Complaints, crowds kick off election

By Brenda Penland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Popcorn, complaints and a good voter turnout were elements of the first day of the student elections Wednesday. Voting will continue Thursday.

Complaints filed include charges that a candidate's name had been placed within 50 feet of a poll, that there was overspending on campaigns, and that posters were torn down and covered up. A Student Government secretary said about 15 complaints had been filed by 4 p.m.

A complaint filed against Steve Nuckles charges him with placing his name within 50 feet of a polling place.

The words "Vote Nuckles Trustee" were written on the sidewalk in chalk in front of virtually every polling place.

When poll workers discovered the writing, they erased Nuckles' name. Allen Maser, election commissioner, said.

"The complaint will be considered but no action will be taken until after the election," Maser said.

Several candidates have filed complaints or plan to file complaints charging opponents with tampering with campaign posters.

Both Unity Party and Tea Party members are charging Action Party members with removing Unity and Tea party posters and replacing them with Action Party Posters.

"When people rip off my posters, I get upset," said Dennis Sullivan, Tea Party candidate for president.

He said Tea Party is also filing a complaint against Unity party for overspending.

Sullivan said the overabundance of Unity Party literature indicates overspending.

"I don't care if they want to overspend," he said, "but I think they're being rather blatant about it."

All indications pointed to a good voter turnout for the first day of the student elections. Most of the polls were crowded, especially between classes and around lunch time.

"A lot of people have been voting," a poll worker said. "The ballot box is almost full."

Many campaign posters were on display around the campus and some candidates were out campaigning in person.

Unity Party candidates Terry Mullins and Charles Ward set up a campaign booth near Morris Library. They passed out free popcorn and posters urging students to vote Unity Party.

Most students took the popcorn but declined the posters. The booth was decorated by posters, signs and symbols. One symbol was the Japanese word for bar.

Poll workers said most students vote for the presidential and vice presidential candidates but not for the senate candidates.

"Students are voting mostly for president and vice president," one poll worker said. "They don't know the people who are running in their senatorial districts."

Most of the students seemed eager to indicate their choices for the new University president. Many students also seemed eager to give advice on who to vote for.

"Put down Richard Nixon for president (of SIU)," one student told another, "he's the equivalent of Derge."

Other comments ranged from "Who are all these idiots?" to "What the hell is a Tea Party?"

Another student urged a friend to vote for Tea Party candidates because "they're supposed to bring the Grateful Dead here."

Polling places will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday in the following areas: Communications Building, Wham, Woody, Home Economics, Morris Library, Student Center, Lentz, Grinnell, Trueblood and Small Group Housing.

Polling places at the School of Technical Careers and the Southern Illinois Airport will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday.

Students must show their ID cards and fee statements in order to vote. Students living in on-campus dormitories also must show their current meal tickets and vote in their on-campus living areas.

Thursday is the last day to vote for student body president and vice president, student senators and student trustee.

Student Senate again votes to table Joint Fee Allocation Board report

By Debbie Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate voted to table the Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) report for the second straight week Wednesday night.

JFAB Chairman and Student Senator Terry Mullins told the Senate the JFAB "needs at least another week to hear all the groups requesting funds."

More than 30 campus groups requested allocations from the JFAB. "This being one of the biggest things we do, I hope we'll take our time with it," Student Body Vice President Jim Kania told the Senate. "It's very important; $200,000 is involved."

In other business, Student Body President Mike Carr introduced three nominees for the Campus Judicial Board, which was legally expanded from nine to 21 members during last week's Senate meeting.

The new 21-member format will provide three rotating seven-person panels to hear cases. "I want these appointments approved tonight, before the election is over, in case there are election complaints," Carr said.

Kim McGinnis, Dan Scheuring and Dave Polenski were unanimously approved as Campus Judicial Board members.

The Senate also approved a bill recommending the Textbook Rental Service be retained in its present form.

Carr and Kania had requested two weeks ago that the Senate make a recommendation at the administration's request concerning the rental service, which may be abolished. Both of them voiced anger that the Senate waited two weeks before taking action.

"I could have done this myself two weeks ago but I was waiting for you guys to reach a decision," Carr said.

"Anybody could have done this, it doesn't say anything."

"Maybe we've lost our right to comment if we can't even do research," Kania told the Senate.

"It's just like everything else we've done during the past few months," Sen. Harry Yaseen said. "We always wait until we have to have an answer for the administration tomorrow or two minutes from now."

Kania told the Senate textbook rental expects to lose $100,000 a year for the next three years. "The semester system means they can only rent books out twice a year instead of three times," Kania said.

"I don't think our constituency wants to buy General Studies books," Sen. Tom Mellman said.

Only two dissenting votes were cast to the recommendation retaining textbook rental.

Law School to close during 'Karnival'

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's School of Law, backyard neighbor of Kappa Alpha Psi, will suspend classes and restrict its library hours during this week's Kappa Karnival.

Acting SIU President Hiram Lesar confirmed Wednesday the school will not hold classes Thursday or Friday. Lesar, dean of the school, said it is "the simplest thing to do" in light of the anticipated 10,000 Karnival-goers.

Saxbe calls Hearst girl a criminal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe branded Patricia Hearst a common criminal Wednesday, and a federal grand jury began considering whether she willingly wielded a gun in a terrorist bank robbery.

Saxbe said in Washington he was convinced the 20-year-old newspaper heiress was "not a reluctant participant" in the $10,000-robbery Monday by a heavily armed gang which wounded two persons in its getaway.

The terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army dragged Miss Hearst screaming from her Berkeley apartment 2½ months ago. In a "communiqué" April 3 she renounced her family and swore she had been converted into a revolutionary fighter.

"It would appear to me that she was not a reluctant participant in this robbery," Saxbe told his weekly news conference adding that SLA members all are "common criminals." Asked if he included Miss Hearst he said "Miss Hearst is a part of it."

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst called Saxbe's comments "speculation" and refused further comment.

Charles Bates, the FBI agent in charge of the case, also refused comment other than to say: "The FBI is continuing its aggressive investigation looking to a solution of the Hearst kidnapping case and the bank robbery."

U.S. Attorney James Browning said evidence in the bank robbery is being presented to a grand jury and that indictments are possible by next week.

"It is entirely possible that the evidence will show that there was no duress or coercion on the part of these people but that is a matter for the grand jury to determine" he said.

According to a guard at the bank, Edward Shea, Miss Hearst took an active part in the robbery—"giving...orders and all that, saying she would shoot the first guy that moved."

The law library will close at 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and remain closed all weekend, said Roger Jacobs, law professor and librarian.

"We're in Greek territory," Lesar said, referring to the school's temporary location along SIU's "Fraternity Row." "The simplest thing to do is for us to make room so they can have their day."

"During the regular week, we fill up all the parking spaces when there is no one else around," Lesar continued. He said the tight parking situation and "the confusion of that many people around" led to the faculty decision to reschedule classes for next week.

Aside from avoiding congestion, Jacobs said, there is the "basic consideration that 'study' kind of pursuits don't go along with a general carnival atmosphere."

"I personally was afraid that if there was a lot of attempt to study and a lot of attempt to party, there might be a conflict," Jacobs continued. Citing the Kappa house as the base for Karnival activities, he said the noise of traffic and "people having a very good time" would hinder students cloistered among the library's shelves.

Possible damage to the library was also considered when deciding to close its doors, Jacobs said, explaining "any time you have a great number of people, there's some concern that (damage) situation might exist."

Jacobs denied a report from SIU's Security Office suggested the library might suffer damage during the Karnival. Lesar mentioned the report was received by the law faculty after they decided to suspend classes, and added "there was nothing in the report... that would warrant closing classes."

The school's shut doors are seen by some students as "a great time to catch their breath," Jacobs said. He explained several students told him they needed time to review and organize notes for their approaching final exams.

Admitting hearing of unhappiness about the cancelled classes and the restricted library hours, Jacobs said, "I've heard more opposition about the closing of classes."

He explained all law students hold keys to the library, so entry over the weekend is no problem for them. Jacobs added, "they've been using it around the clock anyway."

Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs, was agreeable to the decision to suspend classes. "Actually, they're (School of Law) intruding on Greek Row, if you will... and they decided they'd accommodate the other people for a change."

John Baker, assistant provost, said he was convinced the closing decision was not racially motivated.

"I was assured it (race) has absolutely nothing to do with it, and that the idea's just silly," Baker said.

Summer time blues

An SIU painter fills in the blue area of a parking sign at lot 52 southwest of the Arena. The area of the sign signifying a blue lot had aged and turned silver, as many of the other signs on campus had. Law students serving as hearings officers at the parking ticket appeals division brought the problem to the attention of the Daily Egyptian Tuesday. The directive to do the painting came Monday from August LeMarchal, coordinator of parking and traffic.

Senate delays vote on Moore

Willis E. Moore's appointment to the SIU Board of Trustees is still undecided following the delay in vote by the Illinois Senate Wednesday.

The senate had been expected to vote this week on Moore's appointment to the board in January by Gov. Dan Walker. But, State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee (D-Carbondale), said Wednesday the chairman of the executive committee wants to bring up the Moore issue with all other executive matters next week.

Moore was turned down by the executive committee in March by an almost straight party-line vote of 10-5, with the Republicans in the majority. Moore is a registered Democrat.

The senate has adjourned until Tuesday, when it meets for a short three-day session, Buzbee said. He anticipated that the Moore vote would probably come up during that time.

Another system may get axe

SIU soon may get monorail funds

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU soon may receive federal funds for the proposed monorail system, but officials at West Virginia University are willing to blow up their partially-completed rapid transit system.

A demonstration grant was requested jointly in February by SIU and the city of Carbondale from the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) for development of the monorail system.

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, said Wednesday, the only communication since then from DOT has been a confirmation that it received the application.

