Legislators: Approval of law building funds probable

By Pam Bailey
Staff Writer

Five Southern Illinois legislators brought good news to anxious law students Wednesday: The General Assembly and the governor will probably approve $7.9 million for a new Law School building by the end of the summer.

Speaking to about 75 Law School students and faculty, state Reps. Vincent Birchler, D-Chester, William Harris, D-Marion, Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, and Sens. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, and Gene Johns, D-Marion, said they will support a special appropriations bill to fund the new building.

"We are very much aware of the problems SIU is facing and Gov. (James) Thompson is finally waking up too. We face a rocky road ahead, but we're in there fighting for you," Johns said.

Thompson omitted the funds needed to build a new School of Law from his proposed budget, but Buzbee said the Republican governor is now convinced that SIU is not just crying "wolf."

He said he met with Thompson and the director of the Bureau of the Budget several weeks ago and persuaded Thompson that the American Bar Association (ABA) means business.

"The word is out that the governor will not fight introduction and action on our (appropriation) bill," Buzbee said.

The ABA has threatened to revoke the Law School's provisional accreditation if construction of a new building is not begun soon. Currently, the Law School is housed in two remodeled dormitories.

Loss of accreditation would mean incoming law students would be ineligible to take the bar exam.

Richmond said he believes the appropriation bill has about "a 90 percent chance" of being passed in both houses of the General Assembly and being signed by the governor by the end of the summer.

The ABA is scheduled to decide whether SIU's accreditation should be revoked in August.

Buzbee, who is chairman of one of the two Senate appropriations committees, said he agrees that the bill will probably pass both houses by August.

But he warned that the governor could delay signing the bill or even change his mind.

Another obstacle is geographical, Buzbee said.

"The downstate legislators are a minority in the legislature," Buzbee said. "There are still a lot of people who would like to see a Law School in Springfield and they see SIU as the reason there isn't one. It's a real obstacle."

However, Clyde Choate, SIU's chief lobbyist and a former Democratic representative from Anna, said he believes the push for a Law School in Springfield has deteriorated greatly in recent years.

Legislators are leaning more towards putting SIU's already established Law School to full use, he said.

Buzbee said another barrier the bill will face is that "every university has capital projects it wants to build. The governor is afraid that if he lets this one out of the bag, other universities will start pushing theirs too."

He added that the Republican leadership in the General Assembly will probably fight the bill because it is not a part of the budget proposed by the governor.

To prepare for the battle, the legislators have developed a plan of action.

Two separate but identical bills will be introduced—one to each house. If one bill gets sidetracked or killed in committee, the other still has a chance to pass, according to Buzbee.

Meanwhile, Choate said he will travel to Springfield sometime in the near future to actively lobby for SIU's new School of Law.

Rumors surround new coal contract

CENTRALIA (AP)—Rumors flew through the Illinois coalfields Wednesday that a proposed contract for United Mine Workers construction members offered less than the pact approved by miners last Friday.

But they were only rumors because the rank and file 14,000 mine builders—2,500 of them in Illinois—hadn't had a peek at the agreement, according to a spokesman for one union local.

"People are already mad because it's so secret," said a spokesman for UMW Construction Local 2117, the state's largest, with 1,600 members.

The miners were ready to go back to the pits on Monday, but the construction workers set up picket lines and the regular miners refused to cross them in most cases.

The Local 2117 spokesman, who asked that his name not be used, said he understood that all presidents of construction locals were summoned to Washington on Tuesday to examine the pact before it was accepted or rejected by the UMW National Bargaining Council.

The presidents apparently gave their blessing to the contract, because Gene Mitchell, a Bargaining Council member from Benton, said in a telephone interview from Washington, "We voted unanimously to approve it today."

Although the word received by some miners is that the pact is less than regular miners approved, Mitchell said it is "not a bad contract. It's a much better contract than the one that expired."

There is a lifetime of work at most mines for the men who extract the coal, but UMW construction men spend only two or three years building a mine, then move on to another site.

So they are interested in fringe benefits that affect traveling men such as travel pay and per diem allowances that do not affect regular miners.

John Samuels, a UMW Illinois district spokesman, has said that the construction locals historically lag about a week behind miners in striking a bargain on a new agreement with the Association of Bituminous Contractors, the industry bargaining arm.

UMW president suffers stroke; condition stable

WASHINGTON (AP)—United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller suffered a "slight stroke" Wednesday and was hospitalized in Miami in stable condition, a hospital spokeswoman said.

A spokeswoman for Mount Sinai Medical Center said Miller, 55, was brought to the intensive care unit shortly before 10 a.m. "The doctor said he's doing well," said spokeswoman Judy Stanton.

Earlier, UMW Vice President Sam Church said Miller was ordered by his doctor to take a rest following the signing of a new contract between the UMW and soft coal industry Saturday. The signing formally ended a 3 1/2-month nationwide strike by 160,000 miners.

Miller, who was hospitalized in Washington for several days last August for treatment of high blood pressure, was stricken two days after beginning his sick leave, Church said.

Church said Miller was stricken as the union's district leaders met in Washington to approve a tentative contract covering 10,000 mine construction workers who are still on strike.

Students leave pets behind

Stray dogs create problems for city

By Jean Ness
Staff Writer

Carbondale is going to the dogs.

It does every spring, when students pack up to go home with all their belongings—except their dogs.

Neal Jacobson, supervisor of services at the Carbondale Police Department, says stray dog problems increase each spring because students leave their pets in Carbondale to fend for themselves instead of taking them along.

Problems with strays pick up in the spring, Jacobson said, because more animals are left outside in the warm climate.

If strays are left unclaimed at the Jackson County Humane Society for more than a week, Jacobson said, the animals would be destroyed.

However, strays can be adopted from the humane shelter at any time.

Canine pets are not all students leave behind, Jacobson said. Once he got a call from a landlord to remove a python from an apartment bathroom. "We opened up the door and there was a 10-foot python in the bathroom," Jacobson said. "A student tenant has left it for the summer."

Although the animal control service deals with all kinds of animals, both pets and wildlife, Jacobson said the majority of complaints his office receives concern dogs.

Staffed by two full-time wardens, the animal control division enforces the city regulations and answer citizen complaints.

During a two-month winter period, the division answered around 100 calls. Jacobson said the total varies with the seasons, but that during December and January his office responded to 99 citizen complaints.

Most callers complain of dogs ripping through their plastic garbage bags, barking nuisances and strays on their property, Jacobson said.

But these types of problems are hard to rectify, Jacobson said, because by the time the animal warden arrives at the scene the animal has left.

During December and January, the animal control department received 38 percent of their complaints from the Southwest, 29 percent from the Northwest, and 16 percent from both the Northeast and Southeast.

If the animals are caught in their illegal acts, they are taken into custody and their masters are notified, if the animals can be identified by their tags.

