The 'Woody Shuffle': Is the nightmare over?

By Brian Gross Staff Write

The "Woody Shuffle" that has tormented undergraduate students at SIU-C faded into a bad memory with the introduction of com puter registration for the fall

"So many times we had to send students back and forth to Woody, but now we have the information at our fingertips," Jacquelyn Bailey, chief academic adviser for the College of Education, said. "Anything we can do to help accommodate the students is what's really important." About 97 new Student Information System terminals went online Tuesday morning with only one 35-minute interruption in service, Roland Keim, associate director of SIS, said, SIS overcame the interruption without difficulty, he said.

"We're going probably as well as one could expect," Keim said.

"The advisers I've spoken to throughout the campus are pleased with what's going on."

The new system is registering more people faster than under the old one, and the students avoid the running around between adviser and Woody Hall, he said. "The students leave the office knowing what they are registered for," Joyce Jolliff, adviser for the school of art and design, said. Before, it would be two weeks before they knew. If any problems come up, we know about it immediately. It might take the advisers more time, but its going to save the students time.

Stress tests performed Feb. 15 and 16 pointed out problems with signing on a large number of peo-ple at one time, Keim said, but aside from minor problems with printers, the systems is working out well.

Judy Weithorn, transcribing secretary in the College of Education, said she anticipated difficulties with the system this week after problems turned up during the stress tests.

"The system has gone down a couple of times," Weithorn said, but it went a lot better than I thought it would. There's not much of a problem right now. The students are able to get their paper

Processing students generally takes five minutes or less on the new system, Weithorn said. Dana Keim, academic adviser for the College of Science, said the system has gone down a couple of times, but she was able to get back on after only a 20-minute interruption Wednesday

SIU-C chairperson testifies before House of Representatives

More minority teachers in spe cial education are needed in the United States, according to an SIU-C administrator. Norma Ewing, chairperson for the SIU-C Department of Special Education, traveled to Washington, D.C. and testified Tuesday in a House of Representatives subcommittee meeting on education for the handicapped.

Ewing said she was requested in the nation's capital because the House Subcommittee on Education and Labor is considerreauthorization Education of the Handicapped Act's discretionary programs.

Ewing's testimony called for placing increased attention on support for recruiting minority personnel, such as teachers, school psychologists and communications and language special-

"Certainly a more equitable allocation of resources provided within a creative, sound frame-work is required to have the impact needed in this critical per-sonnel shortage area," Ewing

"It is important that the federal government provide financial support targeted for special education and related service person-nel training efforts at historically black colleges and universities and other institutions with a substantive enrollment of of minority students," she said.

She said a direct inverse relationship exists between the num-ber of black and Hispanic students in special education and the number of minority teachers produced in colleges and universities

An increase in minority person-nel would not only bolster the number of role models for minori-ty students, but in primarily Anglo Saxon systems can also foster interracial acceptance and understanding.
A news release from U.S. Rep.

Major Owens, D-NY, chairman of the House Committee on Select Education, said the EHA discretionary programs support and improve the direct services provided under EHA, identify and solve persistent problems in providing services and assist individuals with disabilities to make the transitions to higher education, vocational training and competitive employment.

"Minority groups and individuals have been left out of the programs," Owens said.

His proposed changes to the

Additionally, minorities and individuals with disabilities would be required to be represented on boards and review panels. City effort focuses on recycling Carbondale won't need the extra time to separate land-scape waste from the trash, but other cities in Illinois might need the extension.

Bruce Rodman, legislative liaison to the Environmental Protection Agency, said the Illinois General Assembly will probably pass legislation to extend the July 1 deadline, giving cities more time to come up with a plan to separate leaves, grass clippings and woody material from regular trash.

'Many Illinois cities aren't ready for the landscape legislation to go into effect because they don't have adequate composting facilities," Rodman said.

When you hear Janet Jackson's 'Rhythm Nation' bellow out of the Arena's sound system, hang on because you will be in for the show of the season.

The squads have put together a show that includes dancing by the Shakers and cheerleaders and stunts never seen performed by the Saluki cheerleaders.

"We are doing a combination of t' ings," cheerleading coach Nancy Esling said. "We are doing a 'mount medley.' Basically, it's three mounts in one, Instead of just getting up and down, we keep changing the mount. We also do dances and some difficult new

The dancing will be something new for most of the Saluki cheer-

"A lot of cheerleading squads do a lot of dancing and some schools have a dance group like our Shakers so they don't do as much. But we certainly have the talent for it," Esling said.

