Police: ‘Panty raid,’ fire unrelated

By Bill Crewe

Staff Writer

About 200 to 300 students were involved in the ‘panty raid’ early Thursday morning which, according to University police, accomplished nothing but a large amount of trash being scattered around the Carbondale Fire Department said the hay was worth almost $400.

University police had originally said the two events were related, but they changed their statement, saying the two occurrences are being investigated as separate incidents.

Firemen said the burning hay was "extremely difficult" to extinguish. They were on the scene for nearly two hours. About 3 a.m. Thursday, fire department representatives were at the scene, but they had not determined the cause of the fire. No flammable substances were found at the scene. Police said they have no suspects.

Eunice Swainson, vice president for student affairs, said the hay was being used near the Recreation Building for use as a cover or fertilizer that is being spread in the area.

The university said they had no action at the panty raid other than trying to keep the crowd from banging on garbage dumpsters and attempting to contain the students in the residence hall area.

Senators voice concern over depleted funds

By Jacques Roosevelt

Staff Writer

The Student Senate has approved a $50,000 allocation to the Student Programming Council despite a request from the student parking heap to increase funding. The APC has proposed a $50,000 increase to the student activity fee.

If the senate maintains its present rate of allocating the fee, "by the end of November, we'll be broke," East Side Senator Christ Cordogno told the senate at its meeting Wednesday night.

With the SPC allocation, approved by a three-vote margin, $5,976 remained in the Student Parking Lot Account. At the beginning of the fall semester, there was $19,765 in the account.

Money for the activity fund, which is to be allocated to SPC and about 200 other student organizations, comes from the student activity fee billed with tuition.

There are about 250 organizations that have not requested funding from the senate yet this year, said East Side Senator Leah Saghroo.

The four-hour debate was split between one faction of senators who wanted the $50,000 allocation to SPC to be tabled until the senate can estimate how many smaller groups need to be asked for funding and another faction who supported the allocation because SPC events are "deemed toward the whole student body."

"In response to one senator's request above, I think we need to focus on the smaller groups down the river," East Side Senator Kevin Jones said on the proposal.

"'SCP is the best investment for the general body. We propose $50,000 enough money for all the small groups. There's nothing we can do about it this year, maybe next year."

Search committee members chosen

By Ray Robinson

Staff Writer

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw has announced the selection of the SUU Presidential Search Committee, saying his desire for a diverse committee had been met.

The committee members, which were announced Wednesday in a press release of the search committee: Helene Rudnick, academic advisor in the School of Medicine.

- Civil Service Employees Council: Brenda Hillman, assistant in Morris Library.
- Graduate Council: Thomas Eynon, professor of zoology, and Marvin Kleinau, assistant professor of speech communication.
- Graduate Student Council: Debra Brown, graduate student in English.
- Faculty Senate: John Baker, associate professor of political science; Joan Bondy, professor in the Center for Dewey Studies; and Marvin Kleinau, assistant professor of speech communication.
- Undergraduate Student Organization: John Ellen, senior in zoology and pre-medical student; Cara Jones, junior in music.

Shaw said Thursday that the original nominations sent in by students were only a handful, but the committee is being kept with the nominations being received.

Shaw said that June 19, 1980, is still the deadline for the committee to submit three finalists for the SUU-C President.

"We can modify it if we need to, but right now we're about on target," Shaw said.

"I do think that with a campus community of more than 2,000 black Americans, we should be comfortable with the committee," Shaw said.

"We should bring in more diversity, but I don't think that was part of the original nominations," Shaw said.

Excerpt from a letter by Dr. Donald F. Eberle, chancellor of the University of Illinois at Carbondale, said that the University of Illinois at Carbondale has been selected as the top candidate for the position of president of the University of Illinois at Carbondale.

Eberle said that the University of Illinois at Carbondale has been selected as the top candidate for the position of president of the University of Illinois at Carbondale.

GSC passes resolution favoring fee hike

By Charlye Gould
Staff Writer

Reverting its previous decision not to support a 60-cent student activity fee increase that was submitted to the GSC by Undergraduate Organization President Pete Alexander, GSC members voted 29-1 to support the fee increase. The Graduate Student Council has also been given a resolution that favors the increase.

After much debate the council Wednesday voted 20 to 15 to support the 60-cent student activity fee increase that was submitted to the GSC by Undergraduate Organization President Pete Alexander. Alexander told GSC members that the fee increase was important because recognized student organizations need more funds.

Bruce Swinbourne, vice president for student affairs, asked the council to reconsider its previous decision.

Tenants cite repair delays

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

Roaches in beds and refrigerators, oven-gas leaks, and lights that don’t work, on and off at will, are only a few of the complaints that have been presented to the Jackson County Housing Authority by unit tenants.

At the housing authority’s monthly meeting Wednesday night, more than 15 tenants told how repairs reported in the past have not been made. Tenants said that when the maintenance men did come, they didn’t repair the problem properly and often had to come back several times.

"The additional 60-cents will provide $3,000 for graduation and undergraduates with this organization getting roughly $3,000," Swinbourne said.

According to Tom Busch, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, there has not been an activity fee increase for 20 years.

Gary Brown, GSC president, said after the meeting that "my impression of the approval was that the council reconsidered its position due to respect for Dr. Swinbourne. He came before us and made a convincing and sincere plea for the student body. I think the close vote was an endorsement of the vice president’s desire."

But Brown said he personally believes that students should not advocate an increase in their activity fee, "The council voted in favor of an increase, and as its representative I will take forward its concern and endorse it," he said.

In other action, the council voted to re-endorse a $300 fee from the Mobilization of Volunteer Effort that asked for help with the United Way Program. Kay Poyner, a history department representative, said that at the present time they could not find any records that MOVE had a recognized student organization. The council can only fund recognized student groups. The council decided to refer the issue to the finance allocation board and ask Betty Sunquist, MOVE coordinator, to present a budget to the council.

A resolution was also passed for Brown to investigate discriminatory practices against the graduate students at Warren Hall. GSC President Jocelyn Knight, the student who has authored the resolution, said that she was convinced that there is a need for a formal complaint against the graduate students who are accused of the discrimination.

Sam Rillena, director of the University housing department, said in 1973 there were single unit vacancies on campus, and the medical students asked if they could have them because they needed the peace and quiet. In 1974, law students also requested single units. Their request was granted because many of the medical students moved to Stevenson Arms.

State police identify victim of car accident

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

State Police released Thursday the name of a 20-year-old Marion woman killed in a head-on collision Wednesday on Route 13 that critically injured four others.

