannom, who was a volunteer firefighter for Carbondale when the city purchased the ladder truck, did not rule out reselling the vehicle. "Maybe I'll face it, I'm just like anybody else," he said. "If I can sell it and make a profit on it, I will. If not, I'll keep it and play with it.
Lannom said he plans to contact several fire departments that the city failed to solicit bids from. If that fails to attract a buyer, he said, he may place an ad in the magazine of the car club he belongs to.
Acting Fire Chief Everett Rushing and other city officials believe the LaFrance is worth more than $750. But after soliciting bids four times, the truck was unable to attend the Robertson; Baker; Swinnburne, vice president for student affairs; and Rossing, who initiated arms shipments to which I accept full responsibility. May to sound out Iranian in foreign policy to determine whether we could have a political dialogue with reformist people in Iran," McFarlane told the Post. "I think it was a mistake to introduce any element of arms transfers into it."
In his written statement, McFarlane said he believed at the outset it was in U.S. interests to make contact with Iranians who favored improved relations with the West.
ски says Iran deal was a mistake
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Former presidential adviser Robert McFarlane said Thursday arms shipments to Iran turned out to be "a mistake" and took responsibility for the failure to anticipate harsh public and diplomatic reactions to the secret operation.
McFarlane, who initiated the overtures to Iran as White House national security adviser, issued a statement in which he admitted making a "serious error in judgment for which I accept full responsibility." McFarlane, who resigned last December, sought to elaborate on a Washington Post interview in which he portrayed the decision to use arms sales to improve relations with Iran and seek release of American hostages from Lebanon as an error. President Reagan dispatched McFarlane to Iran in May to sound out Iranian factions on improved relations, ending the Iran-Iraq war, quelling Iranian sponsorship of terrorism and seeking the safe return of the American hostages held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon.
"I think that it was sensible policy to determine whether we could have a political dialogue with reformist people in Iran," McFarlane told the Post. "I think it was a mistake to introduce any element of arms transfers into it."
In his written statement, McFarlane said he believed at the outset it was in U.S. interests to make contact with Iranians who favored improved relations with the West.
Smokers give habit a 24-hour kick
By Paula Kurtzweil
Staff Writer
Carl Rossing had a roll of Life Savers close at hand Tuesday. After 17 years of cigarette smoking, Rossing decided to give up his habit.
Rossing, a member of Billing Service and a part-time student, was one of an estimated 23 million people nationwide who participated in Thursday's Great American Smokeout.
"I always wanted to quit," Rossing said. "Thirty years of smoking, age just wasn't in my favor."
"I will not give up this habit for any reason," Rossing said. He threw away his remaining pack of cigarettes at the Wellness Center's display in the Student Center, admitting quitting was not easy. "But, I'll survive," he said.
For Greg Bennett, a freshman in physical therapy, giving up cigarettes has been a "long process," Bennett said. "It's been a battle for the past seven years."
"I was smoking down," Bennett said. "I'll get short of breath on the basketball court, but smoking is a good warm-up for Thanksgiving."

Haynes will run for mayor

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Norvell Haynes, a 57-year-old political activist, announced Thursday at a press conference in the Eureka C. Hayes Center that he is planning to run for mayor of Carbondale.

Haynes lost his bid for City Council in 1985. "I ran for City Council last time, and I came in dead last," he told reporters. But he said he thought the voters would be ready to vote for him in the April 6 election.

"It has become obvious that the city Council is not listening to the people of this city, especially in this part of town," he said, referring to the northeast part of Carbondale.

Haynes helped obtain signatures to put a referendum on the ballot that would change the way the City Council is elected. Carbondale council members are elected at-large, but Haynes is proposing that the city change to a ward-alderman form of government.

He said he feels this type of government would be more representative of the northeast section of the city and the student population.

Haynes is unemployed; however, he said he is working on beginning a marketing company to sell products from Southern Illinois to major cities around the nation. Chicago would be a major target area, he said.

Petition for ward-alderman system revived

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

A petition to change the way the City Council is elected has come back to life after the Carbondale Electoral Board killed a similar petition in August because of a legal challenge.