Mager said the problem-plagued Morgantown, W. Va. system bears no similarity whatsoever to the SIU monorail except that the money came from the federal government.

"It absolutely has no resemblance to the SIU-proposed system at all," Mager said.

The SIU proposal has been described by its designer as a hybrid system featuring both air supports and magnetic levitation. At low speeds, the cars glide on air pads but they automatically retract at higher speeds.

The first phase of construction would be a 1½-mile campus loop system starting at the SIU Arena and proceeding past Brush Towers, the east campus dormitories then back to the Arena.

The second phase would consist of the installation of a half-mile link to downtown Carbondale and another to Evergreen Terrace.

Costs for the two-mile system have been estimated at about $7.25 million.

But at West Virginia University, the "people-mover" system has created so many financial problems that federal and university officials will soon calculate the costs of dynamiting the 2.2 miles of elevated concrete guideway now in place, according to the New York Times.

More than $57 million has already been invested into that system by the Government. In 1970, Congress was told it would only cost $13.4 million but now projected final project costs have skyrocketed to over $115 million.

Officials of the Federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration want to turn the system over to the university but the school's administrators have refused to accept the Government's terms.

West Virginia University's system was originally designed as a 3.3 mile transit highway for driverless, rubber-tired, 21-passenger capsules operated by computers. Presently, more than three years after its beginning, only five, instead of the planned more than 90 vehicles, are in operation.

Data shows rapes climb with temperature

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU and Carbondale police have issued data that indicate the number of forcible rapes climbs when the thermometer does.

"Weather is a main factor," said Detective Joe Cagle of the Security Office. Because of the increased activity and numbers of people outside and the fact that a potential rapist needs no shelter during warmer weather, rapes increase, he said.

Of the six forcible rapes reported to the Carbondale police last year, five of them occurred between the months of April and September, said Ron Trentacosti, Carbondale police supervisor of services.

SIU police did not have the breakdown of the six forcible rapes reported to the Security Office, but Cagle said he thought the majority of them occurred during the warmer months.

Even though a woman cannot alter the weather, she can alter patterns of activity to lessen the chance of rape, Cagle said.

The most important thing a coed must keep in mind is that the possibility of rape does exist, Cagle said. "Too often coeds feel that 'it won't happen to me'."

Cagle outlined several other precautions women can take.

Women should avoid secluded areas, Cagle said. Women should never walk alone at night if at all possible. Rarely do two or more women walking together get attacked, he said. Finally, women should walk in well-lit areas and should not hitchhike.

Carolyn Zimmerman, chairwoman of the Rape Action Committee (RAC), also suggested a few precautions against assault. Don't get drunk with people one is unsure of, she said. Alcohol tends to free some men's minds to do whatever they want.

Tucking hair into a blouse or jacket will make it tougher for a rapist to grab a woman, Ms. Zimmerman said. Walking at the side of a street at night will lessen the chance of a rapist jumping out of a darkened building and grabbing a woman.

Cagle said if a rapist does confront a woman the situation should govern whether she should try to put up a struggle. It must not be forgotten that the rapist is "an unstable person," he said.

Putting up a fight may result in death, Ms. Zimmerman said. Not fighting may be a sign of consent, in which case the encounter is not legally regarded as rape.

If a woman puts up a fight, she should use Mace or resort to eye gouging or karate, Ms. Zimmerman said.

Cagle said if a rape has been committed, the victim should report what she knows to the police. The police will see that she gets medical attention and they will be able to collect evidence that could convict a rapist, he said.

Ms. Zimmerman said a woman's first concern should be whether or not she has gotten pregnant or contracted venereal disease. She added that the RAC does not force a woman to talk to police unless she wants to.

After the victim has told her story to police, Cagle said police inform the woman that there are counseling services available to her. Some individuals need help and some don't, he said.

Nixon names Simon as head of Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon nominated federal energy chief William E. Simon to succeed George Shultz as Treasury secretary Wednesday and moved to reclaim for himself some of the broad economic powers he had granted Shultz.

John C. Sawhill, Simon's top deputy, was promoted to federal energy administrator by Nixon with instructions to press ahead with the effort to make America self-sufficient in energy by 1980.

Simon and Sawhill will take over their new posts upon Simon's confirmation by the Senate. Shultz will then depart for private life, the last remaining member of Nixon's original cabinet to leave government service.

In announcing Simon's elevation to the Cabinet post, the White House said the President "will assume an expanded role in coordination of economic policy himself."

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said that Nixon, for example, would become chairman of the Council on Economic Policy, a position held by Shultz for more than a year.

He also said Simon would not become chairman of the Cost of Living Council or the Council on International Economic Policy, two jobs also held by Shultz.

And Shultz's post as assistant to the President for economic affairs would remain vacant for the time being, Warren said. With these disclosures, the White House made clear that Nixon does not intend for Simon to become an economic policy czar.

Unlike Shultz, Simon is not an economist.

Simon retained the Treasury post when he was named federal energy administrator last December. He won high marks from the White House for his brisk, sometimes brusque, manner in coordinating the government's response to the energy crisis.

Warren said Simon will continue to have "a very strong voice in energy policy" but that Sawhill will be in charge of day-to-day operations of the energy office and will be responsible for coordinating Project Independence, the effort to achieve energy self-sufficiency.

After his appointment, Sawhill pledged to put a national energy self-sufficiency plan on the President's desk by Nov. 1.

White House disclaims role in loss of GOP in Michigan House race

By Don McLeod
Associated Press Writer

The White House says President Nixon does not think he was the big issue in the Democrat's historic election victory in Michigan, but most political reactions were aimed his way.

The GOP's fourth sting loss of a "sure" Republican seat in the House stirred speculation that the reflected mood of the electorate could spur the impeachment drive.

Vice President Gerald Ford predicted the voting trend could portend a dictatorial Congress top-heavy with Democrats and doom the two-party system.

Democrat Bob Traxler ended 42 years of Republican hold on Michigan's 8th Congressional District Tuesday by defeating Republican James Sparling Jr., 59,918 to 56,575 in a special election to fill the vacancy left by James Harvey, who was nominated to a federal judgeship.

Not since 1932 had the Democrats won the 8th District, which has averaged 66.2 per cent Republican for the past decade.

The GOP defeat in Saginaw followed losses of traditional Republican seats in Pennsylvania's 12th District; Michigan's 5th., which Ford vacated to become vice president; and Ohio's 1st at Cincinnati.

The best the GOP has been able to do in this year's Watergate-tinged special elections was retention of California's 13th District with 53 per cent of the vote where its 10-year average had been 66.6 per cent.

President Nixon had thrown his personal prestige into the breach in Saginaw with a campaign visit on behalf of Sparling, but the White House disagreed with suggestions that the election was a Watergate-Nixon referendum.

"No, in no way whatsoever," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said when asked that. "There were many, many issues in that campaign."

Sen Vance Hartke, D-Ind., said in LaPorte, Ind., that the latest election will speed the process of removing Nixon from office.

"There's no question in my mind that President Nixon did put his political reputation as a politician on the line in Michigan," Hartke said. "That reputation suffered a setback. I anticipate we'll have a new president."

From Bucharest, Romania, the Senate Republican leader, Hugh Scott, sent a statement that the loss was depressing but would not affect the deliberations on impeachment.

"It's an additional item of bad news," Scott said.

Ford called it bad news of a different sort, saying continued Democratic victories could mean a "legislative dictatorship."

"One party control is not good for America," Ford said. "And the trend in congressional elections now is for the Democrats to end up with an overwhelming majority in the House. This will mean a legislative dictatorship."

At a Washington news conference Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss answered Ford: "That strikes me as an interesting posture for him to be in, because three weeks ago he was talking about a do-nothing Congress unable to come to grips with anything."

Thursday night: Cloudy with a 60 per cent probability for showers and thunderstorms tonight. The low temperature will be in the middle to upper 40s.

Friday: Partly sunny and not so warm with the high around 60 degrees. Wednesday's high on campus 65, 2 p.m., low 41, 4 a.m.

(Information supplied by SIU Geology Department weather station.)

Skyrocketing college costs are threatening to reverse a century-old trend toward equitable access to higher education. Inflation increasingly jeopardizes the educational opportunities of children from poor and even from middle-class families. As soaring tuition charges price the private colleges out of reach, public institutions are under severe pressure to narrow the gap in the competition for students by jacking up their fees as well. Such a course sharpens the divisiveness between the private and the public sector as it worsens inflation and shuts out more students.

Two bills designed to keep college doors open by providing a greater measure of aid to needy students, including those from working and moderately affluent middle-class families, have been introduced in Albany. Either measure would go a long way toward resolving a rapidly deteriorating situation. A bill sponsored by Peter Costigan has been approved by the Assembly; another bill, co-sponsored by Senators Warren M. Anderson and Ronald B. Stafford, has been passed by the Senate.

The provisions of the Costigan bill, which would begin with the offer of substantial aid to freshmen and thus cover the full range of undergraduate studies within four years after its inception, seem to us on the whole preferable to the Senate proposal. Its advantages include a higher degree of certainty concerning the amounts of aid available to students, allocated on a basis of net taxable income rather than, as under the Senate version, a more complicated analysis of family assets and resources. Moreover, the amount of the scholarship for children from families with taxable family incomes of up to $12,000 would be substantial enough—close to $1,000—to provide the students with a real choice between private and public campuses.

The Senate bill would immediately disburse aid to students in all undergraduate classes, but in much lower amounts and with less certainty about future disbursements.

The danger is that amid unresolved competition between Assembly and Senate, both bills may fall victim to rivalry or indecision. Instead of exerting the leadership that is needed to effect a sensible compromise between the two bills, Governor Wilson has thus far kept hands off the entire issue. His intervention, to prevent the total scuttling of an effective higher education bill, is urgently called for.

