Bare bottom raises public ire

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Streakers' bare bottoms draw chuckles, but Steve Baker's picture of a woman's bare bottom may draw him prosecution.

Baker, senior in cinema and photography, taped an 8½ by 12-foot rear-view photograph of a nude woman on a billboard Saturday. The photograph, mounted on a billboard along Rt. 13 across from the Murdale Shopping Center at 7:30 a.m., was a composite of 30 sheets of photographic paper, each having a portion of the entire picture printed on it.

He and a 30-member film crew recorded public reaction to the mural until about 2:30 p.m., when they began running out of film and were "getting tired from carrying those heavy cameras," Baker said.

By early afternoon Saturday enough citizens had complained to City Manager Carroll Fry that Fry called City Attorney John Womick and asked him to investigate the incident to determine if it warranted attention.

Womick said that the mural had been removed by the time he arrived. He said Monday that he has done nothing further about the incident but will decide "sometime this week" whether Baker violated state obscenity laws.

Baker said that at no time Saturday was he asked to remove the picture. He said police officers stopped by four times during the day to find out what the students were doing and to see if they had permission to place the photograph over the billboard's advertisement. Baker said he showed them written permission which he had obtained from Fred Spears of Rogers & Rogers Billboard Advertising, owners of the billboard.

Baker said his main purpose in mounting the picture on a billboard was to show his artwork, and film public reaction to it for a class in documentary film production.

The project had been well thought out and well planned Baker said. All possible ramifications were discussed and considered before the mural was put up, he said.

Most of the reactions to the mural were favorable, Baker said. Only three persons approached him and told him it was objectionable, he said.

Baker said one representative from the Carbondale Citizens for Decency group who agreed to have his reaction to the photograph filmed criticized students for their "continuous actions to ruin the town of Carbondale."

Another woman who refused to be filmed said she thought the whole event was disgusting. She hoped the students involved are proud of themselves, Baker said.

Baker added that the possibility of charges being filed against him was totally unexpected, and that so far no city official has contacted him about the mural or charges.

"If someone had asked us to remove the picture we would have, with no objections," he said.

Dangerous drug being sold in city

By Gary Marx
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A dangerous drug is being falsely peddled as Quaaludes on the Carbondale black market. Ron Shanas, Synergy staff member said Monday.

"We believe the drug is Scapaloline," Shanas said, "and we think there are over 200,000 hits of it in town."

Nausea, loss of memory and perceptual motor disfunction may last up to seven days after ingestion of the drug, he said. Ingestion of large doses may result in death.

"We know of two cases where automobile accidents have resulted 24 hours after ingestion," he said. "We have had 25 to 30 calls from people asking for assistance or information about the drug."

Shanas described the drug as a white non-pharmaceutical street drug the size of a dime, thicker than an aspirin tablet and marked with a very faint X. He explained that Quaaludes are made by Roler and Sopor Co. and carry the corresponding pharmaceutical stamp—not an X.

Shanas said he believes the active ingredient in the drug is unevenly distributed within the batch. "Some people report no effects from two or three hits while others have wrecked cars a day after ingesting one."

Shanas said he suspects the drug was made in Chicago, and fears that many persons who have been financially hurt in buying the drug at the wholesale price of 75 cents a tablet will now use devious methods to retail it.

Carbondale police said they had no knowledge of the presence of the drug in the city.

Shanas said the arrival of the drug in Carbondale may be linked to the Jefferson Starship concert Wednesday. Synergy staff members will be at the concert to provide assistance for anyone having difficulties with the drug. Synergy people will wear armbands displaying a red cross within a green circle.

"We provide hassle-free help for either drug or emotional problems," he added.

Synergy began its educational campaign after learning of the bogus drug. "We're not telling people not to do it," Shanas said. "We're just telling everyone to be aware of what they're taking."

Thieu quits, blasts U.S. support

SAIGON (AP)—Nguyen Van Thieu resigned as president of South Vietnam on Monday but the move was viewed here as probably too late to keep the Communists from taking the country by force. In fact, more heavy fighting was predicted by Thieu himself and others.

The weeping Thieu quit with an embittered blast at his long-time supporter, the United States, as having "led the South Vietnamese people to death."

Thieu criticized U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for accepting, at the Paris peace talks three years ago, the presence of North Vietnamese troops in the South.

The Viet Cong's first reaction was that the "Thieu clique," meaning his government and any successors designated by him, must leave to pave the way for talks which might lead to a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war.

In Washington, the general view was that the Thieu resignation was too late to do any good.

Thieu said in his televised resignation speech that because of a lack of U.S.

help, South Vietnam was not strong enough to withstand the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong offensive that began in early March and has swept up three-fourths of the country.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the United States was notified in advance of Thieu's resignation and would be sympathetic to any request Thieu made to take refuge in the United States.

There was no immediate comment on Thieu's charges that the United States was responsible for the military debacle.

The Communist-led advances continued even as Thieu said he was quitting office, with the fall of the 20th of South Vietnam's 44 provinces apparently imminent and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions virtually at the gates of Saigon. About 1,000 Americans and Vietnamese were airlifted to the Philippines in the biggest such evacuation from Saigon yet, and another 100 Vietnamese flew to Guam.

Thieu said that, as provided in the constitution, he would be replaced by 71-year-old Vice President Tran Van Huong, Huong, nearly blind and crippled, called for the South Vietnamese people to unite "because we will die if we do otherwise."

There was speculation that other leaders might emerge soon in an effort to bring about negotiations for an end to 15 years of bloody warfare. The Viet Cong delegation in Paris called for a total U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam, the ouster of the "Thieu clique" and the establishment of a government of national concord in Saigon. The French government issued an urgent call for talks to begin between the South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

Thieu said he believed the Huong government will "take its briefcase to the negotiating table," but he did not give details of how such a move might be carried out.

Thieu linked his resignation directly to the question of emergency aid now being debated in the U.S. Congress. President Ford's appeal for such aid has run into strong opposition with little prospect that military assistance will be approved.

Science looks for male contraceptive

Editor's note: This is the fifth of a series on the availability of birth control, sterilization and abortion services for Carbondale area citizens. The following information was condensed from an article in the April 12 edition of the National Observer.

Although it has been 15 years since the first oral contraceptive for women went on the market, the search for the first male oral contraceptive continues and the future isn't too promising.

The demand for a chemical means of male contraception is growing, though.

Gabriel Bialy, a biochemist who directs the contraceptive-development branch of the National Institutes of Health's Center for Population Research said, "We just haven't found the right combination of drugs to do the job. The whole process of sperm reproduction and the factors that regulate it haven't been as well explained as the female reproduction system," he said.

Ashton Barfield, a reproductive biologist with the Population Council in New York City said, "To prevent a woman from getting pregnant, all you have to do is prevent a single egg from being released once a month," Barfield said. "In the male, the process of sperm reproduction is continuous," he added.

While researchers try to unravel the fine points of reproduction, others are working on sex hormones, the approach used in developing the Pill.

A discovery by C. Alvin Paulsen of the University of Washington School of Medicine showed that a monthly injection of testosterone, a male sex hormone, and daily doses of the drug Danazol lowered the sperm count of 95 per cent of his volunteers to five million per ejaculation. It is generally regarded by urologists that a sperm count of 10 million per ejaculation is necessary for pregnancy to occur. Paulsen acknowledges that this approach is impractical because of the high cost of Danazol.

In Australia, Michael and Maxine Briggs, using a combination of male and female hormones, reported that the combination suppressed sperm without side effects and the volunteers' sperm count returned to normal when treatment stopped. However, their testing ran only 34 weeks and included only five men.

Some researchers are trying to use the body's immunity system to produce infertility. Erwin Goldberg, a biologist at Northwestern University, has found an enzyme that only exists in sperm cells.

When that enzyme was injected into mice, the animals made antibodies that attack the enzyme and their own sperm. Experts don't know whether a vaccine of this nature would cause permanent infertility, but Goldberg said that the data on the experiments is just coming in and it appears reversible.

