Committee hears energy crisis clues

by Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It's going to be a long, cold winter in Southern Illinois according to testimony offered Tuesday at an emergency hearing of the Illinois House of Representatives Energy Crisis Investigating Committee.

The committee convened in Student Center Ballroom A to investigate the facts behind the inadequate supply of natural gas and propane which threatens to retard the area's industrial growth and sharply curtail activities of existing industry.

Nine witnesses, representing area industry, Central Illinois Public Service (CIPS), the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality, the Illinois Commerce Commission, municipal interests and a group of SIU students, appeared to offer non-sworn testimony.

Industrial representatives all testified to imminent shut-downs or cut-backs in plant operations due to the unavailability of natural gas and propane. Most of the industries had converted from coal to gas to avoid violating state Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulations on air pollution, the witnesses said.

The industries represented were DuQuoin Packing Co., DuQuoin; Turco Mfg., DuQuoin; Fedders Corp., Herrin; Lustour Corp., Murphysboro and Marion Mine Service, Marion.

A representative of the Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce testified the city had lost a large industry when the firm was unable to obtain guarantees of year-round fuel supply.

CIPS spokesman, C.L. Greenwalt, testified "the foreseeable future does not hold the promise of any appreciable relief" from the natural gas shortage.

Greenwalt blamed the shortage on increased demands for natural gas and reduced efforts to explore for and drill new wells.

Greenwalt recommended the federal government lift ceilings on at-the-well gas prices as an incentive to exploration and drilling. He also said the EPA should relax its air pollution regulations and allow the use of high-sulfur coal until new sources of fuel can be found.

Samuel Booras, executive director, Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality, agreed there are no solutions to the immediate problem of fuel shortage. Booras offered hope that by 1980 coal gasification plants may be operating in the state.

Members of the committee present at the hearing were Rep. Daniel Pierce, chairman (D-Highland Park), Rep. Robert Craig (D-Danville), Rep. Raymond W. Ewell (D-Chicago), Rep. J. David Jones (R-Springfield) and Rep. Clarence Neff (R-Stronghurst).

Also present were Sen. Kenneth Zubee (D-Carbondale), Sen. Gene Johns (D-Marion), Rep. James Holloway (D-Spartan), Rep. Ralph Dunn (R-DuQuoin), Rep. John Hart (D-Benton) and Rep. Norbert Springer (R-Chester).

President flashes anger

Nixon wants issues heard by nation

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)—His efforts to launch a Watergate counter-offensive marred by a rare flash of public anger, President Nixon was described by aides Tuesday as pondering ways to speak out on vital issues facing the nation.

Outside a New Orleans convention hall Monday, an obviously irritated President gave press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler a hard shove with orders to straighten out confusion over which door the press should use.

The incident, filmed by network television camera crews, came after a reported assassination plot forced Nixon to cancel plans to ride in a motorcade through downtown New Orleans.

White House spokesmen would not explain Tuesday what specifically prompted Nixon's anger or say whether he had apologized to Ziegler.

"I can assure you that the presidential relationship is a good one," deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said when asked whether Nixon had apologized. "I don't think we need to add anything."

When reporters persisted with questions about the incident, Warren said, "Yesterday was a confused situation," and that the President observed that newsmen were preparing to use a convention hall door set aside for the official party. "The President reminded Ron of this," Warren said.

When asked whether the incident reflected any strain or pressure on the President, Warren said in reference to the reported assassination plot that "it was a highly unusual situation ... a difficult situation, a serious situation."

Then, in a clear reference to the impact of the Watergate scandal, Warren said there is "no question that the past few months have been periods of pressure on the President."

Warren also said Nixon is intent in "getting on with the essential business of the nation," citing such issues as the economy, foreign policy and energy. The President had sounded the same theme in his television address on Watergate last Wednesday.

The trip to New Orleans to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention was the first in a planned series of efforts to overcome the scandal's impact and rebuild sagging public confidence in the presidency.

A White House advance man had worked most of last week to arrange a public motorcade carrying Nixon through the heart of the downtown area but on Sunday, the President was informed of "a possible conspiracy" to assassinate him in the Louisiana city.

This prompted Nixon to accept a Secret Service recommendation that his plans to ride through downtown New Orleans be canceled and that his motorcade route be changed.

Warren refused Tuesday to give further details of the reported plot.

F-Senate creates yearly review of salary increases

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A yearly review of salary increases and distribution among faculty was voted into action by the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

Discussion of the necessity for such a move was prompted by charges from Robert Partlow, English professor, who said there was an "enormous discrepancy" between President David R. Derge's explanations of salary disbursements and "what actually happened."

"With a handful of exceptions, no one, to the best of my knowledge, has received a total amount or a percentage even close to what President Derge announced in the press," Partlow's statement said.

Partlow also argued that since the cost of living has risen 10 per cent, faculty members not receiving a similar pay hike were, in effect, taking a cut in pay. With some exceptions, most pay hikes for 1973-74 were on the order of 4.5 per cent.

Senate discussion tempered Partlow's approach, with the consensus being the yearly review of salary disbursements should become a routine responsibility of the senate. The review procedure was unanimously approved.

George Mace, former dean of students, was at the meeting to defend the charges against him that he stood in "egregious violation of academic ethics, free speech and common courtesy." The charges were made by Samuel Long, government professor, centering around Mace's alleged conduct at a press conference May 5, held by ex-POW Naval Lt. Cmdr. William Tschudy.

In a May 9 open letter to Mace, Long said Mace "abruptly terminated" the press conference when Joel Gruber, supposed reporter for The Southern Change, asked some "rather trenchant political and humanitarian questions" of Tschudy. Mace then allegedly grabbed Gruber by the arm and escorted him from the room.

Agnew claims publicity smear

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON AP—Justice Department officials Tuesday of "a clear and outrageous effort" to indict him through a campaign of smear publicity. The Justice Department said it shares Agnew's concern and is investigating.