Toward elitist students

Generally, student services at SIU-C play an important role by providing adequate and inexpensive aids for students. Textbook rental, Health Service, check cashing, bus transportation, Information and Scheduling Center, Placement Service, Self-Instruction Center and Student Work and Financial Assistance are programs designed to help students by performing services that are necessary to any university.

However, plans are now developing to completely disband the textbook rental system by fall semester of 1974. In 1963 the rental program eliminated graduate texts from its lists. In 1972 textbook rental was revised to eliminate book rental for all textbooks except those for General Studies courses. Both modifications took place because, after a thorough analysis, the program was termed deficient in accommodating the necessary changes in textbooks to satisfy desired academic standards.

According to a study completed March 11 on the problems and alternatives of the textbook rental operation, "projected textbook requirements for the semester program is suggestive that the rental program, if continued under the present operational guidelines, would incur a cash deficit in 1974-75 of approximately $300,000." Three alternatives based on student, faculty and administrative constraints were proposed to eliminate this fiscal deficit. Two of these alternatives, according to the study, were not financially feasible to students and administration.

The first alternative proposes keeping the textbook rental as it presently operates. The study projects a loss of $104,000 in 1974-75; $113,000 in 1975-76; and $119,000 in 1976-77. Consequently, because of the financial burden placed on the university, this alternative was not recommended for implementation.

The second option proposes continuing the rental program with a "fixed assessment per general studies course." The assessment rate would be approximately 37 per cent of the list price of the book being rented. The study states "that this option would not be an acceptable solution to the student body" due to the relatively high rental rate.

The third proposal, which states that textbook rental should be eliminated and students forced to buy all books, was recommended for implementation in the fall semester of 1974. Although the other two alternatives were based on a three year adoption policy, that is, texts at the rental service would be changed every three years if needed, this alternative is based on a "two-year adoption policy" in order to reduce costs to the student.

In the three year period preceding fall 1973, textbook rental lost approximately $41,500 because students did not return rented texts. Fall quarter of 1973, a new policy where students had to buy rented texts if the books were not returned by a predetermined deadline was adopted. The textbook service sent out bills totaling over $12,000. Only $315.05 of this has been collected thus far.

Approximately 28,000 books were checked out at textbook rental fall quarter of 1973. Books totaling 2,069 were not returned by the deadline. So, because money was being lost due to books not returned, students had to pay or face the "hold" put on their records when registration time came around.

The administrators of textbook rental did study the possibility of holding back grades for those who did not return rented texts, but they could not find a workable method of doing this.

One reason for this failure centers around the fact that the service is not able to find out who did not return texts until the second or third week of the next quarter. But once they do know, students are billed and must pay or no registration next quarter. Granted, many students drop out of school and do not return their books. However, students who stay in school do need an inexpensive rental system supplied by the university to help offset financial difficulties imposed if books for general studies courses have to be purchased.

Evidently, since the losses in the past were so great and the policies insufficient to keep textbook rental in the black, students will be forced to bear another financial burden in the already rising cost of a college education.

To overcome this problem, priorities again should be re-examined. If monies can be appropriated for astro-turf and renovation of the football stadium, why can't more funds be disbursed in order to make textbook rental financially and academically sound? If SIU can afford to hire a former UCLA coach as athletic director, why should the university not implement a workable plan for rental of general studies texts? If a law school and a medical school can be realized at SIU with existing funds, why can't students in General Studies continue to rent books at reasonable prices?

The textbook rental study is basing its argument on the premise that in order to keep SIU's high academic standards, books should be changed every two or three years. Has Shakespeare or Joyce written any new books lately? Books on economics still seem to emphasize the standard supply and demand axiom that everyone has been taught for the last 20 years. History still says the same things it always has.

The books that do need to be updated every two or three years are primarily in the sciences and technological fields. Buying a $15 biology or psychology book and selling it back to the bookstore for $7.50 does not seem too appealing. Nonetheless, that will be the plight and burden of the student in General Studies next fall if this new policy is adopted.

If textbook rental is eliminated, this would be yet one more step to make this university a small crowd of elitists whose parents can afford to send them to college. And, if universities across the country are actually moving in this direction, as Julian Bond pointed out last week, SIU will be doing its share to help this movement if textbook rental is disbanded.

The path of glory

To the Daily Egyptian:

Subject: the progress of Lt. Calley and American justice.

Far away, but not long ago, Lt. Calley staged a one-man massacre of scores of Vietnamese women and children.

As monstrous criminal Calley received a life sentence.

As confused officer Calley's sentence was reduced to twenty years.

As victim of mitigating circumstances Calley's sentence has been reduced to ten years which, counting time served and parole imminent, promises early freedom.

Next, as America "appreciates" his patriotic service:

Calley may be recommended for a Bronze Star (small massacre, small hero) by 1977.

Calley may be recommended for a Silver Star (the fought beyond the call of duty) by 1980.

Calley may be recommended for the Medal of Honor (by wiping out many Vietnamese he made a significant contribution to getting the United States out of Vietnam). This, of course, in 1984.

But not the paramecium

To the Daily Egyptian:

It seems as if people at this school never know when to give up on a subject. For weeks I have read of the battle of the sexists, both male and female, and the people caught in between who could care less if a word comes out chairman, chairwoman, or chairperson. It should be obvious that the particular situation would dictate which is proper.

Barbara Lorek, a concerned lady, oops, person, with much on her, uh his, uh their mind being an unclassified graduate is the obvious choice to speak on biological matters.

Barbara, first of all, as any elementary child who has taken sex education will verify, there are no parthenogenic women, so how can you be more biologically important than me? Sperm still, and always, has to meet egg for human reproduction.

Your statement about Y being a broken chromosome and men being altered women gave many laughs in genetics. Mammary glands are a diagnostic character of mammals. Tree shrews, from which man eventually evolved, had them, bears, dogs and any mammal you can think of, both male and female. And your assertion about the clitoris, well, Barb, it's really a degenerate penis. There goes that argument of yours.

While it is true that the male is more subject to colorblindness and hemophilia, it is the female who is the carrier of these diseases. Men do not pass these on to men, but rather women are the perpetrators of these maladies. Men are just the victims.

Next time you wish to discuss biology, Barbara, don't do it from an armchair please. Find out the facts first so I don't have to type another letter. You see, my secretary is out to lunch.

Supplementing MS

To the Daily Egyptian:

In regard to your comments, Ms. Lorek, your April 16 letter comparing man to woman was quite interesting. For your future reference, consider reading if you haven't William E. Phipps' book, "The Sexuality of Jesus." His comments in Chapter 3 (especially page 56) philologically supplement your biologically oriented views.

St. Louie blooze

To the Daily Egyptian:

Once again this spring I am reminded of the bigotry of your sports staff. Last spring the baseball scores of both Chicago teams were printed but not for the St. Louis team. This spring appears to be a replay of last season. While I realize that most of the students here are from the Chicago area, there are a few "hicks" from downstate who would appreciate knowing what the Cardinals are doing. How about it?

"Human Sexuality" continues to grow

By Harrison Crouse
Student Writer

In a university where programs often go awry, students can be proud of SIU's Human Sexuality Services. Originally requested and designed by students, it has grown and served for almost two years.

"We were set up at the grassroots level by student support," said Barb Dahl, director of the service since its inception. "To my knowledge our service is still unique in the state. The University of Illinois at Champaign is trying to start a program patterned after ours," she added.

Ms. Dahl said the service now counsels about 150 people a month and handles 250 referrals by phone.

She said there has been increased use of the service for concerns other than problem pregnancies and abortion referral. "More people come in now to deal with decision making about relationships and one's own sexuality," she said.

She said the service is trying to go to the student and community. "We now have an 'Outreach' program going to the dorms and Women's Center and I would like to see greater use of our educational facilities and library," she added.

"Outreach" includes a program of "raps" on dorm floors and in the Student Center run by Jeanie Cochran, graduate assistant; a group on "Human Sexuality and the Dorm Student" lead by staff members Jan Robertson and Paulette Kurkin and a sex awareness group lead by practicum students Ed Hall and Nancy Gulanick.

Funds for Human Sexuality Services come from student benefit activities fees and the program is administered through the Health Service, Ms. Dahl said. "They have exerted little control as long as we prove we're reaching the community," she added.

She praised the support given to the service by local doctors and clinics. She said there has been no opposition to Human Sexuality Services from the community.

"We have good relations with the Women's Center, Jackson County Family Planning, Free Clinic and private referral services," she said.

Ms. Dahl said she hoped that in the future more men would use the service. There has been no problem with men being counseled by women and there is now one man on the staff, she added.

Asked about her response to the "right to life" movement, she said, "The public is now so widely exposed to the idea of people making decisions about needs to control their own bodies that I don't see any real problem."

The service is now at 304 E. Stoker, next to the Minor Care Clinic, on land planned for use by the Co-Recreational Center. Ms. Dahl said that each quarter they are told they will be moved but that at present she has no idea where the service will be relocated. "I would like to see us in a more central location with our educational and counseling facilities separated," she said.

"Here's something that's good for what ails you"

Math conference to discuss social sciences

By John Russell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Six distinguished members of the social science and mathematics profession will take part in a conference on "Mathematics in the Social Sciences" Monday and Tuesday in the Student Center Auditorium.

The speakers will discuss the relationships and uses of math in the study of society and individuals.

Professor of mathematics at Oberlin College Samuel Goldberg will open the conference with his lecture on "Mathematics in the Social Sciences" at 9:10 a.m. Monday.

Goldberg is well known in the areas of mathematical theory of probability, mathematical statistics and mathematical models of the social sciences.

William Riker will address the question "Is Politics a Game?" in his 10:50 a.m. lecture. A political scientist and Fairchild Distinguished Scholar at the California Institute of Technology, Riker received his doctorate from Harvard and is a past vice-president of the American Political Science Association.

