SIU's budget bounces back to Senate

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The $2-million question in SIU's 1974-75 appropriation bill—with all that implies for the University's employees and student workers—is back in the state Senate for an answer.

Actually, it's a $2,176,000 question—the difference between the $106 million approved for SIU by the Senate and the three per cent lower figure that has cleared the House.

House Democratic leader Clyde Choate of Anna led a successful drive to block the Senate's extra three per cent salary boost for SIU employees Thursday, sending the appropriation bill back to the other body.

The Senate must now decide whether to withdraw its higher figure or send the matter to a joint conference committee.

According to Choate's press secretary, the Anna representative argued against the SIU increase because the eight per cent raises would be unfair to other state employees who are only slated for five per cent boosts.

opposition to a similar bill for SIU and the schools under the Board of Regents.

U of I appropriations passed the House 137 to 2 while SIU's bill pulled only 72 of the 89 votes necessary for passage.

Choate claimed Gov. Dan Walker, the Illinois Board of Higher Education, and legislators had agreed on five per cent pay hikes for all state workers.

The House Thursday passed appropriations for the University of Illinois and schools under the Board of Governors allowing for eight per cent pay raises just before Choate sparked Choate's press secretary said Friday that Choate was "in the lobby on his way to the House floor" when the U of I bill was voted on.

According to Choate, Walker has assured him he will veto the portion of U of I's $266 million appropriation providing an eight per cent pay increase.

A spokesman for Walker said the governor was "very much opposed to the additional increases" but would await legislative action on the other university appropriations before deciding to veto, sign, or reduce the U of I bill.

Bills would block ruling by cities on occupations

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—The Illinois House passed Friday and sent to the governor several bills that deny municipal regulatory authority over such occupations as doctors, social workers and architects.

The measures, which originated in the Senate, give the state the exclusive right to regulate and license the occupations despite the home rule provisions in the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

Among those affected are dentists, physical therapists, veterinarians, shorthand reporters, beauticians, funeral directors, land surveyors and detectives.

The series of bills drew opposition primarily from Chicago Democrats. They argued that the 1970 Constitution prohibits the state from taking exclusive authority over the occupations.

The House has spent some nine hours in the last several days debating motions by Chicago Democrats which would have watered the bills down to the point where the state would not have had total regulating power.

If Gov. Daniel Walker signs the measures, the matter will almost assuredly go to the courts.

The House also approved measures which would make minor changes in the Regional Transportation Authority. The two measures sent to Walker would limit the RTA's ability to impose parking taxes and require public bidding on RTA purchases.

A measure dealing with real estate brokers was amended in the House and must go back to the Senate for its approval.

In other action, the Senate passed a bill requiring licensing of collection agencies which included a fine for agencies that use intimidation to collect debts.

The measure return to the House for approval of an amendment that clarified which debt collectors would come under the law.

Oil companies focus hunt near Shawnee

By John Russell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

While the National Forest Service has instituted a moratorium on oil and gas leases in Shawnee National Forest, a number of private landowners in the area have been leasing out their oil rights for years.

The Forest Service announced last month that no leases for oil drilling would be granted in the forest until further environmental studies have been completed.

Granting of leases will be delayed until at least late fall, after public hearings have been held on the drilling issues. Seven companies have applied for leases on all 250,000 acres of the forest.

Ron Abraham, information specialist for the Forest Service, said private landowners in the Murphysboro area have been leasing almost all their property to oil companies for many years.

Several Murphysboro land owners agreed.

Robert Van Cloostere of RR 3, Murphysboro, said he was one of the first persons in the area to lease his land to oil companies, starting 12 or 14 years ago.

Van Cloostere said his land has been leased to two small oil companies, and to Texaco, and is currently leased to Amoco.

Wells have been drilled on the 2,300 acres Van Cloostere owns in Perry and Jackson counties, but no oil has been found, he said.

Abraham said he knows of only one well in the area that has struck oil. The oil gushed an hour before the well went dry, he said.

Wells were drilled two years ago on the 440 acres owned by R.A. Williams near Vergennes, but no oil was found. Williams said he has leased land to

Dean gets roadwork for new job at SIU

By Gary T. Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Charles B. Hunt Jr. has been getting the feel of his new position as dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

He won't officially become dean until July 15, but he's been spending the weekends at SIU for several weeks.

Hunt, 58, took some time out of a busy schedule Friday to discuss his background and some of his plans for his new job.

"I haven't had any time to practice in the last 10 years," he said, referring to his favorite musical instrument, the clarinet. "Since then, I've tried to bring the best out of the people I work with. That's what creativity is to me now. And I hope some creative things can be done here."

Seeming at home in the office of the dean, Hunt, said he is impressed with the people he has met at SIU so far. "There's a lot of first-rate talent here. I hope we can continue to have successes here. I hope we can keep close to the needs of the students."

Hunt said he learned of some of the financial problems at SIU from an article in the Chronicle of Higher Education. "I know there's been a good-sized drop in enrollment here. And I suppose we may have additional drops in the future, just like many other institutions," Hunt said. "That means our college needs to keep the programs up to high quality."

Still serving as graduate school dean at George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., Hunt drives to SIU every Friday and drives back to Nashville Monday. Since the college has not yet found a replacement for him, Hunt will move here Aug. 1 and begin full duty sometime "in the middle of August."

Hunt and his wife will move into an old house in Cartersville which they have already started renovating. The house is "only a five-minute drive" to the boat dock at Crab Orchard Lake, Hunt said. His favorite hobby is fishing.

"This is a professional school that must keep up with job opportunities," Hunt said. "The day has passed when a college degree is enough. It's more important now what a person becomes because of his education."

Charles B. Hunt Jr.

Hunt said he believes students should have a "working relationship with the faculty." Graduate students need experience as much as instruction, he said.

"My first immediate goal is getting to know students and faculty and to pick up as many ideas as possible," Hunt said. "Then, I'll do the best I can here for as long as I can. There's great possibilities here."

Nixon talks weigh limit on missiles

MOSCOW (AP)—President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev announced Friday—in a manner that suggested agreement—that their summit talks already have dealt with "the question of additional measures to limit" the antiballistic missile systems of their two countries.

Since negotiating room on the question was limited, it seemed most likely that any new accord on ABMs likely would freeze the sophisticated defenses at their present level.

Following 4 hours and 10 minutes of what were described as "very direct" negotiations during the day, the two leaders said the ABM question "was discussed."

A joint statement added: "An exchange of opinion also took place on the question of limiting nuclear weapon tests. The discussion on this question will be continued."

The fact that the statement referred to continued discussion of putting new curbs on underground tests while saying nothing about any need for further discussion on ABMs seemed to imply that Nixon and Brezhnev had concluded negotiations on defensive weapons systems.

There would appear to be limited scope for further agreement in the ABM area because a treaty negotiated at the 1972 Nixon-Brezhnev summit here committed each nation to maintain only two ABM sites—one to protect its capital and one elsewhere.

However, neither country is known to have taken maximum advantage of the 1972 accord. The Soviets have an ABM system to protect Moscow only and the sole American system is installed at Grand Forks, N.D.

The two leaders expanded their schedule for summit talks and put their approval on agreements to develop artificial hearts, design houses for earthquake-prone areas and do research on energy sources.

White House sources said Nixon and Brezhnev would renew their talks late Saturday morning and that by that time another agreement between the two nations would be likely.

Indications were that it would involve economic matters and not armaments. The two leaders gave their approval Friday to three accords outside the weapons field.

The President and the Communist party chief agreed during the day to expand their conversations and to continue them at Brezhnev's Crimean villa late Saturday and Sunday.

The three agreements signed at a Kremlin ceremony were negotiated before Nixon arrived in Moscow on Thursday, and were secondary to the main topic of the talks—reaching an accord on banning underground nuclear testing.

Perhaps the most noteworthy of the three envision joint work on development of artificial hearts, the exchange of heart models, and their testing, and publications of the results of joint research.

Another feature of the program will be attempt to extend the operating life of cardiac pacemakers.

SIU professor named journalism chief ; Long to step down from DE

By Gary Houy
and
Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

George Brown, professor of journalism, was approved as director of the School of Journalism Friday by Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost.

The current editor and fiscal officer of the Daily Egyptian, Howard R. Long, professor of journalism, will "be stepping out of active management of the D.E.," as of July 1, Leasure also said Friday.

Leasure made the announcement early Friday evening. He said Brown was the unanimous choice of the journalism faculty for the directorship.

Contacted at his home, Brown said he had not talked to Leasure and had "not really" accepted the position. He said he had no idea when he would discuss the matter with Leasure.

