Citizens must curb revelers, report says

By Karen Torry

Convincing parties they will be prosecuted if they break the law is necessary to solve the problem of disruptive parties, according to a report presented to the Carbondale City Council Monday night.

The report, outlined by City Manager Carl Frt, was the product of a "community improvement" meeting held March 10, which included police, firefighters, code enforcers, community development officials and legal department personnel to discuss citizen complaints about student parties.

Fry released police statistics to the council which showed 308 reported offenses filed between August 1982 and February 1983. There were 170 complaints of loud music and 33 arrests were made in the possession of a sound-amplification device.

"The problem does not appear to be the inability to cite a particular code section that can be effectively enforced, but the attitude of certain persons who simply ignore the possibility of punishment," according to a memorandum written by Assistant City Attorney Mary Ann Milden and included in the report. The solution to the problem, Milden said, is to deter ordnance violations by convincing people they will be prosecuted.

Citizen cooperation is needed to do this, because violations of the city's ability to enforce ordinances is "severely hampered," said Fischer. He said he felt the "willingness of Carbondale residents would be willing to file complaints."

For some violations, the administration plans to levy a fine and police must have a witness willing to testify to make an arrest.

Cooperation with the SIUC student body is essential because most complaints involve student parties, Fischer said. "While some of the students are responsible people," he said, "we can come closer to solving the problem satisfactorily by cooperating with the University."

Fischer said he would like to work with the city to develop a "community improvement" code and "let the community know the attitude of certain people will not be accepted."

"We need to develop a symbiotic relationship between administrators and student bodies," he said. "We need to start working together to deal with these changes we are being faced with today." Pape said: "We may perceive this as a time of crisis, we're actually in a period of change."

"I think our biggest challenge right now is that we're surrounded by insurmountable opportunity," he said.

Pape takes GPSC post nomination

By Phillip Fiorini

Thomas Pape became the third candidate Tuesday to accept a nomination for the presidency of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, and promptly responded to another candidate's challenge to a debate.

Pape, a graduate student in environmental design, said in a news release that he had been contacted by Steve Katsinas Monday night about scheduling a debate prior to the GPSC election Wednesday April 6.

But Pape said Tuesday that he will not debate unless all presidential candidates are present and the proceedings are controlled by an outside group of students.

"I will not participate in any forum which is controlled by just one candidate and which might appear unfair to any candidate," Pape said.

Incumbent Amy Greaney declined to debate Katsinas Monday, saying she failed to see what purpose it would serve.

"The job of the GPSC president is not just a public relations position involving making statements to the press and the public, but a job involving dealing with people, running committees and administering an organization," Pape said. He would like to work with the administration in these capacities, he said.

"We need to develop a symbiotic relationship between administrators and student bodies. We need to start working together to deal with these changes we are being faced with today," Pape said. "I think our biggest challenge right now is that we're surrounded by insurmountable opportunity," he said.

The Faculty Senate has called a general faculty meeting a discuss strategies for dealing with interim Dean Thompson's budget for fiscal year 1984. The meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m. Thursday in Davis Auditorium in Wham Building.

SIUC President Albert Somit is expected to attend the meeting.

Somit proposed a $12.9 billion state budget earlier this month with deep cuts in education and welfare spending. To avoid some of the cuts proposed in his budget, Thompson is urging the General Assembly to approve a $1.6 billion income tax in addition to the fiscal year 1984 budget.

Views of Mavericks, Trojans diverge

By James Derk

Staff Writer

At least the Mavericks and the Trojans agree on one thing: more money needs to be found for higher education.

However, in true political party form, they differ on just about everything else.

The two parties will square off in the Undergraduate Student Organization election scheduled for April 20.

The Mavericks running Steve Peck, 19, a sophomore in finance and economics, for USP president and Mike Greathouse, 21, a senior in finance, for USP vice president.

The Trojans offer Bruce Joseph, 22, a senior in business administration and aviation management, for president and Stephanie Jackson, 20, a junior in political science and radio and television, for vice president.

Both the Mavericks and the Trojans are "philosophically opposed" to tuition increases.

