GPSC votes to drop Saluki football program

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council passed a resolution Wednesday to support the elimination of the SIU-C football team.

The resolution passed in a close vote of 23-15.

Although the resolution passed, there was a great deal of discussion before the vote.

New GPSC members were concerned because they were not present last year when both sides of the football issue were presented to the GPSC.

The issue was debated until Jeff Kramer, vice president for Graduate School affairs, made some clarifications.

"To help this along," Kramer said, "Jerome Handler, the anthropology faculty member who initiated football's demise, has a position. Football has not been serving the needs of this University, but has been sucking up money."

Handler's research shows that the football program loses an average of more than $500,000 each year.

Handler, who is doing research at Harvard University this year, said in a telephone interview. "The team is losing over $600,000 a year. Costs are only going to go up."

This fact is included in the GPSC's resolution as a reason to eliminate the program.

The Daily Egyptian could not reach athletics director Jim Hart for comment late Wednesday night.

Handler said, "I think the graduate students have shown extraordinary good sense."

"Good for Trudy Hale for getting this done. Now I wonder what the Faculty Senate will do. They promised to take up the issue this semester," Handler said.

Kramer said, "Jim Hart, athletics director, came to talk to the GPSC last year, but didn't have information to negate what Handler said."

Other GPSC members were concerned with a part of the resolution that states that the graduation rate for football players is significantly lower than the average SIU-C student.

"Is this graduation rate any different than that of any other uni-

Enrollment at all-time high

Fall enrollment at the University reached a new record for the third consecutive year despite a decrease in the number of new freshmen.

SIU-C's total enrollment of 24,596 for this fall is 369 students more than fall 1988.

The University's 2,983 new freshmen are 388 fewer than last fall. But an additional 131 transfer students and 408 more continuing students than last year compensate for the decrease in new freshmen.

"We certainly feel this is an expression of confidence in the institution and we're pleased about it," President John C. Guyon said.

B. Kirby Browning, director of Admissions and Records, said he thinks the record may stand for several years because of shrinking high school class sizes nationwide that reflect a general population trend.

The University's 2,807 off-campus students comprise an increase of 131 over last fall. Most off-campus students attend the University in the evenings or weekends or through degree programs at military bases in the United States and abroad.

SIU-C's total enrollment has increased each year since 1985, when 22,672 students attended the University.

Area state's attorneys look at Ryan proposal

Editor's note: This is the first in a two-part series on Southern Illinois State's Attorneys' views on drug legislation.

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Jackson County State's Attorney Charles Grace said current drug laws are adequate for prosecuting drug offenders.

Randolph, Johnson and Franklin county state's attorneys disagree. In response to Jim Ryan's anti-drug strategy proposal, Grace said he believes current legislation is "quite substantial."

Republican candidate for Attorney General Ryan proposed tougher drug legislation in a four-part anti-drug strategy Tuesday at the Williamson County Airport.

The strategy includes crack legislation, a drug-free work place, mandatory drug fines for pushers and users and forfeiture of property used in drug transactions.

Grace said, "Jim is probably taking advantage of a hot topic, but that's what candidates do."

However, Randolph County State's Attorney Darrell Williamson, said as a prosecutor, he always wants to see the laws get tougher.

Ryan's crack legislation proposal would make delivery of seven grams of more of crack a Class X felony, which mandates a sentence of six to 30 years in prison. Delivery of less than seven grams but more than two grams would be a Class I felony with a mandated

Council pays for Christmas decor

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Motorists driving down South Illinois Avenue now have reason to wonder if Christmas has come early to Carbondale this year.

The city installed Christmas decorations on a utility pole, three months early to see how they would look at Christmastime, Jeff Doherty, deputy city manager, said.

"It's a good thing we put the decorations up early, because we found that the ones with the Christmas trees were too small and they were hard to see," Doherty said. "We decide to go with the wreath with the candles."

The Carbondale City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to spend $20,000 on the new decorations because the old ones are dilapidated.

The old Christmas decorations consisted of colorful, holiday banners that Doherty said were not religiously offensive.

A recent Supreme Court ruling mandated that it was unconstitutional to display the Nativity scene on government property.

Doherty said he was unfamiliar.

Guyon: Women see 'power position' disparity

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

University President John C. Guyon said Wednesday that equality in salary and professional status are the major concerns of women at SIU-C.

Guyon was honored at the Student Center by the Women's Caucus who presented him with a Certificate of Appreciation for the past year's work.

Guyon credited Associate

Athletics Director Charlotte West with getting him active in women's concerns. "A year ago I met with Charlotte West and she suggested that I start meeting with women on campus to find out what issues they are concerned with," Guyon said.

Guyon said after over a dozen meetings he has outlined issues he considers to be the most important to women at the University.

He said through all the meetings, salary and equity concerns were a common theme. He added that while the lady has been done on the salary inequities, the emphasis now is on how to adjust salaries.

"There's a group formed that is looking into it now," Guyon said. He said the group could develop alternatives within the next year.

Guyon said another point raised in his discussions was the placement of women in administrative positions. The women's groups said they feel there is a disparity in the number of men and women in what Guyon called the "power positions" of the administration.

Guyon said the University is stepping up efforts to promote women from within the University and outside of it. "Externally we will make every effort to recruit women to the University," he said.

Women's Studies Coordinator Kathryn B. Ward said it takes too long for women to get full professorships and that women assistant

Police find cocaine for U.S. in Bogota politician's home

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Police announced Wednesday the discovery of more than a ton of U.S.-bound cocaine at the home of a local government official and reported two more assassinations in the hometown of the Medellin drug cartel. A former Brazilian official said in an interview published Wednesday that eight of Colombia's 12 most wanted drug barons are hiding in Brazil. Laercio Pellegrino, former president of Brazil's Federal Drug Council told the newspaper O Globo the kingpins have been trafficking from their hideout since the massive anti-drug offensive.

Poland, U.S. meet to expand economic ties

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa met Wednesday to discuss increased U.S. investment in Poland and agreed there is a good opportunity for expanded commercial trade with the country's non-communist government. Walesa said without massive amounts of U.S. government aid and private investment, Poland's experiment with Western-style democracy and financial reform is doomed for failure.

Vatican favors removal of Auschwitz nuns

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican said it strongly favors removal of Catholic nuns from the site of the Nazis' Auschwitz death camp in Poland to end "an almost complete interruption of Christian-Jewish dialogue around the world." Cardinal Josef Glemp, Catholic Primate of Poland, in remarks published Wednesday said his offer for renewed Christian-Jewish dialogue remains valid. He termed the Vatican's statement "a forceful resolution to the problem." The London Daily Telegraph quoted Glemp, who is on a 24-hour visit to Britain, as defending the rights of Poles and Christians to pray at Auschwitz. A brief statement issued by Dutch Cardinal Johannes Willebrands said the Vatican welcomed the proposal to build a prayer center outside the World War II death camp's perimeter to house the Carmelite nuns.