The cheerleaders and the Shakers take turns doing different routines on the court

"Our part of the routine is pretty much like all of our other rou-tines, maybe a little more upbeat than usual, though," Shaker co-captain Melissa Kirk said. "The difference is that the cheerleaders are out there with us. It's a fun show."

The squads performed the routine last Saturday in front of 1,060 fans during halftime of the women's basketball game, but they are eagerly awaiting the chance to strut their stuff in front of the near capacity crowd expected tonight at the Arena.

"Everybody is anticipating an even better show on Thursday," Esling said. "We're really excited about this."

If the Dawgs, 21-6 and 7-4, sweep all three games, they will capture at least a share of the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Frisbee: The 'Full Tilt' sport

Students discover fields of fun playing Ultimate Frisbee

By Wayne Wallace Staff Writer

For a handful of Saluki frishee enthusiasts, casually tossing around a disc in the backyard or playing catch with a dog just doesn't cut it. Frishee to them is the ultimate team sport.

"The action is constant, with a lot of running," said Rob Johnston, graduate student in therapeutic recreation.

Johnston, president of Fuil Tilt, the University's Ultimate Frisbee Team, described "ultimate" as a fast moving field sport similar to soccer and basketball.

"You pass the frisbee downfield like in football, but you can do more with a disc than you can with a ball. You can make it curve and hover," Joi...ston said.

Johnston said each seven-person team is organized into three positions: handlers (quarterbacks), forwards (receivers) and workers (middlemen).

The defense is played man-to-man, as in basketball. Once a player catches the disc, he may not run with it, but may pivot on one foot to pass it to a teammate within 10 seconds.

"It's a non-contact sport," Johnston said, "but I did break my jaw last year. This guy on the team and me, we didn't see each other and just collided."

"Rain, snow, mud. We'll play in anything," Johnston said. "Some people don't like to get wet, but I think it's more fun playing in the rain, getting all muddy. You know what John Madden says? 'That's what it's all about "

Will Marble, junior in therapeu-c recreation, said "You don't tic recreation, fully understand it unless you experience it."

'Not only is it good for social Not only is it good for social interaction, but it's a good release of energy," Marble added. "I've been playing for five years and I'm still continually challenged."
"No matter what level of the game you're at, you can still have fun," Marble said, roting that running and catching are a large part of the game.

"Endurance is an important aspect," Tony Gill, doctoral stu-dent in education, said. "Ultimate demands a serious level of skill, ou gotta be in shape.

Gill said he used to be a runner but turned to ultimate for the comradery of a team sport. "You build friendships here. We travel a "Nearly every campus in the country has an ultimate team," Gill added.

"It's not really that well known by the general public," Charlie Miller, freshman in automotive technology, said.

(The public) hasn't grasped it It doesn't have the financial backing or public information that other sports do," Miller added. Johnston said the team's roster is hovering at around 16 players, both male and female.

"Yeah, we welcome new play-ers to come on out and join us and have fun. That guy over there in the blue shirt, this is his first time. As you can see, we've got room for more," Johnston said.

Johnston said team membership is open to non-students, and the team practices three times a week to stay in shape. Anyone interested in joining may phone him at 549-3645 or call Ian Weidner at Full Tilt will host the fourth annual Dennis J. Drazba Memorial Tournament the weekof March 24 and 25 on the SIU-C campus.

Drazba was a team member who died in September 1986,

Weidner said the sport is played without referees because there is no need for them, noting that ulti-mate players hold sportsmanship in very high esteem.

in very high esteem.
"If you think you've been fouled and drop the disc, you can call a foul on yourself and the game picks up right there as if you had caught it." Johnston said.

Johnston said the game is played non-stop until a point is scored by one of the teams. "It's great exercise because you don't stop running, you can't ask for a substitute and you can't take a break until someone scores."

Johnston said the team's most important member is Greg King, the one team member who never

"I don't know what we'd do without him," Johnston said, noting that King plays a key role off the field, handling the team's paperwork through Intramural Sports at the Student Recreation Center and applying for Full Tilt's funding.