Leasure said he presumed Brown would move into the director's office, now occupied by Bryce Rucker, Monday morning. Rucker's resignation, effective June 30, has been approved by the Board of Trustees. He was scheduled to leave his position Friday, and has accepted a position at the University of South Carolina.

The journalism faculty asked that Brown be appointed to the position with two stipulations. One was that the position of fiscal officer of the Daily Egyptian be placed under the authority of the director of the School of Journalism.

The other was that a replacement for Brown's current post be provided. Brown is in charge of the journalism graduate program.

Leasure said he had agreed to both propositions.

Long was director of the School of Journalism from 1953 to 1972 when he resigned. He stayed on as Daily Egyptian fiscal officer and was named DE editor in 1973 by the Board of Trustees. He is scheduled to retire Sept. 1.

Born in Arkansas City, Kan., Brown was co-owner of the Solomon (Kansas) Valley Tribune from 1944 to 47. He received a bachelor's degree in industrial education from Kansas State in 1945 and a master's degree from Kansas State Teachers college in 1948.

Brown served as business manager of the Daily Egyptian from 1961-1965.

Starting July 1, Long will be assigned to study and report on problems of campus newspapers. Leasure said. "We're asking him to draw upon his experience to help us in the future," Leasure explained.

Area landowners lease oil rights to their lands

The company pays Tretter for the lease by depositing money into his bank account, he said.

Texaco for two years, and previously leased the mineral rights to a smaller company.

The oil companies pay "a couple dollars per acre per year" for mineral rights, said O.J. Tretter, RR 3, Murphysboro. Tretter leased his land three years ago "to one of the major Texas outfits." He said the arrangements were made through an agent of the company, so he is not sure exactly which oil company holds the lease rights.

The agent said there would probably never be any wells drilled on his land, Tretter explained. And so far no wells have been drilled on his 2,000 acres in and around Shawnee Forest.

Glenn Williams, RR 3, Murphysboro, said he gets $3 per acre per year for his 480 acres near Vergennes.

One of the major oil companies has a five-year lease on Williams' land. He said he receives a check signed by Gilpatrick Campbell of Mt. Vernon for payment on the lease. Howard Campbell, a Mt. Vernon attorney, said Gilpatrick Campbell is an Amoco representative.

Williams said he has leased his land for several years, but no drilling has been done.

Most private landowners receive between $1 and $3 an acre per year from the oil companies for the leases, Abraham said.

The oil companies, however, only pay the government 50 cents per acre for leasing federal lands, he said.

Leasure said he expected no problems with Brown's approval by the Board of Trustees because his appointment would be an internal one within the journalism school.

Brown was appointed assistant professor of journalism at SIU in 1956. He received a Ph.D. in Education at SIU in 1963 and became a full professor in 1973.

This difference in price is worrying persons who own land in the Shawnee Forest, Oliver Caldwell, SIU emeritus professor of higher education, said.

Caldwell, of Cobden, lives in the "heart of the forest." He said he has heard that the government plans to lease the forest land to oil companies for drilling.

He said the companies may try to save money by leasing the land at a much lower price from the government than from private landowners, and then drill at an angle from government land to private land.

Both Caldwell and Wallace Ridge, president of the First National Bank of Cobden, said they haven't heard of anyone in the Cobden area being contacted by oil companies.

Van Cloostere said he couldn't understand objections of environmentalists to drilling in the forest.

"Oil is a natural resource we need very much," he said.

Van Cloostere said he feels it is wrong not to use the resources found on government lands.

Handicapped youngsters get feel for nature in camp with a 'touch'

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

At the Touch of Nature summer camp handicapped children get to experience something they rarely get to—nature, Jack Leggett, camp director, said Friday.

"Touch of Nature is a unique camp," Leggett said. "There is no other place in the area where handicapped children can be out with nature, riding horses and being with other children like themselves."

The camp provides canoeing, hiking horse-back riding, arts and crafts shop and other activities for about 400 to 450 mentally and physically handicapped children throughout the state, Leggett said. The children range in age from 6 to 17.

"The camp is designed to give the children a feeling of confidence," Leggett said. By allowing the 90 children per two-week session to do things they are not accustomed to doing, they gain experience they might not have ever gotten, he added.

Sessions are broken into two-week slots that run June 16 through August 10, Leggett said. Each camper is expected to pay $152 for the session.

In past years the University footed most of the bill for each camper, Leggett said. In September, the camp was facing a shutdown, because of budget cutbacks. University officials decided to start charging each camper in an effort to keep the camp open, he added.

Leggett said camp officials are now considering keeping the camp open year round. The added income would keep the camp on its feet, he added.

The University pays for 12 camp employees, Leggett said. Counselors, food and other things the children use during their sessions are paid for by themselves.

In the past the University paid for the counselors, Leggett said. Now, the 40 full-time counselors are paid by the camp.

Leggett said the 40 counselors and their helpers come from the University. The counselors are people who have studied fields related to the work they are doing with the children.

Some of the staff's background is in special education, physical education and elementary and secondary education, he added.

One of the most difficult things the counselors face is keeping their children busy and out of mischief during the course of the day, Leggett said. "They have to watch that none of the children lock themselves in anywhere or wander off."

The children are kept out of mischief by a heavy schedule, Leggett said. They swim, play volleyball, sing, hike and eat all in a single day. "Some of the children are tired when they go home, but they're happy," he added.

There are modified activities for those campers who cannot hike or have difficulties in other areas, Leggett said. When one group goes hiking they have to leave their wheelchair companions behind. But, these children are then given something else to do.

For the most part, although, the majority of the children reap the full benefits of the camp, Leggett said.

Wheels of government start to roll for proposed city federal building

By Bill Layne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The General Services Administration (GSA) has set the machinery in motion for the proposed new federal building in Carbondale.

Joseph Mocaldo, spokesman for the GSA's public buildings section in Chicago, said his office has started drafting an environmental impact statement for the new structure. The statement is required prior to construction of federal buildings, Mocaldo explained.

"We don't want to take any action which may be irreversible until the environmental aspects have been looked at," Mocaldo said.

Acting Police Chief resigns

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Acting Carbondale Police Chief Edward Hogan announced his resignation Friday, effective Sept. 1, to become chief of police in Centralia.

"The job itself will offer new horizons and challenges," said the 52-year-old Hogan.

Hogan is the second official in the department to resign within the last two months. Former police chief Joseph T. Dakin, 36, resigned June 4 because of a dispute with City Manager Carroll Fry over the police budget.

Dakin is now director of SIU's two-year law enforcement program.

Hogan came to the Carbondale Police Department in April 1971 as a lieutenant. "The past three years were very productive, meaningful and heartening," Hogan said.

Hogan is a 20-year veteran of the St. Louis Police Department. He has also worked as chief of security for Arlan's Department Store in St. Louis.

Hogan was one of 15 applicants who have applied for the chief's position in Carbondale.

John Gilbert, chairman of the Police Chief Evaluation Committee, said Friday he plans to send three recommendations to Fry shortly after the July 15 cutoff date for applications.

Fry said Friday that he plans to have the vacancy filled by Sept. 1.

Hogans salary at Centralia will be $16,000 a year. As Carbondale acting chief Hogan got $14,700.

Hogan's wife, Marilyn, 37, a Carbondale police officer, will continue to work in Carbondale for another year until she finishes her master's degree at SIU, said Hogan.

Right of way set by state

By Karl Plath
Student Writer

Purchase of right-of-way for construction of a straighter Rt. 51 south of Carbondale is nearly complete, according to Ted Jennings, district planning engineer of the state highway department.

The new road is planned from the break-off of new Rt. 51 at Makanda Road to an area just south of Boskydell Road. Jennings expects the four-mile stretch to take about two years to complete and cost several million dollars.

The project is at a temporary halt pending allocation of state and federal funds. Jennings also explained that four parcels of land near Boskydell have yet to be purchased.

Current plans call for ending the project at Boskydell. From there, Jennings said, the road can branch in any direction, depending on the decision of the Carbondale Area Transportation Planning Committee.

The committee is charged with deciding what will be done with Rt. 51 through Carbondale. The alternatives are a west bypass, an east bypass or widening existing roads through the city, Jennings said.

Jack Martell, locations study engineer, explained that the highway department had originally planned to widen Illinois Avenue to four lanes. This was rejected after area residents protested, and the highway department was told to work on plans for a west bypass.

The west bypass plan also was rejected for environmental reasons. The planners now have been told by the Carbondale committee to study widening of existing streets, Martell said.

Council to hear about demolition

The Carbondale City Council will hear specifications on the demolition of two buildings and the purchasing of a van for city meter readers at its formal meeting 7 p.m., Monday.

The old McDonald's restaurant and a vegetable stand, on the Lenus Turley Park property near Murdale are to be torn down.