Ira Christine Gibbons died shortly after being taken to Carbondale Memorial Hospital. Gibbons was the driver of a westbound Chevrolet Monte Carlo that crossed the medand and hit a Ford Tractor on the eastbound lane on Route 13, police said.

A passenger in Gibbons’ car, Sue Hart, 15, also from Marion, was flown to Premia Emergency Hospital in St. Louis where she is reported to be in critical condition. Dr. Robert Hurd said Miss Hart is in a coma after suffering severe head injuries and multiple fractures. She was sitting in the front seat when the accident occurred.

"She’s very lucky to have gotten here (St. Louis) at all," Hurd said.

Robert Vaughan, 19, was also flown to Firmin Desloge where he is in a critical condition in the intensive care unit. Vaughan suffered a fractured jaw and burns on his abdomen and left arm. Vaughan and Michael Young, 18, a junior law student, were passengers in Gibbons’ car.

Richard Osse, freshman in business at SIU-C and driver of the Ford Tractor, was also flown to Firmin Desloge in a critical condition with multiple fractures at Memorial Hospital. Osse also was a freshman.

Chicago faces segregation suit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government took the first step toward what could be the nation's largest and bitterest school busing battle Thursday, serving notice on Chicago that it will not enforce an end to alleged widespread classroom segregation.

HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris said she notified the Chicago school board that unless an acceptable school desegregation plan is submitted by Oct. 27, the matter will be referred to the Justice Department for legal action.

Regulations in the Civil Rights Act require a 10-day interim period between the time of a government decision to bring suit and the actual filing of that suit.

Mrs. Harris said she decided to turn the Chicago case over to the Justice Department because, 'I have concluded that compliance cannot be secured by voluntary agreement and I cannot in good conscience agree to further delay in the guise of negotiations.

In a statement released within two hours of Mrs. Harris' news conference Chicago school superintendent Joseph Hannon vowed that school officials will fight the government.

Senate overrides abortion bill veto

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - In a surprise move, the Illinois Senate on Thursday voted to override Gov. James R. Thompson's veto of a broad anti-abortion bill that override foes labeled 'unconstitutional' and "a hoax."

"It unfairly offers hope to the pro-life forces that isn't there," Sen. Aldo A. DeAngelis, R-Galena, said after the 36-21 Senate vote overriding the veto. "The bill is a hoax.

The House still must consider overriding the veto of the bill, sponsored by Sen. Leroy W. Lenke, D-Chicago, a staunch abortion foe.

China recognition expected to stand

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is confident there will be no interruption in U.S.-China relations, despite a judge's ruling that President Carter acted unconstitutionally in ending the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan.

The 68-year-old Elyria, little known outside the Greek language, edged out a half-dozen internationally acclaimed writers who had been highly touted favorites for the prestigious honor.

By telephone in his small bachelor's flat in Athens, he told a reporter he was surprised and thankful "on my own behalf and my country's as a poet and a Greek."

Student-teacher sex: Some do...

Kantor's note: The policy of the Daily Egyptian has been, and I believe will continue to be, that anonymous letters will be published only in the fact that most are accurate. However, because the student-teacher sex issue is such a sensitive one, the following letter, an excerpt which was sent to the newspaper's policy.

This letter is in response to the article appearing in the Oct. 11 Daily Egyptian. This article presented a very good look at sexual harassment of female students by male faculty members. It is a problem that is not new but one that has come out into the open and is getting the newspaper for having done so.

However, the article neglected to discuss the effects of sexual harassment on female students who have cooperated with the sexual advances of their professors. I am one of these students, and some may say, that because I cooperated, I surely cannot complain. This is not true. I may not have legal rights. But many of the women involved in the harassment are considering a sexual relationship with one of their professors as a result of reading my letter.

This is sexual harassment no overt "harassment." I was willing and interested. There was no compelling factor that I needed to perform for a grade. I believe that it was a normal and a good relationship. However, looking back on it, it was just not a relationship. It was flattered that a bright, intelligent, and good looking man was interested in me. He was fun to be with, but I know now that I was not himself. He was in control, and I was his desire.

Others students assumed I was in the relationship to get good grades or a good recommendation which cast me some credit. Another faculty member found out about the relationship and was available for that sort of thing.

We had nothing in common, except a strong desire. I felt much of a surprise to me, since we never used to show our affection in the education and power. You might question if this relationship was a mistake, to which I just turned out to be a good one. But things happen all the time, it's part of growing up. I think that my mistakes were made when I realized I didn't want to live, be the chances I made. I feel that my professor should have known that all this time, I felt that my professor should have known that. I wasn't interested. I respected and admired him and went along with what he thought was best. He was my educator and my mentor. Even though I willingly cooperated, I trusted him to know what was best about my feelings and to be honest. Maybe part of growing is the responsibility to be human or less than human.

But I wish I had discovered that in a way that hurt less. A second experience is worth less, I feel that the first was due to the SUU-C community. Also, some suggestions in regard to handling the problem, as outlined by the Daily's. Little was said about student sexual solicitation of faculty for the purpose of improving grades, but no doubt that has occurred too. Also, the article neglected to mention (in another excellent presentation) that probably female students are solicited for their sexual favor by male faculty, and, of course, male students solicited by male faculty (and female faculty).

Given that faculty-student sexual interactions occur in a wide variety of permutations, and given also that this does pose a considerable threat to the psychosocial equilibrium of the community, it is important to mention the potential damage to the superior faculty-student relationship. I propose the establishment of a...

But most instructors aren't female harassers...

The articles presented by Christine Grieve and Barbara Olson in Monday's edition of the Daily Egyptian that the male instructors at SUU are sexually harassing female students are presented at this implication. While not denying that such activities do indeed take place, we resent the implication that all male instructors at SUU are not professional in their behavior.

Ms. Grieve quoted Ms. Olson as stating that "students have failed courses for refusing to have relations with their instructors. Sexual harassment is no joke." Sexual harassment is no joke. My Hoffman's statement apparently suggests that the "A" is in a literal philosophy and then virtually standard procedure at Aggieville. Unfortunately, Ms. Olson, that the number of complaints is "minimal" and "as people become more [in'-"ber, both female and non-harassed have made conscious attempts to avoid dealing with instructors."

We do not believe we have sexually harassed any of our instructors. We have maintained our scruples and professional ethics.

In closing, we suggest that Ms. Olson has failed to present that some of the male students on campus are sexual harassers. We maintain that many of them have been sexually harassed by female instructors.

Vending machines are heartless bandits

Hungry from a very active day, I eagerly approached the vending machine, visions of beer nuts danced before my eyes. But I fell far from the dream. I dropped my quarters, and heard the familiar sound of a coin dropping out. In the depths of my disappointment, I exclaimed a nickel.