Procedures for animals taken into custody for biting someone are more extensive.

The dogs are kept in bite confinement for 10 days. Their owners are charged for the care and feeding of the animal.

Leash laws also draw complaints from Carbondale citizens, Jacobson said. Dogs can be loose on their owner's property "but the minute they set foot off it, they are in violation of the city law," Jacobson said.

Voice command, Jacobson said, does not equal a leash, even if the dog is obedient. If the animal is on the city street, it must be on a leash.

Grand Ave. work continues despite harsh weather

By Steve LamPERT
Staff Writer

The weather has finally cleared, and signs of road construction have begun to appear near the Recreation Building.

But despite this year's harsh winter—which included Carbondale's most severe snowfall in 60 years—work on widening and resurfacing Grand Avenue is going pretty much on schedule. Bill Boyd, the city's public works director, said Wednesday.

Construction crews, which resumed their operations last week for the first time since December, will be widening the portion of Grand Avenue between Wall Street and U.S. 51 into four 12-foot lanes. The road will later be resurfaced.

The work is expected to be completed by next fall, although no exact target date has been set.

Boyd said the firm doing the construction, Evansville Cement Finishers, Inc., has done work for the city in the past and has always kept on schedule. Thus, he said, he has no reason to doubt that the Grand Avenue project will be done on time.

All but one lane of Grand Avenue will be closed once construction becomes more involved, Boyd said. He added, though, that such a measure probably wouldn't be taken until after the University semester, when traffic won't be as severe.

At that time, most traffic will be rerouted to both Washington and State streets. Access to a parking lot across from the Recreation Building will be provided.

The construction began in late December, but was delayed when increased snow and ice hampered crews. Evansville Cement Finishers, Inc. had been awarded the construction contract by the Carbondale City Council in November.

The work is being paid for by a $45,000 grant.

Students catch disco fever in classes

By Marianne Zerante

The fever has struck Pulliam Hall and more than 300 people are trying to catch it. The Division on Continuing Education, is responsible for the fever, which broke out when it added a class in disco dancing to its curriculum.

Expecting 30 students to enroll in the class, the division was forced to expand the program to five sections to handle the overload.

"Disco is a type of dance that allows the individual to establish a sense of belonging with himself and others," said Susan Hayes, speech major and part-time dancing instructor.

Lisa Cooper, dance class teacher, said disco has some of the same characteristics as the dancing and music of the 40s era.

Victor Vaughn, 57-year-old dancing enthusiast and member of the class, said the Cha-Cha and the Rumba have similar techniques as those used in some disco dances.

Dance instructor John Barcal added, "Ballroom dancing is incorporated in disco dancing in that a lot of the dances require couple communication to know each others movements."

Disco dancing incorporates three different forms—line, couple and funk dancing.

According to Barcal, in a line dance there are two lines, no couples and all participants do the same steps simultaneously.

Some contemporary line dances are the Saturday Night Bus Stop and the Hollywood Swing.

Couple dancing involves dancing with a partner and the most popular couple dances are the Swing and the Latin Hustle.

Funk dancing, such as the Spunk, is done individually.

The popularity of disco dancing has grown rapidly in the past year, according to Hayes. "It's a social circus" that everyone is starting to participate in.

Carter pursues human rights crusade

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Carter arrived Wednesday in Brazil and told the four-star general who heads its government that all nations must recognize their shortcomings in human rights and can use atomic power without adding to the world's nuclear arsenal.

Both are touchy subjects in the largest nation in South America, the second Carter has visited on his first trip to Latin America as president. Brazil has canceled military agreements with the United States because of Carter's human rights crusade.

In addition, the Brazilian military government has said it will go ahead with the purchase of a nuclear processing plant from West Germany despite American expressions of concern that it could be used to make atomic weapons.

"Today all of us are joining in the worldwide struggle to advance the cause of human freedom and the rule of law," Carter said during his arrival ceremony at Brasilia International Airport. "This is a struggle that will prevail only when we are willing to recognize our own limitations and to speak to each other frankly and with understanding."

Then, referring to the danger of nuclear weaponry, the president declared: "Both our nations are turning to nuclear power as one of the answers to our energy problems, and we both believe that peaceful use of atomic power is not incompatible with the need to prevent nuclear proliferation."

His statement seemed less blunt than others he has made at home on both issues. Earlier, however, in Caracas, the president told the oil-rich nation of Venezuela that major petroleum exporting nations must share their wealth with poor nations of the world "to meet the human needs of the world's people."

The president made the statement in a major address to Venezuela's national congress before meeting for a second day with President Carlos Andres Perez. The visiting president wants Perez to hold down oil prices. Venezuela is the third largest supplier of oil to the United States.

After the Venezuelan talks, Carter, his wife Rosalynn, 10-year-old daughter Amy and top U.S. officials including national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance left in the presidential jet, Air Force One, for Brazil's capital of Brasilia.

From Brazil, the presidential party flies across the Atlantic, where Carter will become the first American president to make a state visit to Black Africa.

Bank robbed twice by elderly woman

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Twice in 11 days the grey-haired lady has walked into the same branch bank, demanded stacks of $20 bills from the same teller and threatened to blow everybody up. Both times she got away without a trace.

Police are baffled, and say their usual underworld sources are providing little help. "What you would call our regular criminal sources don't have anything to say about this one," Detective Charles Feeley said Wednesday. "She isn't part of organized crime."

The first robbery was on St. Patrick's Day. A woman wearing a knitted hat and carrying a plastic ice cream bag strolled up to the middle window at the Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Co. in this affluent Boston suburb.

She handed the teller a note saying she had a bomb and wanted money. The teller handed her $200 in $20 bills. The woman turned and went out the bank's side door.

On Tuesday, she was back, this time wearing a wide-brimmed rain hat and carrying a white shopping bag. She walked up to the same teller, and asked: "You remember me?"

"Oh yes, I remember," the teller replied.

Out came another note: "I'm the bomb lady. Give me $200 in 20s. You are being watched."

The flustered clerk handed over $400, and the woman headed out the same side door. This time, another teller ran after her, but by the time he reached the street, she had disappeared.

A picture taken by the bank camera shows a plain, roundfaced woman, whom police describe as matronly, maybe 60 years old, with a deeply veined complexion.

"She looks very, very familiar to many of our people," Feeley said.

Police have some theories about the woman and her method of escape.

Once outside the bank, they say, she could have taken an elevator into the nine-story office building above the bank and then changed clothes.

Maybe, they add, she was on the floor of a brown car that a teller saw.

Derailment causes tank car explosion

LEWISVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Residents of this southwest Arkansas town were kept away from their homes Wednesday as firefighters waited for a fire from a freight train derailment and chemical tank car explosion to burn itself out.

The fire threatened another tanker loaded with a highly toxic and flammable chemical, but officials said there was little possibility of a second explosion.

