Fire borders unclear, burn rural owners

By Bill West
Staff Writer

If you live in Carbondale Township and your home is on fire, don't look for the Carbondale Township Fire Department number in the phone book. It's not listed.

This is just one of the problems facing residents living in the rural area between Carbondale and Murphysboro.

Within the past year, two homeowners have found that hardly anyone knows where the boundaries of the Township are.

Last October, the Stanton Carroll home on Parrish Lane in rural Murphysboro burned while Carbondale Township and Murphysboro fire officials decided who would respond to the fire call, a neighbor told a Daily Egyptian reporter in October.

John H. Erickson's house burned July 7. The Carbondale dispatcher insisted the fire wasn't within Carbondale Township, Erickson said in a previous interview.

Township volunteer firefighters monitor Carbondale fire calls. If a caller lives in the township district, someone at the township fire department is supposed to break in on the call and take the necessary information, according to Carbondale Fire Chief Everett Rushing.

Ron Epperheimer, township fire chief, said he tried to break into one of two fire calls made concerning the Erickson fire. He said he didn't realize the house was in the township until after township firefighters had arrived at the fire on a mutual-aid call from the Murphysboro department.

Epperheimer refused to talk about the Carbondale Township boundaries.

"I don't want to be put on the hot seat," he said.

Robert D. Kelley, Carbondale Township supervisor, wouldn't talk about the township boundaries, either.

"We've gone over this time and time again in the last 10 years. Everybody knows where the township boundaries are and how fire protection works. People don't realize that we're doing the best we can," he

Fire protection hints, numbers

Listed below are some suggestions for residents concerned about fire protection from township and city officials:

—Call the fire department and ask who is responsible for fire protection in your area.

—Check your property tax forms to see if you are paying taxes to the city or the township.

—Make sure your insurance company tells you what fire district you are in.

—Let your neighbors know what district you live in so they can properly report a fire if you're not home.

Listed below are local fire department phone numbers for Carbondale and townships bordering Carbondale:

Carbondale Township, 457-4131.
Cartersville, 985-2241.

Archeology field program searches for key to farming

By Michele Eskins
Staff Writer

Four or five thousand years ago, Indians in Southern Illinois were primarily hunters and gatherers.

Archeological investigations, an SIU-C field study program, is trying to discover what turned the Indians into farmers.

An open-house for the public will be held Saturday at the Hays site, located at Rend Lake in Franklin County, to display finds from the excavation. Visitors also will be able to view the digging sites.

Following the Archaic Period, in which Indians primarily hunted for food, the Woodland Period brought some changes to their lifestyle, said Phillip Neusius, assistant scientist of the department of anthropology and director of the site excavation. The once nomadic people began cultivating corn, squash, pinto beans and wild plants such as sump weed and

Meese defends role in Iran-Contra probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese defended the casual nature of his probe of the Iran-Contra scandal Tuesday, saying he saw nothing "obviously criminal" about the affair last November — even when he learned details of the scheme to send arms profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

The nation's top law enforcement officer, a close personal friend of President Reagan, also acknowledged he gave advance notice of his probe to John Poindexter, which gave time to the national security adviser and Lt. Col. Oliver North, his aide, to destroy critical documents.

Meese came before the select House-Senate committees investigating the scandal already under scorching fire from panel members for what they deemed a shoddy first probe by Meese's Justice Department of the U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of millions of dollars to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

However, Meese's appearance opened with gentle questioning from chief House counsel John Nields, who led the attorney general through a chronicle of last November, and assistant House counsel George Van Cleve.

But Meese visibly tensed and his voice grew sharp under interrogation from House panel member Peter Rodino,

U.S. presents Soviets with new arms proposals

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States Tuesday offered the Soviet Union new arms proposals designed to hasten an agreement on the global elimination of ground-launched short and medium-range nuclear missiles. The new U.S. proposals embrace the "double-zero" formula accepted last week by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev involving long-standing American demands for total elimination of medium- and shorter-range missiles in Europe and Asia.

Nicaragua: U.S. participated in spy missions

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua's army intelligence chief said U.S. and Central American military forces have conducted sabotage and intelligence missions in Nicaraguan territory since 1984, an official newspaper said Tuesday. Chief of Army Intelligence Maj. Ricardo Wheelock was quoted by Barricada, the newspaper of the ruling Sandinista movement, as saying U.S. forces sabotaged Nicaraguan military and fuel installations and conducted spy missions.

19 killed, 117 injured in war accord protest

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Police Tuesday fired on thousands of Sinhalese youths who set afire vehicles and buildings to protest an accord to end the island's civil war with Tamil rebels. At least 19 people were killed and 117 injured, hospital sources said. The rioting broke out one day before the arrival of Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, who with President Junius Jayewardene is to sign an agreement aimed at settling the island's bloody civil war.

Youth charged with violating Soviet airspace

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Tuesday charged a West German youth with violating Soviet airspace and hooliganism for an unauthorized flight over Soviet territory and landing his small plane in Red Square in May, a feat that led to a major shakeup in the Soviet armed forces. A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman said Mathias Rust, 19, who also was charged with illegal entry in the Soviet Union, would go on trial within 30 days, probably in Moscow.

Minfield discovered in Persian Gulf channel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A minefield has been discovered in the Persian Gulf channel south of Kuwait where the supertanker Bridgeton hit a mine Friday and several underwater explosives were recovered, Pentagon officials said Tuesday. "The fact that several mines were found and not just one or two makes it an intentional minefield," said one official. There was no indication when the mines were placed, by whom or precisely how many were found.

New FAA head pledges to go hard on airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new head of the Federal Aviation Administration pledged Tuesday to put out of business any airline found to be in serious violation of safety regulations. In an interview on his first full day on the job, FAA Administrator T. Allan McArtor said the public has the right to expect a safe and efficient aviation system. Asked if the government would have any hesitation to pull the operating license of airlines found to be engaging in serious safety violations, McArtor said: "None whatsoever."

