Bush makes election comeback in Pennsylvania GOP primary

This weekend may be the last time Carbondale bars will be allowed extended closing hours if some City Council members have their way.

The Council voted 5-2 Monday night to extend bars until 6 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday for Kappa Karnival.

However, the Council will discuss refusing to grant future requests at the informal council meeting May 12.

Councilman Archie Jones moved to deny the Kappa Karnival Committee's request to extend the closing hours, and Councilwoman Helen Westberg said if a group's request was granted in the past, it would not be allowed to extend (the privilege) to any organization, Jones said. Watkins agreed, saying he would not support this request and would not support any other such request.

Mayor Hans Fischer said, "It might be assumed to be arbitrary and capricious to deny this. We should probably, at this time, think of adopting a policy of not allowing any extensions."

The mayor said it would be better to have a more particular request, "in fairness to the people in the community who have expected this."

Councilwoman Helen Westberg said if a group's request was granted in the past, it would unfair to tell members one week before the event that the hour extension would not be granted this year. "We have to let people know what the decision is (on extended hours) so that they know in advance," Westberg said.

Police Chief Ed Hogan originally said he opposed any such request because he thought that council members said in previous discussions that granting the extensions would be discontinued. "Someone along the line, at one time or another, some type of consistency must be met. I think that perhaps now is the time to have that consistency," Hogan said.

However, the council granted bar hour extensions for Halloween, an ordinance was adopted to allow that privilege.

City may stop granting late bar hours

Allies to pull diplomats from Iran

By The Associated Press

America's European allies on Tuesday ordered immediate reduction in their diplomatic staffs in Iran and said they would impose economic sanctions unless "decisive progress" is made by mid-May toward freeing the American hostages in Tehran.

Iran, in turn, threatened to stop oil exports to countries that join the U.S. sanctions and took steps to move closer to the Soviet bloc.

The European allies also ordered an arms embargo against Iran immediately. They said they would send their ambassadors back to Tehran to urge the Iranian government to free the 52 hostages held since Nov. 4.

Although the House approved the registration plan, it would take further congressional action to institute an actual draft.

The Senate has not scheduled a vote on the proposal, but Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., has vowed to try to filibuster it to death.

City Council members think there are more things to do in Carbondale than drink.

At the Liquor Control Commission meeting Monday night, council members criticized a survey which concluded that Carbondale has more bars per capita than many Illinois cities.

One council member said the survey "didn't seem fair". Jack Kozlowski, associate professor of psychology, conducted the survey for the Alcohol Education Project. The survey compared the number of liquor licenses per 1,000 adults in Anna, Bloomington, Carbondale, Champaign, Decatur, Marion, Normal, Murphyboro and Peoria. The measure would pass. The final vote, taken after reconsideration of several amendments, was 218-180, closer than White House officials had expected.

Bill to aid Agriculture School filed

By Conrad Sturm

Staff Writer

Representative Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, has filed a bill in the General Assembly that will give the SIU-C School of Agriculture $2,951,200 to replace outdated food production and research facilities.

The bill will be reviewed by House Appropriations Committee Wednesday.

According to Gilbert Kroening, dean of the School of Agriculture, the funds will be used to build new animal shelters and meat production and finishing facilities.

"Most of our facilities came to us in the '50s when the agriculture department obtained school status," Kroening said. "But now, some of our facilities are so old, they have exceeded their life expectancy.

Gov. James Thompson has already excluded the money for the improvements from his higher education capital developments recommendations for the fiscal year 1981 budget.

However, Thompson's recommendations include more than $4 million for purchase equipment for the University of Illinois' veterinary medicine, basic science building and its research center, and $17,000 for an agriculture laboratory at Illinois State University.

Keith Sanders, SIU-C governmental relations officer, said this is "absolutely unfair. We have a fine school of agriculture. Our Food For Century III projects are just as worthy as the University of Illinois'.

Food For Century III is a program the University of Illinois started in 1976 in cooperation with SIU and other Illinois universities to provide funding for research and teaching facilities.