Disappointed, I charged to a nearby machine in search of a granola bar (the machine didn't have beer nubs). I tried my quarter, and heard the worst. My coin didn't drop down far enough to reach the granola bars, and a nickel said goodbye never. But, lo and behold, the coin return window had gone floor.

But my problem was far from over. My stomach was making funny sounds and my legs became rubbery. I had to be quick, before they were grabbed by the other machines in the Communications Building who were both busy. So, I took my quarter back and looked forward to finishing the day, heading for the Student Center and listing the vast array of vending machines.

The day's work over, I raced to the Student Center at 5:40 to buy dinner, avoiding an area, and spied my dinner—sunflower seeds. I put in my well-travelled quarter, and listened for success. Eventually, my quarter was pressed onto the table button.

Receiving nothing. I looked at the coin return. The inevitable had happened. No return. Frantically, I tried every other button. I heard a noise, and I figured it was my quarter. Rubbing my nose, I put it back again and again.

Re: SIUC Presidential Search Committee

Set out below are the names of your colleagues selected to serve on the SIUC Presidential Search Committee. The persons selected were chosen from a list of nominees submitted to me by the eight groups represented on the Committee.

I plan to convene the first meeting of the SIUC Presidential Search Committee in the near future. During this meeting, the Committee will be given a general charge and will be asked to select, by whatever means the members choose, a Chairperson.

To the leaders of the groups represented on the Presidential Search Committee I express my appreciation. Their assistance in the development of the "Structure and Guidelines for the Presidential Search Committee, SIUC" and their cooperation in the actual selection of what promises to be an excellent Search Committee will allow the selection of a President for SIUC to be initiated under the best of circumstances.

I ask that each of you support the Presidential Search Committee in any way that you are able. Thank you in advance for your help.

Operation of coal mines to be taught

By Ann Englemeyer
Student Writer

Methods of operating surface and underground coal mines will be the topic of a weekend course, Oct. 27-29, designed to benefit those who have had little or no experience with coal mining but need a basic knowledge of mining methods and their impacts.

Basic information such as coal types and market evaluation of coal property, legal and contractual requirements for coal mining and land reclamation methods will be some of the topics covered during the program.

The course will be taught by a team of experts from the coal industry and the SIU faculty. Atul Sinha, associate professor of thermal and environmental engineering, will coordinate the course.

Sinha has been associated with coal mining for over 30 years. He has worked in coal mines as a manager, surveyor and electrical engineer for five years in India and has earned several academic degrees in mining and conducting research at schools in England, Canada and Pennsylvania.

Sinha joined the SIU faculty in August, 1975 to develop a new master of science program in mining engineering.

The Department of Mining Engineering, College of Engineering and Technology and the Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center are sponsoring the elements of coal mining course, in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education.

Anyone wishing additional information should contact Sinha at the College of Engineering and Technology.

Yard sale scheduled for Saturday

By Jordis Gold

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce is holding its ninth annual yard sale and auction from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday in the SIU Arena parking lot. Admissions are free.

By Thursday afternoon, 227 booths were rented for the sale, according to Ron Steele, executive vice president for the Chamber of Commerce. "Last year, 325 booths were rented in all, so we expect to have our largest turnout ever," Steele said.

Booths are $10 and $15. The deadline for advance registration for them is noon Friday, Steele said. "People may purchase booths on Saturday, but they will cost double," he added.

In addition to residents selling their goods, booths are rented by dealers, fraternities and various county agencies, Steele said. "The majority, though, are local people," he added.

The yard sale gets bigger every year, Steele said. Last year, over 15,000 people attended and more than that are expected this year.

The auction, which will start at 10 a.m., features items donated by various businesses, including sporting goods, tickets for dinners and St. Louis Cardinals autographed baseballs and footballs, among many other things, Steele added.

The auction will be run by Dick Hunter of Hunter Brothers. "He's donated his services for all nine years," Steele said. "I guess he's as much of a tradition as the yard sale itself."

In case of rain, the sale will be held Sunday, but, Steele added with a chuckle, "It's never rained before and we don't want to set a precedent."

St. Louis resident wins bar's contest

George Thornton of St. Louis is $20 richer this week, as his name for the bar at 31S S. Illinois was chosen from among 700 entries in a contest.

Sgt. T. J. McFly's was chosen by the KMBK Corporation because, according to President Bill Koemen, "We liked it. We thought it had a lot of possibilities."

Koeneman said that the name would fit in with the area's nickname, "Little Egypt." "We are calling it a 'watering hole' and are using camels in our promotions," Koemen said.

'Chapter Two' performance realistic

By Paula Walker

Entertainment Editor

It's a bitter scene. Two people in love are throwing scathing words at each other. You feel the tension rising in your throat as your eyes mist over. The woman makes an outrageous comment and suddenly you're laughing uproariously.

When a play can make members of the audience laugh through their tears, it's a success. The performance of Neil Simon's "Chapter Two" at Shroyer Auditorium did just that.

A Review

Shroyer Auditorium did just that.

An excellent script and acting work by the performers make Wednesday night's performance intensely realistic and moving. The language of the play was the language heard in everyday conversations. When the performers delivered their lines, it seemed as though they were speaking as they would normally.

It seemed more like a real-life situation than a play. Some incredibly funny situations occurred, and the audience was pleasantly surprised by the fact that they really could have happened. Comedy dominated the beginning of the play and directed the latter scenes with a welcome relief from almost relentless intensity.

Dona Vinci as Jeannie Kioline performed beautifully during the humorous opening half of the production. The audience was somehow surprised when she was a talented actress in dramatic emotional roles, as well.

David Faulkner was so much in character it's hard to believe he isn't really George, the writer. He was witty, endearing and maddening, and carried each off as if he was merely being himself.

Another attribute of the show was the scenery, designed by William Ritman. Two couches back to back rotated on a round platform so half of the stage was one apartment and the other half a second, depending on which side of the couch prevailed.

IT'S THE NIGHT TO BE IN"
Linda Pastan

Pastan read a poem titled "Response about an ad for Jewish poems in a writers magazine. The ad said that specified subjects related to Hebrew tradition were not to be written about. She said she wrote the poem "partly in humor, partly in anger and partly dead serious" because she was offended that writers were told what not to write about.

Her final poem of the evening was titled "Ethics." It referred to her pre school ethics class days when her teacher posed the question, "If you were seated in a museum and it caught fire, would you save a librarian or the old woman sitting beside you?" Pastan concluded that now that she was growing closer to being that old woman, perhaps the painting and the woman's life were of equal importance.

