Director urges more student grants

By Brian Gross
and Tony Mancuso
Staff Writers

Low-income students need more grants and fewer loans in their financial aid packages, Pamela Britton, SIU-C Financial Aid director, said.

"I'd like to see (the shift from grants toward loans) turned around during the current reauthorization process," Britton said.

The reauthorization process reviews the Higher Education Act, which establishes financial aid policy, and proposes changes every four years, she said. Reauthorization must be completed when the act expires after fiscal year 1991.

Reauthorization actions have already begun at the federal and state level, and Britton said financial aid organizations are pushing to turn around the shift toward loans so that students do not have to borrow money.

"At this time, Congress is holding discussions and hearings and setting up task forces to prepare a new act," she said. "The Department of Education is also looking into it."

Britton said the executive and legislative branches of the government are looking into financial aid, which is an encouraging sign.

On a discouraging note, a recent report compiled by the American College Testing Program concluded that the shift toward loans in the 1980s is responsible for attendance drops of low-income students, according to an article in the March 7 issue of "The Chronicle of Higher Education."

Coal plan rejected by Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, brushing aside pleas for compassion, rejected a plan Thursday to pay hundreds of millions of dollars to help coal miners and others who lose their jobs due to tougher clean air legislation.

Senate leaders and the Bush administration strenuously opposed the plan, which was defeated 50-49 after an intense five-hour debate.

Proponents argued Congress could not ignore the thousands of Appalachian and Midwest coal miners certain to be hurt by proposed acid rain reduction rules. Foes warned it would unravel a delicate compromise between Capitol Hill and the White House and could provoke a veto from President Bush.

The Senate is expected to vote on the full bill Tuesday and send it to the House.

The relief plan, backed ardently by Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., would have provided about one year of extended, regular unemployment benefits for all workers thrown out of work by a clean air law, but mainly would have helped coal miners, who could get three years of special aid of up to $42,500 a year.

Guyon says tuition hike undetermined

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

SIU-C President John C. Guyon said no determination has been made on a tuition increase or on the fate of liberal arts according to the strategic planning document Wednesday night at the Graduate and Professional Student Council meeting.

Although the council's questions to Guyon concentrated on the strategic plan, GPSC President Charles Ramsey asked about the possibility of a tuition increase.

"No policy has been formulated, no decisions been made," Guyon said.

Regarding the strategic plan, Jeff Kramer, vice president for graduate affairs, asked whether a shift from liberal arts can be expected.

"It doesn't follow that any area would be decreased," Guyon said. "Resources are not diminishing. They are increasing but not at the rate we'd like them to."

"The issue is not reduction. The issue is we're not moving forward enough with the funding we have," he said.

In response to a question from GPSC member-at-large Deborah Fleener-Oscarson on how the decision of cutting programs is made, Guyon simply said any program changes will follow an "orderly and thoughtful" decision-making process.

The strategic plan, created by Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, plans to raise SIU-C to a Carnegie Research I status, which would involve constructing a science research facility and strengthening doctoral programs.

Doug Moslehi, from community development, asked Guyon why the University needs to reach Carnegie Research I status.

Guyon called the process a "natural evolution."

He said reaching the goal would enhance the overall reputation of the University and allow the school to become more involved and noticed on a state and national level.

Guyon also said attention must be focused to make the University an "information center" by determining "where to add and prune in the institution."

Darrell Johnson, executive council member, asked Guyon whether the University was being taken in too many directions at once, to which Guyon responded negatively.

Apartment residents waiting for deposit return

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Some Pyramid Apartments residents who lived at the South Rawling address during fall semester are still awaiting the return of their safety deposits four months after their leases ended.

In what SIU-C Assistant Students' Attorney Steven Rogers called a "mess," former residents of Pyramid Apartments, a large number of them international students, are waiting to see who will be held responsible for the payment of their last semester safety deposits—the new or former owners.

Roger said that he had been contacted by six students who still have not received their deposits.

Bonnie Owen, property manager for Sun King Incorporated, the new owners, said she does not know yet who will be responsible for the payment of the safety deposits.

The property changed hands at the end of January of this year, Owens said.

"We're trying to negotiate with the prior owner," Owen said.

"We're diligently working on it, and we hope to resolve it in 30 days."

Representatives for Equity Investors, the former owners, were unavailable for comment.

Yousef Hazimeh, a visiting assistant professor, paid a deposit for a student that had stayed at the apartments. He received a check from Equity Investors for $200 after he had filed a complaint with the Illinois Attorney General's Office and officials sent a letter to Equity Investors, he said.

Mike Bastien, administrative assistant at Attorney General Neil Haggan's Carbondale regional office, said Hazimeh is the only person he wrote a letter on behalf

Census form assistance offered

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Students having difficulties filling out their census forms shouldn't despair because they can find help on campus.

International Programs and Services and Disabled Student Services both have staff members qualified to answer questions and help students with their individual census reports.

Steve Thiesse, financial aid officer with IPS, said members of his office went to a workshop sponsored by the U.S. Census Bureau to become volunteers for the census.

Thiesse said he is concerned that foreign students won't fill out the ICR forms and added that the office is there to help them with any problems they may have.

"It's (filling out the ICR) not really that difficult for a student who's traveled half way around the world to come to school here," Thiesse said.

The office has a booklet that has the ICR questions in 30 languages so students can read the questions in their own language, he said.

"We're just concerned that they fill it out," Thiesse said. "I don't think they'll have any more trouble than American students."

Newsletters on the importance of filling out the ICR were sent to all foreign students and the International Dateline Newsletter, which goes to those students

Baseball in an uproar over roster reduction

United Press International

A surprise roster reduction ordered by the Player Relations Committee in the middle of spring training has managers, general managers and players in an uproar.

The PRC, which represents the owners, issued an order late Thursday directing clubs to open the season with 24-player rosters. This came after the PRC apparently was told by the Players' Association that their notes on outrighting extra players did not agree.

"I don't know what to do," manager Tom Kelly of the Minnesota Twins said Thursday. "We were gearing ourselves for 27 players, now we've got to re-gear ourselves."

"How are our pitchers supposed to be prepared to pitch seven innings in another week? I don't know. I'm confused."

"I'm not going to break anybody down because of this. I like to sleep at night. I'm not going to jeopardize anybody's career (by working him too hard). And it's worse in the National League — they've got no DH, so they have to pinch-hit for the pitcher."