A Purdue team led by Roy L. Whistler, a biochemist, has made a chemical that blocks sperm production in mice. Sperm production depends on the absorption of glucose (blood sugar) by the testes. The animals became sperm free, because the chemical interfered with the testes' ability to absorb glucose. Once the drug was stopped the animals became fertile.

Some researchers have expressed fear that this chemical could adversely affect the glucose metabolism elsewhere in the body, particularly in the brain. Whistler's group is now running extensive tests to see exactly how the drug works in the body and whether the brain suffers any damage.

Bialy gave an estimate when the male birth control will be ready. "If we have one in five years it will be a miracle," he said. "More likely, my guess is eight to ten years."

Conduct code committee revises drugs section

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Conduct Code Committee has revised the section of the code dealing with illegal drugs.

The panel also postponed until Friday discussion on whether disciplinary hearings should be opened or closed to the public. A vote taken after a half-hour of debate Friday resulted in a 3-3 tie.

Several campus groups questioned wording in the original section referring to different types of illegal drugs. The revised section in the proposed code says possession of any drug defined as illegal by city, state or federal—in any quantity—is in violation of the code.

Will Travelstead, coordinator of student discipline, told the committee that "adjudicating agencies have always distinguished possession and use and grass versus harder stuff."

Doug Diggle, student president-elect and member of the committee, noted that the courts have not been concerned as much with purchase as with delivery of drugs.

Regarding the open-hearing controversy, Harris Rubin, chairman of the Student Conduct Review Board, said, "I believe any student has the right to an open hearing." If a member of the judicial board "cannot argue his convictions" before an audience, Rubin said, "then maybe we should get other people to serve on the judicial board."

Carbondale Kappas welcome 9,000-plus to weekend fest

By Cathy Tokarski
Student Writer

Fraternity brothers from chapters throughout the nation danced, partied and crowned their queen at the 24th Annual Kappa Kappa Saturday at the Arena.

Monroe Smith, carnival official, estimated the turnout to be "between 9,000 and 12,000."

Kappa Kappa, sponsored by the SIU

Kim Mitchell,

chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi, drew participants from colleges as far away as California, Tennessee and Kansas. Bob Porter, Kappa hospitality chairman said.

The four-day festival was highlighted by the carnival itself, held in the Arena Saturday night. Booths in the upper concourse featured homemade jewelry, Kappa buttons and carnival games. The gym floor was crowded with people milling around or dancing to Mojo, a jazz band.

At midnight, the eight girls nominated for Kappa Kappa queen were presented to the crowd. Kim Mitchell, a freshman in community development, was crowned queen. Toni Colbert, a sophomore majoring in special education, was chosen as first runner-up. Second runner-up went to Cynthia Mattox, a freshman in political science. All three girls were presented with trophies.

Saturday's carnival activities also included a parade down South Illinois Avenue, a jazz workshop in the Student Center and a basketball tournament in the Arena.

On Sunday, the Kappas hosted an all-day lawn party. However, many carnival goers were already packing their cars to return home.

"The Carnival is proceeding every year," Porter said. Proceeds from the event will "pay off carnival expenses, finance social activities for the Kappa's and go to charity," he added.

Opinions expressed in opposition said room is not sufficient to provide for spectators. Open hearings might result in "a circus-type atmosphere."

Diggle and Tom Penrose, representing the Student Senate, joined Rubin in supporting the open hearings clause, while Travelstead, Bill Bleyer of the Student Life Office and Helen Ellison, University Housing representative, opposed it.

Diggle expressed concern about a section of the Conduct Code which states that any violation of University policy regarding University housing, motor vehicles, campus demonstrations "and any other policy or regulation, will be referred to the appropriate authority."

"I can't see approving this thing carte blanche," Diggle said. "There seems to be a great problem for people to promulgate the code."

In other action, the panel revised the sections dealing with authority and enforcement of the code and removed alternative service as a form of discipline.

Beg your pardon

In Friday's Daily Egyptian it was incorrectly reported that the West Side winner for the Student Senate in Wednesday's student elections was James Gamble. The actual winner of that race was James Mourning. Mourning won the race over Gamble by 127 votes to 114.

News Roundup

1,000 evacuated from South Vietnam

CLARK AIR BASE, The Philippines (AP)—About 1,000 Americans and Vietnamese arrived Monday in the biggest day so far of the airlift from endangered Saigon.

Twelve U.S. Air Force C141 jets carried ammunition and other supplies to Saigon and returned with passengers. At least 2,700 persons have arrived here from Saigon since April 5, about 1,400 of them Americans. This does not include 891 Vietnamese children flown out on the babylift.

Another plane, belonging to World

Airways, arrived at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., with 209 Americans and some Vietnamese wives. Many of the arrivals at Clark were American men and their Vietnamese wives, children and mothers-in-law.

K.S. Negley, 52, of Torrance, Calif., who arrived with his Vietnamese wife and three children, said he slept in a snackbar one night and on a mattress and paper sheet in an office block another night. He said he and other evacuee families ate C-rations supplied by U.S. Marines.

Ford advisers say Vietnam not defensible

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford's military advisers told congressmen Monday that South Vietnam is no longer militarily defensible, but more military aid could bring a negotiated end to the fighting.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick C. Weyand told the House Appropriations Committee: "I'd say the military options open to the enemy are almost limitless." But he said military aid could bolster the will of the South Vietnamese to fight and thus win a negotiated settlement rather than an abrupt takeover. Pentagon Comptroller Erich von Marbod said the aid "would give the South Vietnamese assurances that we are not abandoning them, and it might enable them to negotiate some humanitarian considerations."

Gray says tax audit clears up charges

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—A former Illinois congressman says the Internal Revenue Service has found no impropriety in the handling of campaign funds despite the suggestions of a Washington newspaper.

In a statement released Monday, Kenneth Gray, a West Frankfort Democrat, said the IRS had audited his returns and found only that he had overpaid his taxes by $1,308.95.

Earlier this year the Washington

Evening Star News questioned Gray's handling of money he received from the sale of a helicopter donated to Gray by his Southern Illinois constituents.

The IRS audit, Gray said, showed he has overpaid his income taxes by $1,308.95. Accompanying the news release was a photostatic copy of a check for 10 per cent of that amount made out by Gray in the name of the Star reporter who wrote the Gray series. Gray said it is a finders fee.

Percy appeals to Ford for consumer agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., has appealed to President Ford to reconsider his opposition to a proposed federal consumer agency and to help find budget cuts to offset the cost of the new agency.

Percy said in a letter to Ford that the consumer advocacy agency would cost about $60 million over three years, an amount he described as much less than the advertising budgets of the companies lobbying against the legislation.

Percy is one of the prime sponsors of legislation that would create a federal consumer advocacy agency to represent the interests of consumers before regulatory agencies and in court.

High court refuses to hear busing case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused to become involved Monday in Louisville and Indianapolis desegregation cases that could lead to busing of students between the cities and their suburbs.

In routine orders, the court declined without comment to review either case. The action means that a federal court in Louisville may reach across district lines if necessary to desegregate Louisville and Jefferson County schools. The trial court must proceed immediately to develop a desegregation plan.

'Nose evidence' used in drug cases

By Ray Urechel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU disciplinary system heard about 100 cases dealing with drug offenses last semester. According to Student Life Office officials, more than half of those cases were heard on the basis of "nose evidence" to support charges brought by University housing dorm officials.

"Nose evidence" is the smell of burning marijuana.

As used at SIU, nose evidence enables University housing staff members to bring charges against students for possession of marijuana.

If two or more housing staff members find "reasonable cause," on the basis of what they smell, to believe that a dorm resident is smoking marijuana, they can file a disciplinary report with the Student Life Office.

They don't have to see the marijuana being smoked—they only have to smell it.

