The University Student Council has authorized a committee to study means of setting up an evaluation procedure for courses and teachers.

The Council authorized George J. Paluch, Carbondale student body president, to appoint a committee of students, faculty and administrators to set up the program. Bills calling for such a program were passed in April by the Carbondale Campus Senate. They were submitted by Ray Lenzi, men's off-campus organized senator. The bills authorized Paluch to meet with faculty and administrators to discuss their reaction to the proposal.

Paluch met Thursday with William E. Malone, administrative assistant in the vice president's office; Robert G. Layman, chairman of the Faculty Council; Robert L. Cold, associate professor of history; Ralph W. Fruse, associate dean of student affairs; Bard Grossel, Liberal Arts and Sciences senator; and Paul Schoen, School of Business senator.

Paluch said reaction to the idea was generally favorable. He hoped to have the committee functioning during the summer.

"I hope we can get some useful suggestions from this study, not just data," he said, "and that the curriculum can be updated."

A number of colleges and universities have faulty evaluation systems.

One-Campus Governmental Rules Adopted

SIU's student government has finally completed a working paper designed to conform to the one-University concept.

The University Student Council (USC), representing both Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses, approved a working paper Sunday at Edwardsville. The paper must be approved by the University Council, chief advisory body to the president, and a University-wide student referendum before it is official.

However, John Paul Davis, student body vice president, said Monday that the working paper will serve as "rules of procedure" for student government until it is acted on by the administration.

The USC made wholesale changes by deletion Sunday. Chief changes were the striking of a section on the number of USC representatives and their appointment.

The proposal taken up in the meeting Sunday provided that the USC be composed of 40 students, 24 from Carbondale and 16 from Edwardsville. One representative was to be added for each 1,000 students over 25,000 enrollment at Carbondale and over 17,000 at Edwardsville.

The paper passed Sunday simply calls for the membership to be composed of all members of both Campus Senates. The number of senators and their qualifications are left up to the Senates.

A rules committee to be appointed by the cochairmen of the USC will draw up by-laws. They must be approved by a (Continued on Page 7)

Carbondale Residents Will Vote Today On Adoption of Council-Manager Plan

Carbondale residents will decide the form of their city government today when they vote on a referendum asking them to adopt a council-manager plan.

If the plan is adopted, a council and mayor will be elected, and they in turn will select a professional city manager. This manager will act as administrator of city affairs in much the same way a school superintendent administers school affairs.

The council would continue to adopt budgets, set tax rates, pass ordinances, determine all policies and legislate by (Continued on Page 6)

SIU-Trained Journalist Wounded

Bob Poos, Associated Press correspondent and SIU alumnus, was wounded by a grenade Sunday in Viet Nam. Poos, 24, was honored last month as the SIU journalism alumnus of the year during Journalism Week. Here he tells what it was like.

DA NANG, VIET NAM (AP) - The rebel-launched grenade burst among us just after our group of Western correspondents had left the Buddhist pagoda complex where some feared we would be held hostages.

A tremendous explosion hit a tree over my head and I felt something like a hammer smash into my shoulder.

Someone next to me shouted, "I'm hit, I can't see, Help me."

Tracer bullets cut through the darkness over my head. We had been summoned for a news conference, but the conference never materialized. It was all something we had written off.

We decided to leave the pagoda with its military and civilian defenders around it.

We crossed the line of Buddhist dissidents who were dug in for a while. Egyptian Photographer Ling Wong found this quiet spot along the lakeshore across from the campus boat docks.

Weekend Home Results in Death

Motorcycle accidents killed one SIU student and injured two others over the weekend.

Patricia Wolf, 24, of Peoria Heights, was dead on arrival Saturday at St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. She was killed in an accident involving a motorcycle on which she was a passenger.

The motorcycle was driven by Jan H. (Scott) Olen, 30, of Peoria, who was admitted to the hospital for observation. He was not seriously injured, according to Horace Peyton, Peoria County coroner.

Sauerbach was attempting to make a left turn at the intersection of Glen Oak Street and Main Avenue when he lost control of the motorcycle, Peyton said.

After hitting the pavement, the motorcycle slid under the front of a car driven by Mrs. Bette M. Kottler of Peoria. Mrs. Kottler had just pulled out of a parking place in front of her residence when the accident occurred.