Ramirez convicted of Night Stalker murders

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Ramirez, a self-proclaimed devil worshiper from Texas, was found guilty Wednesday of 13 murders and 30 other felonies committed during the two-year reign of terror of the Night Stalker. Among the convictions handed down by a Superior Court jury were several murders with special circumstances, which, under California law, carry a minimum penalty of life in prison and a maximum sentence of death. Ramirez, 29, was found guilty of 13 murders, including the first slaying attributed to the Night Stalker — the stabbing death of Jennie Vincow, 79, in her apartment in the Eagle Rock area of Los Angeles June 27, 1984. He also was convicted of burglarizing Vincow's home. The jury also reached verdicts on 12 other murders and 29 other felonies.

Physicist uses wit to reach audience

Lederman compares universe to balloon

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

The expanding universe can be likened to a balloon with measles. It was through this type of humor that 1988 Nobel Prize-winning physicist Leon M. Lederman brought an understanding of his complex field to a capacity audience at the Student Center Auditorium Tuesday night.

"If every measles was a point in the universe, as you blew up the balloon every point moves away from every other point. This is what we see happening now," Lederman, who received his doctorate from Columbia University in 1951, said.

Lederman, known for his wit as well as his ground-breaking work at Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory near Chicago, defined physics as "a subject that induces fear and loathing in students."

"It's really no more complicated than football play diagrams once you learn the code," Lederman said. "Now if we could somehow have atoms battling on Sunday instead, everyone would understand it."

Speeding through the history of science so as to set the context for his lecture, Lederman phrased the ultimate question that all science is trying to answer.

"How does the universe work? That is the question in 1989."

Scientists believe that the laws governing the universe are simple, yet they continue to elude them, he said. "Ideally, it should be simple enough to put on a T-shirt."

Lederman, who was director of Fermilab from 1979-1989, made use of many transparencies that helped explain complicated theories in simpler terms. One such transparency depicted the T-shirt Lederman spoke of.

"I call it the 20/20 T-shirt," Lederman said. This is because it will represent total understanding, and it probably won't happen until 2,020," he joked.

"What we consider elementary changes with time," Lederman said. He then took the audience through several significant scientific discoveries that have become outdated.

Lederman said it wasn't until 1950 that new particles, called hadrons, were discovered by accelerating matter.

"This was very exciting because we were seeing particles that we knew couldn't have been in (the experiment). They were created by the energy itself," Lederman said.

The 1960s brought an explosion in the number of new particles discovered. "Each one represented one, if not three, Ph.Ds," Lederman said.

Lederman said a new theory that he calls "The Higgs Thing" seemed to provide some explanations for data that cannot otherwise be explained.

"We gave some data to astronomers who are trying to explain the universe, and they essentially came up with the same theory under a different name," he said.

Lederman said the new particle accelerator being built in Texas will be powerful enough to test this new theory.

'As the Wheels Turn,' transit picks up speed

THE UNENDING SIU-C saga of "Mass Transit and Parking Lots" has evolved into a new miniseries titled "As the Wheels Turn." The harrowing organ music starts and the series unfolds.

In the latest episode, it looks as if the wheels are apparently turning for the mass transit system as judged by what took place at the Carbondale City Council meeting Tuesday night. The council unanimously decided to appropriate funding for a feasibility study to determine if there is a need for a mass transit system in Carbondale.

The estimated cost for the study is $67,530, though the city received a grant from the Illinois Department of Transportation for $31,530, which brings the cost of the study down to $36,000.

University President John C. Guyon has notified the city that the University is willing to pay half of the remaining total for the study. The willingness of the city and the University to work together is commendable.

This is a good step for the script writers of the series. Not only does it provide excitement for viewers, but it is a positive move for the Carbondale community.

The move to create a mass transit system in Carbondale is a reasonable notion to be carried out, and additional parking lots should not be considered.

THE PARKING situation can be called a problem by some, but the truth is, there are parking spaces available.

The Arena is a veritable wasteland of parking spaces just there for the asking. Too far, you say. Well, then we have the possibility that there will be a mass transit system at the disposal of the University and the citizens of the city.

The answer is not paving over the University so we can all park a little closer to our classes and places of work. This campus is known for its beauty, not its spacious parking lots. If the greenery of the campus has to be paved over, then let it be paved over to create buildings for learning and research — somewhere to park our minds not our cars. Exercising our gray matters and our legs could become a way of life at SIU-C.

If the creation of a mass transit system is instituted its virtues are far more reaching than nearer parking spaces. Citizens and students could utilize the system to travel throughout the area.

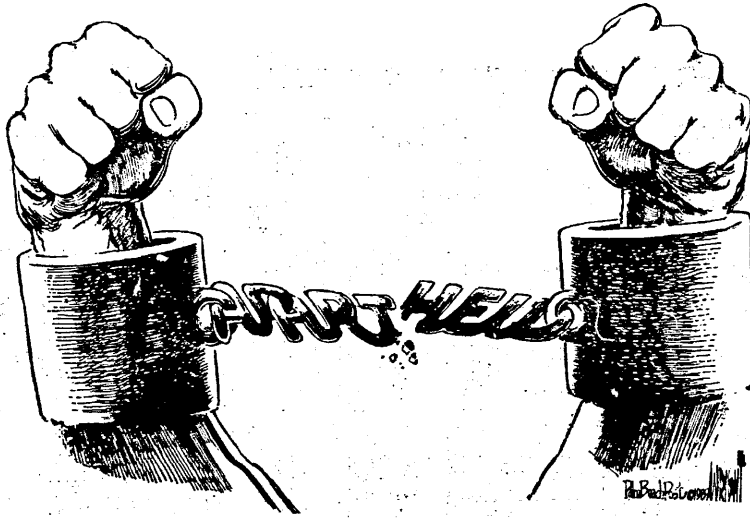

If organizers of the system decide that the routes for the buses should extend to Marion and Murphysboro then students who live outside the city limits could save the expense of driving the long distance between the University and home.

THE SYSTEM could serve the elderly and the handicapped. Students without cars could go to the mall without having to bum a ride off someone who has a car. And those who drink and drive may think of taking the bus around town instead of hopping in their car to the next party or bar.

The last proposal to create two new parking lots at the University should be cut short.

The proposal calls for one new lot behind the Recreation Center and another on the site where Stehr Field now rests. As if the idea of putting another parking lot on the SIU-C campus wasn't bad enough, the Parking and Traffic Committee had to choose a site that was named in honor of a highly-regarded University figure, Jean Stehr.

The parking problem at SIU-C is as big as we want to make it be. A mass transit system is as far as the University and the city of Carbondale should go to appease the parking and transportation "problem."

Letters

Halloween no longer what it used to be

Ahhh... Mr. Sassil

After reading your letter Monday, Sept. 18, I find it quite amusing to think that there might actually be some folks that would complain as you about your "right to party."

Without any substantial reasons why we should support your pursuit of foolish endeavors at the expense of the citizens of Carbondale, and, not to mention, SIU-C's growing reputation as a big-time party school, I cannot take your letter seriously.

You see, there is something wrong with your basic "cherished student event," more commonly known as the Halloween bash in C'dale. It's not all that it's cracked up to be.

