SIUC reviewing faculty productivity

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

SIUC officials are evaluating the way faculty members spend their time, following a recommendation by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to increase faculty productivity.

In November of 1991, IBHE chairman Arthur F. Quern sent letters to all presidents of senior institutions and community colleges in Illinois, asking all public educators to review productivity on their campuses.

John Haller, vice chancellor for academic affairs, said the University is very involved in productivity.

"Productivity is a buzzword," Haller said. "The 21st Century report outlines what changes the University could undertake. Many groups on campus are looking at what actually needs to be changed in the University."

"One of the things the groups are looking at is what programs to eliminate to alleviate duplication in the classroom material," he said.

SIUC president John C. Guyon said many measures of productivity are in the University which include administrative costs, cost efficiency of non-instructional costs, student-to-faculty ratio and faculty involvement by credit hour.

Guyon said he expects a positive statement about University productivity within the coming months.

Some faculty members of the University are feeling pressure to increase their involvement in the classroom.

Hans Rudnick, professor of English, said the evaluations being done within the University could not effectively measure what the faculty does.

"Students are being asked, 'did you learn anything,'" Rudnick said. "A yes or no question doesn't tell if a person learned how to write, or learned math, and the faculty are

Crews still draining tunnels

CHICAGO (UPI) — Crews pumped hundreds of thousands of gallons of water out of flooded freight tunnels under the Loop Monday, a week after a breach under the Chicago River sent floodwaters streaming into downtown basements.

Case International began pumping at three sites shortly after midnight at an initial rate of 1,800 gallons a minute. Three pumping stations had increased the rate to 4,800 gallons a minute—288,000 gallons an hour—by noon.

The water was falling about two inches an hour in basements, officials said. At that rate, it could take up to 12 days to drain all 250 million gallons of flood water from the 40-mile tunnel system that runs under the downtown area.

At 11 a.m. the water level at 10 South LaSalle had dropped more than 16 feet, said Lt. Col. Randall Inouye, district engineer of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"The water level is dropping at about two inches per hour, pretty consistent throughout the city. We're

Chicago flood could swallow $1.5 billion from economy, property, casualty damages

CHICAGO (UPI) — The flood disaster that brought the nation's third-largest city to a standstill likely will siphon $1.5 billion from the Chicago economy, and the figure still is climbing, a report published Monday says.

Cran's Chicago Business says the figure stems from an analysis prepared by the Regional Economics Applications Laboratory (REAL), a joint project of the University of Illinois at Urbana and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

The study estimates the disaster took $484 million out of the local economy in the first week alone.

But that figure only considers lost economic activity, Crain's said, adding leading real estate executives estimate another $1 billion in property and casualty

Dunn wants state to pay interest on late payments

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, is sponsoring legislation that would require the state to pay late interest on late payments to vendors and contractors.

The legislation, which was placed on the senate floor this month, would require state agencies to pay their bills within a specified amount of time after receiving an invoice from a contractor. The legislation automatically would require the state to pay interest of at least $25 to vendors on late payments.

The legislation would promote vendors and contractors to do more business with the state, Dunn said.

Kenyan repeats at Boston Marathon

BOSTON (UPI) — Ibrahim Hussein, a Kenyan growing much at home in Massachusetts, Monday won the Boston Marathon for the second straight year.

In capturing this race a third time, Hussein finished in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 14 seconds. It was the second fastest Boston Marathon, with Rob de Castella's time of 2:07:51 in 1986 the only faster race.

Hussein broke the race open on Heartbreak Hill about 21 miles into the course.

"I could feel it from the start," said Hussein, who broke down in tears after crossing the finish line. "Everything was perfect."

Olga Markova of Russia took the women's division. She passed defending champion Wanda Panfil of Poland after 18 miles and finished in 2:23:43. Her time was also the second fastest at Boston, with Joan Samuelson one minute better in 1983. Panfil, struggling with a painful right leg, finished sixth.

"I never thought about Wanda," Markova said. "I just tried to concentrate on my own pace. I am very happy. I feel wonderful."

This was the first time since 1984-85 the race had been won by the same runner in consecutive years. Geoff Smith of England was the last runner to do so.

"I was glad I was not out there today because Hussein was very strong," said Italy's Gelindo Bordin, the 1990 Boston winner.

Joaquim Pinheiro of Portugal (2:10:39) finished second, followed by Andreas Espinosa of Mexico (2:10:44), Juma Ikanagwa of Tanzania (2:11:44) and Joseildo Rocha of Brazil (2:11:53).

The 96th edition of the race, with a record 9,625 runners, began on a cool and overcast day in suburban Hopkinton.

Hussein ran under control from the outset. He settled into a group of about eight runners who opened a huge lead after five miles. Hussein said he was helped by compatriot Simon Karori's blistering pace through 11 miles.

But Karori, who had at times led by 25 seconds, began to fade. Then a group of four other Kenyans and

THE SIUC BASEBALL team's post-season chances could boil down to a three-game series against Illinois State.

The Dawgs, 4-6, trail the Redbirds, 5-7, by one game in the Missouri Valley Conference.

SIUC owns the sixth and final qualification spot for the Valley tournament by one game over Southwest Missouri, 4-8, heading into a three-game series beginning Saturday at ISU.

The winner of the series not only will shore up its MVC postseason hopes, but will capture fifth place in the standings and avoid

Golfers seventh at invite

Pace paces women past three Gateway rivals

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

A strong showing against conference foes gave the women's golf team a boost despite its seventh place finish at the Boilermaker Invitational last weekend.

Coach Diane Daugherty said going into Purdue the Salukis felt they could place in the top three in a field of 17. They shot a two-day total Saturday and Sunday of 656, which was 24 strokes off first place Iowa State's pace.

But the Salukis finished ahead of Gateway conference rivals Southwest Missouri State, Illinois State, and Bradley, who finished eighth, ninth, and 16th respectively.

Daugherty said that even with a low finish, the team still considered the invite a positive.

"We were tickled to beat all the teams representing our conference," she said. "It will be a definite confidence boost for the conference championships next week."

Daugherty said she expects Illinois State to be the favorite going into the championships.

Junior Tracey Pace who shot 80-80-160 to place ninth in the individual standings, and Anne Childress who shot 82-80-162 to place 20th overall, led the Salukis at Purdue.

Two Salukis nab Gateway honors

By Norma Wilke

After going 3-1 last week against SIU-Edwardsville and Bradley, the SIUC softball team had two players honored with Gateway awards.

Junior right fielder Colleen Holloway was named Gateway Player of the Week, and junior Angie Mick was named Gateway Pitcher of the Week for the second time this season.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said it was great to have two players named by the Gateway.

"I'm pleased for Colleen," Brechtelsbauer said. "She really came on strong after a slow start. In the last couple of weeks she's had some great hits. She's really hitting the ball hard."

Holloway

as the season progresses. She's hit the ball hard in practice, so we decided to give her a try this week as a hitter as well."

In the four games last week, Holloway went 7-12, batting .583 with two triples, six RBI and three stolen bases.

Holloway, who owns a seven-game hitting streak, is leading the team with a .317 batting average. She also leads with 26 runs, 23 RBI, seven triples, three homers and 24 walks.

She holds the Salukis' career record with 23 triples. She tied a season record with 24 walks in Game Two of the SIUC doubleheader.

Mick went 2-0 on the mound last week and did not allow an earned run in 14 innings. She shut out SIUC 3-0 on a five-hitter, and she beat Bradley 10-3. In her hitting debut for the season, she went two-for-three against the Braves with an RBI double.

Mick started batting for the Salukis in the game against SIUC, and in six times at bat has a .333 batting average.