3rd Stark officer reprimanded for dereliction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A third top officer from the USS Stark has been reprimanded for dereliction of duty in connection with the attack by an Iraqi jet that killed 37 sailors, the Navy said Tuesday. But Lt. Cmdr. Raymond Gajan Jr., 32, of Corpus Christi, Texas, the frigate's second in command as its executive officer, received a lesser degree of punishment than the Stark's captain, Glenn Brindel, and the weapons officer, Lt. Basil Moncrief Jr. Unlike the others, he has not asked to leave the Navy.

FCC reels in offshore radio broadcast rogues

LONG BEACH, N.Y. (UPI) — Federal Communications Commission agents Tuesday boarded a rusty Honduran freighter moored off Long Island, seized the vessel and arrested two radio pirates airing rock 'n' roll for violating international law barring offshore broadcasts. The rogue radio station's chief engineer Allan Weiner, of Presque Isle, Maine, and volunteer Ivan Rothstein, 25, of Brooklyn, were arrested and charged with violating the International Telecommunications Convention, a treaty barring shipboard broadcasts from international waters, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Matthew Fishbein.

Soybean study fools hungry kids

'Unbiased' tofu tastes gauged

By Karen Wells
Staff Writer

Teaching children about nutrition at an early age can prompt them to eat healthy foods throughout their lives.

That is one goal of an experiment being conducted by Cyathia Schoepel, a graduate student in food and nutrition at SIU. Since January she has been experimenting with preschoolers in the University's Child Development Lab by adding tofu to their snacks.

Schoepel chose to involve children in her study because "they are unbiased of their preference of foods eaten."

Tofu, which is extracted from soybeans, is a custardlike food rich in protein. Tofu blends easily into any cooked foods, she added.

The tasteless ingredient, which originated in China and Japan, is mainly used to replace protein in both red meats and dairy products.

Schoepel observes the children — 1 1/2 to 5 — during snack periods. She said the children have been "very receptive" when eating the snack foods mixed with tofu. She conducted her twenty-third experiment Tuesday with the preschoolers by mixing tofu in raisin-cinnamon muffins.

Lan Sasa, 5, said "the muffins were good. I saw it (the tofu) in them, but I couldn't taste it." She said her family uses the ingredient in soups cooked at home.

Five-year-old Sarah Ashraf said she did not taste the tofu in the muffins but they did taste like they had banana in them. Her mother, Hea-Ran, said they use tofu in their meals about twice a week.

Schoepel said she has used tofu in such foods as tuna casseroles, quiche, chicken and rice, and coconut cream pie.

After completing the experiment, Schoepel plans to use the information to determine if eating habits among the children changed from the time she began using the tofu in their snack foods.

City OKs liquor license

The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission approved a liquor license Monday night for a new Chinese restaurant opening in Carbondale.

Approval of the liquor license for Kai and I

Restaurant, 206 S. Wall St., was postponed from the July 20 commission meeting because the owner of the restaurant, Sharon Sodaikich, was not present to answer questions from city councilmen.

Lonetree admitted to charges, agent says

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — A special Navy investigator testified Tuesday that Marine Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, facing court-martial on espionage charges, voluntarily admitted to a number of spy-related charges and expected to be punished.

Naval Investigative Service special agent David Moyer said during interrogations with Lonetree at a London Holiday Inn last December, Lonetree "knew he was going to jail for what he did. He just didn't know for how long."

Lonetree, 25, is accused of a romantic involvement with a Soviet woman and passing sensitive information to the KGB while he served as a guard at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. If convicted of the most serious espionage charges, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

Beat the loan snafu and join the military

AS IF MOST STUDENTS didn't have enough financial worries, the Reagan administration is dealing another blow to their shrinking bank accounts.

The administration's new Income Contingent Loan program will do more harm than good for many of those who use it to finance their educations.

Unlike the Guaranteed Student Loan and Perkins programs, which have fixed repayment rates of 8 and 5 percent per year, the interest rate for the Income Contingent Loan program is based on the 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 3 percent. Because that rate varies, the repayment rate for the new program will change from year to year. The average rate is 10.75 percent, more than double that of the Perkins program.

That's a big difference, one that some students may not be able to afford.

UNDER THE NEW PROGRAM, the amount to be repaid is based on the amount the borrower earns. And financial aid administrators estimate that borrowers may have to dedicate 12 to 15 percent of their incomes to pay back their loans.

It isn't right that those who attend college to increase their salaries should have to use their extra incomes to pay for increases in the student loan program, yet a student with an income of $15,000 who has borrowed $17,500 can expect to spend more than $42,396 over 14 years of monthly income contingent loan repayments.

WHAT DOES the Reagan administration have against students, anyway? It already has suggested cutting the Perkins Loan program, the College Work Study program and the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant programs.

Pretty soon, the only way to get an education without spending a fortune will be to get a subsidy by joining the armed forces. But maybe that's been the administration's plan all along.

Letters

Will the 'father of two percent plan' remember the faculty point of view?

I guess congratulations and commiserations are due for our new president — he is certain to be an improvement on the past three.

However, I am alarmed at the prospects for SIU-C under the "father of the 2 percent plan (solution, tax)." While the faculty receives a whopping 1 1/2 percent pay raise, which is less than enough to keep up with inflation, it comes at the expense of colleagues whose positions were eliminated, the new president starts at $106,000, which is 19 percent more than his predecessor.

In real dollars, after my 1 1/2 percent raise, I will be behind where I was in 1971 — this after two promotions and 16 years of service. The same situation probably applies to most SIU-C faculty.

The administration also apparently is managing to find some $200,000 (about five times the cost of the house I live in) to refurbish Stone House once again so our imperial new Chancellor (whose expensive position has never been justified) can live in the style he is accustomed to.

How is it that the Board of Trustees (political appointees all) cry crocodile tears over our supposedly poorly paid administrators on the grounds that we must be competitive to attract the best persons? Does this mean we got a cut-rate Chancellor when he accepted this post before the board "discovered" the sad situation? Why does the argument not apply to faculty and staff, surely the real core of the University?