According to Riefe Tietjen, Thompson Point unit manager, reasonable cause as defined by the courts means that housing staff members do not need visible or tangible evidence to act on suspicions that a law violation is occurring.

This concept has been approved by the courts, Tietjen said, because of the University's responsibility to maintain an educational environment.

"The ultimate guilt or innocence is decided by the judicial board," he said.

SIU-C Student Resident Assistants (SRAs) and resident hall coordinators (RHCs) are exposed to marijuana by the SIU Security Police as part of the housing staff orientation sessions each fall. A spokesman for the security police said the housing staff members are shown a display of marijuana in various forms and a small amount is burned in a closed room under controlled conditions.

Samuel L. Rinella, University housing director, said he approves of the nose evidence policy.

"I would say that (nose evidence) is the basis for the development of the educational atmosphere of the floor and without the use of nose evidence residents would violate the state law against smoking of marijuana and "barricade themselves in a space they consider to be off-limits to everyone."

"An RA has smelled marijuana so many times prior to enrollment and after," Rinella claimed, "their expertise would not be denied."

The marijuana smell is "irritating and repugnant" to most people, he added.

"If they can train dogs to smell marijuana," Tietjen said, "I can safely say that people can smell grass." He said that people can distinguish between grass and incense in 99 cases out of 100.

"It's strange," Rinella said, "but always (during the demonstrations) somebody says its not a very good grade of grass. If the SRA can tell the grade from the smell," Rinella continued, "surely they can distinguish marijuana from incense."

Not only is marijuana smoking a violation of Illinois statute, Rinella said, "but it is also a violation of other people's rights to breathe unpolluted air."

Rinella said University housing policy states that "two knowledgeable persons are required (to be present) to witness the smell" before a disciplinary report can be filed.

"Each case is different," Rinella continued, "I would assume that in most cases there has been a warning before a discipline report is written."

Bruce R. Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said he would be "supportive of any position that protects the rights of individual students."

"When it comes to retaining the rights of an individual against finding an individual guilty," Swinburne said, "I'd rather be on the side of protecting the individual."

Doug Diggle, newly-elected student president who has been a Student Senate representative to the Student Conduct Code Committee and a critic of the University housing policy, said he is a bartender in Carbondale and "sometimes" customers come in with cigarettes that smell like marijuana.

"I would definitely say it (nose evidence) isn't fair," Diggle said. "It's like a policeman arresting someone on presumed evidence."

Diggle questioned the policy of campus judicial hearings based on a person's "very fallible sense of smell." He said if a person has a cold his sense of smell is not the same as when the person is healthy.

"The whole thing of bringing this before a judicial hearing without any physical evidence," Diggle said, "seems like harrassment to me."

Diggle, who said he does not smoke, said he approved arrests for marijuana law violations if there is evidence.

"How can you be sure what room it was coming out of and who was using it?" Diggle asked.

A case involving the use of nose evidence by an SIU housing staff person was overturned recently by a judicial board on the grounds that, in this case, the use of nose evidence with no physical evidence to support the disciplinary report did not substantiate the charges.

Student Affairs division officials say they don't know whether any other state-supported universities rely on nose evidence, but defend the practice at SIU.

Jane Langford, graduate assistant for discipline at Thompson Point, contends that if police took over the responsibility for enforcement of the law, students would be severely affected.

If the police take the responsibility, she explained, students would develop a crime record on the first offense in a semester. The student is usually given a warning, she said. The second offense during the same semester may cause a student to be placed on probation for the remainder of the semester.

Langford said defendants in most marijuana cases who confront the area judicial boards at Thompson Point are found guilty, although not all.

Will W. Travelstead, assistant dean of student life and coordinator of student discipline, said "it is not a foregone conclusion that a case is going to be judged guilty just on the smell."

"Many people assume that just because students are charged with alleged usage of marijuana, they are found guilty—and that is just not true." He said the "strength of the testimony" is one thing that can affect the judicial verdict.

C. Thomas Busch, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said he would like to see SIU adopt a policy that relies on either physical evidence or sufficient witnesses to substantiate the charges. He also suggests that University housing consider implementing "smoking wings" and non-smoking wings on each floor—not necessarily for marijuana users—because some persons dislike the smell of cigarette smoke.

Both Swinburne and Busch say they expect the Illinois legislature to act on the marijuana issue in one to three years.

Langford said if "nose evidence makes enough students unhappy, they should go through channels and come up with a viable alternative."

Two-day workshops on drug abuse slated

By Mary Whitler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two drug abuse workshops designed for law enforcement and social service agencies will focus on the current problems and directions of the drug situation in 15 Southern Illinois counties.

The workshops are sponsored by the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission and Youth Dynamics. They will be held separately. The workshop for law enforcement agencies will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, and the workshop for social service professionals will be held April 30 and May 1. Both will be conducted at the Marion Holiday Inn.

Topics for the workshop were developed by agencies involved in drug abuse prevention programs. They include Synergy, Hill House, Podana, and workshop participants.

Robert Child, drug education specialist for the development commission, said the workshop is the third such workshop sponsored by the commission. Regional conferences on the drug abuse problem were held in 1971 and 1974.

Child said there has been a gradual "moving away from alarm to a measured concern" as drug abuse problems have become better understood.

Child said subjects of possible concern to both groups include crisis intervention methods, agency cooperation and treatment and rehabilitation facilities.

The chief aim of the workshops is of an educational nature, Child said. The workshops are "basically an effort to meet the current need for information and definition of the situation in drug abuse prevention for the people most involved in that situation," he said.

Child said he hoped the workshops will "lay the ground work for increased cooperation between law enforcement and social service people."

Alcohol abuse will be discussed in both workshops, particularly in relationship to a new Illinois law, effective July 1, which will make it no longer a crime to be intoxicated in public.

Participants in the law enforcement workshop are police officers, county sheriffs, state's attorneys and representatives from Fellowship House, county mental health associations and the Government Employees Alcoholism Program.

OPEC's gall

The communique conected by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at the close of a high-level meeting said OPEC is willing to discuss "stabilization" of oil prices with industrial nations. But there are various fish-hooks attached to this offer.

To begin with, OPEC's notion of stabilization means linking the price of oil "to certain objective criteria, including the price of manufactured goods, rate of inflation and the terms of transfer of goods and technology for the development of OPEC member countries."

Also, the developing, so-called third world nations must be brought into any prospective international conference to discuss the use of raw materials in these countries. This has the sound of still more cartels.

Moreover, aid to developing nations and reform of the international monetary system should be on the agenda, OPEC has said.

Considering the complications and pitfalls, it's obvious that the United States and other industrial nations had better do their homework very carefully before getting involved in any such stacked-deck conference.

Further, there is a warning of "immediate and effective measures" against any threat of "economic or military" aggression by "any grouping of the consumer nations." That apparently means an embargo could be imposed for any plan or action OPEC chose to regard as "economic aggression," a vague, relative term.

Perhaps the ultimate irony is OPEC's expressed readiness to meet the essential requirements of the economies of the developed nations — provided these nations do not use artificial barriers to distort the normal operation of the laws of supply and demand.

Coming from the cartel that has effectively repealed the normal operation of the law of supply and demand in the oil business, that arch admonition is pure gall.

Pay now or later

The recurrent theme of mishandled campaign financing — particularly Watergate's — raises the question of whether public money should be used to finance political campaigns.

Why shouldn't public money—taxes—be used to pay for the campaigns of the people who will run our government? Tax money pays for nearly everything that is public. Our highways, sanitation facilities, police forces, public schools and universities are all paid for with taxes.

It is simple logic that says an investor expects a return on his investment. By the same logic it can be expected that a contributor to a political campaign expects a return on his investment also.

And what kinds of returns to the big contributors seek from their investments? Too often in recent years the returns have come in the forms of political favors, pro-monopolistic legislation, and unfair price supports.