Pitching coach Gary Buckles said the team has been in a hitting slump, and one way the coaches have tried to help the offensive attack is to let the pitchers bat.

Women's track team places third at Purdue

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

The women's track team continued right on track as it raced to the challenge at the Illini Classic.

The Salukis finished third in the scored meet with a total of 87 points Friday and Saturday. Dueling Big Ten rivals Ohio State and Illinois finished in first and second places, as OSU edged Illinois 166 to 146.

Coach Don DeNoon said he was pleased with the Salukis' unstoppable performances against tough-to-beat Big Ten teams. Junior Crystallo Constantinou was named Gateway Conference Athlete of the Week for her double-win performances at the Classic.

She placed first in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.60 that achieved a career-best performance and a NCAA provisional qualifying time.

Constantinou improved her ranking on the SIUC all-time best list in the 100-meter dash from No. 3 to No. 2, and she is ranked 11th nationally.

SYRIAN PRESIDENT VISITS KUWAIT — President Hafez Assad of Syria arrived in Kuwait Monday on his first visit to the emirate since it was liberated from Iraq 14 months ago. Assad, who flew in from Saudi Arabia after talks with King Fahd, was welcomed at the airport by the Emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber al Ahmad al Saban. Assad also plans to visit the United Arab Emirates and Bahrain during a Gulf tour in which he evidently seeks to rally support for Syria's stance in the Mideast peace talk.

UKRAINE WARNS AGAINST CRIMEAN CHANGE — Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk warned Monday that moves to change the political status of the Crimean Peninsula could risk bloodshed. Kravchuk's statement came against a backdrop of political rumblings in Russia over the status of the Crimea, the former Russian peninsula that has been part of Ukraine for four decades and which is home to the disputed Black Sea fleet.

AFGHANISTAN TO LET NAJIBULLAH LEAVE — The newly installed government of Afghanistan agreed Monday in negotiations with U.N. special envoy Benon Sevan to allow deposed President Najibullah to leave the country, possibly by evening, the news agency Press Trust of India reported. The news agency, in a dispatch from Kabul, quoted diplomatic sources as saying the former Afghan leader was expected to travel to India.

U.S. URGES INDOCHINA TO COOPERATE — U.S. senators investigating Americans missing in action in Indochina told Vietnam and Laos Monday to follow Cambodia's lead if they want better relations with the United States. "Cambodia is the leader of the three countries in opening up to us," said Bob Smith, the New Hampshire Republican, adding that the panel had "learned a lot from (Prime Minister) Hun Sen on how Cambodians see the issue" of the MIAs.

SUPREME COURT TO REVIEW MIRANDA LAWS — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to decide if federal courts reviewing a state court conviction should be barred in many cases from deciding if a suspect's so-called Miranda rights were violated. If the Supreme Court were to agree with Michigan, it would spell a major reduction in Miranda's effectiveness for the accused. In its 1966 Miranda v. Arizona case, the high court said some obtained evidence cannot be used in court.

'HIV-NEGATIVE' CARD INVENTOR TO SUE — The maker of an "HIV-negative" card advertised in college newspapers for $10 said Monday he plans to sue the state for $100 million after authorities branded the card a scam and demanded he refund any money he's made. The ads for Owers' card claim it can "establish a legal base of being (HIV) negative" on a given date, which could be used as proof in court that a person became infected through a particular sexual contact.

THIEF SHOOTS, RUNS OVER POLICE OFFICER — A West Chicago police officer was fatally wounded early Monday, apparently by a thief who got around an auto dealership alarm system and shot, then ran over the policeman in fleeing with a 1992 Corvette. Police said the 23-year-old officer had been shot and then run down by the escaping thief. Officer Michael Browning of West Chicago was pronounced dead at Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood.

CATERPILLAR CLAIMS 8,800 RETURN TO WORK — Caterpillar said about 70 percent of its striking United Auto Workers union member employees returned to their jobs Monday and "the vast majority" will be back at work in about two weeks. About 12,600 Caterpillar workers struck the world's largest manufacturer of heavy construction equipment last November, so a 70 percent figure would mean about 8,800 returned on Monday.

Environmental leader hopes spirit of Earth Day continues

By Annette Holder
General Assignment Writer

The Carbondale Student Environmental Center president hopes students will continue to celebrate Earth Day after the week has past.

Earth Day is a national celebration Wednesday to raise awareness to promote activities that will benefit the environment. It was started in 1970.

Jackie Badger, president of the Carbondale SEC, said everyone will have the opportunity to become more environmentally aware this week from a variety of activities planned in Southern Illinois.

An Owl Prowl, which teaches participants to hoot to attract the animals, is done to educate and not to entertain, said Donna Murray, coordinator for the Adventure Resource Center at the Recreation Center. The ARC is sponsoring the program for the first year.

"I've been in Owl Prowls and sometimes they will land above our heads," Murray said. "Other times we'll have them off in the woods in the distance."

Barred, screech and great horned owls are common to Southern Illinois. The prowl was scheduled for the Carbondale Reservoir area but because of bulldozing, it may be moved to a different place, Murray said.

Jerry Culen, program coordinator for the Touch of Nature, said his department has coordinated the activity in the past for about 10 years. The participants this year will learn an owl's hearing is more important than its eyesight.

Earth First is planning a "Day of Outrage" today.

"They're wanting to keep it a surprise," Badger said. "They'll be going to a Forest Service office to express how upset they are with the way tax dollars are spent in the forest."

Southern Illinois Special Olympics to celebrate its silver anniversary

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

Sponsors, participants and volunteers of the Southern Illinois Special Olympics will celebrate its silver anniversary with a bang.

"We're going to put out a lot of silver balloons to really play up the idea that it's our 25th Anniversary," said Linda Votava, special populations coordinator with the Carbondale Park District.

Competitions will be all day at SIUC's McAndrew Stadium. Opening ceremonies will be at 9:30 a.m. and the first event will begin at 10 a.m.

The event usually gathers about 1,400 to 1,500 participants each year, and 25 pages of volunteers already have signed up for this year, Votava said.

"We average about 10 phone calls a day from people wanting to volunteer," she said. "We are doing great so far."

Votava said the event attracts volunteers from throughout the area, including GTE employees, SIUC students and faculty and high school students.

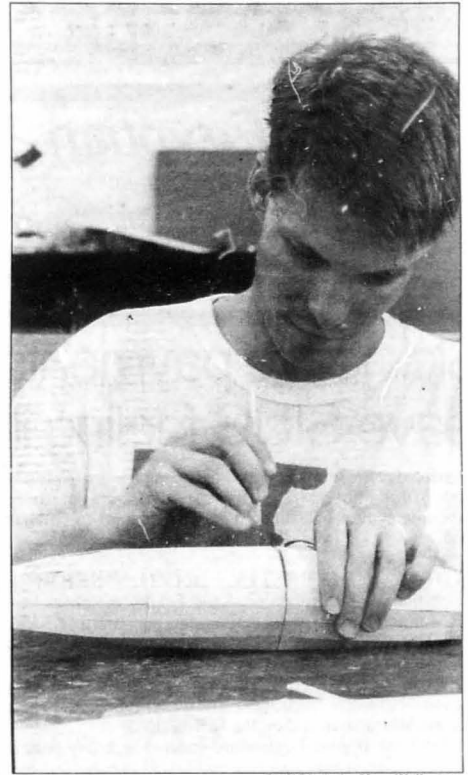

"The high schoolers are great because they are there for the whole day and it's nice to have some of that continuity," Votava said. "College students usually have to leave at some point during the day because of classes or work—but still they are great volunteers also."