"We were going to bring 12 or 13 pitchers north," said Cincinnati manager Lou Piniella, whose team was hosting Minnesota in an exhibition game. "We brought our pitchers along accordingly."

"Now we've got to accelerate our program. And in the National League, without the DH, we'll be using more of our bench. We'll be using more of our pitching. I think we'll have to go to a pitch count (limit) on our pitchers."

Reds' general manager Bob Quinn was unclear whether the PRC issued the order unilaterally or due to the Players' Association stance.

"What are they going to do in a day or two?" Quinn asked in irritation. "Tell us there's no Basic Agreement? Let's hope not. This is wacky. It doesn't make sense. I'll tell you one thing, clubs are scrambling right now."

Part of the agreement that ended the lockout earlier this month was to allow teams to carry 27 players through the first 21 days of the season. This would permit them to carry extra pitchers since many would not be able to pitch more than 3-5 innings their first times out.

The crux of the dispute, one baseball front office man told UPI, is the outrighting of the designated extra players to the minors at the end of the 21-day period of expanded rosters.

Teams were to designate their three extra players when they submitted their opening day rosters, according to PRC notes of its negotiating meetings with the Players' Association.

But when the three designated extra players were returned to the minors at the end of the 21-day

Veteran coach commends pitchers, hitters for winning streak

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

If a baseball team gets good pitching and timely hitting, it is going to be sitting pretty.

These are two reasons why the Salukis (16-2) are off to their best start since 1973.

The 1973 Salukis won 21 of their first 23 games, including a school-record 19 consecutive victories. They finished 37-6 overall.

This year's edition of the Salukis have won 14 consecutive games behind a strong pitching staff (2.89 ERA) and hot hitting (.349 batting average).

"Some years you have hot hitters but no pitching," Saluki coach Richard "Tichy" Jones said. "But this season everyone has contributed. We have really hit the ball exceptionally well and our pitchers are battling teams and throwing strikes."

The Salukis will put their winning streak on the line this weekend in a three-game series at Southwest Missouri.

The Salukis play the Bears in a doubleheader Saturday and a single game Sunday. Action each day begins at 1 p.m.

Senior center fielder Doug Shields leads the Saluki offense with a .391 batting average, 22 RBIs and 22 hits.

Senior right fielder Brad Hollenkamp also has been swinging in a hot stick. Hollenkamp has a .389 average with 11 RBIs.

The Salukis are coming off a 13-6 victory over Austin Peay Tuesday at Clarksville, Tenn. The Salukis had 20 hits, with each starter getting at least two hits.

SIU-C's hitting attack has been impressive. But consistent pitching may be the biggest reason for its fast start.

Al Levine, a junior walk-on from Harper Junior College, has emerged as the Salukis' top relief pitcher.

Levine has not allowed an earned run in 14 innings. He has two wins and four saves in six appearances out of the bullpen.

"Levine has been solid and provided us with something we have lacked in recent seasons," Jones said. "He is a competitor and doesn't seem fazed by any situation."

Jones has watched his team accomplish its hot start after playing 16 of its 18 games on the road. The Salukis' only games at home were March 23 when they swept a doubleheader from Eastern.

"Anytime you are playing this well you are proud of the players," Jones said. "But to do most of it on the road is even more amazing. We have had a different player come through every day. This is a real team effort."

SIU-C plays a doubleheader Tuesday against the University of Evansville in Evansville, Ind. and a single game Thursday against St. Louis University in St. Louis.

The Salukis open Missouri Valley Conference play against Bradley April 7 at Abe Martin Field.

SIU-C's Amy Rakers cuts down the net in celebration of the Salukis' Gateway Conference Tournament victory over Illinois State March 10 at the Arena. Rakers, who had a career-high 32 points in the game, was a candidate for the all-America team that was announced Thursday.

Stanford's Azzi heads '90 all-America squad

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)

— Jennifer Azzi, Stanford's do-it-all guard, Thursday was named to the women's Kodak all-America basketball team, which featured one player from each team in the Final Four.

Azzi, a 5-foot-9 senior guard from Oak Ridge, Tenn., was the only repeat selection on the 10-member team. She averages 15 points and six assists and is the heart of the 30-1 Cardinal.

Other members of the team from Final Four teams are Venus Lacy of undefeated Louisiana Tech, a 6-4 center from Chattanooga, Tenn.; Carolyn Jones of Auburn, a 5-8 guard from Laurel, Miss.; and Dawn Staley of Virginia, a 5-6 sophomore guard from Philadelphia.

Staley was the only sophomore chosen for the team by a coaches from each region of the country.

Other seniors on the team are Portia Hill of Stephen F. Austin, Texas, a 6-3 center from Palestine, Texas; Dale Hodges of St. Joseph's, a 6-1 center from Trenton, N.J.; and Franthea Price of Iowa, a 5-9 forward from River Rouge, Mich.

SIU-C junior forward Amy Rakers was an all-America nominee. Rakers was the Gateway Conference Player-of-the-Year and the Gateway Tournament MVP. She averaged 20.7 points and 10.5 rebounds for the 1989-90 season.

Top dollar

Final Four tickets very costly

DENVER (UPI) — Tickets to see the NCAA Final Four are selling for as much as $2,500 each, making them more expensive than any recent sports event, including the Super Bowl, World Series and NBA championship.

A survey of brokers dealing in the Final Four tickets showed the cheapest tickets are being sold for $550 each. The highest price, for tickets near the middle of the court and in the first few rows, is $2,500.

One Denver resident sold two tickets Thursday for seats in the "nosebleed" area of McNichols Arena — just four rows from the top in a far corner — for $625 each.

"We've stopped taking any more orders at all because we have so many to fill," said Kim Turley of Preferred Tickets and Tours of Indianapolis. "We haven't taken any orders for a few days because there is such a shortage."

By comparison, Turley said the ticket range for the 1990 Super Bowl was $500 to $1,500, for the 1989 NBA championship it was $250 to $1,000 and for the 1989 World Series it was $150 to $750.

The reason for the high cost is that McNichols Arena, where the Final Four will be played Saturday and Monday, has seating only for 16,667.

Oklahoma's decision to eliminate women's basketball being debated

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Women's basketball coaches attending the NCAA Final Four expressed disgust Thursday over Oklahoma's decision to discontinue women's basketball and they discussed legal action against the school.

The University of Oklahoma announced Wednesday it was ending its women's basketball program, saying the money could be better spent elsewhere.