Agnew, under investigation by a federal grand jury in Baltimore in connection with allegations of kickbacks and political corruption, said he had expected the Justice Department to keep silent about the probe until it was completed.

But leaks to the press, attributed, he said, to sources close to the investigation, have continued unabated since the investigation was disclosed in early August.

"I regret to say that it has become clear that the sources close to the investigation" so frequently quoted were indeed just that—persons involved in the investigatory process," Agnew said in an eight-minute statement made personally to newsmen and carried on radio and television.

Within hours, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson issued a three-paragraph statement in which he said "that every reasonable step is being taken to assure that the Justice Department has not been and will not be the source of such publicity."

Richardson said he shares Agnew's concern about unfair and inaccurate publicity, called on the news media to show restraint in reporting the Baltimore investigation and said that, at this point, there is no firm basis for assuming that leaks have come from law enforcement officials.

Richardson said any Justice Department employee found responsible would be subject to "appropriate disciplinary action."

Without naming the publication, Agnew specifically mentioned an article about the investigation in this week's Time magazine headlined, "Heading Toward an Indictment?" Portions of the article were reported by news services.

"I can only assume from this account that some Justice Department officials have declined to induct me in the press whether or not the evidence supports their position," the vice president said. "This is a clear and outrageous effort to influence the outcome of possible grand jury deliberations."

Saying again that he had nothing to hide and was innocent of the allegations of wrongdoing, Agnew said he did not blame the news media for the distribution of the stories about the progress of the investigation.

Agnew noted that last Sunday, Richardson denied that any leaks had come from the Justice Department.

Agnew made no reference to President Nixon, indication he had again struck out independently in his effort to preserve his political career, this time by dealing directly with a member of the Cabinet.

Project aims at relieving problem with authorities

By Ed Dunin-Wasowicz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

So you say that you feel pretty comfortable with most people you come in contact with except for that one professor that you just can't get along with and who doesn't understand you?

Well maybe Martin Haanstad, a graduate student in psychology who is working on a project dealing with people's problems with authority figures can help.

Haanstad and another graduate student, Jim Snyder, are assisting David Rimm, a psychology professor, in conducting training sessions formulated to remedy discomfort with authority figures.

"The purpose of the training sessions," Haanstad explained, "is to make people more effective in their dealings with a particular type of authority figure that they are having problems with."

He went on to say that the study is limited only to males and will cover four common authority figure areas.

"There is an initial assessment research method (questionnaire) to determine the area and degree of discomfort an individual experiences," Haanstad said.

The training technique employed is an accepted technique that is being used by psychologists.

Haanstad pointed out that persons need not have a serious problem to benefit from the technique.

"I think our response has been low because people feel that the study is only for maladjusted personalities," he said. "They are primarily for those with problems in the specific area of ineffectiveness in dealing with certain authorities. No one is going to be labeled as maladjusted."

The sessions will take place in a room in Life Science II.

Since the study began in spring quarter, Haanstad said the response had decreased in the summer months but overall has been "medium."

Those interested in the sessions should contact Martin Haanstad at 549-8292.

Council authorizes creation of citizen advisory committee

The establishment of a Citizens Advisory Committee to study the problems of Carbondale was unanimously approved by the city council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The ordinance specifies the committee should study city problems, serve as a fact finding, public information and education agency, offer advice and suggestions to the council and monitor projects and programs directed by the council.

Appointment of members to the committee would be made by the mayor with the consent of a majority of the council. A member will serve for three years with about one-third of the membership's terms expiring at the end of each year.

All members are required to be residents of Carbondale or to live in an area within 1 1/2 miles of the city limits. Membership of the committee would be limited to a minimum of 24 and a maximum of 30.

In other action, the council agreed to annex a 20-acre proposed site for a $3.5 million K-Mart Store and rezoned it from general residence to suburban business.

The site, located east of Carbondale on Rt. 13 across from Penney's is owned by the J.W. Land Trust. Construction is scheduled to begin after a site plan has been submitted by the developers.

A proposal prohibiting city employees from receiving any gifts from anyone dealing with the city was also approved.

Under the proposal, disclosure of interest would be required before any binding agreement by the city is made.

F-Senate creates salary review

Mace earlier denied the charges against him, and showed the senate a preliminary report from the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), who stepped into the matter as objective mediators.

The AAUP Grievance Committee said, from preliminary evidence, their evaluation and interpretation of what happened at the conference "sharply conflicted" with Long's statement.

Robert Harrell, AAUP president, said the investigation is not formally finished. He explained the committee is presently collecting documentation from both parties, and he emphasized the need for Long and Mace both to submit to the AAUP evidence and arguments for their respective sides.

After the data, hopefully including depositions from Garber and others, is collected, Harrell said AAUP's Executive Committee will make a final report on the matter.

The senate tabled any action on the matter, following a statement from JoAnne Thorpe, chairwoman, that it was not within the jurisdiction of the Faculty Senate. The affair, however, may come up on the senate's agenda for October, their next regular meeting.

William Eaton, professor of educational administration, questioned the propriety of having John Huffman, the University legal counsel, present at such proceedings as negotiations for judicial review and grievance board guidelines.

Eaton said the presence of Huffman lent a "quasi-legalistic" tone to negotiations of policy matters. Indications were that Huffman appeared to be negotiating on behalf of the administrative point of view, Eaton said, rather than representing merely a source of legal advice.

Thomas Pace, speech professor, countered Eaton, saying Huffman had on occasion proven "very helpful." Pace said Huffman played an adjunct role to Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost, and that Huffman did not carry the burden of discussion or impose his judgments on what was being said.

In other action, the senate voted to raise junior and senior grade average requirements for Honors

Day to 4.5. The former 4.25 average created an imbalance in the number of honors given juniors and seniors, and to freshmen and sophomores, who must meet a 4.5 average for recognition.

