Holiday feast has long link with turkeys

By Annette Holder
City Writer

Gobbling up turkey is as much a part of Thanksgiving as the pilgrims.

Turkeys were eaten at the first Thanksgiving dinner, said Kay Carr, SIUC associate professor in history.

The first Thanksgiving in 1621 was a religious ceremony, giving thanks to God for surviving the harsh winter, Carr said. Only 44 of the 102 pilgrims survived.

Abraham Lincoln later declared Thanksgiving a national holiday during the Civil War—a time when turkeys may not have been so plentiful.

"People began to look around at what they might have eaten," Carr said. "Wild turkeys were becoming scarce for those living in the 19th and 20th century, but they were plentiful in 1621."

The pilgrims ate three or four turkeys this first Thanksgiving in 1621, but other meat was consumed as well, Carr said.

Despite the scarcity of wild turkeys at the beginning of the century, the traditional Thanksgiving meat has survived.

Defaulters to lose tax refunds

Policy latest effort to collect on loans

By Katie Fitzgerald
General Assignment Writer

Students who default on loans may lose their 1991 state tax refunds through a crackdown by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

The crackdown will aid in the collection of state and federal defaulted loans of Illinois residents.

"Our concern is that money loaned out is returned," said Ruth Stottat, ISAC spokeswoman.

ISAC has notified 106,000 student loan defaulters the agency is authorized to garnish state income tax returns, lottery winnings and up to 25 percent of state employee earnings.

After notification, defaulters are allowed 30 days to respond before action is taken, she said.

The initiative will be in effect for 1992 state income tax returns.

Officials have no way of knowing the exact amount of money expected to be confiscated from tax refunds, but ISAC estimates the average state tax return to be about $50, Stottat said.

This initiative is the latest of several in increasing efforts by ISAC to get students to repay their defaults, she said.

It follows federal legislation initiated about three years ago that authorizes garnishing of wages and withholding tax returns, she said.

It is the first time this action will be taken at the state level.

SIUC Financial Aid Director Pam Britton said she favors the measure as an option to collect from defaulters.

"I think it's important to protect the integrity of the loan program in that individuals repay their loans. However, in any garnishment situation, they need to take into consideration the defaulters financial situation," Britton said.

Police look to cut down on fatalities

By Rob Neff
Police Writer

Police nationwide will start cracking down on drunken and reckless driving this Thanksgiving to reduce traffic fatalities during the holiday season.

The Combined Accident Reduction Effort is a nationwide traffic safety program that involves all highway patrol and state police agencies in the United States and Canada to focus on drunken drivers, speeders and other motorists committing moving violations.

Capt. William Powers of the Illinois State Police in Du Quoin said his office will put another dozen officers on the road and conduct roadblocks during the official Thanksgiving season.

Thanksgiving season runs from 6 tonight to midnight Sunday.

Last Thanksgiving, 22 people died on Illinois highways.

Powers hopes the added enforcement will bring this figure down.

Faculty plan to worry less about research

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

Emphasis on research is the heart of the difference between the faculty 21st Century Plan and former Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's Strategic Plan, both of which outline goals to lead the University into the next century.

The 21st Century Plan recommends placing less emphasis on SIUC striving for Carnegie Research I classification, unlike the Strategic Plan, which considers Research I status vital to the University.

SIUC currently is a Carnegie Research II university.

The Strategic Plan was developed by Pettit in September 1990 to guide the entire SIU system into the 21st century.

The SIUC 21st Century Plan, created by a five-member faculty committee, is designed only for the Carbondale campus. The plan was made public Nov. 18 at the annual faculty meeting. It is currently up for review before the SIUC Faculty Senate and the Graduate Council.

Poll to check out fall break opinion

By Katie Fitzgerald
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC Faculty Senate and Undergraduate Student Government are polling their constituents in response to complaints from faculty and students about fall break.

University officials implemented a mid-semester break three years ago after a city-sponsored Halloween party was canceled.

The Undergraduate Student Government executive cabinet will submit a bill to the senate next month to abolish the 1993 fall break to secure a week-long Thanksgiving break, said USG president Jack Sullivan.

Dozen Dawgs named all-conference

Center Francis selected for first team honors

By Todd Eschman
Sports Writer

Gateway Conference coaches and sports information directors did not know much about the football Salukis before the season began.

The coaches and SIDs did not know the Dawgs would finish in second place in the conference. In fact, they picked them to finish last in a preseason poll. They did not realize SIUC had anything more than a passing offense. Yet the Salukis balanced the attack, rushing for almost as many yards as they passed for.

But their prophecy that Saluki senior center Mark Francis would receive postseason honors came true when the Gateway announced its 1991 all-conference team Tuesday.

Francis received first team honors as voted by coaches throughout the conference. Six other Salukis were named to the all-conference second team and five received honorable mention.

"I thought I had a pretty good chance because I think I played well in the conference games," Francis said. "I was really pleased last year to be named Honorable mention. But the whole team really came together this year and it helped that we played so well."

The Dawgs balanced their offensive attack in '91, racking up 1,789 yards on the ground to complement 2,003 passing yards.

Francis said the Salukis offensive line played a big part in the offensive balance.

Other senior linemen to receive honors were tackle Tom Roth and tight end Doug Amaya, both named to the All-Gateway second team. Roth helped Francis anchor an improved, young line. Amaya caught 15 passes despite missing the last five games of the year with a knee injury. He also provided downfield blocking.

Women's basketball to enter hostile territory for first time

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's basketball team passed its first test of the season, defeating Illinois 73-48 in its home opener.

