Giant City Cooperation Urged

Student government leaders Monday called on the student body to cooperate with Giant City State Park officials in an effort to improve park services.

The appeal came at a meeting of representatives of the Illinois Department of Conservation, University administration and student government regarding a recent increase in speeding and destruction of park property.

In an open letter to students, student body president Bob Drinan and president-elect Ray Lenzi asked students to "respect the property of the park" and to "buy insurance for future good times by leaving the park as clean as they found it."

The letter warned that if students did not accept the responsibility, "park officials may take more restrictive actions. Park officials have been most cooperative. We ask students to be the same."

The problems have reportedly resulted from the increase in after-dark patronage of Giant City Park in the wake of the recent decision to close Crab Orchard Lake facilities at dark, according to Rudolph Dornier, assistant supervisor of state parks.

Dornier said that while all the blame must not be placed on SIU students, "we cannot tolerate the destruction of park property for no apparent reason."

The object is not to run students out, but to create a sound recreational atmosphere for both students and family groups, he said.

Commission Declares Elections Invalid

Rail Relocation Group to Talk With Officials

Carbondale City Council Monday night voted to send the members of the Railroad Relocation Authority to Chicago to meet with railroad officials to discuss moving the switching facilities and the District Office.

Councilman Frank Kirk, also chairman of the relocation authority, suggested that the authority should meet with the railroad officials before continuing its study. No date was set for the meeting.

The council also learned Monday night that Carbondale will be one of the stops for the 21st Annual "Powder puff Derby," a cross country air meet for women pilots.

Mrs. Robert Feigenbaum, president of the Southern Illinois chapter of the "99's", an international organization of women pilots, told the council that about 75 of the competing planes will land in Carbondale on July 8.

The meet will be flown from Atlantic City, N.J., to Torrence, Calif., between July 8 and 11. Mrs. Feigenbaum will also be competing in the race.

Ronald Centanni, an SIU graduate student, was appointed to serve until the end of the quarter as the Student Government representative to the City Council. Centanni is completing the term begun by Greg Drinan last fall.

In welcoming Centanni to the meeting, Mayor David Keene said the Council will work closely with the student representative to achieve harmony with the student body.

The mayor said the rights of students will be fully respected by the city and in return the students are expected to accept their responsibilities.

Representatives from the Crab Orchard Job Corps Center were at the meeting and pledged the assistance of the corpsmen to the city beautification program.

Councilman Randall Nelson, the architect of the beautification program, outlined some of the plans. He said the city will begin cutting grass and weeds in vacant lots and that job corpsmen will assist in the cleanup by the draining of ditches.

Other Campuses Have Facilities

Addition to Center Would Not Necessarily Hurt Local Commercial Hotels and Motels

What's behind the SIU proposal for a tower addition to the University Center?

It's a controversial question and one which has prompted legislation seeking to give the General Assembly the final word over projects of this type. The House passed the bill last week and sent it to the Senate. The bill would prohibit state-supported colleges and universities from undertaking certain housing projects without prior legislative approval.

According to the Associated Press story, the bill's sponsor Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, said the measure would apply to hotels, motels and apartments. It would not include dormitories and residences.

Williams said he introduced it after SIU proposed the University Center tower, which would have from 95 to 200 rooms.

Though the first mention of this proposal was made at the Board of Trustees meeting on April 7, 1967, the "tower" proposal was the offspring of a parent plan submitted by the SIU administration at an earlier meeting. At the Feb. 17 meeting of the Board, the plan called for completing an addition to the University Center with space for 20 guest rooms on the upper floors.

The new plan suggested constructing an addition to the south end of the building with 100 to 200 rooms to serve as a center for continuing education. The new addition would include conference and meeting rooms as well as dining facilities and guest rooms for visiting professors, University officials and other visitors.

The idea is not an original with the SIU Administration. A number of sister institutions throughout the state and nation are developing such facilities.

Among these are the University of Illinois which operates a 96-room center and Iowa State which has 60 guest rooms.

Northern Illinois University is now constructing a facility with approximately 100 rooms due to the success of a much smaller facility.

Indiana University has more than 200 guest rooms.

A 123-room center was recently built at the University of Iowa, Iowa City, due to the large number of requests for such a building.

The Indiana Medical Center has a facility providing accommodations for both guest and resident boarders.

Other universities which have a number of guest rooms include Purdue, Michigan, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Nebraska.

The obvious question is if the University operates such a facility, aren't local commercial hotel-motel businesses hurt by competition?

Negating such assumption is the Kellogg Center erected on the Michigan State University campus at East Lansing in 1951. In its 16 years of operation, the Kellogg Center has

New Voting Plan To Go to Senate

The Campus Senate Election Commission has declared last week's student body elections invalid and will recommend Wednesday night to the Senate that the elections be held again June 1, Bob Drinan, student body president, told the Daily Egyptian.