The senate also received a mammoth report concerned with stricter operating guideline for the General Studies Program. The senate okayed the suggestions and they will be forwarded to the administration for review.

Parking lots called aid to energy crisis

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Students protesting the closing of University Trailer Court (UTC) Tuesday grasped at another opportunity to keep their fight in public view by sending Chris Robertson, senior in design, to testify before the Illinois House of Representatives Energy Crisis Investigating Committee.

Robertson briefly explained the UTC issue to the committee, then read a prepared statement relating the closing of UTC to the energy crisis and other environmental problems.

The reasoning that prompted the University to close UTC and put a 675-car parking lot in its place "would encourage habit patterns which would depend on automobiles as over and against the fact "that practically every city in the world is attempting to discourage the use of automobiles," Robertson told the committee.

"Gas-eating automobiles" are being catered to by SIU, Robertson said, to the detriment of "a beautiful living environment."

Robertson presented a second phase of his argument claiming UTC could become a model or experimental environment for seeking solutions to problems such as the energy crisis.

"We could implement on a small scale," Robertson said, "solutions to the problems that this committee has been hearing about today." Robertson mentioned the possibility of using UTC to try out wind-powered electrical generators, solar-heated greenhouses and methods of recycling organic wastes.

UTC residents, Robertson said, are working on the design of a parking lot in an alternate area. He said this design will be presented to the Illinois Higher Board of Education when it meets on Sept. 4.

Robertson's testimony lasted 10 minutes, after which Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park chairman, noted that "We have delegated this, wisely or unwisely, to the boards of trustees."

Pierce also told Robertson he should take his complaint to the General Assembly's Higher Education Committee. The chairman noted Robertson's representatives in the General Assembly were present Tuesday and may be interested in hearing more on the UTC issue.

The streets of Carbondale

Anyone who drives to the SIU campus or in Carbondale with any regularity has probably at one time or other taken part in the mass exit. The mass exit is obviously the cars and other vehicles that leave Carbondale and SIU at 5 p.m. daily.

The traffic jam which results at this time is terribly out of proportion for the size of town Carbondale is. The ease in driving through town cannot be described by the term "ease." More honestly descriptive terms would be "difficult," "dangerous" and "confusing."

These massive traffic jams occur not only at 5 p.m. daily but also at several other times in a day. Smaller ones are created at 12 noon for the lunch break and at the end of nearly every class period. And of course, the frequent traffic tie-ups from trains running through town, add to the confusion.

Many of the roads involved in these traffic jams are in need of repair and reconstruction. There are just too many autos for the streets of Carbondale to accommodate adequately.

The problem here is that the layout of the streets, even without the traffic jams, the streets are hazardous, repairs and a new traffic pattern might help.

But there remains the problem of narrow streets. On the east and west sides, students' off-campus housing areas, this problem becomes a disaster. Cars parked along the streets create blind spots at corners, and dangers for both drivers and pedestrians, and it has been no great help that many of the streets have been turned into one-way streets. East Freeman and East College are two of the many. Now, these streets are confusing to drivers who are unfamiliar with them. Cars parked along the sides of the streets make the path for the moving car, as narrow as when two-way traffic was allowed. If anything it is even more difficult for pedestrians and bicyclists.

Another serious problem exists on East Park Street. No curbs separate the sidewalk from the road. This obviously is dangerous to pedestrians. East Park runs up a hill and on down to another one. At various places, the lighting on the street is poor, again dangerous to pedestrians. Recently, an SIU co-ed was hospitalized when hit at night by a car coming up the first hill. The driver just could not see her.

Southern Illinois Avenue is the heart of the traffic jam during the rush hour. Pedestrians cross it in the middle of blocks. Cars ease off it to park, and others jump out unexpectedly from parking places and blind alleys. Some restrictive measures are definitely needed here. This street is a bottleneck. All those people, getting off work or through with classes filter into it and "jockey" their way home. Possible alternate routes are needed.

Ditches are hazardous to all traffic. They exist along various streets such as East Park and Snider. Here the ditches are three or four feet deep. And, in both of the examples, there are no curbs.

One can't overlook the granddaddy of traffic problems, the railroad running through the center of town. No explanation is really necessary but, here it is. The trains are long and slow. Sometimes, as one train gets by, another one comes along before auto traffic can move. Try that sometime if you think one train is bad to wait for. Over the years, how many men have been lost by persons late for work. Several city groups have argued for some kind of change. Well, they finally got it. They had complained about the jostling ride across the tracks saying it caused muffler damages to cars. Repairs have been done on Walnut and Main. The traffic tie-ups still happen everyday though.

Another hazardous intersection is at Main and North Washington. Three lanes of traffic, two from the west and one from the north, meet at the barricade in the road. These three lanes must turn onto two lanes all during the same green light. It's needless to say what can happen here if no one decides to yield.

Many other poor driving conditions exist on the streets of Carbondale. Many roads are in need of repavement. Main Street, coming in from Murphysboro by the National Foodstore, is one place in particular. Dangerous intersections and blind corners need some work to improve on the safety of them. Several other measures need to be taken to improve the flow of traffic. The improvements needed for most of these hazards are fairly obvious. In the last couple of decades, Carbondale had made some good improvements on its streets in widening and resurfacing.

More studying of the problem is needed, along with some action toward more improvement.

Retire tired old trees

To The Daily Egyptian:
Wednesday (Aug. 15) you featured a photo on page 6 of a tree which had heart rot and had been blown by the winds of Monday's (Aug. 13) storm. The condition of this tree is not a unique example for SIU's campus. Thompson Woods has an alarming number of over mature hardwoods with heart rot.

The plan of Thompson Woods is to keep it in a natural condition. However, Thompson Woods is anything from being in a natural state. Due to the over population of squirrels, its predators have been reduced or eliminated, the reproductive layer is meager to say the least. As fast as a new crop of acorns fall, the squirrels gather them up. Also, Thompson Woods has a number of exotic species which have been planted. It can no longer be classified an oak-hickory forest, its natural condition.

