Committee struggles with budget plan

By Donita Polly
DE Politics Editor

Although the Chancellor's Budget Advisory Committee understands that the University needs to save money, committee members say Academic Affairs is carrying too much of SIUC's money burdens.

Because of tuition waiver penalties, enrollment shortfalls that led to a base reduction in the University's budget and a monetary reserve set aside for University emergencies, SIUC's budget shortfall is estimated to be about $8.6 million for fiscal year 1997.

Michael Youngblood, chairman of the Chancellor's Budget Advisory Committee and Senate Budget Committee, said the administration is asking too much money to be saved from Academic Affairs, which is responsible for faculty and academic programs, in comparison to what is being asked of other departments.

Youngblood said the chancellor's committee wrote a recommendation Monday to SIUC Chancellor John C. Guyon and other administrators requesting that the University take larger cuts out of other departments to lessen Academic Affairs' burden.

Youngblood said each department must pay a certain amount of money into the monetary reserve, requirement for emergencies. He said Academic Affairs was asked to find $1.8 million in its budget. That amount is too high when compared to Student Affairs, which was asked to find $97,000, and Institutional Advancement, which was asked to find $96,000, Youngblood said.

When the budget problems were first becoming obvious to the University, SIU President Ted Sanders created a set of budget guidelines for the University. In response to Sanders' guidelines, the administration came up with plans to help alleviate the budget problems.

One part of the plan resulted in the creation of the Chancellor's Budget Advisory Committee designed to make recommendations to the administration. Another part of the plan requests that each department and unit within the University come up with their share of money to help SIUC out of its money problems.

Bill Karrow, Graduate and Professional Student Council president, said he also thinks that Academic Affairs is being hit too hard by the budget proposal. He said he is afraid that the cuts in Academic Affairs will adversely affect SIUC students and faculty. He said the cuts essentially mean that the number of faculty at SIUC will be cut and that professors will teach larger classes.

Youngblood said this is the first recommendation the committee has sent to the administration. He said it is possible that recommendations may change weekly. Because these are only recommendations, Youngblood said he is not sure what the administration's response will be.

Guyon said he has received the committee's proposal but is not willing to comment on it yet.

USG planning referendum on fee increases

By Signe K. Skinion
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Students might have a chance to voice opinions to the SIU Board of Trustees on University-wide fee increases if a proposed referendum is passed, Undergraduate Student Government members say.

Eric Bottom, USG Finance Committee chairman and College of Business senator, said USG will vote April 10 on a proposed referendum that asks students if they support the fee increases. He said the referendum will explain the board's approved and proposed student fee increases for budget years 1997 and 1998 and ask students if they think the fee increases are necessary.

The budget for 1997 already has board approval and will raise student fees by $756 to a total of $972.30. The proposed budget for 1998 would raise student fees another $43.50 to a total payment of $1,015.80.

"According to the budget plan, the administration is wanting to increase student fees by 4.47 percent over the next two years," he said.

Bottom said the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommends a limit on all university fee increases of 3 percent. He said the referendum is a way for USG to see how the students feel about the University exceeding the 3 percent.

He said the referendum, pending senate approval, would be presented to the students on the USG election ballots April 17.

Scott Pfeiffer, USG chief of staff, said the Greek groups, Watson meet to resolve conflict

By Lisa M. Pangburn
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A meeting between representatives of sororities and fraternities, members of the SIUC football team and the team's head coach was not productive, a fraternity member says.

The meeting Wednesday night resulted from an alleged altercation between SIUC football players and fraternity members at a fraternity social event Saturday at Lincoln Middle School.

Alfie Patterson, president of Alpha Phi Alpha, said the altercation took place at the dance when some football players requested to be let into the event for free.

However, Patterson said nothing was accomplished Thursday. But he said a possible resolution was discussed during the meeting.

"Basically what happened was a lot of accusations," he said. "Our questions were not answered, but we are working on a resolution."

Patterson said the resolution may include an apology to Lincoln Middle School by the athletes involved and representatives of fraternities and sororities. The resolution also may require that athletes do community service.

"We really wanted to find out what the problem was that led up to the incident that occurred," he said. "If a resolution is not made, we are going to take it to higher ground. We might have to take this to the judicial board or someone higher in the athletic department."

Patterson said Watson had an open-door policy for members of the fraternities and sororities who wished to discuss the problem. "Coach Watson did open his doors to alleviate the problem," he said. "He wanted to resolve this, but we are still working on a proposal."

Watson said he was glad to see the incident being resolved in a mature manner.

"I think it is good to see young people coming together to resolve this problem," he said.

Patterson said another meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday with Watson, the players involved and fraternity and sorority representatives.

EUROPEAN LEADERS REVIEW UNIFYING GOALS — TURIN, Italy—Against a backdrop of public confusion and doubt, leaders from 15 of Europe's richest nations are gathering here to launch a long-awaited review of the 1991 treaty that commits them to the lofty goals of economic and political unity. Officially known as the Intergovernmental Conference, or IGC, the review amounts to a de facto constitutional convention on the ties that bind the European Union's member states. It is expected to last at least a year. Among the issues to be debated are major internal reforms to speed decision-making, deepening cooperation in areas such as law enforcement and judicial affairs, and developing a common foreign and security policy to give Europe a single, powerful voice in global affairs. For dreamers of a truly united Europe, the IGC has long been viewed as the chance to take a quantum leap forward, not just to strengthen the provisions of the Maastricht Treaty but to move boldly toward deeper unity.