At 1:30 p.m. Robert W. Fogel, Harvard University professor of economics, will speak on "The Methods." An authority on economic history, Fogel has lectured at seminars throughout the world and has published five books and a number of articles.

Presently on leave from Harvard, he is now a professor of history at the University of Rochester.

"Mathematics in the Social Sciences" is the topic of the lecture to be delivered at 3:10 p.m. by Patrick Suppes, professor of philosophy, statistics and education at Stanford University.

The lecture will deal with ways in which psychological theories of learning can be applied to computers.

Currently the president of the American Educational Research Association and the National Academy of Education, Suppes is internationally known for his writings on theory, application and experimentation in psychology.

He is the director and one of the founders of the Institute for Mathematical Studies in the Social Sciences at Stanford University.

Stanley W. Peters, professor of linguistics at Princeton University, will open Tuesday's session with a 9 a.m. lecture on "A Logical Analysis of Presupposition and Assertion."

Peters is a member of the Mathematical Social Science Board and the Associate Editorial Board of "Papers in Linguistics." He has written a number of articles on mathematical linguistics, and is working on mathematical investigations of complex grammars and syntactic and semantic theories.

The closing lecture of the conference, "The Casual Analysis of Survey Data," will be delivered by Paul Lazarsfeld, professor of sociology at Columbia University, at 10:40 a.m. Tuesday.

SIU assistant professor of sociology Roland Hawkes said Lazarsfeld is "one of the truly eminent researchers in sociology."

Lazarsfeld was the first recipient of the Samuel A. Stouffer award, given by the American Sociological Association for contributions which have notably advanced the methodology of sociological research.

He is the author of scores of articles on sociological research and, according to Hawkes, has had an enormous influence on three generations of Columbian sociologists.

Harold McFarlin, associate professor of history, Roy Miller, acting director of the Public Affairs Research Bureau, and Gordon Pitz, professor of psychology, are the major organizers of the conference. Originally scheduled for last year, this is the "first multi-disciplinary" conference of its kind at SIU, McFarlin said.

He said all the speakers would be present during each lecture, and would question and criticize each other's presentations. He said students are encouraged to take part in the discussions following each lecture.

There will be coffee breaks between each session, McFarlin said, where students and faculty may consult with the speakers. The speakers will also be present at a reception at 8:30 p.m. Sunday at the University Club of the Carbondale Ramada Inn.

The lectures and the reception are open to the public at no charge.

Blood donations needed in local Red Cross drive

A spokesman for the Jackson County Red Cross Wednesday encouraged students to come to this week's blood drive even if they don't have an appointment.

The blood drive will continue from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The Red Cross can handle over 200 donations per day. Only 80 persons were signed up to give blood Wednesday.

The Rev. Charles Watkins of the First Christian Church, coordinator of the blood drive, said he was hoping for about 225 donations per day.

Qualifications for giving blood require a person be in good health and weigh at least 110 pounds.

For each donation one is assured of free replacement blood for himself and his immediate family, in any amount, for one full year.

For information about the blood drive, contact Arnold Air Society at 453-2481.

Israelis and Syrians battle over control of Mt. Hermon

By Hal McClure
Associated Press Writer

ATOP MT. HERMON, Occupied Syria (AP)—The Israelis and Syrians are engaged in a deadly battle for control of this rocky, snowswept peak that looms a mile above the Golan Heights war front. "We mean to hold on to Hermon," said an Israeli officer. "This mountain is the eyes-and-ears-of the Middle East."

On clear days the view stretches to and beyond Damascus, the Syrian capital about 25 miles to the east-northeast.

Israel conquered all of the Hermon massif from Syria in the Middle East war last October.

Both sides were content to hold their positions during the bitter cold winter months. But the arrival of spring heated more than the weather.

The Syrians made their first attempt to win back the 9,232-foot peak from the Israelis April 6.

Military correspondents reported Wednesday that Israel had finished building a rough track to the peak of the mountain where they have established a fortified position.

During the night the Israelis fired at a Syrian helicopter and Syrian forces in the area below the peak to the north. A ground search at daybreak revealed nothing, the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said.

Various battles have been fought on this mountain in the past seven years, with Israel telling the United Nations it controlled the peak, although it had no soldiers stationed there because of the encroaching winter.

The Israelis decided it was time to establish a permanent position on the peak before the Syrians beat them to it.

On Easter Sunday, Israeli troops constructing the base looked down and discovered that a 50-man Syrian force had moved to within 600 feet of the summit.

The battle that followed lasted most of the day. It was the hottest combat since October.

Premier Golda Meir has said Israel would be prepared to hand over the peak to the United Nations but Israel still wants to hold on to other positions on the mountain, she said.

"They're adequate for our spotting requirements," a soldier told a visitor as wind screamed around the Israeli fortress.

Israeli sentries huddled in parkas inside makeshift shelters or on the lee side of the big stone fort as the icy winds knifed across patches of snow.

"It's real spring weather today," said a teen-age Israeli soldier named Rafi. "You should have been here a month ago."

The Israelis live and work deep inside the steel and reinforced concrete bowels of the rock bastion that bristles on the outside with antennas and other equipment.

The winds whistling down the ridge suddenly carried the sound of gunfire.

"They are at it again," the soldier said.

CSEC election results set

Civil Service Employee Council (CSEC) election results were announced Wednesday, filling vacancies in seven categories on the council.

The winners include: secretarial, Joann Marks; custodial, William H. Hertter; general, Anna L. Ellis; administrative, Donald C. Gladden; services, Rosia M. Kerrens; trades and occupations (two vacancies), Leo C. Bailey and James D. McKeown; professional, David R. Buntan.

All of the new council members will serve a two-year term, except McKeown, whose term will last only one year.

The council members will be seated at the next general council meeting May 1. At that meeting, new council officers will be elected to fill the offices of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

CSEC election ballots were mailed out April 10 to all eligible Civil Service employees. The deadline for returning the completed ballots to the SIU Post Office was noon, Wednesday.

Walker warns state spending may raise taxes

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday over spending by the Illinois General Assembly this spring could force a tax increase within two years.

Speaking to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, Walker said pressure was building up in the legislature for full funding of the formula for state aid to elementary and secondary schools. And, he said, lawmakers also were being pressured to hike spending for mental health above the level he recommended.

Illinois can afford such increases in fiscal year 1975 and still retain a surplus balance in its general fund, Walker said.

"But history shows that you don't cut back the following year," Walker said. "That never happens in state government."

He said full funding of the school aid formula and increased spending for mental health in fiscal 1976 would create a general fund deficit making higher taxes necessary.

Walker said he would resist any efforts by the General Assembly to spend more than he recommended in his proposed budget for fiscal 1975.

City, teamsters settle contract; no layoffs, no pay increases

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Members of teamster local 347 have agreed to a contract with the city allowing no pay raises for employees, but guaranteeing that no employees will be laid off because of the city's tight budget.

The 35 teamster members, who work on street building, sanitation and equipment maintenance, agreed to the contract Wednesday morning.

The contract, which will go into effect May 1, will be submitted to the Carbondale City Council Monday night for approval. City Manager Carroll Fry said he expects the council to ratify the contract.

A 6.2 per cent pay raise which was budgeted for the union members will be scheduled to be laid off this year because of scarcity of funds.

Morris obtains typewriter for free student use

A typewriter is now available for students to use in the library, free of charge, courtesy of Student Government.

The Royal, manual desk model is available at the Undergraduate Library Information Desk. A student may check it out in exchange for his ID card and current fee statement.

A student may check out the typewriter for one hour and renew it for half-hour intervals until someone else wants to use it.

Each user must furnish his own paper, eraser, etc. The user is responsible for the typewriter while it is checked out to him.

If this program is successful, more typewriters may be available later.

Fry said the money allocated for wage increases will not be enough to keep all four employees. Harold Hill, head of the city's street and sanitation department, will review his capital outlay budget to find enough money to keep the workers, Fry said.

Fry emphasized that the agreement will not increase the budget. Money will only be transferred from one area to cover the employees.

Fry called the agreement an "innovative proposal" and "an excellent demonstration of a labor organization dealing realistically." He said the agreement "speaks very well of the organization and the attitude of its members."

The agreement also provides that salary increases will be granted if the city receives any additional money, such as manpower funds. The raises will be based on how far the money can be stretched, he said.

The union agreement was worked out primarily by Sam Treftefs, teamster business agent, Charles Brown, teamster steward, and the city's negotiating board, composed of Fry, City Attorney John Womick, Public Works Director Bill Boyd, Finance Director Paul Sorgen and Personnel Director Scott Ratter.

The minor changes in the union contract involve allowances to the employees for clothes and safety shoes.

The employees were furnished clothing by the city at a cost of $84 per employee a year. Each employee will now receive a $125 allowance. Two pairs of safety shoes were also provided to the workers at $18.75 a pair. The workers will now receive a $50 allowance for shoes.

The teamster agreement is the first contract settled of four union contracts which expire April 30. The unions still negotiating with the city are the police, firemen, plumbers and pipefitters.

Fry said he did not know what effect the settlement would have on the other union negotiations.

Computer system to aid city in collecting parking fines

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale will now fight parking fine dodgers with a computer and may collect at least $30,000 more a year in parking fines.

The Carbondale City Council approved a data processing system Monday which monitors traffic violations and lists those who don't pay their fines on time.

A person who fails to pay a fine on time will be mailed a notice the day the fine is due under the new system. Presently, notices were sent out as late as three months after the date due.

With the increased efficiency, the police department will be able to enforce better the payment of parking fines. The police will now be allowed to impound the vehicle of anyone with more than one fine left unpaid for 30 days.

Ed Long, head of the city's data processing department, said that once people realize that they can't avoid paying fines under the new system, "they will tend to spend a dime for the meter to avoid the $1 fine."