The facilities are supposed to enable the schools to meet world food production needs.

SIU-C has received $2.9 million with the Food For Century III label for the remodeling of Meckelby auditorium, the addition of air conditioning and other improvements.

"It's not quite half way through," he added. "We'll take another three or four years of funding to modernize SIU-C's agriculture facilities.

"I think they should fund us adequately so that we can operate at an optimum level," Kroening said.

Council criticizes bar survey

By Mary Ann McNulty

City Council members think there are more things to do in Carbondale than drink.

At the Liquor Control Commission meeting Monday night, council members criticized a survey which concluded that Carbondale has more bars per capita than many Illinois cities.

One council member said the survey "didn't seem fair". Jack Kozlowski, associate professor of psychology, conducted the survey for the Alcohol Education Project. The survey compared the number of liquor licenses per 1,000 adults in Anna, Bloomington, Carbondale, Champaign, Decatur, Marion, Normal, Murphyboro and Peoria. The survey found Carbondale had more liquor establishments per person than the other cities.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg said, "The communities are not just alcohol and you can't just deal with the statistics. You have to take into consideration other factors."

Westberg pointed out the population compared in the survey was of people 21 years of age and older. However, Carbondale has a particularly large number of students aged 18 to 21, she said.

Westberg suggested more research alternatives be developed in the city, especially for teens, aged 14-17. However, Mayor Hans Fischer disagreed, and said, "If someone comes down here and says that the only thing to do here is drink when we're in the recreational center of Southern Illinois, then he is under a completely false impression.

Councilman Charles Watkins noted that Carbondale is not only the retail trade center of a large region in Southern Illinois, but also the entertainment center.

"If we took the number of businesses, movie theaters, etc. into consideration, I think you would get some interesting results," Watkins said.

Westberg said the unfortunate point is that speculation events in Carbondale are picked up nationally and amplified.
Second finalist to visit campus for interviews

By Paul Donner Walter
Staff Writer

T. Alexander Pond, one of the five candidates for the SIU-C presidency, will be on campus Wednesday for public and private interviews. He is the second candidate to visit the campus.

Pond, executive vice president of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, will hold public question-answer sessions at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

He will also meet with Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, members of the Presidential Search Committee, constituency heads and other administrators. He will visit the medical school campus in Springfield on Thursday.

"The University (SIU) is a vital and attractive place. It's one of those places one watches when you are working at a new campus like I am," Pond said in a recent telephone interview.

The 56-year-old native of Los Angeles has served as acting president of SUNY-Stony Brook three times during the past decade. He is a professor of physics, and he served as chairman of that department for seven years.

He received his bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees in physics from Princeton University.

As executive vice president, Pond is responsible for the Computing Center, allocation of the university's resources, institutional planning, the Office of Management Systems and the Affirmative Action program.

Bond OK needed for plaza go-ahead

By Mary Harmon

The Carbondale City Council has told a Missouri realty company that it needs to set guidelines before it can issue revenue bonds to help finance a discount store complex in southwest Carbondale.

The council also indicated it would not act until the property on which the $4 million complex would be constructed is annexed into the city.

Jim Murtha, representing the Leo Eisenberg Co. of St. Louis, asked the council at its meeting Monday night for a letter of intent to issue revenue bonds to help finance construction of a K-Mart, Super K mart drugstore and Kroger grocery store near the Ramada Inn.

City Manager Carroll Fry said that while the property had been reserved for commercial development, it had not been the council's intent to issue revenue bonds outside the city's corporate limits. He suggested that no action be taken until the revenue bond criteria had been established as well.

Dan Kimmel, a local attorney, who showed the council a letter of intent, said he will seek annexation soon. Murtha, who helped develop businesses in Murphysboro, Sparta and Taylorville, said his company was originally trying to meet a fall completion deadline.

"Had the money market not taken the turn it has, we would probably be under construction now," he said. "But, it is financially impossible to go ahead through conventional financing." Steven Scheinberg, bond underwriter for the Eisenberg Co., said that time lapse may hurt the project.