Meanwhile, even while this year's budget is reduced to below last year's inadequate level, they are asking for the usual big increase for 1989. How many times has this charade been played out?

President Guyon talked at his "meet the candidates" session of shared governance, even while admitting he would continue to overturn faculty grievance decisions when he felt it is justified. (So far, under the new procedure, it has apparently been justified every time.)

After 16 years at SIU-C, I realize what a con game this is. Faculty and staff at SIU-C perhaps cannot gain the enviable power to set their own salaries and terms like the legislators and administrators do, but we can unite to negotiate them.

Furthermore, we can present a much more effective voice in Springfield than our administration has been able to do, especially if we join them in real shared governance by obtaining a collective bargaining agreement.

Things can change for the better, but only if we accept our opportunities and stop taking handouts. — M. Lionel Bender, professor, anthropology.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Col. North is a hero despite DE opinion

I disagree with the Daily Egyptian editorial of July 22. Its thesis was that Col. North can't be considered a hero because of such guileful actions as lying to Congress.

Actually, the traditional hero is either the strong man who relies on brute force (for example, Hercules or Theseus) or the trickster hero who relies on stratagems or on neat ideas (Theseus, Odysseus).

In "Hamlet," the deposed king is the former kind of hero, the usurping Claudius the latter, while Hamlet himself vacillates from one role to the other. Col. North, it seems to me, is a new version of the trickster hero. North's central point was that using the Ayatollah's money to fund the Contras was a clever trick or "neat idea."

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The examples of heroism the Daily Egyptian editorial used were in keeping with its culturally illiterate standard of journalism: Superman, John Wayne and Rambo. Granted, American heroes in the past — Capt. Ahab, Col. Lindbergh, or Gen. MacArthur — have tended to be rather simple-minded.

If Col. North is a hero, it is perhaps refreshing that he is more the trickster than most of our past heroes. — Harold Russell, graduate student, English.

subdivision on Route 51 south of Carbondale.

The boundaries are imaginary lines that run through wooded areas and fields. They do not follow roads or fences, making it difficult to determine exactly where the boundaries extend.

Residents close to the city limits of Carbondale need not fear, according to Rushing.

"If there is any question that a house is in or out of the city limits, we're going to go. We can take the heat of going to a house we're not supposed to a lot better than the heat if we didn't go when we should have," Rushing said.

"I've been with the department 22 years and I can't remember any time we've not responded to a call we should have. I can recall several times we went to homes that weren't our call," he said.

Money was not the main issue when Carbondale decided it could handle only calls within the city limits.

"We could not cover the entire township and keep our class five protection. In fact, we dropped from six to seven at one time," Rushing said.

"When we pulled back our coverage to just within the city limits and added new water mains, we improved to a class five protection level," he said.

This helps lower the fire insurance rates paid by Carbondale city residents and businesses.

"We're the only class five district in Southern Illinois besides Mount Vernon. We hope to drop to class four within three to four years," Rushing said.

Classes of fire protection are determined by the Insurance Services Office, an independent agency. This agency measures the size of the town or city, size of the fire department, water supply and flow pressure in the water mains, and firefighting equipment available such as pumping capabilities and ladder service, Rushing said.

The Insurance Services Office also rates the fire department's communications system, response time to schools and industrial areas, and the effectiveness of the town's building code. Fire prevention services, maintenance and inspection records of fire department vehicles also are taken into account, Rushing said.

Fire calls to Carbondale and Makanda township fire stations are handled by the Carbondale Fire Department because townships don't have the money to pay personnel.

"When they roll out, the station is empty so we answer their calls," Rushing said. "It would be nice if everybody would take their own calls, but the way we are set up with phone exchanges it would be harder to educate people about that instead of which fire department covers their area."

marsh elder, he said.

Excavators are cooperating with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which provides sonar tools and vehicles for the project and provides free camp sites for the workers, who also have the option to commute to work.

Anthropologists were commissioned by the federal government to find sites that were eroding into the lake and to give advice on preservation of the land. Dig areas of the Hays site have been chosen by this method, as anthropologists excavate portions of the dirt and then screen it.

The workers start early — about 7 a.m. — to beat the heat, and dig until about 4 p.m. every day. Most of them wear long pants, hats and boots to prevent injuries and discourage biting flies.

Excavation provides a way to find out about cultures that existed before written records were kept of them, Neusius said. "Sometimes history is not really accurate."

Many sites located on public property are being destroyed at a rapid rate by highway or construction activity, Neusius said. Therefore, the federal government makes a special effort to preserve or excavate the sites that are on federal property.

At the Hays site, two or three students working within a roped-off area, use shovels and hand trowels to remove the earth, layer by layer.

To get the level of dirt down 3 to 5 centimeters can take "a good part of the morning," Jim Tipton, an undergraduate in anthropology, said.

Two students and one volunteer sift dirt through a screen table. Using this method, they recover the remains of Indian storage bins and camp sites, pieces of tools or pottery, human teeth, burned animal bone and burned sandstone.

Before fire-resistant pottery was discovered by the Indians, sandstone was used for cooking, Neusius said.

"The Indians would take a pot of water and put their meat into it and then heat the sandstone," he said. "When the stone was dropped into the water, it would shatter."

After enough hot rocks were added to the pot, the water would reach boiling point. "Kind of a slow cooker."

Excavation finds have included pottery bits and chert flakes, which are chips from Indian arrowheads.

Artifacts from each level are bagged and taken to the University lab facilities where they will be washed and sorted. They are then curated, or given a special number to keep track of where they are found.

"We could go back to the lab and put the whole site back together," Neusius said.

The age of artifacts can be determined by comparing them with other artifacts that are well-dated, he said. For example, by comparing pottery styles, the Hays pottery chips have been dated to 800 to 900 A.D.