Miss Wolf suffered a skull fracture when her head struck the pavement, according to Peyton. The fatal injuries happened before the motorcycle slid under the car and there were no witnesses to the accident, Peyton said.

Mia Wolf was home for a weekend visit, was a graduate of Trinidad State Junior College, Colorado, and had attended school at Colorado State University before transferring to SIU. She lived in Kellogg Hall, Thompson.

Miss Wolf is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wolf, and two brothers, Tom, with the U.S. Marine Corps, and William, at home. Services will be at the Church of the Mortuary in Peoria. An inquest will be held Wednesday.

Southern Straddles Fence in Athletics

Southern’s athletic program got a stiff kick in the pants when the proposed 150 scholarships were reduced to 50.

Last week it got a similar kick in the same spot. President Delby W. Morris asked that SIU not be considered for admission to the Missouri Valley Conference (MVC).

If the 150 scholarships had been provided, and if Southern had been considered for admission, the MVC had admitted to the MVC, the school would have taken a long step toward being considered a major college in its first 20 years.'

But where are we now? About the same place we have been for several years -- straddling a fence between being a major or minor college and not knowing exactly which way we lean.

The questions relating to the number of scholarships and conference affiliation still hang in the balance, apparently dumped on the shoulders of a still-to-be-named conference in which Southern’s athletic policy and prowess will be considered on these and a number of other questions to the administration.

The questions to be studied by the commission would require another week or more of discussion or any other editorial, but what it seems to boil down to is the decision on whether to go ‘major” or “minor” college in the athletic program.

Germans Say Poverty Insignificant in Nation

HAMBURG -- Poverty, the kind on which President John F. Kennedy referred in his United States, no longer exists in West Germany.

There are, of course, Germans who have managed to get by on less than the postwar economic boom, but welfare authorities insist that no one goes hungry or ragged in West Germany today.

DRAFT TEST -- Is It Worthwhile?

Question Asked by Students

Now that the draft test has been given, college students who have around the country it will be interesting to see just what the test achieved.

A few questions are suggested.

1. Should the draft test be signed as an application for further deferment. If this is so, why?

2. Should the draft board have the right to draft a student who has flunked the test, or one who has never taken the test at all?

3. Should there be an appeal for either?

Second, many students chose not to take the test for the expressed reason of not putting their names down on anything they didn’t have to, a kind of

Fray Misses Sen. Dirksen

Sen. Dirksen’s prospective six weeks in the hospital with a broken hip will strip the Senate of much of its color and life, but little in the way of able leadership. We wish that the doughy I-Iinoisan in the hospital had the good sense and senatorial patience inexecuting doctors’ orders might show in the hospital setting.

This reflects favorably upon the majority leader’s sagacity that he chose Walter Reuther to head the hospital committee. It is much too late to change the atmosphere of the ward, but it is heartening to see no sign that this man is in charge of a body of men, and in a position where his every action and pronouncement will be watched closely.

Come back to the fray soon, senator. You’ll be a better warrior on crutches than most of your opponents are on their own two feet.

Letter to the Editor

Interested Students Deserve City Vote

To the editor:

Juggling from the volume of letters to the editor there is more interest among SIU students in the referendum on the city manager system for Carbondale than there is among students who are not concerned with the city government.

I hope that the apathy is more apparent than real because this is a crucial issue for the future of Carbondale.

In my opinion we need to make a change to the council-manager system in order to bring professional administrative skill and experience to bear on problems which are multiplying and intensifying even more rapidly than our population is growing.

I know that some questions have been raised about the qualifications of students as voters. It is very disappointing that the city administration has fallen back on a 1924 court decision simulating a technicality to discourage students from voting. As one who has been encouraging students to think of themselves as citizens of the community and to act accordingly, I cannot help feeling that it is unfair and unwise to turn right around and try to deny students the most basic privilege of citizenship, the right to vote.

A Word for It

There is a word for the House Appropriation Committee’s sudden interest in fiscal responsibility as revealed in its trimming of funds here and there, robbing Peter to pay Paul. It is the word which landlords sometimes have to use to a government official in advancing his cause: "It’s the people who pay the bills."
Book Builds Upon 20th Century Ideas, Offers Theory That Crime is Learned

"Crime, Law and Society" is a book that has had a major impact on criminology. It is a disciplined analysis of crime—disciplined in the sense that it is based upon the major sociological ideas of the day.