"For Oklahoma to turn around and do this is not consistent with what is happening nationally," said Rene Portland, head coach at Penn State and president of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Portland, who is attending the WBCA's annual meeting in Knoxville, said women's college basketball has been growing rapidly over the past several years.

"Our coaches are going to work in strength to get this program reinstated," Portland said.

She said the WBCA has asked its lawyer to pursue the matter, but would not say whether the WBCA would file a lawsuit against the university or support a suit by players or deposed coaches at Oklahoma.

Assistant athletic director Don Jimerson said the department began a study of all the women's programs at Oklahoma in January and it was decided the money being spent on the women's basketball program could be put to better use elsewhere.

Officials said the overall women's athletic budget will remain the same, with the money previously spent on basketball being distributed among other women's sports programs.

Reasons for the decision were not disclosed, except for a reference to poor attendance at the women's games.

Stanford coach Tara VanDerveer, whose team is playing in the women's Final Four, said she was shocked by OU's decision and worried about what it might mean for women's sports.

"If they can do it, anyone can do it," VanDerveer said.

3 charged in nuclear bomb parts case; 1 other deported

LONDON (UPI) — Three people were charged Thursday with trying to smuggle to Iraq 40 components needed to trigger nuclear weapons, and two of them were indicted on similar charges in the United States. Baghdad denied seeking the restricted materials and accused Britain of mounting a slander campaign against Iraq. Britain ordered the deportation of one of the five people arrested — Iraqi Omar Latif, an employee of the state airlines. Three others were charged in Uxbridge Magistrates Court with trying to illegally export restricted equipment.

Lithuania president appeals for U.S. recognition

VILNIUS, Lithuania, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis implored the U.S. Congress Thursday to recognize the rebellious Soviet republic's independence as part of the liberation of Eastern Europe. Landsbergis has previously asked for Western recognition of independence, but his entreaty Thursday was the first direct request to Congress.

Study finds no global warming in past decade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite fears that the greenhouse effect is heating up Earth's atmosphere, temperature measurements taken by satellites show the planet has not warmed over the past decade, scientists reported Thursday. Researchers from NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center and University of Alabama in Huntsville said they found dramatic swings in monthly and yearly temperature patterns, but the average global temperature did not rise — or fall — in the 10-year period from 1979 through 1988.

Vietnam vets will be compensated for cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a step towards defusing the Agent Orange controversy, Veterans Affairs Secretary Edward Derwinski Thursday directed his agency to pay more than $20 million a year to Vietnam War veterans stricken by a rare cancer. Derwinski's action, made in consultation with President Bush, was spurred by a study from the federal Centers for Disease Control that showed risk of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma is 70 percent greater among Vietnam veterans than among veterans who served elsewhere.

Bush pledges 'to fight like hell' against AIDS

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — In his first major speech on AIDS, President Bush pledged Thursday to press a "wartime" effort against the deadly disease, urged compassion for the infected and deplored discrimination. "We're going to continue to fight like hell," Bush told the National Leadership Coalition on AIDS in an emotional address that mentioned the death of his daughter from leukemia, compared the epidemic to outbreaks of crippling polio during his childhood and said he had friends who had died of AIDS.

Risk from 3 biggest killers in U.S. declining

ATLANTA (UPI) — The risk of dying from heart disease, cancer or stroke — the three biggest U.S. killers — steadily declined in the 1980s as the average life expectancy crept up to 75 years, federal health officials said Thursday. A national Centers for Disease Control study of mortality said the three diseases plus accidental death accounted for three-quarters of all fatalities in America in 1987, the latest year for which figures are available.

Greyhound 'bomb' turns out to be portable lint remover

ROCKFORD (UPI) — A suspected bomb in a piece of luggage at a Greyhound Lines station turned out to be a portable lint remover, police said Thursday. The Winnebago County sheriff's bomb squad responded to a caller reporting a "ticking" sound inside a duffel bag at the bus depot, said Sgt. Gary Arbisi. Police said they responded quickly because of the scattered violence associated with the strike by Greyhound drivers and other workers.

Men walk nation to end child abuse

By Jerianne Kimmel
Staff Writer

Poet Robert Frost might say Dave Brown and Dave Kingery also have many promises to keep and miles to go before they sleep.

Brown, 30, and Kingery, 29, both from Greatham, Ore., stopped in Carbondale Wednesday. They are walking across America to call attention to child abuse, the number one killer in America of children under five years of age.

Their destination is the White House and President George Bush.

Brown and Kingery gave up their careers, lifestyle, family and friends on March 24, 1989, when they began their 4,000-mile trek to Washington from Newport, Ore.

Brown, formerly the editor and publisher of "Ski Oregon" and "Preschool Times," sold the rights to his magazines to finance the trip.

Kingery, formerly a water and ski instructor, sold his ski boat and travel trailer.

The travelers have met with governors on the trail to discuss solutions to child abuse. They visited Neil Bush, the president's son, and his family while passing through Denver and others who are involved with children, such as Ozzie Smith, St. Louis Cardinals shortstop, St. Louis, and Mrs. U.S.A., Sherri Tate, Utah.

Brown said he hopes meeting with national figures will help give them a stronger voice in bringing out the severity of child abuse and showing that national changes must be made.

"You want to scream, but you want to be heard.... The little guys can't speak for themselves," he said.

Education can break the cycle of child abuse, said Brown, also a former preschool and kindergarten teacher. Pre-birth parenting classes can help parents prepare for their new role since "(children) don't come equipped with instruction manuals," Brown said.

Kingery said he would like to see stiffer penalties for offenders who physically and sexually abuse children. The perpetrator from Oregon to Washington, D.C. to call attention to child abuse. Their next stop on their trip is Marion.

needs therapy behind bars, he said.

"Too often (the offense) is treated as a disease and not a crime," Kingery said.

The novelty of their crusade is that the two-man-team did not seek corporate sponsorship, Kingery said. They get some support from Childhelp USA, the largest non-profit organization combatting child abuse.

The California-based group helps round up motels that will donate a night's lodging to the pair. Any money raised on the trip will go toward the organization.

They do not always know where they will sleep and have had more than their share of freezing rain and gravel pits, Brown said.

The Carbondale Holiday Inn opened its doors to the walkers Wednesday.

A person does not have to be a parent or victim of child abuse to get involved in fighting it, Brown said.

"You just have to care about people... especially the little ones," Brown said.

There is a national child abuse hotline that provides parents, children and others with access to trained crisis counselors. The phone number is 1-800-4-A-CHILD.