UKRAINIANS FACE CHALLENGE WITH CITIZENSHIP — NARVA, Estonia—Leonid Boitsov's parents crossed the Narva River, from Russia and settled here in Estonia. Boitsov is one of more than 300,000 ethnic Russians and Ukrainians left stranded and stateless in Estonia when the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991. Another 730,000 or so are in Latvia. They face, at a minimum, a tough language exam encompassing questions on the national constitution and history. As Russian citizens in Estonia, they will be able to live and work but will be barred from an array of privileges reserved for Estonian citizens, such as voting for president and Parliament, working in a government job and owning land.

CHINESE ACKNOWLEDGING MENTAL ILLNESSES — BEIJING—In the past, the Communist Party's journal called "Seeking Truth," was best known for the traumatizing propaganda campaigns that it launched, helping ruin lives and driving many of China's best thinkers into silence or exile. But the magazine of party theory has found a new role. "Seeking Truth" now is offering psychological counseling, a change no less radical than, say, The Wall Street Journal devoting every page to sports. But it is a sign of the times that hints at China's change of course in its approach to mental health, an issue barely acknowledged in the past.

CLINTON ANNOUNCE IMPROVEMENTS TO FAA — WASHINGTON—The Clinton administration Thursday announced new personnel and procurement systems for the Federal Aviation Administration that could become the model for government-wide changes envisioned in Vice President Gore's National Performance Review. If the new systems work, employees and managers could be paid more for working in certain high-cost locations, receive a share of the money they save on procurement projects, and be promoted, hired and fired more easily than now. The time to buy and install new systems could be cut at least in half, and the FAA would be freed of the cumbersome bidding and appeals process that sometimes stretches for years. The FAA would be freed from the jurisdiction of agencies such as the Office of Personnel Management and the Merit Systems Protection Board, with all those functions being handled within the agency. Many of the changes will be implemented Monday, and others phased in over the next few years.

U.S. SENATE URGED TO BAN CHEMICAL WEAPONS — WASHINGTON—The nation's top military and diplomatic officials urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Thursday to move quickly to ratify an international agreement banning the production and use of chemical weapons. The agreement, known as the Chemical Weapons Convention, has languished in the Senate for more than three years. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said ratification will give the United States an important new tool to use, in conjunction with other signatories, to limit the proliferation of nerve gas and other chemical weapons. Christopher said 160 countries have signed the agreement and 49 have ratified it. The agreement, which provides for rigorous international inspections of chemical factories, takes effect six months after 65 nations have ratified.

Students practice for exams on Internet

By Aaron Butler
DE Online Editor

A new World Wide Web project, developed at Morris Library and now available to all SIUC instructors, will give students the extra practice necessary to improve their grades, two professors in the College of Business say.

Gordon Bruner, associate professor of marketing, said students enrolled in management 305 can practice for their exams on a Web page offering tests that serve up a different set of questions each time a student logs on.

"I can tell my students that if they think they're ready for an exam, take the practice test," he said. "The material covered is similar enough to an exam that, if they do well, they can feel pretty confident that they know the material."

John Grant, assistant marketing professor, said he announced Wednesday at noon that his marketing 304 practice test was online. By 3:30 p.m., he already had received 12 e-mail messages from students concerning the site.

"I try to make additional help available to students in a way that is convenient for them," he said. "It used to be students had to wait outside my door to talk with me outside of class, but with e-mail, we don't have to be in the same place at the same time to communicate."

Susan Logue, Instructional Support Services assistant librarian, said her department developed the practice test for Smith and Bruner, and she would like to see other instructors take advantage of the office's services.

"The role of Instructional Support Services is to provide technical support to classrooms," she said. "We're working really hard to provide expertise in new technology."

Grant and Bruner said in addition to providing study information on the World Wide Web, they integrate video and graphics into their lectures with help from Instructional Support services.

"They have really done a great thing coming through with this," Bruner said. "They come up with ideas they want to try, and we've been happy to let them use us to test their new techniques."

Grant said in 1995, he received a summer fellowship grant to study information-delivery systems. Since then, he said,

Saluki patrol officers keep bicycling safe

By Melissa Jakubowski
DE Assistant Features Editor

While most students witness law enforcement officers protecting and serving from inside their cars, the Saluki Patrol does it from the back of a Trek mountain bike.

The Saluki Patrol, a uniformed student security force that assists the SIU Security Office, has exclusive rights to an on-campus bike patrol, members say.

L. Bill Dozier, a member of the Saluki Patrol since 1994, said the main duties of the Saluki Patrol officers are to assist in enforcing bicycle rules on campus, limited parking enforcement and building security.

Even though they have three bikes, all 35 members are required to take regular turns on the bike patrol, he said.

Dozier said the bike patrol was added to the Saluki Patrol in 1993.

Mark Black, a senior in agribusiness economics from Vienna, said a few students snicker when they see the officers on bikes, but most students are respectful.

"When the movie 'Men at Work' came out, the bike patrol just started," he said. "Everyone would kind of point and laugh. But now, most people are friendly and respect the fact that we are cops on bikes."

Black said although he felt a little awkward on the first day, the bike patrol is the most desired beat at the Saluki Patrol.

"Everyone fights to go out on the bikes," he said. "It's definitely better exercise than just walking around campus."

Black said the bike patrol enables officers to be more visible on campus, especially in warmer weather.

"When the weather gets warm, you have more people trying to ride through the breezeways," he said. "We don't go flying after those people, but we try to make sure they don't do it again."

Dozier said the year-round bike patrol is an important asset to the force. He said the bikes improve response time to radio calls.

"There are a lot of advantages to the bike patrol," he said. "We definitely can get to calls quicker than if we were on foot. We can go from the east side all the way to the west side on campus in a matter of minutes."

Christian Yunser, a junior in administration of justice from Nokomis, said the bikes allow officers to double-check areas more often than if they were on foot.