Pastan's reading was by the first young drivers facial injuries in the accident. Police surmise that Vaughan and Clark had been bickering and were picked up by Giddeon.

Giddeons' car crossed the median for no apparent reason and hit the Osen's vehicle head-on, police said. The speed at which the two cars were traveling has not been determined.

The accident occurred at 12:15 p.m. near the Crab Orchard Lake Road intersection east of Carbondale on Route 13.

JORDAN AND JACKSON

CHICAGO (AP) — National Urban League President Vernon E. Jordan Jr. has met with the Rev. Jesse Jackson in an attempt to resolve their differences over Jackson's support of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The two-hour meeting at the headquarters of Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), which Jackson heads, was "to reaffirm their essential unity, and to state that they do not disagree without becoming disagreeable," said Frank Watkins, a Jackson aide.

State tourism council negotiating with group planning to build on lake

By Conrad Street

The Illinois Tourism Advisory Council is negotiating a lease with a development corporation that wants to build a resort complex in South Shore State Park at Carlyle Lake, north of Carlinville. Representatives from the Illinois Department of Conservation's Advisory Board and the Tourism Advisory Council met Thursday at Gator City State Park to discuss plans for the complex.

According to a member of the Tourism Council, the minimum requirements that the developer must meet for building the complex in the state park include the construction of a lodge, a 120-room hotel unit, a nine-hole golf course and a marina. In addition to these facilities, the developer, who was not identified, has asked for permission to include in the complex groups of cabin communities around the marina, near the golf course and near an equestrian facility. Ground-breaking for the $30 million project is expected in 1977.

The state is requiring a $10,000 land rental fee and a percentage of the complex's gross income for payment. The complex will employ 300 local residents.

The Tourism Council member said, "This will show whether we can work successfully with private enterprise."

The Tourism Council, which is coordinating its marketing efforts through the state park system, expressed a desire to "liberalize" the Illinois Southern history. They are trying to make Southern Illinois a tourism destination in the area and by providing incentives for the private sector to run them. People from Chicago do want to come to Southern Illinois," the council said, but they ask themselves, "where do we stay, where do we eat?"

Until recently, hotel and restaurant developers in the City of Chicago have shied away from the Chicago area have shied away from the Chicago area because of high liquor laws and other profit-making regulations. Recently, the liquor laws have changed to allow alcoholic beverages other than beer and wine to be sold in the state. In other board discussion, concern was expressed that capital funding for state recreation and tourist facilities have decreased in the last three years, while land acquisition and tourism have increased. Consequently, state facilities are really not up to shape, members of the Tourism Council said.

David Kenney, director of the IDC, said, however, that he has not been very successful in Southern Illinois because of strict liquor laws and other profit-making regulations. Recently, the liquor laws have changed to allow alcoholic beverages other than beer and wine to be sold in the state.

Landlord-tenant relations class offered

July Paull, Wisconsin "| Student Writer

In an effort to help students better understand their rights and responsibilities as tenants, a class in landlord-tenant relations, Family Economics and Management 407, will be offered in the spring semester. Landlord-tenant relations has been offered as a workshop for the past three years.

According to Tom Brooks, professor of human development, the course will focus on both tenant and landlord rights. It will also educate students on the kind of recourse they would have if problems arise.

Because enrollment was not sufficient, it is necessary that at least 10 people enroll for the class to meet.

Brooks said he would like to see enrollment for the class increase.

"If enrollment would increase, we would entertain the idea of having it a permanent class."

The course will be taught by faculty members from the Department of Family Economics and Management because of their interest in consumer problems and housing. Brooks said.

Homicide to be studied

By Shelley Davis

Staff Writer

The SIU-Center for Crime, Delinquency and Corrections has received a $258,552 federal grant to conduct a two-year, nationwide study of homicide.

According to Marc Riedel, project director, the researchers will look at homicide records of eight cities and compare those records with a more general sample from the FBI.

He said the city records will first be compared with medical examiner records, which he said are more valid.

"There are those cities where the medical examiner will report a gunshot wound and the police report a stab wound. Riedel said. "We want to see how often the police misclassify the method of death."

"If we know where the error is, we can look at the police records and say, for example, that there should be an increase of 10 percent according to our research findings," he continued.

The results of the research will also help to determine trends in the commission of homicide, which could help law enforcement agencies plan and carry out crime prevention programs, Riedel said.

This is the first time the FBI has opened its files for such extensive research, Riedel said.

William Willbanks, former associate professor at the Florida International University, is the other chief investigator for the project.

Peace Corps directors' conference brings former student back to SIU

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

A broad conference of Peace Corps directors brought ReginaL Petty, back to Washington, D.C., from Swaziland, and from there he was sent back home on a recruiting drive, which ended in Carbondale.

On his swing through the Midwest, Petty visited colleges in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Manhattan, Kan.

"The 60 Peace Corps directors are spread all over the country," said Petty, who is director for the Peace Corps activities in Swaziland.

"I've hit six cities in six days," he said Wednesday.

Swaziland is surrounded on three sides by South Africa and is about the size of New Jersey.

"It's magnificent and beautiful," he said.

Petty lectured at two SIU-C agriculture and one vocational education course on Wednesday.

"I wanted to give the students some perspectives and insights into the agriculture problem of the Third World."

The last-born brother of Africa combined with the custom of driving up a man's land between all his near males has resulted in a disease in food productivity, Petty said.

"We need volunteers with new ideas to improve the agricultural skills in these countries," Petty said.

Campground closing dates announced

Closing dates have been announced for campgrounds in the Shawnee National Forest. The dates are: Pharaoh (Garden of God) and Pinewoods (Pounds Hollow) on Oct. 30; Tower Rock on Oct. 31; Steamboat Bill (Ohio River) on Nov. 15; Redbud (Bell Smith Springs) and Rock Ridge (Lake of Egypt) and Pine Hills on Dec. 15; Teal Pond (Bell Smith Springs), Oak Point (Lake Eldorado), Turkey Run, and Camp Cana on Dec. 31.

According to Forest Supervisor David F. Jolly, all campgrounds will be open for 1979 deer hunting season.

No fees will be charged after water systems are shut down for the year.

Another area the Peace Corps is involved in is the area of appropriate technology.

"We have solar greenhouses to grow certain crops during the winter, and solar grain dryers," he said. "There's a whole field of technical education jobs on the Swaziland market for skills in construction and mechanics."

Experience in the Peace Corps can lead to jobs, Petty said.

"Most people don't look at the personal advantages of volunteering," he said. "Large international groups often hire people who've been in the Peace Corps because they have overseas experience and can speak another language," he said.