But SIUC coach Cindy Scott said the Salukis will have to continue their winning ways on the road Wednesday at Tennessee Tech and Saturday at Murray State if they hope to make a run for the conference title.

"Good teams win on the road," Scott said. "We're going to find out a lot about our ball club this week. These games will tell us whether we can compete on the road in a hostile situation."

The Salukis have won their last 14 home contests, but they compiled a 6-9 road record last season.

The Salukis' attack will feature junior point guard Anita Scott, who is the catalyst in their new run-and-gun offense.

Scott poured in 15 points in the opener against the Illini and added five rebounds, six assists and three steals.

"Anita showed in the second half (of the Illinois game) the kind of player she has become," Cindy Scott said. "She's going to be a barometer of how well our team does this season."

The Saluki coach said she also hopes senior guard Karrie Redeker can continue to perform as she did against Illinois.

Redeker put on a defensive clinic in the Nov. 22 game, holding 1990-91 Big 10 Freshman of the Year Mandy Cunningham to 4 points on 12 shots.

"Karrie shut down Cunningham and forced Illinois out of some things that they wanted to do offensively," she said.

Tennessee Tech returns only one starter from a squad that finished 22-8 and qualified for the NCAA tournament last season as the Ohio Valley Conference champion.

The Golden Eaglettes split their two previous games this season, defeating Furman 86-67 and losing to Western Kentucky 92-66.

Scott said although Tennessee Tech is rebuilding it still should be considered a threat.

Six TV games to give MVC favorite Salukis high level of notoriety

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's basketball team will reach a higher visibility level than ever before as they play six games on television in the 1991-92 season.

The Salukis have two games scheduled on ESPN, four games on KBSI-TV 23 and two games on the MVC Network on Sportschannel in Chicago.

The Dawgs played once on ESPN last season against St. Louis University, but it was scheduled at 11 p.m. The games will be shown at better hours this year, coach Rich Herrin said.

The team plays at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 11 against Northern Illinois and 2 p.m. Feb. 29 against Southwest Missouri State.

Herrin said the team is excited about the times.

"The scheduling is a step in the right direction," Herrin said. "We have more visibility and that gives a better selling point to the team. I don't think it will decrease the ticket sales. If anything it will increase them. I think people will see us on TV and maybe come and see us the next time we play."

Missouri Valley Conference commissioner Doug Elgin said ESPN schedules teams projected to play well.

"ESPN likes to have representation

By Todd Eschman

Saluki head basketball coach Rich Herrin said his team has a long road ahead of it before it is proven worthy of preseason accolades.

The Dawgs were picked by coaches and media to win the Missouri Valley Conference, but Herrin said his team will have to keep improving to accomplish that feat.

SIUC, who opened the 1991-92 season with a 73-67 win over Cal-State last Sunday at the Arena, will go on the road for three straight games. The Salukis will be in Western Kentucky tonight, at Murray State Saturday and at Austin Peay Dec. 7.

Western Kentucky placed third in the Sunbelt in 1990-91 with a 14-14 record. Murray State is the defending Ohio Valley Conference champion. The Racers finished '91 with a 24-9 record and an NCAA tournament bid. Austin Peay was third in the Ohio Valley with a 15-14 record.

Herrin said the win Sunday was big especially since his team has to hit the road for three games.

"It's very important to get off to a good start this season," Herrin said. "With our next three games all being on the road, Sunday's game is even bigger. Western Kentucky, Murray State and Austin Peay is really going to pressure us. They are going to be tough ball games."

Making a starting lineup hasn't been a big concern for Herrin. He said eight to nine players will see playing time in every game.

"We don't worry about a lineup," he said.

"The players don't even know who is going to start. (Junior forward Ashraf) Amaya is the premier player in the Valley and will definitely be in the starting lineup as long as he is healthy. It really isn't that important who starts. It is the five players you have on the floor at the end that is important."

'Wizard' grabs 12th Gold Glove

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ozzie Smith, defying expectations he would be surpassed as the National League's premier shortstop, Tuesday was honored with his 12th consecutive Gold Glove for his feats of fielding wizardry.

The St. Louis Cardinal star, a Gold Glove winner every year since 1980, is now tied with outfielders Roberto Clemente and Willie Mays for the third most Gold Gloves.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson and pitcher Jim Kaat, who share the Gold Glove lead with 16 awards, also were honored at Tuesday's inaugural Gold Glove Award Charity Dinner as the first inductees to the Gold Glove Hall of Fame.

Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs became the all-time leader among second basemen with his ninth in a row.

Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr., honored last week as the American League's Most Valuable Player, led a list of six players to receive their first Gold Gloves. The others were Toronto second basemen Roberto Alomar, Chicago White Sox third baseman Robin Ventura, St. Louis catcher Tom Pagnozzi and San Francisco first baseman Will Clark and third baseman Matt Williams.

U.S. TO HOUSE HAITIAN REFUGEES AT BASE — The Pentagon prepared to set up a tent city at Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba for Haitians crowded onto Coast Guard cutters Tuesday despite fears it could encourage more refugees to take to the dangerous seas. Defense Department officials said the emergency camp, ordered by Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Gen. Colin Powell on Monday, would accommodate the more than 3,100 Haitians on Coast Guard vessels.

SUDAN FIGHTING FORCING MASS EXODUS — At least a quarter of a million people are fleeing fierce fighting in southern Sudan, according to a relief worker who just returned from the area. Don Ife, a Norwegian aid worker, said the roads in southern Sudan were flooded by hundreds of thousands of displaced people moving toward the Ugandan border in the hope of escaping tribal warfare. "After 15 years in Africa," Ife said, "this is the worst scene I have ever seen."