Under the new system, information including the name and license number of the person and the type of violation will be entered into the computer. If the fine is paid, that information will be also entered into the computer.

On the day the fine is due, the computer will print out postcards to those who have failed to pay on time. If the fine is not paid after 14 days after the day of the violation, the computer will print out a list of names of those who did not pay.

The list of names will be turned over to the Jackson County Circuit Court where warrants to appear before court will be sent out. Long said it may be possible that the circuit judges will allow the computer to print out the warrants after a few months of the computer's operation.

The computer will also keep tabs on fines not paid after 30 days. If more than one fine is left unpaid for more than 30 days, the computer will print out a list of those persons for the police department.

The police can then impound the vehicle until the owner pays the fine. Long said the new system is not only faster than the old one but more accurate. He said the major problem was the delay in sending out the late notices.

"The major problem created by this delay is the fact that, in a University environment such as it exists in Carbondale, there is a very high turnover rate of residents.

Thus, with a significant backlog, many of the individuals that legitimately owe parking tickets are gone by the time that the final notice is issued," Long said.

Long added that this results in about a 50 per cent loss in collection of fines from persons who were sent final notices.

The SIU Parking Section has agreed to allow the city access to its files, Long said. This will enable the city to collect about 80 to 90 per cent of out of the area violations, since most of those violations concern SIU students, he said.

Special forms for the computer to print notices on haven't arrived yet, Long said. When these arrive, in about a month, Long said the system should be in full operation.

Stans denies interfrerring in Vesco case after donation

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans testified Wednesday that financier Robert L. Vesco never received a payoff in return for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 election campaign.

The former Cabinet member took the witness stand in his own defense at the federal criminal conspiracy trial in which he is a co-defendant with one-time Atty. Gen. John W. Mitchell.

When Vesco made the donation, he was the target of a massive Securities and Exchange Commission frauds investigation.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of seeking to impede this probe in exchange for the $200,000. They are charged with conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury.

Stans said that at the March 8, 1972 meeting in which the money was pledged, it was he and not Vesco who raised the matter of the SEC investigation.

He testified: "He said, 'Well that has been going on almost a year. We have been trying to resolve it. But the problem was that the SEC was harassing us and we haven't been able to sit down and settle it. Our lawyers haven't been able to get to see the commissioners.'"

"I said, 'Mr. Vesco, that should be no problem. Anybody having trouble with a government agency should be able to go to the head of that agency,' I said something to the effect that 'I hope you work out your SEC matter satisfactorily.' He said, 'I'm sure we will.'"

However, Stans said that because of the SEC matter, he put a hold on the pending Vesco contribution until he could "check him out" with Mitchell. The two former Cabinet colleagues had resigned their offices by that time to run the Nixon reelection campaign.

The liaison man for Vesco with Stans and Mitchell was Harry Sears, a political friend of Mitchell who had gone to work as a $60,000-a-year Vesco legal aide.

Regarding his meeting later with Mitchell, Stans testified:

"I told him I had met Vesco and talked with Sears and Vesco was prepared to give a contribution of $250,000. I said that I had discussed with Sears that Vesco had a matter pending before the SEC, that Sears had described himself as a good friend of yours, John Mitchell's."

"I said, 'I want your advice as to the propriety of taking the $250,000.' I meant as a matter of moral correctness in whether I would ever be embarrassed publicly or privately by taking this contribution."

Defeat predicted for reform measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House panel considering a Senate-passed bill providing for publicly financed congressional races says there is no chance the House will approve the measure.

Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, of the House Administration Committee says it is unlikely the House will go beyond public financing of presidential campaigns and tighter spending limits on congressional campaigns.

The Senate bill, passed last week before Congress began a 10-day Easter recess, would provide full public financing of both presidential and congressional election campaigns, with matching federal money for primaries.

The Administration Committee is drafting its own bill and plans to complete the job in early May, said Hays.

He said the bill would limit the contributions of individuals and groups to congressional campaigns.

In the one action taken by the panel in a drafting session, individual donations were set at $1,000, group donations at $3,000.

Donations are now unlimited. The Senate bill limits individuals to $3,000 and groups to $6,000.

Hays says the House draft will probably limit congressional candidates to spending a total of $60,000 to $75,000, or five cents times the district or state population, whichever is greater.

"That works out to about $550,000 for an Ohio Senate race, and that's enough," says Hays.

The Senate bill allows 12 cents per voter or $175,000, whichever is greater, for Senate candidates; 12 cents per voter for $90,000, whichever is greater, for House candidates.

APSC petitions due on Friday

Petitions for candidates in next month's Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) election must be completed and returned by Friday.

APSC petitions should be returned to Julia Muller, chairman of APSC elections committee at the Student Life Office, Barracks T-40.

Four members will be elected to three year terms on APSC, one each from the areas of business, academic affairs, student affairs, and development and services.

The APSC represents about 450 University staff members who have faculty appointments without academic rank, according to Jack Simmons, APSC president.

The APSC election is scheduled for the eighth week of spring quarter.

The Senate limits are too much, Hays says. "In the average district, the average person doesn't expect you to spend more than $25,000."

But the chief reason, Hays says, for most House members not going along with public funding for congressional races is that their constituents don't want it.

One advocate of public funding for congressional races is Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., who recognizes that his is a "minority position," and is considering alternatives. Koch said he likes the sharp donation limits. "This goes a long way toward eliminating fat cat contributions."

Student plays begin Friday

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three new plays authored by Lane Bateman, Dianne Donnelly, and Martin Jones, will comprise this quarter's traditional 'Quarter Night,' Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Communications Building's Laboratory Theatre.

'Quarter Night' is sponsored each academic quarter by the SIU Theatre Department in order to give student directors a chance to try their skills, and to provide student playwrights with an opportunity to see their plays in production, according to Robb Pocklington, director of one of the three plays to be presented.

The first play, "Karie," was written by Bateman, author of the play "Lying in State." "Karie," which is a modern spoof of the Pygmalion story, directed by Robb Pocklington, assisted by Sheila White. Karie (Mary Hinchcliff) is a coed attending a small Wyoming college who bets her girlfriend Irma (Gail Swanson), that she can turn any man on campus into a "dreamboat husband" within a few days.

"The subject of the experiment is Jarvis Peabody (Mike Myers), an innocent country boy whose manners and morals are ten years behind the times. Complications appear in the form of a nearsighted Dean of Students (David Jacks), a blood thirsty nurse (Joan Dietrich), and a persecuted campus policeman," director Pocklington said of the play.

"Possessions," the second play, concerns the intellectual class' effect on the more simple minded folk of Nottingham, England in 1903. Written by Ms. Donnelly, "Possessions" is directed by Lynn M. Crocker, assisted by David Johns.

In this play, Elizabeth Bates (Viki Rose), becomes convinced she should leave her husband Walter (Dennis Bateman), who is only a miner. Problems arise in the separation because of their daughter (Cheryl Tieman). Also in the play will be Zo Nutt, who plays Elizabeth's mother.

"Even though the classes are quite different between Walter and Elizabeth, their love is too strong. They try too hard to change each other into something that cannot be," according to Ms. Crocker.

The final play, "Two Lives," is the story of two women who have always settled for second best in their lives, love included. Eloise (Margaret Richardson) and Mary Jane (Jane Voice) are best friends who lead sad and lonely lives. When Mary Jane begins seeing Eloise's husband, a strained atmosphere is created at home for Eloise's child, Ramona (Margret Warren).

"Two Lives" was written by Martin Jones and is directed by Kenneth Freeburn. Following each of the one-act plays there will be a short discussion period and intermission. Admission will be 25 cents.

Zebra toll reaches 12 with slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Nelson T. Shields took advantage of the spring day to play some lacrosse, then helped a buddy move a rug.

Moments later the 23-year-old son of a DuPont Co. executive lay dead in the street, three bullets in his back, the 12th white person killed by a black assailant since Nov. 26 in what police call the Zebra case.

The murder bore a strong resemblance to the others in a wave of apparently unprovoked shootings that has terrorized residents and left the largest police investigation in the city's history puzzled. Police labeled the case "Zebra" after four shooting deaths one night in January.

In less than five months, 12 persons have died and six have been wounded. In almost every case, the victim was apparently minding his business at night on a city street when he or she was gunned down with no warning.

"I didn't do anything," Tina Smith, 32, said the night of Jan. 28 just before she died on a downtown sidewalk where she had been waiting for a bus. Three others died in similar fashion the same night.

All the victims were white; the gunmen all black.

Three months later, Tom Rainwater, 21, and Linda Story, two white Salvation Army cadets, slipped out of their training school for a snack near the city's Japanese Cultural Center. A gunman stepped from the darkness and began firing at point-blank range with a .32-caliber pistol. Rainwater fell dead, Miss Story was seriously wounded.

Then, Tuesday night, Shields went with a friend, Jonathan May, to a quiet residential street to pick up a rug. Shields had been playing lacrosse earlier in the day and was dressed in his uniform, blue shorts, gray pullover and tennis shoes. He had been in the San Francisco area for only a week.

May went into a house to get the rug as Shields stayed outside to make room for it in their station wagon. Three shots rang out and Shields slumped to the street, fatally wounded.

"I ran outside and I heard Nick moan. But he was dead when I reached him," May said. A neighbor who heard the shots told police she saw a black man running up the street.

"It looks like another Zebra case," said Police Inspector Gus Corcoran. "There's no motive. A guy just comes over to help move a carpet and winds up dead."

Police say they are pursuing the killer or killers with their biggest manhunt ever. Rewards totaling $25,000 are posted.

All the victims were killed with a .32-or .38-caliber pistol, police say. They were struck down, apparently at random, between 8 p.m. and about 10 p.m. Only in one case—when Saleem Erakat, 53, was gunned down and his store robbed—has there been an apparent motive.