Petty was born in East St. Louis and received his master's degree in education from SIU-C in 1967.
Professor studies recreation on Chicago metro area trails

By Cindy Peper

Student Writer

And the concrete landscape of the Chicago Metro Area are scattered areas of forest preserve with trails for hiking, biking, and soggy wormholes. However, the actual usage and satisfaction derived from these trail facilities in the Chicago area is really unknown.

Lieber, a SIU-C sociology graduate student, is studying the usage and features of these trail facilities in the Chicago Metro Area in hopes of developing guidelines for recreation land management. The guidelines would deal with the capacity of existing trails or potential development of additional trails to better satisfy the demand in the area and in other urban areas.

"Trail activities constitute a major portion of land usage in metropolitan areas," Lieber said. "Aside from swimming at public pools and beaches, the other major activities are about the only outdoor recreation available in urban areas. There's a limited amount of outdoor activity that can take place in an area like Chicago."

"In the past the U.S. Forest Service has been interested in wilderness recreation, but there's a lot of land that can be used," Lieber said. "However, in the eastern half of the country there are no wilderness areas. Thus, urban forest recreation becomes a new interest approximately a year ago."

The research to be conducted by Lieber and an SIU-C graduate student may be used by recreational planners for both public and private facilities.

Lieber is currently formulating a detailed mail questionnaire on urban outdoor recreation which will be distributed in the metro area in several months.

"We will give the user satisfaction derived from the Chicago area," Lieber said. "We are looking for attitudes toward trails. We will take advantage of the facilities available."

Two hundred of those respondents will be chosen randomly to participate in a more in-depth study. Simulated trail descriptions will be shown to participants to measure the priorities of users in various areas of the metro.

"We will be looking for trade-offs that the user identifies when he selects one simulated trail over another," Lieber said.

After the data is recorded and interpreted, a report will be compiled for the U.S. Forest Service. The project will end with a two-day session with experts and public recreational land managers. That session will allow for an exchange of ideas, recommendations and, hopefully, a consensus on guidelines for an integrated program of trail management in the City of Chicago Metro Area, Lieber said.

"As far as I know, this supply and demand data on urban recreation facilities is unique to Illinois. No other state has comparable data," Lieber said. "The data will provide state, regional and local agencies with the capability to analyze specific outdoor recreation needs and programs."

This research is an outgrowth of an earlier study conducted by Lieber, Donald McCurdy, professor of forestry; John Borrie, assistant professor of forestry; and Roland Hawes, associate professor of sociology. From 1984 to 1985 they conducted a statewide assessment and forecast of recreational demands for 32 activities. Through their research they compiled the Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan, which Lieber used as a data base for trail-related activities.

"This research was an outgrowth of an earlier study conducted by Lieber," he said.

According to Lieber, the demand for urban outdoor recreation is high, mainly with people's awareness of activity patterns and motives affecting behavior.

"Recreation is one of the few kinds of activities where people's choices are understood," Lieber said.

"If this is the case," Lieber said, "we will advise planners that any improvements in existing facilities would help. Therefore, we will have explored this area of recreation research. From there on it is not continued study."

Trail conference needs volunteers to help preserve 130-mile footpath

By Bill Murray, Reader Writer

An exploratory meeting to discuss the formation of a group to open the River-to-River Trail in Southern Illinois will be held at 3 p.m., Saturday, at the Giant City Nature Center.

Harrisburg hiker Bob Jenner, president of the group, has invited members of the Department of Conservation, community leaders and landowners, University faculty, local hikers and hikers' representatives to the meeting in the hope of forming a new trail conference.

"We hope to get enough interested people at the meeting to support the formation of a trail," Jenner said.

Smallpox is eradicated

Science eliminates a disease

By Andrew Turchin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) It must have killed Pharaoh, and it probably killed Pharaoh. The world's last known case of smallpox occurred in 1977 in Somalia.

But WHO teams have completed intensive surveys and no new cases have been found since then.

According to public health officials, this is the first time science has eliminated a disease. The campaign cost billions of dollars, with WHO contributing $100 million.

"If we can do this for smallpox, we can do it for other diseases," said Dr. Zainul Islam, WHO's disease control officer in eastern Africa, said in an interview.

"It's a man-to-man infection, with no stage in animals, insects or impure water. There are no human carriers who spread the disease without showing symptoms, as there are for typhoid. When symptoms come, they appear on exposed parts of the body, like the face, and cannot be hidden. And there is an effective vaccine.

"This makes it comparatively easy to deal with smallpox," he said. "You won't find another disease about which all these things are true."

If the doctors are right, and they say the probabilities are overwhelmingly against error, smallpox is now defeated in the last of a line of the deadliest diseases: smallpox, plague, cholera, typhus, yellow fever, malaria, diphtheria, tuberculosis, cholera and meningitis.

Yet even there, accidents can occur.

John Parker, 40, a medical photographer, last year became Britain's first smallpox fatality in five years after she apparently came in contact with the virus that escaped through a laboratory ventilation duct to the floor below.

In the subsequent outcry, Professor Henry Reddick, 49, senior smallpox authority, cut his throat, leaving a note saying he had ignored basic safety procedure in handling the virus.

OFFICIALS of the Geneva-based World Health Organization, which led the final assault on the virus, will travel to Nairobi to declare that smallpox has been eradicated.

The only countries not presently certified small-pox free are Kenya, Somalia, Ethiopia and Djibouti. Nomadic population movements hindered detection and isolation of virus outbreaks.

But WHO teams have completed intensive surveys and no new cases have been found since then.

Default rate for NDSL higher than for state guaranteed loan

By Joseph T. Agnew
Student Writer
The loan default rate at SIU-C for the National Direct Student Loan is higher than the default rate for the Illinois Guaranteed Loan.
SIU-C has awarded $10.6 million in National Direct Student Loans since 1986. As of June 30, the delinquency rate on NDSL was 14.8 percent. The default rate for the Illinois Guaranteed Loan was 13.78 for fiscal year 1979.

The Illinois Guaranteed Loan, on the other hand, is a University-approved loan made through private banks, where students or families must submit to financial investigation. The bank is responsible for making collections on the Guaranteed Loan, whereas the University is responsible for collections on the NDSL.

"One of the problems with the NDSL is that you’re losing to people with no credit rating," said Joe Trout, an accountant in the Burnar’s Office. "When some of these students leave school or graduate, they cannot find jobs in their field of study, so they decide not to pay back the loan, or they just can’t." About 90 percent of the money for NDSL comes from the student’s parents, with the rest coming from SIU’s own funds.

