$57,000 Received for Student Aid

The SIU Student Work and Financial Assistance Office has received a $57,000 educational opportunities grant from the federal government.

Raymond P. DeJarnett, assistant director of the office, said the educational opportunity grant is a new program and is designed to help students who have a scholastic potential and are from low income families."

DeJarnett said the money will be used to help make up the differences between the needy student's resources and his scholastic expenses. Grants may range from $200 to a maximum of $800 for the school year.

The new program will be effective the fall quarter of this year, DeJarnett said.

In another federal grant, SIU received $960,012 for the student work program. This is about twice the amount received last year for the program, DeJarnett said the increase was due to the growth of the student work program and the anticipated increase in enrollment at SIU during the next academic year.

The funds from the two grants will be administered to students at both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

During the past year SIU students received more than $4.6 million in earnings through various work programs and through scholarships and loans administered by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Cycle Firm Offers Plan Against Ban

A major motorcycle company has offered a set of alternatives to the administration's recent regulation's on cycles.

The alternative came in a letter to Ralph W. Ruffner, vice president of student and area services. Ruffner is now on vacation and could not be reached for comment on the letter.

The author of the letter, a company official, said he was suggesting the alternatives "in a spirit of constructive criticism."

His four suggestions were for special motorcycle-operators licenses in the state, compulsory riding clinics, mandatory use of helmets and an inspection program to prevent loud mufflers.

The official learned of the regulations through the local dealer, who sent the company a copy of the administration's bulletin announcing the restrictions.

He pointed out that the special motorcycle operators license might help reduce their danger because driving a motorcycle requires different skills than driving a car. Such licenses are endorsed by the Motorcycle, Scooter and Allied Trades Association (MS&ATA).

The proposed safe riding clinic is now being tried in the Los Angeles area as a pilot program for other communities, the official said. He proposed that anyone who wished to use a cycle on campus should be required to attend the clinic.

SIU Won't Curb Fall Admissions, Chamberlin Says

SIU has no plans for curtailing admission of qualified students for the coming fall quarter, Admissions Director Leslie J. Chamberlin said Monday.

Chamberlin said SIU will continue to accept all qualified students as long as there is time for such students to register for classes and arrange housing. The fall quarter begins Sept. 21.

Prospective students who have not yet contacted the Admissions Office to initiate their applications should do so immediately, however, Chamberlin said.

Real Deluge Is Winter

Textbook Service Busily Planning for Fall; New Works Will Cost Half Million Dollars

(SIU is expecting another record-breaking crop of students. This is the first in a series of articles telling what is being done to prepare for their arrival.)

By Margaret Perez

The Textbook Service is "spending money like it's going out of style" in preparing for the additional 2,000 students that will be on campus this fall, according to Henry T. Stroman, manager of SIU's textbook rentals.

The half a million dollar operation, located in the basement of Morris Library, will have to add to its 25 to 30 student workers this fall to provide adequate distribution of books to an estimated 19,000 or more students.

"Last year we spent about $450,000 on just new and additional books," Stroman said. "This does not count operational expenses and book repair expenses."

"The textbook business here is an expensive affair, and costs will go even higher with the additional students on campus in the fall," he said.

"The quantity of books we need is always increasing," he said. "For instance, one order last year for a certain book in a General Studies course was $35,000."

The real problem of textbook distribution won't begin in the fall, Stroman said. The Textbook Service will feel the real weight of the additional students when books are distributed at the beginning of the winter quarter.

"The situation is never very critical in the fall because all the incoming freshmen and new students are taken care of during the student orientation," Stroman said. "Their books are handed out before most of the regular students come back to school."

"Our real problem will begin winter quarter when the enrollment will be stepped up again, and we won't have the few extra days to distribute to the new students first," he said.

A big help in relieving the long lines that wind around Morris Library during textbook distribution time is the moving of graduate student book sales to the fifth floor, Stroman said. This was done last year.

"However, no matter what is done in preparation, we know that we will run into problems anyway," he said.

Nonsupervised Housing Affected

University housing officials said Monday they will begin strict enforcement of regulations under which students are permitted to live in unsupervised off-campus housing this fall.

Letters will be sent this week to a number of students who have listed unsupervised housing as their local addresses.

An office spokesman said that as many as 1,000 students might be affected by the move.

The letter, signed by Mrs. Anita B. Kuo, supervisor of off-campus housing, says in part:

"In reviewing University records, it has become evident that you may be planning to live in unsupervised housing this fall quarter.