The three Carbondale Halloweeners that I've seen have left me somewhat awe-struck at how well you fine young cannibals act.

Something is missing though. If you're going to celebrate Halloween then why not do it up big? Bring in great marching bands and build great floats with Spuds MacKenzie and Alex from Stroh's to proclaim how great your gods are, or at least dress up in costumes.

Where is your Halloween spirit?

Well, if there is such a thing, it isn't here, because all I've seen of Halloween in Carbondale is a mass glorification of drunkenness, stupidity and rebellion. Who wants that?

I don't see any way that this foolishness could do anything good to uplift Southern Illinois University as a competitive academic institution.

On the contrary, Halloween in Carbondale has hurt SIU. This so-called "tradition" is a foul stench that drifts to far-away and beckons to everyone: "Come to Carbondale and trash our community. Indulge yourself with all the evil your heart desires. Strip away our dignity and litter our streets with your abominable deeds. We don't care. Some of us are even proud of it."

But some of us are sick of it. I, for one, will be glad when the party's over. My thanks to the city council, leaders of SIU and everyone else involved in taking action to eliminate this worthless event from our community. It is a giant step in the right direction for Carbondale.

As for anyone else that is pissed off, go on, fight for your right to party. Party till you puke — just just don't expect me to clean up your mess.

By the way, your dog, Spuds MacKenzie, just got run over by a beer truck. — Steve Goyette, junior, engineering.

Student's Halloween complaint ridiculous

The street party that takes place on the weekend that precedes Oct. 31 has nothing to do with Halloween.

When most people hear or think of Halloween, they attach particular meanings to the word. Warm, nostalgic feelings of being young, dressing in costume, receiving treats, and playing a few tricks come to mind.

In its early years, Halloween in Carbondale was, for the most part, an adult version of the children's holiday. Original costumes were prevalent. Sure you felt a little silly, but that was the purpose of the night.

People came out to drink and relax after a long week of midterm testing. The atmosphere leaned towards amicable.

To refer the street party of today as a Halloween party, softens the reality of the situation. It no longer has anything to do with the trick of the treating kind of fun that takes place on Oct. 31.

The trend, in recent years, has shifted from a night of celebration to a night of wrecklessness without a cause. Basically, the weekend is just a large scale version of any other party that erupts on a Friday or Saturday night among SIU students, with its only purpose being extreme drunkenness.

The mix of mass drinking (with a significant portion being underage and underexperienced) and a swelling, compressed crowd has the potential for great harm to its participants.

The Carbondale City Council responded responsibly to the situation in the only way they could have done. Initially they recognized a situation with potential of either harm or profit.

They genuinely attempted to make a positive thing out of Halloween. The Tourism Council saw it as a potential to attract outsiders to the city to reap revenues and statewide recognition.

They tried to make it and event that was both safe and fun. Yet, no one could predict the evolution of halloween. Perhaps if the party had retained a little of its innocence, it could have survived.

But its participants were its own demise. You changed from Mardi Gras to "fight for your right to party." With attitudes such as this how could Carbondale leaders resort to anything but to end Halloween?

The reality of the situation is that this is the nineties and today you can be held responsible financially for any tragedies that occur. I believe the city leaders felt that the risks were too great and the price to pay in the event of such a happening too costly.

I'd bet big money, that if you or one of you "15 buddies" were hurt during the weekend, you'd be one of the first to sue the city for "not stopping the weekend while they knew they had a duty to do so."

So quit behaving like a spoiled child whose about to have something taken away from him he doesn't need. Get over it already, grow up and get on with your life.

Concern yourself with what you'll be doing next year. Mr. Senior is tired of trying to incite a riot. — Mary Carvell, senior, accounting.

Pollution Control makes comments on program

In response to several articles that have appeared in the DE recently, we at Pollution Control would like to make the following remarks.

While the articles basically described the SIU-C recycling programs, I believe that they created two wrong impressions.

One, the SIU-C Administration has always, and continues to, support this program.

Also, Pollution Control, a campus department, operates a recycling program to insure its continued operation during times when there is little student interest in recycling.

The program presently operates at a low level because there is no current market in which to dispose of the recycled goods. — Patrick Glisson, recycling project manager, Dept. of Pollution Control.

GPSC president resigns from post

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

Trudy Hale, the Graduate and Professional Student Council president, resigned at Wednesday's meeting, stating personal reasons for the leave.

"I've been involved in student activism and government for the last two and a half years, and am ready to bring to a close this chapter in my life," Hale said.

Her resignation was effective at the end of the meeting.

"I entered this office one and a half years ago with great hope and enthusiasm, and some would even say naivete. I'm leaving, but I'm still enthusiastic," Hale said.

As stated in the GPSC constitution, the duty of president passes to Charlie Ramsey, the vice president for administrative affairs.

"Trudy surprised all of us with this," Ramsey said. "But she'll still be around to help me along with all of this for the rest of the semester."

Hale, 29, said she is yet to decide whether she will pursue her graduate studies at another university or seek employment. Hale is a graduate student in speech communication.

GPSC will be looking for a replacement for Ramsey's position, he said.

versity?" a GPSC member asked.

Graduation rates obtained from Nikki Chambers, the athletics department's academic adviser, show 25 percent of SIU-C football freshman recruits and junior college transfers tracked from 1980 to 1983 graduated.

Handler said a current issue of "The New York Times" said, in a nationwide study, that less than 20 percent of college football players graduate.

"Now I wonder what the Faculty Senate will do?"

—Jerome Handler

The resolution states the money that goes into football be redistributed into athletic programs that already show significant strength, to Morris Library and to non-athletic scholarship funds.

Last spring, the Undergraduate Student Government voted to support the football program.

According to Susan Hall, last year's USG senator for undergraduate academic services, there was a poor senate turnout when the resolution was passed.

"The USG voted on the issue at a special senate meeting that was called within 48 hours. The meeting barely had quorum, so it wasn't well represented," Hall said.

lar with that particular ruling, but the city always has tried to put up very neutral Christmas decorations.

The tri-candle wreath, with natural foliage and a red bow, costs $249 each, Doherty said.

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce originally planned to solicit funds "from Carbondale businesses to supplement the $20,000," a report from the council stated. However, other chamber projects, including "the establishment of economic development fund, have taken priority," leaving the city to pick up the tab.

"Carbondale has been criticized for many years about the way it looks at Christmastime," Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard said during the council meeting. "It's time we do something about that."

The allotted $20,000 is the amount available for Christmas decorations this year, the report stated. A complete and year-round decoration program will be phased in over the next two to three years.

professors often become frustrated.

West, one of the women on campus in a "power position," claimed one of the barriers to advancement are informal networks, or the meetings outside the office in a more comfortable setting.

West said she has gotten closer to the various athletics directors in the Gateway Conference while golfing than she did in four years of across-the-table meetings.

She noted Guyon's informal network is primarily male and said she wondered if other doors on campus might open up to discussions with women.

Guyon agreed with many of the arguments stressing that change will take time.