If we are to remain a people who freely choose our leaders we must end the present system of privately financed political campaigns, and replace it with one which prohibits or severely restricts private contributions.

Some progress has been made but corrective legislation is still not free from gaping loopholes.

For example, in Congress Republicans and Democrats have their own re-election committees. The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 stated that all contributions to Congressional candidates had to be made public. However, anyone could give money to the respective Republican or Democratic Congressional Re-election Committee with the word on which candidate the money was to go to. And there was no law that said that the contributor, by taking this course, or the candidate had to say anything about where the money went or came from. Thus by giving a contribution to a committee the law was easily circumvented.

The present situation is like the television commercial where the service station owner says, "You can pay me now or you can pay me later."

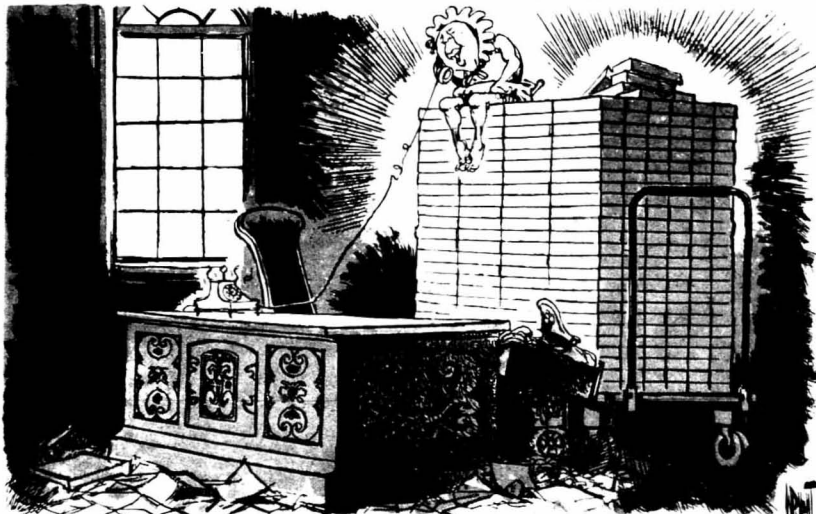

Citizens can either choose to finance campaigns for public office now or pay for them later in various forms of political corruption. We should urge our Congressmen to support campaign finance reform legislation now while we know what the cost is. Tomorrow the price may go up.

"HELLO? OPERATION BABY-LIFT? THIS IS LITTLE ORPHAN THIEF—I WANT TO BE EVACUATED ALONG WITH MY ONLY WORLDLY POSSESSIONS!"

By Gary Delsohn

Liberation is just a word the unliberated use

It's not only difficult being a liberated female—it's plenty damn hard to be a liberated male. In fact, liberation, in our society, is a grossly exaggerated and elusive ideal.

To attain liberation is to obtain freedom—to throw off chains of slavery and oppression, whether they are real or metaphorical. But, there is a question that all hopeful liberationists fail to ask, let alone answer, "How do we free ourselves from ourselves?"

It's the old adage, "We have met the enemy and he (she, it) is us."

First, to ward off those women working diligently to overcome the sexist, absurd, logic-lacking myths permeating our society, let me say that the Women's movement is legitimate and justified. (As if they need my approval.) Society is male dominated. Women are deprived of many things because men, the traditional leaders of western society, have determined where women are best suited. Motherhood and keeping house are among the places women belong. Those delineations are hogwash, oppressing not only the women bound by them but the men as well. The women's movement should not offend males as much as the stereotypical woman these myths have helped to produce. As Margaret Mead said, "Every time you free a woman, you free a man." And vice versa. We all need to free ourselves from the ridiculous and socially stifling myths we live under.

Men, on the other hand, while requiring liberation at least as urgently as women, have no significant movement. There are many male sympathizers to the women's struggle, but most men see the women's movement as a threat, a dangerous, but temporary phenomenon, carried on by a lunatic fringe that will die out as quickly as the latest summer fashion. Women, thankfully, will never be the same, at least those exposed to the movement, but the "threat" will fade as the immediate threat of racial holocaust faded in this nation with a few messiah like acts of legislation.

The typical person, thinking he or she is liberated, sits in front of the television set after a hard day of consciousness raising. He or she watches fairy tales the networks attempt to pawn off as "entertainment" and then laughs merrily as the "Right-Guard" commercial tells him or her it can keep him or her "extra dry." While laughing at the absurdity of such a claim, the typical viewer does not for a minute get the urge to troop into the bathroom and toss the deodorant out. Nor does the viewer, innocent, for sure, go out into the garage and blow up his or her car when she or he sees the sexy blonde sitting in the front seat of a shiny, new gas eating pig of a car on the TV screen, alluding to increased sexual pleasures with a purchase. The ad is ridiculous but, the chump still gets in his or her car the next morning as he or she, prepares for another nine-to-five, punch-a-clock day.

None of us are liberated, nor will we ever be as long as we listen to the commercial madness of the advertising industry and continue to live our lives in fear of smelling bad, having bad breath or having dishes that shine. To know the truth (which we really do not) and to live it are two different things. If we were really liberated we would not be involved in this mess, we would be living in the woods, naked. We would not need to tell everyone we are liberated. Liberation is a private battle. While the women's movement is attempting to spread the word, we must know that when it comes, "The revolution will not be televised." To free ourselves from reality seems quite impossible. Liberation is as silly as the "White Knight."

Safety signs needed at Faner

Seventy years from now, it will probably be called an architectural wonder. Today, Faner Building is little more than an eyesore and a safety hazard. Not much can be done about its plotless labyrinth design (except live with it), but something must be done about its danger to life and limb.

A caution sign is needed to warn westbound bicyclists and wheelchair students that what appears to be a ramp on the north underpass to Faner is actually a stairway.

Traveling from the "old campus" to central campus (in front of Morris Library) on a bike or a wheelchair, the north underpass looks similar to the south underpass, which is a ramp. Looks can be deceiving, though, and Faner is surprisingly no different. Zooming through the north underpass and over several slight steps can play havoc with one's ability to control a bicycle. That is a fact to which Milton Altschuler, associate professor in the Department of Anthropology, can attest.

Altschuler was unaware that the north underpass was not a ramp, like its sister underpass to the south. Consequently, when he and his bike went over the steps like a jumping bean, he went over the bike—seriously injuring his shoulder. Altschuler said he has no complaints about his office inside Faner, but as he described his accident, looking over his shoulder at the concrete hulk that looks like a fallen stone phallus, his eyes seethed with rage. A building, particularly an ugly one, cannot be permitted to prompt anger like that.

More importantly, a building cannot be permitted to cause personal injury like that. A warning sign is needed: "Caution, this is NOT a ramp."

The movie's good, but it stars idiots

By Arthur Hoppe

Walt Rostow, President Johnson's top adviser, is suing the producers of "Hearts and Minds," the new Vietnam War documentary, for causing "irreparable damage" to his image.

So, in the interests of justice, I went to see the picture. And he's absolutely right. It makes him look like an idiot.

"Hearts and Minds" is the most powerful propaganda film I ever saw. For the most part the audience sat stunned at the carnage we wrought in that little Asian country. But the movie has its light moments.

The first came when Mr. Rostow was asked how we got into the war in the first place. "Because they were subjected to a military attack from the outside," he snapped irritably. "Are you really asking me this God damn silly question?" I didn't really expect to have to go back to this kind of sophomoric stuff, but I'll do it.

Having explained that the Vietnamese inside Vietnam were attacked by the Vietnamese outside Vietnam, Mr. Rostow came on later to say that, all in all, it was a swell little war in retrospect and we were "generally right" to have expended $100 billion and 55,000 American lives so the Vietnamese could go on fighting each other without us.

(Oddly enough, Mr. Rostow doesn't think this latter statement makes him look like an idiot at all. But let's not get into that.)

I can certainly understand, however, why Mr. Rostow sued. What I can't understand is why all our other leaders in the film didn't. General Westmoreland, for instance, has an air-tight case.