Small arrow points found on the site also can be dated to this time, because the Indians didn't have bows until 800 A.D., Neusius said.

millionaire H. Ross Pero' and other officials. Rodino also said the department had not turned over other requested documents.

Meese retorted that he was unaware of such problems and pledged the Justice Department's cooperation with any committee request.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said Meese had "cleared the air a bit" in his first day of testimony, although many questions are still to be asked.

"I must say at this moment the attorney general has done exceedingly well," the Senate committee chairman told the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Inouye said the testimony had shown that the attorney general, as Reagan, other Cabinet officials, and Congress were denied knowledge of important policy decisions, including secret, self-sustaining CIA operations.

"A sad story is unfolding," Inouye said. If intelligence operations are run by the executive branch, beyond the scrutiny of Congress, Inouye said, "Then God save America."

Rodino, referring to Meese's failure to ask Casey whether he knew about the diversion said after the hearing, "It would seem to me, if the attorney general doesn't ask a basic question ... there's some reason."

He said "there were enough signals being raised" to prompt a criminal investigation from the start and that Meese's appointment of "political allies" in the fact-finding inquiry "raises a question."

Meese: North believable, shocked when confronted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese told Congress Tuesday that when he confronted Lt. Col. Oliver North with the key piece of evidence in the Iran-Contra scandal, the Marine was clearly "shocked," but gave believable answers — some of which he has since recanted.

Meese, in his first day of testimony to the congressional committees probing the affair, described a crucial meeting he had with North on Nov. 23, 1986, in which he told North the Justice Department had discovered a North memorandum outlining the plan to divert profits from the Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

"I would describe him as being shocked," Meese said under questioning from John Nields, the chief counsel to the House committee. "I think it was a combination of words and facial expression — body language if you will."

North has since said he did not tell Meese the entire truth.

'Tough' camp develops skills, builds confidence

By Elizabeth Romanello
Student Writer

The campsite at SIU-C's Touch of Nature looks like any summer camp for teen-agers.

The teens here, though, ranging in age from 13 to 17, have been in trouble with the law or have other problems.

Some campers were sent to Touch of Nature through the Division of Children and Family Services, the courts or their parents. They did not come by choice. Some came because it is part of their probation.

The program is a part of the Spectrum Wilderness Program offered by Touch of Nature. The purpose of the program is to teach the teen-agers respect for their peers and authority figures. Mark Cosgrove, field representative for Touch of Nature, said.

The group of about 12 campers will leave today to spend the last weeks of the 76-day program hiking through Wyoming with three staff members. This is the program's second year.

"The leaders step back and the kids are completely on their own," Annie VanDusen, outdoor program aide, said. "We want them to build their confidence and learn they can do anything they want to learn to do."

"Our course challenges these teens with stressful and challenging situations in the wilderness," Irene Cohen, program coordinator at Touch of Nature, said.

While at Touch of Nature, the campers participate in exercises in canoeing, hiking and rappelling while blindfolded to learn wilderness survival and problem-solving skills. The campers also learn to cook food over a campfire, wash clothes in the lake and find their way through the woods.

The program provides therapy sessions where the teen-agers share their fears, anxieties and successes in addition to participating in service projects and educational activities, Cosgrove said.

Last year's group cleared bushes for a campsite, planted a garden, dug and placed posts for a foundation and began work for a cabin.

"This year we built off what the previous group did," said VanDusen, who is one of five outdoor program aides who supervise and counsel the group.

This year's group cleared bushes and trees from a beach near a lake, assembled pipes and wheels into bicycles and paneled the shelter where they slept.

The course is tough and counselors had to be strict, VanDusen said.

Privileges were given for good behavior, though. Rewards included cigarette smoking at a designated area, going to town with the group and visiting other camps.

Academic writer turns page to popular topics

By Gail Gajewski
Student Writer

Ike Mathur, chairman of the Department of Finance, has written 15 academic books in nine years.

Now he is writing "Money Management for Professional Women," his first book for a general audience.

"I'm hoping to do a series of books for a trade publisher in which 'Money Management for Professional Women' will be included. The other topics of the books in the series have not yet been decided," Mathur said.

BECAUSE MATHUR is a veteran at writing books, he handles his own contracting with publishers. He goes about getting a publisher the same way an agent would.

"When you get an idea for writing an academic book, you first call some publishers and ask them if there is a market for your particular subject. Some subject markets are so flooded with books right now there is no way to make a profit," he said.

The next step is to make a sample table of contents, a proposal on why your book will be different from everybody else's, what audience you will be targeting and a sample of two or three chapters. The chapters are to show how well you can communicate the subject to the audience.

"IT'S ALSO A good idea to get an estimate of what your audience size will be," Mathur said. This is so you can have a better idea what the publisher's marketing team is talking about when they say your book will only sell a certain number of people.

"Knowing the market size helps you to have leverage in case their estimates on the market size are a little small. It helps in negotiating for royalties," he said.

After a contract is signed for the book, Mathur begins to write the rest of the book. The whole process from manuscript to an actual book takes from nine to 12 months.

Ike Mathur displays some of his textbooks

THE MANUSCRIPT, the completed book, is sent to the publisher for editing. After the editing is completed, it is ready to be printed as a hardback or paperback book.

Mathur got the idea to write "Money Management for Professional Women" from professional women asking him for advice on financial matters.

"I saw a market for this type of book. I only found four other books on this subject and thought I could do a better comprehensive job, so I decided to write one myself," he said.

Ideas for his book came from specific questions that women had asked him. Mathur also looked at other books published on the subject and found topics they missed or didn't cover extensively enough.

RESEARCH FOR his book included other books on the subject as well as accounting articles and tax planning guidelines.

Among other topics, his book deals with food expenditures for working women, the new tax reform laws and managing a divorce.

"Working women in the 1980s have a more stressful family life, so I am writing a chapter on how to manage a divorce," he said.

Mathur works on his books on Tuesdays and Thursdays. He likes to spend the whole day working on them.