The Mavericks support a statewide tax increase to raise additional funds for higher education, while the Trojans
County unemployment figures drop 0.1 percent in February

By Terry Leroeke
Staff Writer

Unemployment in Jackson County ticked down 0.1 percent in February, joining in the statewide trend of slightly decreasing unemployment rates.

The decrease from 11.8 percent in January to 11.7 percent in February was attributed to the re-hiring of government employees as classes began in March after the semester break, said Fred Randazzo of the public information office of the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security.

"The overall Illinois unemployment rate has dropped for the last three months," Randazzo said. "It gives us an optimistic outlook. Employment should pick up again when the weather breaks and construction and agriculture get underway." Several other counties in the region enjoyed declining rates. Fayette County had the largest decrease at 1.4 percent for an unemployment rate of 10.2 percent. Franklin was the only county neighboring Jackson whose unemployment figures contracted, with a decrease of 0.1 percent. However, its 14.2 percent rate is still one of the highest in the region.

Jackson County maintained the lowest unemployment rate in Southern Illinois. Edwards County, near the Kentucky border, had the second lowest rate for February at 11.1 percent.

Other neighboring counties have not been so fortunate. Randolph County's unemployment rate jumped 0.4 percent to 13.3 percent, while Perry's stayed the same at 17.0 percent.

Randazzo said the increased unemployment in those counties was due to a decline in coal mining and manufacturing.

"We hope the recent trend toward recovery in Illinois branches down to the southern part of the state," Randazzo said. "But we make no predictions."

Reagan sends Soviets missile plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan sent the Soviet Union on Tuesday a scaled-down proposal that would end a nearly three-year deadlock in the European negotiations. It was the first in a series of moves that Reagan said he planned to make this year.

The proposal still leaves room for the United States to install new intermediate-range missiles on the continent late this year, while requiring the Soviets to tear down some of theirs. Reagan declined to discuss the specifics, just called it "We're never retreated" from the deployment plan.

And his proposal represents the first major U.S. effort to break the logjam of deadlock in the European negotiations. It was a sign that the president, who paraded to Geneva, Switzerland, by U.S. negotiators, had H. Nitze as the proposal's envoy.

No new missiles already on line or targeted upon the United States an edge in the negotiating situation, but U.S. leaders, who campaign for first use of weapons, will not deploy the new missile until they are carried nationwide. The plan is such as to permit the United States to deploy before the Soviets in some cases.

It is not inflexible, but "get zero" by the U.S. before the Soviets in some cases will make an announcement in mid-year of new policy. This new move at 10 a.m. EST Wednesday before depart on a five-day trip to California.

Two officials speaking on condition that they not be named, said the proposal does not specify a limit on the number of missiles each side could deploy. Instead, said one official said, it proposes that both countries "get to equal numbers of missiles already on line or scheduled for deployment and turn from there to zero."

That still would allow the United States, meanwhile, to begin installing 1,27 cruise and Pershing II missiles late this year.

Civil engineers needed for repairs

Champaign (AP) — A shortage of civil engineers could delay comprehensive repairs of the nation's highways and bridges, the head of the nation's engineering department at the University of Illinois said Tuesday.

"If we really go into the infrastructure problem in a big way, which I believe we've promised to do, then nobody's going to be able to find civil engineers," said Jon C. Liebman.

It will take engineers to design and supervise road and bridge repairs, said Liebman, noting that the state's current $100 million federal tax increase was designed to pay for some of the work.

The final frontier?

WASHINGTON — America the peflicl may be about to offend yet again. It is the right to be told in a timely manner if one’s sexual partner has herpes.

Susan Liptrot is suing the man with whom she says she slept once, after a brief acquaintance. She says she noticed sores on his genitalia. But she says he said he didn’t know what it was. She didn’t think anything about it. After sexual reflection, she thinks the law should compel him to give her more than $100,000. “Hey, you know why, she should have any responsibility for what his actions were?” Hey, why do so many people develop such convenient theories of jurisprudence? She “didn’t think anything about it,” but now is out to develop a new law of sexual responsibility.