"You can see a lot more on the bikes," he said. "Instead of looking at an area once or twice on foot, you can check it out six times in one shift."

The Saluki Patrol is a security force, so the officers rarely deal with serious police matters or see the chance for high-speed chases. However, Yunser said they do need to be prepared to take off for a call.

"It's a good thing we have officers on bikes," he said. "We can easily be the first ones at a scene because we know the geography on campus and all the nooks and corners."

Dozier said officers on the bike patrol ride around campus in pairs. He said they do not have a scheduled route but usually patrol the west end of campus during the day and migrate toward housing areas at night.

War gaming convention today

By Jason E. Coyne
DE Arts/Entertainment Editor

Battling on the fields of Gettysburg is not something people just study about any more.

At the Egyptian Campaign gaming convention taking place Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Student Center Ballrooms, people will join in simulated battles of the Civil War as well as other historical wars, Carol Capan, a planning committee member, said.

The games are set up on tables where terrain and soldiers are replicated by model train materials and 15-millimeter miniature figures, the graduate student in higher education from Erie, Pa., said.

"I have found the historically based games like these are a good way to learn history," she said. "I used to be really bad in history in college. I found that I have learned more about history playing these games than I did in school."

This year's convention could be the largest in the state, she said.

"We had about 500 people last year," she said. "We have already had a 100-percent increase in pre-registration this year, so we are conservatively expecting about 600 people."

In the past, people have traveled from Colorado just to attend the campaign, she said.

"This year, people are coming from Pennsylvania, Ohio and maybe even Canada," she said.

There will be more than 250 games present at the convention with everything from board games such as Axis and Allies to card games including Magic: The Gathering. Contests such as miniature-figure painting and role-playing game competitions will feature a variety of prizes for winners. Prizes will range from $10 to $300, Capan said.

"We will give away gift certificates, copies of games or expansion sets," she said. "The most expensive prize goes to the winner of Highlander card game, who will receive a replica of the Highlander sword."

Capan said she went to last year's convention because of a recently acquired taste for games.

"I just got into board games a little over a year ago, so I went to the convention," she said. "I had so much fun last year, I decided to be on the planning committee for this year."

The Egyptian Campaign begins at noon on March 29 in the Student Center Ballrooms. The cost is $12 at the door or $10 for pre-registered gamers. Single-day and visitor passes will be available. Doors open at 8 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Student accused of burglarizing store

By Kendra Helmer
Daily Egyptian Reporter

An SIUC student has been charged with burglary after he was found inside K's Merchandise, 1175 E. Main St., after hours Wednesday, Carbondale police say.

Nemi C. Lowe, 18, a freshman in plant and soil science from Park Forest, was arrested at 12:08 a.m., Lt. Bob Goro said.

"Lowe's movement inside the store triggered the alarm," Goro said. "The police went in and searched the building and found Lowe in the storage room."

Lowe, who is not an employee of K's, told officers he had fallen asleep in the storage room, Goro said.

"I think he hid inside the building and came out after it closed to steal merchandise," Goro said.

No merchandise was found in Lowe's possession. Goro said someone had broken a window on an outside door of the building the night before but did not gain entry.

As of press time, Lowe was incarcerated at the Jackson County Jail, where he awaited a hearing to determine bail amount.

Incinerator burning up both sides' trust

It appears the last round in the fight over the Crab Orchard incinerator has begun. Concerned students and citizens have begun protests, attempting to build enough support to stop the test burn scheduled to begin in early May.

With little more than a month before the test burn, it appears that the protesters chances of stopping the test are small. Short of going to court and proving their argument, we believe the test will proceed.

But the protesters have voiced legitimate concerns about the safety of Southern Illinois when the incinerator begins operating. Unfortunately, neither side of the argument has shown any trust, and this distrust has impeded cooperation.

We would propose a possible compromise that has precedent. The two sides should agree to a neutral third party to act as the site tester and analyzer of incinerator emissions.

The U.S. Army's Chemical Destruction Program proposes to use incinerators to destroy lethal chemical stockpiles. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention is providing a third-party analysis of the emissions and their potential effects upon public health.

A similar third-party observer could be established for the Crab Orchard incinerator. A third party able to perform its own testing and analysis whenever it desires would certainly do a great deal to establish a degree of trust.

This would appear to be a project that begs for SIUC to consider its involvement as the third party. The benefits for long-range study of dioxins, hazardous waste disposal and a learning environment for students would bring benefits.

Both sides of the argument have volunteered statistics and studies to support their side. But now is the time for cooperation to ensure the work performed at the burn site is done correctly and that the safety of Southern Illinois is the primary consideration.

Pets require more than money for care

Wednesday morning, police reported that they found a man strangling his dog at 2:30 a.m. Police said the man admitted to wanting to kill the dog.

Why a person would abuse any animal, much less a pet, is often incomprehensible. Animal abuse defies a sense of humanity. Unfortunately, with the upcoming cat and dog spring birthing seasons and the heat of summer, we can expect more cases of animal abuse.

We urge anyone considering the purchase or adoption of a pet to consider the choice thoroughly. Don't get caught up in the emotion of the purchase without considering the time, patience and money required to properly care for your pet.