Total immunity rejected by court for officials

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spurred by suits following the deaths of four students at Kent State University in 1970, the Supreme Court Wednesday opened the way for citizens to take state officials into court to answer for their acts.

The high court unanimously rejected the notion that state officials have an absolute immunity from law suits. They have immunity for their official acts, said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the court, but it is qualified.

The court thus kept alive damage suits against Ohio officials brought by relatives of three of the four students slain in a confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen during a protest against the Indochina War.

The justices sent the cases back to a lower federal court for more proceedings to determine the extent of the immunity of the officials named as defendants.

The defendants include former Gov. James Rhodes, the adjutant general of the state National Guard, officers and enlisted men of the guard and the university president.

The suits were filed by families of slain students Sandra Scheuer, Allison Krause and Jeffrey Glen Miller.

Mrs. Martin Scheuer, Boardman, Ohio, whose daughter was killed, said of the court's decision: "It shows our system of justice is working. I'm very pleased that finally we're getting something done."

Former Adj. Gen. Sylvester Del Corso, head of the National Guard at the time of the incident, said: "We were all agents of the State of Ohio. We did not act as individuals."

The Supreme Court vote was 8 to 0, with Justice William O. Douglas taking no part.

Last month a federal grand jury in Cleveland indicted eight of the National Guardsmen on charges of violating the civil rights of the students who were killed and wounded. The indictments were not related to the civil suits on which the Supreme Court acted.

A federal district court judge had dismissed the civil suits at a very early stage, saying he lacked jurisdiction because the cases were essentially against the state itself and therefore barred by the federal constitution.

That action was premature, said Burger, holding that the 11th Amendment ban on federal suits against states does not uniformly bar such suits for damages against individual officials.

The U.S. Circuit Court at Cincinnati affirmed the lower court decision, adding its own view that the doctrine of executive immunity was absolute and that the suits were doubly barred.

Design instructors to return here after 5-year program

After five years in Thailand as part of a Design Development Program, Elsa and Davis Pratt are scheduled to return to Carbondale this summer and will instruct courses in design at SIU in the fall.

The husband and wife team left SIU in January, 1969, and intended to stay in Thailand nine months. It turned out that the Thai people wanted the Pratts to continue their instruction in design and "something got going," said Harry Perk, design instructor.

"Before they left, Elsa was a renowned graphic designer," Perk said. "Now, she is also one of the world's leading authorities on Thai art."

It all started when former SIU President Delyte Morris first discussed the possibilities of SIU assistance in Thailand while visiting with government and education officials there during his 1967 tour of SIU missions and consulting posts abroad.

The Design Development Program is the result of a visit to Bangkok by Harold Cohen, former design department chairman, at Morris' request.

The basic objectives of the program were to set up a facility in Bangkok for training, research, testing and developing visual aids needed to make fully packaged, marketable products. These included furniture, Thai craft products, prefabricated housing, trade marks and packaging, experimental structures such as geodesic dome forms and village and town planning.

Building on the Thailand program, the Department of Design has proposed an "Asian Design Development Program Proposal" which would include: "a selected group limited to 15 students majoring in design and at the junior or senior class level, prepare to spend the spring quarter 1974 with Davis Pratt in Bangkok, Thailand; and this pilot project will provide the basis for developing a proposal for internally or externally funded efforts of a like nature during subsequent years."

Design Department Chairman, Bill Fetter said he does not know how the program would be funded.

Beginning fall semester, Mrs. Pratt will be instructing Design 430, Advanced visual Communication. Davis Pratt will teach Design 496, Special Problems in Design.

Kappa meet starts with housewarming

By Carl Flowers
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Kappa Karnival, the "largest undergraduate sponsored college social event in the nation," will get under way Thursday with a housewarming for the visiting fraternity members at 102 Small Group Housing.

The Karnival, which runs through Sunday, is sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

The theme of this year's Karnival is "Kappas at War—For Good Times" and will be highlighted by a concert featuring Eddie Kendricks and Al Wilson Friday in the Arena.

The 23rd annual Karnival is expected to attract more than 10,000 persons including Mayors Tom Bradley from Los Angeles and Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind. as well as hundreds of other undergraduate and graduate members of the fraternity.

According to Eric Cheatham, chapter president, the Karnival has become a tradition at SIU.

The first Karnival was held in 1951 and served as a "basic Kappa reunion" at the beginning of the spring season at SIU.

Attendance has grown from about 2,000 in 1951 to nearly 10,000 for last year's Karnival. Cheatham said, and added "we're expecting more than 10,000 this year."

Cheatham said each year's growing attendance facilitated the change from the Old Amory Hall to the National Guard Armory to its present location in the Arena.

Weekend activities include:

Friday—

A hopscotch, double-dutch tournament at the Old Main Mall, beginning at 2 p.m.; a concert in the SIU Arena featuring Eddie Kendricks and Al Wilson, beginning at 9 p.m.; and a dance at the Student Center to be followed by after-set dances at Bonaparte's, Merlin's, and University City Cafeteria.

Saturday—

A basketball tournament at the Arena, beginning at 10 a.m., with the visiting chapters competing; a jazz workshop at Merlins, scheduled to start at 2 p.m.; and a parade through downtown Carbondale, in which the visiting fraternity members will participate, beginning at 5 p.m.

DID YOU KNOW

by Jim Simpson

One of the most unusual golf incidents in history happened in a tournament in Houston, Tex., a few years ago when golfer Bob Rosburg made a hole-in-one that wasn't a hole-in-one. Rosburg hit a drive off the 12th tee but the ball hooked badly, hit a tree and bounced crazily the wrong way—not to the 12th green—but to the 13th and right into the cup. It was one of the rarest of golf shots—a hole-in-one in the wrong hole!

Of all the teams in sports history, which one has lost the most games over the years? Answer is the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team which since 1900 alone as lost over 6,000 games. No other team in any sport is close to that!

Ehrlichman brands reports 'false in tone and content'

SEATTLE (AP)—John D. Ehrlichman labelled as false reports Wednesday which said he believed President Nixon had lost effectiveness and that an 18-minute White House tape gap was intentional.

Ehrlichman also rejected reports quoting friends as saying he had engaged in plea bargaining with Watergate prosecutors and that he carried a resentment against former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

In a prepared statement, Ehrlichman, the former chief domestic affairs adviser to Nixon, said a Los Angeles Times story quoting his friends was "false in tone and content."

The Times story quoted unnamed friends as saying Ehrlichman had privately expressed disappointment with Nixon and that he thought Nixon's effectiveness had ended.

A friend of Ehrlichman's interviewed by the Associated Press Wednesday said Ehrlichman had discussed with prosecutors the terms under which he would plead guilty to a reduced Watergate-related charge, but that no agreement was reached.

The Times story quoted one close friend as stating emphatically that Ehrlichman would settle with Watergate prosecutors on a single reduced charge. And it quoted friends as saying he believed an 18-minute gap in a tape of a conversation between Nixon and Haldeman had been erased deliberately.

Ehrlichman said in his statement he would not allow any questions from newsmen because he was under court order not to discuss the subject.

The account of possible plea bargaining is false, he said, "because I am not guilty of any of the charges leveled against me and I intend to prove my innocence."

He said he thought Nixon's "domestic record has been as excellent as in foreign affairs. What he can accomplish in the future will depend on how he weathers the current attacks."

"I remain optimistic that he will come out of all of this with a regained effectiveness."

"Concerning the tapes, I have no way of knowing what caused any gaps," he said in the statement. "At no time have I entertained the belief that someone intentionally altered the tapes."

WIDB will broadcast live from Merlin's

Radio station WIDB will originate Merlin's "Goldrush" live from Merlin's of Carbondale beginning this Sunday at 10 p.m.

According to Michael Jaye, WIDB's public relations director, Merlin's "Goldrush" is a new experiment in entertainment for this part of the nation. Similar broadcasts have originated on the east and west coasts, but this is the first time anything like this is being attempted in the Midwest.

From 10 p.m. to 1:30 a.m., Merlin's will feature solid gold music hits with Bill "Hard Guy" Anderson as host. There will be props, contests and prizes supplied by local Carbondale merchants.

Contests will include "Tella Trivia"—a nostalgic look at photos from the past, which the live audience will have a chance to identify and win prizes. There will also be "Fractured Faces"—where the audience must guess the identity of a celebrity by seeing only a jigsaw portion of the face. If no one guesses correctly another piece of the puzzle will be added. Other contests include "Guess the Gold" and more.

"Merlin's 'Goldrush' has been many months in the planning and we are extremely excited about it," said Bob Neiss, program coordinator.

Listeners in the dorms and on Cable FM 104 and on Channel 13 will be able to call in requests at 536-2363. Merlin's is located at 315 S. Illinois Av., Carbondale.

CCHS to hold public hearings on budget during meeting

A public hearing on the revised budget for the current school year will be held during the first 30 minutes of the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Learning Center.

The revised budget was tentatively approved by the Board in its March meeting. The revisions include a reversal of a "permanent transfer" fund of $49,709 made last year and a re-budgeting of the school building fund to conform with the state Fire-Safety Program.

A reorganization of the board will take place at the meeting due to the April 14 election of two new members, Mary Walker and Carol McDermott and the re-election of board secretary Charles Hindersman.

The board must elect a president and secretary, select a recording secretary and determine the time, day, frequency and place for the board meetings.

Police focus on student bicyclists

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

With warmer weather creeping up, the University police have concentrated on re-educating students on the regulations, requirements and suggestions concerning bicycling.

Most student bike owners have registered their two-wheelers and therefore, have come in contact with the "Bicycle Rules of the Road" booklet. Mike Norrington, who is heading registration for the Security Office, said the University has registered 3,270 bikes. The city of Carbondale has registered 3,959 bikes.