SIUC student Bill Barker said this is the first year he is volunteering for the Special Olympics. He heard about the event through his Felts Hall Council in Thompson Point, he said.

"I think it's going to be a neat experience to see these people compete and see them interact with the other competitors," he said. "It's just going to be a neat day."

The two biggest events at the Special Olympics are the 50 meter dash and the softball throw. Other competitions include the shot put, high jump, long jump and wheelchair race, Votava said.

Sick leave payments leave SIUC feeling ill

Medical emergencies and illness are unfortunate happenings, but state policy ensuring payment for University workers is bleeding SIUC of hard-to-come-by funds.

WHEN UNIVERSITY CIVIL SERVICE, administrative and professional and faculty members leave SIUC for another job or for retirement, they are paid for the amount of sick leave they have accrued throughout their stay.

The practice is a common one that allows for good relations between employers and employees, but rising costs are taking their toll on the University.

In 1983 the Illinois Legislature enacted sick day policies that require universities to pay employees one-half of their accumulated unused sick days. However, no financial assistance was passed along to the universities who now face rapidly growing bills.

THE GROSS INCREASES OF SICK PAY contradict the original intent of the policy. Sick days are meant to be a safety net, where an employee can take care of medical mishaps without the additional burden of worrying about employment. Instead, sick leave payments have become a savings account for retirement. When combined with the early retirement programs, accumulated sick pay creates a huge problem for the University.

If a full-time civil service employee accrued 12 unused sick days a year and worked at SIUC 30 years, they would have 360 sick days and upon leaving the University, would be paid for half the amount. Making $12 an hour, they would receive a check for $16,200. But the amounts can be much greater. Individual payments have soared to more than $40,000 in recent years.

STATE REQUIREMENTS AND FINANCIAL realities leave SIUC caught between a rock and a hard place. Without state assistance, the money to cover increasing sick leave costs will come from internal reallocations or tuition increases.

Strapped hard for funds, SIUC does not need additional responsibility shoved onto its shoulders by the state. The increasing costs of sick day payments are an example of the state's lack of responsibility to create feasible and manageable programs. Good employment relations should not fall victim to financial abuse. Springfield lawmakers need to reassess their policies and come up with a cure that is acceptable to both the University and its employees.

History lessons fail to tell truth, sterilizes atrocities committed

I am writing this letter in response to our proud "American" Patrick Shaefer's letter. You my friend are a victim of American history. Since Patrick is a history major, I would think there would be a better understanding of pre-Civil War history.

Should Afro-Americans be proud that slavery allowed them to be here today? I do not understand how someone could view manifest destiny as good.

We speak of how bad the Nazi holocaust of Jewish people was, and must also understand that our Euro-American ancestors did the same thing to the tribal peoples of North America.

The white Europeans forced a religion and a way of life on these people. When I say forced, I mean tortured and killed those who refused to be a part of the European culture. When you speak of reservations you say that these people bring the hardships upon themselves.

The reservation is just another method of assimilation. None of the tribal people prefer reservations over the way of life that their ancestors experienced. When the tribes tried to co-exist with the Europeans, the whites had only one vision, that of the tribal peoples living like the Euro-Americans. That is why thousands of tribal cultures have (and still are) been annihilated. I would like to politically correct Patrick's use of "Indian."

This is a word invented by the genius Columbus, who knew he just had to be in India. I also think you owe our fellow students from India an apology for using their diverse ethnic heritage in a derogatory way to describe a totally separate and geographically distant group of people. Many people have a blurred vision of the past which distorts their view in the future. As Crazy Horse said, "It's hard to hold a great vision."—Jackie Massey, senior, political science.

Political correcting limits society

I am addressing the responses to my April 2 letter concerning the violence committed by all ethnic groups in the early struggle for the American continents.

First, I must express my appreciation to Lois Eldridge for supporting the proposition that all groups participated in early American wars. Early colonial history was punctuated by a series of territorial wars waged by France, Britain, and numerous Native-American nations. These conflicts were waged by alliances of Europeans and Native-Americans fighting for both sides.

To answer Mr. Gregory King's inquiring about the pyramid in Mexico City, the skulls in question belonged to Native Americans whose nations were enslaved by another Native American nation known as Aztecs. The unfortunate previous owners of these relics were ritually sacrificed and their bodies eaten by their cannibalistic masters. These acts were performed as part of Aztec religion, and as a method of population control.

"Columbus Walks the Plank," distributed by Friends of Native Americans, the writers state, "Sales (author of the book) pauses often to examine the nature of European society and contrast it with the paradise that Columbus would encounter." If this is not the position of Native-American organizations, perhaps you, Smolinski, should proof-read material and make corrections.

There are some people who believe revising history to support their political agenda, and judging individuals by race, gender or ethnicity is "politically correct." Accepting the viewpoint of these misguided souls would reimpose the very stereotyping and segregation that Dr. King and others sacrificed their lives to fight.

"We the people" must look beyond race and gender. We need to examine our history with objectivity and without malice. If we fail to do so, then this brave experiment in multi-racial democracy known as the United States will cease to exist.—Brian Kossett, sophomore, political science.

Reader fed up with gay gripes about portrayal

I am writing in reply and disgust to the recent DE article concerning portrayals of homosexuals in the movies. I think it is time for gays, homosexuals, bisexuals, lesbians... whatever they choose to be called to give the rest of us a break.

If you choose to engage in perverted sexual behavior that is your business, but don't expect the rest of us to welcome you with open arms.

If for one am sick to death of hearing you people griping because you don't see yourselves portrayed in a positive light. What is positive about your lifestyle? I'll answer my own question, nothing.

Homosexuality is ungodly behavior and there is no way whatsoever to portray it as positive. Homosexuality is destructive spiritually, emotionally and physically.

I do agree that all homosexuals are not psychotic killers, but I believe they have a serious problem with unnatural sexual preferences. Sin is sin. The Bible is quite clear on this issue. Also, I have seen the movie, "Fried Green Tomatoes" and found it to be warm, funny and uplifting. If the producers cut out any insinuations toward lesbian relationships, I say hooray for them.

I realize the homosexual problem is never going to go away as long as people continue to live for the moment and abide by the creed of, "If it feels good do it." Our only hope is the concerted prayers of Christians everywhere. But in the meantime, let's not glorify a lifestyle that leads to destruction.—Sheila Middleton, office systems assistant III, civil engineering and mechanics.

"If we correct the problem of late payments, small business will be more eager to do business with the state government," Dunn said. "The state would receive more competitive bids for goods and services thereby lowering cost, and then in return receive more revenue from the increases business generated by small business to the state."

The legislation also will take the burden off financially strapped businesses in the state, he said.

"Small businesses have limited operating funds and rely heavily on prompt payment for their goods and services," Dunn said. "It's not fair to put them in financial trouble because the state can't make its payments on time."

John Davis, state director of the National Federation of Independent Business, said the state has become dependable in its dealings with businesses.

"The state has to quit being deadbeats about paying the bills," Davis said. "If they can't afford it they should not buy it. Not paying bills on time can and has killed many small businesses."

The current repayment method allows the state to put off payment for two months. Businesses are given a 2-percent interest payment on late payments for up to six months, but Davis said this is not good enough.

"Some small businesses have waited nine months to a year for repayment," Davis said. "This kills businesses involved in the Medicaid program, they are the people hardest hit."

George Maroney, hospital administrator for Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, said the method the state uses in repaying vendors and contractors goes against the idea of "good business."

"Any business that offers interest free loans will lose investment returns," Maroney said. "We could be using the interest on that money for other things."

being evaluated by these results."