The law has recently, through “palimony,” sanctioned the idea that persons who reject the legal obligations of marriage can nonetheless use the law to impose responsibilities on others who have entered into a convenient, one does wish that today’s free sprees will only “screen out” the courts a court a court a court a court a court. Liberal jurisprudence teaches that law has no business attempting to shape society’s moral climate, least of all concerning a private matter like sex. But in the resulting dissolution of social mores and other restraints, liberal jurisprudence attempts to translate every unhappiness into a justifiable conflict of individual rights. So some judge is apt to pioneer a law concerning herpes.

Let’s see: Are there privacy rights of the infectious person to be weighed against the information rights of the infected? Vote Troyan for USO

SUO is due a change. When students are threatened with 50 percent tuition hikes while rumors of war and rumors of mass immigration abound, it’s time for a change.

Education is becoming priced out of the reach of most students. Institutions of higher learning are designed to protect students, has become burned-out. The Undergraduate Student Organization, established to serve students, is becoming a slow and timid bureaucracy. Other problems also plague our school. It’s time for new ideas and firm leadership. We need a united student voice in SUO.

The USO assembled for this purpose and has become little more than a token measure. The USO needs a leadership that isn’t just over paid “yes men.”

Let’s see new USO to ready grapple with the administration to get students a fair deal. It’s time to make USO accountable and accessible to students. It’s time for the Trojan party.

Vote April 20; Vote for change.

Benefit fashion show deemed artistic success by producer

By Jeana Bantler

The theatrical fashion benefit Private Lines, sponsored by MOVE Sunday night at Mainstreet East, was deemed a success artistically by its producer-director, John Bickett. Joe Angelillo, coordinator of the show, also said the show was successful.

Private Lines featured clothing styles dating from the 1940s to 1980s modeled by 177 people including staff, students, and guests, raising over $300. The money raised by the benefit will be donated to Rainbow’s End Presbyterian Church’s Youth Mission.

The show was presented as a benefit for children of students and faculty at the University of Illinois. Attendees were charged $2 per person. A donation of $2 was collected from the audience.

"We really saw genuine enjoyment in the audience," Bickett said. "I think we got the audience to react the way we wanted them to. It was so entertaining. For the 1980s, Angelillo said, "(overlay)

Eastman Brass virtuosic team

By Thomas Sparks
Entertainment Editor

One word can be used to describe the performance by the Eastman Brass Sunday at Shroyack - "excellent.'

In a performance that was tastefully reserved yet intriguing, the brass performed a selection of pieces that demonstrated the beauty and versatility of music possible with a brass ensemble and entertained the audience.

Throughout the evening, the musicians presented their piece with a style and flair that commanded respect and appreciation. Utilizing the instrumentation of two trumpets, trombone, French horn, and tuba, the group performed as a cohesive unit with such efficiency that it was often difficult to distinguish who was playing as the melody was passed between the five.

The Brass opened with "Cestone No. V" by Samuel Scheidt. Arranged by Eastman Brass Horn Player Steve Reynolds, the piece was the first of several suites to be performed that night. The five selections comprising the suite were selected by Reynolds to illustrate Scheidt's style. which is characteristic of most Baroque music.

Following the Scheidt, was a collection of works written by concert pianist Percy Grainger. The three pieces which make up this work were folk numbers collected by Grainger on his travels throughout England. The first song of the work showcased the beautiful, subdued sound of the muted trumpets of Barbara Butler and Charles Geyer. Both took turns with the melody, usually sounding as though one person was playing.

An especially beautiful portion of the evening's program was the second selection of this work, "The Sussex Mummers' Christmas Carol." The strains of this carol were presented by the ensemble and painted a musical portrait of the early 20th century.