Because the majority of students have registered their bikes, the Security Office will be closing its doors to the operation Monday. "The officers and Saluki patrolmen concerned with registration can be better utilized elsewhere now," Norrington said.

Campus registration of bikes will continue from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday at the parking section at Washington Square. The city will continue to register bikes from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Police Community Services Center, 312 S. Illinois Ave.

One of the biggest problems students and police have to contend with is bicycle parking, Norrington said. "Parking is still a problem; the budget has not permitted the purchase of enough bike racks yet," he added.

Norrington said, "Parking violations will only be enforced when they create a hazard." Cyclists riding the pedestrian pathways in a "reckless or hazardous manner will be ticketed," Norrington said. He added that bicyclists riding on the overpass across Route 51 would also be ticketed.

Bike owners who run stop signs, go the wrong way on one-way streets, fail to yield the right of way and have not secured the necessary lighting and sound systems will be ticketed.

The lighting system includes a red reflector visible from the rear, a clear reflector visible from the front and a white light visible for at least 50 feet.

A horn or bell audible for at least 100 feet is also required equipment. New bike models should also be equipped with pedal and side reflectors.

Failure to register will constitute another type of misdemeanor, Norrington said. Bicyclists who have not registered may be ticketed or have their bikes impounded, he added.

A $1 fine will be assessed to unregistered bike owners and those who break University regulations on bicycling. The fine for breaking a state law will be determined by the state.

Carbondale police are issuing $5 fines to unregistered bikes.

A $3 fine will be levied to bike owners who want to get their bikes out of impoundment. Bikes subject to impoundment are those which are parked blocking an entrance or exit and those that are not registered.

Norrington said. Impounded bikes will be taken to the Security Office.

Norrington said the registration system is working. "We have had a lot of success returning bikes to their rightful owners," he added.

Norrington said he suggests students use a heavy cable or case hardened chain and a case hardened lock when they lock their bikes.

Minorities train for top positions

By Julie Titone
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Academic Affairs Conference of Midwestern Universities (AACMU) has implemented a program for members of minority groups which some might consider a good idea for the majority, too. It is a program to train administrators.

The Administrative Internships for Minorities (AIM) program is designed to increase the supply of women and minority persons who are prepared to assume key administrative positions in American colleges and universities. The interns spend nine months at one or more of the schools in the AACMU consortium, including Illinois State, Indiana State, Northern Illinois, Ball State and Southern Illinois Universities.

The rationale behind the AIM program, as explained by the AACMU, is that a job is best learned by doing it while under the guidance of a mentor who has been seasoned by experience. Three of the 12 interns in the consortium this school year are stationed at SIU. They are Patricia R. Benziger, mentored by Forest Etheredge, president of Waubesa Junior College; Lois I. Bursack, mentored by John King, chairman of the Department of Higher Education; and Augustus S. Cotera, Jr., mentored by Roger E. Beyler, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Cotera, who is on leave from his chairmanship of the Department of Geology at Northern Arizona University at Flagstaff, discussed the internship program Wednesday afternoon.

"I receive very definite assignments from Dean Beyler, like providing reports and data on the College," he explained, "and I've had the opportunity to read as well as meet a lot of people—I've read 50 or 60 books this year, something this [internship] gives me time to do."

All of the interns, Cotera emphasized, are professionals, people who have achieved academic experience. In addition to his six years as a department chairman, he has taught for twelve years. Cotera, at 43, is slightly older than the "preferred" range of 30 to 40 years of age outlined for the AIM program. But none of the outlined requirements are hard and fast, although a Ph.D. is the usual level of education for most interns, some have what are considered terminal masters degrees, or are doctoral candidates.

Besides his other internship activities, Cotera has taken classes in institutional research, an area with which he was already familiar, from Loren Jung, director of Institutional Research here.

Although most of the interns, like

AFT director to hold meeting on union boom

The national boom in college and university teacher involvement in collective bargaining will be discussed by an American Federation of Teachers (AFT) representative at SIU April 25.

Robert M. Neilsen, AFT's director of Colleges and Universities, will hold the meeting in Morris Library Auditorium for interested SIU faculty. The meeting is part of an AFT campaign to achieve collective bargaining rights for Illinois state schools.

The Carbondale affiliate of AFT released figures showing a rise in teacher unionism from virtually nothing in 1968 to 18 per cent of all college and university teachers, as of March 1. The release said the 104 terminations at SIU has shown the University to be a prime candidate for AFT activities and benefits.

Neilsen's stop at SIU follows six months of similar campaigns across the country. The April 25 meeting will begin at 4 p.m.

Cotera, are from outside of the consortium, each of the five schools has chosen one person from within. Ms. Benziger, who served previously as assistant to the dean of the liberal arts college, is SIU's "in-house" intern.

The interns are given a choice as to which institution they will work at. Cotera contends that he chose SIU after analyzing its structure and character.

"I felt that SIU had a greater variety of programs and breadth of academic development, and would hence have more problems to study," he said. Cotera added that he hadn't expected quite the number of problems that SIU has experienced this year, but that his work in the midst of the changes and cutbacks should prove useful.

"Having seen what SIU has been through, I can make contingency plans in the future to avoid these kinds of problems," he said.

Intern learning experiences include progress meetings on the various campuses, readings, summary papers, and seminars like the Rockefeller Fellows Conference to be held at SIU this Sunday through Wednesday.

The seminar on academic administration and higher education is so named because the AIM program is being sponsored by a $157,000 Rockefeller Foundation grant which has reportedly been renewed for another two years.

Speakers at next week's meetings will include J.K. Leasure, vice president for academic affairs; Dean L. Stuck and John Baker, assistant provosts; John Huffman, university legal counsel; Joanne Thorpe, chairwoman of Faculty Senate; Mike Carr, student government president, and other administration and campus group representatives.

State ICC postpones rate hikes

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Commerce Commission has postponed for five months a decision on whether Illinois Bell Telephone Co. can put into effect a plan for automatic monthly rate increases based on rises in the cost of living.

The plan, presented March 29, would eliminate the necessity for the company to ask the commission each time it wants to increase telephone rates.

The ICC ruled Wednesday it would postpone a decision for five months to allow time for extensive public hearings. That would make Aug. 27 the earliest date the plan could go into effect if approved.

A Bell spokesman said the plan would increase average yearly residential telephone rates by about 50 cents if inflation continued at a rate of 5 or 6 per cent.

Dear Faculty and Students:

The Campus Red Cross Blood Drive is being held in the Student Center and is to extend through April 19. The drive is co-sponsored by Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, and the Pan-Hellenic Council. Your help is needed! We would like to urge all students and faculty to participate as a donor or as a volunteer to assist the Red Cross workers. To qualify as a donor a person must be 18 years or older, must be in general good health and must weigh 110 pounds or more.

The goal this year is 1,000 pints of blood which is 250 pints per day. A pint of blood and 45 minutes of your time may mean a lifetime for someone else. When you give one pint of blood through the Campus Red Cross Blood Drive, you and the members of your immediate family become eligible for all blood needs for an entire year from the date of your donation.

Students may sign up to be donors or to be volunteers by calling 453-2481 or 549-4855. Let's make this blood drive a successful one!

Mitterwald slams 3 homers in leading Cubs to win

CHICAGO (AP)—George Mitterwald hit three home runs, one with the bases loaded, and drove in eight runs and the Chicago Cubs belted three more homers in a 18-9 blasting of the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday.

In other games Wednesday afternoon Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets, 7-4, and the Boston Red Sox downed the New York Yankees, 4-3.

Mitterwald hit his grand slam in the first inning, his first homer of the season; hit one with two men on in the third, and socked one with the bases empty in the sixth. He also got an RBI with a bases-loaded walk in the fourth and doubled in his only other at-bat in the eighth. He had 14 total bases for the day.

Rick Monday and Jerry Morales hit consecutive homers in the bottom of the second for the Cubs and Bill Madlock's first National League homer preceded Mitterwald's third in the sixth.

Chicago's first 10 runs and Mitterwald's first two homers came off Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss, 0-1, in three innings. Steve Blass, making his first appearance of the year, relieved Reuss at the start of the fourth and finished the game, giving up eight runs, three of them unearned.

Willie Stargell hit his second homer of the season, a three-run shot in the first, and Richie Hebner hit his fourth of the year with nobody on and Richie Zisk hit his second with one man on in Pittsburgh's five-run ninth.

In the Chicago first Vic Harris opened with a single and advanced on a passed ball. Rick Monday walked and, with one out Billy Williams singled home a run. Then, with two out Madlock walked to fill the bases and Mitterwald hit an 0-1 pitch into the left-field bleachers for the first grand slam of his major league career.

In other action, rookie catcher Barry Foote led off the seventh inning with his first major league home run and sparked the Expos to a 7-4 victory over the Mets Wednesday.

Foote's homer off New York starter George Stone, 0-1, sailed into the left centerfield bleachers.

Foote also drove in Montreal's first run with a sacrifice fly in a two-run second inning, with Tim Foli singling home the second run. Both were unearned because of an error by Mets shortstop Ted Martinez.

At New York, Bernie Carbo and Bob Montgomery drove in eighth-inning runs lifting the Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Yankees.

New York pitcher Pat Dobson, had pitched no-hit ball for six innings.

Juan Beniquez opened the eighth with a double and went to third when right-fielder Walt Williams throw hit him on the helmet. Carbo singled Beniquez in to give Boston a 3-2 lead, and Sparky Lyle replaced Dobson, 1-2.

Carbo went to third on Carl Yastrzemski's single and scored on Montgomery's sacrifice fly.

The Red Sox tied the game 2-2 in the seventh. Dobson lost his no-hitter and shutout when Yastrzemski hit his fourth homer of the season.