The commission met for three hours Monday with Drinan and Lyle Gohn, student government adviser.

Drinan said the recommendation is the result of numerous protests filed concerning various irregularities in the conduct of the election.

The major discrepancy, Drinan said, came after a member of the Election Commission did not appear at a meeting scheduled with Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society, who had volunteered to man the polling stations.

One member of the commission had been assigned to attend the meeting and another was told to pick up ballot boxes. Instructions were misunderstood and both students went after the ballot boxes, Drinan said.

He said the result was the two groups did not know what they were expected to do and the stations were unmanned.

"Both Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society have agreed to man the polls if a new election is held," Drinan said.

"Our intention is to meet our responsibilities and provide valid representation to the student body so that victors will be supported and losers will continue to support the idea of student government," Drinan said.

Fire in Communications Building Causes Excitement in St. Louis

A small fire Sunday in the Communications Building caused a lot of excitement in St. Louis.

First there was a report on KXOK Radio that "extensive damage" had been done to the building. Today, according to Sherwin Abrahms of the Department of Theater, a St. Louis television station wanted to send a truck to the campus to photograph the wreckage.

The fire didn't cause quite as much excitement in the Communications Building. WSIU-Radio staffers called the fire department when the building fire alarm began to sound about 6:25 p.m. Firemen arrived in minutes and the small fire, in two boxes of coat hangers, was extinguished in minutes.

According to KXOK, the station got the report of the fire from an SIU student. A spokesman for the station said that KXOK ran the story only once, stopping it after receiving a phone call from WSIU-Radio.

New Safeguards for Draft May Help Insure Fairness

Stayakal, Chicago's American

The great debate on the extension of the draft began by raising the big questions: Should selective service be expanded into either a voluntary or compulsory system of universal or national service, with both military and nonmilitary assignments? On the big questions, the commissions, panels, and responsible figures in the administration and Congress firmly slammed the door. There would be no change. The issue then narrowed to a consideration of how to bring to the selective service system a greater measure of fairness. The chief questions were: Would it not be fairer for men to be selected by lottery, for younger men to be taken first, for student deferments to be eliminated, for local administration of the system to be abandoned, and for the conscientious objection provision to be changed? On most of these questions such influential spokesmen as President Johnson, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Gen. Mark W. Clark, and Rep. L. Mendel Rivers (chairman of the House Armed Services Committee) advanced their (sometimes widely differing) views. On May 11, the Senate passed a measure extending the draft law for four years and giving the President most of what he wants. The House Armed Services Committee has now approved a bill which is a bit tougher on the President but which will in the end also probably give him most of what he wants. What appears to be shaping up is a compromise which none will find too hard to accept: The President will doubtless get his opportunity to experiment with a random selection system, or lottery. Agreement is widespread that it makes sense to draft 19-year-olds first. Both the Senate and the House committees are reluctant to end undergraduate student deferments. And there is every indication that Mr. Johnson will accept their judgment on this matter. The Senate and the House committee go along with the President's view that most graduate deferments should be eliminated. Deferred undergraduates will, at the end of their deferment, be placed in an eligibility pool along with the 19-year-olds, thus correcting in some measure the unfairness of the present system. Congress is not going along, however, with the administration proposal to eliminate the local draft boards for far fewer regional ones. Still, some of the valid objections to local boards are being removed in that the selective service system is introducing new safeguards to help assure fairness at the local level. Thus, while the legislation shaping up will mean no radical change in the present system, it should mean some definite improvement, some noticeably greater measure of fairness. One move by the House committee, however, is a backward step. The committee has proposed a tightening of the conscientious objection law, narrowing the grounds for such a plea and in effect wiping out the broadening accomplished by the Supreme Court's decision in the Seeger case. It also would violate the conscience of those opposed to military service of any kind by placing them under military discipline. — Christian Science Monitor