BUSH'S APPROVAL FALLS 16 PERCENT — President Bush's approval level has dropped 16 percentage points since mid-October and only one in four people have confidence in his economic leadership, a New York Times/CBS poll showed Tuesday. As for next year's election, Bush barely beats any unnamed Democratic candidate and almost as many people believe he will be beaten as think his re-election is a sure thing.

SENATE APPROVES SECOND JOBLESS BILL — The Senate approved Tuesday a new bill to help the jobless with additional weeks of compensation and giving unemployed in all states 13 or 20 weeks if they exhausted their benefits after Feb. 28. President Bush is expected to sign it. Under terms of the bill, jobless in states with the highest unemployment would get 20 weeks of additional benefits and those with fewer out of work would get 13 weeks.

POLL: DOCTORS FEEL DUTY TO TREAT HIV — AIDS has placed an enormous strain upon physicians, according to a study released Tuesday that survey of 1,121 general internists, family physicians and general practitioners nationwide. University of California-San Francisco researchers found 68 percent of the doctors believed that they have a responsibility to treat people with HIV infection. But 50 percent indicated they would not treat HIV patients if they had a choice.

Helping homeless full-time job for local woman

By Jefferson Robbins
Special Assignment Writer

Three days before Thanksgiving, Elsie Speck passed a typical afternoon advising homeless families and taking phone calls at the Good Samaritan House in Carbondale.

"I just got a call from someone who needs help on a deposit for electricity," Speck said, hanging up. "Otherwise they'll have no heat. She's five months pregnant and they have a small child."

Speck has directed Good Samaritan House, a homeless shelter offering housing, meals and shower facilities, since it opened in 1984.

The Carbondale woman had to battle a sorority to acquire the house where Good Samaritan was established at 701 S. Marion. At the last minute, the Greek organization pulled out, leaving the property for Speck's purposes, she said.

Before moving to the permanent headquarters, Good Samaritan was located in Carbondale City Hall for a year and a half.

"I don't think they liked the smell of food cooking," she said.

The program began as a project of the Carbondale Interchurch Council, a regional group of about 20 churches, which also organized the Carbondale Food Bank about nine years ago.

Speck's participation in Interchurch led her to set up Good Samaritan. Since then, the project has become a full-time job.

"This is my occupation," Speck said. "I just felt sorrow for people who had no place to go."

The house serves about 450 people each year, and 20 people currently are housed in basement living quarters. Good Samaritan only has space for about 25 people to shelter comfortably, she said.

Speck said she has not noticed that the holiday season depresses her guests, but she finds something upsetting in the idea of being homeless on Thanksgiving.

"There's a kind of sadness, I would think."

Good Samaritan and the Newman Catholic Student Center combine forces each holiday season to provide meals for the Carbondale homeless. Good Samaritan's guests will file into Newman Thursday for their Thanksgiving meal, Speck said.

The budget for the house is a goulash of different types of funding, both private and public. The mainstay of the operation's finance is $64,500 annually from Illinois Public Aid, but this can be dicey, Speck said.

"We didn't get our first check from them this year for four months," she said. The check was delayed by the Illinois legislature's budget flap during the summer.

The project receives funding from other sources, including about $19,000 a year from private donations, she said. This amount, plus a small injection of funds from the Salvation Army, helps Good Samaritan aid former tenants who get a new start in their lives.

Despite its name and association with the Interchurch Council, Good Samaritan House is a secular operation with no religious affiliations.

"We have a family that comes Wednesdays and makes everyone a good dinner," she said. "Afterwards, for whoever wants to stay around, they hold a Bible service."

The shelter will not accept just anyone coming in off the street. Good Samaritan's clients have to carry referrals from government aid agencies or other shelters. But homeless people picked up for vagrancy sometimes find their way to her door.

"The police department could also be considered a referral," she said.

Juggling paperwork and keeping a non-profit operation under budget can get hectic, Speck admitted, especially when running the only homeless shelter in the city. But with the public's help, the Good Samaritan project should continue through many Thanksgivings and Christmases to come.

"There's some negatives," Speck said, "but on the whole I think the community is very supportive of our effort here."

Nathan Trask, 21, searches for a book in his suitcase, which contains his only possessions. He was in the room Tuesday that he shares with four other men at the Good Samaritan House in Carbondale. Trask said he came to Carbondale from Jerseyville because of a girlfriend, but the relationship did not work, leaving him no place to stay. He did not want to go home but cannot find a job in Carbondale. He is still looking.

Colleges, universities need financial help

PEOPLE EXPECT TIMES TO BE hard and business to suffer during a recession, but often times they do not realize education suffers too.

This nation is facing those tough times. Consumer's faith in the economy is lower than in the recession of 1982. Almost everyone is feeling the squeeze in one form or other, but SIUC is in dire straits.

The University recently received more bad news from preliminary IBHE reports recommending a 4 percent tuition increase and no funds for library materials and new programs. On the positive side of this, the Illinois Board of Education did recommend a 4.5 percent salary increase for SIUC faculty and staff.

THE LAST SALARY INCREASE the faculty and staff received was 2 percent in fiscal year '91, shortly before the 5 percent tuition increase last summer.

This should say something to people all over Illinois. Nobody is willing to take a tax increase, but everyone moans and groans when there is a tuition increase.