My point is that since Thompson Woods has already been tampered with by man and is no longer in a natural state, it should no longer be considered as such. The over mature trees should be cut down. This would eliminate the hazard of a tree falling. Falling is natural but there are so many paths in Thompson Woods that the possibility of a tree falling across one of these is more than probable. Some of these trees are so old and/or rotted that a wind would not be required to fell it. In the process of falling, a student might be its target.

Therefore, I feel the University should do one of the following. Either correct this potentially dangerous condition by hiring a tree service company or post signs around Thompson Woods stating "Enter At Your Own Risk." I prefer the former.

Hill House funds needed

Anyone who has ever sat up all night with a friend who had a serious drug problem could tell you there is a definite need for places to deal with such problems on a continuing basis. It is only humane.

But now the Jackson County board has in its great wisdom voted to deny the drug rehabilitation center at Hill House the funds it urgently needs while approving funding for purchases and activities which are needed far less, leaving Hill House more dependent on private contributions.

The funds needed by Hill House apparently amounted to some $4,700 and I am wondering if Jackson County will not spend much more than that on law enforcement costs in dealing with drug problems in a less humane way.

Government says only food cost rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices went up in July despite the administration's price freeze, but other consumer prices were brought almost to a standstill, the government reported Tuesday.

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index for July showed that prices generally increased .2 per cent, down sharply from the average monthly increases of .6 per cent during the first six months of the year.

But food prices rose .8 per cent, considerably above what was expected during the freeze, although it was down from previous months. The June increase in food prices was 1.4 per cent.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the increase in food prices in the face of the freeze "has not been fully explained."

He also noted that since the price freeze was lifted from food July 18, there has been a substantial new increase in food prices.

The July Consumer Price Index showed the annual rate of inflation for the past six months was 7.4 per cent overall, and 17.8 per cent for food.

However, John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, said the worst may be over for some food price increases under the new Phase 4 anti-inflation program.

He cited the specific example of chicken, which he said has declined from a top of about 74 cents per pound wholesale after the freeze was lifted, to about 53 to 55 cents per pound this week.

He said the object of Phase 4 has been to spread out the so-called price bulge so that all prices don't reach their peak at once. That apparently has worked in the case of chicken, he said.

Dunlop said that new regulations for the food industry will be announced Wednesday to take effect about Sept. 12.

While Dunlop saw some hope for relief of high prices of chicken, consumers may be faced with higher prices in about a month for such diverse items as autos, home appliances, soap, wine and glass products.

Dunlop said that during the first week of Phase 4, 67 big firms notified the administration of their intention to increase prices on a total of about 110 product lines after the required 90-day waiting period.

Besides major auto and steel companies announced previously, price increases are proposed by big firms in tires, glass, copper, fabrics, home appliances and a variety of other consumer goods.

Dunlop noted that hearings will be held next week on the price increase proposals of auto makers and steel companies but indicated the council will not hold hearings on all of the big company price hikes.

Aside from food in July, the prices of nonfood commodities decreased by 2 per cent on an unadjusted basis following an increase of .6 per cent in June. However, taking into effect seasonal fluctuations, the non-food prices were up .1 per cent.

The Labor Department said average weekly earnings in July were $146.65, up from $136.86 a year earlier, and real spendable earnings increased .7 per cent from June on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The July index stood at 132.7 of the 1967 base of 100, and was 5.7 per cent above a year earlier.

The government said most food prices in grocery stores increased in July, led by fresh vegetables, fresh fruits, cereal, bakery products and poultry.

Prices of rents and other household services increased 3 per cent during the month.

Rejected students get second chance

By Linda Lipman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Beginning this fall, an incoming freshman who did not meet University requirements may be admitted on good standing, under a new program directed by the Developmental Skills office, Jessie Hailey, director, has announced.

A select group of 100 freshman applicants has been screened for their "potential to handle college work," Ms. Hailey explained. Ms. Hailey, Dean John Voight, of General Studies; and Jerre Pfaff, director of Admissions and Records make up the committee.

Previously, these students were inadmissible to the University because they were not in the upper one-half of their high school graduating class or did not score a 21 on the ACT test. Ms. Hailey explained they may not have met requirements because the students were "bad test scorers or held jobs during high school." The committee reviewed recommendations made by high school counselors and basically chose the students because they were "economically or educationally disadvantaged," Ms. Hailey said. The program is open to veterans, she added, who did not qualify for University admittance and who may need "a little brush-up so they are ready to complete their regular course work."

The program will not be open to January graduates, because the courses are in sequence. Transfer students who have completed General Studies are all ineligible, Ms. Hailey said.

In the past, a student who could not meet University requirements was either admitted on a conditional status during the summer term or was placed on probation. The summer school student had to maintain a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) to return in the fall. Otherwise, Ms. Hailey explained, he would have to come back the following fall on a probation status. Probation means the student has one quarter to earn his 3.0 GPA. If he can't he is put on scholastic suspension.

Under the new program, once the student is admitted to the University on good standing, he voluntarily enrolls in the Developmental Skills program.

"The student is guaranteed his place in the University for three quarters, provided he remains in the program," Ms. Hailey said. "The program is a three-quarter sequence which begins this fall. The student registers for Comprehensive Learning Skills (CLS), a three-hour course and follows a suggested curriculum in the General Studies areas for his first year, Ms. Hailey explained.

Students will concentrate on reading, theme writing, interpersonal development and study habits. The course will have five sections taught by a graduate intern or full-time instructor. Three upper-class students will provide more individualized instruction for the students.

"Since it is assumed these students will have difficulties in General Studies, Developmental Skills provides free tutorial sessions," Ms. Hailey added. The tutors are available for any student in the University, but Developmental Skills students are encouraged to take advantage of the services.