"The information in this letter is therefore being sent as a reminder that certain University regulations affect the choice of this type of housing and that these regulations will be enforced..."

The letter lists the categories of students who are eligible to apply for special permission to live in accepted living centers. They are:

--Those who are at least 21 years of age and have an overall grade point average of 3.3.

--Those, under 21, who have at least junior standing (96 quarter credits completed) and an overall grade point average of 3.3.

--Those who do not fit into the above categories who have an overriding reason in the findings of the special housing committee which is made up of two assistant deans of students and the supervisor of off-campus housing.

"If it understood that the above students are expected to have a satisfactory disciplinary record," the letter says.

"I urge you to read this let-

Love's Wailing Is Liked

'Brigadoon' Shows Top Singing; Small Roles Receive Big Acting

By Margaret Perez

The Summer Music Theater is saying goodbye to another season in fine form. People in the audience Saturday night in Shryock Auditorium seemed to feel this way as they rapped their feet in delight to the music of "Brigadoon," a Lerner and Loewe musical.

The final production of the summer troupe is a tender love story woven into the mysteries of a magical Scottish village.

Several solo performances by the stars of the musical, Robert Guy and Susie Webb, headed a sparkling list of top singing efforts by the entire cast.

The singing was surpassed only by the lively professional-type dancing of Michael Tevlin and Sondra Sugai.

The musical is the story of the experiences of two Americans, Guy, and William McHughes, who lose their way while hunting in the wilds of Scotland. They come upon Brigadoon, a magical Scottish village which comes to life for one day every 100 years.

McHughes, in his non-singing role, made a successful attempt as the comedy side kick of Guy. He had a stiff beginning, but his comic lines got funnier as the musical progressed. His most amusing endeavors involved his scenes stage intrigue was Payne's with Elizabeth Weiss, as a milkmaid Meg.

Miss Weiss dropped the regal robes that she so ably wore in "Once Upon a Mattress" with ease and became an endearing man-chasing Scottish lass. The audience laughed with her as she wailed out "The Love of My Life."

Jim Fox, perhaps one of the most unforgettable stars of this year's Summer Music group, distinguished himself in "Brigadoon" in his minor role of Mr. Lundie, the old schoolmaster.

Fox made his attempts at an authentic Scottish brogue. His spunk and lively antics brought wild applause and whistles from the audience that brought his small part to the top of the list of favorites.

Contributing to the success of the performance were the skillfully executed set arrangements under the direction of set designer Darwin Payne. Highlighting the handling of flashback scenes near the end of the play.

Action Party Had No Plan for Rally

A spokesman for the Action Party said Monday that no rally had been planned following the motorcycle protest parade around the campus last Thursday.

The parade was staged to protest the University's decision to put cycles under the same restrictions as automobiles.

Stage director of the musical is Joseph Stockdale, who has directed 60 major productions for the Purdue University Theater. He was assisted in the production by William Taylor, musical director, and Gilbert Reed, choreographer.

Final presentations of the play, ending the Summer Music Theater season, will be Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Hark, Oh Lyndon; Thy Enemies Stir

So here we are amidst plenty and our leader, LBJ, promises yet more. The slogan "guns and butter" doesn't sound so promising any more. Survival of the fittest isn't quite working out.

Perhaps the President doth propose too much. Out, out, damn critics; up, up, damn princes; back, back, damn machines.

Whether it is nobler in the mind to wage the war on poverty than to suffer the slings and arrows of the Viet Cong; to stay or not to stay is no longer the question, but rather how to bring Ho to the conference table. Ay, there's the rub. The war's the thing in which we'll catch our lumps. What tempest this is that makes us sore afraid for the life of our liberty?

The noble statesman cries: "Mah fellow Americans, lend me your alms. Ah come not to bury America but to praise my own programs for peace and prosperity. The evil that men do lives after them, but the good is of it NOTED with their bones. Let it NOT be thus with Lyndon."

But hark, what light through yonder window breaks—it is the great society--and Lyndon is the Great. But also hark, beware of yon Nixon, Romney, Rockefeller, they have a lean and hungry look.

Beware Lyndon, your Loves Labor may be Lost in the Tempest.

Motorcycle Paraders Fall Flat; They Clinched Ban by University

Dear Action Party:

Thank you so much for the pleasant ride for wheels which you sponsored Thursday evening in downtown Carbondale. What do you think you accomplished? I'll tell you exactly what you accomplished in my thoughts--nothing!