Before last summer there had not been a tuition increase since the 1988-1989 school year. Prior to that time tuition had been steadily rising every year. In 1980 tuition to SIUC was a mere $622, in 1981 it rose to $703, in 1982 to $810. The biggest jump came in 1987 when tuition rose from $1,069 to $1,318.

People need to understand that in order to get quality education universities need quality faculty and staff, which universities cannot get if they do not pay a decent salary.

IF UNIVERSITIES DO NOT HAVE good faculty and staff they probably will not offer challenging and thought provoking courses. In turn enrollment drops off and the school loses more money. Many students are dependent on area colleges and universities for their education, and are thereby limited to the kind of education they can receive.

Education needs to be the backbone of our society if this country is to survive. People need to wake up and realize that if they do not help finance education, it may only be available someday to the upper class, who can afford it.

People need to help others for holidays

Despite the recession and the empty pockets popping up all over the nation, we should remember that there are those people who have less.

It is difficult to be in the giving mood when everyday the economy gets bleaker and bleaker. But there are those who always remember the people that suffer everyday and those who will continue to suffer even after most of us recover from the recession.

These people, who help others, should be commended for their efforts. They may bring only a few moments of joy to a family or an individual, but without these givers, that family or that individual may have no joy at all.

The Newman Catholic Student Center is one place that thinks of those unfortunate people in Carbondale every year. The Newman Center offers a Thanksgiving dinner to anyone who wishes to come. A ticket for the dinner may be purchased for a dollar, which is refunded at the door.

If a person does not have a dollar they may come anyway. Last year the center fed more than 700 people. Not all of those who come are poor. Some have no family or are elderly. But for one day out of the year, all those people are rich with friendship and the joy of giving thanks. Remember to be thankful this Nov. 28. Things could be worse.

Letters to the Editor

Lower rates weaken economy

I wonder if anyone at the DE checked with competent professionals before taking an editorial position on a highly controversial but essentially empirical matter, namely the question of the impact of interest rate controls on credit card companies.

For the past 12 years I have worked as a consultant to international donor organizations. No matter where I travel in the lesser-developed countries of Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Caribbean, I find the financial landscape littered with the wreckage of once prospering institutions bankrupt by the simplistic prescriptions of politicians seeking to benefit certain groups with lower interest rates.

According to a well-observed proposition known as the "Iron Law of Interest Rate Restrictions," first clearly stated in the 1970s by a Costa Rican economist now at Ohio State University, any effort to benefit small borrowers by controlling the rate of interest on small loans invariably leads to a diversion of credit away from the intended beneficiaries.

To someone who has observed this phenomenon in hundreds of institutions in a score of countries, there can be no doubt that interest rate restrictions such as those proposed by the Senate would result in millions of Americans who fit certain statistical profiles being denied access to consumer credit. The impact on an economy already sputtering from weak demand could be devastating.

The recent call by Washington politicians to institute a thoroughly discredited financial markets policy is one more piece of evidence — along with the exploding budget deficit, the absurd external debt, and the increasing limitation of our industrial capacity to the assembly of components manufactured in other countries — that this once-great nation is rapidly joining the ranks of the less-developed countries. —John F. Gadow, adjunct professor of economics.

Beer ad ban infringes rights

With cigarette advertisements being banned from television and taken out of some magazines, Dr. Antonia Novello, surgeon general of the United States, now demands that breweries "voluntarily" ban advertising from television that might appeal to young people on the basis of lifestyle, sex, sports or "risky activities."

In the case at hand, there is no evidence that beer commercials inexorably lead children down the primrose path to a drunkard's grave. A link between the two never has been convincingly demonstrated. Sure, some teenagers who watch TV will get their hands on beer. Some of them will get plastered; some will stop at a single swallow because they don't like the taste. It's a free country. At least it used to be a free country.

As for alcohol, of course we must have laws against drunken driving. We can justify laws against narcotic drugs because of the clear damage that addiction presents to society as a whole. Nothing is wrong with regulations to protect workers from serious occupational hazards. Government has the power, and should exercise the power, to punish fraud and deception in the marketplace.

But the surgeon general is talking about beer. He is talking about restricting the breweries to TV commercials that have people reciting somber messages like, "According to the surgeon general, women should not drink alcoholic beverages during pregnancy because of the risk of birth defects. Consumption of alcoholic beverages impairs your ability to drive a car or operate machinery, and may cause health problems." Thanks, but no thanks.

If beer advertising were perceptive, it would be one thing. If beer were an unlawful product, as it was in the days of Prohibition, its advertising could be prohibited. But those TV commercials of leggy girls and sun-bronzed men are not deceptive. The characters appear to be having a good time drinking beer and most importantly enjoying life the way they want to.

Although, I don't smoke cigarettes and I don't really like beer, I do love freedom. And banning the advertisement of a perfectly legal product, I think, not only is going too far but infringes on our right to watch harmless and entertaining beer commercials. —Kiley J. Piercy, freshman, undecided.

University needs to separate sports from academics

I agree with Jon L. Fincher's idea to use the German system of separating sports into private clubs, away from academia. Since sports-talk is the modern opiate of the masses (it quenches the human instinct for intellectual activity with a useless debate about sports that lacks real-world content), they should be separated from all state institutions, just as religion is, and left to private enterprise.

An integrity of exercise and health education should replace the expensive games and sport infrastructure currently draining school budgets and intellectual morale nationwide.

Economically, it would be a boon to the economy. Money spent on sports could be spent elsewhere, both by the consumer and the Board of Trustees. Extracurricular realities would increase in a pro-collegiate manner, not just more hedonistic jocks partying on the Strip.