"I GIVE MYSELF an assignment of writing 10 pages a day. It's a very mechanical thing, just like breathing and walking. The more you do the easier it gets. I don't believe in waiting for inspiration," he said.

He prefers to write at home where there are less distractions. He does all his writing on a personal computer.

His position as chairman of the finance department comes first, though.

"If there is a meeting or work to be done in the office on Tuesday or Thursday, I do it first," he said.

MATHUR, CHAIRMAN of the finance department since 1979, is also the director of doctoral programs in the College of Business.

He has taught graduate level management courses since 1972 at the University of Dayton, University of Pittsburgh, SIU-C and the Turku School of Economics and Business in Finland.

In 1974 he received his Ph.D. from the University of Cincinnati.

Mathur feels it's comparatively safe financially to write in the academic field because there is a market for books. There is no guessing and waiting to see if a book will sell or not.

Someday he plans to write fiction stories. "I've read Stephen King stories and I know I can write fiction comparable to his. There is no fact in the stories — it's all made up. I've got a knack for writing," he said.

Engineering aims to recruit, help minorities

By Eric Oestmann
Staff Writer

Although several on-campus colleges have minority recruitment programs, the College of Engineering program is unique.

This program is the only one with full-time administrative professional staff members hired specifically to recruit and retain minority students, Linda Helstern, public information officer for the college, said.

The program also is unique because it receives state funding to support minority students in engineering, Benjamin Shepherd, acting vice president in academic affairs, said.

"The College of Engineering has a minority enrollment program offering preparation, financial assistance, academic advisement and career counseling that are important to the recruitment and retention of minority students," Teresa Trussell, director of minority recruitment and retention, said.

The program had an enrollment of 42 in 1985 and increased to 52 this semester.

Eight years ago, only seven or eight minority freshmen entered engineering each year. Last year, 22 freshmen entered the program. The number is expected to increase this fall, Trussell said.

One type of preparation the program offers engineering students is the Summer Pre-program, which exposes high school students to SIU-C's engineering courses so they can find out what subjects they need to improve.

The National Council for Minorities in Engineering made available $25,000 in financial assistance incentive grants to students. That amount is expected to increase this year, Trussell said.

Academic advisement is offered to students and potential students through tutoring and counseling. Because there are fewer students, the advisers have more time to advise individuals, Trussell noted.

Professional engineering alumni answer students' questions about school and jobs during a Minority Introduction into Engineering week.

Students also are taken on tours of local industries to see opportunities available in engineering, Trussell said.

Blacks Engineering in Allied Technology, an on-campus student organization, has been at SIU-C for 10 years and provides peer assistance.

Peruvian intends to control banks

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — President Alan Garcia announced Tuesday his intention to take over the nation's commercial banks, calling private banks "the greatest obstacle" to his economic program.

Garcia, in a state of the union address to Congress, also announced strict exchange controls and the closing of some 190 exchange houses throughout Peru.

The proposed takeover marks the first time that a Peruvian leader has sought to appropriate solvent private banks since a military dictator did so in 1970.

Education program rewarded

By Cara Day
Staff Writer

National recognition is a treasured award for the Renewal Institute for Practicing Educators.

The American Association of State Colleges and Universities has given the Christa McAuliffe Excellence Award to the institute for programs linking the University to Southern Illinois school districts.

The award, which honors the teacher who perished in the Challenger space shuttle disaster, recognizes the role of state colleges and universities in preparing teachers.

The two-year-old institute offers classes for teachers to refine their skills in mathematics, science and English. The teachers can take the courses during the spring and summer and the programs are evaluated during the fall.

The institute gives teachers ideas and lessons that they can use in their classrooms, institute director Dean Stuck said.

Faculty from the colleges of education, science and liberal arts teach the courses this summer to about 50 elementary school teachers.

"It's a tremendous recognition in terms of recognizing the cooperative effort among the three colleges," Donald Beggs, dean of the College of Education, said.

"It's recognition of the area teachers who are working with the faculty in the three colleges to update the elementary and secondary teachers' skills."

SIU-C was one of 26 schools in the running for the award in the AASCU's college-school division. More than 300 schools submitted programs for awards in 10 categories.

McAuliffe Award winners received a plaque and $500.

Officials say charge against Panama militia unsupported

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — A retired colonel arrested when troops stormed his home has no evidence to support accusations that Panama's military strongman masterminded assassinations and rigged elections, sources in the assistant prosecutor's office said Tuesday.

Retired Col. Roberto Diaz Herrera, Panama's former No. 2 military man, was said to be in good health despite a two-hour gunfight early Monday between visitors at his residence and security forces. Diaz Herrera was taken to the prosecutor's office for questioning twice Monday, a source said.

"I don't have any supporting evidence," the source quoted Diaz Herrera as telling assistant prosecutor Rafael Guerrero about his accusations that strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega masterminded two political assassinations, rigged the 1984 presidential election and used his position to amass wealth.

Panama's attorney general ordered the arrest of the former chief of staff who was seized along with about 45 other people early Monday at his home in a wealthy residential area of the capital.

Diaz's wife, Maigualida, who is Venezuelan, and three children were not among those arrested. Sources said Vatican representatives have asked the Panamanian government to allow Diaz Herrera's family to leave the country.

WE BRING MORE ROOMMATES TOGETHER BY SPLITTING THEM UP.

At Lewis Park, we realize the closer you are to your roommate, the further apart you want to be. Knowing this, we separated our four equally sized bedrooms and full bath apartment homes with a large kitchen, dishwasher, and large living area. Now you can still save money by sharing the rent - and keep your privacy; too. So have a roommate...and still live alone. Four bedroom/two bath roommate plans start from $340.00. Come by today. It's a wise "joint" venture."

QB George picks Illinois over Miami

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Quarterback Jeff George, who had announced plans to transfer from Purdue to the University of Miami, said Tuesday he will instead transfer to the University of Illinois.

George was the No. 1 prep quarterback in the nation while playing at Indianapolis Warren Central High School where he threw for 8,126 yards, completing 543 of 965 passes.