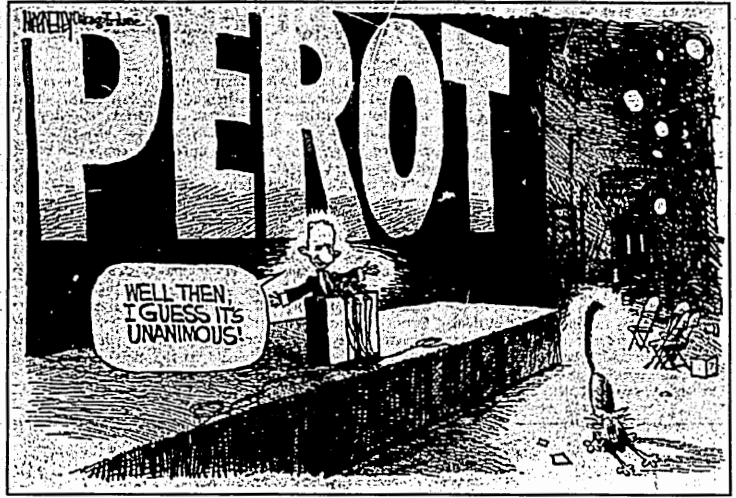

Consider the emotional understanding required for your pet. Puppies will yelp at night, and kittens will climb anything, including legs. Animals can lose their charm very quickly as they grow and, as with a child, require a large amount of patience.

A pet can bring comfort and companionship but it also brings responsibility for a life similar to a baby. The pet requires attention and money that many, particularly college students, may not be able to provide. Do your potential pet a favor and take time to consider your ability to care for them.

If you are considering a pet, contact the Southern Illinois Humane Society at (618) 457-2362.

To report animal abuse within the Carbondale city limits, call the Animal Control Unit at 457-3200, ext. 424.

To report animal abuse in Jackson County call (618)687-7235.

Commentary

Technology bad for humankind

Since the turn of the century, the world has seen great technological advances. From cars to space shuttles, telephones to satellites, televisions with huge wooden tubes to super computers with intricate wire patterns and fiber optic filaments, we seem to be "progressing" too fast. The human race, in its infinite pursuit of the unknown, has failed to acknowledge the known, let alone do something about it.

The same governments that place billion-dollar satellites into space "to secure your pursuit of happiness" ignore the visible problems that play an integral part in our daily lives such as racism, famine, pestilence, war etc. What happens when the technology backfires like the AIDS and Ebola epidemics in Africa, the Chernobyl horror in the Ukraine or the Exxon Valdez and North Sea oil spills and other assorted cases of technological backfires that have or haven't been reported. Nothing becomes of it because the general populace of the world claims to be "ignorant" of what's going on. But they're not ignorant of what's going on. No one wants to open their eyes and see.

Why is there a growing number of obese people in the world (among those who are eating)? Studies claim that the "good" health rate is increasing, but you can look around and see that it is getting worse. The next time you walk through a neighborhood, observe how community activity (any activity) has decreased considerably. Elevators, escalators, the Internet, home shopping networks, gospel networks, super computers that process information about everybody in the world, bar codes and automated everything can be blamed for the downside. And while we run and scream and yell "progression" and "succession," we're really yelling "regression" and "recession."

Even on this college campus, we as students are unwillingly thrown into the battle against humanity when we fill out credit card application for cheap slinkies and cherry-flavored Pez candies, our Social Security numbers are processed into Joe Computer and exist by floating around from terminal to terminal, giving Mr. Progn Hack insight into our lives and an open invitation to credit card fraud.

So look around the next time you walk to class or down your road and observe your surroundings so you can formulate your own hypothesis about technology.

House needs to repeal AIDS rider

The Los Angeles Times

The U.S. Senate has demonstrated wisdom by voting to repeal a rider to the defense appropriations bill that would require the armed forces to discharge service personnel infected with the AIDS virus. The question now is whether the House can put aside false morality and go along.

Earlier this year, President Clinton had to agree to the HIV rider because his only alternative would have been to veto the entire appropriations bill, passed in February. So unless the HIV rule is expunged in the next week or so, the military must start expelling more than 1,000 members within six months, regardless of their ability to perform their duty. Many of these servicemen and servicewomen are military experts whose loss would be a shameful waste, particularly in a time of fiscal austerity. Moreover, the rider is so mean-spirited that it requires termination of disability pay, benefits for dependents and commissary privileges after two years.

There is no groundswell among the brass and their congressional champions for this injustice. It has been opposed by Gen. John M. Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., both highly influential in military matters. The main backer of the rider is Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., badly miscast as chairman of the House subcommittee on military personnel. He is hardly the sort of politician one would turn to for leadership or insight on the matter of HIV infection.

In this cause, Clinton has shown more gumption than he did when he caved in to political pressures and abandoned his promise to halt the discharge of gay service members in favor of the so-called "don't ask, don't tell" policy. The predictable failure of that policy is apparent in a recent finding that local commanders are flouting the law and being as aggressive as ever in asking about the sexual proclivities of their troops and hounding gays out of the service. In fact, discharges for homosexuality are up, not down, since the policy went into effect. Clinton and Pentagon leaders should swiftly investigate and punish these insubordinate commanders.

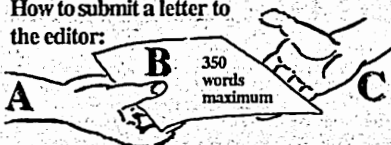

For now, the more immediate issue is repealing the senseless HIV provision. The House conferees can drop it in conference with the Senate, or perhaps there will be a separate vote on the Senate repeal. Either way, it is to be hoped that more compassionate and intelligent heads than Dornan's prevail.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board. Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 350 words. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Jazz festival to swing Shryock

By Erik Dush
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The cool sounds of bluesy saxophones, soulful bass and wispy snares will percolate through the halls of Shryock Auditorium Saturday as local schools and professional jazz bands bring their talents to SIUC.

The 12th annual SIUC Jazz Festival will feature special guest Art Davis, a jazz clinic, bands from seven local junior and high schools and a night concert that promises to entertain the crowd, Robert Allison, coordinator of the festival, said.

"We use the festival mainly as a recruitment tool," he said. "The students will play and then be judged for various awards."