The third selection by Grainger, "As Sally Sata-la," was taken from a Dorsetshire folksong and featured a vibrant melody alternating between the trumpets and trombone. "a major compositional work by Oscar & the winning composer Malcolm Arnold, this passage over the River Kwai) seemed with fluid trumpet runs alternating with thunderous interludes from the lower brass. The first movement presented the theme with the final two movements containing variations or that theme. This piece allowed the performers to demonstrate their ability to play other styles of music as well as jazz and an

The highlight and eye-opener of the night, however, was Reynolds arrangements of variations on Jean-Baptiste Arban's "The Carnival of Venice." Arban, considered many of the father of modern trumpet playing, wrote this piece as a showcase for the virtuoso cornettist. Bob Butler and Geyer lived up to any expectations that may have been predicated - they were phenomenal as they alternated leads, often changing horns to do so.

They were not alone, however. As with the rest of the night, each member of the ensemble demonstrated their own ability and skill with their respective instruments, including great performances by John Marcellus on trombone and Charles Reauregarden on tuba, who carried the low end with great ability.

The ensemble left the stage to applause but were back immediately to close with a fitting piece, "Salutation," by End, a salute to the many styles and forms of music. As with the entire evening, it was performed with expressive and virtuosic playing featuring superb dynamics.
Volunteers get new truck, lose chief

MACOMB, ILL. AP — The shiny new red fire truck was the pride and joy of the 19-member volunteer department near this western Illinois community.

After qualifying a quantity of what court records describe as "alcoholic liquor," Fire Chief Ray Iverson, 39, took the truck for a midnight ride.

Macomb Police Capt. Kendall Hearon said officers first spotted the 1982 diesel pumper, red lights flashing and sirens wailing, when it ran several stop signs at speeds in excess of 50 mph in a residential area of Macomb at 12:48 a.m. March 13.

Police called the fire station, west of Macomb, with the time-honored question, "Where's the fire?"

Firefighters at the station volunteered they were simply "testing" the new rig. The next day, Macomb Police Chief Richard Clark disclosed that the driver of the truck had been identified — and Iverson admitted to the escapade.

Iverson quietly pleaded guilty Monday to reckless driving at a hearing before Associate Mc-Donough County Circuit Court Judge Richard Ripple.

The unauthorized spin cost Iverson a fine of $500, two weekends in jail and his job.

Career Counseling to sponsor workshops, group counseling

By James Derk
Staff Writer

During upcoming weeks the Career Counseling Center will sponsor several workshops designed for students concerned with educational or vocational plans. The workshops will be informal discussion groups that meet to discuss basic aspects of educational planning and academic skills.

The center will offer a two-hour workshop Wednesday, especially designed for juniors and seniors. "Applying to Grad School," will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Quigley 204. The workshop will focus on the steps necessary to apply to graduate school, how to make them find the right graduate schools, and how to improve your chance of acceptance.

Botanist says plant fate in jeopardy

By Celeste Sullivan
Staff Writer

Although Congress passed a special protection act in 1966 in an attempt to save animals from extinction, little attention was focused on the plants' counterparts - the endangered plant, especially wild flowers. "Wild flowers are disappearing at alarming rates," said Robert Mohlenbrock, professor of botany at SIU-C. In a lecture Monday evening, Mohlenbrock described threats to the existence of a variety of wild flowers in his presentation, "Where Are All The Wild Flowers Gone?" Mohlenbrock said some flowers have always been rare because of complicated reproductive systems and other natural disasters and man's actions.

"We try to work to improve students' skills related to educational planning," said Diane Tinney, a counseling psychologist at the center. "With the job market tight right now, we try to help students with their career problems or with summer work."

The center will also offer a workshop on time management on April 5. It will help students deal more effectively with their use of time. On April 7, the center will follow up that course with a one-hour workshop on how to improve study skills.

The center also has group counseling psychologists at the groups meet for four hours twice per week and discuss such topics as, how to choose a major, what to expect after graduation and career planning for women planning to re-enter the job market.

"We are working to help students plan their time and their lives more effectively," said Tinney. "We want to help them find clear goals and work toward them in a direct fashion."

Tinney said the center tries to schedule workshops at different times of the day to accommodate students' class schedules.

"We would like to get as many students involved in the programs as we can," said Tinney. "We try and schedule the programs so as many people as possible can participate."

The Student Senate passed a resolution in February in support of the programs. The workshops and groups are free and open to all students. Persons desiring further information about the workshops or groups can contact the Career Counseling Center at Woody Hall 204-B or 536-2066.