The main stream ideas see lawbreaking as "implied" by societal norms, that is as part of some internal force. But in the final analysis, the crime problem and its explanation must be integrated with the whole of the social order or with the theory. Hartung parts company with most of the popular theorizing about crime and views criminal acts as "delinquent behavior." An understanding of crime is impossible without the use of the theories of differential association and social learning that Hartung has brought together.

These ideas and facts are known to criminologists, but Hartung believes that they have been used in such a way that they will be ignored by scholars involved in the social milieu of the day, in which he refers to in a recent article, "Crime and the Social Order." The "social order" is the study of mental health in Manhatten, where most of the citizenry was found, in some degree, to be suffering from mental illness.

Hartung decided to reject the idea of crime as an immoral act and chose instead to expand the theory of differential association. But Sutherland as a comprehensive economist was not happy about doing Hartung, along with other sociologists, in a manner that was not seen not the utility of Sutherland's ideas. Hartung writes about what he has learned about the idea that crime is learned in a process which is sometimes rational and rational and differs only in content. But a differential association deals with questions of why people commit crimes, why they commit them, and what they must learn in order to commit them. Hartung has dealt with the latter. But to relate this theory to the popular concerns, I believe, it would have been necessary for him to deal in more detail with the who of crime.

The audience of criminological literature is puzzled by the way others persuade in their misdeeds in spite of the very powerful opposition of more conventional people.

FRANK E. HARTUNG is former director of the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections.

The audience also seems unsatisfied with the sociological explanation that the criminal continues in crime because it is the way he learned to act, and because it is the kind of action that is meaningful to the person who is important to him.

Hartung, as already explains, in addition, why these people are important to him; why the criminal chooses to continue to an unlawful person's experience to offer to all of those who hold that crime is impelled, because he thinks that what is underworldly and harmful to hold such a view.

Hartung is not just out of the mainstream. He is trying to divert it. His main concern is no longer to offer to all of those who hold that crime is impelled, because he thinks that what is underworldly and harmful to hold such a view.

Hartung, as already explains, in addition, why these people are important to him; why the criminal chooses to continue to an unlawful person's experience to offer to all of those who hold that crime is impelled, because he thinks that what is underworldly and harmful to hold such a view.

Therefore, the conclusions of differential association with the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections are not well received.

Sotty Dogs Are Useful Weapon

SAIGON—Man's best friend has become a helpful weapon against the Viet Cong in the Vietnam war.

The use of sentry dogs in warfare isn't new—they have been used in wars of the last several centuries—but in none have dogs become as useful as the Air Force's Pekulc airfield recently, for instance, German Shepherd societies united Viet Cong and were able to prevent air force personnel from being attacked.

At the Air Force's Pekulc airfield, 25 square miles, which underwent a 20-minute mortar attack recently, dogs are regularly used for perimeter patrol.

When the Pekulc San Nhu airport in Saigon, which was the Pekulc attack, was directed from a point that one,000 yards from the field, it was close and sentry dogs. Though there has been much speculation over the years, there have been instances when a sentry dog's base itself never has been penetrated.

Protecting the perimeters of San Nhu, Pekulc and other U.S. military airfields in Vietnam is a job assigned to the Air Force.

There are dogs and handlers at San Nhu, for instance, and another 28 at Pekulc.

Each handler, an Air Force enlisted man, serves both as dog's trainer and sentry dog. Before coming to Vietnam, each handler and dog took an intensive two-week course at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas. They learned to depend upon each other for survival.

Many of the dogs are purchased by the Air Force, but others are donated to the service by civilians.

M. Ph. Degree to Accelerate Training of College Teachers

Yale University has announced that beginning in the fall of 1968 it will offer a new master of philosophy degree to help solve the problem of training more college teachers in less time.

The degree, which would be awarded to students who have completed all work on their doctorate except for their dissertation, would require only two years of graduate work. Elmer J. Clark, dean of the SIU College of Education, expressed skepticism that students could finish all of the academic work required for a doctorate in two years. According to him, the majority of the three to five years required to obtain a doctorate are not spent writing a dissertation, as Yale seems to think, but in classroom work.

Clark also pointed out that while the M. Ph. would give a student advanced study, it would still be a kind of master's degree, and many colleges have a policy of not promoting instructors until they obtain their doctorate. Both Clark and William Simone, dean of the graduate school, agreed that the new degree would be a great help in training teachers for the ever-growing number of junior colleges in the nation. Clark suggested that a teacher-mentorship program be set up.

majority vote of each Campus Senate.