The proposed $6-million office building is to be built on the southeast corner of the intersection of Elm Street and South University Avenue in Carbondale. The Downtown Task Force and the city Planning Department recommended the area selected.

Writing the statement only takes about three months, Mocaldo said, but about six months are needed for the report to filter down to the various levels of the agencies involved.

"It looks good at this point. We're writing the statement now and it should be available for the public about October 1."

The site acquisition unit of the GSA has visited Carbondale to talk to area planners and landowners of the prospective site. The unit collected environmental data on solid waste disposal, water system accessibility, transportation and land use, Mocaldo said.

Ben Copenhaver of the GSA's business services center said that notices have been sent out to all property owners on the proposed site. The notices informed the five owners that their property will be surveyed and appraised within the next 90 days, Copenhaver said.

Designs for the proposed structure have not yet been drawn, Mocaldo said, but they will be by the time the environmental statement is prepared.

The building would house about 10 federal agencies now renting offices in the Carbondale area.

First amendment not the answer

To the Daily Egyptian:

The commentary on your editorial page, "The right to be heard" (June 27, 1974) struck me as a lot of nonsense about an important problem. The anonymous commentator's prescription of some unspecified "restructuring" of the First Amendment is bad medicine that could kill free expression, not save it. The basis of the commentator's distress is not any critical "indifference" or flaw in the Amendment, as he or she thinks, but their own uncritical acceptance of the myth of Pavlovian politics. Because they believe "ideas reach the millions" almost exclusively through the privately-owned Mass Media, they fear abridgement of free expression by commercial interests. If we carefully consider our own experience, can we really accept the view that people salivate at every thing they viddy or read in Newsweek? Tell that to all the T.V. series and stars that fail each new season. Television has no magical power over the human mind. Even politicians are beginning to realize that a blitz of T.V. spots alone cannot guarantee election and are returning to speaking engagements and canvassing.

Which brings up a second but equally important point of disagreement I have with the commentary. As I see it the soapbox is not as inadequate a forum for public discussion as the writer would have us believe. Speeches to luncheons, canvassing neighborhoods, discussion groups and committees of correspondence are a few of the older and less flashy ways of communicating ideas to the public that some groups use today to devastating effect, for example, the National Rifle Association.

No nation could possibly guarantee a "right to be heard" to every idea. All the waking hours in a person's lifetime would not be long enough. Even if they were, the government would have to wire every citizen's eyes open to guarantee each idea a fair viewing. Despite the justice of any particular cause, the one road I would not want to see our nation start down is making laws regulating freedom of the press. Inevitably the press would become an official press.

Part of the reason that the problem of whether ideas are being given a fair opportunity to be heard seems more grave today is that use of the term media obscures the diversity of the publications and programs it represents. To say, as the commentary does, that the media avoids the "novel and unorthodox" as bad for business is absurd on the face of it. "News" and "entertainment" have come to mean in our culture "novel and unorthodox". In fact, the commentator might well have learned about marijuana law reform and the rejection of advertisements by the news magazines from Playboy, which regularly reports on the subject, or from some other portion of the commercially-dominated "matrix of expression", so in need, according to the comments, of tampering. The real problem is how we can reinvestigate our democratic personal and community practices and the solution must be one-to-one, grass-roots, pragmatic and a way of life, not constitutional.

Can women overcome TV stereo types?

If current legislative efforts and judicial tests are successful, women may one day have rights equal to those of men in this country. One wonders, though, whether society in general will ever consider women equal to men. If current television is any indication, the odds are against it.

Women on television are seen in exactly two roles. The most prevalent, of course, is the housewife. The other is in the service role, such as secretary, waitress, or stewardess.

Where are the women doctors, lawyers, or business executives? If one's view of American society came solely from television, one might believe that there aren't any. It is disturbing to realize that children in their formative years do indeed get at least part of their impression of our society from television.

If the TV shows portray women in stereotyped roles, the commercials are worse. We are much more apt to see a poor, ignorant housewife being told by an authoritative male voice how to get her laundry clean, than we are an intelligent woman. A recent study shows that only six per cent of television ads using voice-over use a female voice.

Even anti-women libists would probably have to agree with Germaine Greer when she says most TV ads are for "things to squirt on women to stop them from being so offensive." She's right. Women are seven times more likely to appear in ads for personal hygiene products than men.

What are we doing to our daughters? Are we not teaching them that they are ignorant, that they are servants, that they smell bad?

There are over twenty million working wives in this country. These are not helpless, witless women who worry about laundry problems. They are intelligent and they have buying power. Advertisers, do you know that you are insulting your market?

Tenet trouble

To the Daily Egyptian:

Mayor Eckert's assertion that landlords stand more to gain than students should cooperative living be allowed to remain in the Northwest transcends human logic. The landlords will gain nothing but the right to remain free of poorly conceived restraints (the proposed zoning ordinance) imposed by a hasty and anxious City Council. Moreover, the student tenants of our community stand to lose the most. Should the Carbondale City Council: Mr. Neal Eckert (549-8524), Mr. Clark Vineyard (457-5766), Ms. Helen Westberg (457-8290), Archie Jones (457-4670), Hans Fisher (457-7310), go ahead and pass this ordinance, they will have, in effect, cut by one third the geographic area of the city where student cooperatives are allowed.

The Student Tenant Union has repeatedly asked the Council to delay action on that part of the ordinance dealing with the Northwest. The city has simply not been able to answer such obvious questions as what effect will a ban on cooperative living in the Northwest have on the rest of the housing market of the community. Until the city can answer this question with precision and not intuition, the student tenant union must condemn this ordinance as poorly conceived and, at best, foolish.

The Council has yet to respect the Student Tenant Union during the public hearings, nor have they respected anyone who voiced similar concerns. But most obviously, the Council is holding in contempt every student tenant in Carbondale.

Where have all the good times gone?

The entertainment scene in Carbondale during the summer lacks the zest it is capable of during the rest of the year. Speaking specifically of the cinema, not only are there less, if any, films shown on campus for the general public, but also the theatres in town are slacking off on their late show features. The Fox Theater said they will try to have late shows every week but can not guarantee it. The Varsity Theater said they are not planning to run late shows.

It would seem the Carbondale summer student body is being slighted in their need for entertainment. I think it is time for the Carbondale entertainment providers to awake to the fact that whether there are 18 thousand or eight thousand students, if a good film is run for a short engagement, people will come. It is when bad films or no films are shown that the situation appears hopeless.

It happened in Carbondale

Distinguished faculty headed SIU in 1874

By Marion W. Mitchell
(Ninth in a Series)

July 1, 1874 was the day. On that day, a large crowd congregated to observe the official opening of the new Normal down at the end of Missouri (later Normal and still later University) Avenue. The Masonic Lodge had charge of the ceremonies and they did it up with a flourish. The Reverend E.F. Fish started the proceedings with a scripture reading and prayer. Newton Bateman, state superintendent of schools and unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency of S.I.N.U., was on the program as a principal speaker. Bateman, however, became ill and sent a Dr. Edwards in his stead. After Edwards delivered a long speech and read a letter from Bateman, Gov. John L. Beveridge took the podium. The Governor's talk was relatively short and was climaxed by presenting the keys of the Normal to its first President, Dr. Robert Allyn. It is illustrative of Dr. Allyn's character that he did not use the term "president" but chose, rather to be known as the Principal.

"He chose to be regarded as first among his equals rather than the dictator of policies and procedures."

—Lentz

Those familiar with the present S.I.U. campus and the city of Carbondale will note another pair of streets in the previous paragraph: Allyn and Beveridge. Allyn Building on the campus is, of course, named in honor of the school's first president.

Mr. Bateman's letter bore an admonition which evidently schools of that day as well as now stood in need of:

"...keep this school close to its legitimate work and the expenses within the appropriations."

—Bateman (from Lentz)

Daniel B. Parkinson was head of Natural Philosophy and Applied Chemistry at the rate of $1,000 each year. Parkinson was a young handsome fellow at this time. He was destined to stay S.I.N.U. for some time and eventually succeed to the Presidency of the school. Reading and Elucation was under the direction of James H. Brownlee who was paid $1,000 per year. Geography and History was headed by Granville R. Roster for the same amount. Martha Buck, for $800 taught Grammar and Etymology. The Model School was directed by Abigail Roberts for the same amount.

The Reverend A.C. Hillman received $1,250 a year for directing the preparatory or "high" school operated in conjunction with the college. In those days, relatively few towns boasted of a high school at all or, at the most, a 2-year high school. Consequently, many intelligent young people came to campus unexposed to more than a modicum of higher learning. For this reason, it was necessary to offer the requisite foundation for their college endeavors. Thus the purpose of the preparatory school.