Perhaps the University could help out then with a cultural/civic center in downtown Carbondale. Money from scrapping the iron from that ugly stadium might cover it.

Carbondale finally might become the cultural mecca that so logically belongs here. The University finally will have become the serious place it has so long struggled to become. —Ken Petersen, sophomore, undecided.

Jeannette Miller, dietician for the American Heart Association, said turkey is a healthy food with a 370-year tradition.

People consume 45 million turkeys on Thanksgiving and 18 1/2 pounds a person each year. Turkey is a meat more people are eating because it is a healthy food because of a low fat content, she said.

"Both chicken and turkey are healthy," Miller said. "But we generally eat turkey without the skin, which makes it better for us."

Miller advised cooking a turkey until the drumsticks wriggle easily, the breast juice runs clear and the turkey's internal temperature reaches 180 degrees.

The pop-up thermometers manufacturers put on turkeys are not always accurate and should not be trusted, she said.

Without these proper precautions, people can contract salmonella poisoning.

"This bacteria causes a flu type reaction so many people pass it off," Miller said. "A lot of cases of poisoning are not even reported because people think they have the flu."

Local grocery stores have planned for an increase in turkey sales this time of the year.

Country Fair Manager Don Maas said most people are buying the lower-priced turkeys, but the premium turkeys such as Butterball and Honeysuckle also are selling well.

National Super Markets also should have plenty of turkeys, said meat cutter Tim Dilg. The store's best seller is the premium turkey.

"The turkeys are just flying out of here," Dilg said.

that SIUC should move up to Carnegie Research I status within five to 10 years.

The 21st Century Plan states that the Research I goal should not be a top priority because the status has little to do with quality and more to do with money.

George Gurnerman, chairman of the 21st Century Task Force, said the Research I goal is artificial because the sole difference between Research I and II institutions is the amount of money generated from external funding sources.

Having more research programs to bring in greater funding should not be a goal of the University, Gurnerman said.

The goal puts more emphasis on quantity instead of quality research, he said.

Jill Bogard, spokeswoman for the American Council on Education, said Carnegie Research I status is nothing more than a classification.

"It's not that one is better than the other," she said.

Donald Paige, president of the SIUC Faculty Senate, said the 21st Century Plan is on target with its goal to achieve excellence in a small number of high quality programs.

If Research I standing can be gained through the University's efforts in a small number of superior research projects, then this would be a side benefit, he said.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said the benefits of Research I standing are mostly reputational.

Research I universities are defined as institutions offering a full-range baccalaureate program, awarding at least 50 doctoral degrees through a graduate program and receiving at least $33.5 million in federal support each year.

Research II universities differ only in the amount of money received. These universities receive between $12.5 million and $33.5 million.

The University of Illinois at Chicago and at Champaign-Urbana are the only two universities in the state to have Research I status.

Guyon said the University's main mission is to enhance its research program, and if Research

I standing comes out of that effort, this is an excellent benefit.

Pettit's plan calls for SIUC to move to Research I status by increasing the number of graduate students from 16 percent of the student body to 20 to 25 percent. The expansion of the engineering building and a new research facility for the biological sciences also is recommended.

Action is being taken on some of these goals, but initiating these kinds of changes take a great deal of time, Guyon said.

The new biological science building is in the final stage of the development of a plan, with hopes that funding will be available.

Increasing the graduate student population is something that currently is being worked on, Guyon said.

"We're trying to recruit a larger number and better quality of graduate students," he said.

In addition to SIUC becoming a Research I institution, the Strategic Plan calls for maintaining and enhancing comprehensive under-graduate education through program review and learning assessment.

that affects everyone," Sullivan said.

Several senators and students have approached USG about the fall break, he said. They consider the break expensive and inconvenient.

SIUC student Susan Carey said driving home 13 hours to Conroe, Texas, at fall break and Thanksgiving last year was an inconvenience.

"It's nice to have a fall break, but I would rather have a longer Thanksgiving break. It's a waste to split it up like that," said Carey, a junior in liberal arts.

"It's costing me $220 to fly out of St. Louis for Thanksgiving break this year, and that's only for a few days," she said.

Before University officials began a fall break, students went until Thanksgiving vacation in mid-November before getting a rest.

Kim Robillard, a junior in English from Huntsville, Ala., said she needs the mid-semester break.

"I really get stressed out around Halloween. The break splits up the monotony of school," she said.

Larry Juhlin, associate vice president for student affairs, has said this need for a rest from classes is one of the reasons University officials developed a fall break during the eight week of classes. The fall break is in its third year, and it is scheduled for Oct. 20 next year.

Faculty complaints about the break also have spurred a Faculty Senate committee to poll its constituents to determine a policy most conducive to faculty, said Michael Madigan, chairman for the Faculty Senate Undergraduate Education Policy Committee.

Although survey results have not yet been tabulated, Madigan said that when talking informally with some faculty members, they have indicated a desire to return to the original Thanksgiving break.

"A week-long Thanksgiving break gives faculty the opportunity to catch their breath before finals," said Madigan, a microbiology professor.

Fall break should not be a solution to keeping students away from Halloween, he said.

"It's kind of a stupid philosophy. If there is to be a break, let's make it a meaningful break," he said.

over Thanksgiving because there is more traffic on the road," he said. "Everyone's going somewhere to have dinner. We're going to try to control the traffic and bring the number of fatalities down."

The number of drunken drivers also increases around Thanksgiving, Powers said.

"The National Safety Council tells us that 15 percent of the drivers on the road at any given time are impaired by alcohol," he said. "With more motorists on the road, the number of drunken drivers also will go up."