We were parked on University Avenue waiting for the "parade" to come slowly down the street, making a good impression on the people of Carbondale. Instead, coming through the streets (at approximately 40-45 miles an hour) was a bunch of bermuda shorted, long haired, hotrodgers showing off. Is this the kind of impression to make if you want to keep motorcycles on campus or try to get them back on campus? You surely went about it in the wrong way.

As the secretary of the Southern Rider's, I certainly didn't want to see students lose their motorcycle privileges and I kept asking my husband, Larry, "What can we do--they don't care, why should we?" Well, you students who rode in the parade certainly answered the question. Go ahead and take the motorcycles away if the ones who ride them are like the bunch who rode them Thursday night--who cares?

Last year, the Southern Rider's Association more or less saved the cycles from being banned when they organized a student organization concerned with the safety and pleasure of motorcycling. We held several organized events (sponsored through the American Motorcycling Association) and, I am sad to say, we had more spectators than we did riders in most events.

If the students who rode in the parade were here last year and wanted to show how good they are at riding, why didn't they come to our events where they could really prove they are good riders?

I'll tell you why; most of them think they are good riders and prove it by dragging down the streets of town like they did Thursday night--they really know nothing about motorcycling or how to have fun on a motorcycle.

Again, thank you for the parade, Action Party and members of the parade. You surely lost the motorcycles for good, now.

OAS Meeting Postponed

Latin States Divided On Argentine Issue

By Carlos Conde Copley News Service

WASHINGTON—An unforeseen controversy over the Western Hemisphere's foreign ministers meeting has been created by the United States' vacillating policy and the Organization of American States' evasive attitude toward the new Argentine government. The OAS decided to postpone the Aug. 29 meeting in Buenos Aires and will meet before Oct. 10 to set a new date.

It gave no reason for the decision, but an OAS ambassador said privately the action was a result of divided opinion over the policies of the Argentine revolutionary government.

"We want to go to the Buenos Aires meeting as one harmonious body," he said. "Right now, we couldn't even go as a body much less as a harmonious one."

Everything was set until June 28 when Arturo Illia's government was overthrown by a military junta.

Some Latins say they will not attend any meeting in Argentina; others fear a meeting there might involve them in squabbles unrelated to the official business at hand.

Some Latin American states also don't want to offend Argentina, so the only thing they can agree on is to stall the meeting.

Some countries still undecided about their position with Argentina and who are looking to the United States for a lead have been befuddled by the State Department's ambiguous policy.

Assistant secretary for Latin American affairs, Lincoln Gordon, quickly summoned Argentina's charges d'affaires, Carlos A. Quesada, after a U.S. professor was beaten up as police broke up a meeting at the University of Buenos Aires.

Many observers expected Argentina would get a stern admonition from Gordon, but the undersecretary only expressed "concern." The Argentines didn't rush out an explanation to the formal protest, and the United States didn't press for one either.

"As a former university professor, I have often lamented that the tradition of university freedom or autonomy, whose proper purpose is to protect the freedom of teaching, has been abused in some Latin American institutions to the extent of their becoming asylums for gangsters or for professional students who have no interest in studies but only in subversive agitation," Gordon said.

"I appreciate that any government might be concerned at this condition, but I believe these abuses should be corrected through civilized and lawful means and not through violent police raids," he said.

The State Department has publicly said repeatedly that all U.S. aid to Argentina has been suspended and is still "under study."

However, most of the committed AID projects to Argentina have never stopped, a U.S. official admitted.

Mexican Economy Benefits From Alliance for Progress

By Harold Y. Jones Copley News Service

MEXICO CITY—The U.S. inspired Alliance for Progress has pumped nearly $1.5 billion into Mexico's fast-developing economy since 1961, according to the U.S. Embassy here. The figure includes all loans from all outside sources, mainly the United States.

The Alliance is an inter-American effort to get the backward nations of Latin America to speed up economic and social development.

Few Latin American nations plunged so speedily and enthusiastically into economic and social development programs as did Mexico.

But Mexicans take virtually all the credit themselves.

"We have been working on these reforms for more than half a century," one proudly pointed out. "Ever since the revolution."

He referred to the revolution of 1910, during which peasants rose up against the big landholders, took control of the government and divided the land into small plots and let peasants work, but not own, them.