Thirty-two cars of a 120-car Cotton Belt Railroad freight train derailed and the chemical car exploded shortly after midnight Wednesday on the edge of Lewisville, forcing evacuation of the town's 1,700 residents from their homes.

Three train crewmen were injured. All three were listed in fair condition Wednesday at Magnolia Hospital in Magnolia, Ark.

The car that exploded contained butadiene, a highly flammable, highly toxic substance used in making rubber products, railroad officials said. Rice hulls, newspaper and plastic products that spilled from other cars which overturned in the derailment fueled the fire. Five other chemical tank cars derailed but did not catch fire.

Cotton Belt Superintendent W.F. Reed said another chemical car containing butadiene was leaking after the derailment and was threatened by the fire which continued to burn all day Wednesday.

High seas prevent tanker destruction

PREST, France (AP) — Gale-force winds and high seas prevented navy demolition crews Thursday from blowing holes in the wrecked super-tanker Amoco Cadiz to release the last of its cargo into the sea.

French authorities want to release an estimated 5.88 million gallons of oil from the holds to avoid the threat of months of leakage across the polluted Brittany coast. The Amoco Cadiz, which sailed under Liberian registry with an Italian captain, carried about 64.7 million gallons of oil when it went aground, making the accident the worst spill in history.

Officials called off efforts to winch down frogmen from helicopters onto the steep, oil-slick bow section of the American-owned vessel. It broke in two after running onto a shoal off France's northwest coast March 17 when the steering failed.

Demolition plans call for the navy crews to work at low tide.

County offers CPR course to citizens

By John Jenkins
Staff Writer

Jackson County residents can learn the lifesaving technique of Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and all it will cost them is about five hours of their time.

Jon Sheperd, director of the Jackson County CPR training program, said the project is jointly sponsored by the Jackson County Ambulance Service and the Jackson County Board.

CPR is a method of circulating blood through a person's body after his heart has stopped beating, Sheperd explained. This is done by applying a rhythmic pressure on the victim's lower breastbone, he said.

A $41,525 grant under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act allowed the county to hire and train six full-time CPR instructors for an 8½ month period.

A $41,525 grant under the comprehensive Employment and Training Act allowed the county to hire and train six full-time CPR instructors for an eight-and-one-half-month period.

The first month of the program, beginning in mid-January was primarily used to select the instructors and train them.

The instructors underwent three weeks of intensive training in CPR methods and teaching techniques. In addition, all have had some type of previous teaching background, Sheperd said.

About 300 people have gone through the course in the first month of actual teaching, Sheperd said. The goal is to train more than 4,000 by the end of September but "we'll just have to wait and see what happens," he said.

Classes are presently scheduled on a regular basis in towns throughout the county, and if a group of people would like to learn the process, a special training session can be arranged, he said.

Special emphasis will be placed on training people who live in the county's rural areas, Sheperd said, since it takes them more time to get professional medical help. Permanent brain damage starts about four minutes after a heart stops, so the need to learn the process is the greatest in outlying areas.

The ambulance service will also be more effective if a large number of people learn the technique, because the victim can be kept alive until professional help arrives, Sheperd explained.

Although Sheperd didn't know the number of people who die from heart attacks in Jackson County, nationally the number is 700,000 each year. Experts estimate that more than 100,000 lives could be saved each year if more people knew CPR, he said.

Seattle, Wash. is a CPR success story, Sheperd said. More than 100,000 people in Seattle know CPR and about one-quarter of the rescues on beaches and streets are performed by laymen outside the hospital.

Sheperd said it is imperative that CPR is done according to the guidelines taught in the course. If it isn't, the rescuer might injure the person he is trying to save. Broken ribs are a common occurrence when receiving CPR, Sheperd said.

Sheperd said he knows of no successful lawsuits stemming from an injury sustained by a CPR recipient.

The American Heart Association has indicated it would supply legal assistance to people certified in CPR if they are found guilty.

Although you may break a person's ribs when administering CPR, Sheperd said, the rescuer should keep one point in mind:

If he does nothing the victim will die.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) can be performed on infants as well as adults, as Pamela James-Cook demonstrates. The Jackson County Ambulance Service and Jackson County board are sponsoring classes in CPR. (Photo by Steve Boehm)

Blood drive set in Student Center for able donors

By Ann Conley
Student Writer

The Red Cross is hoping for 1,400 pints of blood, 120 pints more than last fall, at the campus blood drive 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 11-14, in the Student Center. Students can pre-register Thursday to April 7 on campus.

Those who pre-register will be taken first, Pam Luttmers, chairman of Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE) said.

Seven steps are involved in the process, which takes approximately 45 minutes to an hour.

About 70 volunteers are needed to assist in the blood donations.

Organizations with more than 30 members—in a contest to see which can donate the most blood—will compete for a half barrel of beer donated by Venegoni Distributors. Organizations with less than 30 members can win a quarter barrel of beer.

The residence halls will compete for the traveling trophy which Thompson Point won in the fall.

All blood donated to the Red Cross will stay in the Southern Illinois and St. Louis area, according to the Regional System. At least 350 pints of blood a day are needed to reach the 1,400 pint goal.

Persons can pre-register from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday at Morris Library, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday in Home Economics; and both days from 4:15 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. in Grinnell Hall.

In addition, pre-registration is scheduled from 4:15 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in Lentz and Trueblood hall and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. those days in the Student Center.

Poll: Withdrawal from Korea favored

NEW YORK (AP)—President Carter's plan to pull U.S. ground troops out of South Korea is supported by a substantial majority of Americans, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

But the public doesn't think much of Carter's plan to give $800 million worth of military equipment—now used by U.S. troops—to the South Korean armed forces.

The AP-NBC News survey, taken by telephone March 21-22, found 61 percent favored Carter's plan to gradually remove the approximately 33,000 U.S. ground troops from the Korean peninsula.

Twenty-seven percent opposed the pullout, with 12 percent not sure.

The plan has gained substantial support in the last seven months. An NBC News poll in August 1977 showed 45 percent of Americans supported the pullout, 37 percent opposed with the remainder undecided.

Support for the move is up 16 percentage points, while opposition dropped by 10 points.

The reason for the change is not clear, but it coincided with the widening of investigations of South Korean influence-buying in Washington, and South Korean businessman Tongsun Park's return to the nation's capital to testify about his role in the scandal.

Americans don't like the plan to leave the $800 million in military equipment behind for the South Koreans when U.S. troops withdraw.

Thirty-two percent of the 1,004 adults interviewed supported the turnover of equipment, which must be approved by Congress, while 36 percent opposed it. Twelve percent were not sure.

This appears to be largely a reflection of public sentiment against arms sales in general. The deal is not an arms sale, but a transfer of equipment that would most probably be junked when U.S. troops leave.

Nevertheless, most opposition to the transfer comes from those who are against all U.S. arms sales overseas. Fifty-five percent of those who opposed the transfer of equipment to South Korea oppose all arms sales. Only 38 percent of those who opposed the transfer favor at least some U.S. arms sales abroad.