About eight tutors are provided each quarter. The tutors are upper-class students who can usually handle three different areas. "The month of July was the most successful for our tutorial program. The tutorial services were housed in Neely Hall where most of the students were living. About 229 students were tutored," Ms. Hailey said.

The tutorial schedule is posted in various student areas in the beginning of each quarter. Although any student may attend a session, Developmental Skills students, handicapped students or veterans are allowed to make individual appointments with the tutors.

Meat price decline reflects low demand

By Associated Press

Consumers got a pleasant surprise at the supermarket Tuesday: lower price tags for some meat items.

The decreases, mostly in poultry and pork, reflected declines at the wholesale level.

Food industry spokesmen said people apparently refused to buy while prices were high, tipping the balance of supply and demand in favor of the consumer.

Center cut pork chops in a Hartford, Conn., store dropped from $2 per pound two weeks ago to $1.69 on Tuesday. Leg of lamb at the Kansas City Meat Center in West Hartford, Conn., was 99 cents a pound compared to $1.39 two weeks ago and whole chickens at one area store went from $1 to 87 cents.

In Oklahoma City, "trying chickens that were 74 cents a pound last week were selling at 61 cents a pound this week.

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that the Consumer Price Index went up two-tenths of one per cent in July — the smallest increase in eight months. The department said the 60-day price freeze, announced by President Nixon on June 13, apparently was responsible for the small rate of increase. The price index went up seven-tenths of one per cent in June.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, said that the worst of the food price spiral may be over for some items.

He said the price of chicken went up to 74 cents a pound after the ceiling on all foods except beef was lifted in mid-July and processors were allowed to pass on increases in raw agricultural products. This week, Dunlop said, chicken is selling at an average of 53 cents a pound.

Dunlop said the decline "supports the view that we should phase things out in the future so that all peaks of prices do not come at the same time."

He said further regulations for the food industry under the Phase 4 economic program would be announced Wednesday. The new rules will allow processors and retailers to pass on nonagricultural as well as agricultural cost increases to the consumer.

John C. White, the Texas agriculture commissioner, said, however, he didn't expect a sudden jump in beef prices when the freeze is lifted. He also said the prices of pork and poultry would drop when beef supplies increase.

Injunction bans Bull Island music festival

CARMI (AP)—Two outdoor concerts planned for an island in the Wabash River have been banned temporarily as attractions of crowds would exceed health and sanitation facilities.

The music festivals were planned for next month for Bull Island which is in Illinois but is accessible only from the Indiana side of the Wabash. Judge Henry Lewis of the Circuit Court in Carmi issued temporary injunctions Monday against the assemblies and set Aug. 28 for a hearing on a permanent injunction.

Authorities opposing the promotion contended the concerts would violate the Illinois Mass Gathering Act.

Sounds Inc. of Carmel, Ind., intended to run concerts Sept. 2 and Sept. 8. A rock concert on the island during the Labor Day weekend of 1972 drew severe criticism.

Minister plans public hearing as gripeforum

SPRINGFIELD, (AP) — The Rev. Charles Keen, a Cairo civil rights leader, said he has arranged for public hearings in three sections of Illinois to provide a forum for people to air their problems to the governor's office.

Keen told a news conference that the hearings, which he called "like it is sessions," have been scheduled during the next three weeks for southern, central and northern Illinois.

He said he plans to compile the information obtained and present it to Gov. Daniel Walker at a meeting planned for Springfield in September.

"Governor Walker's accountability sessions have tended to overlook and miss completely the problems of poor people, black people and other minorities," Keen said.

"The focus of attention should be the people," Keen said.

Keen said the hearings will be capped with a rally in Springfield the night before he is to meet with Walker. He said the Rev. Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference will be invited to attend.

The sessions are set for East St. Louis and Carbondale in Southern Illinois the week of Aug. 27; for central Illinois and Peoria and Decatur the week of Sept. 3 and to northern Illinois and the Quad Cities and Rockford the week of Sept. 10.

Soviet chemist to visit SIU for 6 months

SIU will be host to a Soviet scientist during a six-month visit arranged by the National Academy of Sciences.

S.O. Badanyan, laboratory head of the Institute of Organic Chemistry of the Academy of Sciences, Armenian Soviet Socialist Republic, will be the guest of the department of chemistry and biochemistry while in the United States. His visit is part of an exchange program between American and Soviet scientists arranged between the U.S. National Academy of Sciences and the corresponding academy in the Soviet Union.

John Wotiz, SIU professor of chemistry, who is coordinating arrangements for Badanyan's visit for the National Academy, said Badanyan's request to visit SIU during his stay is a recognition of the University's stature internationally.

"It is a recognition to be asked-to host such a visit," he said. Wotiz said Badanyan is scheduled to arrive in the United States within a week, but that the exact date of his arrival at SIU is not known. He said the Soviet scientist would first visit Washington D.C., and then travel to Carbondale.

Most of the six months will be spent at SIU, where Badanyan will engage in research in acetylene chemistry, his specialty, Wotiz said. He said no formal lectures have been arranged, but he hopes Badanyan will be able to give some research seminars while here.

The national academy, which will pay all expenses incurred during Badanyan's visit, also will pay the University an allowance to cover research and laboratory costs.

Wotiz has travelled and studied in the USSR and in Eastern Europe under this exchange program.

Hundreds battle fires to save western forests

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of additional firefighters from around the country were pulled into the battle to control 20 major forest fires in five western states Tuesday.

Special lawmen were assigned to investigate increasing indications of arson. The 20 major fires still burning spread across 130,000 acres of parched timber and brushland, more than 200 square miles.

Since fire danger erupted into blazing reality a week ago, 43 major fires have burned 158,000 acres, said Dick Klade, spokesman for the Interagency Fire Control Center in Boise, Idaho. The total excluded acreage burned by small fires.