Another issue addressed was the predominantly male student body.

"Actually it's gotten worse" in the last four years Guyon said. "The ratio is about 64-36 percent."

"We've talked about it at length, but I don't know what the solution is," Guyon said. He said the University will continue to try to make the school more attractive to women.

The program will include a "banner program with Carbondale businesses paying for the banners and being allowed to place their business name on the banner," and more Christmas decorations over a larger portion of the city, the report stated.

The Christmas decorations will be purchased from the Wayne Manufacturing Company of Des Moines, Iowa, because they offered a better warranty program than other prospective companies and because buying from a manufacturer costs less than buying through a sales company, the report stated.

sentence of four to 15 years without probation.

Grace said under current Illinois law, crack offenses are dealt with under cocaine statutes.

Currently, 15 grams or more of cocaine is considered a Class X felony punishable with a minimum six years in prison. One hundred or more grams of cocaine is considered an ultra Class X felony with a minimum prison term of nine years.

"There is no reason why drug offenses can't be addressed with existing laws," Grace said.

Franklin County State's Attorney Terry M. Green said the crack legislation proposal sounds like a good idea.

"I would certainly support any type of legislation that would increase penalties for offenders," Green added.

Ryan also proposed an amendment to existing Illinois law that would allow the forfeiture of real estate acquired by drug offenders with drug money or property used to facilitate a drug transaction.

Johnson County State's Attorney Mike McCormick said the forfeiture of real estate could be used against the offenders.

"We could use the money from that property to catch the next guy," McCormick said.

Williamson agreed that adding real estate to the present items of forfeiture would put "the hurt" on the drug offenders.

The only problem, he added, is that very few people own the property they use for drug transactions.

Grace said the issue of real estate and drug transactions "will certainly be addressed by the legislature soon."

detective's attempt to catch a serial killer who chooses victims through personal ads.

Pacino plays Frank Keller, a detective who just celebrated 20 years with the police force and is rapidly approaching his 50th birthday. Left by his wife and with no other interests besides his job, Pacino sinks into alcohol and depression. Intrigued by the personal ads killer, Pacino teams up with another detective (John Goodman of TV's "Roseanne"), only to fall in love with his prime suspect (Barkin).

Pacino's Keller is frightfully burnt-out on life. He wanders through the first part of the film like a zombie, a stark and empty shell of humanity. Pacino doesn't wait about being alone and growing old, but conveys those emotions quickly and directly through his eyes and his actions. It's only when the serial killer case enters his life that he shows any signs of life.

Pacino and Goodman prepare a trap for the killer, only to have it compromised when Pacino gets involved with one of the suspects. From here, everything heats up. Pacino and Barkin have a series of steamy encounters despite the fact that Pacino has increasingly stronger suspicions about her being the killer.

Where Glenn Close's behavior in "Fatal Attraction" was obsessive but direct, Barkin has an air of complete unpredictability around her. This is not chaotic, random behavior; the audience can just never quite tell what is running through her mind. She can be erotic, innocent and frightening all within one scene and pull it off believably. The uncertainty of her character adds a definite edge to the movie.

The edge is what makes this movie. It is rarely predictable, but in a positive way. The plot twists are unexpected, but never implausible. When it wants to be, this movie is a heartstopper.

"Sea of Love" covers a lot of ground. It can be suspenseful, sensitive, humorous, depressing, dramatic, scary and even romantic.

One Menard prison escapee captured, another still at large

By Doug Powell
Staff Writer

One of two inmates who escaped from the Menard Correctional Center honor farm early Monday has been apprehended, a Menard Correctional Center spokesman said.

Rickey Daniel Phelps was apprehended at 3:40 p.m. in a corn field near Steelville Tuesday, authorities said.

About 1 a.m. Monday, inmates Roger Morrison and Phelps allegedly overpowered a guard at the honor camp, stole his keys and fled in the guard's car.

According to news reports

Morrison and Phelps tied up the guard, who freed himself shortly after, and alerted security personnel about the escape. The guard was not injured.

Chester Police spotted the car shortly after the escape and gave chase. Morrison and Phelps stopped the car near a covered bridge on Mary's River, between Chester and Steelville, where they ran into a wooded area.

Alan Fentzel, assistant warden of programs at Menard Correctional Center, said Phelps was caught hiding in a corn field.

"He didn't give himself up," Fentzel said. "We had to chase him down, but it wasn't too much of a battle."

"Phelps contends that from the moment they stopped their getaway vehicle they split up," Fentzel said.

Phelps is being held in the segregation unit (disciplinary unit), at the Menard Correctional Center. Fentzel said Phelps probably will not be returned to the honor farm.

"Phelps will probably be brought up on escape charges," Fentzel said.

Prison Superintendent Boniface Gross described Morrison as a white male, 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighing 140 pounds, with brown hair, brown eyes and a medium complexion.

Both sides rest cases in Nitz trial

METROPOLIS, ILL. (UPI) — The defense and prosecution rested their cases Wednesday in the three-week long murder trial of Rita Nitz, accused of helping her ex-husband with the April 1988 decapitation slaying of a Murphysboro man.

Nitz's ex-husband, Richard, was found guilty last year of killing Michael Miley, 23, and was sentenced to death. The trial, which began with jury selection Aug. 28, was moved from Williamson to Massac County on a change of venue because of pretrial publicity. Closing arguments and instructions to the jury were expected to be heard Thursday morning.

The defense rested Wednesday without calling additional witnesses.

In rebuttal testimony Williamson County State's Attorney Charles Gamati called Frank Cooper, a crime scene technician with the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation. Cooper said he found no blood, body tissue or hair during an April 28, 1988, search of the Nitz trailer. He said he thinks he would have found evidence if there had been some to find.

Under cross examination by public defender Robert Drew, Cooper said on the day of the search he did not know about the alleged beating of Miley.

The prosecution also called Philip Sylvestre, an investigator with the DCI.

Sylvestre testified that he, another officer, Gamati, and an assistant to Gamati, visited the Nitz trailer Tuesday night. They said they stood in the window where a prosecution witness Tuesday testified she stood while watching Richard Nitz beat Miley with a baseball bat. Sylvestre said nothing obstructed his view.

Remodeling of coal facility set for year-end completion

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

The three-story administration building at the recently donated SIU-C coal facility is being remodeled by B & H Construction Co. of Murphysboro, and is expected to be finished by the end of the year, John Mead, director of the SIU-C Coal Research Center, said.

The company estimated the costs of remodeling at $84,729.

The building was remodeled for science labs in the 1970s and apparently will require minimal changes.

"We are having the interior painted, laying new carpet and having a few necessary things done to the exterior. There will be no major structural changes," Mead said.

The building, along with a spacious laboratory, research and development building and nearly 25 acres, was donated to the University in May.

It is located near Carterville, next to the College of Technical Careers.

The building, formerly a federal administration building for coal-related activities, had already contained a few labs for SIU-C researchers, a Coal Research Center training facility for surface mining and the Illinois Center for Research on Sulfur in Coal.