"The city should be concerned for its intelligent planning, but I wonder whether the city can establish the criteria and decide on this issue the same night," said Scheinberg, who is also the underwriter for the city's proposed convention center.

"I think they should have used this project as the criteria for future projects. Instead of the council's taking the opportunity to insulate itself from the economy, the city may now become a casualty of it," he said.

Scheinberg said the discount complex would create about 300 low- and moderate-income jobs. At its meeting last week, the council endorsed the concept of 200 revenue bonds to help finance commercial development.

End your pardon

A news story in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian about Carbondale's upcoming budget incorrectly reported that the city's lake, recreation and forestry department will receive a budget of $1.9 million. The department will receive $39,957. The city's general fund amounts to $1.9 million.

C ongratulations, Little Egypt

I've been a DOONESBURY fan for years and years and years. It's the only comic strip that I really follow. I just finished the collection this afternoon. I was very surprised when I found out how much of it was about Israel! It's really a great strip. I especially liked the part where Gotta got his leg broken and started Lobotomy. He became a great international character. I think the strip should be read by people all over the world. The only problem is that it's not published in any of the major newspapers. I hope it will be soon.

Something special for secretaries

Nick Sortal

I've been a fan of the corkboard since I was a kid. I was very excited when I found out that it was being turned into a comic strip. I've been reading it every day for the past year. I think it's a great idea, and I hope it continues to be popular.

Abortion display appreciated

This letter is in response to those who opposed the abortion display in the Student Center. You say you are opposed to the display because it is not in the Student Center. I say you are wrong. The display is in the Student Center because it is the place where students can see it. You say the display is not in the Student Center because it is not in the Student Center. I say the display is in the Student Center because it is the place where students can see it.

SIU to host Special Olympics this week

By Jeffrey Smyth, Staff Writer

It's appropriate that in the middle of Earth Week, seven days of activities designed to show appreciation for nature and the above we live on, one day will be devoted to giving love and attention to people. Very special people.

All day Thursday, starting at 9:00 a.m. with opening ceremonies and ending however whatever, V.A. Andrews Stadium will be the site of the Special Olympics track and field competition.

The first Special Olympics events were held in 1963 in Chicago under the direction of Dr. Peter D. Neufeld, president of The Special Olympics Foundation. Since then it has been a world-wide occurrence in the United States and in over 30 countries around the world.

This year's track and field events will be entered by more than 1,000 people from 18 Special Olympians countries.

Dr. C. E. D. Neufeld, visiting instructor in recreation and coordinator of the event, said some 200 to 300 volunteers will be on hand to ensure that the 450 different events run smoothly.

"This is a major undertaking," C. E. D. Neufeld said. "There are so many different events that we must make sure that all the various events run smoothly.

"Volunteers are so important to these events," C. E. D. Neufeld added. "They are needed to track athletes, pass out awards and many are busy right now typing out forms and setting the participants into divisions. Clerks and ushers will be on hand to keep the competition running smoothly."

Giving attention and support to the athletes is the most important part of the Special Olympics. Crunk said. Whether an athlete places first or last, there is always someone close by to cheer them on.

"It means so much to them. Many live in institutions, and will return to them. They go through life with no applause."

I express disappointment in the fan turnout for past opening ceremonies," he said. "They are asked when they come to a college campus and participate in a larger stadium and I think it's a great opportunity for them."

Besides the athletic events, there is a full slate of other activities planned, including celebrity and guest appearances Jim Hart, former SIU football player and now a quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals, will be honorary coach of the day. Former Satuk basketball standouts, now pro players or former players, will return to campus and show off their skills.

Special Events for the day include a parade and a celebration for 1,000 people. The parade will be held in the halls of the Student Center at 12:30 p.m.

To register for the workshop, call Woody Hall at 482-2662.

Player: Pinball not a waste of time, but a sport needing quick reactions

By Robin Saponar
Staff Writer

The pressure is on. The lights start flashing. The noises increase in volume. The round silver ball is rolling toward you.

If your reactions are quick you could rack up more and more points enough to play a second game of pinball.