Purdue won a recruiting war with Miami and UCLA and George started at quarterback for the Boilermakers as a freshman.

But after a disappointing season that saw coach Leon Burnett resign, George decided to transfer and Miami was his stated pick.

Purdue won 3-8 last season and George wound up the season with 122 completions in 227 attempts for 1,217 yards and four TDs. He was intercepted 15 times.

"Since making that decision last January, I have had many second thoughts about leaving the Big Ten," George said in a statement released by the Illinois sports information department. "I was very comfortable playing in the conference, and my desire to remain in a Big Ten school became very important to me."

Conference transfer rules state that George must pay his own tuition for his four remaining years of eligibility.

"My decision to enter Miami seemed correct at the time, but I realized that I was a bit hasty. I regret any embarrassment or inconvenience that I may have caused (Miami) coach (Jimmy) Johnson and the team and wish them the best of luck."

Illinois had a 4-7 season last year, the worst since White's first season in 1981. Quarterback was a weak position and George is expected to help when he becomes eligible in 1988.

"I know this past year has not been easy for Jeff and his family, but we feel confident his intention to enroll at Illinois will be both satisfying and enjoyable," said White.

Gutsy Furst runs his way to success in life and work

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Tippling the scales at 80 pounds soaking wet, the 4-foot 10-inch athlete-to-be decided that — since football was out — running could provide a sport that was up to the individual.

That decision marked the beginning of a 28-year odyssey for master runner David Furst, a teacher in the SIUC women's athletics department.

The native Californian began his running career in 1958, before it was fashionable, and he still remembers getting harassed by police demanding to know what he was running from (he was running to something), where his identification was ("it's kind of hard to carry a wallet in jogging shorts"), and remarks like "if anything goes wrong, we'll be in contact with you."

Furst persevered with his goals and by 1968 was captain of his team at the University of California at Davis.

After college, Furst stopped competing for a while, but never gave up his running and for the next 15 years ran on his own to keep in shape.

Coming to Carbondale in 1985 changed his focus and again he became active in competition.

Furst joined up with the River to River Runners, a Southern Illinois running club.

The many years of daily running paid off. Furst won the masters division in 19 out of his last 20 races, which included meets in California, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Indiana and Illinois.

Last season, Furst was the top masters runner in Southern Illinois. He has recorded scores of 15 minutes, 20 seconds in the 5 kilometer run, 32:25.0 in 10 kilometer course, and currently ranks in the top 25 nationally of runners age 40 or above.

"If you don't improve you shouldn't do it," he says.

Considering the situation of losing to someone who is a better runner, though, Furst said as long as a person knows he ran a good race and is happy with his own performance, that's what counts, no matter who is ahead of or behind you.

"You have to be single Master runner David Furst, who ranked No. 1 in Southern Illinois masters division in 1986, practices daily to stay in shape for grueling 10 and 15 kilometer races.

mind," Furst said. "If you can compete and compete seriously, you can't be questioning yourself in a race. I won't enter a race unless I'm ready to run all out." Although Furst races in the masters class, that doesn't let him off the hook as to competition because all age groups run in the same field. Keeping up with and surpassing younger runners to take — if not first, maybe second or third overall — is especially rewarding to the runner.

Furst now sets his sights on running in a different area. After spending two years working with the Saluki athletic program in sports psychology, sociology and working as an assistant track coach for Don DeNoon, Furst decided to move back to California.

He landed a position at San Jose State and will teach stress management, psychology of coaching and sociology in sports.

Perhaps more importantly, he will be in an area where running is a truly big deal. Three of the top master runners in the U.S. live and compete in the area. The interest in competition and the amount of competitors are overwhelming compared to the response here, with California meets often boasting races with 3,000 or more competitors.

The thumb injury that sidelined Hilleman his last month at SIUC also sidelined him the first few weeks at Spokane, but he thinks he's well on the way to a full recovery.

"It was real tender at first and I have a few problems with it once in a while, but its healing okay," he said. "I haven't had time to rehabilitate it like I'd like to, but I'll have plenty of time for that this fall."

Like former teammate Steve Finley, who's now playing ball for the Baltimore Orioles class A team in Newark, N.Y., Hilleman says the game isn't that much different than college baseball but other changes loom rather large.

"The schedule is ridiculous," he said. "It really is hectic — traveling, training, being places all the time."

Being around professional baseball people on a full-time basis is something that's been pleasantly different.

"Our team is owned by George Brett and his brothers Ken and Bobby," Hilleman said. "And (former Kansas City Royals outfielder) Amis Otis is our outfield coach. It's great to get an opportunity to be around such people."

Hilleman said he's happy he signed with a team as considerate as the Padres.

"The organization is just great," Hilleman said. "They treat us like people — everyone has been just fantastic. And, surprisingly enough, the competition between the players is almost nonexistent. We really play well as a team. I guess everyone figures that the really good ones are all going to get their shot eventually."

Being so far away from home is the only thing leaving Hilleman disappointed about the minor leagues, but a visit from his girlfriend — a registered nurse back home in St. Charles, Mo. — will make things easier to cope with.

"She's coming out for the first time later on this week," he said. "Thank god — I'll finally get to see a familiar face."

And if Charlie Hilleman has things his way, his own face will become familiar to baseball fans one day in the not-too-distant future.

'Sweetness' signs contract

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Walter Payton, the NFL's career rushing leader, Tuesday signed a one-year contract to play what will apparently be his last season.

Payton, the holder of 10 NFL records, high-stepped the question of whether he would consider returning in 1988 but emphasized at the present time, "unless something happens (team owner Michael) and Mr. McCaskey says he wants me back, this will be the last one."

"Nothing is final, but I'm thinking it is," Payton said. "This isn't a farewell speech, not really."

Asked when he made up his mind about retiring, Payton said, "probably when I walked through this door" to start the news conference.