In 1973, Congress included plants in the Endangered Species Act. Presently, 67 species have been put on the list, with 3,000 plants being studied for potential listing. Mohlenbrock said individuals can nominate a plant for consideration by contacting the office of Endangered Species.

Summer language program offers visit to Xalapa, Mexico

By Liz Myers, Student Writer

The ancient city of Xalapa will again be the site of a six-week summer language program in Mexico sponsored by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education.

SIU has offered study programs to Xalapa since 1961. According to Arnold Ulner, associate professor in Spanish, the five-time director of the program since 1974, the location this year at La Universidad Veracruzana was selected because of its distance from the crowds and pollution of Mexico City, as well as its mild summer temperatures.

La Universidad Veracruzana at Xalapa is 60 miles east of the Gulf of Mexico and 150 miles west of Mexico City, both of which are easily accessible by train and bus.

The study program is open to all graduate and undergraduate students who have had two years of high school or one year of college Spanish. The program, with an estimated cost of $1,440, includes room and board with a Mexican family, tuition, and some field trips of histo-cal and cultural value.

"The families take the students as part of their own family," Ulner said.

Besides hearing Spanish in the home, the students will also receive rigorous instruction in the classroom.

"Only Spanish is spoken in the classes, although it is geared to the different levels of the students," Ulner said.

Ulner said the main reason for the speed of learning a foreign language in a native country is that if a student is motivated to visit the foreign country in the first place "he's going to find the desire to learn.

The program, which usually averages between 12 and 20 participants, departs from the United States in June and returns Aug. 16.

La Universidad Veracruzana also offers an optional field trip to El Tajin, Cempala, and Papantla, and the students will stay at a Gulf coast hotel in the little town of Teocuila on a three-day excursion that would cost about $109.

Art professor's research revives gruesome event of SI history

New views on the historical perspective of the infamous 1922 union strike near Herrin, Ill., are aired at the recently concluded SIUC Fine Arts colloquium series.

George Mavigliano, associate professor in history at SIUC, is conducting research about the Herrin massacre. The nationally-acclaimed and seldom-seen painting that depicts the tragedy by Paul Cadmus is set to be unveiled.

Mavigliano's talk concerned Cadmus' famous pictorial illustration commissioned by Life Magazine, which was never printed because of its graphic nature. The painting centered on a blood-spattered scene with more on-going murder.

"In actuality, the murders did not occur in the cemetery, but setting reminds us of the results," said Mavigliano of the inaccurate painting.

Mavigliano concluded that Cadmus' painting emphasizes man's intolerance to his fellow man and that violence and brutality are not the answers. The painting remains in private viewing by its owner, Robert White Jr., in Oxford, Ohio.

Still painting at 77, Cadmus lives in Westin, Conn. Mavigliano said. When the SIU-C professor recently talked with him, Cadmus said about the painting that "he did not wish to depict the scene but to object to its existence."

Mavigliano is the co-author of the book "Fred E. Myers, Wood Carver," together with English professor Richard Lawson. The book is about Myers, a Southern Illinois coal miner who has become famous for his wood carving. Together the two men have a summer grant to research a second book on the history of the Illinois Art Project.
Quadriplegic student learns to cope with life’s challenges

By Jackie Doucet
Student Writer

It was a typical camping trip for the Batzek family, the type of weekend they had enjoyed many times before. It was a typical Saturday morning in July. The early morning dew was still fresh in the air.

Jim Batzek was a typical 15-year-old boy climbing a tree, as he had done a hundred times before. It was a typical fall from a tree that left Batzek a quadriplegic.

Lying on his back under the stars at a private campground approximately 30 miles outside of Joliet, Batzek said, he thought he had just knocked the wind out of himself. When he found he could not move, he figured he had broken his legs.

The fall was much more serious than a broken leg. Batzek had broken his neck and shattered his spinal cord. Parents told his parents he would not live for more than 10 days. That was six years ago.

But today Batzek is enjoying his life, with a few limitations, at SIUC.