First, there's a moving and beautifully-photographed funeral of a Vietnamese soldier. The wailing widow attempts to throw herself into the grave and the young son sprawls across the coffin, clutching his father's picture and sobbing uncontrollably.

We cut to General Westmoreland, wearing a seersucker jacket and tasteful tie, standing in a sylvan glade. "The Oriental," he explains patiently, "doesn't put the same high price on life as does a

"BECAUSE WE'RE FIGHTING COMMUNISM IN INDOCHINA, THAT'S WHY!"

Westerner. Life is plentiful, life is cheap in the Orient. And as the philosophy of life expresses it, life is not important.

If that doesn't make the General look like an idiot, what does? He also insisted they film him making that statement twice, to be sure the world got it right, but let's not go into that, either.

Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson assuredly have cases for their talk of dominoes, tunnels and, in Mr. Johnson's case, how we have to win "the hearts and minds" of the people by bombing the bejabbers out of them. And Mr. Nixon should collect a fortune for the scene depicting him in a white dinner jacket at a White House gala glowingly accepting applause for his Christmas bombing of Hanoi—followed by shots of the ruins of Bach Mai Hospital.

So I'm all on Mr. Rostow's side. The film makes him and our other leaders involved unquestionably look like idiots. All they have to do to collect is prove malice.

They can merely cite the old adage of us newspapermen: "If you really want to get even with some S.O.B. politician," we say maliciously, "quote him accurately."

Announcing the truth

To the Daily Egyptian:

I hesitate to write a letter to the editor, but after reading the lies in Friday's (April 11) editorial concerning the student trustee candidates, I feel the truth must be announced.

Why did the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board endorse this editorial. I have talked to some of the members and they don't agree with its contents—is it the view of one person? Why does the Daily Egyptian give such coverage to city

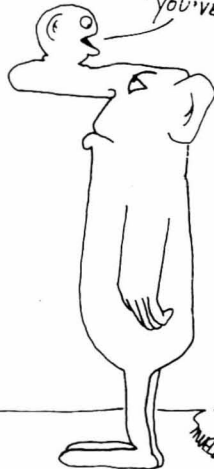

Ferguson stated that if elected he would represent the students—not the administration, be honest, stand up as a spokesman for all students, establish more student jobs and develop more graduate internships and teacher assistantships.

You also failed to mention that Ferguson has nine years of student government experience, served as student senator and has had a good working relationship with past student government presidents and the SIU administration.

I don't think you will have the nerve to print this rebuttal in its entirety, or at all. Daily Egyptian Board, when are you going to get it together?

YOU'VE GOT."

elections and little or none to the candidates in the student government elections? Isn't the DE a campus paper and a mirror of the student population, or has it ignored us and become another community newspaper? I am sure Gus Bode would join the staff of the Southern Illinoisian if he was aware of the Daily Egyptian's editorial policy. Did Rusty Lightle pay the Daily Egyptian to endorse him—what's the scoop?

In your editorial, you failed to mention the purpose of the student trustee on the Board of Trustees. During my term as student senator, the student trustee referendum was passed. The primary purpose of a student representative on the board is to be a spokesman for all SIU-C students. I guess I overlooked the fact that several Daily Egyptian writers have a tendency to write their personal opinions, without research—as a result their articles are one-sided. That was definitely true in the student trustee editorial.

Now, let's look at some of the lies you made. 1) Len Swanson did mention in his platform the need for a student vote on the board but he also mentioned that he wanted to see an increase in student work jobs. 2) You failed to mention that Forest Lightle (Daily Egyptian's choice in its April 11 editorial) was not supported by the student body president even though he is his executive assistant. 3) You barely mentioned Gary Ferguson, another candidate, because you have not talked to him but had to rely on hearsay.

To the Daily Egyptian:

I've watched with growing dismay as the staff of the Daily Egyptian displayed its ignorance and immaturity by its recent forays into politics. Your editorials on the local City Council races (of April 11 and 12) and especially Bob Springer's column on the race (published April 11) finally moved me to write my first letter to your paper. Okay, so you didn't endorse my candidate, I've tolerated in silence such short-sightedness from far better newspapers than the Daily Egyptian. However, my basic contention is that if you don't know anything about local politics, aren't willing to learn, and have no capacity for political analysis, you should just refrain from commenting.

Two specific rebuttals of your position and analysis of the City Council race will have to suffice: (1) In Springer's article, he suggests that Dakin is somehow out of favor with and distrusted by the residents of the Southwest. This contention is clearly belied by the fact that Dakin ran first in all the precincts in the Southwest in the primary. (Have you ever heard of looking at the election results as a mode of political analysis?) (2) Springer says that journalists are supposed to engage in something a cut above the speculation indulged by the politicians. Yet his own column is nothing more than reporting of second-hand gossip, and he says he got it from some unnamed "sources," and he professes to know or care little about it all himself. Springer's elaborate story of how the "Southwest" decided to "dump" Vineyard to support Westberg is sheer nonsense based on a conspiracy theory where unknown manipulators "decide" for the whole Southwest. In reality, of course, a lot of individual voters in that section of town made up their minds to vote based on a diverse set of reasons. The problem with conspiracy theories is that they are so simple, and that's why they appeal to the simple-minded. Finally, on your superficial editorial regarding the mayor's race, if you couldn't perceive significant differences in the candidates, why bother with the editorial?

I realize the Daily Egyptian is supposed to be a laboratory paper, and you're supposed to be learning by doing; however, you should remember that the word "labor" is subsumed in the concept of "laboratory." So far, your efforts in politics have been marked by dilettantism. There's an old saw which holds that, "it's better to keep quiet and make people wonder if you're ignorant than to open your mouth and remove all doubt."

Letters to the Daily Egyptian

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Writers are requested to be considered in the event the subject has a time element to bring letters to the Daily Egyptian newsroom as early in the day as possible. The editors reserve the right to choose letters to permit a larger variety of opinions to be printed. Minor typographical and grammatical errors, and to edit out material that is considered libelous, are in bad taste. Letters should be typed double-spaced and accompanied by the full address and signature of the author.

SIU hosts cultural exchange choir

The Winston-Salem State University Choir will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom D of the Student Center. The choir's appearance is part of an educational and cultural exchange between Winston-Salem State University and SIU. This will mark the choir's third appearance at SIU. As part of the exchange, SIU's Southern Singers have also visited the Winston-Salem campus in North Carolina. The SIU University Choir, Male Glee Club, University Chorus and Southern Singers will act as host for the event and will provide housing for the 48 visiting singers.

The group's program will include works by classical composers Gallus, Morales and Haydn, and contemporary composer Zimmerman. Spirituals and gospel music will round out the program.

The public is invited to attend and admission is free.

Tuesday afternoon concert to feature visiting musicians

A guest artist recital featuring violinist Joel Lipton and pianist Gregory Davis will be held at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

The recital will begin with a performance of Vivaldi's "Sonata in No. 1 in B-flat Major," to be followed by L. Beethoven's "Seven Variations" on a duet from Mozart's opera, "The Magic Flute." R

Vaughn Williams' "Ballad and Moltu Perpetuo" will end the first half of the recital.

Following an intermission, Lipton and Davis will perform E. Bloch's "Meditation and Processional" and J. Brahms' "Sonata No. 2, Op. 120 in E-flat Major."

The recital, sponsored by the Graduate Student Council Speaker's Bureau and the School of Music, is free and open to the public.

Art exhibition features work of undergraduate "Retrospective Colorworks," an art exhibit by undergraduate student Linda Srch, will be on display in the Gallery Lounge of the Student Center through Friday.

The exhibit consists of a progression of drawings and paintings that the artist has been preparing since 1968.

Starship's take-off not yet sold out

The Jefferson Starship, along with Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen will be taking off from the SIU Arena at 8 p.m. Wednesday as scheduled, and there is still a chance to climb aboard.