Powers also said the percentage of drunken drivers on the road could increase during Thanksgiving because of the festive mood of the holiday.

"Any time you have a festive mood, people will be drinking spirits," he said.

SIUC has a relatively low Stafford loan default rate of 8.1 percent, said Dianna King, Financial Aid spokeswoman.

The average default for public universities is less than 10 percent. But the new ISAC initiative will not affect SIUC significantly, King said.

"It's not necessarily a bad thing for wages to be garnished. No one should be allowed to default. ISAC is very liberal with deferments," King said.

ISAC has installed a new toll free number at 1-800-WE-HELP-2 for borrowers needing to make payment arrangements.

During the 1991 state fiscal year, ISAC collected more than $50.7 million in loan defaults.

Thanksgiving dinner draws impromptu family together

By Teri Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

The Newman Catholic Student Center will draw together its family this year for the 23rd Annual Thanksgiving Day Meal—no one should go away hungry.

About 700 people have attended the Newman Center's dinner during the past three years, and the center usually has a wide variety of people, said Deb Watson, administrative assistant for the center.

The center will sponsor its traditional dinner featuring turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and pumpkin pie from 12 to 2 p.m. Thursday.

The dinner started as a community effort, Watson said.

"Over half of the people who attend are SIUC students who can't go home for the holidays," she said. "The rest are senior citizens, young families and older parents whose children can't come home for Thanksgiving."

Local clergy urge remembrance of God during holiday festivities

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

Local church families will celebrate this Thanksgiving as they have in the past—thanking God for granting human existence.

We recognize every day as a day of thanks to God, said Rev. Ron Bracy, pastor for the Southern Baptist Church in Murphysboro.

"We focus on the theological viewpoint of Thanksgiving, which is that God is the creator of all things," Bracy said. "People should realize where these things we are thankful for come from."

But the church family also celebrates the traditional holiday of Thanksgiving, he said.

Early Puritan families in colonial New England celebrated Thanksgiving as a civic and religious holiday, said Robert McColley, professor of history at the University of Illinois.

The early Puritans generally were opposed to religious

"We also have people come from the Good Samaritan House and from the migrant worker camp in Cobden (to help)," she said.

The dinner costs the center about $3,000 each year, Watson said. The center sends out letters asking for donations either of money, food or volunteer work.

The center has not raised the total amount needed for the dinner this year, but it is close to the $3,000 needed, she said.

This year the turkeys were donated by the Clinton County Knights of Columbus and TCI Cable Company also donated money for the dinner.

The Undergraduate Student Government at SIUC donated $1,300 for the dinner because the center feeds so many SIUC students on Thanksgiving, Watson said.

Jack Sullivan, president of USG, said helping the center pay for the dinner is something the organization likes to do to help students.

"It is a really good program—we can debate over what trips to take or what programs to do, but there is no debate over doing something like this," he said "it's the right thing to do."

Helping with the center's dinner makes USG officials feel good, Sullivan said.

"We feel we are giving something back not only to the students, but to the community as well," he said.

Individuals, businesses, organizations and churches also donate their time and money to the event. The center's organizer, Linda Brayfield, along with volunteers from Pinckneyville, SIUC faculty and students, SIUC Food Service and community members, cook and serve the Thanksgiving dinner.

Brayfield has been cooking the Newman Center's Thanksgiving dinner for about 18 years.

She said she enjoys working with the volunteers and seeing the people come to the center.

"It's a good feeling to know they will have a good meal on Thanksgiving and will not be alone during the holidays," she said.

observances at Christmas and Easter, but Thanksgiving ceremonies had a religious overtone, McColley said.

Thanksgiving still has a civic overtone for many Christian churches in the United States.

The holiday means not only a time to be thankful to the men and women who founded this country, but also to the God who created it, said Rev. Bill Carter, pastor at Walnut Street Baptist Church in Carbondale.

"I do think perhaps the holiday has lost some of its original spirit," he said. "I try to emphasize that all our gifts are from God, and that we should celebrate that idea throughout the year."

Pilgrims first celebrated Thanksgiving in fall of 1620 to mark their arrival to the New World. Abraham Lincoln declared it a national holiday during the Civil War.

Rev. John Tennyson, associate pastor for the First United Methodist Church in Carbondale, said people generally take Thanksgiving seriously as a holiday.

"I believe Thanksgiving to be a time of year to renew and focus our thanks for what we have," Tennyson said. "Thanksgiving is not an ever-commercialized holiday like Christmas or Easter often times are."

Rev. Stephen Brown, administrative pastor at Western Heights Christian Church in Carbondale, said attendance at services in his congregation generally is not high because students have gone home and people are visiting family.

Wherever people celebrate, though, Brown said he hopes they remember the true meaning of Thanksgiving.

"I do hope Thanksgiving does not turn out to be just a football-and-turkey-based holiday," Brown said. "We must remember about God's blessings."

Bush in favor of plan to save poor economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush, under mounting pressure to remedy the economy, shelved earlier reservations Tuesday and embraced an eleventh-hour effort in Congress to spur economic growth.

"Put me down as enthusiastically for it," Bush told reporters during a picture-taking session in the Oval office. "The economy is in trouble."

Bush rejected as a "ploy," however, Democrats' pleas that he ask Congress to remain in session until the House and Senate act on the GOP tax-cut plan.

They are due to adjourn Wednesday.

"Listen, Congress has been here all year long," Bush said. "If they want to pass this, let them pass this today."

Bush met Monday night with two sponsors of the package, House GOP leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., and Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and afterward the administration expressed limited support.