September designated Literacy Month by city

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard signed a proclamation September 13 designating September as Literacy Month, Betty Nealy, Director of the Literacy Support Project, said.

Neil Dillard

The proclamation is in conjunction with Family LiteracyFest which will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at University Mall in Carbondale, Nealy said.

LiteracyFest is sponsored by The Literacy Council of Southern Illinois.

"Volunteer readers from Southern Illinois will collect sponsors from their local community and come to the mall and read silently from books or other printed materials in a designated area," she said.

Some of the activities planned include Chris Egelston, the Reading Magician and a demonstration on "How to Read to Your Children," by Barbara Bauernfeind, of the Rend Lake College Volunteer Literacy Project.

"The money raised by the readers will be used by the Literacy Council to fund a variety of promotions," Jim Ubel, treasurer of the Literacy Council of Southern Illinois, said.

Belleville area to provide for nuns, priests

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Parishes in the Catholic Diocese of Belleville will collect for the second annual retirement fund for retired nuns and brothers on Sept. 23 and 24.

The 28 southern counties of Illinois make up the Catholic Diocese of Belleville, Rev. John Myler said. Last year, Catholics in Southern Illinois contributed $131,000 to the retirement fund for retired nuns and brothers.

St. Francis Xavier had their collection in August, Rev. Carl Sherer said.

Sister Celine Wuedbels, of the Provincial Mother House in Roma, Illinois, a retired instructor who taught for 60 years on a minimal budget, is one of those who will benefit from this collection.

Sister Wuedbels began her teaching career in 1918 at St. Mary's School in Mount Carmel, Illinois.

From St. Mary's, Wuedbels taught at eight other schools until 1978, when she celebrated her diamond jubilee as a nun. "We were not even on a budget in the early days and we lived very meagerly, but money was not very important, teaching was," she said.

Wuedbels, who will be 89 on Nov. 27, realizes that modern day medical bills are more than a retired nun can afford.

"When I was a principal and a teacher in the late-1960s, I made $9,000 a year. The teachers made $11,000-$12,000 a year," she said. "My budget would come nowhere near to paying for (the cost of health care today)."

FRED'S

A True Confession

I don't know how it happened...at first, I was going to SIP, living at Thompson Point, and doing what SIU students normally do on the weekends: going uptown to the strip and standing around with the rest of the people pretending to have fun. Then, one time I went to FRED'S. I couldn't believe it! Everybody was dancing, well maybe 75%, but when was the last time you've seen more than 10% of the crowd dancing up town? Even my friends who said they didn't like country music were dancing up a storm. You know, all those other places say they are "THE place to party", well they don't even know the meaning of the word. Well anyway, now I'm hooked on FRED'S. I confess...FRED'S has really spoiled me! -Diana Davidson

De Klerk takes oath of office

South African President vows to usher in 'new South Africa'

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — Frederik Willem De Klerk was sworn in as president of South Africa Wednesday, pledging to negotiate a power-sharing deal with the black majority but cautioning against "unreasonable expectations" generated during his rise to power.

After taking the oath at Pretoria's Dutch Reformed Church, where witnesses saw a tear roll down his cheek and land on the lapel of his suit, De Klerk vowed to usher in a "new South Africa" during his five-year reign and declared "time is of the essence."

Negotiations on a new constitution that would bring blacks into the national power structure for the first time will receive "urgent attention," he said.

But De Klerk said minority rights must be assured of equal protection in the still undefined new constitutional order.

De Klerk's nationally televised inaugural speech was made before about 1,000 invited guests, including black leaders of nominally independent "homelands," at an amphitheater at the government complex overlooking Pretoria shortly after the oath-taking ceremony.

Invited members of the right-wing Conservative Party boycotted the inaugural address and their bloc of seats were empty.

Two policemen on horseback guided De Klerk's motorcade to the Union Buildings entrance, a 21-gun salute boomed and four South African Impala jets screamed overhead trailing smoke colored for South Africa's blue, orange and white national flag.

"More than anything, the watershed at which South Africa finds itself demands of all our people a commitment and the will and determination to reach a peaceful accord," De Klerk, 53, said.

"It demands of all South Africans to rise above their fears and suspicions and to start building a new South Africa."

De Klerk shied away from the specifics of the ruling National Party's reform program, making no dramatic announcements concerning lifting a 3-year-old state of emergency or releasing jailed-for-life African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

The pro-government English-language Citizen reported Wednesday Mandela was unlikely to be freed until next year and other ANC leaders sentenced with Mandela to life imprisonment in 1964 might be released first to "test the climate."

"I am aware that we have raised certain expectations during the past months," said De Klerk. "We intend to live up to them, because we believe in what we advocate. I am, however, also aware of other unreasonable expectations which have been aroused."

"While we are quite pleased to be tested against our undertakings, we cannot accept responsibility for over-enthusiastic or even twisted versions of our policy," he added.

Slain body of Jimmy Hoffa possibly in Giants Stadium

CHICAGO (UPI)—Mafia leaders ordered Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa killed, dismembered and entombed in a New Jersey sports stadium because he threatened to expose union—mob ties for federal investigators, Playboy Magazine reported Wednesday.

Hoffa's body was dismembered with a chain saw and stored in a freezer for five months before it was transported from Michigan to New Jersey where the body parts were buried in the cement of Giants Stadium at the Meadowlands construction site in East Rutherford, N.J., the magazine reported in its November edition.

Playboy based its story on an interview with Donald "Tony the Greek" Frankos, a self-described underworld hit man now in the federal government's witness protection program.

Frankos told Playboy he learned the details of the Hoffa killing from John Sullivan and Jimmy Coonan, who visited him while he was in prison.

Frankos said Coonan shot Hoffa and dismembered the body. He said Joe Sullivan, no relation to John Sullivan, later disposed of the body.

Coonan and Joe Sullivan are both in prison. The magazine said it spent seven months checking out Franko's story.

Hoffa, who was convicted of jury tampering and released from jail in 1971 on the condition he stay out of union business, disappeared on July 30, 1975, from the Machus Red Fox restaurant in Bloomfield Township, north of Detroit. Investigators presumed him dead but no trace of his body ever was found and no one was ever charged in the disappearance.

Hoffa's son, Detroit lawyer James P. Hoffa, declined comment on the Playboy article. Hoffa's daughter, Barbara Crancer of St. Louis, said, "I guess I don't put a lot of stock in it, I don't know."

John Anthony, spokesman for the FBI's Detroit office, said he had not seen the article but said,

"The FBI, because of our extensive investigation, feels we know who killed Jimmy Hoffa, where he was killed and how. What we do not know with a degree of certainty is the disposition of his body."

Frankos told writer Lake Headley that Hoffa was lured to a Mafia safe house for a meeting with Tony "Pro" Provenzano, who died earlier this year. The two men had feuded while serving prison terms at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.

Frankos said Hoffa was killed because he threatened to expose the link between the Teamsters and organized crime. He said Provenzano sought permission for the killing from Anthony "Fat Tony" Salerno, then boss of the Genovese crime family.