Payton, in an emotional 45-minute news conference, had reportedly been offered an option year for 1988 but turned it down. Payton, insisting he could play three more years, said he wanted to go out while he was on top but put the onus on the Bears whether they want him back.

"You realize that you can't play forever," said Payton, 33, who will start his 13th season when the Bears open camp Saturday. "I think I can play three more years. I know I can play and it's tough to come and say you ought to stop."

Payton, who hasn't missed a start since his rookie year, said he was physically strong and still "loved the game."

"The hardest thing for me is the friendships and to say goodbye to these guys," said Payton.

McCaskey said he wanted Payton to stay in the Bears' organization in a front office capacity when the running back quits.

Payton has also met with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle about acquiring an expansion franchise in the future. But Payton said that and other factors didn't enter into his decision about how much longer to play.

"No, that wasn't a factor. Whether we get to the Super Bowl, come close or have a bad season won't have much to do with it, either," Payton said.

Payton's last game with the Bears last year left a bitter taste in his mouth. He fumbled in the second half of the playoff loss at home to Washington and chided reporters for not letting the club forget the loss.

"It was taken like someone assassinated President Reagan," Payton said. "I don't think you guys (the media) will let us forget it."

Payton, who gained 1,333 yards last year, fourth in the NFC, has 16,193 yards in his career. He has 106 rushing TDS and needs one more to break Jim Brown's mark. He also has 120 career TDS, six short of Brown's career record.

Chicago coach Mike Ditka has said he wanted to get more playing time for Neal Anderson and other running backs, meaning Payton might get less playing time.

Green Bay defender sentenced to 2 years

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers defensive back Mossy Cade was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison and fined $15,000 for his conviction on two counts of second-degree sexual assault.

Cade, 25, was found guilty by a Brown County jury May 23 on two of three charges of sexually assaulting his 44-year-old aunt on Nov. 4, 1985.

The woman, related to Cade by marriage, was visiting Cade's home in De Pere when the incident occurred. The woman waited until she returned home to Houston to report the assault.

Cade was the No. 1 draft choice of the San Diego Chargers when he graduated from the University of Texas in 1984, but he signed with the Memphis Showboats in the USFL after a contract dispute with the Chargers. The Packers obtained Cade in 1985 from San Diego for their first-round draft choice in 1986 and another draft choice this year.

will be looking at things more closely to see if it (raising $300,000 in FY 88) can be done within the framework of the current structure," Bubb said.

"One (thing), Bubb said, "would be to possibly still designate funds for a specific sport but rather than leave it up to the coaches' discretion, contributions would go toward that particular sports scholarship fund. There's also the option of allowing part of the donation to go to scholarships funds and part for the coaches' excellence funds, and a third possibility would be to leave it the way it is.

"There are definitely options to work with," Bubb said, "we're not backed into a corner by any means."

Bubb emphasized that input from coaches and the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee would be weighed, but the final decision rested with the athletics director.

"Through the remainder of the calendar year, the excellence funds structure will remain as is," Bubb said. "Maybe next spring, when the major fund drive begins, there may be some changes looked at very carefully to see where the greatest needs within the athletic department are."

All sports received excellence funds donations in FY 87, with baseball getting the most, largely due to coach Richard "Itchy" Jones fine rapport with former players, Bubb said. Football and men's basketball ran a tight second, with women's basketball receiving a substantial amount also. Both the men's and women's golf programs did well, too, Bubb said.

I like the staff I have to work with. Our relationship with the administration is very good, much improved over when I got here. We are improving.

"I can't say for sure that I'd take the job, but I can't say I wouldn't," he said.

Administrators at WSU have set a Sept. 1 deadline for hiring an athletics director, but one source said he expected a director to be named by Aug. 15 at the latest.

Edward Bennett, a history professor at WSU and chair of the search committee responsible for screening applicants, said Livengood would have to be considered a front-runner.

"They're all front-runners in a way, but Jim definitely has a lot going for him," Bennett said.

According to an inside source who used to work with Livengood at WSU, Livengood and John Chaplin are front-runners for the position.

Chaplin was hired by WSU as an assistant track coach in 1968. He became head coach in 1974, and was named as an assistant athletics director in 1977.

"There's pretty much two different groups of support," the source said. "I know Jim is still pretty popular here and I haven't ever heard anything bad about him. He has considerable support, but so does Chaplin."

Livengood was a student at WSU in 1963-64. After graduating from Brigham Young in 1968 with a master's in physical education, he coached prep basketball and football for 12 years at two Pullman area high schools.

He was hired by WSU as an assistant athletics director in charge of recruiting and camps in 1980. One year later, he was promoted to associate director of athletics, where he was overseer of all external operations of the athletics departments.

SIU-C hired Livengood in November 1985 to lead the SIU-C athletics departments. In the summer of 1986, just eight months after he assumed his position, he was a final candidate for athletics directorship at the University of Wyoming. He pulled out of that search the night before a director was named.

"I went through a lot of trial and tribulation last summer with the Wyoming thing," Livengood said. "A lot of people questioned my loyalty. But this is a pretty monumental decision. It's a chance to go back home, and I'm afraid that if I didn't consider it now, I might never get the chance to go back."

The job at WSU would pay between $65,000 and $70,000, which would be a considerable raise from the $57,014 annual salary SIU-C pays Livengood. The WSU athletics program is better financed than SIU-C's, with a total budget of $6.6 million for 16 sports in comparison to the $3.5 million SIU-C spends on 19 intercollegiate sports.

Hall of Fame induction scheduled

Four former athletes and a current member of the SIU-C's coaching staff will be inducted into the Athletics Hall of Fame Sept. 5, in a ceremony highlighting the football Salukis' opening day.

Low Hartzog, current men's golf coach who developed the Salukis' standout golf program, will be inducted into the 10-year old Hall, along with former athletes David Lee (track), Lindy Nelson Rushing (track), Tracy Terrell (diving) and Roger Von-Jouanne (swimming.)