Big Muddy Festival asset to University

THIS YEAR'S Big Muddy Film Festival has come and event must be commended for this excellent cinematic

In its 12th year, the festival has been a showcase for top notch independent filmmakers from across the country

The films are critiqued by top professionals in the field, making the experience a valuable learning tool for young artists. Students are allowed to interact with these filmmakers, thus combining a pleasurable experience with a learning one.

THE FESTIVAL organizers are tireless in their efforts to promote, regulate and organize the intense competition. The Big Muddy is publicized months in advance to ensure the best quality and variety of submissions. Many fund-raisers, such as the sale of baked goods and t-shirts and sweatshirts bearing the festival logo, are held periodically throughout the year.

Films submitted are judged in the categories of best narrative, best documentary, best video and best experimental film. This year's price of $1,500 was split between the winning filmmakers according to how their film placed in the competition, first or second place, giving some hard-working artists much needed cash compensation for their time and effort.

THE JUDGING serves a dual purpose beyond ranking the films, for winning entrants also are screened at a nominal cost for the edification and enjoyment of the public. The festival adopts a different theme each year. This year, the festival saluted Asian-American filmmaker. Actions such as these provide a welcomed cultural infusion and intellectual diversity into the Southern Illinois area.

The festival should have our fiscal as well as our intellectual support. Major artistic endeavors such as the festival require a lot of time and effort, but even more money. Allocating more funds for the festival out of an already tightly squeezed budget may seem excessive, but it's hard to put a price tag on art. It would be money well

SO CHEERS to the Big Muddy Festival! It's a great pleasure to have such a valuable educational tool that provides a service for the community. We in the University community should do everything within our power to support this event that so greatly enhances our cultural life.

Switch to metrics hard on kids

Scripps Howard News Service

Congress gave a boost to going metric when it inserted a clause in a trade bill two years ago requir-ing that all federal agencies make their purchases in metric units beginning Sept. 30, 1992. But the switch to metrics is not coming easily to America.

Part of the problem, says Gerald Kulm of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is that youngsters don't understand basic concepts of measurement.

The importance of teaching the metric system "has paled in comparison to the more fundamental problems of just teaching kids to think and apply mathematics." In other words, too many youngsters don't know how to use a ruler no matter how it's calibrat-

Preserve Shawnee for future citizens

Recently the Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists broke from Congressman Glenn Poshard's Congressman Glenn Poshard's Shawnee National Forest Citizen's Advisory Board, calling it a sham. I would like to supply some context to this event. Poshard called the logging industry a "driving engine" of Southern Illinois Economy. The Economy.

Forest Services own Economic Impact Study (appendix G) states: "No community in Southern Illinois is dependent upon National Forest Timber to maintain or stabilize their economics" Poshard's flight of fancy is further ridiculous when one considers that Illinois National Forest Land comprise a mere 5% of Illinois woodlands and yet in the Shawnee alone the Forest Service lost over $1.4 million in 1987 and 1988 combined on commercial timber sales. Forest Service fig-ures which state otherwise do not account for road building and bridge construction costs.

Furthermore tourism, projected to be the number one growth industry nationwide by the year 2000, presently brings an estimated $250 an acre to Shawnee each year! Poshard's knee-jerk reaction was occasioned by a proposal from Bush Administration O.M.B. director Richard Darmon to halt all cutting on the Shawnee. All cutting has been stopped in Southern Indiana's Hoosier National Forest after 70,000 petition signatures were collected.

This April will bring East Perry logging trucks to the Shawnee.

A second point I want to bring up is that the main thrust of this evaluation is the fact that it will be published and made available to the student body. The idea is to have something the student can look at to review a class/instruc-tor. By no means is the Student Government out to discredit or slander any teacher at Southern Illinois University. Instead, I see the opposite happening. I foresee a public appraisal of the teaching staff. At the same time, I hope that any student opinions may have a little effect on faculty deci-

Grammatically correct sexism not appropriate

Regarding the "co-ed" contro-versy, it appears that reader Bob Holstein doesn't understand how dictionaries are compiled: they are NOT PRESCRIPTIVE (they don't dictate to people how they MUST use the words); rather, they are DESCRIPTIVE (offering current common uses of words). In living languages, word usage and meanings change and so dic-tionary definitions eventually change to reflect current usage. In addition, Holstein indicated that sexist language is too trivial an issue to warrant attention, although we notice he took the to write a letter. Frankie's, Sidetracks, American Tap and T-Birds, 111 N. Washington St. were reported by Carbondale Police as being over their legal occupancy limits the second weekend in February.