Weather forecasts indicated no general change, Klade said. "The condition throughout the Northwest is very high to extreme in fire danger rating," Klade said.

More than 10,000 men labored, against the infernos.

"The two major California fires as well as some in the northern tier of the fire zone are believed set. Special law enforcement personnel are being brought in by the Forest Service to work on those investigations."

The two big California fires are the 15,000-acre Granite fire in the Stanislaus National Forest, and the 8,000-acre Pilliken fire in the Eldorado National Forest.

Six fires in Montana, three in Oregon, one in Idaho and the two big California blazes were listed as major problems.

Klade said fire fighters hoped to have the Granite fire, already contained, under control soon. "If there are no gusty winds."

Most serious of the Oregon fires were the Ordinal fire, which broke out Monday near Klamath Falls, and the Freezeout fire in the Willowa-Whitman National Forest nine miles south of Hells Canyon Dam.

Walker says subpoena of businesses possible

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker said Tuesday he will subpoena, if necessary, the records of any state-regulated business that fails to comply with his executive order requiring disclosure of political contributions during the last two years.

Walker was asked at a news conference how he could get compliance with order he announced Monday since the executive order lacks legal penalties for non-compliance.

Walker responded that firms doing business with the state will stop receiving state business and the appropriate records of those licensed or regulated by the state will be subpoenaed.

Walker said state regulatory agencies already have the power of subpoena and "if we have to" it will be invoked to insure disclosure of campaign funds.

Such regulated business include utilities, insurance companies and financial institutions.

Walker also repeated his belief that the order will be upheld when it comes under an expected court challenge.

In response to another question, however, Walker said the order stretches the powers of executive order to the limit.

Walker said he had no legal power to coerce disclosure by the unions and said his order already approached the limits of powers under executive order.

Nixon's right to retain tapes subject of legal conflict

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the same courtroom where the Watergate trial began, two constitutional lawyers will debate Wednesday whether President Nixon has a legal obligation to give a grand jury White House tapes it contends are important evidence for future Watergate prosecutions.

Charles Alan Wright will lead off the debate and will argue that the courts lack authority to compel the President to obey a subpoena demanding the tapes. Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox will follow and will argue that the President "like the humblest citizen" has a duty not to withhold evidence from a grand jury.

The debate will begin at 10 a.m., EDT, in the large ceremonial courtroom before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

Sirica, the chief district court judge in the District of Columbia, also presided at the Watergate trial.

Sirica probably will say after the oral argument when he expects to announce his decision. Whichever way it goes, the losing party undoubtedly will appeal. The case is virtually certain to end up before the Supreme Court for a final decision.

Cox, professor of law at Harvard, argued scores of cases before the Supreme Court when he was U.S. solicitor general from 1961 to 1965.

Wright, who teaches constitutional law at the University of Texas, is working as a special consultant to the President for this case. He is a veteran of Supreme Court arguments.

The issue moved into the courts when Cox subpoenaed the tapes after Nixon refused to hand them over voluntarily.

London stores, offices terrorized by fire bombs

LONDON (AP)—Terrorists planted 17 fire bombs and letter bombs in London department stores and offices Tuesday, increasing official fears that the Irish Republican Army is extending its guerrilla campaign to Britain.

At least 10 incendiary bombs were discovered in five department stores, but only three were known to have ignited. That brought to 14 the number of fire bombs planted in stores since Saturday. No casualties have been reported.

Seven letter bombs were mailed to government offices Tuesday but none exploded.

Police said they believed the incendiaries and letter bombs were the work of an extreme IRA breakaway group.

The fire bombs brought chaos to London's bustling West End shopping district. Thousands of customers and workers were evacuated from its famous stores.

Commissioner Ernest Bond of Scotland Yard told newsmen that each of the letter bombs contained an estimated four ounces of explosives stuffed inside the cut-out centers of paperback music books and connected to tiny detonators. "That's enough explosive to blow a man in half," he said. The packages had apparently been mailed Monday in West London.

A statement purporting to be from the Provisional wing of the IRA claimed responsibility for a fire-bombing at Harrods department store Saturday night.

Shots fired in Chilean capital during strikes

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Volleys of gunfire rang out in downtown Santiago in clashes between leftists and anti-Marxists Tuesday as a nationwide strike hit many sectors of Chile's troubled economy.

An official police source said two persons were killed and six wounded as fighting around the national congress building spilled into the nearby Plaza de Armas.

Witnesses said shots came from the tops of office buildings in the neighborhood.

Riot police using tear gas and water cannon trucks attempted to keep both sides separated. But the demonstrators regrouped on nearby streets and clashed again.

The violence began when members of the rightist National party gathered outside the congress to strike truckers, bus and taxi owners were joined by store owners, professional employes and labor groups.

show their support for wives of striking truckers. The women have been camping out in the building's halls for the last week.

Terrorists fire-bombed a labor union district office and dynamited a rail line earlier Tuesday in sabotage apparently connected with the widening strike.

The participants ranged from physicians to pilots for LAN-Chile, the state airline.

An estimated half a million Chileans from the country's 10 million inhabitants participated in the walkouts fanning from 24 to 48 hours in sympathy with the transport strike and protesting the policies of Marxist President Salvador Allende, who has vowed to turn Chile Socialist.

The center of the capital was tranquil during the morning with fewer people on the streets because of lack of public transportation and closed shops and stores.

But essential operations remained open.

Before dawn, the Santiago headquarters of the Central Workers Confederation was fire-bombed. No one was hurt.

The railway line between Santiago and San Antonio, central Chile's main fishing port on the Pacific, was dynamited. The line has been used to bring seafood to the capital on the state railroad system because of the trucking strike.

The Confederation of Truck Owners went on strike July 26 protesting the lack of new vehicles, spare parts and low tariffs. They also wanted on the streets because of the leftist government that they would not be nationalized.