Bands from schools in Carbondale, Marion, Benton, Mt. Zion, Anna and Sparta will compete for first through third place awards, depending on the size of the school. The schools are broken down into class-A for the larger schools and class-B for the smaller schools, Allison said. Awards also will be given to the best individual performers in all groups.

The school bands will perform in Shryock from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.,

"This year should be good. People have given a pretty positive response since I started the festival 12 years ago."

Robert Allison
SIUC Jazz Festival coordinator

and admission for these acts will be free, Allison said.

After the school bands are done playing, the program will continue as the festival's featured artist will school people on the fine art of jazz before taking the stage himself. Art Davis, a Chicago trumpeter, is this year's special guest artist. Davis, a musicology graduate of the University of Illinois, will conduct a jazz clinic in Shryock from 3:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. and then perform with the SIUC Jazz Band 1 at 4:15 p.m. Admission to these events also is free.

Davis said he has played with musicians such as Dizzy Gillespie, Natalie Cole and Doc Severinsson. He also has toured with Ray Charles and Frank Sinatra. Currently, Davis said he is leading his own quartet through popular Chicago nightclubs.

Capping off the day's events will be a concert featuring Davis, the SIUC Jazz Bands and members of the local New Arts Jazz Quartet. The evening of music will begin at 8 p.m. at Shryock Auditorium.

Allison, director of Jazz Band 1 and an associate professor of music, said in the 12 years of coordinating the festival, people have responded well to the events and music.

"Due to lack of funds, we were not able to hold the festival for a few years," he said. "This year should be good. People have given a pretty positive response since I started the festival 12 years ago."

Art Davis and the SIUC Jazz Bands will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium. Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for the general public and are available at the Shryock Box Office or by phone at 453-ARTS.

Man charged with sexual assault

By Kendra Helmer
Daily Egyptian Reporter

An alleged sexual assault Sunday night led to the arrest of an SIUC student, Carbondale police say.

David Waddleton, 21, a freshman in physiology from Pittsburgh, was charged with the criminal sexual assault of a 20-year-old woman, police said.

"He forced himself on the woman against her will," Lt. Bob Goro said.

Police said the alleged incident occurred at 12:30 a.m. outside a residence in the 200 block of East Freeman Street.

The woman contacted the police, but Goro would not say if she knew Waddleton.

Waddleton was released from the Jackson County Jail on Wednesday after posting $1,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is set for April 9.

Don Priddy, community resource officer, said since January, there have been eight reported sexual assaults.

SIU Police have received two reports of sexual assault since January.

Referendum

referendum is a way students can voice their feelings on the increases.

"It's only appropriate for USG to have an open forum to see and hear the students' concerns on this matter," he said. "Also, it will give students a chance to see the fee increases firsthand because numbers on paper can be very confusing."

Larry Juhlin, associate vice chancellor of Student Affairs, said the referendum ignores important issues that the fee increases recognize.

"I don't think it's something that is appropriate for a referendum," Juhlin said. "By just showing students the numbers, without giving any information on why these increases are important is like asking me if I support a 2-percent tax

"It's only appropriate for USG to have an open forum to see and hear the students' concerns on this matter."

*Scott Pfeiffer
USG chief of staff*

Jean Paratore, associate vice chancellor of Student Affairs, said the increase is only a proposal to the board and will not be voted on as a true increase until next year.

Bottom said USG originally asked for the increase for the 1998 budget year, but the Graduate and Professional Student Council opposed it.

He said this opposition contributed to the increase being postponed until the 1999 budget year because the USG and GPSC both must support any student activity fee increases presented to the board.

Paratore said the increase is also postponed because GPSC asked for a year to examine all options to the fee increases. She said the administration wants to honor that request.

USG's next scheduled meeting is April 10 at 7 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center. The SIU Board of Trustees meeting is scheduled for April 11 at 10:30 a.m.

increase for no reason. Of course I'm going to say no."

Also, a USG proposal to increase student activity fees by $2.25 in a two-year increment is on the SIU Board of Trustees agenda for its April 11 meeting.

"You can sometimes find people hiding out and drinking near housing at night," he said.

Dozier said members of the Saluki Patrol had to go through a two-day training course to stay conditioned on the bikes until two years ago.

"We had to ride bikes up and down stairs and perform other maneuvers in eight minutes," he said. But we don't do that anymore because it was too much wear and tear on the bikes."

Dozier said the Saluki Patrol has to go through a practical training course to learn about the laws of bicycling and basic bike mechanics. He said each officer on bike patrol is required to have protective eyewear, a helmet and travel bike pumps.

Black said nobody on the Saluki Patrol has suffered a serious injury, but a few officers have had minor accidents.

"We had one officer wipe out by Grinnell because he forgot about a bump by the curb," he said. "But we haven't had any serious injuries. We're getting better seats, so we won't have injuries there anymore."

Yunser said major repairs are paid for by the SIU Police, so most minor repairs are performed by the officers themselves.

"Our bikes have about two years left," he said. "They still are in pretty good shape, but there's usually one that's not working."

U.S. executive gets 21 months for illegal lobby

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—A New York business executive who accepted $900,000 in 1992 for trying to persuade Bush administration officials to lift economic sanctions against Libya was sentenced Thursday to 21 months in prison.

Arthur W. Bodine, 52, admitted last August that he, former Kentucky Republican Party official Charles G. Wade and others met with Libyan officials in Europe, Libya and the United States and agreed to accept money in exchange for their efforts, even after a lawyer told them that their actions would be illegal.

■ A 20-year-old student reported that sometime between Dec. 19 and March 26, someone allegedly stole a credit card she had applied for and never received, using the card to make purchases. The estimated value of the loss is more than $300. The incident is under investigation.