"Faculty on the university are expected to do research and supply ideas for the classroom and their field of expertise," said Rudnick, president of the Graduate Council. "With all of the research involved in getting published and the like, it is physically impossible to spend an equal amount of time in the classroom."

Tim Sullivan, assistant professor of art and design, said he does not know anyone who would not like to do research, but it conflicts with class time.

"The faculty's time for research and classroom instruction have always conflicted," said Sullivan. "A person would have to be a superman or superwoman to get all of that work done. There are not enough hours in the week."

If the University had collective bargaining, the burden would be less for the faculty, said Sullivan, SIUC president of the National Education Association.

"Collective bargaining would solve some of the redress here and would instead push for more of rewarding the faculty and restructuring their involvement in the University," said Sullivan.

Faculty members are required to exhibit excellence in teaching, research and public service prior to receiving tenure or a promotion.

Donald Paige, Faculty Senate president, said a professor may choose two of the three areas of evaluation to specialize in to achieve tenure or promotion.

Tenure guarantees a professor a position at the university where they teach unless a financial crisis happens in the university or the professor is found to be morally questionable. It may take a professor three to seven years to acquire tenure through a lengthy process of peer evaluations and administrative votes.

After reviewing tenure, a professor may "buy out" of teaching, Paige said.

"If a professor's salary is $60,000 annually, they may apply for a research grant in that amount or higher," Paige said. "If the grant is awarded, the professor then gives the money to their department for the hiring of someone to teach their classes and therefore become exempt from teaching during that term."

Because the money from grants comes from a source other than the University, it allows professors to pursue research without having to spend the time in the classroom.

University faculty teach three classes each semester on average and conduct research. A faculty member may teach more or less classes depending on the load of research and the grants for research involved.

The University wants professors to do more research, write more papers and publish more books and articles, Rudnick said.

"Teachers shouldn't have to deal with things like this (productivity evaluation). We (teachers) are the experts, the bureaucrats should not tell the students what to learn because when they do, it creates a load of watch doggery. In which case, the bureaucrats are so far removed from the educational process they do not know enough about it to tell us how we should be doing it," Rudnick said.

"A faculty member needs research to lecture," Rudnick said. "What IBHE is saying is they want more quantity and quality. Somewhere, something has to give."

The IBHE will release a list of guidelines for university productivity in fall 1992.

going to continue this pumping operation at this rate for quite a while yet—maybe 12 hours just to see how the flows are going and what the impacts are on the draw down," Inouye said.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is managing pumping rates and pumping sites for the huge bailout and could speed up pumping at any time.

"The next 12 to 24 hours will determine our next course of action," Inouye said.

"We've had direct coordination with the fire department and all the city offices," Inouye said.

"We have a flood command center upstairs. Under that flood command center we have a control center that is monitoring the operation for the dewatering."

Inouye said the sewer department provided readings of various water depths within the city and water levels within buildings throughout the day.

John Kenny of Kenny Construction said crews planned to drill two new shafts to monitor water flows near the Kinzie St. Bridge, where the tunnel break occurred under the Chicago River last Monday.

Crews were pumping in grout to seal the concrete plugs installed on the east and west sides of the tunnel to form a permanent barrier.

Water pressure continued to decrease at "Hubbard's Cave," an underpass on the Kennedy Expressway. Two lanes remained closed in either direction in case of flooding.

"Things are continuing to get better as far as the risk of the failure of the drainage system," said Kirk Brown of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

"It's good news there. We're not out the woods yet and won't be until the freight tunnels are completely drained," he said.

Brown said drivers heeded warnings and traffic was down on the Kennedy Monday. The Chicago Transit Authority and Metra reported higher rush-hour ridership and travel on all lines went smoothly although downtown subways could be out of service for weeks, said CTA spokeswoman Constance Mortell.

If major parts of the south Loop, the area hit hardest by the flood, remain closed this week, the lost economic activity could rise another $285 million, to about $769 million, the report said.

Another factor, Crain's said, is the city of Chicago faces a fiscal crisis as it moves to protect itself from an anticipated flood of lawsuits. The city is self-insured and has just $19.8 million in its tort judgment fund.

The city also is looking at large near-term problems, including shouldering part of the clean-up and repair costs and requests for rebates on business taxes from flood-affected firms.

Chicago's futures exchanges, government office buildings and major department stores were all shut down by the flood that brought an estimated 250 million gallons of water rushing into the basements of Loop buildings.

Theater season to close with play exploring troubled teen-age mind

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

McLeod Theater will close out the 1991-92 theater season with "Equus," the controversial play by Peter Shaffer in which a psychiatrist works to unlock the mind of a troubled teen-ager.

In "Equus," a teen-ager has been institutionalized after blinding six horses, and the psychiatrist struggles to find the reason behind the crime. The psychiatrist is played by Peter Schmit of Murphysboro, and the role of teen-age Alan Strang is played by Blace Martin.

Director Alex Chrestopoulos said he is excited about the production and anticipates an interesting audience response.

"I expect the audience to be uncomfortable in a good way," he said in a theater press release. "The show sends the audience on an empathic, emotional and psychological ride with the characters."

"Equus" contains mature subject matter and some nudity. The nudity is necessary and an integral part of the play, Chrestopoulos said.

"If it were gratuitous, I wouldn't do it," he said. "At the end of the play, the kid is stripped clean psychologically and emotionally.

The nudity is a metaphor for that." Chrestopoulos said the nudity is not as controversial as it once was. "It was controversial in its time," he said. "But it's not really anymore. It primarily deals with a psychological mystery. The psychiatrist is going through a mid-life crisis and is having doubts about his profession. He begins finding a different perspective through the eyes of the young man."

Martin said he is fascinated by the play and his role as Alan Strang.

"The show itself makes you think about yourself and others," he said, "and has made me think about the ways to put others before myself."

Chrestopoulos said he felt the author's message was one of personal relationships.

"Essentially, people need to be tolerant of other people's need to worship something," he said. "Once you start trying to prevent that, you start missing them up."

Martin hopes the play will make the audience think, he said.

"Hopefully they'll think a little bit more about their sensuality than their sexuality," he said.

Amy Fuesting, who did public relations for the play, said the psychological aspect of the play should keep the audiences attention.

"It should keep people glued to the stage," Fuesting said. "It deals with a psychological aspect of people that most of us in life try to ignore. It really makes you think about it."

The disturbed main character will make the audience question themselves, Fuesting said.

"Throughout the play they try and blame Alan's problems on the way he was brought up by his parents and his lifestyle. It really makes you think about what part of your life your family and your parents and religious upbringing play, and how that molds you into the person you are."

"The audience reaction is going to be extreme," she said. "People will either take it and not be offended by it and understand why it was written that way, or be offended by it. It's definitely going to make an impression."

"Equus" does contain mature subject matter and may not be suitable for all audiences. Curtain times are 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and May 1 and 2, and 2 p.m. May 3. Tickets are $8 for adults, $7 for senior citizens and $4 for children and students.

Alcohol-related incidents at college under-reported

Many incidents related to alcohol are under-reported on college campuses.

Consider the following:
■ A 20-year-old Sigma Nu sophomore at University of Missouri-Rolla was killed in a head-on crash when driving after drinking.

■ A 19-year-old student at Mankato State University pleaded guilty to vehicular homicide after a drunk friend from MSU fell off the hood of his moving car and died of head injuries.

■ The University of Iowa's medical center reports that it now treats 10 students every week for alcohol poisoning—double the number treated 10 years ago.

■ Last fall, a 22-year-old University of Idaho student died at his home after consuming large quantities of alcohol at a Halloween party the previous night.