Despite alleged rumors that the show is sold out Arena Manager, Dean Justice, said "there are still several thousand seats left in all except the top price range." There are $5 and $6 tickets available to the general public, and $5 and $5.50 tickets available to SIU students.

Slick, Paul Kantner and Papa John Creach, well known for a history of outrageous live performances as the Jefferson Airplane, are featured members of the Starship band.

They formed the Starship at the end of 1970 as an offshoot of the Airplane and in the beginning were only a recording band featuring people like Jerry Garcia and Bobby Weir on their first album "Blows against the Empire." Other albums released since then have been "Sunfighter" and "Dragon Fly," which contains the single "Ride the Tiger."

Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen will be appearing as guests of the Starship. The eight piece band's personnel varies greatly as to musical and personal backgrounds, but their sound is characterized as country rock and roll.

Their early albums such as "Lost Planet Airmen," and "Country Casanova" had the songs "Hot Rod Lincoln" and "Smoke, Smoke, Smoke (That Cigarette)" on them. The group's most recently released album is titled "Lost in the Ozone."

Remaining tickets for the concert are on sale at the SIU Student Center Ticket Office, Penney's in Carbondale, Tempo and Boatright Electronics in Marion, Sears in Cape Girardeau and Mt. Vernon and Gatlin's in Paducah.

Dance-a-thon set Friday

East Campus is going to rock around the clock this weekend. The East Campus Programing Board is sponsoring a "Dance-a-thon." It will start with another event, Mae Smith's Patio Party, Friday at 7 p.m.

The Patio Party features the music of the T Hart Duo, and will end at 10 p.m. At that time, the "Dance-a-thon" will be moved to the Grinnell Hall basement.

The contest will continue through Saturday, and prizes will be awarded to the last three couples still dancing Saturday night.

Foreign student tour plans available

The SIU Office of International Student and Faculty Affairs is urging foreign students planning summer trips to consult with the office regarding plans, expenses and other arrangements.

"Proper arrangements not only save a lot of trouble and money, but also enable foreign students to meet more people and see more of America," said Melinda Isom, a graduate assistant in the office.

Isom said some summer travel programs, like the YMCA program "VISIT", are helpful. Students plan their itinerary and the YMCA helps them establish contact points. The program provides for housing, sightseeing and social events through community organizations.

The Institute of International Education offers a one-week intensive discussion and visit program called "Crossroads." Limited to graduating foreign students, sessions will be held in San Diego and Colorado Springs, Colo.

Further information is available from the Office of International Student and Faculty Affairs at Woody Hall "C".

Free workshops set in vocational education

The Illinois Vocational Association, in cooperation with SIU's Division of Vocational and Technical Education, will offer several workshops April 24 through 27 in Springfield.

The free workshops are titled "Cooperative Occupational Education for the New Coordinator" and "Career Guidance Activities." Up to two semester hours of University credit are offered to workshop participants. Those desiring credit will be required to attend a minimum of six contact hours in one or more of the workshops, and make arrangements to complete the course requirements of the University.

Each workshop will be limited to Geology talks set this week

Three lectures dealing with geology and ecology are scheduled this week by the Geology Department in conjunction with the Graduate Student Council Speaker's Bureau.

Dr. James Brice, chairman of the Department of Earth Sciences at Washington University, St. Louis, will speak at 4 p.m. Tuesday at Browne Auditorium in Parkinson Laboratory. Brice's topic will be "Alaskan Rivers and the Alaskan Pipeline."

Dr. Paul E. Potter of the H.N. Fisk Laboratory of Seismology at the University of Cincinnati will offer two lectures "Big River Sands: Their Petrology and Origin" is set for 2 p.m. Thursday in Room 204 of Parkinson Laboratory. "Clay Mineralogy of Alluvial Muds of the Mississippi River Basin" is scheduled at noon Friday in the same location.

Marketing group to meet Thursday

Members of the American Marketing Association will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Ohio Room.

Bifocal or single vision contact lenses can be fitted now with the aid of a computer. Bifocal lens has no segment or line to distort the vision and looks like a single vision lens.

With the use of a PhotoElectric Keratometer, called PE-Mark, III, a photograph of the eye is made. The photo, along with the prescription is sent to the Visual Data Center in Chicago where they are put into a computer. The computer calculates the structure, size, tear layer and the RX required.

The advantage of the lens is usually more comfort and longer initial wearing time.

'Creative Living and Learning' subject of experimental course

By Rochelle Ogreshok
Student Writer

An experimental education course will be offered next fall to aid college students in exploring alternative life and learning styles, and in learning how people cope with the stress and joys of life.

The course, 465a, "Creative Living and Learning"—will be taught by Dormalie Lindberg, associate professor in the Department of Education.

The course will be aimed at human beings, not freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors or graduate students, Lindberg said. It is designed to aid the college student in becoming more aware of his or her creative potential and the means of developing it, she explained.

The relationship between relating to people and surroundings and happiness or satisfaction in life will be explored, together with how these factors affect educational life, she said.

To help students learn how successful, happy people cope with their opportunities and problems and live and learn creatively in their daily lives, guests will share their philosophies of life and life styles, Lindberg said. A variety of media and materials will also be utilized.

"Creative Living and Learning" offers one credit hour, and will be held at noon Tuesday in Lawson Hall 171. The course will be offered pass-fail.

Teacher sets metaphor talk for Tuesday

James Luther Adams, professor of Theology and Religious Ethics at the University of Chicago, will speak on "Root Metaphors in Religious Social Thought" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Adams, a Scholar-in-Residence at Meadville-Lombard Theological School, is a former chairman of the Social Ethics department at the Divinity School of Harvard University.

Adams is the principal translator of the works of German theologian Paul Tillich. A political activist, he is the founder of the Independent Voters of Illinois.

The public lecture is sponsored by the SIU Departments of Religious Studies and Sociology.

Debate on oil sets editor against prof

The associate editor of the International Socialist Review will square off Tuesday in a debate over the politics of oil with a member of the SIU Economics Department.

Dick Roberts, a marxist economist and author of the forthcoming book, "The Economics of U.S. Imperialism," will debate with Charles Salton, associate professor of economics at SIU.

Both will address the question, "Can capitalism solve the crisis of energy, inflation and recession?"

The debate, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium, is free and open to the public.

Adviser, officer workshop slated for student clubs

A workshop for advisors and officers of recognized student organizations will be held Tuesday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

The workshop is scheduled for two sessions, from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Participants should attend either one of the sessions.

Topics to be discussed include purchasing and disbursement procedures and policies, scheduling and use of university facilities and services and musical and speaker contracts.

Fashion careers subject of talks

Joy Ruffin, traveling representative for the Butterick Pattern Co., will speak at SIU at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Home Economics 208 and at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Home Economics Lounge. She will speak on career opportunities in the fashion field.

Liberal arts, technical careers merge

While this age of specialization has yet to produce an urgent need for mechanics who recognize iambic pentameter or poets who can recite from the General Motors parts catalog, SIU isn't overlooking students who have wide-ranging skills and interests.

In fact, SIU has established an academic program which caters directly to those liberal arts and vocational students who have a broader-than-average spectrum of interests. It's called LibTech and it's a cooperative undertaking of the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Technical Careers.

LibTech lets students in any of the 14 liberal arts departments take minors in just about any of the 19 programs in technical careers. Baccalaureate students in technical careers can take minors in any one, or a combination, of the liberal arts.

"It's a marriage of liberal arts and technical careers that allows you to study Plato and carburetors," said Dean Lon Shelby of the College of Liberal Arts.

While an occasional "Plato" may have elected to take a course or two in carburetors, formal recognition of the combination is something new, said Arden L. Pratt, dean of the School of Technical Careers.

STC has come up with "mini-packages"—concentrations of programs ranging from automotive to tool and manufacturing technology designed to give the liberal arts student supplementary career preparation. For example, this could be a real boon to the foreign language major who wants to acquire secretarial skills that might lead to alternate job possibilities. On the other hand, a secretarial major can greatly increase employment prospects with a language minor.