Norvell Haynes, who has announced his plans to run for mayor of Carbondale, and Dave Madlener, Undergraduate Student Organization member, originated the petition drive in August. They announced their plans at a press conference Thursday to restart the petition drive.

The petition seeks to place a referendum on the April ballot to change Carbondale's form of government from its current at-large system to a ward-alderman system. A ward-alderman form of government would require seven City Council members, because of the city's population. There are now four members. Each alderman would be elected to represent the people in his or her ward.

The August petition failed because state statutes require referenda seeking a change in the way a local government is run.

English Bill sounds louder than words

IT'S DIFFICULT ENOUGH for university students to make ends meet when they have to pay for their classes, when the teachers show little of the same in return. What's worse is when the instructor, interesting or not, can't effectively speak English.

The Senate approved of the bill 45-0. Thompson, however, said in his veto message that the bill was "a travesty," and that if made into law, would restrict "both education and interaction" with people from other cultures. Most proficiency complaints concern foreign teacher's assistants and professors.

IT'S REMARKS LIKE THESE that lead us to believe Thompson is no more aware of his constituent's needs than a decade ago, when he first ran for the statewide. There's no greater travesty in education than poor communication.

Besides, how can you want to understand your instructors as an obstacle to your education? The University has an English skills testing procedure for its instructors but it isn't prevalent. Those who fail the test still can get assigned to perform research work. If there's a shortage of instructors, however, these researchers can wind up teaching classes.

But there's an important point that neither Thompson nor anyone in the legislature has addressed: the University's English proficiency among students. This is a project begun with Springfield, and already the University wound up losing money on their staff who suddenly has to be address an English proficiency bill even has to be addressed accordingly. You'd think that the state's universities would examine an instructors' communication skills along with their academic qualifications before hiring them without giving either practice a second thought. It's a shame for all of us that Illinois universities may be placing business before necessity.

Quotable Quotes

"If, midway through the five-year period, people think I am not capable of carrying out the task, they should immediately start the process of replacing me," Indonesian's President Subarto, announcing he will seek a fifth term.

Letters

Editorial's view was absurd

Since when has the D.E. Senate approved the editorial column in the alternate periodical. The students pay for these classes with state and the University wind up losing money on their staff who suddenly has to be address an English proficiency bill even has to be addressed accordingly. You'd think that the state's universities would examine an instructors' communication skills along with their academic qualifications before hiring them without giving either practice a second thought. It's a shame for all of us that Illinois universities may be placing business before necessity.

Petition may be trump card

The article "Soviet students ask local students to join in petition" (D.E., Nov. 13) is misleading in suggesting that the petition "supporting a bilateral nuclear test ban" expresses the view of Soviet students.

The Komsomol Committee (whose secretary is said to have signed the letter) represents Soviet students and not the people of the Soviet Union.

A better understanding, and appreciation, of English among foreigners on campus could broaden their knowledge of Americans' culture. Americans, in turn, can broaden their own knowledge of other people, places and cultures. After all, isn't learning what higher education institutions are all about?

IT'S SAD THAT THIS ENGLISH PROFICIENCY bill even has to be addressed accordingly. You'd think that the state's universities would examine an instructors' communication skills along with their academic qualifications before hiring them without giving either practice a second thought. It's a shame for all of us that Illinois universities may be placing business before necessity.

Ferguson is a retired ski instructor who has been active in the peace movement for many years. She has been involved in numerous peace activities, including organizing anti-war protests and lobbying for nuclear disarmament.

"I believe that peace is not only possible but necessary," Ferguson said. "We must work together to create a world that is peaceful and just for all people."
Snow blankets upper Midwest

By United Press International

The latest in a series of winter storms blanketed sections of the upper Midwest with nearly a foot of snow Thursday, then headed to the Northeast where it still was digging out from 20 inches of snow that was dumped a day earlier.

The new storm brought rains and snow to lower Great Lakes and heavy snow to New England and the upper Northeast, threatening heavy snow over northern New England and upper New York state, and very high winds throughout New England, the National Weather Service said.

Armstrong mum on man's death

Carbondale police say a drug overdose may have caused the death of a Carbondale man found dead in his home Wednesday morning; however, the police are not releasing any further details.