For the Mexicans, the Alliance and its aims were nothing new. It was no surprise, therefore, that Mexico went on receiving loans and technical aid from the United States but made no mention of the Alliance and gave only passing credit to Washington for its help.

If Mexico wanted to play down U.S. influence, that was up to the Mexicans. In fact, former President Adolfo Lopez Mateos made no mention at all of the Alliance in his three final State of the Union messages delivered in 1962, 1963 and 1964.

But his successor, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, brought U.S. diplomats to the edges of their seats last September when he made his first State of the Union speech. He praised the Alliance and practically raised it to the status of the Mexican Revolution.

"The Mexican government is determined to carry on with the reforms initiated within the framework of the revolution, later supported by the Alliance for Progress, which has operated satisfactorily in Mexico," said Diaz Ordaz. By satisfactorily, Diaz Ordaz meant that Alliance money is helping attack what he himself describes as the most serious problem in Mexico: poverty in rural areas where half the nation's 42 million people live hand to mouth, virtually outside the economy.

The U.S. government and international lending agencies loaned Mexico $965 million in the five-year period to help the country develop its rural areas—new roads, electrification, irrigation and housing.

During the five-year period, the United States loaned Mexico $58.3 million worth of food commodities as an inducement to rural communities to put in wells and sewers. The program ended officially in June 1965, Mexico now says it can go forward on its own, in that area.

An Agency for International Development official here said the feeling is that the loans are all good risks. "The Mexican economy is healthy," he said, "and these loans can only help it expand. And there's no risk for the United States—Mexico has always paid its debts and is still doing so."

Students in Industrial Design Help Firms Solve Problems

Seniors majoring in industrial design in the School of Technology are helping area industries solve some of their problems.

The program began late in 1964 at an industrial design seminar when John M. Pollock, professor in charge of industrial design, told a group of industrialists he would welcome actual problems for his senior students to work on. Pollock's offer was accepted, and an increasing number of firms have turned over complex and persistent operating or production problems to him for assignment as class projects.

Not every problem has been satisfactorily solved, Pollock admitted, but some have resulted in glowing successes.

Among firms first involved in the program was the Stanford Engineering Company of Salem. It needed a new coding system for its engineering drawings.

"One problem facing all engineering departments of any size," explained Richard G. Dame, Stanford's manufacturing manager, "is a good method of indexing or coding their drawings. We were interested in a code system which would be suitable for present use and compatible with data processing when we become large enough to have data processing equipment."

Pollock assigned the Stanford problem to students David Hildebrecht of Carbondale and Jerry Leman of Peoria. Working as a team, Hildebrecht and Leman devised a numbered coding system providing immediate identification of a drawing, including description of the part, the number of separate parts and drawings involved, model number of the machine which first used the part and origin of the part.

The code also shows which of four possible sizes the drawing is, and identifies which of 99 different types of materials are used in the part represented.

Another firm initially involved was American Magnetics Corp. of Carterville. The company wanted to manufacture a portable converter which would enable campers to operate electrical household appliances from an automobile battery, and sought help in designing it.

Pollock assigned the project to St. Louis student Robert W. Frank, who in 11 weeks had a working model. Ben Couch, American Magnetics president, was so impressed with Frank's work that he immediately offered him a job as industrial design engineer upon graduation.

Problems tackled by Pollock's students have been broad in scope. One involved conversion of electrical equipment using standard wiring tubes to solid state and transistor design, making it more compact and lighter and yet increasing its efficiency.

The projects have sometimes called for redesign of products already proved successful on the market.

Pollock uses care in matching problems to students, taking into consideration the student's special interests and talents.

"We were faced with the problem of giving our students some kind of real experience equivalent to what they could expect after they leave school and get out on the job," Pollock explained.

"Now, with the cooperation of industries which have come to us with their problems, we feel we have our problem well in hand. So far, the industries seem well satisfied too, and it looks as if we will be able to expand the program significantly."

Bombers Make Double Runs; Terrorism in Streets Spreads

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Air Force B52 bombers swept in from Guam twice Monday and dumped their heavy loads on two Communist Viet Cong bases in South Viet Nam. Ground warfare was reported limited to scattered patrol activity.

For the second straight day the bombers were assigned two separate targets. They hit a Viet Cong base 45 miles east of Saigon, and an enemy resupply and training center 120 miles southwest of Saigon.