Hamster honeymoon ends in tragedy

A NORMAL (AP)—What started out as a joyous occasion ended in tragedy.

It was the marriage of Tootsie and Huggy Bear, two hamsters that were pets of the sixth grade class of teacher Mike McKay at Glenn School.

Complete with attendants, music and a honeymoon suite, Tootsie, the hamster bride, and Huggy Bear, a male hamster, were married Tuesday. But the festivities ended abruptly, when Tootsie died several minutes after the wedding ceremony.

McKay's students, who had cared for the two pets along with the other animals in the class, came up with the idea for the hamster wedding.

McKay has a large animal population in his classroom, including gerbils, white mice, hamsters and a blind guinea pig. The number increased last week during spring vacation when four new litters of white mice—between 65 and 70—were born.

All that illegitimacy was too much, even for the younger generation. Class members decided that Tootsie and Huggy Bear should be married before any baby hamsters were born.

So they set up a nondenominational wedding service with sixth grader Brian Jones officiating. A teacher played the wedding march on a clarinet.

Tim Burns, in charge of caring for the animals, and Jan Loving carried the animals to the altar and the children responded with the words, "He does," and "She does," at the proper time. A metal necklace served as a symbol of the marriage.

After the service, the children placed the newlyweds in a shoebox honeymoon car covered with tin foil. The words "Just Married" appeared on top.

Class members later threw bits of colored paper on the hamsters, instead of rice. Then the couple retired to their honeymoon suite—a glass hamster cage.

But all was not well with Tootsie.

"Mr. McKay, I think she's dying," Tim called to his teacher as the female hamster started shaking.

In a few minutes, Tootsie died and the children put her in another shoe box to be buried.

"She led a good full life," said Brian, whose role quickly changed from wedding to funeral officiant.

No one in the class seemed too upset over the death of Tootsie, however.

"We didn't know it that well because it hasn't been here that long," said Brian. "Now if Stevie (guinea pig) died, we'd be real upset."

She's unable to walk, but she still feels lucky

By Bob Greene

I feel kind of funny about doing this; you pay your money and you get your paper, and that's the bargain. It doesn't say anywhere that I have the right to ask you to do anything.

But if you get the chance, and you have a few minutes, please send a birthday card or a note to Miss Mildred Duncan, Route 4, Box 69K, Leesville, South Carolina, 29570.

Miss Duncan will turn 47 in a few days. She never married; she lives with her 65-year-old mother and her 14-year-old niece; she has brought the girl up.

Miss Duncan's life hasn't been too good by most people's standards. She was born in 1931 with polio and a spine disease, and she has spent half her life in hospitals.

"I had my first surgery 30 years ago this July," Miss Duncan said. "Since then I haven't been able to walk. I was on crutches for a while in the early days, but I can't walk at all now. It's a good thing that the Lord made me like hospitals."

Miss Duncan has one leg. In 1957 her right leg was amputated at the hip, and she has had surgery on the left leg many times since then, rendering that leg virtually useless. Because of this, she is confined to her bed most of the time when she isn't in the hospital.

"The only time I'm out is when I'm in a wheelchair to go to the doctor's," she said.

Miss Duncan hasn't given up on life, though.

She lives in a rural area of South Carolina, where there is a high illiteracy rate. She can read and write, and she has found a way to put her skills to good use.

"I help people get help from Social Security, and to fill out the other forms that you need to get along in this world," she said. "People around here, we're out in the country, so many of them can't read or write. They bring their letters to me and I read the letters to them, and I fill out forms for them and help them all I can."

"It breaks my heart to see these people. Reading is God's greatest gift. I have never turned anyone down,

"I can't even count the number of times that I've been in the hospital," she said. "In 1975 I got a new problem, kidney trouble, and I had two operations then and now I only have one kidney left. Then last July I had two operations in three days for a cancer search, and now I have to go back in for another operation.

"But I feel that I'm one very lucky person. I've seen so many so much worse off than me, so I can't thank our dear Lord enough for letting me be as well as I am. We're poor, but we're honest and respectable, and I think that's what really counts in this life."

The reason I asked for you to send Miss Duncan a birthday greeting is that the greatest joy in her life is receiving mail.

"To me the truest happiness in the world is an overflowing mailbox," she said. "I'm kind of stranded out here in the country. The television has conked out on me. It gets kind of lonesome out here sometimes."

"No one in the world loves mail like me. To me, a day without mail seems a month long. It's my way of knowing that there are really people out there beyond my house."

Like I said, Miss Duncan's 47th birthday is coming up. This is just a newspaper sob story, and the world's not going to stop turning if you don't drop her a card or a line, but it would be nice. Thanks.

and when I help them out and I see the sparkle of hope in their eyes, I bow my head and thank God for letting me be here when they need me."

Miss Duncan, who lives on a $89.80-a-month disability check, said, "The Lord's made me the way I am so that I can help these people read and write. I truly believe that the reason I am bed-ridden is so that I have the time to help others."

Miss Duncan will be going back into the hospital soon; she is worried, mainly because one of her disability checks was stolen recently, but she says she is used to surgery.

Maverick Congress wears no party brands

By James J. Kilpatrick

Just before the Easter recess, the Democratic leadership took two remarkable bickings on Capitol Hill. The events served to emphasize, once again, how meaningless and artificial our political labels have come to be.

On paper, the Democrats should have everything going their way. Their man is in the White House. They hold majorities of almost two to one in both House and Senate. The Democrats have every committee chairmanship. They control the legislative calendars. In the nation at large, 49 percent of the people profess a Democratic affiliation, as opposed to barely 20 percent for the languishing GOP. The Democrats exercise overwhelming control over state legislatures; they claim 38 of the 50 governorships.

All of this suggests, on paper, something close to one-party rule. It suggests that we should be drifting ever more rapidly into a welfare state dominated by labor unions, bureaucrats, and spendthrift politicians.

Nothing of the sort is going on. On Capitol Hill, party discipline has become a recurring joke. The leadership struggles to lead, but there seldom is much assurance that significant numbers will follow. When they ring the bell in the House for a rollcall vote, it is like sneezing in a brooder house. Democrats fly off in all directions.

Last week's rebellions were typical. On Monday the leadership made a blundering attempt to railroad a student aid bill through the House. The House would have none of it. On Tuesday the leadership tried again with a campaign financing bill. By a humiliating vote of 209 to 198, the House refused even to debate the bill.

This kind of thing happens all the time. Almost a year has passed since a Democratic president asked his Democratic Congress to give him a nice Democratic energy bill—which is to say, a bill intended to tax and tax, and spend and spend. The idea was to restrain the wicked oil companies, to hit the idle rich who buy gas-guzzling limousines, and to benefit the little people who would love a subsidy to insulate their humble homes. Mr. Carter pleaded for fast action on the bill. He has yet to get his energy package written into law. Any resemblance between a final act and his original message will be largely coincidental.