A week later, most bus and taxi owners joined them in a sympathy strike. The walkouts began to snowball as they did during last October's nationwide strikes, which resulted in street violence and $200 million in production losses.

Liquor license classifications being reviewed

The Liquor Advisory Board is reviewing whether present liquor license classifications are applicable in the 1,500-foot area around the SIU campus in which, under state law, only beer can be sold.

The law provides beer may be sold 100 feet from campus. No other alcoholic beverage, including wine, can be sold within a 1,500-foot boundary.

The board dropped its policy of prohibiting any alcoholic beverages from being sold within the area at its meeting Wednesday.

However, there is no license classification that permits the sale of beer only, and new bars will not be able to open within the area until such a classification is created.

Liquor Commissioner Neal Eckert, who uses the board as an advisory body, said the class E license may be applicable.

A class E license permits the sale of beer and wine with food. Eckert said if such a license were issued to people in the "beer-only" area, they would be prohibited by law from selling wine.

Eckert said the board is waiting for a legal opinion whether the Class E license will be applicable before considering applications for that area.

If the Class F license is not applicable, a new classification would have to be created.

Cambodian war improves amid new battle warning

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Senior U.S. sources said Tuesday the military situation in Cambodia has improved substantially but warned of a new battle for the capital. "In coming weeks and certainly in the coming months a new attempt will be made to conquer Phnom Penh," they said.

Col. Am Rong, chief spokesman for the Cambodian military command, reported a calm day with two truck convoys arriving unmolested in Phnom Penh. One was from the rice-rich area around Battambang, the other from the sea coast.

Am Rong said government offensive operations were under way around Phnom Penh and in the beleaguered provincial capital of Kompong Cham, 47 miles to the northeast. He said many reinforcements had been moved into Kompong Cham, the site of the most recent North Vietnamese and Khmer Rouge pressure, but refused to give exact figures.

The two truck convoys, composed of about 100 trucks each, carried chiefly foodstuffs to the capital city, Am Rong said.

U.S. officials feel that serious negotiations to end the fighting in Cambodia must await the outcome of the predicted new battle for Phnom Penh.

The insurgents made a bid to take the capital in July, before the Aug. 15 cutoff of U.S. bombing and suffered heavy casualties.

The official U.S. assessment is that Hanoi, which backs the rebels diplomatically and militarily, expected Phnom Penh to fall and made the costly push before the end of the bombing in order to avoid being overtaken by peace talks possibly sponsored by the big powers.

U.S. officials reason that a new push against Phnom Penh will come soon since the rebels cannot afford to lose momentum and are still concerned that peace talks could halt their drive.

The insurgent army is estimated to number between 40,000 and 50,000 men, with about 3,500 North Vietnamese combat troops and 2,000 advisers, some of them manning heavy weapons.

In neighboring Laos the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma announced a series of summary executions following Monday's attempted right-wing coup.

Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak told a news conference that many rebels had already been shot and others would be executed without trial as soon as interrogation was completed.

Walker signs bill banning sale of handguns in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker signed into law Tuesday a bill banning the sale in Illinois of cheap handguns known as "Saturday night specials."

He said, however, he would have liked to have seen stiffer and mandatory penalties included. The bill makes noncompliance a misdemeanor and carries a maximum sentence of a $1,000 fine and a one-year prison term.

Walker also signed two other law enforcement bills. One increases the sentence that may be imposed on previous violators convicted of carrying a concealed firearm and the other is aimed at making it more difficult for convicted felons to skirt an existing law which forbids their possessing firearms.

Walker said the cheap handgun has no worth and it's only use is to kill.

"You don't find them in gun collectors' cases. People don't hunt with them. Law enforcement officers don't carry them. Sharpshooters don't use them for target practice," he said.

"Criminals use them to intimidate and to kill."

The bill was sponsored in the Illinois legislature by Rep. Roman J. Kosinski, D-Chicago, who said no responsible gun or rifle association opposed the measure.

It bans the sale of handguns made of cheap metal that would melt in temperatures above 800 degrees Fahrenheit. They usually sell for under $50, Kosinski said.

Such guns were banned from importation into the United States by a 1968 federal law.

Jenkins, Cubs back on pennant trail

JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins, the Chicago Cubs' moody star pitcher, won a confidence building game Tuesday, going the distance despite yielding 10 hits in beating the Cincinnati Reds 6-4.

Rico Carty slammed three singles and twice drove across go-ahead runs, pacing the Chicago Cubs to the 6-4 triumph.

After the Reds tied the game 4-4 in the seventh on Joe Morgan's two-run homer, the Cubs scored in the bottom of the seventh on walks to Rick Monday and Billy Williams and Carty's run-scoring single.

The Cubs added another run in the eighth on a run-producing single by starter Jenkins.

Jenkins, a 20-game winner for six straight seasons, gained his 11th victory against 12 losses in his first start since a bat-flinging tantrum against Atlanta last Tuesday and then being quoted as saying he wanted to be traded to Detroit.

Jenkins was touched for two runs in the first and then enjoyed a 4-2 lead before yielding Morgan's 19th after Pete Rose's single.

Red starter Don Gullett was nicked for an unearned run in the second on Carty's single, a throwing error and Jose Cardenal's single scoring Carty from third.

"I got lucky," said Carty, who had three singles in four trips and is eight-for-23 since he was acquired from the Texas Rangers last week. "I'm just trying to hit so I can help this club."

The Cubs took a 3-2 lead in the third on Don Kessinger's single, an RBI double by Williams and Carty's single scoring Williams from second. Chicago made it 4-2 with a fifth inning run on Kessinger's lead-off double, Monday's scratch single and Williams' force-play grounder which scored Kessinger from third.

Jenkins was reached for 10 hits, but was tough when he had to be. In the third, after issuing a one-out walk to Dan Driessen, Jenkins struck out Tony Perez for the second straight time and also fanned Johnny Bench to end the inning. After Morgan's two-run homer in the seventh, off Jenkins' 31st "gopher" pitch of the season, the big right-hander got Driessen on a fly and Perez on an infield out to retire the side.