Pinball is considered to be a challenging sport, a waste of time or family entertainment, Chuck Laggans, an employee at Quarter Time Junction, considers it to be a sport.

"I think it's a sport. It has a lot to do with your reactions," he said. "Talent is important. Some people can do nothing, some are able to play it.

Laggans, 28, said he has played since he was seven years-old and still gets a thrill out of it. He test-drive if I don't get a good score. Laggans said "For someone, it has a pattern again." Laggans cited a keen sense of sight, aiming ability and supple hand-eye coordination on the addition of machines.

City 'Secretary of the Year' to be honored at a banquet

By John Travestead

Professional secretaries in both the private and public sectors will be honored Wednesday at a banquet sponsored by the Carbondale Chapter of National Secretaries.

Secretary of the Year and most of the year's awards will be presented at the banquet celebrating National Secretaries Week, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Carbonale Knights Inn.

The award will be presented by last year's Secretary of the Year, Maria A. Anderson, assistant professor in vocational education studies. According to Joe McGee, public relations chairman of the Carbonale Chapter of the National Secretaries Association, the secretarial profession is no longer seen as attractive and worthwhile.

Lagann said that basic attitude changes by educators and employers would help to attract applicants to secretarial vacancies.

She said she agreed with Ann Michele, of Albuquerque, N.M., the national president of National Secretaries Association, that secretaries are becoming a rare breed.

Michele said, "Employers must recognize that today's secretaries are trained professionals. Their skills could be better utilized if employers would learn to assign more responsibilities to them."

"Employers must have faith in trained employees. That better prepares students for the world of work," Michele added.

Pam Jones, chairperson of the Carbonale chapter's Secretaries Week Committee, said that non-member secretaries and their bosses are invited to attend.

Player sees pinball as sport

flippers, they're not aiming," he said. "Reading the directions is very important. The players are not what to hit and when to hit it." He said that players will get very excited about a game while playing and react in a variety of ways.

"Some yell, scream and do everything else," he said. "One guy is dangerous because he starts kicking. I've stood a few yards away from him when he's playing."

Lagann said there are players of all ages. They will be dressed in suits or shorts or jeans. But there are many more male players than females. "I think there are many more girls interested in that type of entertainment," Lagann said.

"I think there are many more girls interested in that type of entertainment."

Glyn Witte, a sophomore in business management, said he thought more men played pinball because "some arcades have been dumb. Girls might not want to go in there."

Witte entered a pinball contest in a Carbondale bar and won a television set. "I just walked in and saw they were having a contest. I didn't think I had a chance," he said. "To play it cost me about $15 or so and I ended up with a 10-inch black and white TV. It was a good investment."

Witte started playing at arcades when he was 13-year-old. "I've always been someone who wants to do something besides standing in a bar," he explained.

Witte said that "making saves" with the ball is very important.

The major points of the game are making saves, knowing how to work the flippers and quickness," he said. "You've got to know the machine, shake it right and use a little body English."

He estimates, having spent at least $500 playing pinball, "yet he considers the expense to be worth it."

"You have to invest a lot of time and money," Witte said.

Forfeits haunt IM softball tourney

By Rick Seymour
Staff Writer

As if the intramural office didn't have enough to do with the basketball playoffs, it now has to deal with softball playoffs that started last weekend.

An astounding 13 forfeits took place over the weekend in the Co-Reec and S-Cor divisions of the IM softball playoffs. There were even a double forfeit when neither team showed up for its game.

"I was really surprised to see that many forfeits. They probably happened because we didn't have a captains' meetings before the playoffs," said Deb Twenhafel, a graduate assistant in the intramural department.

In this mammoth tournament, the Men's B division had to be split up into eight brackets, while the Co-Reec Division was split into four sections. The Men's A bracket will be decided Sunday.

"Since there were so many teams, we had to split them up somehow. We kind of randomly selected the teams for each bracket," Twenhafel said.

The Men's A Division will be decided May 1, along with the Women's and the Men's B leagues. The Co-Reec championship will take place April 30. All games are to be played at the Arena softball fields.