Induction ceremonies will be held at a 10:30 a.m. brunch at the Student Center prior to the 1:30 p.m. Saluki-Delta State gridiron clash in newly renovated McAndrew Stadium.

Hartzog, who came to SIU-C in 1960 after a brief stint at Northeast Louisiana State, turned the Saluki track program into a national powerhouse. In 24 years as head coach prior to his retirement from track in 1984, his teams won every conference championship meet in which they participated.

Lee, a St. Louis native now residing in Gainesville, Fla., becomes the 10th athlete Hartzog has coached to be enshrined in the Hall. Lee participated in hurdles, long jump and triple jump and frequently ran a leg of the mile relay team. He led his teammates in scoring three consecutive years and earned a berth on the 1980 Olympic team, second only to Edwin Moses in intermediate hurdles. Lee is a two-time all-American and won the NCAA intermediate title in 1980.

Rushing won five state titles in cross country and track and qualified for the AIAW championships three times. She won 21 races during three seasons here and took first in 17 of 22 meets. Her 5,000-meter time of 16:44.8 st. stands as a school record.

Terrell was a four-time all-American and state champion in diving, claiming 22 first-place finishes during her career. As a senior in '82, she helped spark SIU-C to its highest finish ever at the AIAW national meet, third in a 40-team field.

VonJouanne becomes only the second male swimmer voted into the Hall of Fame. He was a 10-time NCAA all-American and in 1981 nabbed sixth in the 200-meter butterfly event at the national championships. He won most valuable player three years as a Saluki and still holds SIU-C records in five events, the 100- and 200-meter butterfly, the 200- and 400-meter individual medley and the 100-meter backstroke.

Tickets for the Sept. 5 brunch, which is open to the general public, will be available at the SIU-C athletics office in the near future.

Hilleman likes split season between baseball, books

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Editor's note: The following is the second in a four-part series on Salukis from the 1986 and 1987 baseball teams now playing professional baseball in the minor leagues.

Charlie Hilleman has no regrets at all.

The three-year Saluki starter passed up his final year of eligibility to play professional baseball, but so far it looks like he made the right decision.

"Regrets?" Hilleman asked. "Hey, the money isn't great but I'm doing well and I'm playing ball. I don't have regret number one so far. I couldn't be happier."

"Regrets? Hey, the money isn't great but I'm doing well and playing ball. I couldn't be happier."

— Charlie Hilleman

A 15th-round draft pick by the San Diego Padres in this summer's amateur baseball draft, Hilleman is starting in left field for the class A Spokane Indians.

The Padres have class A teams in Spokane, Charlotte, N.C., and Reno, Nev. After A ball, the Padres have a double A team in Wichita, Kan., and a triple A team in Las Vegas.

The Spokane team, a short-season "rookie" league team, gets all Padre draft picks.

Despite a first-place ranking in the Northwest League, Hilleman readily admits he wouldn't be happy playing at Spokane next season. His sights are set on a move up in A ball, or possibly even a move up double A.

"If I knew right now that I'd be asked back to Spokane, I'd probably quit right now," the ever-animated Hilleman said. "No one is really talking too much to me about the future, but I'm doing well enough in my own mind to get a shot at moving up."

A .262 batting average is down 30 points from two weeks ago, and he's fanned 30 times in 104 at-bats, but Hilleman isn't letting a recent slump get him down. His best game was a three-for-four showing with a home run, a double and three "spectacular" catches. Hilleman said he would know more about where he'd be next summer after spring tryouts.

"I'd like to be in Wichita next summer, or at least in Reno," Hilleman said. "I need to move up and I feel I'm capable of moving up."

Hilleman returns to Carbondale this fall, after the Indians close out the season. He'll be two weeks late for school, a fact that bothers him, but at least he has the opportunity to finish his degree.

As part of his signing bonus, he talked the Padres into paying for the three semesters it'll take him to graduate. It was a major part of the reason why he signed.

"I really didn't lose anything," he said, pointing out that the Padres were picking up what he'd have lost by giving up his final year of collegiate eligibility. "I'll be attending school for the next three falls and playing ball in the spring and summer. The school issue was a big thing — it's very important to me."

Athletics Director Jim Livengood says he's interested in the vacant athletics directorship at Washington State University, the school that gave him his first chance to administrate at the collegiate level.

"It is an excellent job and an excellent school," Livengood said. "There are a lot of positive things to consider when looking at WSU, and being a native of the area is just one of them. Obviously I have great interest or I wouldn't be involved."

Livengood is one of five candidates for the position, which opened in June when Richard Young left to become the athletics director at Florida International University.

He begins interviewing for the position Sunday night, with interviews scheduled through Tuesday. He will be the last of the candidates to interview.

Livengood said he was nominated for the job.

Family ties and inside knowledge of WSU athletics are the two major reasons why Livengood is considering the post. Both he and his wife, Linda, were born and raised in Washington.

"There isn't another job in the nation that I'd consider leaving SIU-C for," he said. "I've been nominated four times in the last three months for other positions that I didn't even consider. It would take something special to make me even consider leaving."

"I like the direction our program has taken here and Saluki athletics fund-raising efforts for the 1987 fiscal year raised $337,071, according to Paul A. Bubb, director of athletic development at the SIU Foundation.

Contributions to grants in aid were $151,220, donations to excellence funds totaled $131,855 while endowment funds added $53,996 to the total.

Bubb said although $300,000 was the goal for grants in aid donations, getting to $150,000 was a big step and he felt "pretty good" about it.

"When I came here, many people felt if we could hit $300,000 in three years, it would be a good job," Bubb said. "In my opinion, this year is going to be more of a key than last, because I thought three years would be what it would take to get things in place. I think we can realistically talk about $300,000 in grants in aid alone, with over $400,000 raised totally."

Bubb, entering his third year at the foundation, said the big question now posed is how $300,000 can be raised for grants in aid for FY 88 and still allow for excellence funds.

Excellence funds are donations earmarked by the contributor to go to a specific sport's program, above and beyond scholarships, to be used at the coach's discretion.