Frankie's and American Tap received tickets for violating their occupancy limits last weekend.

Robertson said in case of a fire, for example, if people were impeded from exiting the bar because of overoccupancy, the cause of action in a liability suit would be against the bar owner.

"The owner would be responsi-ble if he negligently allowed too many people in," Robertson said. City Attorney Pat McMeen said the city itself would not be liable for any damages.

Law professor Patrick Kelley said according to Illinois law, the fact that the bar owner was break-ing the law by disobeying the occupancy limitation would not necessarily prove negligence.

"If the court determined an ordinance was violated, the jury would be allowed to consider the violation, unlike many states where just showing a violation of the law would prove negligence," he said.

Cindy Germann, commercial underwriter for Diederich Insurance in Carbondale, said most businesses carry premises liability insurance to cover injuries and property damage that would occur during business operation.

Depending upon the company and the insurance policy, however, a violation of a law by a bar owner could make the liability insurance ineffective, she said.

"Suits for premise liability is not uncommon," Germann said.
"But it isn't something we see ery day."

n her experience, the sage mount of premise liability insurance most businesses carry is between $500,000 and $1 million, she said.

According to the National Clearinghouse for Professions in Special Education, 10 years ago 12.5 percent of the U.S. teaching force in public elementary and secondary schools were members of a minority group. Minorities comprised 21.3 percent of the national population and were clearly underrepresented, according to Eurige.

"All trends indicate the minimum print tacches have that...minority teachers...have continued to diminish in number and as a proportion of all public school teachers," Ewing said. "Minority students and parents are in desperate need of action that will provide an avenue for relief from the continuous downward spiral of minority participa-tion in a broad range of matters."

Historically, predominantly black colleges and universities have provided the largest numbers of black teachers, but data shows those colleges and universities have received limited amounts of the total discretionary funds.

Emeritus professor relates trip to Soviet states

By Dale Walker Staff Writer

During the depression, capital-ism in the United States was saved because it borrowed some techniques from socialism. Now socialism in Russia is trying to save itself by borrowing from capitalism, Jerry Auerbach, for-mer chairman of the School of Social Work, said Tuesday.

In his lecture at the Carbondale Public Library, Auerbach related the events18 members of the Emeritus College shared on a three-week trip to Russia. The June, 1988 trip began with a week in Moscow followed by ten days in the Soviet republics Azerbaijan, Armenia Georgia.

The turmoil in Azerbaijan and Amenia, like the turmoil in Cafin America, is a residue of the imperialism of the superpowers, Auerbach said that throughout history imperialistic countries felt little need to disguise their actions, but in the age of nuclear power and swift worldwide communication, things are different.

"We (the United States) do our imperialism with a silk glove, (but) I won't tell you what's in that silk glove," he said.

Auerbach described the countryside and the people of the three Soviet satellite republics as rough and rural but showing signs of modernization.

Armenia and Georgia are both hilly, romanesque countries while Azerbaijan is more Islamic, a Moslem area, Auerbach said.

While in Armenia, members of the group witnessed a demonstration protesting the treatment of Armenians living in Azerbaijan,

Auerbach described the strife between the the republics as partly a minority struggle.

"The difference between our minorities and theirs is the fact that their minorities have territohe said. Minorities in the United States, excluding native Americans, have been mostly transplanted, Auerbach explained.

On the topic of change in Eastern Europe, Auerbach said he believes a mixture of capitalism and socialism will prevail.

There has never been a system that could produce as much as capitalism, but in a capitalistic society distribution is a problem, Auerbach said. On the other hand, socialism has difficulty with production, but distribution is not a problem.

"What Russia is trying to do is introduce a little greed, (the effect being) to prode 2 more," he said.

This first exhibit will be on display until around spring break,

Some projects include promotional posters for bands, toy store designs, a german cinema poster and a rendering of a city hall building.

All of the work in this exhibit comes from students in White's Advanced Technical Illustration

"The advanced-level course improves technical skills and con-ceptual design skills," White said.

Some of the student work focuses on modes of transportation, such as Kocher's cars, trains I senior Mike Stockman and a fighter jet by senior Mike Reisel.