According to police, J. Mark Armstrong, 45, of 704 S. Dixon St., was found about 9 a.m. Jackson County coroner Don Ragdale said there were no apparent injuries or marks on the man's body. He said results from toxicology lab tests done in St. Louis will reveal the cause of death within seven to 10 days.

Ragdale said Goff's body had been beheaded, and a friend after Goff failed to show up for work.

and I didn't like the aftereffects. Smoking would make me feel like a billion dollars" Bennett said. Bennett said he was smoking up to one and a half packs of cigarettes a day before he quit.

I want to quit, " he said. He said results from World War II. "I want to quit, I'll quit on my own. Don't smokers have any rights toward their own bodies?"

For employees of MVP Communications in Troy, Mich., the rewards of not smoking were financial. On Smokeout Day, General Manager Dick Hanson gave each of his 40 employees a $100 bill for not smoking on the job and a button saying "Kiss me, I don't smoke."

American Smoker Smith said the Great American Smoker Day does not lead anywhere. "Some people can't go cold turkey," Smith said, adding that many people don't have the time to concentrate on not smoking. In addition, Smith said too much publicity is given to the health hazards of cigarettes when there are other substances that may be equally as dangerous.

We still continue to burn high-sulfur coal, and there is a high percentage of preservatives in our food," Smith said. "They don't say much about that.

Smokeout turnout lower than year

NEW YORK, (UPI) — About 18 million people struggled through the 10th Great American Smokeout Thursday — 5 million less than last year — and a health official blasted a cigarette firm for distributing a smokers' "bill of rights" where the 24-hour nicotine fast.

The drop in the number of participants, found in a telephone survey by the American Cancer Society, broke a string of annual increases dating back to the first Smokeout.

"Not even a cattle prod would make me quit," said Jeff Sheppard, 22, as he bought a pack of Marlboro at Belle's Green Glass Lounge in Dallas.

RAGDALE, Ill. — "The death of a twin girls was probably caused by a drug overdose," the cook and housekeeper of the family said Wednesday. "We lost them both a year ago," she said.

Inspector Jack Riley, who was called to the scene, said he saw no signs of foul play.

IN CHICAGO, smokers at the city Health Department brought whistles to work and blew them at Smokeout marshals handing out lollipops in the building.

"The marshals said I wouldn't get a sucker if I didn't put my cigarette out," said Rose Mallon, a smoker since World War II. "I was, "When do you smoke?"Anyway?" If I want to quit, I'll quit on my own. Don't smokers have any rights toward their own bodies?"

elected to be placed on the ballot of the general municipal elections in each town.

Haynes said it is probably good that the city rejected the petition last time, "he said, adding that the rejection "prevented" the referendum momentum.

Madlener, who is considered a good bet to run for City Council in April, issued a statement to the press that he was "very disappointed" at the decision to reject the referendum.

"The city did us a favor, as a matter of fact, when they rejected the petition last time," he said, adding that the rejection "prevented" the referendum momentum.

Madlener lost his bid for City Council in 1985. With the population of Carbondale, including the students, upwards of 40,000, it is difficult for one coun­ cilmember to have their finger on the pulse of all those people," Madlener said. "It seems logical that if the views and concerns of 40,000 people are to be heard, then the number of the council must be increased and the number of their constituency must be decreased," he said.

Some people also who stopped by the Wellness Center's display, said the film "Death in the West" helped reinforce his decision to quit smoking.

Produced in England, the documentary film "Death in the West" tells the story of the so-called Marboro man, now a victim of lung disease.

Phillip Morris Co., maker of Marlboro cigarettes, obtained a court order barring the film from distribution in the United States when it was first released. But it has been shown in the United States for about five years now, ac­ cording to an announcement placed at the beginning of the film.

Rosing, who said he had seen the documentary on television, said the film "gets you thinking."

Although he admits cigarettes are harmful to his health, Gary Smith, junior, said he was not going to quit smoking for the Great American Smoker. Smith said the Great American Smoker Day does not lead anywhere. "Some people can't go cold turkey," Smith said, adding that many people don't have the time to concentrate on not smoking. In addition, Smith said too much publicity is given to the health hazards of cigarettes when there are other substances that may be equally as dangerous.