Letters to the Editor

New Plan Needed

To The Editor: I think that one of the most important things at SIU that needs reform is the procedure of selling tickets to various performances in the Arena. Anyone who tried to get tickets to the Supremes will know what I mean. It was ridiculous. The group that is sponsoring the event bought 1,800 tickets. Many are being sold as political favors to people who never had to wait in that line for tickets. How fair is that? How can monopoly be allowed to exist like that? When the first four or five people buy out all the $3 seats, what do the rest of the people get who have waited overnight and all day Sunday? Bloc buying has to be limited. A limit of 100 might work and organizations should be limited too, if possible. The only problem would be in preventing 10 members of a group, each buying the limit. Another thing needs attention, too. There should be some order kept by the policeman there. The line should be single file and mobs of people should be kept away. When people wait in line in shifts, a lot of people cut line. You can't start a fight with some of the big-mouthed boors, so there has to be some kind of order enforced. Before a full-scale riot breaks out, something has to be done to make ticket sales more orderly and half-way fair. Ron Raschke course, the pot-smokers and acid heads are another story. Your masochistic method of criticize / commend makes little sense to me. It seems as if you are trying desperately to say something, but don't know how to say it. You also criticize the "nice kids from suburbia who wind up on picket lines or protesting in Mississippi." Only a full-fledged segregationist (who disregards parts of the U.S. Constitution), would condemn those who protest in Mississippi. I feel that civil rights demonstrations have been responsible for a good portion of the progress made toward equal rights. Unfortunately these same demonstrations have caused unnecessary bloodshed and hard feelings. You have better pray, Mr. Livert, that your last paragraph is true...if we aren't a generation of responsible citizens, we're in real trouble. Bob Waldmire except beer and breads. The senators feel that if a student doesn't offer his services to student government, he is apathetic. "This is why student government is lacking; the students just don't care," so they say. This is an excuse your senators use for their lack of involvement and action in student government and the affairs of this university. They merely use the excuse of student apathy to rationalize for their own incompetence. But if your senators had ever represented you, the student as they are supposed to do, they would reverse this stand on student apathy. If the senators ever took time out from having coffee with other senators or from grafting expenses from student government finances, and went to the students' dorms or houses, and talked to the students, they would see that the students really do care. They would see that the students definitely want to do something in this university, but feel so subjugated by the restrictions and lack of student teacher communication, and so alienated from university policies because of the lack of student leadership, that they feel worthless. These past two months, I have talked with hundreds of students on campus, off campus, at Speak Outs, and in their dorms. Sometimes I just talk to students after class or in the union—students I don't even necessarily know, and I ask them what they think about present conditions here. I wonder how many senators ever do this. If the senators would only listen to the ideas of the students, perhaps some solutions to our problems could be found; maybe Student Government would find more important issues than turtle races or tennis courts to focus their attentions on. You would be surprised to hear the ideas the students have. Your senators would be shocked. Students have some tremendous ideas, and working together could solve some of the problems here of housing, transportation, academics, and social activities. If I have the opportunity to do so, I will bring some of these ideas to the campus senate. Since the administrators fouled up and the faculty remains silent, it is up to the students to get together stick together, and make this university a respectable and pleasant place in which to obtain an education. Stuart Sweetow

Disheartening

To The Editor: This letter is in response to the May 18 article entitled "Sloppy, Yes," by Richard Livert. Mr. Livert, your article was extremely disheartening to me. Your equivocal, meandering bewilders me. At first, you castigate those college students that are merely enjoying such rights as how to dress, whether or not to shave and whether or not to cut one's hair. And what in the world is wrong with wearing a sweat-shirt? You remind me of my landlady when you complain about such irrelevant things as beards and sandals. Of

An Editor's Viewpoint

Freedom Necessitates Common Sense

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

That was a fine rhubarb that closed Catholic University in Washington a couple of weeks ago, following a mass walkout by students, priests, nuns and faculty over the dismissal of a 33-year-old assistant professor of moral theology, Father Charles E. Curran. After six tumultuous days he was reinstated.

Father Curran got the heave-ho at a Chicago meeting of the cardinals and bishops who dominate the board of trustees. He had openly quarreled with the Church's traditional stand on birth control, and he had delivered a series of lectures last fall in which he argued that instead of handing down absolutist decrees on morality the Church should "consult the experience of the Christian people."

Father Curran's placard-waving supporters, who gathered en masse to vote the walkout, were no beatnik types trying to legalize pot and popularize free love. They were eminently respectable Catholics, many of them already in or oriented toward the priesthood.

Their spokesmen made it plain that in view of the second Ecumenical Council they felt that the Church hierarchy had agreed to listen more carefully to the laity and the clergy.

But before we hand the poor board of trustees, let's try to see it their way. If what Father Curran had committed was not heresy it would, as Damon Runyon might have put it, do until heresy came along. Until Pope John opened up the windows with his ecum-nical call it would certainly have been heresy, and there is still no clearly defined area in which the priesthood may freely quarrel with a repeated and reiterated position of the Church on a high moral matter.

The bishops and cardinals who run Catholic U. are under an ancient admonition to see that what passes as Catholic teaching does not endanger the welfare of the souls of the taught.

Here, therefore, was not a simple struggle between good and evil, but a clash between people dedicated to conflicting ideas of good. No one suggested that Father Curran be dragged before an Inquisition and turned over to the tender ministrations of a Torquemada. He didn't even face joblessness. Fordham, an equally prestigious Catholic university, quickly offered him a contract.

I find myself admiring Father Curran's bravery and in total sympathy with what he tried to teach. But I would have waved my placard gently in view of the dilemma facing the board. They are, by definition of their duties, responsible for how Catholic U. performs. If the university is to be run, instead, to suit the faculty and the students the board abdicates this responsibility.