A section on voting procedures providing for automatic reintroduction of main motions which do not receive majority votes of both Campus Senates was also changed. The paper no longer calls for automatic reintroduction of main motions that do not pass. They still must receive majority votes of each Senate.

Barbara Groose, Liberal Arts and Sciences senator from Carbondale, and John Cwan, senator from Edwardsville, were elected cochairmen Sunday and took office immediately.

Sunday's action capped a two-year effort to draw up an acceptable working paper for student government. The SIU statues were revised in July, 1964, to require conformity to a one-Campus concept. In May, 1965, the student body approved Alternative A, under which student government is now operating. Alternative A was not to extend past fall term.

On Dec. 28, 1965, student groups submitted a working paper draft which was not revised as of Jan. 30. Meanwhile the Alternative A structure was still in effect. In Jan., the version was defeated by a USC vote last month.

It was resubmitted and revised Sunday, Student government has not abandoned Alternative A and function under the working paper.

Outdoors to Replace Cap, Gown Ritual

A program which substitutes outdoor living and study for the traditional eighth grade commencement exercises will be held this year for the University School.

Mrs. Mabel Lane Bartlett, this year's program chairman and coordinator, said: "Eighth graders don't quit school after graduation but keep right on with their schooling, and because of this a lot of us feel the commencement exercises are outdated."

The program began in 1948, when 28 eighth grade pupils and a number of faculty members made the first outdoor venture to Giant City Park. By special permission and a fee of one dollar, the group was permitted to use the old Civilian Conservation Corps buildings in the park.

Since its beginning 18 years ago the program has grown to a school week with a staff of 22 volunteers. Mrs. Bartlett said: "The resultant program is a series of balanced learning experiences designed to make maximum use of living in an outdoor setting, which offers almost unlimited resources."

This year's activities began Monday and will continue through Friday. It will include a week of outdoor recreation and learning at SIU's Little Grassy Lake facilities for 58 graduating eighth graders.

William Price, director of Little Grassy, will be facilitator-director, and Thomas Rillo, coordinator of the Outdoor Education Center, will be consultant. They will be assisted by University School personnel.

Activities for the graduates will include geology classes, field trips, horseback riding, local history and nature lore. Other classes includes firearm safety, field engineering and newspaper production.

Collapse of Rebellion Spurs Ky Movement

SAIGON (AP) — The collapse of the Buddhist rebellion in Da Nang spurred the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky into quick action Monday night to rally new popular support for his military rule. But disinterest persisted in Hue, the Buddhist center, and turmoil with anti-American overtones threatened Saigon.

In the aftermath of Ky's victory in bringing about the surrender of the main force of Buddhist dissidents in Da Nang, there were these developments:

—Ky ordered a massive airlift of food and supplies to Da Nang to ease shortages among the city's 160,000 people after a week of bloodshed—a move aimed at winning popular favor. He lifted a 24-hour curfew and tension eased. The city was slowly returning to normal.

—The military junta drew up the agenda for Tuesday's meeting of a civilian-military congress called in an attempt to pacify segments demanding a return to civilian rule.

—Buddhist dissidents entrenched in Hue, the old imperial capital, continued to resist the control of Ky's forces. As many as 20,000 people remained holed up in small pockets but were not regarded as a threat.

Insight for Legislation

House Will Resume Hearings on Klan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators plan to resume their Ku Klux Klan hearings next month, thus increasing the chances for passage of legislation this year aimed at curbing the banned order's activities.

The office of Rep. Edwin E. Willis, chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities, said Monday the Louisiana Democrat has recovered sufficiently from a long illness to return to Washington June 6.

The committee's staff director, Francis T. McNamara, said this means the group definitely can hold hearings next month on bills aimed at the Klan, and also at groups such as the Communist party and the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate.

Rep. Charles L. Welter, D-Ga., leader of a bipartisan group on the committee which has been pushing for early legislative hearings, said: "That's great. It's plenty of time to get House action this year."

Senate prospects are uncertain, however.

The new round of hearings is likely to be shorter and less sensational than last winter's four-month inquiry which stripped much of the secrecy from the Klan's activities throughout the South and in some Northern states.