Foreign students’ holiday may be filled with emptiness

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

The number of local families that invite international students into their homes for the holidays has swelled to about 40, a five-year low, according to the vice president of the International Friends program.

Inga Solberg says it is "bittersweet" this year that "foreign students nowadays" participate in the campus Host Family Program more than ever before. "Four years ago there were 60 families participating in the program."

To many Americans, Thanksgiving is a time to reflect on their family tradition. "We see students leave," Solberg said.

Five teams race across N.Y. City to uncork wine

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Carrying bottles of French wine representing five countries raced by motorcycle, taxi, subway and limousine across the city Thursday in a contest to un­ cork the latest vintage of Beaujolais nouveau.

Proving fast on the draw was the driver of the racers, who were the first to offer their "baby" wines to the court to back of the food court in a large hotel.

Thousands of bottles of Beaujolais nouveau, a red fruity wine, were uncorked around the world to kick off the new wine season Thursday. In New York, bottles of the "new baby" were raced across Manhattan in a race sponsored by the Hotel Parker Meridian.

Scores for the New York meet were made by a panel of judges who were seated in a hotel in the hotel's lobby.

Drug kingpin's aide gets 20-year term

CHICAGO (UPI) — One day after reputed South Side drug kingpin "Fluky" Stokes was gunned down, his top aide was sentenced to 20 years in prison on drug charges.

"Good-bye, Big Bill," Cook County Criminal Court Judge Cherry Berkson said Wednesday as he sentenced William Hill, 48, for possession of heroin and cocaine with intent to deliver.

Hill, who weighs 330 pounds, was arrested in October 1983 while cutting cocaine in a South Side motel room, police said. He was convicted last August and had been scheduled for sentencing Tuesday, but the appearance was delayed because police were questioning Hill about the Stokes killing.

bought $10 million

CHICAGO (UPI) — Johnson Products Co. Inc. has secured a $10 million loan from First National Bank & Trust Co. of Los Angeles, the firm has confirmed.

The $10 million is the first installment on a $30 million five-year loan the company has been negotiating. The interest rate is 10 percent.

"This loan will provide additional short-term working capital," said company chairman and president.

Gang leader allowed to call only his lawyer

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge has barred reputed South Side gang leader Jeff Fort from placing telephone calls to anyone other than his lawyer.

The order was handed down Wednesday by Judge Charles R. Norgle in response to a request from the Justice Department.

Federal prosecutors said Fort, who is serving a jail term on drug charges at a federal prison in Bastrop, Texas, used his prison phone privileges to carry out crimes. Fort also faces trial along with four accomplices on charges of plotting terrorist activities on behalf of Libya.

Federal health officials, in a report coinciding with the Great American Smokeout, said Thursday that smoking is at its lowest level in over 30 years and the percentage of men smoking is at a 70-year low.

Only 30 percent of Americans over 18 now smoke cigarettes, a regular basis—down from nearly 45 percent who smoked when the Surgeon General issued his landmark finding in 1964 linking cigarette smoking to an increased risk of heart disease and cancer.

Cigarette smoking by men decreased to 33 percent in 1985 compared to rates well above 50 percent in the early 1960s. The National Centers for Disease Control report said the rate is "probably the lowest rate among men in this country (since) prior to World War II."

The 467-page document, "Smoking and Health: A National Status Report," was the first biennial report on the smoking issue since enactment of the Comprehensive Smoking Education Act in 1984. Requested by Congress, the report came during the annual Great American Smokeout, a national effort to get smokers to quit for 24 hours.

The report also presented the new finding that people who do not smoke early in life are less likely to quit smoking as adults.

Thirty-eight states have enacted legislation restricting the sale or distribution of tobacco products to minors, but the report said 12 states have no such laws. Fourteen states "have set the minimum age for purchasing tobacco products at 18."

Dr. Ollie Bowen, secretary of health and human services, urged in a letter accompanying the report that all states adopt 18 as the minimum age for legal purchase of tobacco. He said such laws "could have a strong preventive effect on early uptake of cigarette and other tobacco products."