■ In two semesters, 70 emergency room reports involving SIUC students were filed at Carbondale Memorial Hospital as alcohol-related.

SIUC students are finding these types of unnecessary losses unacceptable. About one-fourth surveyed last year report that they would prefer an alcohol-free environment.

Seventy percent of the SIUC population reported having nine or less drinks per week. The average number of drinks per week is 6.7, which appears to be a downward trend from other reports.

Springfest at SIUC is an opportunity to change drinking behaviors to reflect an awareness of possible negative consequences and healthy trends.

In an effort to preserve this annual event, students here have worked to make it safer than in past years by allowing alcohol consumption only at a specific area and time. For more information, contact the Student Health Program Wellness Center at 536-4441.

Brooklyn band to play concert of dissonance

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Quirky pop/drug group Hypnolovewheel will perform a free concert at 11 a.m. today in the Free Forum Area.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., band combines dissonance and melody with a sardonic pop aesthetic that makes its music as ear-catching as it is schizophrenic.

Hypnolovewheel was formed in early 1987 in New York City by guitarists Steve Hunking and Dave Ramirez, bassist Dan Cuddy and drummer Peter Walsh.

The band released a four-song EP late that year and performed steadily throughout the New York area, fine-tuning its strange and addictive style of music.

The group released its first album, "Turn! Turn! Burn!" in late 1988, which drew positive critical praise and heavy college airplay.

Hypnolovewheel's second album, "Candy Mantra," was released in 1990. The group secured a record deal with Alias Records, which led to the 1991 release, "Space Mountain."

Recorded and mixed in a six-day frenzy, "Space Mountain" marked Hypnolovewheel's first collaboration with producer Giordano, who has worked with such diverse groups as Big Dipper, Yo La Tengo and King Missile.

The album stayed on the college radio charts for 14 weeks and spawned a well-received video for the song "I Dream of Jeannie."

Hypnolovewheel has recently released an album, "Angel Food." The College Music Journal called the album "a tie-dye of pop brilliance." Rockpool magazine said the record "mixes textures and metaphors with a sense of humor and absurdity not unlike a harder-edged They Might Be Giants."

they also called for Russia to better protect its interests and the rights and freedoms of Russians in other republics.

The resolution also urged Russia to lead the way in creating more common C.I.S. institutions to coordinate economic, monetary and customs policy, and to set up an Interparliamentary Assembly on social and human rights issues.

During the divisive C.I.S. debate, ultra-conservative deputies questioned the legitimacy of the C.I.S. and called it a state coup.

"The August putschists look like Don Quixotes compared to the events of December," Sergei Baburin, who combines nationalism and communism, said of the formation of the C.I.S.

One Communist deputy urged the Congress to "adopt a declaration on the restoration of the Soviet Union's statehood," adding that the creation of the C.I.S. "trampled underfoot" results of last year's referendum in which a majority supported preservation of a single country.

Guatemalan to discuss plight of homeland, refugees in U.S.

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

Sebastian Sales Morales de Ordonez fled his homeland of Guatemala 10 years ago to a refugee camp in rural southern Mexico, seeking political asylum and escaping the human rights abuses of a vicious Guatemalan military rule.

Morales de Ordonez is one of 10 Guatemalan refugees speaking across the United States to raise visibility of the refugees and gain funding for their return to Guatemala. He will be one of two refugees visiting Carbondale on the tour.

He will speak at 7:30 p.m. April 27 at Newman Center. The visit is sponsored by the Newman Center and the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee.

Morales de Ordonez is one of about 46,000 Guatemalans living in refugee camps in southern Mexico. Many of these refugees left Guatemala following a coup by a three-man military junta in 1982 that led to Amnesty International charges of brutality, corruption and political murders to then president Romeo Lucas Garcia.

While the coup left the junta in power for several months, hopes for improvement in the government quickly faded when Gen. Jose Efraim Rios Montt took sole power of Guatemala three months later. His seizure of power followed a violent campaign for office that left more than 60,000 people dead and more than 400 villages destroyed.

Following the allegations by Amnesty International, the United States pulled out all military aid to Guatemala during Garcia's reign in 1978.

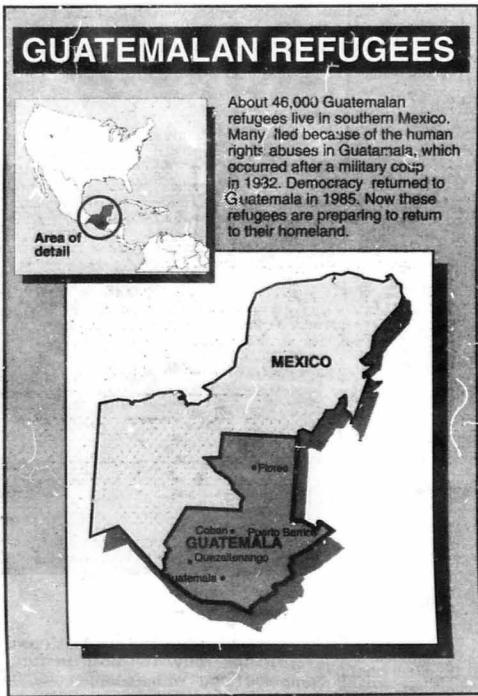

Many Guatemalans applied for U.S. asylum following the outbreak of violence in the country, but only 1 percent was granted asylum.

The U.S. government dismissed the refugees' immigration to the United States because it claimed those seeking asylum were economic rather than political refugees.

More than 80 U.S. church and civil rights groups filed suit in 1985 against the U.S. State Department for arbitrarily denying asylum to people fleeing nations to which the department "has given its seal of approval."

Late in 1990, an agreement was reached allowing 150,000 refugees for whom asylum had been previously denied to reapply and about 35,000 who had never applied to do so.

Following a return to democracy in Guatemala in 1985 and the writing of a new constitution for the nation, these refugees now are preparing to return to their homeland, and representatives such as Morales de Ordonez are trying to gain U.S. support for their secure return.

In the years previous to his refuge, Morales de Ordonez worked as a minister, taking communion host to the people in some of the most isolated villages of Guatemala.

While in refuge, he spent four years as an education promoter in the camps, and began working for the Guatemalan Christian Action group (ACG) in 1991.

Formed in 1989, ACG works both in Guatemala and in the refuge camps of southern Mexico. It is made up of church workers and catechists who attempt to raise consciousness of their faith and unify their communities. ACG members organize workshops that analyze current Guatemalan political and social conditions from a religious perspective, backing the demands of the refugees and other displaced groups.

Appearing at the Newman Center with Morales de Ordonez will be Francisco Baten Rojas, also a Guatemalan refugee living in southern Mexico. Rojas is a representative of the Guatemalan Permanent Commissions of Refugees, a group of organizations formed in 1988 in an effort to secure a collective refugee return to Guatemala.

The PCs have engaged in negotiations with the Guatemalan government to ensure safety for the refugees upon their return. Among the conditions, PC bargainers insist on their right to be accompanied in their return by national and international groups.

Rojas left Guatemala for Mexico in 1982. His camp chose him to represent the group in negotiating for their return, and he was representative during the camp's relocation from Chlapas, Mexico to Quintana Roo. Rojas has been working with the PCs for three years.

The Guatemalan refugee tour is part of the nationwide Guatemala Public Information Campaign sponsored by Witness For Peace, a U.S. based group that actively supports the repatriation efforts of the Guatemalan refugees.

"voluntary union of sovereign states" passed 548-158 with 136 abstentions and 204 absent.

The majority urged better cooperation among C.I.S. states in political, economic and military affairs.