McNamara said most of the witnesses will be federal officials, and that leaders of the various Klan groups and of other organizations that might have come under the legislation probably will not testify unless they volunteer to do so. None has as far, he said.

Willis underwent surgery late February to remove a blood clot in his neck, just about the time the committee wound up its earlier hearings.

Ruling Upholds Editor's Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that a state cannot make it a crime for a newspaper editor to publish an editorial on election day urging readers to vote a certain way.

Alabama thereby was barred from prosecuting James E. Mills of the Birmingham Post-Herald for his 1962 election-day editorial calling for abolition of the Alabama Commission form of government.

Justice Hugo L. Black said for the Supreme Court: "Suppression of the right of editorial comment is a way to criticize governmental agents and to clamor and contend for or against change, which is all that this editorial did, muzzles one of the very agencies the framers of our Constitution thoughtfully and deliberately selected to improve our society and keep it free."

All nine justices agreed Alabama's law could not be applied to Mills, although one Justice, John M. Harlan, said the court should have delayed its decision until Mills was tried for the violation.

Harlan said if Mills were convicted he, too, would vote for reversal.

Mills, vacationing in Quebec, Canada, was told of the court's decision as "another signal victory for free speech and a free press, not only in Alabama, but throughout the United States."

Buyers Must Pay the Tax

Court Rules

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Housewives must pay the sales tax on trading stamps they redeem for merchandise, the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The court dismissed arguments that make no sense because the tax is paid on goods purchased when stamps are redeemed, and again on premiums obtained for redeeming stamps.

In a unanimous decision reversed a ruling issued by Chie Justice William V. Brothers of Cook County.

The Supreme Court ruling means the state will lose nearly $3 million in revenue which has been paid to the state in a protest fund of the state treasury since January 1964.

About $29 million, 3 1/2 per cent and most cities add another 1/2 per cent in municipal sales taxes.

In striking down Judge Brother's ruling, the Supreme Court said: "No separate charge is made by the seller for the stamps, no reduction in price and if the customer declines the stamps, and title to the stamps at no additional cost, the state loses its claim to the stamps.

In another ruling, the court judicially cast aside an appeal by Kentucky as to whether the state's property rights would be violated if he were extradited to Alabama.

Grover Cleveland Hogan, 53, of a small town in Kentucky, was arrested in Alabama in 1958, alleged he would be subjected to unconstitutional treatment if returned to the state's prison and law enforcement officials.

Traffic Violations Bring Suspension

Jerome Abrams, a student from Morton Grove, has been suspended from the University after being charged with two traffic violations after his motor vehicle privileges had been suspended. He was charged with under age acceptance of alcohol.

Abrams pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving without a headlight when he appeared before Judge Robert Schwartz. Police reports state that Abrams was using a flashlight as a headlight at the time of arrest.

Guilty pleas were entered on charges of disobeying a stop sign and underage acceptance of alcohol. Abrams was fined $10 and $50, plus costs, on the two charges.

GOING OVERSEAS—This summer SIU will be represented in the “Experiment in International Living” by four students. They are (from left) Core L. Hilliard, John F. Wilhelm, Maria T. Granna and Linda K. Zeller. Last summer one SIU student took part in the program.

4 SIU Students Will Be Traveling Abroad

Through Experiment in International Living

Four SIU students, Cora L. Hilliard, Maria T. Granna, Linda K. Zeller and John F. Wilhelm, will be spending the summer abroad through a program established by the Experiment in International Living.

The three girls will be going to Switzerland and to Japan. The students were selected after applying to the Experiment in International Living, a private, nonprofit organization headquartered in Putney, Vt.

The organization provides travel arrangements, scholarships and noninterest loans to aid students and adults who want to travel in foreign countries on an economical basis.

Stephen D. Threlkeld, an SIU student who spent the past summer in Austria and Czechoslovakia, is acting as campus representative of the organization.

Threlkeld said participants spend one month with an “adopted” family in the country they are visiting.

The remainder of the time is spent traveling in the country and visiting the capital or largest city.

Threlkeld said the requirements are not stringent; “they are looking for people who are interested in foreign travel, not necessarily scholars,” he added.

Applicants may write to the National Headquarters of Experiment in International Living, Putney, Vt., or contact Threlkeld at 457-2343, for more information.