Press secretary Martin Fitzwater said Bush liked some elements of the package but said he disliked other portions, none of which he would identify. He said, however, Bush would like to see Congress take a prompt vote on it.

On Tuesday, the administration issued a statement saying the president "unequivocally" backed the entire initiative, and Bush told reporters, "I'm for it. I want to see the package passed and I want it done fast."

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, told of Bush's sudden unconditional backing, said: "Is that the president's position this afternoon, this morning or yesterday? I think he's a lot like the weather. Wait a while and you'll have a different position."

The GOP package includes several initiatives long pushed by the administration, such as a cut in capital gains taxes as well as expanded use of individual retirement accounts.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said all Bush has to do to keep Congress in session is to ask. Foley said the question isn't whether Bush supports the plan, but "does he want us to stay and consider it."

Public forum to scrutinize national health care crisis

University News Service

Health care officials believe that 37 million people in the United States are uninsured or underinsured while the country spends $600 billion a year on health care.

Local lawmakers, medical and insurance industry professionals and others will look at proposed solutions to health care problems during a public forum Dec. 2 in the John A. Logan Community College Auditorium.

The public panel discussion, "Our Health Care Crisis: Comparing Solutions," will last from 8 until noon. SIUC's Center for Rural Health and Social Service Development is sponsoring the forum.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, and Sen. Penny Sevens, D-Decatur will be the keynote speakers.

Panelists are Steven V. Seekins, vice president of special projects for the American Medical Association in Chicago; Arnold J. Auerbach, representing the SIUC Emeritus College; and Del Nagy, director of national account marketing for Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Shirley Randolph, deputy director for the Illinois Department of Public Health, will moderate the debate.

'Doomsday' clock faces biggest set-back ever

CHICAGO (UPI) — The minute hand of the "Doomsday Clock" was pushed back Tuesday by seven minutes, to 17 minutes before midnight—the farthest it has ever been moved at one time and the farthest back it has ever been set—entirely off the face of the original, 15-minute timepiece.

The change by the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists means the chance of nuclear doomsday now is more remote than at any time since the end of World War II.

The 20-member international board, which includes 18 Nobel laureates, determines the setting of the "Doomsday Clock," which has ticked down as far as 11:58. That was the setting after the first successful U.S. hydrogen bomb test in 1953.

John Simpson, the first chairman of the Atomic Scientists, said the "remarkable" change in the clock was the result of a "qualitative" change in the U.S. and the world.

"We're now talking about removing weapons. We have a plan for removing nuclear weapons. We have a plan to help a nation that has now suddenly found out that communism isn't working and now wants to reconfigure itself," in a reference to the USSR.

"Why did we move the clock only seven minutes? We're faced with a new family of instabilities in the world."

Simpson said it is unclear how much control Moscow now has over its republics.

He also cited nuclear proliferation among other nations, what to do with military-grade fissionable matter and continuing capability of the U.S. and USSR to destroy each other "manyfold over" as other instabilities.

Leonard Riser, chairman of the Bulletin's board of directors, said the group has no specific knowledge of new weapons development and modernization of existing weapons "is considered minimal because of the ban on nuclear weapons testing."

"The Cold War is over," the Bulletin said in the editorial in this month's edition. "The 40-year-long East-West nuclear arms race has ended. The world has clearly entered a new post-Cold War era."

Baseball team signs shortstop for 1993

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The baseball Salukis hope their latest recruit will be a hit, SIUC coach Sam Riggelman said.

The SIUC squad announced Tuesday that all-star shortstop Mick Lantz of Erlanger, Ky. was the third and final player to sign a national letter of intent to play baseball at SIUC during the early signing period.

Lantz, a 6-2, 190-pound senior was most valuable player at Dixie Heights High School on the strength of a .350 batting average, five home runs, 27 RBI's, and 25 stolen bases.

He led his prep team to consecutive conference championships and a 30-13 record last season.

"We're really pleased about signing Mick," Riggelman said. "There are so many things he's capable of skill-wise because of his outstanding arm and his speed."

Dixie Heights baseball coach Chris Maxwell said Lantz should be a great asset to the SIUC baseball program.

"Mick is the best athlete I've ever coached," he said. "He has a great arm with a quick release, and is the type of player who has improved a great deal each season."

Lantz joins the Salukis' other two recruits, pitcher Dan Linton of John A. Logan College and shortstop Craig Shelton, brother of Saluki senior catcher Derek Shelton.

Riggelman said the Salukis have made an effort to recruit shortstops to fill the infield positions.

"Categorically, shortstops are usually the best infielders on the high school level," he said. "Where they'll end up playing, there's no way to tell until we start working with them on an everyday basis."

Riggelman said the Salukis already are window shopping for the next signing period in April.

"We're always looking," he said.

"We'll continue to reassess our situation, but as for now we know we could use help catching and we hope to sign a pitcher or two."

NCAA teams are allowed a one week "early signing period" in addition to their regular signing period.

Future SIUC athletes in other sports include forward Scott Burzynski, men's basketball; guards Nikki Gilmore and Tracy Holscher, forward Heather Slater and center Jennifer Williams, women's basketball; infielders Christine Knotts and Jami Koss and pitcher Tania Meier in softball; and Stacy McCormack in women's track and cross country.

NHL champions' coach dies after battle with tumor

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —

Bob Johnson, who coached the Pittsburgh Penguins to the Stanley Cup championship in his only season with the club, died Tuesday of brain tumors.

Johnson, 60, died at his home in Colorado Springs.