Although Jenkins gave up a two-run homer to Joe Morgan in the seventh, tying the score 4-4, Cub Manager Whitey Lockman let the big righthander go all the way.

"I had no thought of taking him out, it was important for him to get in a nine-inning job," said Lockman. "If we got a shot at the pennant, we've got to have Jenkins pitching well, and his confidence is the best way to do it."

"When Whitey didn't take me out for a pinch hitter in the seventh, I knew I had to go out and hold them," said Jenkins, who recorded his first complete game since July 6.

Bench led off the eighth with a single, but Jenkins got Tolan to hit into a double play and Cesar Geronimo flied out to end the inning.

It was Jenkins' first complete game since July 6. The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first on three hits, with Driessen's double and Bench's single each producing a run. Morgan's string of 13 straight stolen bases ended in the third when he singled but was nailed trying to steal second. In the first, Morgan stole second to boost his major league-leading total to 54.

And no one to see it

It's too bad the McAndrew Stadium stands weren't filled Tuesday to see this fine catch made by Gil Machacek, graduate student majoring in health education. Hopefully they will be Sept. 22, when the Salukis open their home season against East Carolina. (Photo by Tom Porter)

No-hitter eludes Bahnsen as

White Sox baffle Indians 4-0

CLEVELAND (AP)—Stan Bahnsen, the "other" 20-game-winner on the Chicago White Sox staff, came within one out of a no-hitter Tuesday night and finished with a one-hit 4-0 beauty over the Cleveland Indians.

Bahnsen, who has taken a back seat to Wilbur Wood despite a 20-game-winning season, gave up his only hit of the game when Walt Williams singled to left with two down in the ninth.

Bahnsen, 16-14, allowed only two other runners to reach base—both on walks to designated hitter Dave Duncan.

Bahnsen walked Duncan in the second inning with two out and with one out in the eighth inning.

Three fine plays by the Indian defense contributed to Bahnsen's superb pitching job.

In the first inning, Chris Chambliss hit a hard liner which left fielder Jerry Hairston caught on the dead run over his shoulder. In the third, Chambliss hit another curving line drive that was caught one-handed by John Jeter in center field.

In the fifth, Jack Brohamer hit a high fly to right field that was held back and curved by the high winds but Pat Kelly got under it and caught it on the warning track.

Jerge Orta, the White Sox' second baseman, drove in two runs with four hits, including his third homer of the baseball season.

U.S. swimmers triumph; Games marred by hecklers

MOSCOW (AP) — Cathy Carr, Olympic gold medalist and world record-holder, paced U.S. swimmers to three gold medals Tuesday that stemmed the tide of Soviet Union successes in the World University Games.

The U.S. men's and women's basketball teams continued winning streaks that sent them closer to Friday showdowns with the favored Russians, both unbeaten.

The fired-up, young American men's team trounced Czechoslovakia 110-59 for its fifth straight triumph at a 100-plus scoring rate, while the women turned back Bulgaria 57-50 for their fourth in a row since losing to the Russians in the first game.

The Russians scored in the men's 100-meter freestyle swimming race, men's springboard diving and two tennis doubles for four gold medals which boosted their overall total of 48 gold, 23 silver and 23 bronze—a landslide—but they finally met their match at the stadium swimming center.

There the American water wizards won three golds, a silver and three bronze, including men's diving, for the day's top honors in the swimming and diving events.

This latest haul gave the United States 5 gold medals, 4 silver and 13 bronze and sent them into second place in the unofficial medal standings.

The Games were marred when uniformed Red Army soldiers ripped apart an Israeli flag during a basketball game between Israel and Puerto Rico.

Miss Carr, an 18-year-old University of New Mexico student, captured the women's 200 meter breaststroke in the Games record time of 2 minutes, 42.3 seconds, standing off a late rush by Russia's Ludmilla Perubaiko, who touched in 2:42.7.

The other American swimming victories came in the women's 100-meter freestyle, won by 6-foot Sally Tuttle of Ventura Calif. College in 1:03.0, and the men's 100-meter butterfly, won by Allen Poucher, 18-year-old University of Southern California student from Jacksonville, Fla., in 56.4.

The Soviet men's basketball team, which upset the United States 51-50 in that controversial battle in the Munich Olympics, had a scare in its game against Canada, winning 81-76 after the Canadians had pulled to within one point with 19 seconds to play.

"The Yanks should smash 'em," Canadian Coach Paul Thomas said of the potential USSR-USA final pairing.

The Israeli basketball team was jeered and heckled again by Russian soldiers during a match at the games Tuesday while some spectators shouted "kikes, kikes" at Soviet Jews who held an Israeli flag aloft in the stands.

The flag was torn apart by uniformed Red Army soldiers and dashed to the floor after a brief scuffle in the tiny Central Army Club gymnasium where the Israelis played Puerto Rico.

It was the third straight time the gym had been packed with Soviet soldiers to harass the Israeli team.

On Sunday Israeli team officials complained to the Inter-national University Sports Federation-FISU—which sponsors the games, and got assurances an observer would be on hand for Tuesday's game.

Adin Talbar, Israeli delegate to FISU, said the federation had not sent an observer. Dr. Primo BNeblolo of Italy, the president of the federation, was reported to have gone to the Soviet Black Sea coast for a "couple of days' rest."

The hazing began on Saturday with the Israeli team's first appearance in the games against Cuba. It was repeated Sunday when they played Brazil.

As before, on Tuesday the first row of the four-tiered bleachers in the army gym was filled with soldiers in blue sweatsuits, who were ostensibly there for crowd control. The gym seats about 400 people.

Throughout the game, the soldiers jeered and whistled derisively at the Israeli athletes. They were especially noisy when an Israeli player was trying to concentrate on making a free throw from the foul line.