Artists Turn to Styrofoam
For Use in Metal Casting

New methods in metal-casting, recently witnessed by five SIU graduate students in art, will be put into use at Southern this quarter.

Milton F. Sullivan, an associate professor of art at SIU, and five of his students attended a three-day conference at the University of Kansas where they saw "Styrofoam" used for metal-casting. Instead of sculpting the original form out of wax, the metalcaster uses the plastic foam. Immediately after packing the sand around the form, the molton metal can be poured into the mold. The heel of the metal "dissolves" the plastic foam and fills the mold.

Using the older wax-form method, the metalcaster would have to wait about three days while the wax was being melted out of the mold through a "baking" process. Sullivan said he and his students have already begun preparations to start using the new process.

Home Baseball Ends On Loss to Parsons

The weather cooperated Sunday for the Salukis, but visiting Parsons College of Iowa didn't, as the Wildcats took the season finale at the Arena in an exciting 4-3 contest.

The Sunday victory completed a three-game sweep for Parsons and increased their record to 32-10, Southern closed out the season with a 24-16 mark.

SICU coach Joe Lutz watched several of his former players help pave the way in the series sweep of their former teammates.

Parsons' Wildcats Claw Salukis, 4-2, 8-4, in Home Doubleheader

Powerful Parsons College of Iowa lived up to expectations Saturday afternoon by defeating SIU in a doubleheader by scores of 4-2 and 8-4.

The Salukis threatened in each game, but the booming bats of the Wildcats proved to be too much for the Southern hurlers to handle.

Don Kirkland was well on his way to his seventh victory of the year in the opener, as the sophomore right-hander held the visitors scoreless until the sixth.

Southern were ahead in the second inning, with the good-hitting Kirkland doubling in Tex Sandstead, George Toler then reached first and second with a force before Kirkland was out at the plate as he tried to score. After passing up good scoring opportunities in the third and fifth, Parsons got to Kirkland.

After leadoff man Tom Lolas reached base on a single to right, big Gene Mezz bolted one over the left field fence to give the Wildcats a 2-1 lead.

Southern came back to tie the score in its half of the inning, tagging Jim Zerrila for the second baseman. Sramek reached first when the ball was bobbled, but Dick Mills pitched his way out of the inning with just the one run scored.

Parsons made it 4-1 in the third when Larry Skinner banged out a bases-empty homer and Larry Bixl doubled in a run.

In the fifth, after Sramek had been replaced by reliever Howard Nickeson, Southern came out of a tough jam in unusual fashion.

With the bases full and only one out, Bixl bounced one back to the mound, with Nickeson firing home for the force-out. Catcher Jack Finney then fired toward first to try for the double play. The ball hit the runner, but the umpires ruled that the runner had run inside the basepath, and ruled him out on an interference call.

Southern came up with two runs in the sixth to get back into the ball game, but not for long.

A triple and a home run were included in a Parsons' four-run seventh, as the Wild cats quickly pounced on Southern's third hurler of the game, Jim Panther.

Then came an inning which almost had a storybook ending.

Geving, the third pitcher for Parsons, loaded the bases with three straight walks. Russ Keene fanned for the first out, before Geving forced in a run on another walk. Sandstead flied to left before Coach Joe Lutz called on the first game pitcher, Kirkland, to pinch hit for Steve Krelo. Kirkland, the tying run, gave the hemisphere a real thrill, as his high drive to left looked like it might go all the way. The wind held the ball back enough, however, to allow the left fielder to grab the ball up against the fence.

Freshmen Beat Menard, 11-3
For Fifth Baseball Victory
SIU's freshman baseball team defeated Menard College, 11-3, in a recent game at Carbondale. This victory increased the Salukis' record to 10 wins and 2 losses.

The 11 to 3 rout was a combination of timely hitting and the Menard pitchers' inability to keep the ball in the infield. The pitchers for Menard allowed six runs in eight innings on only two hits.

MEMORIAL RE-ENACTMENT—Placing flowers upon graves of soldiers who were killed in the First World War, a similar ceremony was held Saturday at the old Curb Orchard Christian cemetery near Carbondale. It All Started Here

Memorial Day's Centennial Year Will Be Observed in Carbondale

A Green Beret chaplain and a Medal of Honor winner will help dedicate the first formal Memorial Flag Bank in Carbondale Monday in ceremonies marking the centennial of the first formal Memorial Day pageant in the United States.