In a Co-Reec game last weekend, Zucchini Surprise edged Dow Theorists, 6-5. Back-to-back two-run barrages in the fourth and the fifth enabled Zucchini Surprise to walk away with a narrow victory.

Dow Theorists took an early lead in the game with a two-run first inning followed by a run in the second. Zucchini Surprise was shut out in the second and third innings, making it appear that Dow Theorists were going to nab the win.

Twenhafel said there have been few problems with the tournament thus far.

"As long as the weather holds out, it should work out rather well," she said.

Cubs 'slam' Cards, 16-12

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Barry Foote's second homer of the game, a grand slam with two out in the ninth inning, powered the Chicago Cubs to a comeback 16-12 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday.

Foote, who had four hits and eight RBI, had tied the score in the eighth inning with a solo homer.

"I didn't have a captain's meeting before the playoffs," said Deb Twenhafel, a graduate assistant in the intramural department.

Purchasing backpacking and camping equipment can be confusing, to say the least. Step into any outdoor store and you will be confronted with five or six choices of equipment. The choices may vary in price, weight, size, color and each may have a special added attraction. Which do you choose?

When you are buying equipment it is important to compare as many brands as you can, but even before you step into the store you should consider a few points.

First, consider what your needs are. If you are buying boots, will they be worn for occasional leisurely hikes or will they be used in winter mountaineering expeditions? The weight and construction of the boot you should depend on the expected use.

Another point to think about is if the piece of equipment is adaptable for several uses. Some packs have compression straps which allow you to have a big pack for longer trips or a smaller, compressed pack for shorter ventures. A third and very important consideration is the construction of the piece of equipment. You ALWAYS want to check for quality workmanship. One thing that sometimes makes this difficult is the luggage of the outdoor equipment.

If you are comparing sleeping bag construction and do not know what the terms baffle, differential, draft flap, slant box, overlapping V and sewn through mean, you will have problems comparing sleeping bags.

So how do you learn enough about outdoor equipment to be able to purchase wisely? Equipment catalogs have a wealth of information in them. By leafing through catalogs from companies such as EMS, REI, Lowe Alpine, Hotbar, L.L. Bean or Early Winter, you can compare pieces of equipment without leaving the house.

Catalogs also have special articles on topics such as boot construction, differences in ski construction or descriptions of the fabrics and materials used in their products. Looking through many catalogs will give you a better idea of what is available on the market.

The next thing to do is to talk to different people about their equipment. Talk to people who backpack and camp, and ask them why they bought a certain brand. Go into outdoor stores and talk to salespeople—they are more than happy to tell you about their equipment.

Gottfried faces a 'triple option' in cage recruiting

Pitching paces Salukis past UMSL

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

SIU's Bob Schroeder had quite a day pitching against Missouri-St. Louis Tuesday at Abe Martin Field. The junior lefthander reliever from Carbondale cracked seven whiffs in the seventh inning of the game to earn his first save of the season, as the Salukis won, 3-1.

In game two, Schroeder put in a complete game, four-hit performance, giving up six runs to the Rivermen. Schroeder allowed two runs of the four in the seventh inning, but his mark was 16.56, tying an SIU record for winning percentage. 305.

Babcock, who recorded his first collegiate victory in game one, said he could have Schroeder finish for him.

"With someone like Bobby finishing that first inning, how could I lose?" he asked. "I got a little bit of a breathing inning because I was throwing hard today.

"It feels great getting that first win under my belt," he said. "Being able to pitch last weekend and again today put me in a regular rotation which helps me out a great deal throwing every four or five days.

"My slider and the rest of my pitches were moving right, and I got the hits behind me, too."

The hit which got things rolling in the first inning was a solo home run by junior Gerry Jones. The Milwaukee, Wis., native leads the Salukis in home runs.

"Being able to pitch last Sunday and several more Lawrence Stubblefield, Kent positions at the guard slots. can get some centerfold for the first time this season," Schroeder said of the junior.