The vote was a victory for President Boris Yeltsin, a co-founder of the C.I.S., who has been battling a strong conservative element in Congress that would like to turn back the clock on the political and economic changes that are under way. The Congress was elected two years ago when the Communist Party still dominated government and politics.

But in an apparent concession to critics, Yeltsin announced that he planned another Cabinet shakeup and within three months would appoint a prime minister, thus giving in to those clamoring for the president to give up his second high post, which gives him direct control over the government and economic reforms.

While deputies called on Russia to strengthen C.I.S. economic ties,

Russian Congress okays federation of C.I.S. over conservative protests

MOSCOW (UPI) — Four months after Soviet republics banded together to form a loose federation known as the Commonwealth of Independent States, the Russian Congress voted Monday to ratify it.

The vote was a defeat for conservatives who pressed for a revival of the defunct Soviet Union. But the ratification garnered support from a bare majority of the 1,046-member Congress of People's Deputies, Russia's supreme law-making body.

A Paris based television correspondent, an Emmy award-winning producer and broadcast business leaders will share their expertise with students during SIUC's annual Radio-Television Week, running through Friday.

"The whole idea is to expose students to working professionals and give them an opportunity to ask questions and get tips on breaking into the broadcasting industry," explained Michel H. Murrie, event organizer and an associate professor in the radio-television department.

Keynote speaker Jim Bittermann, an ABC-TV correspondent based in France, will deliver the annual Virginia Marmaduke Lecture.

A 1969 SIUC graduate, Bittermann will lecture on "New World (Dis)Order—Journalism and Foreign Policy in the 1990s," at 3 p.m. Friday in Lawson Hall, room 151.

The free lecture is open to the public. Over the last decade, Bittermann has covered Eastern Europe, Northern and Western Africa, the Middle East, the Philippines and the former Soviet Union.

Prior to his Paris assignment, he was based in NBC News' Rome bureau.

The Marmaduke lecture is co-sponsored by the School of Journalism and the radio-television department.

Marmaduke, a retired reporter living in Pickneyville, broke gender barriers to cover Chicago cops, crime and politics in the 1940s. She was recently inducted into the Chicago Journalism Hall of Fame.

The lecture caps a five-day round of special appearances by radio and television experts. All lectures are open to the public.

Some highlights of Radio-Television Week:

- "Radio sales and management in the '90s," a lecture by Jeff Scarpelli, 9 a.m. today, in Communications building room 1046. Scarpelli is president of Communications Corp. of Lafayette, La., a group owner of southern radio stations.

- "Formatics: Radio Programming," a lecture by Randy Michaels, will take place Wednesday in room 1046 of the Communications building. Michaels is vice-president of Jaycor Communications and chief executive officer of Critical Mass Media, a pair of Ohio-based programming consulting firms. Jaycor was the subject of a recent "20/20" investigation into programming and company management practices.

- Alumnus of the Year Address by Scott H. Kane, will be at 3 p.m. Thursday, at Lawson Hall room 141. Kane is president of Optimus, a commercial film and post-production house in Chicago. Optimus provides creative services and special effects to major advertising agencies such as Leo Burnett USA and Ogilvy and Mather. In that role, they help produce commercials and other video work for such names as Michelob, McDonald's, United Airlines and Sears. Kane has also served as a producer/director of "Live-Aid," a televised rock benefit; NCAA basketball games on HBO and Big 10 basketball on NBC. He earned a bachelor's degree in radio-television at SIUC in 1967.

- Broadcast news workshop, at 10 a.m. Friday, in room 9A of the Communications Building, will feature Pat Thompson, a TV producer who won an Emmy award for an "NBC Nightly News" series on the Sudan famine; Bill Berra, news director of KTVI-TV in St. Louis; and the husband-and-wife team of Mike Sola and Sharla Jolly, a reporter and producer, respectively, at WCIA-TV in Champaign.

The week ends with the department's annual reception and awards banquet at 6:30 p.m. Friday, in the SIUC Student Center Ballrooms.

Four car burglaries reported, losses estimated at $1,700

By John McCadd
Police Writer

SIUC student Edward E. Shumaker returned last weekend to a city parking lot on Washington Street where he had left his car, stereo intact.

But Shumaker, a freshman in law enforcement from Chenoa, said he found his stereo equipment missing from his Chevy S-10 pickup.

The burglar entered the vehicle by inserting a crowbar between the frame of the car and the driver's side window and exerted pressure in such a way to shatter the window silently, he said.

"The police said the (burglar) used wire cutters on the stereo and a crowbar on the windows," Shumaker said.

"He had to have known what he wanted to steal when he saw my truck," he said.

Carbondale police said a suspect removed the stereo system, speakers and a pool cue, value at about $925.

Shumaker's roommate, Shane Ebersohl, 18, also reported his vehicle had been tampered in the same parking lot during the weekend.

"The burglar tried breaking the windows and jimmying the locks open," Ebersohl said.

"When I saw the car, the windshield was scratched where the burglar tried to break through it," he said.

The two said they prefer to park in the city lot because of its proximity to their residence halls.

Police reported there were no suspects or witnesses near the area. Police Chief Don Strom said he has noticed a slight increase in auto burglaries in the past week, though there has not been a noticeable pattern of such incidents.

"During this time of year people tend to be somewhat lax about protecting their cars from burglary," Strom said.

"People need to make sure their windows and doors are secure and not leave valuable items in their cars. If you can, buy detachable stereo systems and take them out when you leave."

Orlando A. Porter, 19, reported his car entered by unknown means between 11 p.m. April 12 and 9:48 a.m. April 13, police said.

The suspect allegedly stole stereo speakers from the car. Porter's loss was estimated at $405.

SIUC student Tracy R. Loyd reported her vehicle burglarized on the east side of Carbondale.

Police said $405 worth of stereo equipment was stolen.

Police officer Kent Burns said auto burglary tends to be a spontaneous action.

Experienced burglars can break in a car, steal property, and disappear in a minute if they see something they want, Burns said.

"Often times, people have a way of letting burglars know where to look," he said.

"If you hear a person driving down the street with his stereo thumping, you know he's got an expensive stereo. If you know where he's parked, you got him," Burns said.

Future college students gain access to information hotline

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

High school juniors and seniors and people thinking of returning to college may tap into a network of college admission counselors, financial aid personnel and high school counselors for free information about any college in Illinois.

The Illinois Association of College Admission Counselors is sponsoring a toll-free hotline from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 29 and 30 for Illinois students and parents to answer questions about college selection, career planning and financial aid, said Scott Belobrajdic, assistant director of admissions at DePaul University.

Up-to-date information regarding application deadlines, college majors and entrance requirements also will be available, said Belobrajdic, an IACAC board member.

Because the hotline will take place during the annual Spring Conference of IACAC, more than 600 experienced high school counselors, college admission officers and financial aid personnel will be on hand to answer questions, he said.

IACAC has sponsored the hotline for the last 15 years.

Belobrajdic said the hotline this year is in the spring instead of fall because IACAC is trying to focus on last minute questions seniors may have and to help juniors, who are planning ahead.

The hotline number is 1-800-645-4692.

Police Blotter

SIUC police arrested four juveniles for auto burglary at 2:47 a.m. Saturday morning at University parking lot 106 on South Wall street.

The four juveniles were arrested after allegedly breaking into three vehicles parked in the lot and later were cited for auto burglary at 1200 E. Grand.

SIUC police arrested Richard R. Randolph, 31, at 1:18 a.m. Saturday for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Police stopped Randolph for improper lane usage on the Lincoln Drive service road to Pulliam Hall.