It should be noted that the Department Head were, for some time, also their own complete faculty in that department. They personally bore the teaching load. The first faculty at S.I.N.U. was a distinguished one. Three of the faculty had been presidents of other colleges and three of them, including Dr. Allyn, were clergymen.

The most well-known faculty member, aside from Dr. Allyn, was Dr. Cyrus Thomas. He was an explorer-scientist of some renown. He had served with the United States Geological Survey. He had been admitted to the bar and had practiced law in Jackson County. He held the office of county clerk of Jackson County for three years, succeeding his famous brother-in-law, General John A. Logan. He served briefly as a grammar school principal in De Soto and for a time minister of a Lutheran Church. In 1879, he went to work for the Bureau of Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution under the direction of his old friend, John Wesley Powell. Thomas produced the first authoritative treatise on the so-called "Mound Builders." His work on the Mound Builders, published in the 1883-84 Report of the Bureau of Ethnology, is a classic in the field and strangely enough, a good part of it still stands.

When school opened in the fall of 74, the usual snitting and bargaining evidently took place. Kate Henry, unhappy with the $400 salary offered her to teach vocal music, declined the appointment and Mr. Brownlee was assigned to teach in this area.

Carbondale Chamber names Harold Calhoun as president

By John Russell

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Businessman Harold Calhoun, a lifetime Southern Illinois resident, will become president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Monday.

Calhoun, owner of the H.R. Construction Co. and the Calhoun Valley and Circle Park Manor apartments, will succeed Dan Sherrick, president of the Bank of Carbondale, who resigned to move to Springfield.

The 38-year-old businessman said he doesn't have any plans for the chamber yet, other than to carry out the programs initiated by Sherrick.

The chamber plays a more important role in Carbondale than do divisions in many other communities, Calhoun said.

"It is the only function that ties in all phases of business in Carbondale," he said. "Without it I don't think you'd have any unity."

Calhoun said he has had six months to prepare for the presidency while serving as a senior vice president of the organization. In his three years as a member of the group he has also served as a vice president.

In the construction business since 1958, Calhoun said he "sort of fell into" the apartment building complex area in 1965. He and his wife Joanne and their four children ("ranging in age from eight to 15") live in a house in back of the Calhoun Valley complex.

His other interests lie in farming, the Moose and Elks clubs, and the Knights of Columbus, for whom he pitches in a summer softball league.

The Chamber will move into a new office one month after Calhoun moves into the presidency. The new office will be located at 217 W. Walnut. Marvin Van Metre, executive vice president, said the new office will provide more office space, a larger parking area, and better visibility than at the old location at 219 W. Main.

The Chamber is also working with the Bike Centennial '76 program, as part of the U.S. bicentennial celebration.

Bike Centennial '76 is a national program planning a cross-country bike trail trip, Van Metre said. Carbondale is on the route of the coast-to-coast path, and the chamber is planning on working in conjunction with SIU and the SIU Bike Club to arrange hotels in Carbondale where the bikers may stay overnight.

Patrol vessel shelled, sunk in Japan Sea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—North Korean gunboats sank a South Korean maritime patrol vessel Friday, and the two governments quickly exchanged charges of provocation.

South Korea's chief spokesman, Information and Cultural Minister Yoon Chu-yung, accused the North of an unprovoked attack against the patrol craft. The craft was in international waters protecting fishing boats, Chu-yung said. The sunken vessel was reportedly in the 200-ton class with a crew of 30.

The number of casualties was not immediately known.

Yoon said the Communist attack was another premeditated military provocation aimed at communizing the entire Korean peninsula.

He demanded an apology and return of possible survivors, as well as the bodies of any crewmen.

North Korea in turn accused the South of illegally dispatching the boat into Communist waters. In a broadcast it said North Korean naval forces sank the boat in self-defense and captured some survivors.

Survival series offered to women

The first of a five part series on "Survival Techniques for Woman at SIU" will be held at 7:30 Monday, on the first floor lounge of Neely Hall.

The first program of the series, "What Every Woman Needs to Know About SIU," will provide information on services and courses of special interest to women. Awareness games will be played and group discussions will take place.

The series of programs is sponsored by Women's Programs. For further information call Ginny Britton at 453-5738. The programs are open to the public.

Ehrlichman conspiracy trial opens

By Harry F. Rosenthal
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—John D. Ehrlichman gave the final approval to raid a California psychiatrist's office three days before the break-in occurred, the government charged Friday at the opening of his conspiracy trial.

But lawyers for President Nixon's former No. 2 aide said the rifling of the office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding "came not as a result of activity or knowledge of Ehrlichman."

Thus began the trial of Ehrlichman and three other men accused of violating the civil rights of a Beverly Hills psychiatrist who had treated Daniel Ellsberg, the scholar who released the Pentagon papers three years ago.

Assistant special prosecutor William H. Merrill said two supervisors of the White House investigative unit known as the Plumbers phoned Ehrlichman, who was vacationing at Cape Cod, to tell him how the break-in could be accomplished.

"They told him that White House agents already were on the scene and ready to go," Merrill said.

"Okay, let me know if they find anything," Merrill quoted Ehrlichman as saying.

Ehrlichman authorized the mid-night break-in with written memos and telephoned instructions, then sought to remove incriminating evidence at a time when one of the White House Plumbers talked, Merrill said.

Ehrlichman, along with Watergate burglars Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez and G. Gordon Liddy, are charged with violating Fielding's civil rights in the Labor Day weekend break-in nearly three years ago. Additionally Ehrlichman is charged with four counts of lying to investigators.

"Ehrlichman lied and he knew he lied," Merrill said, and asked rhetorically.

"Why would a man like Ehrlichman lie? Because it was clear from the documents he was implicated with knowledge and approval of the entry into Fielding's office.

"Why did he think he wouldn't get caught in those lies? Because he thought he could get away with it; because he had removed sensitive memoranda..."

Throughout the opening statement to a jury of six men and six women, Ehrlichman sat stone-faced at his counsel table, apparently listening intently. If convicted on all counts he faces a maximum prison term of 30 years and fines of up to $50,000.

Liddy's lawyer said his client "was working for the government" and therefore authorized to carry out a search such as the one made in Fielding's office. "The evidence will disclose he requested permission for this special project...he reasonably believed he was authorized...to do what was done."

And the lawyer for Miami's Barker and Martinez pointed to their long training in the Central Intelligence Agency and said they thought what they were doing was in line with national security requirements.

Merrill traced the case from its beginning in July 1971, when he said that E. Howard Hunt Jr., a long-time CIA agent, met with former special White House counsel Charles W. Colson in Ehrlichman's office.

By then the New York Times and other newspapers had printed voluminous excerpts from the study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war that was copied and distributed by Ellsberg. President Nixon has said after release of the papers he put Ehrlichman in charge of a unit to stop leaks.

Hunt was hired, Merrill said, and put in touch by Ehrlichman with the CIA which provided him with false identification, disguises, a voice changer and a camera in a tobacco pouch.

Merrill said Ehrlichman told Colson to put Hunt to work with the Plumbers unit headed by Egil Krogh under Ehrlichman's supervision and that one purpose of the project was to find out more about Ellsberg.

A co-supervisor with Krogh was David R. Young, a member of the National Security Council staff. Young suggested that the CIA work up a "psychological profile" to better understand Ellsberg's motives.

But the profile apparently was unsatisfactory and Hunt suggested in a July 26, 1971, memo to Colson that they obtain Ellsberg's files from Fielding's office.

About this time G. Gordon Liddy was put on the unit and together with Hunt suggested to Krogh and Young that they go into Fielding's office, Merrill said.

"All it needed then was Ehrlichman's approval," he said.

Young sent Ehrlichman a memorandum suggesting a covert operation and Ehrlichman signed his approval with a notation, "under your assurance that it is not traceable."

"So by Aug. 11 with the Ehrlichman approval the stage was set for the entry into Dr. Fielding's office," Merrill said. He said details were worked out and that on August 31, Krogh and Young called Ehrlichman, who was vacationing at Cape Cod, to say they were ready.

In March last year, when it appeared that Young was going to talk to prosecutors about the break-in, Ehrlichman called him into his office and asked for his files, Merrill said. On March 27, he said, Ehrlichman returned the files and in a discussion with Young asked him if he had known about the break-in in advance.

"Young said 'yes, of course and so did you,'" Merrill related. "Ehrlichman said the memos showed too much forethought, that they were too sensitive and 'I've removed them from the files'."

The documents removed, Merrill said, were the Aug. 11 memo on which Ehrlichman signed his approval, a copy of the CIA's psychological profile and an Aug. 26 memorandum from Young and Krogh to Ehrlichman suggesting that we have Colson work out a game plan on what could be done with the stolen information expected from Fielding's office.