The team has set up a fund at the Benjamin Franklin Federal Savings and Loan Association in Sandy, Ore. The savings and loan will verify that the funds will go toward working against child abuse.

Anyone who wants to donate to the fund can send it to "Walking America to Prevent Child Abuse" W.A.P.C.A., Box 940, Sandy, Ore. 97055.

Comedy Cellar performance a hit with crowd

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

Joe Marloti, voted as last year's most popular Comedy Cellar comedian, earned his title as he entertained the enthusiastic Wednesday night crowd with music, impressions and anecdotes.

Marloti began his routine by addressing SIU-C as the home of the most pissed-off basketball fans in the country which roused the already boisterous audience.

A Review

He quickly picked up the pace as he joked about several sports and one of his favorite games as a kid—run down.

"The object of run down is to place two bases about 30 yards apart," Marloti said. "Then get the smallest kid in the neighborhood."

"Lawn darts is another good game. Five pounds of steel with a spike on the end," Marloti said. "But now that they are banned, it's easier to buy a AK-47."

Marloti said he was enjoying his visit to Southern Illinois but had a bad experience at a restaurant that he referred to as the scarlet crustation.

"I ordered a plate of shrimp and they brought me sea monkeys," Marloti said. "The woman in their commercial must have been a midget because the shrimp she was eating were as big as her head."

"Nothing ever goes out of style at McDonalds. It comes back for a limited time only," Marloti said.

Band members get well-earned stipend

WOULD YOU consider enrolling in a course you hear is a real killer, but offers minimal credit? This particular class is worth only two credit hours toward your GPA, but it requires 15 hours of intensive work outside of class. You have to wear a tuxedo and march up and down a football field countless times in many precision drills, in all types of weather. You have to cultivate the ability to play a musical instrument and walk and breathe—all at the same time, which is a daring task. You also have to be willing to give up your spare time and weekends for clinics, camps and workshops in order to coordinate the music and the motion of more than 100 individuals.

Sound like a nightmare or someone's idea of a joke? Hardly. To the 110-130 people who sign up each fall semester for Music 011 as part of the Marching Salukis, the band is no laughing matter. The class is an intense commitment to practice the craft they love. They come from all walks of life and from all majors, but they all share the same acute drive and commitment. Their most well-known function is entertaining at half-time during football season, but that's not all they do. They also perform at parades, the Du Quoin State Fair, follow the football team to away games occasionally and periodically play for the Chicago Bears' games.

ALL THIS adds up to an intense schedule for these individuals who have to deal with school on top of these additional commitments. Try explaining to your chem professor that you're going to have to miss an exam because you'll be on the road with the Salukis and see how well it goes over.

However, things are set to improve for these dedicated individuals. While they'll still have to work the long hours and practices just as hard, the University has decided to give them a well-deserved break. Starting next fall, each member will get a certain amount reduced from the SIU-C tuition and fee statement, depending on how much time served in the group.

THE UNIVERSITY made a fiscal decision that we should all applaud. This move means that second-year members will be facing a bill $100 less than before, third-year members will have $125 reduced and fourth-year or longer veterans will have $150 taken off their bursar statement. In granting this stipend, the University not only recognizes the band member's hard work, but their contribution to the over-all image and spirit of SIU-C.

While the amount reduced from the tuition and fees bill is considerably less than they could make at a part-time job, it goes a long way toward compensating the band members. If this move strikes you as special treatment for one specific campus group, just bear this in mind: Would you do their job or keep their hours?

Opinions from elsewhere

New minimum wage insufficient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since the increase in the minimum wage promises them more than it will deliver, America's working poor may find it bitterly ironic that their pay raise goes into effect on April Fools' Day.

The hourly wage of 3.2 million workers will climb Sunday from $3.35 to $3.80, but the boost will reduce the food stamp allotment many of them depend on for survival.

The second half of the first increase in the minimum wage since 1981 — approved by Congress in November — will raise the floor to $4.25 an hour in April, 1991. Two-thirds of the nation's minimum-wage earners are women.

The Labor Department acknowledged last October that a single mother trying to maintain a family on the minimum wage usually cannot escape poverty.

Fortunately, both the Bush administration and leading Democrats favor enhancing the earned income tax credit, which subsidizes the working poor. Families with incomes of up to $6,500 a year now can qualify for the maximum benefit of about $910.

Even before the federal minimum-wage raise goes into effect, it will be out of date in some states. California, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Washington and Oregon already have state minimum wages of $4.25 an hour.

As for the workers in poorer states, they won't be able to buy their way out of poverty with the extra 45 cents an hour they start earning on April Fools' Day.

Rude drivers compound parking crisis

This letter concerns everyone who has had a parking space stolen out from under them.

To the impatient or someone late for class or work stealing a parking space from someone, who got there before them, it may not seem like a big deal.

It is theft, however, the same as depriving someone of money or property because when money or other property is taken, the person it is taken from is then deprived of the use of what belonged to them.

So it seems that the true colors of those depriving someone of a parking space, who got there first, by going around them to hog the space which someone else has been patiently waiting, are showing through.

On March 22, I was waiting on a parking space, in one of the municipal parking lots near campus, and two cars rudely and thoughtlessly all of a sudden whipped around me to race each other toward someone who was walking toward their car in order to leave the parking lot. I don't need to go into the possible accident this could have caused as it is clear that parking lots are not built with drag racing in mind. About halfway down the lot another parking space was becoming open and so the race was over.

This still left myself, who had already been there for several minutes, without a parking space. I promptly pulled up behind the "parking hog" that had stolen my parking space and when I got the attention of the driver I motioned—and not very happily—with my thumb that she should vacate my rightful space. I am grateful that the space was relinquished without further ado.

I admit that for a second I allowed my mouth to run ahead of my mind and uttered an expletive that rhymes with itch.

Two wrongs don't make a right even though I couldn't be heard as my windows were up. However, those who use the parking lots near campus should know that it is better for all concerned to get there early, get in line, and park as your turn comes.

You wouldn't think of jumping in line while cashing a check or at the supermarket so please don't do it in the parking lot either.—Steven R. Miller, paralegal studies.

Landlord refuses to return tenant's $200 deposit

I lived in Pyramids apartments (526 S. Rawlings) for the last four months of 1989. Like every tenant, I paid a $200 deposit when I moved there. Though it has been another four months since I moved to another place, I haven't been paid my deposit back.

No! I haven't been withheld payment because I did some damage to my apartment or something, but because "the previous owner of the apartments did not transfer funds to the actual owner for the tenants' deposits!"