Out of this, perhaps, a rule may be drawn. A college administrator and its supporting board of trustees of regents have a right to run the institution as they deem best provided they are willing to accept the possible consequences of their decisions.

If the consequences include strikes, mass dismissals, mass resignations and even a loss of accreditation they must accept this hazard. If ruin faces the school, a governor may appoint a new board of regents and a church a new board of trustees. But no such boards or administrations can divest themselves of responsibility for what is taught and how.

Now here comes the sticky part: A college or university, to amount to anything, must attract faculty that is eager for and dedicated to the discovery of new truths. These truths will often go beyond the philosophies of even the wisest administrators and the smartest boards. Some may appear to be shocking. But there must be wide latitude for men of demonstrated scholarship to research their fields and to both publish and teach their conclusions.

But wide doesn't mean limitless. No university is under any obligation to retain a professor of astronomy who maintains that the moon is made of green cheese, even if no one has yet brought back a sample of what it really is made of. There remains a realm of reasonable conclusions, even if absolute truth is unobtainable.

Similarly, no college should be required to provide both with lifetime support and with a lifetime audience an advocate of barnyard morality or drug-taking or the overthrow of popular government by violence and subversion. "Free speech" doesn't put anyone under an obligation to pay you to say it, not even to provide you with a platform.

Father Curran lashed out against "absolute decrees." The professor who says "In the interest of academic freedom you must hire me to teach whatever I doggone please" is handing down an absolute decree.

Freedom is a puzzlement. It is neither anarchy nor a mathematical formula. It requires a lot of common sense.

Executive Power Increased

Nation's Ills Require Federal Help

By Robert M. Hutchins

We all complain about the concentration of executive power. But it stands to reason that if the federal government is to take responsibility for the economy, for the communications system, for education, for research and development, it is going to have to be a much bigger proposition than it was 50 years ago.

Up to 1917 these duties, which are now regarded as the normal obligations of the federal government, were either not performed or were carried out by the states.

For example, the economy ran itself, and the states took care of education.

At the bottom of the Great Depression Harry Hopkins and I suggested to Franklin D. Roosevelt that federal money might be used to keep young people of high school age in school. His instant reaction was, "I don't believe the federal government should have anything to do with public education."

Hopkins and I had to convince him that we were talking about relief, rather than education, before he would listen to what we had to say.

Even relief did not easily win or keep a place among the responsibilities of the federal government. Sen. Robert A. Taft, very late in the depression, kept proposing that the states take over the job of keeping the unemployed alive.

This proposal illustrates the nature of the problem. People were out of work all over the country because the national economy had collapsed. The resources of the states were in no way proportioned to the number of unemployed who happened to live in them. It would have been grossly unfair to make the amount paid an unemployed family depend on the accident of residence. A national problem had to be met by the national government.

With the tremendous advance of technology since World War II, more and more problems have become national, or even international, as when a break in a Canadian power line can black out major cities in this country.

Unfortunately the Congress of the United States is not a national body. Individual senators can occasionally consider the national interest, but they are under no pressure from their constituents to do so. A member of the House of Representatives is even worse off. Unless he comes from a safe district, he is continuously running for re-election, which means he spends his time running local errands.

Hence, the executive takes over. Only he is likely to suggest proposals affecting the national welfare, and as time has gone on fewer and fewer legislative proposals have originated in Congress. The "strong" Presidents have made the most of their position as the only officers of the national government elected by the whole people.

The concentration of executive power caused by domestic developments could be made less dangerous by nationalizing the legislative branch. A constitutional amendment providing for the election of a part of the Senate and House from the country as a whole and a part from regional districts would be a move in the right direction.

This could be accompanied by the elimination of the requirement that senators and representatives must be inhabitants of the states or districts in which they are elected. The generally high quality of British parliaments results from the fact that local constituencies usually summon distinguished nonresidents to be their representatives.

The concentration of executive power that results from the change in the international position of the United States is another story.

Our Man Hoppe

Surviving Seven Hail Army's Grand Achievement

By Arthur Hoppe
(San Francisco Chronicle)

It was in the 38th year of our lightning campaign to wipe the dread Viet-Narian guerrillas out of West Vhtnng when a dispute arose on how best to save that beleaguered nation for democracy.

Some strategists favored bulldozing a 200-yard-wide "Death Strip" between West Vhtnng and East Vhtnng. And some strategists favored declaring the entire border province of Whar Dat a "Free Kill Area" in which anything that moved would be blasted.

It was the U.S. Military Commander, General Zipp K. Zapp, whose clear thinking resolved the issue. "Both plans have merit in our unending struggle to save our beloved allies," he said thoughtfully. "So let's stop talking and start doing."

"Do which, sir?" said an aide.

"Do both, damn it," said General Zapp. And so it was that the entire province of Whar Dat was bulldozed flat and declared a "Free Kill Death Strip Hands Up Don't Move Democracy Loving Area."