"Each year more than 400,000 Americans die prematurely from smoking related cardiovascular diseases, cancer and chronic lung diseases," Bowen said.

Turkey might be a poisonous feast

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials issued a warning Thursday against the "three classic mistakes" that lead to food poisoning from traditional Thanksgiving turkey dinners.

Turkey accounts for 10 percent to 21 percent of all poisoning cases where the contaminated food was identified, the national Centers for Disease Control said in a report one week before millions of American homes serve the meal.

It said cooking turkey "calls for particular care because of the large volume of meat to be handled and cooked, the practice of preparing it the day before it is served, and the amount of handling needed to remove the meat from the carcass."

The federal health agency said it receives reports of approximately 25 outbreaks of food poisoning annually, with ham, potato or egg salad and poultry the most common foods involved.

Dr. Rob Tauxe of the CDC's enteric disease division said "three classic mistakes" usually occur that lead to illness.

"First, you have to make sure the turkey is cooked all the way through. The second thing is... it's a mistake to put the cooked turkey back into the pan where the raw turkey has been. Anything the raw turkey has touched should be cleaned with soap and water."

"Third, if the turkey is going to be held for any length of time... it's a real problem to try to refrigerate a big bird like that... cut it up. It needs to be refrigerated.

According to the CDC, the toxin is heat resistant and reheating food will not prevent the illness.

pound transfer Mike Richardson.

SECOND ON THE Salukis' weekend hit list will be tiny William Penn, a Division III school nestled in Oskaloosa, Iowa. Penn's total enrollment is a scant 330 students.

While the Statement posted a 16-10 record last year for coach Leon Richardson, they lost "seven outstanding basketball players," according to Richardson.

Three transfers might help the loss of most of last year's squad, but Richardson said it may take a while, with all the new faces, for his team to get in sync.

FINALLY, THE Monday night bout pits Murray State's Racers against the Salukis. Murray State finished last season 17-12 overall, counting among their wins a 79-66 pasting of SIUC.

Herrin, who scouted the MSU-Turk exhibition game, said the Racers control the tempo well and play sound fundamental basketball. This year, the Racers are rebuilding after losing starters 6-7 forward Chuck Glass (18.2 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and 6-5 guard
Zedrick Macklin (12.6 ppg). But returning starters Donn Mann, a 5-9 guard, 6-6 forward Jeff Martin (12.7 ppg last season) and 6-4 forward Jeff Kimbrough should provide a steady nucleus for second-year coach Steve Newton's club.

Add senior 6-7 forward
Derrick Flowers off the bench and transfers Craig Eversoll (5-9 guard, 6.8 ppg last season) and Wayne
Mocklin 02.6 ppg last season from Virginia
Tech) and Wayne
Tiller (6-5 forward from Tennessee), and the makings of another successful second half are there for the Racers.

LSU and Iowa come to town to challenge men swimmers

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

This weekend’s double dual men’s swim meet with Louisiana State University and Iowa will prove to be one of the best contests of the season, said Saluki coach Doug Ingram. The competition will begin at 7 p.m. in the Rec Center Pool.

“This is going to be a great swimming meet,” said Ingram. “They [Iowa] have already said that this is their big effort for the fall. They’re sinking all their eggs into this basket.”

A very strong rivalry exists between Iowa and 14th-ranked LSU, said Saluki coach Doug Drury. “This will be the Salukis’ first meeting with the 12-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes. The meet, which was held at Iowa, ended 77-38 victory. "They (the Hawkeyes) claim that they are the best non-Sun Belt team," said Ingram. “We say we’re the best team on the margin of the Sun Belt and above. It’s a real rivalry.”

Iowa, which is ranked 13th in the nation, has five-time Big Ten champion John Davy. The Hawkeye tanker is tough in the 200-yard butterfly, 200-yard individual medley as well as the 500-yard freestyle.

The Salukis will counter with top Saluki tankers Erwin Jenkins, junior forward Murphy Bonds and senior Metro Conference field goal shooting with 8.8 percent.

Although the squads boast opposite styles of play, they share much in common.

Both return four starters but lost a leading scorer to graduation. Both are picked to win their respective conferences. Scott and Johns were both voted coaches of the year by their conferences in 1983-'84.