"We've been working on changing Ondo's batting style lately," Jones said. "We've been trying to work him in the lineup again and his hitting came through for him today.

From left. Kevin Weaver, Jim Adducci, Bob Doerrner and Bill Lyons congratulate Gerry Miller after the SIU outfielder hit a home run in Tuesday's first game against Missouri-St.

St. Louis. SIU improved its record to 16-10 by defeating the Rivermen, 3-1 and 2-0, in the double-header. The Salukis take on Kentucky Friday and Saturday at Abe Martin Field.

Another double by junior catcher Gary Kempston followed, scoring Ondo and finishing the scoring.

"I'm disappointed we didn't hit well as a team," Jones said.

The double-header sweep pushed the Salukis' record to 16-10.

Babcock qualifies for USGF all-around competition

By Ed Dougerty
Staff Writer

Brian Babcock said he was not trying to give gymnastics Coaches something to talk about when he fell off the pommel horse last Thursday at the United States Gymnastics Federation regional meet at Saturday and Sunday at Missouri State University.

Babcock recovered from the mistakes to finish second out of seven gymnasts trying to qualify for the USGF championships, to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Ohio State University. He scored a 10.8, 9.9 points more than the 10.6 needed to advance to the finals for the second straight year.

Two other gymnasts from the Midwest regional qualified for the championships. Harvee Gibb, Michigan State. finished first with a twoday total of 108.15, and Randy Richardson, Ohio State, was third, 108.2.

The competition was divided into two parts, compulsory exercises and optional exercises. To qualify for the championships, Babcock had to average nine points per event in both competitions.

During Saturday's compulsory exercises, Babcock compiled a score of 53.35 in the six events. In the floor exercise, he scored a 9.0, 0.65 on the pommel horse. 9.0 on the rings. 9.35 on the parallel bars and 9.05 on the horizontal bar.

"Saturday night he worked very hard not to make me comfortable by falling off the pommel horse twice," Meade said semi-jokingly. "But after the floor exercises Sunday, he did the four best exercises on the next four events that I've ever seen him do."

Babcock made the comeback he needed Sunday night, scoring a 9.35 in the optional exercises to bring his score above the qualifying mark. He scored a 8.6 in the floor exercise. 9.35 on the pommel horse. 9.5 on the rings. 9.3 in vaulting. 9.3 on the horizontal bar.

"I've got to be careful of over-recruiting," he said. "You can't start players discouraged and have them quit or transfer. We try not to over-recruit."

"I've always believed you have to recruit by position and have guys who are skilled at each position," Gotfried added.

"For the most part, our recruiting is geared to getting skilled players for each position."

One "skilled player" Gottfried wouldn't have minded having signed elsewhere last week. Greg Stewart, 6-10 junior college All-America toward from national champion

Gottfried has triple recruiting option

By Scott Stahmer
Sports Editor

The triple option.

Although the term might seem foreign to his brother Mike, the football head coach at Murray State, it also applies to what Saluki athletics are facing as the 1989 recruiting season continues. SUU has one scholarship remaining and Gottfried can take one of three options:

He can offer it to a power forward, or he could sign a sweeper who could play both guard and small forward. Jr. college All-Americans, just two scholarships left next year if all are used this year, Gottfried can save it until 1991.

The coach is taking his time before deciding what to do.

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Junior college players have visited Carbondale in the last few weeks, and several more are scheduled to visit.

"I can't answer that right now," Gottfried said when asked if the fourth scholarship will be used. "I wish I could be more specific."

The Salukis have signed Robert Kinser, a 6-3, 170-pound guard from Brookyln, N.Y.; Vincent Wiggins, a 6-9 center also from Brooklyn; and Johnny Payne, a 6-4 guard from Carbondale and Joliet City (Ilan.) Community College. Wiggins' letter of intent arrived through the mail earlier this week with his and his mother's signatures, making that signing official.

Junior Nance, Karl Morris, Edward Thomas, David Lawrence Stubbefield, Kent Payne. Darnell Jones and Scott Wiggins are ex-players. Gottfried can't say they were skilled players for each position."