Convicted slayer may face further murder prosecution

By The Associated Press

Convicted slayer Robert F. Garrow Sr. will probably face prosecution for three other murders he has admitted, authorities said Friday.

A Hamilton County Court jury convicted Garrow of murder Thursday in the stabbing death of Philip Dombrowski, 18, of Schenectady. Garrow now faces 25 years to life in prison when he is sentenced July 8.

"Yes, we anticipate further murder prosecutions," said Jon

Holcombe, Onondaga County district attorney. He said he would announce Thursday what he intends to do.

During the trial, Garrow confessed to the murders of Alicia Hauck, 16, of Syracuse; Daniel Porter, 22, of Concord, Mass.; and Susan Petz, 21, of Skokie, Ill. Garrow, of Syracuse, has not been charged in any of these slayings.

The guilty verdict in the Domblewski trial left the slain youth's mother, Mrs. C. B. Dombrowski, "satisfied," she said.

The parents of the three other youths said they were also relieved.

Earl Petz, Susan's father, said at his Skokie home that he saw no reason to press any other charges against Garrow, including the murder of Susan.

Defense attorney Francis Belge said he would appeal because he had been refused a change of venue after the cost of the pending trial was made public.

Belge also said he would appeal because Garrow, 38, was "not tried by a jury of his peers. The average age was 62.3 years, probably the oldest jury average age known in the history of the United States."

Belge and Frank Armani, Garrow's other court-appointed attorney, face investigation. In pre-trial questioning of Garrow, they learned the location of the bodies of Hauck and Petz. They withheld the information because they considered it confidential under the lawyer-client relationship.

police, he said. The main function of the neighborhood response team will be to hear the problems and then direct them to the proper city officials, Fry said.

Fry said he hopes the team will hear from students, single family residents and landlords alike to get all sides of the issue.

Members of the response team are Yow, James Rayfield, city planner; Tom McNamara, administrative assistant to the police chief and Phil Baewer, director of industrial development.

Workshop series on aging planned

The second series of workshops for Black Aged and Aging, will begin July 13 at the Eurma C. Hayes Multi-purpose Center at 441 E. Willow.

Topics to be discussed during the second series of the workshop are such things as attitudes of the black aged, cultural differences, psychological aspects and an overview on aging.

Citizens who wish to schedule a meeting with the neighborhood response team should call John Yow, director of code enforcement, at 549-5302.

Lack of communication with the citizens has been a problem bothering the city council, Fry said. The response team should help open up a direct line of communication if citizens will take advantage of it, he said.

In many cases, people have not known who to call to voice complaints or report violations, Fry said. Often citizens will call the code enforcement to report a violation which should be directed to the

Trip to St. Louis offered by YMCA

The Jackson County YMCA is sponsoring a bus trip to the St. Louis Zoo on July 13.

A bus will leave the YMCA at 8 a.m. and is scheduled to return to Carbondale by 5 p.m.

Children must have completed the first grade or be accompanied by an adult in order to make the trip. A sack lunch and money for a drink must be furnished by those participating.

Registration for the trip and fee payment must be made by July 11. The cost for the trip is $3 for YMCA

For further information about the trip contact Rick Ford at 540-5359.

Evaluation for teachers taught in class

A course in teacher self-evaluation was incorrectly termed a "study" in the June 22 issue of the Daily Egyptian.

The course was taught by Helen James, associate professor of secondary education at SIU during winter and spring quarters. It was a voluntary course offered to teachers at Carbondale Community High School (CCHS).

James said she did not question and evaluate the teachers' performance, but the 21 teachers participating evaluated themselves. The teachers also evaluated each other and had CCHS students fill out questionnaires evaluating them.

"The teachers are to be commended for their efforts to improve themselves," James said. She said it would be desirable to maintain the high quality of instruction at OCHS.

James said the course was suggested by the CCHS school district in hopes of developing a model for teacher self-evaluation. Supt. William Holder was also a participant in the course, she said.

Teachers participating in the course met after the school day on their own time, James said. She spoke to the CCHS Board of Education on June 20 concerning the values of this type of evaluation. She said the board could provide the motivation needed to continue the evaluation process. The teachers would like release time from their jobs to organize the process, she said.

Watergate staff says Connally not responsible in tax probe

By Brooks Jackson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Watergate committee staff says bureaucratic bungling and not John Connally, apparently headed off an expanded tax probe and possible criminal charges against the nation's largest dairy-farmer cooperative in 1972.

The committee staff said it investigated allegations that Connally, who was then secretary of the Treasury, may have influenced an Internal Revenue Service audit that petered out after uncovering more than $90,000 in apparently illegal corporate political donations.

"The investigation by the committee has uncovered no evidence of any improper action...either with respect to the IRS audit or the case in the Justice Department," the staff's report said.

It said the IRS did not act on staff recommendations for an expanded audit because of a shift in jurisdiction and an error in judgement.

And it said the Justice Department's criminal division failed to follow up on a recommendation for a criminal prosecution because the division lost the records of the case until after the statute of limitations had expired, making prosecution impossible.

The report did state that top IRS officials, including then director Johnnie Walters, took a personal interest in the dairy cooperative tax case and pressed to wind it up quickly. It quoted IRS officials as saying the handling of the case was highly unusual.

NO MORE DIRTY TRICKS:

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP)—Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Monday "the message has got to get out all over the country—there will be no more dirty tricks for any reason."

Saxbe, addressing a meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General, also said "It is hardly reassuring when one man goes to prison for years for theft while another man involved in a conspiracy to steal our freedom is in and out of jail in the wink of an eye," Saxbe said.

"No one is suggesting the thief should not go to jail," Saxbe said. "He should. And so should the man who is convicted of failing the public trust."

But Saxbe, questioned by a reporter, said it was not his intent to suggest in his speech disappointment with the sentences handed to those convicted of Watergate-related crimes.

By failing to expand the audit beyond the fiscal year in which the original political payment was discovered, the IRS missed evidence of massive illegal political donations by the cooperative, Associated Milk Producers, Inc.

These donations included an admittedly illegal $100,000 to President Nixon in 1969, apparently illegal money to Hubert H. Humphrey's campaigns in 1968, 1970, and 1972, and apparently illegal funding of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills' brief 1972 presidential campaign. They didn't surface until two years after the IRS audit, and then only as a result of Watergate and anti-trust investigations.

The IRS episode began with a routine audit of the milk producers in mid-1971, and dragged on through the following year.

Use of corporate money in federal political campaigns is illegal.

The Watergate committee's staff report, written principally by Democratic staff members David Dorsen and Alan Weitz.

CLASSIFIED INFORMATION

DEADLINE—Deadline for placing classified ads. is 2 p.m. two days in advance of publication, except that deadline for Tuesday ads is Friday at 2 p.m.

PAYMENT—Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for accounts already established. The order form which appears in each issue may be mailed or brought to the office, located in the North wing, Communication building. No refunds on cancelled ads.

RATES—Minimum charge is for two lines. Multiple insertion rate is for ads which run on consecutive days without change.

Use this handy chart to figure cost:

No. of lines	1 day	3 days	5 days	20 days
1	1.00	1.50	2.00	6.00
2	1.80	2.75	3.60	9.00
3	2.40	3.60	4.80	12.00
4	3.00	4.50	6.00	15.00
5	3.60	5.40	7.20	18.00
6	4.20	6.30	8.40	21.00
7	4.80	7.20	9.60	24.00
8	5.40	8.10	10.80	27.00

One line equals approximately 100 words. For ad copy, use the order form which appears every day.

REPORT ERRORS AT ONCE
Check your advertisement upon first insertion and please notify us if there is an error. Each ad is carefully proofread, but still an error can occur. The Daily Egyptian will not be responsible for typographical errors except to cancel change for such portion of advertisement as may have been rendered worthless by such error. Typographical error: Each ad is read back to caller for confirmation. If you notify us the first day of error, we will reinsert the ad without charge. SORRY, IF WE ARE NOT NOTIFIED WITHIN ONE DAY, THE RESPONSIBILITY IS YOURS.

Consumer Advocate Office planned for 12 area counties

By Barbara Chamness
Student Writer

A Regional Consumer Council, working in connection with Gov. Dan Walker's Consumer Advocate Office, is being set up in Carbondale to serve consumers in Jackson and 11 other Southern Illinois counties.

The Consumer Advocate Office is starting a statewide system of eight bipartisan regional councils to form a consumer lobby to tell legislators of consumer problems.

Other counties that will be served are Fayette, Bond, Marion, Madison, St. Clair, Washington, Randolph, Perry, Monroe, Clinton and Franklin.

"Everyone has a lobby but the consumer," said James Tarr, an organizer of the council and group leader. "I think we have people in the legislature that are sympathetic with individual constituents. However, their actions are based on the amount of pressure brought to bear."