"John Sullivan mentioned to me that the hit would be going down like this: Tony Provenzano, who was in charge of Local 560 Truckers' Union in Jersey, was one of the most powerful union delegates at the time," Frankos said. "But he was also a captain in the Genovese crime family. Tony Pro was doing time with Jimmy Hoffa in Lewisburg Penitentiary. They had a discussion in the yard.

Gang leader named in killing

Playboy: Mafia leaders ordered slaying of Teamsters boss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Irish gang leader accused of killing Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa and dismembering him with a chain-saw carried out a ghoulish reign of terror in Manhattan's Hell's Kitchen and once was quoted as saying, "No corpus delicti, no investigation."

Playboy magazine reported Wednesday that Mafia leaders ordered Hoffa killed, dismembered and entombed in a New Jersey sports stadium because he threatened to expose union-mob ties to federal investigators.

Donald "Tony the Greek" Frankos, a self-described underworld hit man now in the federal government's witness protection program, told Playboy that James Coonan, leader of the Westies gang, and John Sullivan carried out the hit, shooting Hoffa, cutting up his body with a chain saw and storing it in a freezer for five months.

Coonan's grisly exploits as leader of the Irish gang, which terrorized Hell's Kitchen and the Hudson River waterfront for 20 years, were detailed in a 5-month federal racketeering trial that led to his 1988 conviction in nine killings.

Coonan's lawyer, Gerald Shargel, who just filed an appeal in the gang leader's case to the Supreme Court, denied the allegations that his client had killed Hoffa, calling the Playboy story "absurd."

Coonan also cemented a loan-sharking alliance between the Westies and the Gambino crime family in 1978 and, according to testimony, shot and wounded a union official who had angered Gambino boss John Gotti.

Coonan, 42, and six codefendants were convicted Feb. 24, 1988, on charges that included murder, kidnapping, loansharking, drug dealing, insurance fraud and counterfeiting.

Trial testimony painted a gruesome picture of the gang leader, whose bloody exploits allegedly included carving up victims, carrying one's head around in a plastic bag and ordering another's hands put on ice so the fingerprints could be impressed on a weapon in a planned hit.

Coonan also allegedly cut off one victims' genitals after dismembering the man and placed them in a milk carton, according to testimony.

United Nations Association sponsors panel discussion

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

The United Nations Association of Southern Illinois sponsored a panel discussion on Japanese and American early childhood education Tuesday evening at the Lesar Law Building Auditorium.

The panelists were Alan H. Kim, a professor of Japanese; Reiko Watanabe, an SIU-C graduate from Japan; and Jim Campbell, an instructor in early childhood education and curriculum instruction.

James Quisenberry, director of International Programs and Services, served as moderator.

The discussion, which was held in honor of the United Nations' international Year of the Child, focused on educational differences between the two cultures.

The panelists discussed that the American educational system deals with many different races and ethnic groups, while Japanese education deals primarily with one ethnic group.

"In Japan you have a tremendously homogeneous population. America reflects tremendous cultural diversity," Campbell said.

The panelists also contrasted the involvement of parents in education in the two cultures.

Campbell said PTA meetings at schools in the United States typically attract low numbers of parents.

In contrast, Kim said there is a Japanese phrase meaning "education mama." He said the phrase describes the typical Japanese mother, who demands more homework for her child and puts pressure on the school system for better quality education.

Watanabe said Japanese parents have to get involved in educating their children, because Japanese classes usually have about 40 students. This makes it difficult for teachers to give students personalized attention, she said.

Watanabe, whose daughters have attended schools in Japan and the United States, said Japanese elementary schools emphasize self-expression through the arts, while American schools emphasize verbal expression through games like show and tell.

Watanabe also noted that the typical Japanese student spent more time at school than most American students. Japanese students go to school on Saturdays in addition to the regular school week and are required to participate in extracurricular activities, she said.

Kim said the strictly regimented Japanese school system has advantages and disadvantages.

English in Action offers Americans immediate link into foreign affairs

Americans and international students meet on a weekly basis

By Irene Oploh
Staff Writer

Americans interested in having an immediate link to foreign affairs should get involved with English in Action, Linda Dutcher, a volunteer for the program, said.

In the program, an American volunteer is paired with an international student to meet one hour each week for casual conversation or any other activity agreed upon by the participants.

English in Action is designed to help international students improve their English vocabulary and pronunciation, Burghilde Gruber, president of the International Friends Club, said.

The program, sponsored by International Programs and Services and the International Friends Club, is beneficial not only to international students, but to the American volunteers as well, Dutcher said.

"Through the program you can learn a lot about the rest of the world and have a keener interest in international affairs. The newspaper is no longer just in black and white," she said.

International students may reveal an interesting perspective to Americans, according to Dutcher and her husband, Russell Dutcher, dean of the College of Science.

Students involved in the program have shown interest in many unique areas, the Dutchers said.

"One girl had read a book by Ernest Hemingway and wanted us to show her a sycamore tree," Mrs. Dutcher said.

Interaction is purely up to the participants and meetings can simply include casual conversation or a trip to the mall.

Students as well as professors and community members are encouraged to participate in the program, Gruber said.

"Many international students do not get a chance to meet a lot of Americans and through the program participants can make lasting friendships," Mrs. Dutcher said.

French DC-10 goes down on way back to France; no survivors found

171 passengers dead; officials believe plane was sabotaged

PARIS (UPI)—Rescuers searching the wreckage of a crashed French DC-10 jetliner in a remote African desert region Wednesday determined all 171 people aboard died. Airline officials said they believed the plane was deliberately blown from the sky.

"Unhappily, I regret to tell you that there were no survivors," Col. Jean Job, commander of French forces in Ndjamena, the capital of Chad, said in a message to the French Defense Ministry in Paris.

The commander said all that was left for his men to do was to arrange the repatriation of the corpses from the remote crash site in a Niger desert.

The plane disappeared Tuesday during a flight from Chad to France.

The private Union of Air Transport said a man claiming to represent the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad group telephoned its offices in Paris late Tuesday claiming responsibility for downing the airline's DC-10. The airline refused comment on the claim.

Another caller claiming to represent the Jihad phoned a French news agency office in London with a similar statement.

UTA spokesman Michel Friess said the fact wreckage was spread over a wide area "gives weight to the theory of an explosion at high altitude, which in all probability leads one to (suspect) a criminal attack."

Friess told Antenne-2 French television there is "every reason to believe" the plane was blown up deliberately.

"If there had been a technical problem I see no reason other than an attack why the crew would not have had at least several minutes to report it," he said.

Job, the French commander, said rescue teams raced to the sight of the crash about 400 miles northwest of Ndjamena aboard two Puma French Air Force helicopters but found no trace of human life.

He said 40 elite French paratroopers were jumping onto the crash site deep in the Tenere desert to fly home the bodies and black box recorders crucial to determining the cause of the disaster.

The commander said the dead consisted of 157 passengers and 14 crew members.

French television speculated that Libyan intelligence might have decided to blow up the plane

Tuesday to pressure France to use its influence with Chad to free Libyan prisoners captured during Chad's long-running civil war.