It was confidently expected—at least labor lobbyists were confident—that Democrats would unite willingly behind the common site picketing bill. The bill went down to decisive defeat, with 88 Democrats deserting the party line.

Mr. Carter wanted a consumer protection agency. He repeatedly asked his Democratic colleagues to give it to him. But the balky House first reduced the administration's bill to a pulp and then killed it altogether. More than 100 Democrats deserted Mr. Carter on that one.

In theory, because of their supposed bondage to the labor bosses, the House should be agreeable to repeal of Section 14 (b) of Taft-Hartley, the section that authorizes states to enact their own right-to-work laws. A repeal bill won't even be offered on the floor. The administration's proposals on election reform, welfare reform, tax reform, and a new Department of Education are in deep trouble. Such a list could be greatly extended.

What is going on? The self-evident fact, demonstrated in one rollcall after another, is that scores of Democrats are refusing to vote a liberal party line. They are instead endearing themselves to their moderately conservative constituencies by rejecting doctrinaire Democratic bills. They are doing something else: They are putting all possible distance between themselves and the gentleman in the White House.

In one sense, this is no novel situation. Every Washington observer recalls the years in which Southern Democrats regularly voted for Republican positions. This created the "Conservative Coalition," an effective force in its prime. But something different is now afoot. Especially in the House, but to some degree in the Senate, the rule increasingly is every man for himself. Now and then the labels come to life and we get a party-line vote. But not often. Call it the maverick Congress. It's bearing nobody's brand.

Thompson readies campaign

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gearing up for a seven-month run for reelection, Gov. James R. Thompson announced Wednesday the hiring of Alexander K. Lerner as deputy campaign manager.

Lerner, 31, is the 11th full-time campaign staffer for Citizens for Thompson and will be paid $20,000 a year, said David C. Paulus, Republican Thompson's campaign finance manager.

That compares to six full-time campaign workers for Thompson's fall opponent, Democrat Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis, according to Frank Coakley, Bakalis campaign aide.

Thompson's campaign committee spends $18,000 a month for salaries of its full-time workers, and has no part-time help, said Paulus.

Radio City Hall closing in April

NEW YORK (AP)—Radio City Music Hall, scheduled to be closed April 12, should be designated an "historic landmark" by the City Landmark Preservation Commission, said Tuesday. Such a designation prohibits alterations of the art deco interior but not demolition of the building.

The commission's recommendation, which goes to the city's Board of Estimate for action, would not permanently save Radio City. But a commission staff member said it would result in a delay of at least a year of any move toward demolition.

Rochefeller Center Inc., which owns Radio City, has not disclosed what it plans to do with the hall after it is closed. Rockefeller Center president Alton Marshall has threatened to challenge the city's landmark designation law in court.

Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupak, who has been leading the fight to save the hall, said in a statement after the commission's vote: "I am absolutely overjoyed and convinced that Radio City Music Hall will be saved."

In announcing last January that the horse of the war-torn, high-kicking Rockettes would close after the annual Easter Show, Marshall cited declining audience and revenues, and projected the hall's 1979 losses would be more than $1.5 million.

Attendance at the 45-year-old theater averaged about 5 million yearly until 1967. After that year, attendance at the 5,300-seat theater gradually dropped to less than 2 million last year.

Chance to speak offered by show

WJW Radio is beginning a new community access program called "Speak Out!" which will offer thirty minutes of free air time to interested groups or individuals. To introduce this new program concept, two special programs will be broadcast explaining the new series and discussing its visible effects on the area.

At 7 p.m. Thursday, on 98 FM, Sylvia Greenfield, a member of the faculty of the department of art, will discuss how "Speak Out!" could be used by artists in the community. Dennis Jeffers of the department of journalism will talk about exposure through the media and its sociological effects.

Telephone lines will be open.

Famed puppet show to appear

By Mike Urelich
Staff Writer

Pickwick Puppets are known all over the world for their combination of music and puppetry in theatrical productions intended to introduce young audiences to the arts. They have appeared to such diverse accompaniment as the Detroit Symphony, Boston's Handel and Haydn Society and the British rock group Mott the Hoople.

At 2 p.m. Saturday they will bring their art and their puppets to Stryck Auditorium for the production of "Arabian Nights," starring 40 hand and rod puppets, the smallest under a foot high, the largest over nine feet tall.

The show will be preceded by a puppet workshop at 10 a.m. at Stryck. Members of the company regularly teach classes and conduct workshops in puppetry as an extension of their performances.

Both events are free to the general public.

The Pickwick Puppets have been commissioned to create visual interpretations of musical masterpieces with puppets to be performed at New York City's Lincoln Center and Chicago's Ravinia Music Festival. They won the UNIMA Citation of Excellence for a use international organization of puppeteers.

When Mott the Hoople became the first rock band to perform on Broadway, the Pickwick Puppets performed in three of their selections in the concerts at Uris Theatre. A photograph of the puppets is featured on the jacket of the record album that was from the concerts.

The Puppet Theatre has been involved with television commercials and trade shows, creating the "Happy Tooth" for Colgate toothpaste and the "Taste me, taste me" routine for Doris cigarettes. Their national television credits include appearances with Joan Sutherland and Verdi's "Otello" and "Who's Afraid of Opera?"

The Pickwick Puppet Theatre

was founded in 1951 by Larry Berthelson, who started his professional career with the Ernie Kovacs television series. The present director is Ken Moses, a graduate of the Carnegie-Mellon School of Drama.

The "Arabian Nights" is the story of Scheherazade, the beautiful and clever wife of a Sultan. The Sultan's first wife left him and Scheherazade was to beheaded in retribution. But she foiled the Sultan by playing on his taste for adventure tales and telling him stories for a thousand and one nights, stopping at the exciting part and leading the Sultan on into another story.

The Pickwick Production centers on Scheherazade's story of the adventures of a boy named Abu. They will perform on the open stage with colorful exotic settings representing the different locales. The Scheherazade and the Sultan are life-sized rod puppets who narrate the story from a boudoir at the side of the stage. Though the story is drawn from the Arabian Nights, the plot was written by the Pickwick people and is performed without dialogue.

Two undergraduates, a graduate student, and a faculty member in the School of Music will be sharing their vocal and instrumental talents in recitals Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Mark Mangus, a tenor, will give a graduate voice recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation (OBF).

Mangus, who received his bachelor's degree in music education from Clarion State College in Pennsylvania, will graduate in August with a master's in opera-music theater from SIU.

He has been an active performer here, recently appearing as tenor soloist in Handel's "Messiah," as the Beast in "Beauty and the Beast," and as the Chevalier de la Fosse in "Dialogues of the Carmelites."