Trout said when students who owe on the NDSL become disabled or die, the University may write off the loan. If not, the University loses its 10 percent.

The 14.8 default rate for the NDSL is a reduction from a 21.8 default rate from June 1978. The apparent decline developed because the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare allowed Universities to transfer collections on loans that were in default more than two years to HEW. Last June, SIU sent more than $40,000 worth of uncollected notes on loans to HEW.

The University must wait six months after the date of default before it can turn unpaid accounts over to collection agencies. It must then wait an additional two years before turning them over to HEW.

"If your default rate is high, it cuts down the amount each eligible student can receive," Eggerstein said. The nationally accepted average default rate is 10 percent.

The University can also respond to defaulted loans by putting a Burnar’s hold on grades and transcripts until the loan is paid.

EXEED SET
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist refused Thursday to delay the execution of convicted Nevada murderer Jesse Bishop, scheduled to die in the state’s gas chamber Monday.

Bishop was sentenced to die after pleading guilty to the 1977 shooting death of a Baltimore man.

Housing problems to be investigated complaints are legitimate, but he doesn’t know what to do about them. The pesticide available is used, but it’s not effective to do the job. He said HUJ has strict regulations on pesticides.

Two former aides to the workers are not trained for specialized jobs. Seed, Work, and Financial Affairs do not have any kind of training and many of the workers don’t want the training, he said.

Seed also reflected the accustomed view that the men are not properly trained. He said they do have good equipment, but the expensive, specialized equipment is also not available to them.

Rich Picini, Central Illinois Public Service representative, said that FDS would handle any complaints from the units dealing with appliances, such as ovens with gas leaks. He said they have the expertise and equipment to handle those problems.

Charges against the unit’s physical conditions and complaints of discrimination by maintenance men have been filed with HUJ’s investigations division in Chicago.

Eight current or former employees have said they have not received the same treatment as white workers. They said their equipment was of poorer quality than the whites and that they had to work in more dilapidated units. The complaint also states that some black employees were treated unfairly during illnesses.

"I, personally, see no basis for truth in that," Seed said of the discrimination charges. "If I felt there was, I would correct the situation immediately."

GSC favors 60-cent fee increase

Even if graduate students pay by the hour for a single room, as students get precedence over them, the assistant director of housing operations said. But he said he is afraid the maintenance will continue.

Ricella said that Warren Hall stays open during breaks to accommodate the needs of graduate students because they have academic work to complete.

Stan Irvin, law school representative to the GSC, presented a formal resignation of the five law school representatives from the GSC to Pat Meila, vice president of the council. Irvin said, "Personally I do not want to withdraw because there is more volume when both groups work together, and solve problems together, and I don’t regret what has happened." Irvin later said the view he expressed was not representative of his law students. He said he was speaking only for himself.

Weekly luncheons offered to women over 25 seeking to make friends

By Shelley Davis
Officer

Some women return to college because of a divorce or separation and have a need to establish a new social network. Others have planned this move for years, waiting for the children to grow up so they could have more time for themselves. But regardless of the reason they return to school, these non-traditional students, women over 25 who have experienced a break in their education, have a need to form a peer group with whom they can discuss the successes and failures they may be experiencing.

In an effort to meet this need, Women's Services is sponsoring weekly luncheons in the Student Union's Room 111 a.m. The first will be Monday in the Corinth Room.

"The turnover of the luncheons will be social," said Joan Durrett, a staff member and non-traditional student. "The formation of a peer group is an important aspect for the overall success in college. And these women are just as accessible to each other as you young women are."

Durrett said the luncheon will last until 1 p.m., giving women a chance to fit them into their schedules.

"We hope to meet the needs of this group of women," she said. "And also to get feedback from them that will help us to put together some programs to meet these needs."

In 1976, there were 204 full-time students who were over 25 and 3,047 who were between the ages of 26 and 30. Part-time students constituted 93 and 2,867 students, respectively.

Carol Huffman, coordinator of Women's Services, said that most of these students are women. She said many of them feel unsure of themselves outside of the classroom and are often afraid to ask questions because they feel they should be old enough to know the answers.

Yugoslavian attends SIU-C; hopes to become film producer

By Michael Pirages
Student Writer

Milo Mancevski could have had a free college education in his native Yugoslavia, but he was determined to get an education in one of the top ten universities in America for film schools in the United States instead. He chose SIU-C.

Mancevski is a student in Cinema and Photography, from the former Yugoslavia.

He learned about SIU by chance. This past spring he attended a lecture on his home country in Skokie where he heard a lecture given by Richard Blumenberg, associate dean of the College of Communications and the Arts.

Blumenberg, on a sabbatical tour of Europe, gave lectures on European influence on recent American films and films studies in American universities.

At the Kinoteka, Mancevski was introduced to Blumenberg and from the information he received from Blumenberg, he became interested in SIU-C. Mancevski applied to SIU-C and with the help of a recommendation from Blumenberg, was accepted. "I'm very grateful to Dr. Blumenberg for all that he did to get me accepted," Mancevski said.

Mancevski was awarded a tuition scholarship which released him from having to pay any tuition. Charles Klaus, dean of international education, said, "There were only 40 tuition scholarships available to be given to foreign students."

Klaus said Mancevski received the award based on his financial need and his academic achievement. Mancevski has accomplished much with his work and released much of his personal ambition. Both of his parents died when he was young, he has no brothers or sisters. He has lived with his aunt, Vesnica Mancevski, in the last five years in his parent's two-story, brownstone in Skokie.

Skokie is a city of 500,000 people, 30 minutes by hour car, north of Greece.

Yugoslavia is one of the leading countries in the world which, under former Yugoslavia, remains independent of the superpowers of the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Mancevski described the difference between Yugoslavia and being self-managing, with the employees of a company owning the company, and able to make decisions in the factory, the difference from communist nations in that citizens may emigrate freely, foreign publications are readily available, and there are incentives for managers and workers to produce.

Mancevski had a great deal of experience in the arts in Yugoslavia. For the past five years he has written for a variety of magazines, including the Students Word, a youth magazine, Screen, a magazine on film, and for radio and music. Mancevski said that he has made a few short films.

Recently, he acted in a professional Yugoslavian motion picture called "Water." The film is about two villages which are fighting for the possession of a spring.

"Language is one of the most important things to me. I want to make it better than it is," Mancevski said.

The film is being edited and Mancevski expects it to be released in Europe by 1980.

A few months ago, Mancevski had an opportunity to interview the exiled American director Roman Polanski, but didn't have enough money to travel to Paris to talk to Polanski.