White said these projects are production-oriented, meaning the llustrations are ready to be photographed for print.

"The majority of the work is done with pen and ink, and shading screens," White said. "There is limited use of color."

Students achieve this very detailed effect using only their own hands and creativity, White said

"All the work is done without the aid of computers or copy machines," he said.

While this display area is new, the College of Technical Careers always has student work on dis-play at the Blue Barracks, White said. The CTC Blue Barrack is behind Photographic Services.
"It's good for students interestghter jet by senior Mike Reisel, ed in taking CTC design courses

Other projects include promoto see this work," White said,

University singers to compete for chance at national radio broadcast

By Tracy Sargeant Staff Writer

Three opera singers from SIU-will compete for the chance at a $10,000 scholarship and the opportunity to be heard on the Metropolitan Opera's national radio broadcast.

Jeanine Wagner, administrative director for SIU-C's Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, and graduate students Bruce Baumer and Ciay Hulsey, won at the dis-trict level of the Metropolitan Opera contest last month in Memphis, Tenn.

Winning at the district level means the three will advance to the regionals this weekend.

The semi-finals is the third step in the competition, which is held in New York's Metropolitan Opera. The winners of the semifinals then become finalists. Each finalist will receive a $10,000 scholarship and perform their musical selections over the Metropolitan radio broadcast heard nationally every week.

Wagner, who sings soprano, said she enjoys singing opera ferent languages," Wagner said. ferent languages," Wagner said.

"It's more than that, (opera) also involves theater and drama as well as the music."
Wagner said it was a thrill to win at the district level.

"This competition is held yearly. Its purpose is to encourage young and aspiring singers," Wagner said. "The fact that three of us (out of 12 contestants at the district level) are from SIU-C. reflects well upon the University's music program."

because of the challenge the music presents.

"It is intriguing to sugger diff, piece of music that is specified."

competition

"You have to be prepared to sell the music to the judges. Play the part," Hulsey said. "Research helps you to become familiar with the character you play and the opera."

Hulsey said at each step of the competition, there is more than just the final prize to look forward

"There will be other people there, like agents," Hulsey said. "They will be looking for a cer-tain type of singer. It is definitely worth your while to be seen at these competitions."

Baumer, who sings bass baritone, said each level of the com-petition is more of challenge.

"You never know what the judges are looking for," Baumer said. "Sometimes they send a large number on (to the next level), sometimes they don't.

Baumer said it was an honor to e selected at the district level. This is the first year he has entered into the competition.

Baumer explained that singers select around five arias, or solo songs, from different operas. Each of the five is usually in a different language, including Italian, during that span. She has scored in double figures five times this Kibelkis is capable of having big offensive games. She started the Salukis' first three games of the season in the Hawaii Wahine Classic. In the second game against Oregon State, Kibelkis scored a team-high 22 points.

With it being crunch time in the Gateway season, Scott said she would like Kibelkis to keep up

"We expect a let out of Dee down the stretch," Scott said. "She is a veteran and we would like to see her play in another conference tournament."

Last season, as the Salukis' top substitute in the frontcourt, Kibelkis averaged 4.5 points and 1.8 rebounds. She started two games but averaged only 13.8 minutes playing time.

Kihelkis played behind former Saluki standout Dana Fitzpatrick for three years. Scott has called Fitzpatrick the best defensive player she has ever coached.

player she has ever coached.

Kibelkis said practicing against Fitzpatrick every day helped her develop her offensive skills.
"With Dana being such a good defender it was hard to do any-thing offensively against her," Kibelkis said. "But it was a real good experience and it made me a better ballplayer.

"I think anyone that goes in there off the bench wants to spark the team," Kibelkis said. "I just want to spark the team somehow it doesn't necessarily have to he offense.

A native of Hammond, Ind. Kibelkis attended Bremen High School in Midlothian. She was an All-State selection in 1985 and the No. 4 scorer in the Chicago area her senior year averaging 25.3 points per game.

As a three year starter, Kibelkis led Bremen to three conference titles and two 20-win seasons. She scored 1,603 points and grabbed 1,233 rebounds in her high school career.

Kibelkis said playing high school basketball in the Chicago area helped prepare her for the college level.