Naturally, such an ambitious undertaking was not accomplished without some carping. Indeed, the Provincial Governor of What Dat, General Ngo Mahn Ngo, dictated an eloquent letter of protest to his Premier, General Hoo Dat Don Dar. Unfortunately, the letter was never transcribed as Governor Ngo succumbed to an uncontrollable urge to scratch his left ear while seeking a phrase. This drew an immediate response from 42 Strategic Air Command bombers. And Ngo Mahn Ngo was gone.

This ended the protest movement in Whar Dat.

In fact, it ended all movement. "I am proud to report that the province of Whar Dat, for the first time in 38 years, is entirely free of Viet-Narian guerrillas and thus secure for democracy, General Zapp reported proudly to the President. "Please color it red, white and blue on your map."

"I think you've found a way out of this scrape we're in," said the President jubilantly. "Keep scraping."

Thus it was that the bulldozers ground forward to the next province, Opp Krik, and scraped that clean, too. Victoriously moving on, they had flattened half of West Vhtnng by the next January. Everyone was delighted with the new strategy. "This is getting to be the cleanest war we ever fought," the Army said happily.

"Our pilots have not mistakenly bombed a friendly village in months," the Air Force said happily.

The only person who wasn't absolutely delighted was Premier Hoo Dat Don Dar. "I'm not complaining, mind you," he said, "but the Royal Palace is sure getting filled up with my poor relations from what used to be the sticks."

He said that just before the bulldozers smashed through the East Portico.

And so it was that peace and total victory came at last to West Vhtnng. Our President himself in a broadcast to the surviving Vhtnngian people summed it all up.

"We have honored our commitment to stem the tide of Communism in Asia," he said, "and make your beloved Vhtnng safe for democracy."

There was no question that the President's stirring words would have met with heartfelt applause from the grateful survivors. But none of the seven wanted to make the first move.

Addition to Center Not a Threat not interfered with commercial hotel-motel business in the area.

Mrs. Donna Hinman, manager of the Lansing Convention Bureau, said, "The University maintains the policy of not letting the center interfere with the local commercial trade."

"Its facilities (Kellogg Center) are booked solid practically all the time," she said. "Commercial travelers do not go out there to get a room unless all commercial facilities in the area are filled and the motel or hotel manager calls the center to see if there is some space for the overflow."

"Kellogg Center gives visiting athletic teams and participants of continuing education and departmental conferences a place to stay," said Mrs. Hinman. "The rooms, each having two single beds, are all alike."

She said persons visiting the center in connection with University business sometimes decide not to stay on campus and use local commercial facilities.

According to Paul Rompf, assistant manager, the Kellogg Center has doubled its facilities since it was built. Two additions have been added to the complex which has grown from six to seven stories in height.

Rompf said the center has 193 overnight guest rooms and dining facilities for 1200 persons.

Included in the dining spaces are two large ballrooms with capacities for 650 and 350 persons, an auditorium which seats 355 persons and 19 meeting rooms which seat from 12 to 300 persons.

Two public dining rooms, each with a seating capacity of 153, have been added since the original construction was completed.

The Kellogg Center was built with the help of the Kellogg Foundation, which is privately financed by W. R. Kellogg. The Foundation has built "continuation centers" at eight different universities and is considering 50 applications for centers. SIU is not among them at the moment.

Tomorrow: Is the center really needed?

Commission Asks New Elections

Drinan said delays because of reapportionment of senatorial districts hindered the commission's efforts to complete election preliminary procedures.

"In some cases polls were manned and ballots were counted by partisan workers," Drinan said.

This was due largely to the last-minute nature of election preparations, Drinan said.

He said a new election would allow some additional preparation time and would be less partisan.

To Washington Offices Moving Square Dorm

SIU will begin moving campus offices into the Washington Square Dormitories this week, according to Rino Bianchi, administrative assistant to John Rendleman, vice president for business affairs.

The four-building dormitory complex at 701 Washington was leased by SIU from a private development group to ease a space bind caused by new construction on the campus.

Most units moving into Washington Square are now located along Harwood Avenue, site of a new Administration and Services Building due for bid-letting this summer.

Bianchi said two of the four dormitory buildings were scheduled to be occupied Monday and today.

Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance and office of Housing business Services were to be re-located to Washington Square Dormitories.

Also to be re-located was the Parking Section headquarters which was on East Pearl Street.

Various offices of the Student Affairs Division, now in Harwood Office Barracks will go to the other two dormitories next week.

Also to be moved then will be the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation campus office now located in the Chautauqua Barracks area.

No decision has yet been made on a future location for the SIU campus Post Office located on Harwood Avenue.

Removal plans for the Industrial Education Barracks, the Department of Chemistry annex and former Security Office headquarters in the same area have not been completed, Bianchi said.