Six students applied to Student Legal Assistance for the same problem (and probably more who haven't yet.) From December to March, I was told I would be sent the payment check in the "next week."

Although Student Legal Assistance seemed to be my last hope, I spent another two months waiting for them to get it. When I went to the attorney's office to ask what was going on (they did not call me), the attorney told me that he could not solve the problem and I needed to go to the Attorney General.

I also was told by Bonnie Owen (actual manager of Pyramids now) that not only those who moved out in December but also current residents who moved in before December probably will not be paid their deposits back since the previous owner did not allow enough money for that!

I still have not received my money. Because of some stupid reasons, I probably will not be paid back in the near future. But I have some questions.

Is it just a coincidence that 90 percent of the tenants in the Pyramids who have not been paid their deposits back and probably will not be paid are international students? These international students live in Carbondale usually for only a short time and transfer to another university after they learn English here. Those who stay here probably do not have the patience to run after their money for months.

Is the money from international students free for some wise guys here?—Cengiz Alacaci, graduate, curriculum and instruction.

Lithuania future: Distancing Russia, United States

By John Hughes
The Christian Science Monitor

Beyond the moving cries from Lithuania for American support, a much larger drama is being played out.

It is a drama in which the United States is delicately balancing its public support for democracy against its relationship with the Soviet Union.

It is a drama in which the Soviet Union is delicately balancing its professed desire for democratization against its inherent desire to retain territory.

For the Lithuanians, their immediate freedom and future is at stake. For Moscow and Washington, the shape and future of their relationship is at stake—and that has a significant bearing upon the progress of democracy in countries other than Lithuania.

The Bush administration's policy has been to be publicly cautious about developments in Lithuania. Administration spokesmen have stressed their desire not to inflame a tense situation. Mr. Bush should be saying that if Mr. Gorbachev brings Lithuania to heel by force, that will be the end of this year's planned Bush-Gorbachev summit.

Mr. Bush's public caution is getting him some criticism at home. Congress is in a much feistier mood about Lithuania than the White House. One columnist says Bush feels stronger about broccoli than he does about Lithuania. Others say Bush can demand democracy in Nicaragua and Panama but is much more muted about democracy in Lithuania.

The difference, of course, is that behind Lithuania stands Mikhail Gorbachev, a man whose promises the Bush administration has decided to trust.

Caring for the children of University teachers and students

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

Usie pets a classroom rabbit, while Jonny makes a clay pot for his mother at a local day care center. In another spot, a group of children sit around a table, reading their favorite stories.

Teachers at local day care centers encourage children to play because in playing, the teachers believe the children learn.

With elementary schools expecting more from their students at earlier stages, many early care and day care centers are focusing on teaching youngsters complex ideas that they learn through play.

Debbie Moberly, program director at the University Child Development Laboratories in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction, said they are teaching children more complex ideas through simple techniques.

When the lab received a new rabbit, for example, the children first decided a name for it.

"We had all the children submit potential names," Moberly said. "The names were put on a board and voted upon."

Moberly said the ideas of a democracy and counting were explained through this simple task.

The lab was accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs in 1988 and is licensed by the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Rainbow's End, at the old Lakeland School on Giant City Road, is partially funded from a $1

Student Center Activity Fee, which is paid by full-time students.

Cheryl Walton, program director for Rainbow's End, said the program includes a good mix of both scheduled activities and free time. Walton said during such times children play a big part in planning activities.

"For example, our intergenerational program, where we take children over to the senior citizens centers, incorporates learning about the body and growing old with other things we do at the center," Walton said.

Walton suggested parents start thinking about day care before they need it.

"We usually have to turn a lot of people away," Walton said. "You feel guilty, but there are only so many we can take."

"As soon as (students) know where they are going to attend school, they should start to look into day care services," Walton said. "(Students) usually have to

Childhood play teaches children adult lessons, psychologists say

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

Little Ivan Boesky may not have shared his blocks. Little Donald Trump probably was a whiz at Monopoly, for lessons learned through childhood play tend to carry over into adulthood.

Psychologists believe that the fine points of socialization are intertwined in the everyday lives of children. Whether learning the rules through experimentation with classmates, family situations or participating in games that help build social values, children become familiarized with social rules and norms. These values not only become part of the child's personality, they become internalized through positive reinforcement.

Four child care centers affiliated with SIU-C include the Child Development Laboratories of the Department of Curriculum, a day and evening care program for children of SIU-C students, faculty and staff and community residents; Child Study Co-op of the Psychology Department, a research facility; Head Start, a federally funded program geared for low-income families, and Rainbow's End, limited to children of SIU-C students, faculty and staff.

In the Child Study Co-op of the Psychology Department, which holds two daily sessions for 3- and 4-year-olds, researchers study the process of children's socialization.

Janet Rafferty, emerita of psychology, said children learn the easiest through playing games and doing group activities.

"Games teach children rules and the consequences of their behavior when they break those rules," Rafferty said. "Also, they learn how to interact with children of different nationalities and race."

Shirley Dunagen, program director for the co-op, said parents are a big part of its nursery program. Dunagen said parents are required to help with classes about every ten days.

"Children learn to deal with different adults," Dunagen said.

Ballet dances to perfection in performance at Shryock

By Stephanie Steirer
Staff Writer

A Review

The Ohio Ballet danced the night away Wednesday at Shryock Auditorium.

The company performed four dance pieces with perfection to an audience comprised of young and old. Each piece was unique in both style and form.

"Schubert Waltzes," the first piece, was choreographed by artistic director Heinz Poll. Three couples danced to the lively music of "Waltzes, Op. 9," by Franz Schubert, played by pianist David Fisher.

The costumes, created by A. Christina Giannini, decorated each couple in red, brown and green, giving each couple its own distinct personality.

The dancers moved freely and gave a light-hearted and pure performance, which was enhanced by the dancers' every move and facial expression.

Moira Dorsey, the female dancer of the red couple, gave a winning performance with her graceful and comical gestures. Dorsey trained at the Center for the Dance Arts in Syracuse, N. Y. and at the Darvash Ballet Studio in New York City.

"Summer Night," considered Poll's signature piece, was poetry in motion.

Two couples, dressed in pale blue, moved with beauty and grace in a dance of love on a summer night.

The couples danced solos and duets to the music of Fredric Chopin's "Concerto No. 1 in E Minor (Op. 11), Romanze." Their delicate style symbolized love with a Romeo and Juliet theme. Graceful leaps and lifts looked effortless in this enchanting tale of young love.