He will also appear as Gonzalve in "Heure Espagnole" on April 24. Mangus is a student of Kurt Kuegel and Margaret Skarzens.

Accompanied by Susan Warner, pianist, Mangus will sing five songs by Franz Schubert, three songs by Gioacchino Rossini, as well as "Nuit d'etoiles," and "Romance" by Claude Debussy, "Ah! l'evetol, solo!" from Romeo and Juliette, by Charles Gounod, "Old American Songs," by Aaron Copland; and "Quena o quella" from Rigoletto, by Giuseppe Verdi.

Two undergraduates, Roberta Krukoski on flute, and Richard Gardner on piano will give a joint recital at 8 p.m. Saturday in OBF. Krukoski is a senior in music education and is a student of Jervis Underwood. She has been involved with the SIU Orchestra, Wind Ensemble, music theatre productions, and opera orchestras for "The Marriage of Figaro," and "Dialogues of the Carmelites."

She will perform "Sonata II" by J.S. Bach, "Musik für Flöte und Klavier," by Werner Pussan, and "Diversions," by Peter Tannner. She will be accompanied by Mark Campbell, piano and harpsichord, and by Tracey Jones, marimba.

Gardner, a junior in music performance, is a student of Steven Barwick's.

He will perform "Etude No. 2," from "15 Virtuosity Studies," by Moritz Moszkowski, "Etude No. 1, Prelude" from the "12 Transcendental Etudes," by Franz Liszt, and "Piano Concerto No. 1, op. 15, movement 1," by Beethoven, accompanied by Susan Warner, piano. A third recital this weekend will feature faculty member David Williams, baritone, is an assistant professor of voice and works with the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre.

Williams studied at the Goldovsky Opera Institute, and with Alsel Schöts and Leo Taubman. He has appeared as a soloist with the Wichita Symphony, The National Symphony of Bolivia, the Idaho State-Civic Symphony.

At SIU, Williams was to concert with Roberta Veazey last fall, was bass soloist for the University Choir's "Messiah," and appeared as the Marquis de la Force in the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre's "Dialogues of the Carmelites."

Faculty member Margaret Simmons will accompany Williams on piano.

Williams will sing, Robert Schumann's "Liederk, Op. 38," Maurice Ravel's "Don Quichotte a Dulcinee," and Aaron Copland's "Old American Songs."

All the recitals are free and open to the public.

Tickets for Slave and Undisputed Truth, two bands coming to the SIU Arena at 9 p.m. April 14, will go on sale at 9 a.m. Monday at the Arena Special Events Ticket Office.

Despite publicity, Nazis haven't set foot in Skokie

SKOKIE (AP)—Just about the only thing that hasn't happened in the year since Nazis tried to march in Skokie is a Nazi march.

Courts at all levels have ruled. News coverage has been so extensive that the village hired a public relations firm. The American Civil Liberties Union, the Nazis' legal defender, has lost 30 percent of its membership in the state, 15 percent nationally. Nazi leader Frank Collin has appeared on radio and television shows from coast to coast. Jewish groups have promised counter-marches—some peaceful, some not.

And the Nazis haven't set foot in Skokie.

"It could easily be another year before the actual march takes place," David Hamlin, executive director of the Illinois ACLU, said this week. "The legal system works deliberately."

Officials in Skokie, a Chicago suburb with a heavy Jewish population, have promised to throw every legal roadblock they can find in the Nazis' path. Village court action began last April when they obtained a Circuit Court injunction barring the march. That injunction was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which last June ordered the Illinois courts to expeditiously review the injunction.

But it wasn't until January that the state Supreme Court overturned the injunction. And the village has promised an appeal.

The village also adopted three ordinances last May that barred the Nazi march. U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Decker ruled the ordinances unconstitutional last month. But citing the possible danger of a Nazi march, Decker delayed for 30 days the effect of his ruling so the city could appeal.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is now studying the case. No matter who wins, an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court is likely.

"This seemed like a clear-cut First Amendment case to me when it began," Hamlin said.

Aerospace studies seminar planned

By University News Service

A number of persons involved in space research and development will discuss down-to-earth applications of the U.S. space program April 13 and 14 when SIU hosts a conference on "Dividends from Space."

Several of the nation's leading aerospace research firms will be represented at the conference, to be co-sponsored by the St. Louis chapter of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics and SIU.

Space research payoffs to be discussed include applications in solar energy and agriculture, extraterrestrial studies and fusion energy.

Donald Perry, associate professor in marketing and conference coordinator, said, "Our aim is to expose people to some of the important scientific and technological advances that have come about as a result of our nation's space program."

"We could think of no better group of people to discuss these space dividends than the scientists and engineers responsible for many of them," he said.

Among the corporations and agencies to be represented are the federal Department of Energy, McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Co. and McDonnell Douglas Research Laboratories of St. Louis, Rockwell International of Downey Calif., the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Chromalloy American of St. Louis.

The speakers and topics on April 13 include Frederick Ordway of the federal Department of Energy ("Solar Energy Applications"), Peter Halpern and Robert Sinks of Sa Corp., Inc. ("Energy and Agriculture Dividends"), and Charles Gould of Rockwell International ("Business and Industrial Applications").

Speakers scheduled for April 14 include Josef Seidel and Ronald Weiss of McDonnell Douglas, chief scientist for McDonnell.

IERC to draft state legislation promoting use of Illinois coal

By Mark Peterson
Student Writer

Illinois' extensive coal reserves have prompted the Illinois Energy Resources Commission (IERC) to draft legislative measures aimed at promoting the use of the coal nationwide and overseas.

Tim Warren, a spokesman for the commission, said the legislation directs the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development to initiate a coal marketing program which he said is also necessary to stimulate the Illinois economy.

It is estimated that Illinois has a 65.7 billion ton reserve of unmined coal. This is the largest reserve of bituminous coal of any state.

"It is time that Illinois start realizing the economic benefits of its vast reserves of coal," Warren said. "An extensive full-time marketing program is essential."

Warren also said that the commission will consider proposals to eliminate the state sales tax on equipment used to convert energy heating and generating systems from natural gas and oil to coal.

Also included in the legislation is a $30,000 appropriation for a proposal to the federal government to blend high sulfur coal with incoming western coal.

Warren said all of these resolutions are aimed at promoting the use of Illinois coal.

Other energy legislative proposals that Warren said will be reviewed by the Commission include:

—A New Home Insulation and Heating disclosure Act that would require all builders and sellers of new homes to provide data on the projected annual heating cost of that home.

Warren said that he is currently working on the formula that would be used in determining the cost. He said that factors used in the formula will include the size of the home and the amount of insulation used in construction.

—The reorganization of energy related agencies in Illinois, creating a cabinet level energy department by combining the powers and duties of the Division of Energy and the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality.

—Adopting incentives to promote corporate and public ride sharing programs.

—A Thermal and Lighting Act that would establish state building codes relating to heating and lighting efficiency standards.