This followed up double punches Sunday at a suspected Viet Cong division headquarters near the Cambodian border, and North Vietnamese troop concentrations just south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

Viet Cong terrorist activity flared anew Monday with a U.S. jeep in the city of Gia Dinh near Saigon the target of a lone grenade hurler. Four U.S. servicemen and an American civilian were wounded, none seriously. A Vietnamese passer-by also was wounded. The terrorist fled.

On Saturday night, six Communist terrorists staged a grenade attack on a U.S. servicemen's club in downtown Da Nang. Six U.S. servicemen, three American civilians and a Vietnamese civilian were wounded. One terrorist was wounded fatally.

On the ground, an undetermined number of Viet Cong attacked a government post at Lau Ba, 78 miles southwest of Saigon. The Communists inflicted moderate casualties on the platoon of troops guarding the post.

The Australians ended a search for the North Vietnamese unit they tangled with last Thursday. The battle was the biggest yet for the troops of the 6th Battalion, Royal Australian Regiment, and the largest Australian action since the Korean War. The Aussies reported killing at least 245 North Vietnamese of an estimated 1,000-man force.

Quake's Victims Stilled Under Turkish Debris

VARTO, Turkey —(AP) — Moans and cries from the debris have ceased and authorities in Varto gave up hope Monday of finding any more survivors in the disastrous quake that killed and injured several thousand persons in eastern Turkey last Friday.

Premier Suleyman Demirel estimated in Ankara that 2,000 persons had been killed and 58,000 families were left homeless by Friday's quake. But Hasan Kafagi, prefect of Varto, said 2,129 dead had been counted in the Varto area alone. Officials in the disaster zone have said the toll may reach or pass 3,000. They also reported more than 2,300 injured.

Varto is a county seat of some 700 mud huts and civic buildings. It bore the full fury of the quake. It lost hundreds of residents and all but three buildings. Varto is in Mus Province, just to the south of Ezzurum Province, which also was hard hit.

"We don't believe anybody can still be alive under that rubble," said an official in Varto. Aftershocks hit the countryside for the third successive day since the big quake. Som previously cracked buildings in nearby Hinis township collapsed.

The new tremors terrified hundreds of thousands of dazed peasants in the four stricken provinces of eastern Turkey. Thousands have taken to tents in the field or wrap themselves in blankets at night.

Drive Ban On Cicero Requested

CHICAGO - (AP)—Sheriff Richard Ogilvie of Cook County asked the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Monday to cancel a march into suburban Cicero, the scene of rioting 15 years ago.

Ogilvie sent a telegram to King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in Atlanta. King left for Atlanta early Monday and is scheduled to return to Chicago today.

Ogilvie asked King to cancel a march into Cicero scheduled for Sunday after conferring with officials of the Cicero police department.

The police department in Cicero says it will ask that the Illinois National Guard be activated if the march is held in the community of 70,000. Some officials consider Cicero one of the most touchy all-white communities in Illinois.

Meanwhile, civil rights leaders scheduled a mass meeting for Monday night to plan their next round of protests against alleged housing discrimination.

A closed-door conference of Chicago Real Estate Board executives and civil rights leaders reconvened Monday on a possible formula to ease tension through agreement on concessions.

GM Won't Reopen Wage Negotiations

DETROIT —(AP)—General Motors Corp. Monday turned down a request from the United Auto Workers that GM's labor contract be reopened to negotiate pay raises for skilled workers.

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. officials also were meeting with UAW representatives and also were expected to reject the requests.

The reluctance of the Big Three firms was attributed in part to fears that unskilled production line workers also would pressure for more pay if concessions were made to the skilled tradesmen.

Contending that skilled workers elsewhere earned considerably more than those in the auto plants, the UAW had asked for an immediate increase of at least 50 cents hourly and had demanded an answer Monday.

The big three previously had pointed out that automatic increases under current contracts will increase the pay of UAW members employed by them by $186 million annually, beginning two weeks hence.

An increased cost of living index announced in Washington Monday will add an additional two cents hourly. And GM previously said added medical-hospital benefits effective next month would up the cost of its fringes to $1.20 hourly.

Dirksen Seeks Senate Vote On School Prayer Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate is going to get a chance to vote before Labor Day on a proposed school prayer amendment, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Monday.

Dirksen told an informal news conference that he plans to move to substitute for a United Nations Children's funds resolution his proposal to amend the Constitution to provide for voluntary prayers in the schools. It would have the effect of overturning a Supreme Court decision against such prayers.