Tarr, a class coordinator for Carbondale Central High School, will return to teaching business classes this fall. His work with the council will be on a voluntary basis.

Because the council will be made up of volunteers, the costs of the operation (telephone calls and traveling expenses) will be paid by the Consumer Advocate Office. This will mean no increase in taxes for the consumer, Tarr said.

The first meeting, for all interested citizens, will be at 7:30 p.m. July 9 in the Community Room of the Carbondale Savings and Loan, 500 W. Main St.

Tarr said he and a person from the Consumer Advocate Office will explain the system and organize a council. A representative of the office is expected to attend each meeting.

Tarr said the Consumer Advocate office will conduct a survey in the 12 counties to ask as many consumers as possible specific questions about problems they may be having. He explained the council will hear consumers' complaints and turn over the information to the Consumer Advocate Office. The information may become the ground work for bills presented to the legislature to meet consumer problems.

Such legislation, Tarr suggested, can be expected to get the legislature's attention because many voters will have had a part in the creation of it.

The need for a consumers council was accentuated by an experiment in the Chicago area by persons working with the Consumer Advocate Office, Tarr said. The experimenters took a car in perfect condition and loosened the fan belt. They made sure this was the only problem.

They then took the car to several garages to have the car repaired. Costs for the repair ranged from $18 to $156, Tarr related.

The council will deal with any problem consumers have, he said, such as fuel allocation, wage and price stabilization, and quality of service and products.

The program is dependent on consumers' interest and will, according to Tarr, "give them an opportunity to voice their opinion in a concerned manner. It will give them a direct line."

'Robin Hood' rescues Salt Lake City drivers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—He called himself "Robin Hood Public Parking Aide" but his exploits on behalf of overtime parkers have been halted by the law.

A couple of weeks ago, Richard Wessman, 24, began walking the streets of downtown Salt Lake City putting coins in expired parking meters.

He would leave his card on the windshield of the overtime vehicle: "You have just been rescued from a $3 parking ticket by the Robin Hood Public Parking Aide. This was done as a public service and can only be continued with your help. Please send $1 to continue this service."

Attached was a stamped envelope addressed to Wessman's residence.

He received $12 from a test run and last Monday went to work in earnest, distributing nearly 300 cards and feeding that many meters.

Wessman, who at one time delivered stocks for a brokerage firm, said that by Thursday he had received about $25. The costs went toward postage and change for the meters.

Then the law entered the picture. Salt Lake City Attorney Roger F. Cutler said he phoned Wessman and warned him that he may have violated city laws. Wessman has agreed to quit his enterprise.

Sex-and-handicapped panel finds some normal hang-ups

By Carl Courtner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The biggest barrier to a fulfilling sex life for a handicapped person is basically no different than that facing other people—it's a matter of confidence and communication.

That was the conclusion of eight participants in a panel discussion on sexuality and the handicapped, video-taped Friday for workshop and classroom use in the Wham video studio.

Moderating the panel was Harris Rubin, associate professor in the

Stock market ends first half on dismal note

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined broadly again Friday, putting the last touches on a generally dismal first half of 1974.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials drifted down 1.41 to 802.17, winding up with a net loss of 48.47 for the first six months of the year.

Declines outpaced advances 941 to 439 among the 1,766 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange in volume of 12.01 million shares.

The Dow had another of its periodic skirmishes at the 800 level, falling briefly below that point in early trading and then bobbing up again.

Although the Dow held several points above its closing low for the year so far—795.37 on May 29—several other indicators hit new low points as the first half ended.

The NYSE composite index, made up of all the approximately 1,500 common stocks listed on the exchange, lost 23 Friday to 44.00, its lowest close since Sept. 10, 1970.

Westinghouse Electric was the Big Board volume leader, up 1 1/4 at 13 1/2 after a delayed opening. The issue slid 2 1/2 points Thursday before trading was halted as the company issued a statement criticizing what it described as "irresponsible and unfounded" rumors about its financial condition. Real estate investment trusts, which generally have been under pressure recently amid tight-money worries, once again dominated the list of percentage losers on the Big Board.

Flyers to meet

The SIU Flying Salukis, a university sponsored student organization, will meet at 7:30 p.m. July 9 in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

The meeting is open to the membership and anyone interested in flying, according to a club spokesman.

SIU Medical School and Rehabilitation Institute. Also participating were: Michael Eisenberg, a psychologist with the Veterans Administration in Cleveland, Brent Barlow, assistant professor in child and family, Barb Dahl, director of Human Sexuality Services, Chuck Landis and Cindy Kolb, both personal-emotive counselors with the University, Jerry Ferro, a graduate student doing his thesis on handicapped sexuality and Ferro's wife Pat, an undergraduate.

"What's important to fulfilling sexual experience for the handicapped is not gearing sexual behavior to expectations picked up socially," Ms. Ferro explained, "but for people to enter the relationship open and caring for each other and willing to explore each other's wants, needs and abilities."

Her remarks were echoed by the participants, especially her husband and Ms. Kolb. The Ferros and Ms. Kolb must use wheel chairs.

"The only disadvantage handicapped people have over most people," Eisenberg explained, "is less opportunity to expand and experiment sexually."

"That's not necessarily that much out of the norm either," Ms. Kolb explained, "according to Masters and Johnson (noted sexual behavioral researchers and authors), half of all married couples are suffering somehow sexually."

Problems of sexuality are not peculiar to any one minority, Ms. Dahl added.

The panel members will all be participating in a workshop dealing with sexuality and the handicapped person Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Cosponsored by Specialized Student Services and the Graduate Student Council, the day-long session is free and open to anyone.

The workshop will include a presentation by Eisenberg, who has done extensive work into the dynamics of sexuality for disabled persons.

Included on the agenda are several panel discussions and two films titled "Touching" and "Like Other People," which deal with aspects of opposite sex interactions in the handicapped persons life style. Some of the eight participants will be available after the workshop for personal consultations, Kolb said.

Fireman building ship for missionary odyssey

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Fireman Norman Tooman wants to be a missionary, so he's building a 43-ton schooner in his backyard to sail to the South Pacific Ocean.

Tooman says that when the 65-foot twin-masted backyard boat is completed and tested in a couple of years, he, his wife and three school-age daughters will start their journey.

"I intend to pull up at the islands and fix things, whatever needs to be done," Tooman said in an interview. He said he'd like to leave immediately.

But first there's the task of finishing the frame on which Tooman, 40, has labored the past three years, then pouring strong, lightweight cement for the hull and finally hauling the boat to port by truck. Tooman said he always has worked well with his hands and "studied a lot" to learn the specifics of boat building.

As the "Amazing Grace" grew and grew in his 150-foot-long backyard, neighbors in this San Joaquin Valley city 100 miles inland showed some surprise, Tooman says.

"I told the neighbors I was going to build a boat. I guess they figured it was going to be a ski boat or something. Then when they saw the scaffolding starting to rise out of the ground, they must have wondered what was going on."

His wife, Mariann, who will help with missionary work as a registered nurse, also was bemused by the idea. "She thought I was out of my gourd," Tooman said.

But the family refinanced their house and Tooman did gardening to help supplement his city fireman's income and finance the $50,000 project.

Tooman said he didn't ask the family's Southern Baptist denomination for financial help. "I don't know if they could finance a project like this," he said. "Anyway, I want to be free to work wherever I feel the need."

Best of 7 Inn hit by hold-up; city police seek lone gunman

The Best of 7 Inn on East Main Street in Carbondale was robbed of an undetermined amount of money Friday at 1 a.m., by a man with a sawed-off shotgun.

H. Clyde Smith, owner of the Inn, told police that the assailant demanded all of the money.

"Smith said that he didn't get a good look at the man because he kept staring at the barrel of the gun," said Lt. Jerry Reno of the Carbondale police.

Smith described the man as a black man in his mid 20's, 5-6 to 5-7 and weighing 145 pounds. He had an Afro-style haircut.

Carbondale police are continuing the investigation.

Roaming gypsies a problem, immigration officials report

CHICAGO (AP)—Deportation of a gypsy king without a kingdom and his 75 nomadic followers has become a diplomatic problem, immigration officials said Friday.

Meanwhile, George Kononov and his band roam the streets of Chicago as they have the roadways in cities from Nogales, Ariz., to Washington, D.C., since February.

The Bulgarian gypsies, half their number children, were ordered deported as illegal aliens by a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service judge earlier this week.

They asked deportation to Amsterdam, where some have relatives, and immigration officials began compiling the necessary identity documents. The gypsies have no passports, and say they have no money.

But Friday, when immigration officials contacted The Netherlands consul in Chicago, the gypsies were refused visas.