Mancevski said, "You have to learn by your own experience. He has had many opportunities for this. He has traveled throughout Europe, usually by hitch-hiking. "Being from Yugoslavia there are many chances to travel," Mancevski said, "since you can travel anywhere in Western or Eastern Europe without a visa."

Wherever he travels, he can usually communicate with the people since he speaks Macedonian, Slovenian, Croatian (Yugoslavian languages), and English, besides understanding Bulgarian, Polish and Russian.

"Language is one of the most important things in the world for me," he said. "I want to make it better than it is."

While in the U.S., Mancevski hopes to visit Los Angeles and New York.

"I think the large metropolises in the world are very similar," he said, "and I want to see if America's larger cities can fit my impressions."

Mancevski is slowly getting used to life in Carbondale. He said he's confused as to what the real differences are between the U.S. and Yugoslavia, but noteed some peculiarities.

("The parties here in the United States are usually beer parties," Mancevski said. "Back home we have beer as well as many other alcoholic beverages at our parties."

Mancevski enjoys being able to listen to live music. "In Yugoslavia there is seldom any live music," he said. He is especially fond of live jazz.

Mancevski believes that the American cinema industry is the 'sweet in the world,' yet he said some American movies are too concerned with the audience.

"European films have more artistic flair," Mancevski said, "they are more sophisticated."

Mancevski plans to get his bachelor's degree in Cinema and Photography. His goal is to return to Europe to become a producer of experimental films.

"I have a lot to learn," Mancevski said. "I like small things. Everything is here because of the students."

Roads wide open for Plynmire

By Rick Kietl
Staff Writer

It must happen a thousand times every year. A high school athlete, usually at a small school, gets a chance to bond over the SUU campus and fall madly in love with the place. This can be said for the SIU women's cross country runner, Patty Plynmire.

"When I came down here," the sandy-blond sophomore explained, "the people were so friendly and the area was so nice. I just fell in love with it." What Plynmire didn't know at the time was that by her third semester at SIU, St. Joseph-Ogden High School graduate would also be in love with the cross country team, or at least the good reason to be.

Before this season, Plynmire placed fifth at the Illinois State Invitational with a time of 18:43. The time placed Plynmire second on the SIU women's cross country all-time best list for a 5,000-meter race, second only to teammate and state champion, Lindy Nelson. Plynmire's finish also topped her previous best of 19:03.

"I worked real hard this summer," Plynmire explained. "I was really excited for this season. I was really ready to do well." Plynmire has done well, to say the least.

The Salukis have competed in six races this season, Plynmire has either been the No. 1 or No. 2 finisher for SIU. She finished as high as first in this season opener at Illinois, and in 22nd, gatherings gems at Missouri. Plynmire recorded second-place finishes in the Murray State Invitational, the Track and Field Classic, and the Big Eight Invitational. Her performances prompted Blackman to proclaim this summer, "Patty should be ready to explode this fall."

Last week's Salukis Invitational might well have been the flame to ignite the explosion. "I have always run in a mutual block when running on Midland Hills," Plynmire said. "But I think I finally broke that barrier in the Invitational."

A lot of the changes some /opponents have never come close to in the past, finding Plynmire had run the 10,000-meter event. "I didn't look back, and I didn't look back. I just ran through the door."

Plynmire's road to success each time she crosses the finish line appears to be. Along the way she has had to make many decisions which have, fortunately for Saluki Coach Blakeman, turned out for the best.

"I run track all through my high school years," Plynmire said. "But one season we didn't have any distance runners, so my coach asked me if I would like to run the mile, I did, and when I was finished, my coach said I had potential. So I went out for cross country the next year."

That next year was her senior year at Ogden High School. "Myself and Mary Ann Dickerson (now a student at cross country runner for Illinois) had to run with the guys. Plynmire continued. "But we weren't pushovers. We were point scorers. Running with the guys really made us work hard -- it also made them work hard too!"

Since it was Plynmire's senior year, thought of which college to attend began to creep into her mind. Plynmire narrowed her choices to Illinois, Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois, and SIU.

Plynmire decided against Illinois because "it was so big and so crowded," Plynmire said. "But they wanted me! I could have gone to Western because I ran on the Illinois Pacers, an AUU Track Club team."

Plynmire said. "But I decided against it because I didn't think I wanted him as my coach four more years."

EIU was also a choice of Plynmire because she was good friends with the Panthers' top two runners, Robin and Ruth Smith. Plynmire had run with the Smiths on the AAU team. "I guess I chose Southern because of the team I would be on," Plynmire concluded. "I didn't want to be on a team where I would be the No. 1 runner. But I didn't want to go to a school where I might not make the team."

"I really wanted to be a red chipper," Plynmire added. "Someone who would be counted on to finish in positions two, three, or four. At SIU, I thought I had that perfect opportunity."

As a freshman, Plynmire became SIU's No. 2 runner. She was the second Saluki to cross the finish line at the Midwest Regionals last year, and followed with impressive finishes in the 5,000- and 10,000-meter track events last spring. Her performances prompted Blackman to proclaim this summer, "Patty should be ready to explode this fall."

Last week's Salukis Invitational might well have been the flame to ignite the explosion. "I have always run in a mutual block when running on Midland Hills," Plynmire said. "But I think I finally broke that barrier in the Invitational."

Plynmire's race against some opponents has never come close to the past, finding Plynmire had run the 10,000-meter event. "I didn't look back, and I didn't look back. I just ran through the door."

Coach looks for control of emotions

Southwest Missouri (17-1-1) and the University of Missouri's hockey club. Illner feels her team can be capable of beating SKMO and Missouri with little trouble, but says Southwest "may be tougher."

"Southwest is a good team," Illner said. "They play the same aggressive-type hockey that St. Louis does, only not as rough."
Coach says harriers set for state meet

By Scott Stalnaker
Staff Writer

If there is anyone who should not be uneasy about Saturday’s Illinois Intercollegiate cross country meet for at least a week, it is SIU men’s Coach Lew Hartzog. This is his 30th year and Hartzog will be taking a team to the Intercollegiates, as he said, "Coach says you’re going to be racing with the pride of a hundred years."

"You look over the race, and it is over," Hartzog said. "We worked awfully well Sunday yesterday, but there was something wrong with everybody. Nothing went right, and I had a tough time understanding why."

"I think we’re ready," Hartzog smiled.

The Salukis enter the race as an underdog, as Illinois State is favored over SIU, Illinois and Eastern Illinois. T.R. defeated the Salukis earlier this year, 2:30.

"Heading into it, we don’t have any excuses," the coach said. "We are healthy. We have been, except for Tom. And (Mike) Choffin could be the seventh. Any one of five guys has to have a good day for us to challenge.