—An energy Consumption Analysis on Construction Act requiring state agencies which have jurisdiction over state owned and operated facilities to carefully analyze the cost of energy consumption for each construction or renovation project undertaken.

Warren said that the IERC will consider all the proposals at its meeting on April 11. If endorsed by the commission, they would then be submitted to the Illinois General Assembly.

He added that the legislative proposals have been developed in conjunction with state, federal, university and local government officials.

State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, who is the commission's legislative committee chairman, said he plans to stress the emergency aspects of energy legislation and will urge the leaders in the General Assembly to accept many of the proposals as emergency legislation.

Longevity studied

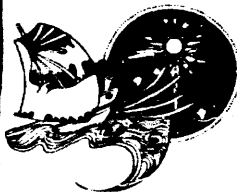

LAWRENCY, Kan. (AP)—Six anthropologists were at the University of Kansas here recently, laying the groundwork for an information exchange program between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The program would allow aging and longevity researchers in both countries to coordinate their efforts and to standardize methods of measurement and investigation.

The Soviet research team, composed of about 40 investigators, has already received funding for the project from its government. The U.S. team has still to obtain a grant from an institute of aging before the program can start.

WOMEN NAVAL CADETS IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine Navy will begin accepting its first female cadets this year.

Classes for the first group of 50 to 60 girls, aged 12 and 13 will begin March 1, 1978, with graduation set for five years later, a Navy spokesman said.

By that time, the number of staff cadets is expected to have risen to about 300. In preparing for this increase, the Navy is setting up school facilities in Salta, in north-west Argentina.

The Navy spokesman reported that the girls will not become active Navy officers, but will be part of the Naval Reserve. They will study the regular high school program, along with naval subjects and skills, as Argentine naval version of home economics and health. Upon graduation, they will not only be commissioned, but will also have earned the customary high school diplomas of their sisters in ordinary schools.

Parents of abused boy face misdemeanor charge

BUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—A boy found in a filthy, squalid room has been removed from the care of his parents, who have been charged with endangering the life of a child, a misdemeanor.

Authorities said the boy, 14, has the mentality of an infant, the physical appearance of a 7- or 10-year-old, and has spoken only two words—"apple" and "car"—since he was taken from his parents' home on Friday. His name has not been released.

On Tuesday, the boy's parents, Dolph and Elizabeth Hagerman, signed a letter of consent allowing the boy to be taken to the Kansas Neurological Institute at Topeka for a 30-day evaluation.

Hagerman and his wife have been released on $5,000 bond, pending a preliminary hearing. A custody hearing has been set for April 3 to determine if the county, which now has temporary custody of the boy, should continue to care for him.

If convicted, the Hagermans face maximum sentences of one year of jail and a $2,500 fine.

Juvenile detective Ben Muci said he went to the Hagerman home Friday night after being told about the boy's condition by an acquaintance of the family.

Muci said when he entered the home, he noticed the stench of human waste.

Veterans slated to start in women's softball debut

By J.W. Campbell
Staff Writer

When the women's softball team takes the diamond at 4 p.m. Friday for its home and season opener (weather permitting), the starting nine promises to be dominated by veteran players.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer made her final cuts Tuesday, reducing a 38-member squad to its final complement of 28. Brechtelsbauer must still do further sorting and divide the remaining 28 players into two teams, a varsity and junior varsity squad, before the opener.

Brechtelsbauer said that the good weather enjoyed by Southern Illinois the past few days helped her reach a final decision on the eventual roster.

"We were able to get outside Monday and Tuesday for practice, and what I saw told me quite a bit about several players," Brechtelsbauer said. "Tuesday we had a 'semi-intrasquad' game. I played the new players the most to make sure I didn't make any mistakes on my final roster. I didn't need to look at the returning players because I already knew what they could do."

"So far I'm pleased with what I've seen," Brechtelsbauer explained.

"There's no question about it, because of the bad weather this spring, we're behind, but I doubt seriously if anyone else is in better shape. We plan to stay with basic strategies early in the season. We haven't had time to work on pick-off plays and things like that."

Brechtelsbauer said she has not decided on who she will start Friday, but it is likely that veterans will start at every position except shortstop and second base.

"Either Jan Barcewicz or Mary Biondi will start at shortstop," Brechtelsbauer noted. "At second base I'll start Sue Schaeffer, Deb Stamm or Bev Zintak."

Barcewicz, Biondi and Stamm are all freshmen. Zintak is a sophomore and Schaeffer is a junior who was forced to sit out last season with a knee ailment.

"All the people who are new have game experience, either from high school or junior college," Brechtelsbauer said. "We have strong pitching and a good defense. I've also tried to bring people here that have speed and quickness. It's going to be a tough season. We play outstanding teams, but I think we can compete with anybody."

Weekend rugby club tourney to be played on soccer field

Eight teams will meet in Carbondale this weekend for the First Annual Southern Illinois University-Olympia Rugby Tournament.

Teams from Western Illinois University, Eastern Illinois, Springfield, Decatur, Evansville, Eastern Kentucky, and Western Kentucky will compete in the two-day tournament to be held at the soccer field south of Abe Martin Field.

The single elimination tournament with a consolation bracket is sponsored by the SIU rugby club and the Olympia Brewing Company. Play will begin with two games at 9 a.m. Saturday and games will continue to be played throughout the day with starting times of 10:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Sunday's action features games at 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. with the first-place championship game scheduled for 2 p.m.

Michael Wade, the director of the tournament, said that the competition in the tournament should be pretty good and that the range of playing styles should be wide. He cited Springfield and Decatur as being characterized as having big and hard-hitting teams while Western Illinois and Evansville play a more experienced and team-oriented game.

Increased aid set for U of I women

URBANA (AP)—Support for women's sports at the University of Illinois will be increased as a result of an out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit announced Wednesday by the Athletic Association.

The suit was filed in April 1977 by two U of I athletes—Vanessa Calabrese and Nancy Knop—who charged sex discrimination in the level of support the association gives to women's sports.

The university and the association, as a result of the settlement, will:

- Support qualified women athletes by payment of room, board and book expenses, plus tuition and fees, as is done for male athletes.

- Require the same grades for men and women to be eligible for competition and for grants-in-aid.

- Provide academic tutoring for women athletes as well as male athletes.

- Provide financial aid to women athletes in their freshman year, as is done for male athletes.

- Increase financial support for coaches of women athletes and for the expense of recruiting women athletes.

William Gerberding, chancellor at Illinois, said, "Because of the seriousness of the issue and because I share the aspirations of all concerned regarding women's intercollegiate sports here, I have agreed to underwrite some of the possible costs for a two-year period, but not beyond."

Road Runners to sponsor run

A plate of spaghetti will await all finishers in the Southern Illinois Road Runners' 15-mile run Sunday.