The STC baccalaureate program itself is rather unique in higher education. Designed for occupationally-oriented students, it is highly individualized and permits students to work out their own educational packages from all the offerings of the University.

NOTICE TO STUDENTS

Below is a list of Classes for Summer and Fall semesters which have been cancelled or have had a day and time change.

If you are enrolled in a cancelled class it is possible that an alternative section of the same course is offered that will fit into your schedule. If this is the case, you may make a section change at the Registration Center without seeing an adviser. If there are no alternative sections and you must enroll in a different course, you must see your adviser.

If you are enrolled in a class which has a day or time change you should determine if the change will cause a conflict in your schedule. If so, you may make a section change at the Registration Center or add a different course by seeing your adviser.

If you have any other questions feel free to come in or call the Registration Center at 453-4381, ext. 46.

Get it together at Burger King[®] and win $20.00

Come play the new Have-it-your-way game at Burger King[®]. Win free drinks, free fries, and cash prizes.

It's great fun. All you do is ask for your free game card -- every time you come in. Then wash off the black bar at the bottom and see if you're a winner. (What's more, in our game, your chances are terrific -- there'll be 2,025 winners in this area alone!)

Four easy ways to win:

1. If your card has a picture of The Burger King under the bar, you win a free soft drink. Instantly.
2. If your card has the Burger

King name under the bar, you win a free order of french fries. Instantly.

3. If you collect the whole phrase "Have it your way", you win $5.

4. If you collect "Have it your way" and the word "your" is in all capital letters, you win a whopping $20.

Limit one card per customer per visit. Come in as many times as you like. You don't even have to buy anything. Just have fun. And win, win, win.

Here are your odds of winning at any Burger King restaurant:

	Odds	Number in each store
$20 prize	1 in 8,000	5
$5 prize	1 in 2,000	20
French Fries (instant winner)	1 in 40	1,000
Soft drink (instant winner)	1 in 40	1,000

Highly trained, highly qualified, and highly dedicated missile officers in the Air Force. Getting down to the vital business of keeping America alert. This is a specialized field available to a few very special men.

You can prepare to enter this exciting field by enrolling in an Air Force ROTC program. Four-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs leading to a commission of an Air Force officer. There are scholarships available, plus $100 monthly allowances. And after college, an Air Force opportunity for a challenging job and with paid-for graduate educational degrees.

If you're the type of a guy who wants to plant your feet on a solid foundation, look into the Air Force ROTC programs and look ahead to becoming a missile launch officer in the Air Force.

Get all the details... no obligation, of course.

Road rally attracts 18

By Ken Temkin
Student Writer

Battling speed limits and time schedules, rally teams from as far away as Chicago challenged their machines and wits in the Grand

Tourney set

A 16-team coed volleyball tournament will be held Sunday at Evergreen Park, starting at 1 p.m. Donations are $10 per team, with proceeds going to the Special Olympics. Money and team rosters must be turned in at the Carbondale Park District, 206 W. Elm, by 5 p.m. Thursday.

Teams should be at the park between noon and 12:30 p.m. A consolation bracket will be held, with trophies going to the first and second place teams and the consolation winner.

Refreshments will be on sale throughout the day.

For further details, call the Park District at 457-8370 or 457-2925.

Trio triumphs

Women's intramurals crowned three champions in its annual Bike Day competition. There were two divisions, ten-speed and one-to-five speed bicycles, with women competing in three events—obstacle course, coasting contest and riding on a two-by-four.

In the ten-speed division, Kathie Andrews and Lee Huisingh tied for first riding on the two-by-four, with Andrews winning the obstacle course competition and Huisingh the coasting contest.

Diane Ellison won all three events in the one-to-five-speed division.

Touring Auto Club's annual "Ides of April II Rally."

Eighteen cars attempted the grueling 200-mile course, which led them through much of Southern Illinois and Missouri.

A rally is a race over a prescribed course which must be completed in a specified period of time.

By using an odometer and suggested rally speeds given to the contestants by the organizers, participants are able to determine if they are maintaining their correct time schedule.

Entrants who complete the course faster than time allowed are penalized equally to those who maintain to slow a speed.

A rally team consists of two persons—a driver, who is solely responsible for driving, and a navigator, who is responsible for following directions and for keeping the team on its proper time schedule.

The rally got off to a smooth start at 9:30 Sunday morning, with cars leaving the Arena parking lot at one minute intervals.

Using directions which are never specific enough for anyone's satisfaction, the rallyists attempted to follow the zig-zag course which led them through the distracting, beautiful rural midwest.

The first 12.41 miles of the rally course was an odometer check, from which contestants could determine the accuracy of their car's odometer.

At four points along the route, rallyists were checked to determine how closely they were keeping to their time schedule.

For each second a contestant was either delinquent or too fast, one point was added to his score. The team finishing the rally with the lowest number of points won the rally.

An experienced rally team from St. Louis managed to arrive at the finish line in its shining Lotus Elan with just 27 points against them.

Women split four games

By Martha Sanford
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU women's softball team lives by the philosophy of "You win some and you lose some," and after a weekend of play, the women had won two and lost two.

Saturday morning the weekend was off to a good start when the SIU diamondwomen downed Indiana by a rousing 18-8.

SIU kicked off the scoring with one run in the first inning. Indiana then jumped in with three runs in the second and third, but this came nowhere near the nine runs the Salukis scored in the second inning.

Indiana managed to pound away one additional run in both the fourth and fifth, while the Salukis matched their one in the fourth and followed with four in the fifth and three in the sixth.

SIU fourth

The SIU women's track team has yet to win a meet, but the team members continue to break standing SIU records and their fourth place finish at Illinois still brought home five new times.

In the 400-yard hurdles, Carolyn Bucco took first in her heat with a new SIU time of 1:13.9. She then placed second in the finals with a time of 1:13.00. Bucco also placed second in the 100-meter hurdles, again with a new SIU record of :16.1, followed by Nancy Barkman of SIU in fourth-mile run, but her 5:38.2 time set another new record for the Salukis, as did Grace Lloyd, who placed sixth in the 220 finals with a time of :27.5. Marilyn Porter also set a new record in the 100 trials with a time of :12.1, but did not place in the finals.

Coach Claudia Blackman was nonetheless pleased with the team's performance. She said, "considering the wind, rain and hail in which the team ran."

Golfers beaten by Redbirds

After cancelling the scheduled Friday match due to the afternoon thunderstorm, the women's golf team met Illinois State in a dual match Saturday only to lose 347-386 in 18 holes of play.

"The scores were high mainly because of the 40 mile-an-hour winds," said coach Sandra Blaha.

Debbie Johnson from ISU was the individual medalist with an 82. For SIU, Sarah McCree was the low scoring woman with 90 strokes, followed by Sue Hinrichsen, 92, Kim Birch, 96, and Peggy O'Connell, 106.

The Salukis will be hurt the rest of the season by the loss of Birch after the match. According to Blaha, Birch threw her back out during the match and was hospitalized Saturday night. She will be out for the rest of the season.

Next weekend the golf team will play in the ISU invitational with four other schools.

Jan Winkler hit a home run for the Salukis.

Then, after seeing Evansville play Indiana, coach Kay Brechtelsbauer decided to let the second team play the U of E to make the competition a little more even.

But even at that, the second team defeated Evansville, 24-12.

"The scoring and hitting was pretty even," said Brechtelsbauer, "with seven women getting two hits each, highlighted by home runs hit by Margie Nighsonger, Marty Ferry and Jo Greenhoe."

Sunday the first team met Western Illinois, last year's second place team in the state, in a double-header, losing 6-1 and 9-6.

The Salukis' only run in the first game came in the first inning when Marla Julian hit a single, and was safe at second on a wild pitch. Winkler then walked, and Vicki King singled to drive in the run.