Doctors said Batzek’s chances of ever regaining movement below his neck were practically zero. Today he has partial movement of his arms and hands.

Batzek went through a “why me?” stage. He said he would spend nights laying awake in the hospital bargaining with God. But every morning he would think, “this is my life, I have no choice.”

“Why me?” was a typical question when first informed. Many people involved and showed they cared, Batzek said. Realizing how much people cared, Batzek said he could not let them down. With support from his parents and friends he graduated from high school on time.

“I have limitations, but why let them change my life?” Batzek said.

He said he had always planned on going to college and saw no reason to change those plans. He said he looked at several schools in California but was impressed by the atmosphere and friendliness of the people at SIUC.

“I just want to be one of the guys, not some guy in a wheelchair,” Batzek said. Jim is confined to a wheelchair and has a part-time aid.

He is the same person he was before the accident, he said, and people just have to realize that.

Batzek enjoys life at Thompson Point and is very optimistic about the future. He is a junior in computer science and said opportunities in the field are wide.

Jim said he has already received a job offer from a new division of a company in Chicago, which seeks young employees to grow with the company.

“I’d like to someday reach the top of the corporate ladder,” Batzek said. But with the computer market changing so rapidly, he said he is in no hurry to make any permanent decisions.

“I’ve made it through the worst,” Batzek said. Things can only get better. He said he believes life is full of opportunities and challenges, if only one will try.

Cyclists continue season after successful outing

The SIU-C Phoenix Cycle team gears into its season with its annual spring primavera this weekend. On Saturday will be a criterium with six races for various levels of cyclists on a course through campus. On Sunday, a 66-mile road race will be held through the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge.

The criterium course will be a 1.2 mile loop, including one 180-degree turn and four right angle turns, run on smooth asphalt around campus lake. There will be six races, Senior IV, nine laps for 20 miles starting at 11 a.m.

The veteran men's race starting noon will be the same distance, as will the women's at 12:00.

The featured race, the men's category of I and the licensed United States Cycling Federation racers, starts at 1 p.m. It will be an 18-lap, 40-mile race.

At 2:45 p.m., a citizen's and intramural's race of 6.6 miles, or three laps, will begin. The final race on Saturday, a nine-lap course for junior men, starts at 3 p.m.

Registration for the races Saturday starts at 9:30 a.m. at the Arena. Registration for Sunday is from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. at the Lakeview School parking lot. Entry fees for U.S.C.P. races are $2.25 for one, $4.50 for both. Stock and Citizen races are $1.75 each. Prizes will be awarded in the different categories.

The primavera is one major part of the cyclists' season, a season that has had success already for the SIU-C team. Last Sunday, Lynn Irons took first in the St. Louis Criterium Series, ahead of about 50 riders on the 3-mile race in rainy, 12-degree weather.

Irons received blocking help from teammate Mick Letourneau, who finished eighth.

Gymnasts get long-awaited bid to national championships

It was a long time in coming, but it was worth the wait.

The Saluki gymnastics team received a bid Tuesday afternoon to the national championships April 7-9 at Penn State University. The announcement of the 16-team selections was originally scheduled to come out Monday at 5 p.m., and then it was moved to Tuesday at 9 a.m. Coach Bill Meade and the gymnasts eventually waited until 2:30 p.m. before getting the word they were in the select group.

The other teams picked include those chosen as the top teams in each of the four regions: Nebraska, UCLA, Illinois and Penn State. The remaining teams, including SIUC, are not ranked and received at-large bids. They are Ohio State, Iowa State, Arkansas State, Oklahoma and Northern Illinois. Being chosen didn't come as much of a surprise for the Salukis, as the team's 20-2-0 average had it ranked in the top 10. But more than just averages figured into the selection process, so hearing it officially was a relief. "I felt pretty much all the way through that we were going to get it," Meade said. "We had all the criteria, a good average, a very strong schedule, we had beaten good teams in head-to-head competition, and we had good scores at the end of the season."

Another factor was the 8-5 loss to the University of Nebraska at the regional meet. Meade said, "Although we had one of those disasters and in just case Northern beat us, that could have been a reason to put them ahead of us," he said. "I felt we were in the mix in some events and had beaten Northern two weeks before, and why take the chance of putting us behind?"