While questioning Randolph, police allegedly smelled alcohol in his car and gave him a sobriety test from which police reportedly determined Randolph to be legally intoxicated.

Randolph was taken to Jackson County jail in lieu of $100 bond and for failure to present a driver's license.

The SEC Earth Day celebration is scheduled for Wednesday. At 11 a.m. Jimmy Salatino and Crawdaddy will sing in the Free Forum area, and at 7 p.m. Carter and Connelly will sing and present a new slide show.

"The musicians were chosen because they are active environmentally," Badger said. "They're also great musicians."

Ideas for reusing resources instead of throwing them away will be presented by Eugenia Becker, coordinator for Carbondale Clean and Green and Gerald Gaffney, assistant professor of forestry, at 7 p.m. Thursday at Brown Auditorium.

"Solid waste is resources in disguise," Becker said. "Wasting those resources means wasting the future of our earth."

Other uses for resources include using strips of rubber to line playground floors to provide a cushion for falls. The rubber also deters animals from using sand as a litter box.

The film "Tong Tana," a movie about a Swiss man who helped the native Malaysian people fight the destruction of the forest, will be shown at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Thursday at Wham Auditorium for a $1 admission.

"The scenery and cinematography is beautiful," Badger said. "There are lots of beautiful colors in this movie. It's very sharp."

Springfest with an environmental emphasis will be presented 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday on the north side of the John A. Logan College campus.

Fifty environmental exhibitors, including the SEC, will be available to answer questions.

Police arrest man for sexual assault attempt at school

By John McCadd
Police Writer

Carbondale police arrested James W. Bate, 45, of Murphysboro at noon Saturday in connection with an attempted sexual assault on the west side of Carbondale.

Police said the victim, an SIUC student, reported the incident took place at 1:30 p.m. Friday at 1218 W. Freeman in the McKinley School parking lot.

The victim said the arrestee approached her after work and offered her a ride home, which she accepted, according to police. Bate allegedly drove her to the parking lot on Freeman and requested the victim perform sexual acts.

Upon the victim's refusal, Bate allegedly threatened her with a knife and struck her with his fist, police said.

Police said the victim successfully convinced the arrestee to stop his advances and drive her to Walnut Street, where he allowed the victim to leave.

Bate remains at Jackson County jail in connection with armed violence, unlawful restraint and attempted sexual assault charges.

Men netters win 5-3 against Wichita State

By Tony Mancuso
Sports Editor

Despite losing in the No. 1 and No. 2 singles brackets, the SIUC men's tennis team won its other four singles matches and blew by Missouri Valley Conference foe Wichita State 5-3 Monday at the University Courts.

After taking a 4-2 lead in singles, the netters won one of two doubles matches before the third was called because of rain.

The win upped the Dawgs' record to 7-10.

Juniors Jay Merchant and Tim Derouin lost in straight sets to their counterparts in the No. 1 and No. 2 flights, respectively. Simon Cornish stopped Merchant 6-4, 6-1, and Darren Frian beat Derouin 6-1,6-4.

But No. 3 man Altif Merchant got the Salukis on the right track.

Merchant, a freshman, dropped the first set 4-6 to the Shockers' Cary Weingust but rallied to win the next two, 7-5, 6-1.

Freshman Uwe Classen topped WSU's Greg Brueckner 6-2,6-4 in Flight 4, sophomore Kai Kramer beat Richard Lamothe 6-2, 6-3 in Flight 5, and freshman Andre Goransson zipped by Ravi Malhotra 6-4, 7-5 in Flight 6 to put the Dawgs up by two points going into doubles play.

In Flight 1 doubles, Brueckner and Lamothe beat J. Merchant and Derouin 6-2, 6-4.

But the Salukis won the match when Classen and Goransson topped Cornish and Frian 6-3, 7-6.

Boxing 'greatest' Ali hailed for humanitarian activities

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, relishing the typical glow created by his presence, Monday returned to the city where he split two fights with Joe Frazier to be honored for his humanitarianism.

At a luncheon in an exclusive midtown hotel, Ali was the first recipient of a humanitarianism award created by philanthropist Victor Potamkin, who previously has honored Athletes of the Year selected by a media vote.

Accompanied by his wife Lonnie and 13-month-old son Asaad, Ali took joy in seeing old faces from the New York boxing world. They included Floyd Patterson, the first heavyweight to reclaim the crown as Ali would later do; retired broadcasters Don Dunphy and Howard Cosell, and boxing commissioners of New York and New Jersey.

Mayor David Dinkins spoke, "to join with so many people in the world in the chorus of praise for Muhammad Ali," he said, and refrains followed.

Dinkins recalled a time he was so struck by the former champion's words, Ali wrote his words on a napkin the mayor keeps and treasures.

"Service to others is the rent you pay for space on earth," Dinkins repeated Ali's own words to describe a man who travels the world to support countless causes, and to show appreciation in person for the adoration he has cultivated.

Devils must clear crease to put crease in Rangers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first thing the New Jersey Devils must do to upset the New York Rangers in their opening-round playoff series is yank the welcome mat from goaltender Chris Terrieri's crease.

Terrieri was left to his own devices for much of the Rangers' 2-1 triumph over the Devils Sunday night, almost single-handedly pulling off an upset in the series opener.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven Patrick Division semifinal is set for Tuesday night in New York before the series shifts to New Jersey for Games 3 and 4.

Terrieri stopped 36 shots in a game far more one-sided than the final score, but he was more upset with the officiating of referee Bill McCreary than with the play of his defensemen.

"Before the game they tell us they're going to enforce the crease rules," said Terrieri, referring to the NHL's crackdown on interference in the crease this season.

Terrieri appeared to have a legitimate gripe on the game's opening goal early in the first period.

Darren Turcotte followed up his own shot by lifting the puck over a prone Terrieri, who was knocked to the ice by Mike Gartner as the Rangers winger skated through the crease.

"Gartner took my skates out there," Terrieri said.

"I got a great reaction from the ref on that one. He said, 'Well, he (Terrieri) made the first save.' I said, 'Well, that's nice, too bad I had to dive for it because I was taken out of the play.'"

A video replay appeared to substantiate Terrieri's claim that Gartner arrived in the crease prior to the puck, which is illegal.

Terrieri also questioned the legality of what proved to be the winning goal, scored by Gartner early in the third period.

Gartner picked up the rebound of his own wide-angle shot and circled the net.

Rangers Russian center Sergei Nemchinov then skated up the slot and into Terrieri in the crease, enabling Gartner to stuff the puck inside the unguarded far post.

"I don't care if I'm sitting in center ice — you look up at the replay and I think it's Erixon (Nemchinov) standing up in the crease," Terrieri said.

"You (McCreary) say one thing and do another."

Although Nemchinov was in the crease prior to the puck, Devils winger Claude Vilgrain cross-checked the Russian forward into Terrieri, preventing him from getting to the other side.

Gartner said Terrieri can expect more of the same the rest of the series.

"You are going to see a lot of plays like these in the playoffs," he said. "Goals are not necessarily the prettiest. Pucks are going to go in off second or third efforts. Off pants, or legs, or bodies."

Borg ousted in first round of Monte Carlo — again

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, looking tired and unable to capitalize on an opponent's injury, continued his tennis comeback Monday with a 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 loss to Wayne Ferreira of South Africa.

"This is the kind of match I want to play," Borg said. "So I need to keep playing."

The match comes one week after another first-round knockout — a straight-set loss to Olivier Delaite at the Nice Open.

The 35-year-old Swede, once the game's supreme player, is ranked 1,123rd on the ATP Tour. Borg began his comeback from a nine-year layoff at this same Monte Carlo Open a year ago — losing to Jordi Arrese of Spain.