■ Steven P. Hughes, 18, of Carbondale, was arrested March 27 for criminal trespass to state-supported property after he allegedly entered a residence hall he was prohibited from entering. He posted $100 bond and was released.

Civil-liberties advocates slam 'one-strike-you're-out' policy

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Federal aid to local housing authorities will be weighted in favor of projects that promptly evict tenants who are accused of a single crime, even if they are not convicted, President Clinton announced Thursday.

The announcement drew protests from civil-liberties advocates, who dismissed

Clinton's "one-strike-and-you're-out" policy as an election-year publicity stunt that could lead to unfair evictions of poor people.

Clinton anticipated the criticism in his remarks unveiling his initiative to link aid from the Housing and Urban Development Department to the willingness of local housing authorities to show the door to suspected troublemakers.

he has been developing ways to deliver information to students outside and inside the classroom. Grant said of the alternatives he has developed, he has found the World Wide Web to be the most useful outside of class.

Brian Burke, a senior in management and marketing from Ursa, said the practice test is just one of many Internet and multimedia teaching techniques used in management 305. He said these new methods of studying help him focus on the class material.

"Rather than spending all of your time writing notes on the lecture, you are listening and thinking," he said "Instead of asking questions during office hours, I can review at home on weekends. (The practice test) really lets you know if you understand the material."

Bruner said research shows students learn faster using multimedia teaching and study aids — a trend he has seen in his own classes. Choosing to find new ways to present material to his classes is part of an ongoing effort he has made for several years to integrate technology into his classroom, he said.

"This (technology) is interesting to me personally, and I hope that enthusiasm and motivation rubs off on the students," he said. "It gives them multiple ways to learn, and they can pick the ones that work for them."

House passes line-item veto legislation

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—In a landmark vote that could transform the balance of power in Washington, the House extended final congressional approval Thursday to legislation giving the president new power to veto individual federal spending items without killing an entire bill.

The line-item veto, already passed by the Senate and virtually certain to be signed by President Clinton, was approved by a vote of 232-177 amid a flurry of floor action designed to resolve unsettled budget and legislative issues before a two-week congressional recess scheduled to begin Saturday.

The House also approved legislation to avert a potential government default for more than a year, and adopt two other items from the GOP's "Contract With America": a measure to ease the regulatory burden on small businesses and another to liberalize Social Security benefits to elderly people with outside earnings. After the debt-limit package was approved by the House 328-91, the Senate adopted it by voice vote, sending the measure to the White House for Clinton's expected signature.

Congressional action on the debt-limit package and the line-item veto was touted by GOP leaders as a refutation of criticism from Democrats and other analysts that this is shaping up as a "do-nothing Congress" with few legislative accomplishments.

"This bill proves the pundits wrong," said House Minority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas. "The 'Contract with America' is alive and well."

But Democrats tried to rain on the GOP parade by disrupting debate with delaying tactics and an effort—ultimately unsuccessful—to force a vote on increasing the minimum wage.

"For all its fancy sloganeering, the 'Contract with America' represented the greatest redistribution of income from the middle class to the wealthy since the days of the robber barons," said House Minority Leader Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo.

Even as Republicans were reaching to claim credit for their legislative accomplishments and to put an end to months of dithering over the debt limit, they were still struggling to reach agreement among themselves and with the White House on a separate measure to fund much of the government for the rest of the fiscal year.

In an unusual parliamentary maneuver, the line-item veto measure was approved when the House voted 232-177 to adopt a resolution setting the terms of floor debate for the debt-limit bill.

grounds that interfere with their rugby skills.

"The true downfall for men when they play rugby is that they think rugby is like football," he said.

"Most women have never played football so they can learn the sport without any pre-conceived ideas."

Krista Krauklis, a freshman in math education from Bartlett, said she had no experience in rugby when she signed up for the team.

She said she joined after one of the charter members approached her and told her about the club.

"I had never even seen the game before in my life," she said.

"The only even close experience I had was that I played powder puff football in high school."

Krauklis said the inexperience of all the players actually made learning the game easier.

"Because it's so new to everyone, we are learning together," she said. "One person isn't coaching us, we are all helping each other out to learn the basics."

Krauklis said the men's rugby team has helped them to prepare for the season.

She said after a couple weeks of conditioning in the Recreation Center, they began to watch video tapes to learn basic plays.

"It was so odd when you finally apply what you learn," she said.

"You want to laugh when you tackle someone for the first time, but then you really get into the game."

Krauklis said she thinks the social aspect of the sport is the reason for its popularity.

She said after each game there is a "third half," where both teams get together and meet.

"The game is a lot of fun," she said. "One minute you totally tackling each other, and an hour later you're drinking beers and partying together."

"It's real social."

There are a handful of stereotypes regarding women athletes, including women rugby players, Roscetti said.

"People think rugby players are like huge amazon women, but it's untrue," she said.

"We have girls on our team that weigh only 90-lbs. All you have to do is come see us for yourself."

The Women's Rugby club will play against Ball State on Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Sports Club Playfield.

Saluki coach Dan Callahan said the club wanted to win, but felt the weekend series at UNI was of greater importance.

"I look for our players to bounce back well this weekend, and have a solid weekend against the Panthers," he said.

"We had some solid performances on the mound, but we weren't going to let anyone go very long."

SIUC's series in Cedar Falls, Iowa begins today at 2 p.m. with a double-header Saturday at noon. The final game is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 1.

Jim Boehem looking for NCAA title, some respect

The Washington Post

DENVER—The man who can't coach has led his team to another Final Four. The man who is called a whiner has a chance to whine some more, while most of his peers are sitting at home. The man who has been described as droll and dull and unhappy has had the hints of a smile curling his lips lately.