With the NCAA meet just over a week away, Meade will do for the last time something he has done the entire season looking at this year's squad and trying to find the strongest lineup. Some spots are open, but the selection of two of the nine who will occupy seats on the plane ride to University Park, Pa., is yet a competition.

The team held an intrasquad meet on Tuesday, and do not announce a final selection until Thursday and Sunday while Meade makes his decision on who to take.

"I'm not sure in my mind yet who we are going to take with a late Saluki gymnastics team to an appearance at nationals for the first time since 1977 after taking titles in 1972, 1967, 1966 and 1964. Who goes will depend on the gymnasts themselves and the performances they have in practices this week."

"All I have to do is guess right," Meade said.

Meade will concentrate on the final selection of the roster this week and not on setting too many goals for the competition just yet.

"Our first goal is not being last," he said. "Sunday, start to get some ideas, but Wednesday, we can place anywhere from third to 10th. You can't look at just the average because anything can happen."

DePaul prepares for NIT final

Ray Meyer used to see a lot of Wichita State, Tynan Bray, Marvin Carter and Charlie Smith. He may see a lot of them again Thursday afternoon. But it may not be quite as pleasant as it used to be.

Meyer is a senior for DePaul in the MAAC, a junior forward for Wichita State, Bradley, Carter and Smith are guards for the Bulldogs. All of them come from ... Chicagoland area - DePaul, Wichita State, Bradley.

"I used to see them play in our gym all the time," said Meyer. "They're a tough team. "

But Meyer, 26 and completing his 41st year as head coach of the Blue Demons, is looking forward. DePaul prepares for NIT final.

The Salukis, the NIT's surprise team, are headed to the NCAA Tournament for the first time in seven years, and DePaul coach Ray Meyer is looking forward to facing them.

"It's that latter virtue that might make a full-time buildup ace out of Beckhorn. Jones, who has found anything else yet, is thinking about doing just that. Beckhorn will probably start the last game of the three-game weekend series with Louisville, or he might come in to replace him in the Saluki dugout on Monday night. Beckett has been effective enough. They have played well in the last game. But they're a great team."

"I'm myself was always in awe of Ray Meyer."

"I'm a kid in the game of baseball," said Meyer. "I look up to him as one of the game's great coaches."

Meyer said it's taken him 18 or 20 years to learn how to enjoy coaching.

Pitchers solid in win while hitters roll on

Saluki baseball Coach Richy Johnson continued to nurse along an ailing pitching staff Thursday, getting four fair to excellent performances in a 9-3 Saluki win over Southern Illinois University Edwardsville Wednesday at Abe Martin Field.

The Saluki hitters remained healthy enough. They bashed 16 hits and gave SIU-C an insurmountable 6-2 lead after three innings.

SIUC is now 11-8, while SEMO fell to 12-3.

Tom Caulfield, the third Saluki pitcher, encountered some trouble in the seventh inning, but Gary Beckhorn came in to pitch the last two innings.

"We had to use as many pitchers as we could because of the way our team worked," said Meyer. "That's where we need to use the pitchers."

But Bellissimo started, and his high school career was an up and down one, but he kept getting better after that. Dick Wysoski pitched two capable innings, Todd Caulfield continued to improve, and then Beckhorn held the Indians to a 1-for-6 inning in the victory.

The freshman righthander received Caufield with the bases loaded, two out and one already across in the seventh inning of a 7-4 game, and got the last out on a routine fly to right in the ninth.

In the eighth inning he threw low in the strike zone and struck out the side. He worked out the first batter in the ninth, and despite creating a little nervousness with two walks, drove home and got his first save of the season.

"We had a good win," said Jones. "Beckhorn had a great start."

"It's that latter virtue that might make a full-time buildup ace out of Beckhorn. Jones, who has found anything else yet, is thinking about doing just that. Beckhorn will probably start the last game of the three-game weekend series with Louisville, or he might come in to replace him in the Saluki dugout on Monday night."