Against Ferreira, Borg managed a set point at 5-4 in the first set. But the South African, despite a leg injury, fought back, often leaving the slower Borg flat-footed.

In the second set, Borg was broken early and the capacity crowd of 7,000 at center court saw the six-time French Open winner exit in 71 minutes.

Ferreira called it a "privilege" to play Borg, saying it is "something I'm going to cherish all my life."

Another crowd favorite, Frenchman Henri Leconte, was also ousted on the opening day of the tournament.

Ikangaa battled for the lead until about the 19-mile mark.

Going into three tough hills in Newton, about 20 miles into the course, the lead pack was reduced to three — Hussein, Ikangaa and Kenya's Boniface Merende. Ikangaa dropped back on the first hill. Hussein shed Merende on the final hill, then picked up the pace over the final four miles.

Panfil surged to a big early lead, setting a split record through the first checkpoint in Ashland, five miles into the course. After 20 miles, she was struggling but holding a lead over Germany's Uta Pippig. But Markova, running strongly, moved past both runners.

Japan's Yoshiko Yamamoto was the second woman to finish. She was followed by Pippig, Manuela Machado of Portugal and Margorzata Birbach of Poland.

Hussein and Markova ran personal bests. Before this race, Hussein's best previous time was his 1991 Boston Marathon (2:08:43). Markova's previous best was 2:28:18. Each earned $60,000 for winning.

Hussein, whose victories have come in 1988, 1991 and 1992, joins a short list of three-time winners at the Boston Marathon: Clarence DeMar (seven), Bill Rodgers (four), Leslie Pawson, Gerard Cote and Eino Oksanen (three each).

American runners were notably absent Monday because their Olympic trials were held April 11 in Columbus, Ohio.

Doug Kurtis, Northville, Mich., was the top American. He finished 19th in 2:17:03. Jane Welzel, a local runner from Hopkinton, was the top American female — 10th in her division in 2:36:21.

Those countries using the Boston Marathon as a qualifier for the Barcelona Olympics included Kenya, Tanzania, Russia, Mexico, Finland and New Zealand.

Jim Knaub, Long Beach, Calif., won the wheelchair division in a world-record time of 1:26:28. It was the second consecutive victory in this race for Knaub.

Jean Driscoll, Champaign, Ill., won the women's division of the wheelchair competition for a third straight year. She finished in a world-record time of 1:36:52.

Pierre Levisse of France took the men's masters division in 2:16:46. Anne Rhoden of Britain won the women's masters in 2:37:34. She was 12th among all women.

Among the throng of runners was Johnny Kelley, 84, of East Dennis, Mass. With the exception of 1968, Kelley has run Boston every year since 1932. He won in 1935 and 1945 and finished second seven times.

She also bolted to a career-best performance in the 200-meter dash with a winning time 23.90. She is now ranked for the first time on the SIUC all-time best list with a second place standing.

Junior Becky Coyne finished first in the semifinals of the 100-meter hurdles with a career-best time of 13.98 that moved her from four to number two on the SIUC all-time best list.

Coyne finished fourth with a time of 14.09 in the finals.

Freshman LaTonya Morrison finished fifth in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 14.63 that placed her fifth on the SIUC all-time best list.

The 4x100-meter relay team of Constantinou, Coyne, Morrison, and junior Nacolia Moore placed second with a time of 47.53 that received a number eight ranking on the SIUC all-time best list.

Illinois came in first with a time of 45.66 and OSU did not place because of a dropped baton the first exchange of the race.

The early concern about the Salukis performances in the sprint events was not visible at the invite, DeNoon said.

"I felt good about our sprinters, and we held our own against the better sprinting teams," he said.

In the javelin, Jamie Dashner beat rival Michelle Warren, 1 of 2, with a toss of 141-4 beating Warren's 139-3. Dashner and Warren have been trading places battling for the top spot in the competition for the past two invites.

Overall the team kept up with an outstanding field and did its best to match-up, DeNoon said.

"Half of our performances were flatter than I thought they should be, and half were better," he said. "In the end we were successful."

The Salukis will separate for split team meets at the Drake Relays and the Murray State Invitational Friday and Saturday.

"Angie has always been a good batter," Buckles said. "But when they got the designated hitter in each game, we took the pitcher out to let them rest between the innings."

"The pitcher has more at stake when they are batting because its a win or loss to them, and that influences them to do well. The team also has encouraged her, and with the excitement gives the team an uplift."

Mick, who leads the team with 11 wins and a 1.31 ERA, said she was surprised to be named.

"I didn't realize I had a chance," Mick said. "It's kind of a shock. I really didn't feel like I had any exceptional plays. I guess the overall outcome of the game helped me."

The Salukis will play St. Louis in their last non-conference double-header of the season at 3 p.m. Wednesday at IAW Softball Complex.

finished off the scoring for the Salukis.

The team still needs to improve on the mental aspects of the game, Daugherty said.

"We get really close, and when it's time to get mentally tough, we just can't put it together," she said. "We need to work on our concentrating."

The first day score of 331 was really disappointing, Daugherty said.

"When all five players can't come together it hurts us," she said.

Pace said she feels the Salukis catch "the final hole jitters."

"It seems we blow up on the last few holes and lose our concentration," she said. "We worked on our concentration the second day and saw some improvement."

The Salukis hope to improve their concentration at the Tres Hombres/Busch Light Tournament in Midland Hills on Saturday.

The relaxed but competitive tournament benefits the team and will be good practice for the Salukis, Pace said.

"I think that when we play in a tourney like that, it will help our concentration and ease some of the tension going into the championships," she said.

The Gateway Conference championships will take place on May 4 and 5 in Wichita, Kan.

a first round matchup against defending national champion Wichita State. The Shockers are 34-7 on the season, with a 13-2 record against Valley competition.

SALUKI STARTER Mike Van Gilder has played a major role in keeping the Dawgs alive in the Valley race.

Van Gilder has struggled against non-MVC opponents, compiling a 1-5 record with a 6.57 earned run average. In four conference matchups, however, Van Gilder sports a 4-0 record with a 1.63 ERA. His most recent accomplishment was a 1-0 victory Saturday at Northern Iowa.

Van Gilder held the Panthers to three hits in the win Saturday gaining the win despite the fact the Dawgs could only collect two hits of their own. Saluki designated hitter Ed Janke scored the winning run on a passed ball after walking in the second inning and advancing to third base when right fielder Scott Foster and left fielder Jeff Cwynar were hit by pitches.

DESPITE THE improving pitching, the Salukis' offense continues to struggle. The Dawgs have averaged only four hits in their last three games, including losses to SIU-Edwardsville, in which they collected six, and St. Louis University, in which they reached safely four times.

The Salukis' team batting average has dropped from .266 to .254 after the three games.

Thursday after the Dawgs loss to SIUE, head coach Sam Riggelman said early season injuries to outfielders Dan Esplin and Jason Smith have left Saluki starters without relief from a busy schedule.

"We just have a lot of bad swings now," he said. "I think it's just fatigue."

"The injuries have really worn us down. It's tough to make adjustments when you're out there playing every day."

FIRST BASEMAN Darrin Barton has taken over the team lead in batting average for starters. Barton has boosted his average to .322, passing third baseman Brian Heather, who has dropped from a peak of .382 this season to a current mark of .305. Pitcher-turned-designated hitter Tom Giese holds a .375 mark, collecting three hits in eight appearances.

THE SALUKIS face the University of Missouri for a double-header Wednesday in Columbia, Mo. before taking on ISU for a three-game series beginning Friday.