The resolution he will seek to supplant would designate Oct. 31 as United Nations Children's Educational Fund Day.

The prayer amendment has drawn strong opposition in Senate Judiciary Committee meeting, on the grounds that it would infringe on the traditional separation of church and state. Dirksen said he will make no further moves toward prying it out of committee.

Unions Plan Strike On Canadian Rails

MONTREAL --(AP)—Union leaders announced at a news conference Monday that Canada's major railways will be struck at noon Friday by 120,000 employees to enforce wage demands.

A Cabinet railway strike committee headed by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, met in Ottawa to consider possible government action. Participating in the strike move are 100,000 nonoperating employees and 20,000 members of an operating group, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The strike was called against Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Pacific Railway and five other lines.

Airline Service Will Be Back To Normal Soon on All Lines

NEW YORK (AP)—Four of five airlines which had been shut down by a 43-day strike reported that full flight services had been restored.

The four airlines—Eastern, Trans World, National and United—said passenger traffic was lighter than normal but picking up.

The fifth airline, Northwest, said it was flying 75 per cent of its normal flight schedule Monday and expected to be back in full operation by the weekend.

It said it planned to resume its Hawaii flights Thursday and its Alaska operations Saturday.

United reported that over the weekend it carried a total of 64,656 passengers over 60,130,000 passenger miles. On the weekend of July 2-3 prior to the strike, United carried 117,493 passengers over 102,407,000 miles.

A spokesman for United said the line anticipated flying 51,642 passengers Monday, about 85 per cent of normal Monday traffic.

Top Prep Sprint Star Will Join Hartzog's Already Potent Squad

By Mike Schwebel

"I've been after some top sprinters for a long time," said SIU track Coach Lew Hartzog.

The coach was talking about the past and there is good reason to believe that Saluki hopes in dash events will soon blossom.

Recruiting heavily in the sprint department Hartzog has added what might be the top catch in his coaching career to an already potent Saluki squad.

Kirk Clayton, a Baton Rouge, La., product who is one of only five prep runners in history to hit the 9.4-second mark in the 100-yard dash, is headed for Southern in the fall.

The 19-year-old youngster will be joining other speedsters recruited by Hartzog this year.

Allen Deppe, the Trico ace who took both the 100-yard and 220-yard events in the Illinois state meet, was signed to a scholarship earlier.

Jimmy Thomas, another Baton Rouge youngster, was a double-event winner in his state's high school meet, winning the low and high hurdle events. He will also be entering Southern this year.

Joining these state champions will be a runner-up in the 100- and 220-yard events.

Del Jeffries, a Detroit prep star, will round out a four-some which could be the fastest freshman group in the nation.

With Hartzog seeking out,

Intramural Softball Playoffs to Begin

The Intramural Softball Tournament summer playoffs begin at 6:30 p.m. today as CGA Chemistry takes on the Allen I team in the first game at the field south of the Arena.

The winner of that contest will go against the Alkies for the championship game, scheduled for 6:30 Wednesday.

The umpires for both games will be Brad Bates and Bob Ballantine, with Larry Lauth the scorekeeper.

LEW HARTZOG

and finding, some of the finest high school talent in the nation, the veterans of a fine 1966 squad which came on strong at the end will give the Salukis depth in all but a few positions.

Oscar Moore, of course, will be back to lead the distance specialists, and Hartzog will have a strong lineup in that department.

Al Ackman, Jeff Duxbury and John Trowbridge will also be returning, and they will be joined by a couple of fine prospects coming up through the freshman ranks.

Mitch Livingston should return stronger than ever in the high jump event as a junior.

John Vernon, hobbled by leg trouble at the end of the season, could be the nation's top collegiate threat in his specialty, the triple jump, if he regains his old form. He should also pick up some points in the broad jump.

The biggest loss suffered by the Salukis through graduation will come in the weight events, where George Woods ran a one-man show for most of his collegiate career.

Footballer Ralph Galloway will be available in the shot put and discus events, but taking over from Woods is close to impossible.

"George was one of those that you don't find very often," said Hartzog.

"It's not very often that you get hold of someone who can go out and hit well over the 60-foot mark in the shot put event."

Despite the bright glow of a prospective glittering future for SIU track, Hartzog is busy preparing for the upcoming cross-country season, which will begin this fall.

Moore, the former Olympian, will head a six-man squad which appears in store for a promising season.