If the Syracuse Orangemen win two games in East Rutherford, N.J., this weekend and become college basketball's national champions, perhaps the 1996 NCAA men's tournament will be remembered as Coach Jim Boehem's Revenge.

"I'm a whiner—that's my image," Boehem said before the postseason began. "I'm—away from basketball—a very easygoing guy and have lots of fun. It's just an image, I guess. I'm stuck with it."

As much as Boehem himself, Syracuse's players have taken up the cause of proving that Boehem's 482 career victories and .753 winning percentage (fourth best among active coaches) are not misprints.

"Coach, he wins 20 games every year," junior guard Jason Cipolla said. "He took a team ranked 42nd (in the preseason). We weren't even supposed to do anything; we weren't supposed to win 20 games. But he took a great bunch of kids and worked us hard every day, and look at where we are now."

This will be Boehem's second Final Four appearance in his 20 seasons at Syracuse. The other trip came in 1987, when the Orangemen lost to Indiana in the championship game on a last-second shot by Keith Smart.

No matter what happens this weekend in New Jersey, this may go down as Boehem's best coaching job. The Orangemen lost three starters from last year's team—Lawrence Moten (the school's all-time leading scorer), Lucious Jackson and Michael Lloyd—and yet they have gone 28-8 and are the only team still playing from the Big East Conference, even though they finished with the Big East's fourth-best conference record.

Any team that goes to the Final Four has its share of defining moments. For the Orangemen, it came before the season. Last off-season, they nearly lost two other players in addition to the three seniors. In the spring, forward John Wallace declared himself eligible for the NBA draft, then changed his mind and returned to Syracuse for his senior season. During the summer, senior point guard Lazarus "Z" Sims contemplated leaving school after his father died.

USC course leads athletes to easy 'A's'

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—A USC academic adviser responsible for student-athletes allegedly stacked an education class with football and baseball players who were neither required to attend nor complete any course work by the professor to get a passing grade, a Los Angeles Times investigation has found.

Records show that of the 40 students enrolled in the class, 31 were athletes, including 14 members of the 1996 Rose Bowl team and eight members of the USC baseball team that finished second in the College World Series last year.

Among the prominent players in the class were football stars Keyshawn Johnson, Delon Washington and Kyle Wachholtz and basketball player Stais Boseman, all of whom received a grade of A.

A random check of 25 students by The Times showed that 24 received an A and one a B-minus. USC confirmed that nearly every student in the class received an A.

The class, held last spring and designed to teach tutoring methods, was investigated by a university committee last summer. Although the investigation found problems, it was dropped because the committee believed the instructor, Professor Vernon Broussard, had retired and the class was no longer being taught, said Richard Ide, USC vice provost of undergraduate studies.

Broussard, however, is still teaching the class, which will not be taught after this semester, though it is unclear when that decision was made. The adviser, Janice Henry, who counsels football and baseball players, was also found in last summer's investigation to have committed no wrongdoing, Ide said.

"There's not really any direct effect on us for next year."

Kluemper did say, however, that the rumor of tuition waiver cuts for SIUC could be used by other in-state rival programs against Southern and said any cuts that may come in the future would not affect athletes on the team now.

"Any cuts that we get the year after next, aren't going to affect the kids that are on the team now," Kluemper said.

"But it will mean that our recruiting for the next year will be cut down pretty drastically."

"I don't want to sign anybody this year and turn around and cut their aid next year. I don't think anybody would," he said.

Kluemper stated that tuition waiver cuts to his program would also affect out-of-state and foreign recruiting, in essence, shrinking Southern's exposure to those demographic groups.

"We're trying to recruit a pretty high level of swimmers," Kluemper said. "We're trying to compete not with just in-state teams, but with Nebraska, Kansas, Kentucky, and Michigan. In order to do that, you've got to fill out your roster with some in-state kids and some kids from other states."

"We've got a good international program. I think it's good for our teams to reflect that feeling."

"I would always like to have three or four foreign swimmers on the team. I think they add a lot of character. They're usually good hard working students, but if the cuts come, we'll definitely have to cut out foreign recruiting completely."

Saluki Athletics

Coaches to feel pressure from cutbacks

By Jared Driskill
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC men's track and field coach Bill Cornell said the proposed tuition waiver cuts to Intercollegiate Athletics would tighten the grip on funds for his program.

"We're pretty well strapped," Cornell said. "We're trying to go along just as normal. We're still recruiting just as hard as we ever have."

SIUC is going to cut tuition waivers for the 1997 budget year beginning July 1, 1996. These cuts will be University-wide, but will remove almost $170,000 from Intercollegiate Athletic funding. Cornell added he hopes his program can make ends meet with fundraising efforts.

"Budget wise, we may have to have meets closer to home," Cornell said. "We always like to compete against the quality athletes. The tougher the people we compete against, the more it brings out of us."

Southern's men's track and field team currently has four athletes from outside North America, and according to Cornell, the efforts to recruit abroad may be halted as a result of tuition waiver cuts.

"Obviously, we'd have to stick to the American athlete," Cornell said. "When a foreign athlete costs you triple tuition, we're going to have to stick to the American athletes."

"It's not an easy situation. We just have to work at it that much harder."

*Bill Cornell
men's track/field coach*

"We'd love to get the Illinois athletes, but there are quite a few schools in Illinois who are competing for those," he said.

Cornell explained that at the Illinois state track meets, coaches from all over the country show up, and this adds to the competitiveness of recruiting.

"It's not an easy situation," Cornell said. "We just have to work at it that much harder."

Cornell went on to say that the proposed budget cuts have not yet had an adverse affect on his program.

"I hope it doesn't because (assistant men's track and field) coach (Mike) Giesler has worked very diligently at recruiting this year," Cornell said. "Recruiting has gone relatively well this year."