U.S. State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said seven Americans were believed aboard the UTA plane, including Bonnie Pugh, wife of U.S. Ambassador to Chad Robert Pugh. Tutwiler declined to identify the other Americans.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said President Bush "extends his condolences to the families and friends of those who died in the crash," and said evidence pointed to an explosion in the air.

"The wreckage is spread over a wide area, suggesting that the plane did not explode on impact but rather came apart at high altitude," Fitzwater said. "However, we can't at this time state for a fact that it was blown up, but it does have those appearances."

The spokesman said the United States also had offered its assistance in the investigation, but that it was "far too early to make any assumptions on motivation or cause at this point."

Gallagher, from O'Fallon, has career marks of 83-25 in singles and 15-1 in doubles as a high school player. She participated in the IHSA Sectional and State Finals all four years. Gallagher was a three-time conference champion and was team most valuable player her junior and senior seasons. She was recruited by more than 100 schools.

"We'll be at a disadvantage because we haven't played the course before, but we scored well last weekend in Normal," Daugherty said. I'd like to think the tough competition will bring out the best in our team. A finish in the top half of the field would be nice."

Daugherty's team is fresh from a fourth place finish in the 20-team Illinois State Invitational. The team will depend on strong performances from seniors Lisa Meritt and Lisa Johnson. Meritt took third at ISU with a team-best score of 155 and Johnson tallied a 163, second on the team, to share 15th place overall in a 108-player field.

SIU-C posted a score of 656, bettering three Big Ten teams—Michigan, 660, Wisconsin, 660, and Purdue, 676, while finishing ahead of last year's Gateway Champion ISU, 660.

"We showed last weekend that we can play with many of the top teams in the Midwest," Daugherty said. "We want to keep improving and gain confidence each time out."

Making the trip to the Lady Northern Tournament will be seniors Lisa Meritt, Lisa Johnson and Julie Shumaker, and sophomores Gina Giaccone, Anne Childress and Deborah Minier.

"I think the biggest plus of our relationship is when one of us comes out, not having a good practice, and the other pushes you to get better and to get some work done," Gibson said.

Though Auld is anxious to see what her freshman has to offer, she will bring Gallagher back slowly.

"We will use her sparingly until she gets a full release from the doctor," Auld said. "She was like a new person this week. I think her and Michele will make a nice doubles team."

Auld admits that Southwest is a big match, but she doesn't want her team to overlook Eastern and Chicago State.

"We have pretty much dominated Eastern the last several years," Auld said. "They usually have two or three good players, but they lack depth. I don't want our players to overlook them though because anyone can jump up and beat you on any given day. We want to keep our intensity level up the whole weekend."

Chicago State comes to SIU-C undefeated. They are 4-0 and Auld says they could be worthy competition Saturday.

"I don't know much about the competition they've played," Auld said. "But they are undefeated and I just hope our depth can work to our advantage again."

Shawnee Wheelers to gain RSO status

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The need for a student-oriented bicycling club has led to the formation of the Shawnee Wheelers, soon to be the newest Registered Student Organization at SIU-C.

Senior Phillip Pepper, primarily a touring and racing biker, has been looking to get people interested in a biking club.

"This is the perfect opportunity for riders of all kinds to become oriented with a biking club," Pepper said. "It doesn't matter if they are beginning riders or more experienced tour bikers, or if they have a single-speed bikes or 18-speed racing bikes. I want to get people involved with the club."

Junior Heath Doty, an off-road mountain biker, said the club will try to put equal emphasis on all aspects of biking, whether it be touring, racing, or mountain biking. "There will be separate rides scheduled for each kind of biking once we're better organized. We would like to see an all-purpose bike club succeed," he said.

"We haven't decided on fees or meeting times yet," Doty said. "It will be based on the needs of the group. We're willing to form the club according to what the people want. It will be primarily a road riding group until enough members are involved to get some feedback. Then we can develop separate divisions."

Pepper said there has been a lack of interest in the past when it comes to bike clubs.

"There was an attempt to get a club started in 1982. There just wasn't enough enthusiasm to keep it going. We see so many people riding on campus, we thought it would be nice to get a club together," Pepper said.

The primary concerns of the club will be to promote bike recreation, touring and commuting at SIU-C and the surrounding community. Membership is open to any interested individuals. Members will be encouraged to cooperate with public authorities in observance of all traffic regulations in order to promote safer cycling.

Pepper said the club will eventually join the League of American Wheelmen, which is a national biking organization which sets up individual charters around the country.

The club will include seminars on bike safety, nutrition workshops and lectures on bicycle maintenance on the road or at home. Pepper said they are planning on a member of the Carbondale Police to come to one of the meetings and speak on bicycle transportation safety, rules and regulations.

"We need to get people involved," Doty said. "People like to bike for fitness and for fun."

The club will have its first ride this weekend and will travel to Giant City State Park. Anyone interested in joining the club can contact Pepper at 457-4785 or Doty at 529-3741.

Holtz praises 'Rocket'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)— Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz needed only one glance at Raghib Ismail to realize the rusher nicknamed "Rocket" was among the finest players in college football.

"I said from the first day he walked out there in shorts that he was just something special," Holtz said. "There are a lot of guys who run fast but they run in a straight line. They don't have the awareness or the elusiveness Rocket has."

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler was convinced after Raghib returned kickoff 88 and 92 yards for touchdowns in a 24-19 victory over the Wolverines last week. Michigan had not allowed a kick return touchdown in 32 years.

"He's faster than the speed of sound," Schembechler said. "He may be the most dangerous guy around with a football. He may be the best I've ever seen."

But such praise has not made a believer of Ismail, a 175-pound sophomore flanker who expects his run-backs will be fleeting memories.

"It was nice but people probably won't even remember it when the season is over," Ismail said. "We still have 11 games to go. (Michigan) was important but after the next 11, we will know who is No. 1."

At this point, Notre Dame's defending national champions are No. 1 and have won 14 straight games, including a 2-0 start this year. Ismail caught 5 passes for 121 yards, both personal highs, in a season opening victory over Virginia.

His attitude off the field has earned as much respect as his quickness.

"You can talk about his speed but he's a competitor," teammate Anthony Johnson said. "He's got his priorities straight. I love him. I love his attitude."

Phillies act as spoiler, beat first-place Cubs 9-8

CHICAGO (UPI) — Darren Daulton notched the first five-hit game of his career and Von Hayes added a three-run home run and RBI single Wednesday to pace an 18-hit assault and lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-8 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Chicago, which leads the National League East, lost for fourth time in five games. Philadelphia built a 9-7 lead in the sixth against Les Lancaster, 3-2, on RBI singles by Ricky Jordan and Dickie Thon.

Every Phillies starter except rookie pitcher Pat Combs hit safely in the first six innings of a game that featured 35 players, 36 hits, eight walks, four wild pitches, one error and one passed ball.

Don Carman, 5-15, the third of four Philadelphia pitchers, hurled 22-3 innings of scoreless relief to notch the victory. Roger McDowell gave up an RBI single to Ryne Sandberg in the ninth, but recorded threeouts for his 19th save.