Scott, entering his 10th year at the helm, also draws nearer to the 13-year veteran Johns in winning percentage, .650 to .60.

stole the ball and took it the length of the court, forcing Tiger point guard Ronnie Hibbler to intentionally foul. The foul unintentionally broke Kattreb’s nose.

Johns said, “I hope the emotion of his fall has worn off since they finally beat us. They were extremely motivated and dominated us physically.”

A year has gone by, and Kattreb forgot who hit her, although she remembers scoring the game-high 16 points.

“I hope to start the season like that again this year — except for the nose injury,” Kattreb said.

KATTREB, WHO recently underwent knee surgery, said she feels better and will reach 100 percent capability by gametime.

Along with the senior Kat-treb, probable starters for SU include senior point guard Maritza Jenkins, junior forward Bridgett Bonds and junior center Mary Berghuis.

Last year, the 6-2 lane-filler Berghuis scored 15 points against the Tigers. The 5-11 leader Bonds got into foul trouble and scored just seven. Jenkins pitched in eight, with six assists.

Scott will not name the lineup for sure at this time, as she awaits results from the team’s only public scrimmage at Mascoutah High School Gym, 7:30 p.m. tonight.

FOR THE TIGERS, last year Hibbler paced the game with 12 points. A junior who averaged 13.8 points per game (.90) with 4.0 assists, Hibbler will likely pass to the team’s returning scoring leader, 5-10 junior forward Wanda Dillard (14.3 ppg).

5-10 senior Phillip Vaughn will probably take the center spot. Vaughn led MSU in rebounds with 8.8 per game last year. Vaughn will team with 5-11 senior forward Monte Glass, who led the Metro Conference in field goal shooting with 56 percent.

Although the squads boast opposite styles of play, they share much in common.

Women cagers open against speedy Tigers

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

When Tigers and Salukis do battle, normally it’s the small, shrewd beasts who chase the speedy racing dogs. That is exactly what will occur when the women’s basketball season opens with 7 p.m. on Friday at Mississippi State, Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the MSU Field House.

The Tigers (16-12 last year) will have to fine tune their fast line up while the Salukis (25-4 last year) will counter with tall, muscle players.

"We do have some size and we have some ability to score," said Scotty Devine, the Salukis’ coach. "They do have size, so we’ll have to move them around."

While MSU will certainly have the physical edge in an attempt to force SIUC out of a controlled offense, two factors could provide the Salukis with the edge.

"They have a good point guard, and the Tigers have a nine-player roster composed of several returnees and two rookies. Should they get into foul trouble or injury, they may have to relent the pressure."

"If they let us into our half-court offense, I don’t think they’ll let us. We may have to chase them up and down the court," he added.

HERRIN ALSO BELIEVES the NCAA’s new three-point line will be a distinct advantage for the Salukis this season, especially perimeter players such as guards Steve Middleton, Doug Novesek and Shane Brown.

"We’ve got good shooters, and the (three-point shot) will make the game more exciting," Herrin said. "I like it because it puts the shooting back into basketball."

Another facet of the game that should help the Salukis out is the arrival of 6-9, 235-pound Tim Richardson at the center position. Last year, the Salukis often fielded a 6-4 and under lineup.

Richardson is expected to provide the rebounding ability that plagued the Salukis last season, and will probably be counted on to score more as the season progresses, Herrin said.

SEASON-OPENING FOE Wisconsin-Stevens Point may be a Division III team, but Herrin says the Salukis "may be starting the season with a pretty tough game."

Five consecutive conference championships, three NAIA national titles and national appearances in the last four years and the NAIA’s best fivevesses at 23-6 (.806 winning percentage) puts the Pointers among the nation’s best NAIA schools.

Herrin also sported the fourth-best defense in the NCAA, according to the Intercollegiate Basketball Report. Last year, allowing opponents a mere 56 points per game.

History — as well as the home court — will give MSU an advantage with a 4-1 lead in the series against his former player, Scott. In addition to the bad luck against his alma mater, Scott conceded the Salukis winning an opening game for the past few years.