Offices in the Department of History annex will move into former classrooms on the second floor of Old Main.

History Head Slated to Give 'Last Lecture'

"Bon Voyage to the Seniors" will be the topic of an address in the "Last Lecture Series," to be delivered Wednesday in the Studio Theater of the University School by George Adams, chairman of the Department of History.

Purpose of the series is to have faculty members deliver lectures as if the last in their career.

Adams will present his lecture as if it were his last chance to convey his concerns about society and his specialty field.

The series is sponsored by the Educational and Cultural Committee of the Activities Programming Board.

Adams graduated from Illinois College, Jacksonville, Illinois, and received his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University. He was professor and chairman of the Department of History at SIU from 1958-1961. From 1961-62 he held the position of Academic Vice-President and Professor of History, University of Alaska. In 1962 he left the University of Alaska and returned to SIU to assume his present position.

"We will have to take the first step by making some existing rules more livable and practical," according to Dorner.

"We hope to rectify the situation without embarrassment to SIU students or administration or to the Department of Conservation," Larry F. Withrow, deputy chief of law enforcement for the Department of Conservation, said.

Lenzi asked that park officials submit written reports of students violating park rules to the student government office so the judicial board may take action.

Student organizations holding frequent parties in the Giant City Park area are anxious to see that their privilege to continue the events there be retained, Lenzi said.

Groups such as the Inter-Fraternity Council are the first to "get on the backs" of fraternities whose conduct endangers this privilege, he said.

Dorner said that if park officials used "Gestapo tactics" on students, there would not be a problem with students next year: they would all go somewhere else.

"And that is not our purpose."

Dorner said plans are under way to move the camping area to an area removed entirely from the picnic areas. The move would eliminate possible friction between campers and picnickers, he said.

If all other measures fail, the department may have to resort to more severe steps, according to Withrow.

These might include closing the park at dark, manning security gates at all entrances to the park and prohibiting musical instruments and amplifiers outdoors, Dorner said.

Joseph F. Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs, commended both the students and park officials for their willingness to discuss the problems and consider solutions to them.

Hoffa's Appeal to Get Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa won the chance Monday to try to upset his federal mail fraud conviction because the FBI bugged a conversation involving a co-defendant.

The Supreme Court, ordering a federal court in Chicago to grant a hearing to Hoffa and six men convicted with him in 1964, directed the court to determine whether the conversation—or any other "that may be shown to have been overheard through similar eavesdropping" — tainted the convictions.

If the district court decides the convictions were affected by government bugging, it would then become its duty to order new trials, the high court said.

If the convictions were not tainted, the court said in an unsigned opinion, they will stand leaving the way clear for new appeals to the Supreme Court.

Troop Withdrawal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol of Israel called on Egypt Monday to pull back its troops from the Israeli border and promised that Israel would do the same.

In a speech to the Parliament in Jerusalem, Eshkol appealed to the United Nations and the big powers to use their influence for peace on Egypt to avoid "the danger of a conflagration in the Middle East."

In Damascus, the Syrian chief of state, Nureddin el-Atassi said Syria and Egypt were ready to turn back any Israeli aggression and begin the "final liberation battle" against the Jewish state. He said Arab guerrilla raids into Israel, which sparked the crisis, would go on.

Atassi spoke to a meeting of leaders of the Pan-Arab Federation of Labor Trade Unions at which Hashem Ali Mohsen, the group's secretary-general, threatened that Arabs would blow up Western oil installations in the Middle East if war broke out. He said the Arabs would also move against all Western sea and air traffic.

More Arab military units were drawn up along Israel's borders and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant headed for Cairo and talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser and other officials.

duction of "Around the World on an Omni-Bus" which finished a three-day run Sunday on the Calipre Stage in the Communications Building.

Interpreters' Satirical Revue Called 'Disjointed but Funny'

By Dianne Anderson

(... the number you have dialed is not ...)

"Around the World on an Omni-Bus" was, like most satirical reviews, disjointed but humorous.

Sunday evening's crowd (fewer than 25 persons) was greeted with such quips as "Glad to see we have such a wealthy audience—each of you bought about 20 seats."

Interpreters Theatre's production was done in "readers style" which involved the use of several wooden stools, occasional light props, and readers (with scripts carried in matching notebooks).

The series of sketches, songs, dances, puns and "fractured" commercials was put together from various sources by Director Joe Robinette and other members of the cast.

For members of the audience who were unclear about the meaning of the two subtitles, Robinette, following the revue, explained, "Unfortunately, we put the title together before the script." The inner world (or first part of the program), he said, was the world of the theater and how the show developed. The outer world encompassed the trip (via bus) to various international scenes. About a month was taken to assemble this disjointed endeavor — the only other underlying skeleton was the funny bone.