He was diagnosed to have brain tumors Aug. 29 after suffering stroke-like symptoms—slurred speech and weakness in his extremities. He underwent surgery in the summer.

Also honored from the NL were pitcher Greg Maddux of Chicago, outfielder Tony Gwynn of San Diego and outfielders Barry Bonds and Andy Van Slyke of Pittsburgh.

Other AL winners were New York first baseman Don Mattingly, Boston catcher Tony Pena, California pitcher Mark Langston and outfielders Devon White of Toronto, Kirby Puckett of Minnesota and Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle.

Smith, 36, had been considered by many to be on the downside of his career when the season began, but he responded with a year in which he made only eight errors in 639 total chances for a .987 fielding percentage. He also led NL shortstops with 79 double plays.

"(Gold Glove) No. 12 is probably more important to me because at my age you start hearing rumors that you can't do this anymore, you can't do that," Smith said. "After age 30, sometimes they try to push you out prematurely. To come out and win one at this stage of my career is something. It's very gratifying to pull this off."

The 14-year veteran, once thought to be prime trade bait last season, instead has had the 1992 option on his contract renewed.

"I guess playing good makes them make decisions like that," Smith said. "I just do what I've always done. I haven't done anything different, and the managers and coaches realize that."

Ripken was denied a Gold Glove in 1990 despite a season in which he made only three errors.

"This is one of my greatest achievements," said Ripken, this year," Francis said. "We communicated really well. The line is very tight—we are like brothers. It is a real pleasure to play with guys like Roth and (Mike) Strickland and (Chuck) Neitzel and (Jason) Jakovich. Knowing they are beside you makes it a little easier."

Junior wide receiver Justin Roebuck, junior fullback Yonel Jourdain, senior linebacker Jon Manley, and senior defensive lineman Dwayne Summers also were named to the second team.

Jourdain said he was caught by surprise at the announcement, but he said individual awards were basically just a reflection on the entire team.

"The offensive line and the coaches were great this season, and I attribute my success to them," he said.

Saluki assistant coach Ralph Young said it is good for SIUC to have players receive post season honors, but the Salukis' success in 1991 was a total team effort.

"It's nice to see our players get honored," Young said. "They worked very hard to have the kind of seasons they had. But everybody on the team—from the scout squad kicker to the starting quarterback—made a very important contribution to the team around this year. We play as one unit. We win and lose as a team."

Indiana State running back Derrick Franklin received Offensive Player of the Year honors and linebacker William Freaney of Northern Iowa was named Defensive Player of the Year.

Northern Iowa head coach Terry Allen was voted Gateway Coach of the Year.

Gateway champion Northern Iowa had six players named to the first team. Southwest Missouri had five, Eastern Illinois had four, Indiana State and Illinois State had three, and Western Illinois and SIUC each had one.

The Salukis, Western Illinois and Illinois State had six players named to the second team. Northern Iowa and Eastern had four, Indiana State had three and Southwest Missouri had one.

from teams that did well in the NCAA," Elgin said. "Southern has been a consensus favorite in all of the college polls. They look to be a veteran team. Another factor is the availability for games."

"The team also has to have the willingness to be flexible. The teams have to be flexible and cooperative to have TV opportunities. Herrin has always been cooperative. I think the TV exposure has been a very positive factor in our attempt to give the Missouri Valley Conference better exposure."

SIUC Athletic Director Jim Hart said the TV stations look for a team who is competitive.

"SIUC puts a lot of people in the stands," Hart said. "Even though SIUC has lost both games televised on ESPN, they have always put on exciting games. We also always have a lot of people in the stands."

The revenue from the games televised on ESPN goes into a TV pool that is divided among the MVC teams at the end of the season, Elgin said. He said he could not disclose how much money the MVC will get from ESPN.

ESPN will televise six MVC games this season. SIUC and SMSU each play in two of the games broadcast. Creighton and Tulsa play in two of them. ESPN also will televise the MVC Tournament Championship, which will be played March 9 at the St. Louis Arena.

KBSI has four conference games scheduled for SIUC. The Salukis play Bradley at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 20, SMSU at 11 a.m. Feb. 1, Illinois State at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 11 and Tulsa at 5 p.m. Feb. 15.

A spokesman for KBSI said the SIUC games are part of a package the station sponsors for the area conferences every year.

The MVC Network has two televised games scheduled for SIUC. The network will televise the SMSU game Feb. 1 and the Tulsa game Feb. 15. They also will televise all of the MVC tournament games at the St. Louis Arena.

"They've lost four starters and their inside game," she said. "But we know their new kids are good and it's just a matter of time before they develop. (Senior Guard) Dana Scott is a great outside shooter, and they've got others."

Murray State struggled to a 9-18 record last season but returns three starters, including Julie Pinson.

Pinson, a 5-8 senior guard averaged 10.8 points and 4.3 rebounds a game last season, and holds the Murray State record for three point hoops with 73 in her career.

The Racers trampled Missouri-Rolla at home Saturday 78-57 despite committing 29 turnovers, but lost at Evansville 75-72

Monday.

Junior center Michelle Shelton posted career highs with 16 points and 18 rebounds. Pinson had 15 points and six steals in the Racers' opener.

Murray State coach Kelly Breazeale said the Racers will try to outrun the Salukis in a potentially high-scoring match.

"Southern Illinois will be very tough and very balanced," she said. "In order for us to win we'll have to play an up-tempo game, hit our shots, and play a pressure defense."

The Salukis have won 15 of 20 meetings against MSU since 1972. The Salukis won the last meeting, defeating the Racers 74-60 in Carbondale.