Hartzog was energized by the team’s current state of mind, and when he had the team run quarters. He said a performance similar to the Indiana Invitational two weeks ago would prove the team’s chances.

"In the workout, six people ran easily together," Hartzog said. "We had what may have been our best workout of the year so far. The team can run easily together, you’ve got to work on that. So, we’ve got to need to run like we did in Indiana, when we had a 4-second gap and that led us through top seven.

"In my opinion, he’s not worried about how SIU’s top two runners, Karsten Schultz and Mike Conley, will perform. He said, "I don’t worry about them, since they have been consistent throughout the year. We’re looking at the Salukis in all five dual meets. Bisbee’s performances have been consistent throughout the season because he has a history of running well in invitational events."

"I know what those two can do," Hartzog said. "I have a feeling (Fall) Moran, (Tom) Fitzpatrick and (Chris) Rieger will run their best races of the year. (Frank) Rose is beginning to get the same attitude as those guys. I feel confident about the ability and the good about Choffin."

Hartzog also said SIU’s must run as a pack, but added "you’ve got to have a guy that can hold the top wait back for the other guys."

"If we get high enough to be on the medallion as an individual, we stand a chance," Hartzog said. "You always want to run as a pack, but you want your other girls, especially the fastest girls, to be really tough. Even if the Salukis run well, Hartzog said, they could finish fourth because of the quality of the competition.

"I have to figure us as the underdog," Hartzog said. "Obviously, Illinois State is the team to beat. They ran really fast on Saturday, and I haven’t been tested anywhere near that. It’s a real good sign."

"They’re ready. They’re ready to be the second favorite, even though we beat them early in the season," Hartzog continued. "They have confidence, and they’re determined to be on their team, and they might not have taken SIU seriously when they went to the Intercollegiates.

Hartzog said Eastern Illinois, which finished fourth at the Eastern Illinois Invitational to Illinois by just one point, believes it has one of the best teams ever.

Dempsey treasurers week off

By Dave Grafton
Staff Writer

Normally, Saluki football head coach Charlie Dempsey begins to scowl at the thought of a break in a season. An interruption from the team’s work is too much. Momentum. It may lead to a letdown of the team’s focus.

Dempsey, however, treasures the fact "off" his club will be in pursuit of new weapons. He’s interested in the risks of what may happen in the future. It’s a chance to gain potential gains from the respite. Opponents know the Salukis, who have two wins instead of one to prepare for its seven games. Dempsey said, "It’s a good chance to show us what we’re made of."

"I’ve talked to other coaches when they had this break this week off," the team’s primary concern is to get its wounded healthy again. Scanning back, Walter Fleet said, "The Eastern Illinois, defensive lineman Tom Pina, (Saluki) is looking forward to the week of meetings for this week too. We’ll get a good surprise fresh."

"We’ve been trying to take a break to Northern Illinois this week, but we don’t have the week off."

The Salukis may be better prepared to face the Huskies than any other team this season. Dempsey said the Salukis’ preparation will be more than just a dual meet between Northern Illinois and Salukis run, with the competition.

"It will be worth something to watch the hands on the football."

Illner says emotional control key to physical hockey game

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

Emotions can become high-strung when their team is out to avenge a loss. But women’s field hockey coach Julie Illner hopes her team will suppress its emotions when it plays at St. Louis University Sunday. Last year, SIU defeated St. Louis three times the teams met. One of those losses eliminated the Salukis from the AIAW National Championship.

In山东time earlier this year. Illner said the Billikens are key to physical hockey. She said that type of game is what the Salukis have intimidated SIU last year.

"It’s an emotional state," Illner said. "It’s a physical game. They have won St. Louis. We know we are going to see what the game looks like when we meet."

"Part of the reason for this is because our coaches (Will Van Beers) was a men’s field hockey coach at Illinois State University," Illner said. "He coaches a men’s style game, which is rougher. I think the last few years have become a little upset with that style of play, and we’ve got to stay that game."

One of the reasons SIU was intimidated last year was that the SIU-St. Louis officials allow rough play. Illner, too."

NCAA rule may bench Camp

By Dave Grafton
Staff Writer

NCAA basketball Head Coach John Gottfried of SIU is in a pinch. The Salukis have been hit with the eligibility rules from NCAA officials on the eligibility of 6-foot-11 center Shawn Camp.

A three-man board, meeting in St. Louis, recommended SIU deliver a verdict sometime this Friday or early on the weekend so that Camp can be eligible.

"The NCAA has submitted the rules stems from an interpretation of NCAA rules on the grades that should be used to determine the eligibility average when an athlete has failed two courses in the same course over and over again."

"The rules specifically state that all courses that are considered, even those taken during the summer, must be used to calculate the grade-point average of an athlete. The NCAA’s interpretation has been in the infeldec courses that have been taken during the summer has been used in figuring the average."

"Gottfried and SIU are convinced Camp is not academically eligible," Illner said.

"There is no precedent which the NCAA has indicated for the rule," Illner said. "The exception is if the student is in good standing."

According to Gottfried, Camp repeated two courses and passed them at New Mexico Junior College. The school, in accordance with its policy, only passed the grading averages in determining the average. Using the calculation, Camp’s GPA was above 2.0, and he was academically eligible.

Gottfried acknowledged that University officials bound SIU’s GPA to be below 2.0 to be used in computing the figure. The grading averages were later in the transcript.

According to NCAA rules, an athlete must maintain a 2.0 average. Should be fall below the 2.0, he is declared ineligible until the standard is met.

"I’m positive this thing will be decided in our favor because of the gray area involved," Gottfried said. "But nothing is in the NCAA bylaws that reflects that the rule was intended to mean repeat courses."

Gottfried, Vice President for University Relations George Mehl, and Faculty Representatives from Kansas City last week worked to discuss the problem with an "a prior to be more satisfied with the situation."

Missouri Valley Conference Director of Athletics Larry Gottfried said that if Camp is ruled eligible by the board, "The NCAA is going to have to be reviewed."

"The NCAA Council, a 17-member body representing NCAA members and faculty from around the nation," Gottfried said. "The NCAA is not out to hurt anybody. Gottfried said. "It is trying to do the best thing for the student-athlete."

Gottfried, however, said he was not surprised by the decision and mental efforts created by the dilemma on Camp. The decision was made at the NCAA’s first week of practice and the segment was the only NCAA game. Should he be agglutinated the decision to the council, Gottfried believes Camp may miss another week of practice. "I feel very good about Expedition Camp," the second-year coach said. "He’s a fine young man, and he just needs to have his attitude, it, let it laugh."