The dedication is part of a series of events planned by the Carbondale Memorial Day Association both to commemorate the 100th anniversary of that event and to honor America's war dead. Also scheduled are a parade and an historical pageant.

The flag bank, established earlier this year, serves as a depository for memorial flags held by families and individuals who wish such flags to be used in a manner commensurate with demands of patriotism, tradition and memory of those in whose names flags were given. It will be dedicated at Woodlawn Cemetery near downtown Carbondale, where Civil War Gen. John A. Logan spoke at memorial services for fallen soldiers of that war on the last Sunday in April, 1866.

The dedicatory address will be by the Rev. Ernest C. Klein of Huntington, Ind., group chaplain of the U.S. Army's 12th Special Forces, the "Green Beret" unit. The Rev. Mr. Klein is a combat infantryman who served with the 9th Division in World War II.

Clyde Choate, Illinois state representative from Anna who received the Medal of Honor during World War II, will present the first memorial flag received by the bank to a veterans' honor guard for hoisting on the cemetery flag pole. The flag will then be lowered to half-staff.

The day's activities will begin with a 9:30 a.m., parade through the city, past a reviewing stand and on to the cemetery. Parade units will include color guards from the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, and marching units of the National Guard, reserve units, the SIU ROTC wing, and veterans' organizations.

Drums of the SIU concert band will sound the cadence. Other bandsmen assembled at the cemetery will pick up the march bear with marches of the five services.

The focal point of the ceremony will be the 20 memorial flags already deposited in the flag bank, with the five color guards standing by.

Alumnus Wounded in Revolt

in and manning machine gun positions. They started at us grimly as we went by, shouting our call "Bao Chi, Bao Chi" (piece of bread). Ahead, a block away, we saw government troops grinning and waving at us from their tanks. Darkness was falling over this North Vietnamese coastal city, torn by civil strife for the past week.

We turned around and saw the rebel rifles and machine guns aimed straight at our backs.

We walked on with chill in our spines, Then someone shouted a command and firing burst out. We ran for cover into adjacent courtyards.

I shouted, "Is anybody hurt? Is anybody hurt?" Everybody said they were all right. Just then a grenade fired by a rebel launcher burst out against a tree. Tim Page, British free lance photographer and myself were hit. So was another European correspondent who came be identified until his family is notified. Tim screamed that he was hit in the throat. He pleaded for help.

I answered that I was hit too, I put a handkerchief over my hand and took off my jacket to wrap around Tim's throat which was bleeding profusely. There was no sound from our other friend, lying nearby, but he survived too.

A Vietnamese civilian came out and led me to a home. Someone put me on a bed and treated my wounds. A woman kept repeating, "This is bad, bad." It was then that a Marine rescue column rolled up, headed by Ron Neuman of the National Broadcasting Co. and Vallejo, Calif., Second Lieutenant Fred Tucker of Bowling Green, Ky., and Major Andy Anderson of Cramton, R.I.

They loaded us into jeeps. They risked their lives to save ours.

Poo was the second Associated Press correspondent wounded in Da Nang during the past week. Robert D. Ohman, 37, of Swampnor Springs, Colo., was hit Thursday and now has been flown to Saigon to have shell fragments removed from his foot and leg. Poo will also go to Saigon for medical attention.

When Poo was named journalism alumnus of the year by SIU, he sent a recording to the awards dinner. In it, he said that America still produces the same tough, courageous breed of young men.

"Since I came to Viet Nam last September," he said, "I have been greatly relieved about at least one thing. Before, I had lost most of my faith in the ability of Americans, particularly young ones, to undergo hardships and self-sacrifice. I have no more doubts."

A pair of Southern's gymnasts teamed up to take first place in four events last weekend at the Los Angeles Invitational gymnastics meet.

Rusty Mitchell, Southern's assistant coach, picked up his first in the all around while Frank Schmitz added three other firsts in the free exercise, long horse and the trampoline.

Mitchell was able to compete in the meet because it was an "open" and not limited to college competitors, former Olympian, who also was the all around titlist at the recent U.S. Gymnastics Federation meet, won the title again in Los Angeles even though he did not win first place in any of the events that comprise the all around. Schmitz, who is regarded as one of the nation's top collegians, was able to maintain the prestige he earned with his high scores at the NCAA national championships in March.