Choreographer Laura Dean created "Quantum," a futuristic piece accompanied by the music of Mark Isham.

Twelve dancers, in bright yellow costumes, moved in succession to the electronic score of "Sympathy and Acknowledgement."

Characterized by modern dance movements, this piece drifts away from the traditional ballet style of dance. The group moved in synchronization and the repetitive movements created a grand visual display.

activities are scheduling both group and individual activities with children in mind. All four of the care programs also expressed an interest in letting the children have a voice in daily activities.

At Rainbow's End, 925 S. Giant City Road, an intergenerational program, developed between elderly nursing home residents and children at the care center, has expanded because of reactions from seniors and children.

Cheryl Walton, program director for Rainbow's End, said activities enjoyed most by the children are crafts, quilting and board games. Walton said sharing these activities between children and seniors is quite rewarding.

"Many children don't get to see their grandparents for various reasons, Walton said. "By far, the most popular (activity) is baking cookies or any other cooking activity. Something they can eat right there usually goes over well."

Walton said with the intergenerational program, learning about growing old and life cycles go hand in hand. Walton said the program is beneficial for both seniors and children.

"It helps the seniors stay young, and the children get more than just an educational experience," Walton said.

Debbie Tertinger, assistant director and educational coordinator for Head Start, 925 S. Giant City Road, said for most children day care is the first opportunity for them to be away from home.

"We teach children to have a positive attitude towards education," Tertinger said. "Through these experiences, the child will be prepared for the transition to a kindergarten situation."

Debbie Moberly, program director for the Child Development Lab, said their program is the only to offer an evening based care program.

register for school the semester before they start. That is the best time to put their name on a list to reserve a space."

Shirley Dunagan, program director for the Child Study Co-op of the Psychology Department said she has seen an increase in the number of children with working and student parents.

"If you get on a list early, you can always decline later," Dunagan said. "But if you wait too long, you may be out of luck."

The co-op is open to child between the ages of three- and four-years-old. The program runs two sessions from 9 to 11:15 a.m. for three-year-olds and 1 to 3:15 p.m. for four-year-olds.

Dunagan cautioned that the program is not a day care but a nursery school, where parents are required to interact with the class about once every ten days.

The co-op is primarily a research facility where researchers study child behavior.

Debbie Tertinger, assistant director and educational coordinator for Head Start, said the program provides a friendly, nurturing and supportive atmosphere.

"Children intuited learning through hands-on experience," Tertinger said. "Our goal is to make learning fun. We want to teach children to have positive attitude towards education."

Home ec pioneer to be honored

By Fernando Fellu-Moggi

A memorial service for the late Anna Carol Fults-Khattab will be held Saturday, March 31, at 1:30 in the family living laboratory in Quigley Hall.

Fults-Khattab, former chairwoman of the Department of Home economics Education, died Feb. 22 at Carbondale Memorial Services. She was 76.

Fults-Khattab retired from SIU-C in 1983, after over 31 years on the faculty.

She helped to establish and fund the construction of the School of Home Economics in Quigley Hall in 1959, also helping to establish the doctoral program in home economics at the University in 1963.

Fults-Khattab received the Great Teacher Award in 1972, and a scholarship for graduate students was created in her name when she retired in 1983.

Police Blotter

J.D. Carter was charged and arrested in connection with an aggravated battery Wednesday, Carbondale Police said.

Mary Brown, 507 S. Logan St. reported that she had been accosted by Carter at about 9:10 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Brown said she was accosted by Carter after an argument the two had. Carter threw Brown to the floor, breaking her arm, police said.

Artificial intelligence seminar slated for Touch of Nature

By Eric Reyes
Staff Writer

Scholars from 16 Midwest colleges and universities will meet for the second Midwest Artificial Intelligence and Cognitive Science Society Conference this Friday through Sunday at SIU-C's Touch of Nature Environmental Center.

Conference-goers will describe current research efforts in artificial intelligence, the development of human-like reasoning in computers.

"Researchers in artificial intelligence and cognitive science can get together and establish contacts. It also gives people an opportunity to talk about their research," John Dinsmore, assistant professor of computer science and co-chairman of the event, said.

Dinsmore said fields as diverse as engineering, linguistics, psychology and philosophy will be represented.

It also gives graduate students an opportunity to present their work, Dinsmore said. About 25 papers will be presented, he said.

Dinsmore said they are highlighting a symposium presented by Dedre Gentner, University of Illinois psychology professor, and three graduate students.

Gentner said her symposium explores how similarity involves the same structural alignment as analogy and asks the question "How do children perform that without being taught?"

Her symposium involves psychological evidence for children and adults and computer simulation.

Gentner, who has been researching the analogy topic for 11 years said she is looking forward to the conference.

"It will be very exciting. I will be very pleased. The Midwest is a real center for cognitive science," Gentner said.

entranced a packed Senate gallery with his passionate remarks on the floor, referring to Roman history at one point, then speaking poignantly about the hard life of coal miners, whose cause Byrd has championed throughout his long Senate career.

"The coal miner, when he sits down at night, his body knows the pain of the day's work," Byrd said. "He knows the sweat, the toil, the back-breaking pain that went into the earning of that dollar."

"We are not asking for welfare," he said. "We are asking for justice."

Byrd also criticized the administration for rejecting help for American workers while at the same time seeking $500 million for Panama to rebuild its economy following U.S. military intervention.

It was estimated Byrd's plan would cost $500 million to $600 million.

Senate leaders countered that Byrd's amendment would unfairly give coal miners higher benefits than workers who lose jobs in other industries likely to be hit hard by tighter emission controls.

Marketing survey to examine acts students want to see at Arena

By Rob Coné
Staff Writer

To increase student attendance at SIU Arena special performances, a survey of 400 SIU-C graduates and undergraduates is being conducted to determine what types of performances the student body would like to see.

The survey is being conducted by the College of Business and Administration's American Marketing Association in cooperation with the Arena promotions department.

According to Allison Arden, AMA vice president, the Arena requested the student survey because pre-concert surveys conducted by Arena staff indicate that non-athletic performances are primarily attended by the local community.

Figures released by the Arena indicate that on average, only 20 percent of concert audiences are students.

Surveyors are expected to visit the students who were randomly chosen for the survey through next week. Arden said the survey will be done with the instructor's permission in the classroom with permission from the instructors.