Bob Montgomery then flew out, Cecil Cooper singled and went to third on Dick McAuliffe's hit-and-run single. Doug Griffin's bunt single got the tying run home. Dobson escaped further trouble by striking out Mario Guerrero and Tommy Harper.

Track team loses to Murray State

The SIU women's varsity track team opened its season under somewhat less than auspicious circumstances as Murray State ran away with the meet, 106-11 Tuesday afternoon.

It can be difficult to remain optimistic in the face of such a one-sided score, but track coach Claudia Blackman did her best. Looking at their overall performances, Ms. Blackman said, "The team did well."

Registration set for racquetball

The deadline for entering the Intramural Racquetball Tournament is set for 5 p.m. Friday. All participants must register by this time at the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, located in the Arena.

The tournament will be held at 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the handball courts east of the Arena. The tournament is open to all SIU students. Play will be divided into men's doubles, mixed doubles and men's singles.

Tournament pairings and court assignments will be available Monday in the Office of Recreation and intramurals. Participants are responsible for checking tournament pairings.

Matches will consist of the best two-out-of-three games. Men's singles and doubles will play to 21 points.

All participants must report to the tennis court shack before and after each scheduled match. For more information contact the office of Recreation and Intramurals at 453-2710.

"Most of the returnees weren't very far off their best times at the end of last year," she said. "It's encouraging to see that they're picking up where they left off."

SIU went into the meet with a predominately freshmen team and has only been practicing together for two weeks. Murray has been competing together since January and is coming to the end of their season.

Under the circumstances, SIU failed to finish first in any of the events. The one bright spot for the women tracksters was senior Kris Olson's performance in the discus. Ms. Olson set a new SIU record in the discus with a toss of 91 feet two inches. Her toss was only good enough for third place.

Junior Launa Morrison finished second in the high jump by clearing four feet four inches. Murray's Glenda Rudolph finished first with a four foot eight inch jump.

The women tracksters will return to action Saturday when they travel to Indiana for a meet with Indiana State University.

Six-run eighth breaks open game for SIU

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A six-run Saluki eighth inning broke open a tie game Wednesday to beat Washington 9-3 and give the Salukis their 14th win in a row.

SIU baseball fans were being treated to a rare close game at Abe Martin Field until SIU rallied for six runs after two outs to decide the outcome.

The Bears scored single runs in the first and the third off Saluki starter Bill Dunning. The right-hander had control problems throughout the game, walking eight before being relieved in the eighth by Scott Waltemate.

SIU (21-5) countered with single runs of its own in the same innings to keep the game tied until the sixth.

Steve Shartzler singled to lead off the sixth inning for SIU, and took second on Claude Crockett's sacrifice bunt.

Shartzler went to third on Stan Mann's grounder and scored on Jim Locascio's line single between the first and second basemen. The run gave SIU a 3-2 lead.

Washington tied the game again in its half of the eighth on an SIU throwing error. Dunning walked the first two batters he faced to open the inning and was relieved by Waltemate.

Waltemate faced shortstop Dennis Brown, who laid down a bunt to advance the runners. But when Waltemate fielded the ball cleanly and whirled to force the runner at third, he tossed the ball over the head of thirdbaseman Locascio, allowing the tying run to score from second.

Waltemate then fired strikeout pitches past Joel Schechter and Gary Gladioux to retire the side.

The big Saluki eighth began when Crockett singled sharply to right and was advanced to second on Mann's sacrifice bunt. Hopes of an SIU rally faded when Locascio flied to center for the second out.

But pinch-hitter Jim Reeves came through with a single to dead center, scoring Crockett to take the lead.

Howie Mitchell then singled to move Reeves to third. Bert Newman followed with a perfect squeeze bunt down the thirdbase line. There was no play at the plate but a wild throw to first sent the SIU runners around to second and third.

Another Washington error on a pick-off attempt at first let Mitchell in to score and a walk to Wilbins and singles by Hoscheidt and Shartzler scored three more to give the Salukis a deciding 9-3 lead.

Waltemate struck out two of the three men he faced in the ninth and picked up his fourth win against one loss in relief.

"This team really gets up for us," SIU Coach Itchy Jones said of the Bears after the game. "We made them make some mistakes when we got some baserunners in the eighth inning."

The Salukis will take the field for a 1 p.m. doubleheader Friday against Indiana State. SIU will also host Indiana State in a noon doubleheader Saturday.

Georgia cage standout signs SIU letter of intent

Milton Huggins, leading scorer in Georgia high school basketball last season, signed a national letter of intent with SIU Wednesday.

Huggins, a 6-4 guard, averaged 34.4 points per game for Palmetto, Ga., High School and scored 895 points last season for a 2,072 total during his three-season prep career.

Huggins won the Atlanta Tip Off Club's Outstanding Player of the Year Award for the state of Georgia and was twice named to Georgia's All-State team.

He had a single game high of 48 points and six times last season scored over 40 points. His team finished 18-8 and beat the eventual Georgia state champion two out of three meetings.

Huggin's coach, Kirby Lamb said, "I don't believe there is any better offensive player around. He has the ability to hit from the outside and has good moves. Milton is a very fine young man."

"He matured a lot this year," Lamb said. "He was our only returning starter from last year. He had a lot of pressure on him and responded well. The statistics speak for themselves."

Huggins also was his team's leading rebounder, averaging 12 bounds per contest.

Huggins was widely recruited by schools in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Southeastern Conference, the Big Ten, the Big Eight, the Pacific Coast Conference and major independents.

Under NCAA rules, SIU Coach Paul Lambert is not allowed to comment on his recruit until a later date. Wednesday was the first day players were allowed to sign national letters of intent.

Saluki holds third place

Bill Hancock is in third place after the first day of the decathlon competition at Lawrence, Kansas. Hancock accumulated 3,979 points over the first five events of the 10 event competition. The decathlon will wind up on Thursday.

Jeff Bennett, the 1972 Olympic Bronze Medal winner in the decathlon, is in first place with 4,123 points, followed by another 1972 Olympian Bruce Jenner, with 4,103 points.

"I think it's great that Bill is this close to these Olympians, who are obviously two of the best three in the country," said Saluki track coach Lew Hartzog.

Hancock, the defending decathlon champion at the relays, ran a 11 flat 100 meters, long jumped 24-1 $\frac{1}{2}$ , threw the shot 39-2 for his best mark ever, high jumped 6-10, good enough for second place, and ran a 51 flat 440 meters for his best time this year.

Jan Johnson, Saluki graduate assistant coach, suffered a severe pulled hamstring in the 100 meters and had to pull out of the competition.

In winning the decathlon at Kansas last year, Hancock was competed in the university division. This year the decathlon is an open event.

Track team will compete with 70 schools in Kansas

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki track team travels to the Kansas Relays in Lawrence Friday and Saturday hoping to sweep the 440, 880 and mile relays. "We have a chance to win all three," said Saluki coach Lew Hartzog. "You have to be awfully good to make a statement like that, but we are."

The Salukis certainly have their work cut out for them this weekend as approximately 70 teams will be competing in the two-day event.

In the 440 relays the Salukis have run a 41.0 this year. Eddie Sutton will return to the 440 replacing Gerald Smith. "Smith has done a real fine job for us this year and he'll be ready to run if Sutton or anyone else is injured," said Hartzog. Sutton has been off the relay ever since he pulled a leg muscle in the first meet of the year in Florida. Sutton will be running with Terry Erickson, Joe Laws and Mike Monroe.

The Salukis haven't run the 880 relay since Florida when they ran a 1:23.6 at the Florida relays to take first place. "This team may be the best bet to win," said Hartzog. Smith, Erickson, Lonnie Brown and Monroe will run in the 880.

The mile relay will have a tough time of it as they face some stiff competition.

Hartzog can use several combinations in this event although Brown and Erickson will run the last two legs. The Salukis have Ed Wardzala, Wayne Carmody, Monroe and Sutton to pick from for the first two positions.

In last weekends Texas Relays, Baylor and Texas Southern ran a dead heat in the finals of the mile relay, running a 3:06.64. Both teams will be at Kansas to take on the Salukis, who have run a 3:10.9 this year to win the Florida relays.

Other Saluki entries will have Erickson running in the 440, Leo Robinson throwing the discus, Phil Robins in the triple jump, Bill Barrett will participate in the hammer throw, Wayne Angel in the 440 intermediate hurdles, Angel, Wardzala, Gary Mendehr and Dave Hill will run in the distance medley relay while Hill will run again in the University mile.

The distance medley has one runner running the 440, another the 880, another the 1320, and the anchorman runs a mile.

Hartzog looked at the past in comparison with this week's relays and said, "We're excited. The team is ready to compete. We have exposed all our people to good competition. We have been to the wars and now you can't go to Kansas just to look good and expect to win."

Joe C. cracks bone in wrist

Saluki basketball center Joe C. Meriweather cracked a bone in his wrist Tuesday and will be in a cast for four to six weeks.

Meriweather was involved in a bicycle accident while riding with teammate Shag Nixon. The 6-11 junior made his way to Wednesday's baseball game at Abe Martin Field and said he anticipated no problems from the injury.

Meriweather's injury occurred a day before his name turned up in the first round of the ABA's player draft.

Women's softball

Salukiettes face test today

The women's varsity softball team will put its two-game winning streak on the line Thursday when it takes to the field for a 5 p.m. contest with Southeast Missouri State.

The game will be played on the field behind Wham.

The Salukiettes will be looking to revenge a 14-1 trouncing by Southeast Missouri in the opening game of the season. Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said,

"Missouri is a good hitting team."

SIU can also score runs. The Salukiettes scored 37 runs in their last outing to sweep a doubleheader from the Evansville Purple Aces.

Leading slugger for the Salukiettes is senior Annelle Griffin with a .777 average. Ms. Griffin led the SIU offense with a nine for nine performance. Sophomore Kathy Lies, 1-0, is scheduled to pitch for SIU.