Some scenes were more humorous than others, of course, but the ones most appreciated in this corner were the U.S. entry "General Telephone" and the British "Great Train Robbery."

Perhaps the phone skit was a little too drawn out, but something close to poetic justice was evident in the closing

Buddy Hymel was quite good as Scotland Yard's No. 1 detective who explained that a train robbery does not actually involve the loss of a train, and that with the Identikit-one really doesn't piece together the criminal face, but rather the likeness of the criminal face.

"I wish we could piece together the criminal face," he says, "because if you have the criminal face the criminal body is not difficult to find (it is directly below the criminal face.)"

Besides Robinette and Hymel, the cast included Sharon DeZutti, Jan Guttenberger, Sondra Richey, Linda Syblett, Steve Folsom, Bruce Potts, Skip Rosskam, Mike Flanagan and an anonymous "white knight."

Loves Flowers, Sewing

Local Mayor's Wife Enjoys Many Hobbies and Interests

By Barbara Leebens

A flower lover, a sewing enthusiast, a Sunday School teacher, and a YMCA tutor all combine to make Marjorie Keene a warm and gracious first lady of Carbondale.

Wife of the newly elected mayor, Dave Keene, Mrs. Keene said that she plans to help her husband in every way that she can "to help bring about a better relationship between the University and the city, and to create more pride in our community by making Carbondale a prettier and better place to live."

"I feel that it is a real privilege to be the first lady of Carbondale. I'm looking forward to the next four years as a challenging way of life for my family," she stated.

The Keene family consists of: three daughters, Mrs. Jerry Bass (Carol), Sao Paulo, Brazil; Mrs. Francis Engelhardt, (Janette), Frankfort, Ky.; Susan of Springfield, Ill., as well as four grandchildren.

Besides making most of her own clothes, Mrs. Keene finds time to knit sweaters, is the president of the Evergreen Garden Club, makes plaques from "nature's leftovers" and tutor a primary school child in the YMCA program. Her Sunday School class at Hill House is open to any denomination, but primarily for the children of Southern Hills residents. This class is sponsored by the First Methodist and Presbyterian churches. She also serves as cochairman of the First Methodist Church Circle Three.

Her "Stars and Stripes" flower arrangement won the Tri-Color award at the recent Carbondale Flower show. Further evidence of the Keenes' love of beauty and outdoors is apparent in the self-styled landscaping of their home. Punctuating the scene is a cast iron ornament that states:

"Kiss of the sun for pardon
Song of the birds for mirth
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth."

Answering the question why the term "Blue Ribbon Slate" was chosen as the campaign slogan, Mrs. Keene replied, "Someone in the group that was backing us said that a blue ribbon stood for a winner, and we intended to win."

After 33 years of marriage, the mayor's wife said with a smile, "Dave's favorite food is still spaghetti and meatballs."

Mrs. Fuller Recuperating After Surgery

Mrs. R. Buckminster Fuller, wife of the noted SUI research professor of design, is recuperating in a New York City hospital following brain surgery after an automobile accident in which the Fullers were involved.

He returned to campus Monday to deliver his scheduled lecture in the Department of Design series but said he expected to return Wednesday to New York.

He said his wife, Anne, is in University Hospital and he thinks she will be there another 10 days.

He and his wife were in a taxicab riding from Kennedy Airport to New York City and the cab went out of control. Mrs. Fuller at first appeared only shaken up, and first diagnosis was a concussion and bruises. On the basis of this diagnosis, Fuller flew to Beirut to keep an engagement there.

Two days after the May 1 accident, Mrs. Fuller suffered a brain hemorrhage and was hospitalized. The surgery followed, and Fuller said it was successful.

Fuller and the taxicab driver were not injured.

The evening also included installation of next year's Executive Council officers. The semiformal banquet marked the last social event to be held at the old Baptist Student Union, which is being vacated this year.

Miss Gregory, a junior from Marissa, Ill., was presented the award for her work in the BSU during the year. She has served as chapel chairman, member of the Steering Committee for the spring banquet and will serve as secretary on next year's Executive Council.

The newly installed officers are Eddie Olds, president; Revis Turner, vicepresident; Dianne Gregory, secretary; Jo Ellen Brown, chapel chairman; Kathy Kammler, international student chairman; Myra Dye, "Beacon" editor; Bob Fuson, enlistment chairman; Joyce Hesterberg, Brenda Hall and Calvin Watson, missions chairmen; Beverly Miller and Monty Collier, social chairmen; Jan Smith and Merritt Litherland, Interfaith Council representatives.

The Rev. Nelson Reagan, assistant pastor of the Third Baptist Church in St. Louis, delivered the keynote message to the 85 in attendance.

Hartzog Signs Weightmen Galore

By Tom Wood

A few years before Bob Richards put away his spikes to turn his attention to cornflakes and Don Bragg went sulking off into anonymity with his aluminum pole, as the Greeks tell it, a fellow called Atlas made a full scale assault on Olympus and for his efforts he was burdened with the weight of the world for something like an eternity.