She said the random sample was computer generated and added that the students who were selected for the survey are a representative cross-section of all disciplines and class standings found at the University.

Arden said the groups and individual performers listed on the AMA survey were chosen from a listing of performers who plan to be touring next year.

Among the "list of possible performers" are Milli Vanilli, Paula Abdul and The Cult.

She said that although the survey may limit a student's choices of musicians, comedians and other performers, it will reflect student preferences for the performers who will tour and help the Arena book future performance schedules.

To help advertise future performances, Arden said the survey will also ask what radio and television stations and newspapers students prefer.

University Museum exhibit today to honor former SIU-C professor Buckminster Fuller

The SIU-C University Museum will present an exhibit from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. tonight in honor of the late R. Buckminster Fuller.

Fuller, who died in 1982, was a distinguished professor at SIU-C from 1959 to 1971.

He came to SIU-C after being recruited as a research professor by former University president Delyte Morris.

Fuller's ideas were considered ahead of his time and earned him world-wide recognition.

One of his most famous designs is the geodesic dome, a strong, flexible half-sphere made by connecting triangles that can be seen several places around campus.

His designs also included a house that hung from a mast, a three-wheeled car that had a smaller turning radius than its length and a watertight bathroom.

In 1964, Fuller was featured in Time's first issue of the year, in which he was the first Southern Illinois resident to receive such an honor.

Throughout the '60s and '70s, Fuller traveled worldwide to spread his optimistic views about world improvement through solar energy and conservation.

Among 25 of his books, "Operation Manual for Spaceship Earth," was on the best seller's list and led to the film "Buckminster Fuller on Spaceship Earth."

A temporary model of the Fuller's famous dome is being built outside the museum from 2 to 4 p.m. today.

Learn to Build a Dome Presented by the Student Center Craft Shop

A one-day workshop that will give participants hands-on experience building a 23 ft. low budget shelter.

The geodesic dome was originally made famous by R. Buckminster Fuller, a now deceased honorary faculty member of SIUC School of Design. The dome structure we will be building was developed by a Fordham Urban Solar EcoSystems team. This frame can then be developed into a solar greenhouse large enough to supply a family with food for a year.

of, and the only person he knew to have received a check.

A $200 deposit was paid for apartment for Aug. 15 to Dec. 15, former renters said.

There are about 65 to 70 tenants living at the Pyramid Apartments now that were affected by the sale, Owen said.

She said she did not know how many students who had left the apartments after last semester were still awaiting their deposit money.

Some tenants may not be entitled to their full deposits, she said.

"My interest is in helping the kids get their money back. I want to see them get a fair break," Owen said. "I empathize with them. I would be upset if it happened to me."

According to a summary of Illinois revised statutes Chapter 80, paragraph 101.1, upon the sale of a residential real property, the "transferee" (person or group that buys the property), assumes the responsibility to the lessee (renter), for the security deposit or prepaid rent, Rogers said.

Sun King bought the property through a complicated transaction from Equity Investors, but "it is not absolutely clear whether the new owner (Sun King) is the transferee as defined by the statute," Rogers said.

Syed Asim Husain, a graduate student in civil engineering from India who lived in the apartments from Aug. 15 to Dec. 15, 1989, said, "I called their (Equity Investors) headquarters long distance. I told them I would go to small claims court. They said they would send my deposit money to me by March 20."

As of March 25, Husain had not received the check, he said.

Cengiz Alacaci, graduate student in math education from Turkey, lived at Pyramid from Aug. 15 to Dec. 15. He too has not received his deposit money, he said.

After the lease was up on Dec. 15, Alacaci went in to claim his safety deposit and was told to return in two weeks, he said.

In two weeks he returned and was told to return two weeks later. This lasted for two months and then Alacaci went to student legal assistance, he said.

Alacaci said he thought Equity Investors hoped that he and other international students would not have the time, money or proper resources to chase Equity Investors down to get their deposits back.

After waiting two months to hear from student legal assistance, Alacaci went in and spoke to Rogers. Rogers told Alacaci to go to the states attorney's office, Alacaci said.

"We're diligently working to resolve this matter," Rogers said. "It's a mess but we're doing what we can."

"We have received complaints (from people who have not received their deposits)," Bastien said.

"They are deposit cases. The managers (at Pyramid apartments) are referring people to us. I am working on the cases," Bastien said.

The attorney general's office can not represent anyone in a private dispute, but they can mediate a case, Bastien added.

Nathan Goldberg, former lawyer for Sun King, said Sun King took the property over but did not assume the debts. "Why would they," he said.

"The old owners took what they could get and left. A lot of people are after them," Goldberg said.

Claus Brockschneider, a graduate student in English from West Germany, still has not received his deposit check, he said.

He is concerned that the situation may not be resolved before he leaves for home after this semester, Brockschneider said.

The number of college students from the lowest tenth of American incomes decreased from 10.7 percent in 1977 to 8.2 percent in 1987, the report said.

Between 1980 and 1986, the number of low-income students receiving grants decreased 15 percent while the number receiving loans increased 7 percent.

Bob Clement, director of the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, said the trend in financial aid packages for the past 10 to 15 years has definitely been toward increasing the percent of loans.

"I've read some studies that show low-income families are shying away from loans more than middle-income families do," Clement said.

"We certainly have the same concern at SIU," Britton said. "Students who need to borrow money may think they need to work awhile before starting college or go to a lower institution, such as a community college."

Of the people borrowing money at SIU, the average accumulated amount for a student with a Stafford Loan is $5,454 after four years, she said.

Clement said he is not sure the shift to loans is only hurting low-income students, because many students borrow a great deal of money.

Say you have an $8,000 debt when you leave SIU," he said, "and say you meet a young lady who you marry, and she also has an $8,000 debt. Immediately you guys are $16,000 in debt. You may be saddled with significant loan payments and you may be frustrated in getting credit to buy material purchases."

Women's track to meet WIU

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

The spring has brought many showers this year unfortunately for the women's track and field team. The first two scheduled meets have been cancelled due to rain.

The Salukis will compete Saturday at the Lee Calhoun Memorial Relays at Western Illinois.

The Dawgs will be matched up against Gateway Conference opponents Northern Iowa, Bradley and host Western Illinois. The field of eight is rounded off with Northeast Missouri State, Augustana, Knox College and Monmouth College.

"We're going to figure out what running and competing are all

"As we get into the season, that (Saluki 4x100 team) should be one of the better 4x100 meter relay teams in the country."