"They The Netherlands say they can't issue them visas because they don't have U.S. travel documents," said David Vandersall, acting regional immigration director.

Immigration officials say the band illegally crossed the Mexican border near Nogales Feb. 28 after leaving a Dutch airlines tour in Mexico City.

"They had round-trip tickets to Amsterdam, but they let them expire," Vandersall said.

Since then, they've wandered—and been chased—through a number of Midwest towns, traveling in nine cars they purchased after crossing the border. Allegations of petty thefts and burglaries have followed them, but no one has pressed formal charges.

Authorities said they chopped down trees in a Chicago park to build a camp fire after being evicted from motels.

"But we didn't chop them down," said one of King George's band.

Connors fights back to remain in Wimbledon

By Will Grimsley
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England—Swaggering Jimmy Connors, two points from elimination, slashed back with bold, nervy tennis Friday for a marathon five-set victory over a darkhorse Australian and kept America's front line unbroken in the Wimbledon Championships.

The brash young left-hander from Belleville, Ill., won 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 10-8 over Phil Dent, son of a Sydney taxi driver, in a match started 24 hours earlier and three times interrupted by rain.

Connors, co-ranked with Stan Smith as No. 1 in the United States, swept into the third round along with veteran Arthur Ashe of Miami, seeded No. 8, who beat the Soviet Union's Taimuraz Kakulia 6-1, 6-4, 6-3.

"I thought I should do something to help along the summit conference," Ashe remarked afterward, referring to President Nixon's current visit to the USSR. Another seeded player, Tom Okker of The Netherlands, No. 7, also squeezed out a straight-set triumph through intermittent raindrops, beating Szabolcs Baranyi of Hungary 6-2, 6-2, 6-2. But it wasn't easy. Three days of hide-and-seek showers have almost destroyed the program of the proud All-English Club, backing up some 180 matches and forcing the committee into a two-hour early start Saturday.

The situation has become so desperate that it will be necessary for players such as favored Billie Jean King and Chris Evert in the women's division, who are signed up for doubles and mixed doubles as well, to play 16 matches in the next seven days if they are to go all the way.

Mrs. King has scored the rare triple twice—in 1967 and 1973. Louis Brough also did it in 1948 and 1950, but the record of three is held by the late Suzanne Lenglen of France in the era just following World War I.

Both Mrs. King and Miss Evert were idle Friday but two other of the seeded ladies swept forward. Evonne Goolagong, No. 3 from Australia, won easily over Ilana Kloss of South Africa 6-2, 6-4. Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, No. 4 had a struggle with Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles before winning 6-2, 9-8.

Fox leaves Giants as Westrum takes over

By Linda Kramer
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Charlie Fox, under heavy criticism for his management of the hapless San Francisco Giants, resigned Friday and was replaced by Wes Westrum, former manager of the New York Mets.

Giants owner Horace Stoneham said Fox would serve as the team's major league scout, a position vacated by Westrum.

Both Stoneham and Fox denied that the resignation came under pressure.

Weiskopf leads

Western Open

By Bob Green
AP Golf Writer

OAK BROOK, Ill.—Tom Weiskopf patiently put together a one-under-par 70 to take a one-stroke lead after Friday's second round of the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf, seeking his first victory of 1974, sank four putts in the 15-18 foot range to compile a two-round total of 141—only one under par for two tours of the new Butler National Golf Club course.

It made Weiskopf, however, the only player in the field in sub par figures.

"It's a very exacting course," Weiskopf said. "It takes an awful lot of patience to play it."

Veteran Al Geiberger, who scored his last victory in the 1966 PGA National Championship, matched par 71 and was alone in second place and 142.

"There's been a lot of bad press. That didn't help," said Fox, whose Giants are one game out of the cellar. "But we're not winning, we're not drawing and the feeling was that possibly a change would help."

"There was no pressure to quit aside from that feeling," Fox said. He telephoned his decision to Stoneham.

A 4-2 win Thursday night over the San Diego Padres kept the Giants from sinking to sixth and last place in the National League West Division.

"I think we're going to win some ball games," Westrum said. The Giants, crippled by injuries and in need of good pitching, compiled a 33-42 record this year under Fox. Fox's over-all managerial record with the Giants is 336-327, a .521 percentage.

The young team also suffered from a lack of veterans and, after trading feared hitter Willie McCovey to San Diego last winter, lacked power hitting.

"We could use some pitching and we could use anyone who could help the Giants take the pennant," Fox said.

Fox, who was named manager in 1970, had been criticized for being an old school conservative, creating a generation gap with the team's young modern players.

Fox served four seasons as a coach under Herman Franks and was an AAA Pacific Coast League team manager before taking the reins at Candlestick Park.

He was named National League Manager-of-the-Year in 1971, when the Giants rolled to a NL West Division crown. "I hate to see him go," said Giants' center fielder Bobby Bonds.

Ex-Chief of A's faces devilish job with Angels

By Ron Roach
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM—Dick Williams, who took Oakland's often unhappy Athletics to World Series triumphs the past two years, is back in baseball with the task of straightening out the California Angels.

Williams, 45, is in enforced retirement from managing after quitting Charlie Finley's Athletic as victory champagne flowed last fall, agreed Thursday from his home in Riviera Beach, Fla., to succeed Bobby Winkles as manager of the Angels, the last-place team in the American League West Division.

He takes over from interim manager Whitey Herzog Monday, just in time to take the field against Oakland at Anaheim Stadium.

The Angels already respect his reputation as an iron-fisted manager. If he could get along with the Reggie Jacksons at Oakland, he can handle the Frank Robinsons at California, was the prevailing feeling.

Winkles said he was fired because he couldn't handle Robinson, the 38-year-old designated hitter in his 19th big league season, a black man who someday wants to manage in the big leagues. Robinson said he wasn't considered as Winkles' successor.

"He said, 'You talk to any manager who's had me, and you'll learn the fact that I've never caused trouble,'" Williams has a 3½-year contract at an estimated $100,000 a year—about $30,000 more than he made at Oakland last year.

Home-made pool serves tankers

SIU Swimming Coach Bob Steele has seven collegiate swimmers under his training this summer on a "home-made" 50-meter pool, constructed at the Lake-on-the-Campus.

Four of the swimmers are from SIU, one from Iowa State, one from Illinois State and one from Northwestern University.

Dennis Roberts, Dave Boyd, Ken Meyers and Ken Merton are from the Saluki swim team. Tom Marantz is from Illinois State and Phil Dodson is from Northwestern University. Northwestern University.

The group has constructed their own 50-meter course on the Lake-on-the-Campus and will compete in the Portage Invitational this weekend in Chicago.

Steele said that Indiana, Wisconsin and other schools with summer teams will compete in the meet. The Carbondale-based team will also compete in the Aug. 20 AAU meet.

The unit is swimming 10 miles per day across the cloudy course and Steele claims that the 50-meter course is a good preparation course for winter training because it involves less turns.

Cop trades in cap for helmet

CHICAGO (AP)—An eight-year police veteran is trading in his patrolman's uniform for a Chicago Bears football suit.

Dennis McNamara, 30, caught the eye of Bears Coach Abe Giron at a practice session recently in Soldier Field and received the go-ahead to report to the Bears' training camp July 12 in Rensselaer, Ind.

Bobby Walston, director of player personnel for the Bears, told Police Supt. James M. Richmond that McNamara "has an excellent chance of making the team."

The 6-foot-1, 243 pound physical fitness enthusiast never played high school or college football but was a defense end for six years for a semi-pro team in the Chicago Football League.

"He looks good and we'll find out just how good he is when he comes to camp," said Walston. We've already told him he can't bring along his billy club."

Communication Workshops fall to 45

The SIU Summer Workshop in Communications, designed for high school students, opened Sunday with a slight decrease in enrollment over last year's figure.

Forty-five students including six commuters are attending the two- and three-week workshops this year compared to the 1973 total of 54. This six-year trend in declining numbers resulted in the elimination of the yearbook session. The four remaining workshops are Newspaper, Debate, Theater and Oral Interpretation.

The Communications Workshop began in 1957 with only 24 students attending a four week session of debate and theater.

The classes of theater, journalism, art, radio-TV, photography, oral interpretation and dance were later added to the program at one time. However, art lasted for only one year in 1960 and radio-TV which began in 1960 was dropped in 1962 while photography was cancelled after four years in 1965. The dance Workshop was also eliminated due to the lack of participants in 1973 after its brief three years.

Enrollment in the SIU Newspaper

Workshop had remained steady in the last five years but the present figure of 21 is down from the high of 43 who attended the session in 1964. In 1966 yearbook outnumbered newspaper 25 to 19.