"We’ve got some quick people to put in against their quick people, but our depth is young," Scott said. "I’m not sure we want to throw them into this type of game."

"I don’t try to think about that," Scott said. "Last year, the Salukis nailed that only one who wanted Tigers by a score of 71-56 at the MSU Field House. After playing a tight first half the game opened up when emotions took over."

While most students are holding their noses in classes on Thanksgiving leftovers, Saluki men’s basketball coach Rich Herrin and his team will be kicking off the 1986-87 basketball season.

The Salukis play two games over Thanksgiving, Friday against Wisconsin-Stevens Point and Saturday against William Penn. On Monday, Dec. 1 — the first day back from the holiday — the Salukis take on the Murray State Racers. All three games start at 7:30 p.m.

Herrin, in his second year at the helm, hopes the Salukis can start this holiday season off right with a 3-0 record.

"I think we could start out by going 0-3," Herrin said. "I’d like to think that we can finish around 500 (during the regular season) and maybe compete for hosting a Valley (postseason) tournament game."

Herrin says this year’s cagers are faster and stronger than last year’s squad, adding experience, confidence and depth to his team.

"We’re just much improved," Herrin said. "I thought that the 90 points scored against the Turkish National team was an exhibition win for SIUC wasn’t bad, but that’s a lot of numbers posted by his cagers before long."

"We’ve molded a system here to fit the skills of our personnel," Herrin said. "We will definitely move the ball up the court and play up-tempo basketball."

The Pointers are ranked No. 25 in the NCAA poll and will come in the Arena after a tough tipoff tournament featuring NAIA powerhouse No. 6 St. Thomas of Aquina and No. 23 Kearney State.

The Pointers played one exhibition game, winning 86-66 over a tough Yugoslav national team. The Yugoslavs have been playing the likes of Big Ten powerhouse Illinois and defending SEC champions Kentucky on their current U.S. tour.

Herrin says this year’s Pointers are faster, more experienced and have an improved three-point game. Herrin is looking forward to seeing his club get a win in the Arena against a tough opponent.

The Pointers opened the season at Memphis State, Nov. 15, taking on the Murray State Racers. They also opened the season with a 72-69 win over a tough Yugoslav national team. The Yugoslavs have been playing the likes of Big Ten powerhouse Illinois and defending SEC champions Kentucky on their current U.S. tour.

Leading the Pointers will be All-America forward Tim Naegeli, a second-year junior.

Senior sharpshooter Doug Novesek is just one of the many long-range weapons the Salukis can call upon this season.

"He’s just a good player," Scott said. "He’s going to do it by running." Tyso

"I don’t try to think about that," Scott said. Last year, the Salukis nailed the only one who wanted Tigers by a score of 71-56 at the MSU Field House. After playing a tight first half the game opened up when emotions took over."

"He’s the champion of the world," Scott said. "He’s going to do it by running." Tyson said.

The fight at the Las Vegas Hilton will be televised by HBO as part of an eight-bout series to unify the heavyweight title. The winner of Saturday’s fight will meet the winner of a Dec. 12 bout between World Boxing Association champ Tim Witherspoon and Tony Tubbs in January.

The winner of the January fight advances to the unification bout against International Boxing Federation champ Michael Spinks.

Tyson, a 3-1½ favorite over Berbick, is favored to win the tournament and is already being liked to some of boxing’s great champions.

Ring control key to Tyson, Berbick strategy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Champion Mike Tyson and challenger Trevor Berbick say they will employ comparable strategies for Saturday night’s World Boxing Council title fight.

The two have closed their training sessions to the public but promise to treat the center of the ring and back up their assertions with their 12-round efforts.

"I definitely will be in the middle of the ring," said Tyson, who at 20 is bidding to become boxing’s youngest heavyweight champ. "That gives me a better chance to evade his punches and throw mine. I think I’ll back him up. If he stays on the ropes, we’ll see how much fun he’ll have."

"He’ll get what he wants," Berbick said. "It’s not a hard strategy, he usually comes to you. He’s a big guy, with a big head and big body and he comes at you. He can hide that big head."

Tyson of Albany, N.Y., is 27-0 with 25 knockouts. Yet, Berbick of Miami is the champ’s strong