—Don DeNoon

about," Coach Don DeNoon said. "The majority of our athletes haven't competed since the indoor conference championships a month ago."

This weekend's meet will be a non-scored competition that will feature a variety of relay events. DeNoon expects his 4 x 100 meter relay team, consisting of Nacolia Moore, Crystalla Constantinou, Angie Nunn and Theresa Lyles, to be dominant.

"As we get into the season, that should be one of the better 4 x 100 meter relay teams in the country," DeNoon said. "The team will win the 4 x 100 and 4 x 200 meter relays."

Angie Nunn, Amy Bollinger, Michelle Sciano and Danielle Sciano make up the 4 x 400 meter relay team which will try to eclipse the indoor team season-best 1600 meter relay time of 3 minutes 49.9 seconds.

The Gateway Indoor conference championships had Western Illinois finishing third, Northern Iowa in fourth and Bradley coming in tenth.

Men's track to split into two squads

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

The men's track and field team will be separating this weekend in hopes of receiving national acclaim. Coach Bill Cornell will take nine of his top athletes to the Florida Relays. The prestigious event is one part of a circuit that also includes the Texas, Kansas, Drake and Penn State relays.

The other 24 members of the squad will go with assistant coach Dave Martin to Murray State to compete in a triangular meet with Memphis State with assistant coach Dave Martin. The split Salukis will have entries in all the scheduled events except the 4x400 relay.

SIU-C will be represented in five individual events and three relays in Florida. Traveling to the deep South with Cornell will be the Salukis' standout Eric Pegues who will compete in the 400-meter dash, and will anchor the 4 x 400 meter relay team.

"The team is right where it needs to be," Cornell said. "The cancellation of last weekend's meet may have been a blessing in disguise."

The track team was snowed out of a scheduled meet March 24 against Ball State, Illinois State and Southeast Missouri State.

Ed Williams and Donnell Williams will be entered in the 110-meter and 400-meter hurdles. Gerralt Owen will represent SIU-C in the Relay's Invitational 1500 meter run, while Jocelyn Langevin competes in the decathlon.

Coach Cornell said his team runs against top notch competition every time he takes the team South.

In addition to Pegues, John Stinson, Donnell Williams and Bernard Henry will make up the 4x400 meter relay team, while Williams also will be in the 4 x 100 and 4 x 200 meter relay events along with Ed Williams, Guy Sikora and Garrett Hines.

Softball team faces big task

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

A clash of titans will occur this weekend in Columbia, Mo. as national softball powerhouses Indiana, Louisiana Tech and Missouri battle SIU-C at the Mizzou Invitational.

SIU-C, 12-4 on the year, will begin the round robin tournament at 8:30 a.m. against Big Ten force Indiana. The Hoosiers sport a 22-7 record and are ranked 11th in the latest national poll.

The Salukis lost to the Hoosiers last year 1-0 and hold a 2-4 career record against Indiana.

"Indiana is a very powerful team," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "We're going to have our hands full, 8:30 in the morning is a little early, but we'll be ready for them."

Immediately following the early morning Indiana game, the Salukis will face Louisiana Tech. The Lady Techsters are 19-5 on the spring season and are ranked third in their region.

SIU-C is 0-2 against Louisiana Tech, but they haven't played them since 1987.

"Louisiana Tech has always been one of the highly ranked schools," Brechtelsbauer said. "They have a great softball tradi-

Freshman pitcher to return to action

Freshman softball pitcher Angie Mick, who has been on the shelf for the first 15 games of the 1990 spring season with an injured right leg, could see action this weekend at the Mizzou Invitational.

SIU-C pitching coach Gary Buckles hopes her injured leg has healed enough to get a few innings of work in Columbia, Mo.

Mick holds 30 pitching records at Centralia, including complete games (64), wins (44), ERA (0.94) and strikeouts (541).

Mick had a definite impact at SIU-C in the fall exhibition season when she recorded two shutouts in two starts.

Her teammates are eagerly awaiting her to get in the lineup.

"Our other pitchers are doing an outstanding job this year for us," junior third baseman Mary Jo Firmbach said. "They have really carried us through a lot of the season so far, but Angie Mick is someone that we really need when we get into the conference."

tion. They're just an outstanding ballclub...a real classy outfit."

The Dawgs play Mizzou at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. The 15th-ranked Lady Tigers beat the Salukis twice last year, 2-0 and 1-0, and have a 5-0 career record against the Dawgs.

Mizzou is led by pitching sensation Karen Snelgrove, who has a 7-0 record.

"This tournament is very tough and Missouri is also a very good team," Brechtelsbauer said. "We're going to have to execute every pitch of every game if we're going to win, but I think we're capable of doing that."

Sunday, the four teams will begin bracket-tournament play at 9 a.m. Pairings for bracket play will be determined on results of the round robin tournament.

Junior third baseman Mary Jo Firmbach leads the Salukis both offensively and defensively. Her .408 batting average is tops on the team and in 16 games she is yet to commit an error. Firmbach also leads the team in hits (20), runs (13), RBIs (14), triples (3) and assists (40).

period, some older players would have to be sent outright rather than optioned. Players' Association head Don Fehr said his notes of the negotiations differed from the PRC's.

Under the expired basic agreement instituted in 1985, players outrighted a second time by one team could refuse the assignment and become free agents. The PRC said its notes showed agreement those extra players outrighted would not have that counted toward their two outrightings because of the special situation.

Fehr contended, according to the insider, the outrighting would count as one of the two. In addition, the two sides had another difference of opinion.

The PRC said outrightings would count from Jan. 1 -- the date the new agreement was made effective retroactively. Fehr said all outrightings made under the old agreement, back to 1985, would count as well.

"I'll tell you one thing," the front office source said, "my club will not be bringing up any players this year who have been outrighted if they count it back to 1985. We'll bring up kids, guys we can option."

"There's going to be a lot of guys in the minors who are going to lose a chance to come to the big leagues because they have been outrighted once."

"It's an awful strain on your pitching staff," Piniella said. "It's a no-win, no-win situation. If you look out for your starters, you abuse your bullpen. And vice versa."

"If it's money that's involved, if you get people hurt because of this then that's going to cost a lot more than just dollars. Where do you replace players in today's market?"

Both Kelly and Piniella agreed they might lean toward bringing at least 11 pitchers north and only 12 or 13 position players. They might even consider 25, if some clubs break rank.

"We may bring one extra outfielder, one extra infielder and one extra catcher," Piniella said.