Bryce W. Rucker, director, School of Journalism, feels the dwindling enrollment should not have a major effect on the participants. He expressed the hope that each person would receive more individual attention. "It could be a better educational experience," he said.

Dr. Rucker also praised the instructors for their volunteer work. He added that, "We are not discouraged about the enrollment... the outcome is usually very good."

High school students involved in the Newspaper division will produce a four and six page "The Workshop Journal" and an additional page to the Daily Egyptian. In addition to classroom instruction, the students will conduct an interview with Charles C. Clayton, retired professor of journalism. It will be video-taped so the playback can check the students accuracy. Other assignments involve feature writing, high school press law and high school newspaper make-up.

W. Manion Rice, director of the Newspaper Division since 1960, believes that the small number of students in the sessions should improve instruction. "This way," he explained, "every student should get at least one story written, propose a headline and help with the paste-up of the papers. It can't be done with fifty to a hundred people."

The debate workshop, headed by Marvin Kleinau, has a small enrollment, nine students down from last years 13. The largest debate workshop was in 1968 with a total of 51 students.

Mr. Kleinau, thinks the declining enrollment is a serious problem. "A certain number are needed to host an efficient and excellent workshop," he commented. "We really didn't reach a sufficient level to provide some of the side benefits this year."

The students in the debate workshop are discussing the resolution that campaign funds for all federal offices shall be provided exclusively by the federal government. There is a possible debate on the resolution which will be open to all workshop participants on July 1.

Though the overall enrollment of the Communications Workshop is down, the Theater Workshop increased from the 1973 total of six students to this years thirteen participants.

"Making love" to chairs, as a part of the Theater Workshop, may bring some stares but instructor Alfred Straumanis considers this just as important as memorizing lines and donning the proper costumes. The students point out that they take part in these activities as well as walking silently across the campus and making note of straight and curved objects.

The main goal of the theater workshop is to help students facilitate their expressions, sharpen their senses and hopefully improve their dramatic abilities, according to the students enrolled this year. Near the end of the three-week session they plan to present a program including the classic play "Antigone" and some of their own improvisations.

Two students are engaged in the oral interpretation workshop this year under the direction of Dr.

Robert Fish. Oral interpretation has also dropped in the numbers enrolled.

The main goal in oral interpretation is to help find ways to express the emotional experience of a piece of literature. In the afternoon classes they analyze literature for performance and gather poetic interpretations. The two female students also perform exercises in sensory awareness in which they attempt to recreate the feelings and moods of poetry through the five senses. Also they experiment with interpersonal senses through which they attempt to come in closer with themselves and their individual complex feelings.

Though dwindling enrollment is a major concern with workshop officials they are pleased with the students' attitudes and abilities. Leigh Steiner, workshop counselor, mused that "everybody this year is down here to work and get something out of it."

Mrs. Marion Kleinau, communications workshop coordinator, agreed that the workshop has excellent students. "We have students who want to work and want to learn."

Tumblers to baseball players to musicians descend on Southern

SIU becomes a campground, playground, and school of various summer workshops for youngsters and pre-college students each summer with always the possibility of trouble.

One could imagine wild high schoolers' parties while away from home, lost eight-year old tumblers, and baseball players who break windows—but not so, Officer Randall McBride, a member on the SIU Security Police force, stated that he could never remember any sort of trouble.

By a regular routing form, the police are notified in advance of any group coming or building used. SIU has already registered approximately 600 youngsters of all ages for different workshops and conferences on campus.

A few daring stunts and pranks have been tried over the years. Many of them have taken place at Mae Smith Hall, the temporary home of many workshops. On its ledges one student climbed from room to room, from its window a chair was thrown, into a room a stolen stop sign was hidden: all in the name of "fun."

Security officer Tom Leffler and Director of Housing Sam Rinella this week discussed possible thefts in the dorms. "This is the best group in a long, long time. They are a very quiet group," remarked Mr. Leffler. The youth is really improving.

A schedule of summer workshops for pre-college people follows:

Youth World Conference, sponsored by Continuing Education under the direction of Dr. Glenn E. Wills, July 7-12, 25 enrollment.

SIU-Murdale Basketball Camp, sponsored by SIU Athletics and taught by Coaches Paul Lambert of SIU, David Lee of Carbondale High, and Bob Ashman of Murphysboro High, featuring Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks, July 1-13, 60 enrollment.

The Summer High School Workshop for Music, July 14-27, is expecting 200 musicians. They will present an evening concert open to the public Saturday, July 27.

Swimming Camp starts July 1-6 and July 7-13. Sponsored by SIU Athletics, Pullium Hall and the Lake-on-the-Campus will both be in use.

SIU will sponsor two gymnastic camps for boys and girls. "Tumble Town" under the direction of Alyce Vogel has an enrollment of 180 girls. The second session is July 21-27. Boys gymnastics has three separate camps: June 23-29, June 30-July 6, and July 7-13. The enrollment for the first session was 75.

The Saluki baseball camp, June 23-29, under the direction of Coach Richard Jones boasts an enrollment of 150 youngsters.

SIU's security police do provide tips to help you prevent burglary here on campus.

—Always keep your doors and windows locked.

—Never publicize or display money or valuable merchandise. Don't advertise what you have in your living quarters.

—If when you return to your living quarters, there are signs of a burglary—DO NOT ENTER. Call the police and wait until they arrive.

—If you witness a burglary, call the police at once. Remember details and descriptions.

Number lowest in 16 years

Rising prices have caused shortened Workshop

SIU Communications Workshop officials are attempting to analyze the continued decline in enrollment at the summer workshop for high school students.

The workshop, which began in 1957 with debate and theater, reached its highest point in 1968 with 177 students. The average number of participants in the years 1962-68 was 144 compared to the last five years of 67.

Rising prices have caused a decrease in the length of the workshop, according to Mrs. Marion Kleinau, workshop coordinator. In 1972, the Newspaper and Yearbook Workshops were divided into two weeks and this summer the Theater, Debate, and Oral Interpretation were reduced to three weeks.

The yearbook section was totally eliminated from this summer's program because of lack of interest. For the last two years, the number of yearbook participants had decreased from 12 to 8. As of June 1, only three registered for this year's session.

W. Manion Rice, journalism director, stated the decrease was partially due to "more students work in the summer to pay for their college education."

Marvin Kleinau, debate workshop director, said "there is less interest generally on the part of young people in summer workshops. The trend all over the country is down". This of course is true in education generally.

Another reason cited by workshop officials is that the newer communications program in high schools in Southern Illinois have not gained the reputation of being more experienced and qualified as in Northern Illinois schools.

Leigh Steiner, graduate student in speech with two years of recreational work and counseling, agrees, "speech programs in the South are just getting started and may not encourage kids as much." Mrs. Kleinau stated "in some areas we can't compete in other school's workshops." She added "There is a changing attitude with what one wants to do this summer."

There has been 25.4 percent drop in students enrolled in the workshop for the past six years. Some workshop officials feel that the problem is reaching the critical stage. Ms. Steiner believes it is "a serious problem. It is a tragedy that more people aren't here...Because what it has to offer is dynamic and beneficial."

Money was one of the reasons given by the Journalism Workshop students for the decrease in enrollment. The students claimed that the schools nor the parents could afford to send more participants. According to students, the amount of interest played a big part in attending the workshop.

The riots of 1970 contributed heavily to the decline, as some workshops lost more than 50 per cent of students participating.

Sound of Music in Mae Smith

Students get main support from mom and dad

Most students of the SIU Communications Workshops are receiving funding to attend mainly through their parents. The majority of students financed this way come from the debate workshop.

The second most frequent means of funding comes from the students' high schools.

Still another means of financial support to come to the SIU summer program originates with community organizations. A few students had a combination of community groups and their parents. Three students financed themselves out of their own accounts, and each of these students felt that the money spent was more than worth it.

The breakdown of how students were financed is as follows: of some 45 students, 16 were financed by parents, 11 by their schools, and seven by two or more separate community organizations. Thirteen got help from school, parents and community organizations.

Entertaining students with guitar music at Mae Smith Hall are Bob Kiosak, theorist, Cicero; and Dan Consiglio, journalism, Lockport.

Journalism students were required to deposit $160 this year. Debators paid $265 for three weeks and the theater workshopers paid $240. Oral Interpretation also paid $240.

Manion Rice, journalism workshop coordinator, commented that in past years some community papers paid partial fees and then used these students to write school news for their papers. Dr. Rice added that at one time SIU gave a President Morris Scholarship which went to one student in each workshop. It has since been eliminated.

If projected to four weeks, workshops would cost $300. Most of the increase goes for food and lodging. In 1960 when the four-week workshop cost each student $100, the administration or recreational fee was just $10. Now the split for four weeks would be $80 for administration, $220 for lodging.