The race's sponsor, Darrell Dunham, has promised to cook the spaghetti for everyone completing the hilly course which will begin on Douglas Drive near the Arena and finish at Dunham's home.

The race, the longest of the 1977-78 Carbondale season, is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. Anyone may enter. No entry fee or prior entry is required.

The race will be preceded at 1:30 by fun runs of one-half, one and three miles. Certificates will be

In the last road runners event before spring break, the One-Hour run March 12, Tom Schartow of the SIU cross country team won with a distance of 11 miles, 1,430 yards.

Chicago forward May has surgery

CHICAGO (AP)—Forward Scott May underwent successful knee surgery Wednesday to alleviate pain which hampered his play with the Chicago Bulls this season, causing him to miss the team's last 18 games, the National Basketball Association club announced.

Team physician Dr. David Bachman said surgery disclosed the cause of the pain as "a tag in the joint lining which we corrected and we also found a crack in the surface of the covering of the joint. There was no damage to the cartilage, ligaments or kneecap."

Dr. Bachman said May would be hospitalized for up to six days and should be able to play in three months after undergoing therapy and rehabilitation.

Stieb provides hitting, pitching as Salukis take two

By Bud Vandervalk
Sports Editor

Saluki baseball fans are accustomed to top-notch play from center fielders. In the past, the garden spot at SIU has been occupied by such notables as Jim Dwyer, Joe Wallis and George Vukovich, all of whom are now playing professional baseball.

Spoiled as they are, SIU baseball watchers expected nothing less than excellence when they ventured to Abe Martin Field Wednesday to get their first look at this year's incumbent, Dave Stieb. The junior from San Jose, Calif. gave the fans another name to remember as he led the Salukis to a sweep of their doubleheader with Greenville, 15-1 and 8-3.

The 6-4, 180-pound junior college transfer, who came into the game hitting .455, had four hits in seven at-bats, two of which were his sixth and seventh home runs of the season. He had six RBIs to raise his season total to 17, and he capped off his four-star performance by picking up the win in the second game by pitching two scoreless innings of relief in his first mound appearance since high school.

The 20-year-old Stieb was proclaimed an instant hero by the "Hill Gang," whose numbers decreased as the temperatures fell throughout the afternoon. He said he was told earlier in the day that he might test his powerful throwing arm on the pitching mound in a relief role.

"Mark (Newman, Saluki pitching coach) gave me a crash course in pitching today (Wednesday)," Stieb said. "I was pleased with the way I threw the ball, but I have to remember to concentrate on the glove."

"It surprises me that I'm hitting with so much power this early in the season. Before the season began I thought I might be able to hit 10 home runs this year, but I don't know how many I'll hit now. I have to keep concentrating at the plate because we'll face better pitching as the year goes on."

Stieb provided more than his share of fireworks, but he did not have a monopoly on the power department. The Salukis, who were ranked 12th in the country in the first poll of the season, cruised the plate 23 times in the twinbill while clubbing 22 hits, eight of which went for extra bases.

First baseman Craig Robinson went four-for-eight, including his second homer and seventh RBI of the season. Left-fielder Paul Ondo had three hits on the day and Chuck Curry, who made his catching debut replacing the injured Steve Stieb, went three-for-four in the first game with three runs-batted-in.

While the Greenville pitchers spent much of the day watching the Salukis run the bases, the Panther hitters were able to muster only four runs and 12 hits off five Saluki hurlers. Freshman Bob Schroeck started the bid-offer and pitched three scoreless innings, but the win went to junior left-hander Dave Stautz. 1-4, who pitched the final four innings, giving up one run and three hits.

Rod Peterson, a freshman right-hander, started the second game and gave up two runs in the first three innings before being relieved by Stieb. Paul Evans, another freshman, threw the final two innings and surrendered one run.

Coach Ichy Jones, who was busy all day waving in baserunners from the third base coaching box, hopes the hitting prowess of his team can continue. "We are going to be a fun team to watch because we have some power," Jones said. "We hit the ball real well, but some of our hitters were still a little bit overanxious. They might have been trying to do too much since it was our first home game, but they'll be more relaxed next time."

The Salukis do not have to wait long until next time because Miami of Ohio comes to town for a four-game series this weekend.

Hilltoppers, Racers to face trackmen in lone home meet

The big event in the Saluki track season is almost upon us. The first and only home meet of the season will begin at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

Western Kentucky and Murray State will compete against the Saluki trackmen in a triangular meet.

SIU has been hot in its first three outdoor meets of the season, winning meets over Houston and Southwest Louisiana in one triangular and sweeping the Northeast Louisiana Invitational meet.

The team closed out its spring trip with an impressive performance in the Florida Relays at Gainesville, where Bob Roggy spearheaded all honors with his SIU record-shattering javelin throw—tops in the world this season.

Coach Lew Hartzog feels that the Salukis can beat both teams, but that's nothing new—he feels his team, ranked ninth in the nation last season, can beat anyone on its schedule.

"It will be a competitive meet, because in one event where one team is weak, the other team is strong, so there will be no easy events," Hartzog analyzed.

Information on Western Kentucky has been sketchy, but Hartzog said the Hilltoppers have good hurdlers in Don Douglas, Greg Wilson and John Deller and "an outstanding sprinter in Marion Wingo."

Wingo runs the 100- and 200-meter dash events and Douglas, Wilson and Deller run in both the 110 high and the 400-yard intermediate hurdle events.

"Wingo was in the finals of the NCAA 60-yard dash during the indoor season and the hurdlers ran 50.3 in the 400 intermediates at the Florida Relays," Hartzog said.

Murray State has standouts in the long jump, high jump and distance events. Everton Cornelius has jumped 25-1/2 in the long jump and Axel Leitmayer has jumped 7-2 in the high jump.

"Cornelius could beat Rock and Lorraway in the long jump and our best high jumper has gone only 6-4, so they've got us in that event," Hartzog predicted.

Martin Brewer, Richard Charleston and David Warren have gone 4:53.7, 4:06.7 and 4:03.0, respectively in the mile. Patrick Chimes, David Rafferty and Mitch Johnson will run the 800-meter event and Brewer, Charleston and Jerry Odlin will run the 5,000 meters.

"Their distance runners took the first five places against us in cross country, but they won't do it to our guys this time," SIU's coach warned. "They will be tough, though."

The Racers won the two-mile run at the Florida Relays last weekend.

Murray State also has two face teams in the 440 and four-mile relay events. Chuck Fowler, Steve Chrisafulli, Marshall Crawley and Keith O'Meally will run in the 440 relay. Chimes, O'Meally, Rafferty and Warren will compete in the four-mile relay.

Both Murray State and Western Kentucky are members of the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC). The Hilltoppers won the OVC indoor meet and the Racers finished a close second.

"Hopefully, we're strong enough to handle both teams at the meet, but I'm not going to lose any sleep worrying about either of them," Hartzog concluded.