SIUC women's swim coach Mark Kluemper, like Cornell, said the budget cuts have not had an immediate effect on his program.

"We got the news a couple of weeks back that everything is the same for next year," Kluemper said. "There's not really any direct effect on us for next year."

Kluemper did say, however, that the rumor of tuition waiver cuts for SIUC could be used by other in-state 'rival' programs against Southern and said any cuts that may come in the future would not affect athletes on the team now.

"Any cuts that we get the year after next, aren't going to affect the kids that are on the team now," Kluemper said. "But it will mean that our recruiting for the next year will be cut down pretty drastically."

Women's Rugby

Women giving rugby old college try

Tired of sitting on the sidelines, watching the men's Rugby team have all the fun, some SIUC women decided to tackle the problem and organize their own team.

SIUC's Women's Rugby team recently became a registered student organization last fall. The team, now 25 members strong, plays against Ball State Saturday.

Corn Caccio, a senior in history from Rockford and coach of the men and women's rugby teams, said the major reason the team got started last semester was due to the large amounts of inquiries he received regarding a women's team.

"A lot of the women who came to watch the men's team wanted to know how they could participate," he said. "Even when we went to other schools, women were always asking how to get involved in the team."

After playing on the SIUC Women's Soccer Club, and practicing with the men's rugby team for two summers, Liza Roscetti, a senior in biological sciences from Springfield, said she decided she enjoyed playing rugby more.

Roscetti, president of the women's club, said the lack of women's full contact sports is the reason behind women's rugby becoming the fastest growing sport in the nation.

"Once people started hearing about the team, the more people wanted the join," she said. "It's really a non-traditional sport for women because of all the contact. There is no real physical contact in popular women's sports like volleyball and soccer. That's why rugby is so popular."

Rugby is a combination between soccer and football. Caccio said the biggest difference between rugby and the other two sports is that rugby has continuous play.

"If a tackle occurs in football, time will be called and the play will be interrupted," he said. "In Rugby, if a guy gets tackled there will be a big pile-up as everyone fights for the ball."

Rugby is traditionally split into two 40 minute halves, with 15 players representing each team. Each team is broken into two different groups. The eight "packs," try to steal the ball from the other team, while the seven "backs," wait to receive the ball.

Usually a "scrum half," is the main player who tries to get the ball from the opposing team's packs to the home team's backs.

Scoring in rugby is referred to as "a try," and is worth five points. Although a team can kick at any time, after scoring, it can also make a two point conversion kick.

Roscetti said no substitutions are made during the game unless a player suffers a serious injury.

"There is a general rule in rugby to guide substitutions by," she said. "A player can not substitute unless the injury is deemed severe. You can't substitute if a player is only fatigued."

In its first game so far this season on March 23, the SIUC Women's Rugby team lost 24-12 against Illinois State University. However, Roscetti said the team played exceptionally well for a new team.

"Not one person on the team has played rugby before," she said. "For being such a young inexperienced team, we have really come a far way."

Caccio said he thinks women are more suited than men to play rugby because he said men have pre-conditioned sports back-

Indians rally late, defeat Dawgs, 5-3

The Salukis' four-game winning streak was brought to a halt Wednesday in Jonesboro, Ark. as Arkansas State University (17-6) rallied late in the game to defeat the 10-11 Dawgs, 5-3.

Freshman pitcher Jason Frisor got the start for Southern, and pitched three shutout innings before giving way to a six other SIUC pitchers in order to save the team's pitching arms for this weekend's four-game Missouri Valley Conference series at Northern Iowa.

Unlike during its four-game winning streak, Southern's offensive spurts came early in the game, and not in clutch, late-inning situations.

In the second inning, junior second baseman Jay Mansavage and senior catcher Tim Kratochvil each singled, and scored on junior outfielder Tim Wilson's two-run double, putting the Dawgs up 2-0.

Junior first baseman Aaron Jones would hit a solo home run in the sixth inning to tally the score to 3-0, but the Indians came back in the seventh inning, scoring two runs off Saluki sophomore reliever Chris Kulig to pull within one run, 3-2.

In the eighth inning, senior pitcher Dave Farrow (3-3), who suffered the loss, surrendered two more runs off two hits, two walks and a Saluki error.

The Indians would touch Southern's next pitcher, junior Mike McConnell, for another run in the inning and pull ahead 5-3 for the final score in the three-run inning.

Between the Lines

SIUC will be the site of a competitive volleyball tournament this weekend, where nine teams, including SIUC, will converge on Davies Gymnasium to compete.

Southwest Missouri State University, Murray State University, Southeast Missouri State and the University of Missouri at St. Louis (last year's NCAA Division III champion), are among those competing. The tournament format consists of three pools containing three teams in each, with continuous play throughout the day.

All teams competing will play four matches each.

Action begins at 9 a.m. and continues until 4 p.m.

The SIUC intramural water polo team will host a tournament today through Sunday at the Student Recreation Center pool.

Six-teams will compete in the tournament, including Ball State University, Bowling Green University, the University of Illinois, Notre Dame University and Western Illinois University.

In other intramural action, the SIUC Lacrosse team will host Eastern Illinois University and the University of Iowa Saturday at the intramural fields near Brush Towers.

UMass' junior center Marcus Camby heads the list selected to this year's John Wooden All-American Team.

Included in the list are Connecticut's junior guard Ray Allen, Georgetown sophomore guard Allen Iverson, Wake Forest's junior center Tim Duncan and Villanova senior guard Kerry Kittles.

The NCAA Tournament heats up again this weekend, as the Final Four round begins Saturday.

Mississippi State will take on the Syracuse Orangemen, while the University of Massachusetts battles the University of Kentucky.