"It helped a lot because several players in my conference went on to play college ball," Kibelkis

Scott appreciates what Kibelkis has done on the court this season. But Scott said Kibelkis, a computer science major, is a fine example off the court.

"Dee is a quiet leader and a great student," Scott said. "She will be done in four years and in the work force next year. She spends hours and hours in the computer lab each week and exemplifies what the student-athlete is all about."

Herrin said, "We'll take 'em one at a time. You still got to go out and do the job."

Bradley's Curtis Stuckey put the hurt to the Salukis by scoring 35 points in the previous meeting. The junior guard sank a 10-foot jumper with 45 sec-onds remaining to give the Braves the lead for good in the contest.

"We hope we can contain him better than we did last time," Herrin said. "He's a fine basket-ball player. We don't really care how many Curtis gets, we care how many Bradley gets -that's the key to success."

Stuckey is the Valley's lead-ing scorer at 13.6 points per game. After he became eligible and started the eighth game of and started ur eighth game of the season, Bradley improved to a .500 ballclub after a 1-6 start. "He's provided offense and he's provided leadership for us,"

Albeck said. "It's no secret that we wouldn't be where we are without his contributions." Saluki seniors Jerry Jones and Jay Schafer missed that game with the flu. Jones is the leading rebounder in the league at 10.7 per game and contributes 15 per game and contributes 15 points per game. Freshman for-ward /shraf Amaya elevated his game in Jones' absence, scoring 17 points and grabbing a career-high 18 rebounds.

"We expect him (Jones) to be factor," Albeck said. I was really impressed with the per-formance that he (Amaya) had against us. If Jerry Jones equals or betters that, we're gonna have a very difficult time.

have a very difficult time.

The Salukis rely heavily, offensively and defensively, on the league's best guard tandem of senior guard Freddie McSwain and junior point guard Cicolian Mahan Sterling Mahan.

The two combine for 33.7 points, 7.5 rebounds, seven assists and 3.8 smals per game.

Monumental task lies ahead for women's basketball team

It would be an understatement to say the Saluki women's basketball team is in for a challenge this

The Salukis head into critical Gateway battles against Wichita State tonight and first-place Southwest Missouri State Saturday at the Arena. But they will be without the services of star forward Amy Rakers, who is cut indefinitely because of flu-like symptoms according to team trainer Saily Perkins.

What ' lifference a week can make.

The Saiukis entered Saturday's game against Eastern Illinois with hopes of clinching a berth for the Gateway conference tournament and having a chance to gain the top seed.

But a 72-60 loss to Eastern a Gateway title and now they may be hard pressed to grab one of the four playoff berths in the postseason tournament. Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said was a tough loss, but she gives Eastern credit.

"We didn't get it done and that's tough to take but Eastern played a great game," Scott said. "We're going to have to fight as hard as we can to make the tournament.

Eastern's victory forced a five-team battle for postseason tournateam battle for postseason tourna-ment bids. Southwest Missouri (13-2), Illinois State (11-3), SIU-C (10-4), Bradley (10-5) and Eastern (8-6) are all alive for postseason play.

Illinois State, SIU-C and Eastern have four games remaining. Bradley has three home games and Southwest has three road games remaining.

However, the Salukis figure to score their share of points.

Nunn has the top 400 score in conference with a 56.81 time and DeNoon says she is in top form.

Danielle Sciano recorded a Gateway-best last weekend at home in the 800-meter with a time of 2:14.3 and has the second best time in the 600. best time in the 600.

Her sister Michelle Sciano has the sixth-best time in the 600 and will team-up with Nunn and Danielle Sciano in the 4x400-meter relay.

"All three of our relays should be strong, It will just come down to having our best people in there," DeNoon said. DeNoon said he expects some difficulty in trying to coach his team and make sure things run smoothly for the first-ever Gateway conference championship at the Recreation

"That's the down side to having home field advantage, I won't be able to work with the kids as much," DeNoon said. He said everything should be in place for the running of the event.

Stuart have finished one and two in the mile and the 3,000 meter run. Stuart also has placed in the 1,000 and Owen has the third-best time in the 800 for conference. Cornell will adapt his lineup to get the maximum points from these athletes.

"We have several newcomers who could make up for some of our personnel losses and I feel we can score in every event outside the pole vault," Cornell said.

"Hopefully our overall strength will give us enough seconds, thirds and fourths to keep us in contention," Cornell said.