The Salukis threatened in the seventh with the bases loaded and one out, but were unable to score.

The second game got under way looking much like a re-run of the first game, when WIU scored two runs in the first and second innings. But the Salukis rallied and scored six in the second, three on a triple by Julian.

Western then scored one run in the third and four in the fifth, and the Salukis were unable to make a comeback.

"We knew they were a strong team last year," said Brechtelsbauer, "and this year, they're even stronger."

Tuesday afternoon the women play Southeast Missouri State on the Wham Field.

Saluki nine battered around Netters fall

What started out as a promising weekend for the SIU nine ended in disaster.

After romping to a 20-4 win Friday at Indiana State, the Salukis found the going tougher Saturday, losing the opener of a twinbill to the Sycamores, 8-6, before winning the nightcap, 13-4.

Sunday, things just kept getting worse, as the Salukis fell twice to SIU-Edwardsville, 8-5 and 3-1.

Saturday's doubleheader got off to a bright start when Frank Hunsaker's three-run homer put the Salukis on top in the first, but the lead didn't last very long.

The Sycamores came right back with three of their own in their half of the first. Bill Pierce started things off with a home run. After two were out, Randy Ferko singled and Rick Parker brought him around the second home run of the inning.

SIU added single runs in the second and fourth innings. Indiana State scored once in the third, but in the fifth the Sycamores erupted for four big runs to put the game away.

Dennis Akers led off with a single and cleanup hitter Ferko walked. Parker then connected for his second home run of the game. The Sycamores added one more insurance run.

The Salukis had two men on in the seventh with a chance of tying the game, but they couldn't get them across.

The second game went much like the first game of the series. Steve Shartzler led the way with four hits and five RBIs. Bert Newman, John Hoscheidt, and Jim Locascio each had three hits.

The Salukis' big inning was the fourth, when they scored five times. Singles by Shartzler and Hunsaker and Hoscheidt's sacrifice fly to right scored one. After Vuckovich walked, Locascio doubled them home.

SIU added one more as Dan Herbst walked and Newman singled him to third. The Sycamore pitcher then balked, allowing pinch runner Jim Reeves to score.

Senior righthander Ron Hodges, who replaced starter Dewey Robinson, got the win. Hodges shut out the Sycamores after they reached Robinson for four runs in the first.

On Sunday, the roof caved in on the Salukis, as a fired-up SIU-Edwardsville Cougar ballclub pounded out the two wins over its sister school.

In the first game, the Salukis edged ahead with a 4-2 lead. The Cougars rallied though, jumping on Saluki starter Jim Adkins for four runs.

Saluki coach Itchy Jones said, "We had to stick with our pitchers too long. Our staff was pretty used up."

The fateful inning started when centerfielder Hoscheidt lost Cougar left-fielder Jim Dohr's fly ball in the sun for a two-base error. Two walks, a double by shortstop Dave Shaake and a fielder's choice brought the runs home.

The Salukis had the bases loaded in the seventh with one out, but Cougar relief pitcher Mike Falzarano got Vuckovich to fly to short left and Locascio's fly to right was snagged to end the game.

The second contest pitted Cougar ace Nick Baltz against Saluki veteran Rob Derry. The 6-foot-6 Cougar righthander came out on top, holding the Salukis to just five hits.

The Cougars scored what proved to be the winning runs in the third as Shaake reached first on an error by Derry, John Urban and leadoff hitter Tim Twellman followed with doubles, which accounted for two runs. Cougar cleanup hitter Mike Brown added a solo home run in the fourth to cap the scoring.

The Salukis scored their only run in the sixth, when Newman scored on Steve Shartzler's single.

The Salukis were plagued by the same old story, lack of clutch hitting and shaky pitching in crucial situations. Even though the weekend was very disappointing, Coach Jones still remains optimistic about his ballclub.

"When we get the four aspects of the game—defense, hitting, pitching, and base running—together," Jones said, "We'll be as tough as anyone in the country."

Winning one and losing two, the SIU tennis squad nearly evened its season record which now stands at 9-8. Friday afternoon, the Salukis and Missouri match was played at the Southern Illinois Racquet Club due to inclement weather. The Tigers won, 5-4.

Saturday morning and afternoon on the SIU tennis courts, the Salukis beat Memphis State and lost to Oklahoma City by identical scores of 5-4.

Tracksters win sprint relay

Hartzog gets more than he bargained for

By Dave Wiecezorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

He wasn't expecting much before he went to the Kansas Relays over the weekend, but when it was all over, SIU track coach Lew Hartzog got more than he had bargained for.

The Salukis took only a small contingent to the 50th running of the relays, but came away with some performances that Hartzog couldn't have been prouder of.

First of all, decathlon man Bill Hancock came up with the best performance in that competition in the world this year with his total of 7,978. That was the second highest total in the history of the Kansas Relays. Hancock won five of the 10 events, with several lifetime best performances.

A bigger surprise than Hancock's victory was the third place finish of the sprint medley relay team of Joe Laws, Earl Bigelow, Lonnie Brown and Gary Mandehr.

"It was really a surprise, I didn't even expect the relay to qualify," Hartzog said Monday morning.

"Brown ran just a fantastic race and Mandehr did a great job, contrary to other reports. He did a good job holding his position and ran a 1:52.880 (yard run)."

Brown's time for the 440-yard portion of the race, :46.4, was even more incredible considering the wind and wet track.

The relay team might have finished in second, but lost valuable time on two poor handoffs.

"We didn't have any business messing up those handoffs," Hartzog admitted. "Laws, Bigelow and Brown are the first three guys on the 440 and 880-yard relays so they've had plenty of practice. But it was still a surprise that we finished third."

After awhile, Hartzog gets caught up in his words concerning the performances of Hancock, and he just says "fantastic."

"We think Bill is going to have a great year," Hartzog predicted. "He came through in his weak events in the decathlon, the quarter mile, 1,500 meters and the javelin. And I think he did an outstanding job coming back Friday and Saturday."

"This is the most exciting thing that has happened to me since Ivory (Crockett) or George Woods," Hartzog said. Crockett and Woods are former athletes of Hartzog and are world record holders in the 100-yard dash and indoor shot put, respectively.

Hancock competed in the decathlon on Wednesday and Thursday and then in the high jump and long jump during regular meet competition on Friday and Saturday. He finished sixth in both events, with a 6-foot-10 effort in the high jump and a 24-11 leap in the long jump.

Another bright spot for SIU that seems to shine brighter every meet, is the javelin tossing of freshman Bob Roggy. Starting the year, Roggy's best effort was 203 feet. He has increased that every meet and, at Kansas, threw the spear 224-11, just under six feet short of the record.

"He's a real jewel for what we got him for," Hartzog commented about Roggy, one of his prized athletes. He explained that he had communicated with Roggy only through mail and that's how he was signed to SIU.

A couple of disappointing events for the Salukis were the intermediate hurdles and high hurdles. George Haley and Brown failed to qualify for the finals in their respective events.

"There's no real problem with Haley," Hartzog said. "He had the flu a couple of days, and I think he pushed himself too hard early last week. I'm going to rest him a couple days this week so he can get back to full strength."

"Brown was hooked three times by the guy in the lane next to him, that's why he didn't run well."

Hartzog said the man next to Brown unintentionally hooked him with his foot as they were going over the hurdle.

Hartzog has several athletes that are not at full strength, so he did not know for sure how many guys would go to the Drake Relays this coming weekend. He has decided to rest several guys with minor injuries, so as not to hurt anyone's chances for the biggest part of the season.

"My concern right now is for three things that are of major importance," he said. "First, are the Illinois Intercollegiate, May 9 and 10. Second is the Missouri Valley Conference championship, (May 19 and 20).

"I think this will probably be the first SIU team to compete for a championship in the Valley and I don't want to take any chances of not winning it," he added.

"Third, is the NCAA. We will take everyone to that meet who qualifies.