Andre Dawson's two-run single off Randy O'Neal pulled Chicago within 7-6 in the fourth inning and, two batters later, Shawn Dunston delivered a game-tying sacrifice fly off Carman.

Philadelphia took a 7-4 lead in the fourth inning against Paul Assenmacher on John Kruk's bases-loaded walk, Jordan's sacrifice fly and Von Hayes' RBI single. Doug Dascenzo's second-inning, RBI single off Combs pushed Chicago into a 4-4 tie. Rick Wrona opened with a single, then moved into third on Dean Wilkins' sacrifice bunt and Combs' wild pitch.

Philadelphia routed starter Rick Sutcliffe, who allowed four runs in six hits, in the second inning. Singles by Charlie Hayes, Daulton and Tom Herr snapped a 3-3 tie.

Aided by a botched double-play attempt, the Cubs rallied from a 3-0 deficit in the first inning.

After Sandberg singled with one out, Herr threw high to first base on Mark Grace's routine fielder's choice groundout. Grace moved to second on Combs' wild pitch and scored on Dawson's single. Lloyd McClendon singled before Luis Salazar's double scored Dawson and McClendon.

Von Hayes' three-run, first-inning homer staked Philadelphia to a nearly lead. Herr and Jordan singled before Hayes unloaded his 24th homer, into the right-field bleachers.

Salukis well-stocked at QB position

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Junior quarterback Fred Gibson has a strong hold on the starting position for the football Salukis but sophomore Scott Gabbert is capable of taking over the reins when necessary.

"We are blessed with intelligent quarterbacks," Saluki offensive coordinator Bill Callahan said. "Each guy understands his roll on this team."

Callahan said the Salukis' new multiple offense would be in safe hands if Gibson went down with an injury.

"We wouldn't lose a thing as far as the system is concerned," Callahan said. "Both players are capable of mentally handling the offense."

"When I went down it was tough for the team. I tried to give Scott my support and to try and do for him what he does for me."

—Fred Gibson

years of eligibility.

Gibson, a junior, will have a season of eligibility remaining following this season. If Gabbert were to sit out next season he could return in the driver's seat for the starting job in 1991.

"I think I would have finished in four years when Coach (Rick) Rhoades was here," Gabbert said. "But I think this (Smith's) is a fantastic offense and I might consider staying."

"If they (the coaches) want to red-shirt me that's fine, but I'm not worried about myself," Gabbert said. "I'm worried about the team."

"I think I have a good future here," Gabbert said. "If I keep getting stronger and gaining weight, my chances are good."

Callahan said Gabbert would benefit from the extra year if that is what he wants to do.

"It would be great to have the luxury of red-shirting Gabbert next year," Callahan said. "He would benefit in that he would get stronger and gain experience."

Gibson red-shirted the 1986 season and began the next season ranked third on former head coach Ray Dorr's depth charts. But after a season-opening loss to Delta State in 1987, Gibson became the starting quarterback and has remained the starter over the three coaching changes.

Gibson said the transition has not affected his play over the years.

"It has been a good learning experience for me," Gibson said. "It has given me the opportunity to learn a lot of (offensive) schemes."

Gabbert was recruited by Dorr but when he arrived on campus last season, Dorr had left for the University of Southern California and Rhoades was the head coach. Rhoades' run-oriented wishbone offense worried Gabbert upon his arrival.

apprehensive with the wishbone," Gabbert said. "I had never done anything like that in my life."

Even though Gibson and Gabbert are competing for the same job, the rivalry is put aside for the better of the team.

Gibson said, "I think Scott and I have a great relationship on and off the field. He shows me things I sometimes miss."

Gabbert, then a freshman, was the second-string quarterback behind Gibson and was forced into action when Gibson went down with a knee injury during the seventh game of the season against Northern Illinois. Gabbert finished the NIU game and started the last four games of the 1988 season.

The Salukis were 4-2 when Gibson was injured and finished 4-7.

Gabbert threw for a career-high 249 yards last season against Youngstown State in a 31-14 loss. As a Saluki Gabbert has thrown for 707 yards, four touchdowns and six interceptions while rushing for 114.

When Smith took over the helm after Rhoades left for the University of Alabama, the process of learning a new offense began all over.

Gabbert said he prefers Smith's multiple offense that includes a great deal more passing than the wishbone.

"When I went down (last season) it was tough for the team," Gibson said. "I tried to give Scott my support and to try and do for

The SIU-C women's tennis team would like a sweep this weekend against Southwest Missouri, Eastern Illinois and Chicago State but coach Judy Auld said the Salukis will not look past any of their opponents.

"We'd love to take all three, but our first goal will be Southwest Missouri," Auld said. "That will be a major Gateway Conference match for both teams. But we can't let down afterwards because we have two matches Saturday."

The Salukis will take a 2-1 record into the full slate of competition at the University Courts at 3 p.m. on Friday against Southwest. At 9 a.m. on Saturday, SIU-C will take on Eastern before finishing with Chicago State at 2 p.m.

Southwest will be a test for the Salukis, Auld said.

"Southwest is a solid team and they were good last year," Auld said. "They beat us in the Gateway Championships but we weren't at full strength because of injuries."

The Bears downed SIU-C in the fifth place match last April in the Gateway Conference Tournament, averaging two earlier losses in last season.

Southwest picked up Jill Chong, a sophomore transfer from Middle Tennessee State University.

"Chong will help their team," Auld said. "This is their first dual match though. I hope that works in our favor. I hope our players will be psyched after the (5-4) loss to Western (Illinois last Saturday)."

The Salukis defeated both

Bradley and Indiana State by 8-1 scores last weekend in Peoria. But Western dealt SIU-C a 5-4 loss, overcoming a 4-2 deficit.

"We played well last weekend," Auld said. "I think right now we're in the best shape we've been in all season."

The Salukis will receive a boost from freshman Lori Gallagher who will receive her first action of the season this weekend. Gallagher was released by her doctor and can play in one doubles match this weekend. Gallagher figures to compete against Southwest in the conference match-up.

"I think I'll use Lori against Southwest in doubles," Auld said. "She will team up with Michelle Jeffrey. I'm not sure what position

Women golfers to play in Minnesota tourney

The SIU-C women's golf team will match talents with the Big Ten's top squads and gain a second look at Gateway rivals Illinois State and Northern Iowa this weekend at the Lady Northern Tournament in Minneapolis.

The Salukis will be part of a field of 16 teams for the three-day tourney, Sept. 22-24, at the University of Minnesota's Les Bolstad Golf Course. The Salukis finished 15th of 21 teams last fall in the Lady Northern at West Lafayette, Ind.

Last year, the Big Ten swept the top three spots with Indiana University winning the tourney with a low score of 914 strokes, Ohio State University finished second, 934, and U of M third at 941. These three teams are again favored going into this year's tourney.

Despite the stiff competition, Saluki Coach Diane Daugherty hopes her team can do better this year, but a change in scenery may complicate matters.