Well, this season track Coach Lew Hartzog has been trying to conquer the collegiate track world and has faced a weighty problem himself.

But Hartzog, figuring eternity is a bit long in the coaching racket, appears to have solved his problem in just two weeks.

He has had to make the transition from past seasons, when he enjoyed the company of George Woods, one of the best in the country at picking up heavy, inanimate objects and throwing them very long distances, to present, life without Mr. Woods.

Hartzog has lost many points this season in dual and triangular competition due to lack of muscle in the events.

Woods seldom lost, including national competition, in the shot and when he picked up the discus points came rolling in also.

How has Hartzog adjusted to his 1967 dilemma? His 1967 recruiting shows signs that he is rather malcontent with the status quo.

In fact, after all the high school Herculeans have signed themselves away for four years to the institution of their choice, several collegiate coaches might be singing "Where have all the weightmen gone?"

They haven't "Gone to Hartzog," yet. But he's working on it.

One of these field event men has been practicing all spring under the wing of assistant coach Jim Hanley. His name is Mike Cox and he, according to Hanley, is capable of throwing the hammer (that's 16-pounds attached to a chain) further than any freshman has ever thrown it in these United States.

And Hanley might be classified an authority on the subject, as he is one of the top-ranked hammer men in the country right now.

Cox is making tremendous strides for someone who had never thrown the instrument before. Hanley thinks that student may soon surpass teacher. That means tosses of better than 190 feet.

Hartzog has recently signed three prep standouts, who have achieved state and national acclaim.

Dan Tindall of Princeton, N.J., probably the most notable of the trio, is the leading high school javelin thrower in the country. He has heaved the spear 233-11 this season. And he is a scholar to boot.

Dave Bayless of East St. Louis High School held the Illinois high school discus record in 1966 and finished sixth in the state meet this year, with a below par performance.

The most recent addition to this impressive list is Cape Girardeau's Fil Blackiston. Besides an unusually spelled first name, Blackiston owns second place in the state meet in both the shot and discus.

Bayless has tossed the discus 175 feet and Blackiston has gone 169-10 in the discus and 59-9 1/2 in the shot.

If they don't start building cars any wider, Hartzog will be taking twice as many University vehicles along on his track trips to accommodate this broad-shouldered foursome.

But that won't bother him. He won't be expected to hold up the sky for his challenges, but they may net him stooped shoulders from carrying so many trophies and medals around in the name of SIU.

WELCOME ADDITION-- Track Coach Lew Hartzog, above right, watches as Fil Blackiston signs a scholarship. Blackiston took second place in the Missouri state meet in shot put and discus. He is one of four big weight men Hartzog has signed in the past year, promising big things for the Saluki track teams of the future.

filled spring for new head Coach Dick Towers.

Towers and his staff have had a big task looking over numerous new faces and attempting to prepare a lineup for next fall.

Last Saturday's scrimmage provided some offensive fireworks for onlookers. The Red team defeated the Whites 36-6. Towers expressed pleasure over the performance of the offensive backfield.

Quarterbacks Barry Stein and Tim Kelley and defensive end Jack Hill shared scoring homers. Stein and Kelley racked up two scores apiece.

End John Ference returned to the offensive lineup after being sidelined with an injury. Ference was the leading SIU receiver last year.

However, the session was dominated by ground bound offensive play. Fullbacks Tom Wirth and Hill Williams and halfbacks Charlie Pemberton and Doug Hollinger carried much of the load.

The offensive line consistently opened big holes for the scabbacks.

Four interceptions were recorded by the defensive unit. In addition to Hills theft for a touchdown, linebacker Carl Mauck nabbed two and halfback Larry Cox picked off one.

The Salukis will spend much of this week working on blocking against shifting and stunting defenses and passing.

The intrasquad scrimmage, under game conditions will highlight the events of the day Saturday.

A day long coaching clinic will also be conducted by SIU coaches in conjunction with the climax of the drills.

JC Cage Standout

Signed for SIU

SIU basketball coaches brought another big man into the fold recently with the signing of Gus Chatman, a 6-7 junior college transfer from Fort Scott, Kans.

Chatman was an all-conference performer in the eastern division of the Jayhawk Juco League.

He averaged 17 points a game last season, scoring 429 points on 177 of 321 field goal attempts and 75 of 121 free throws.

Chatman prepped at Indianapolis Wood High School. He will be eligible for varsity competition next season.

NFL, AFL Open Spring Meetings

NEW YORK (AP) - The two major pro football leagues, publicly warring but secretly merging a year ago, open separate spring meetings Tuesday to discuss such matters as the site of the next Super Bowl game and expansion of the American Football League to 10 teams for 1968.

Miami's Orange Bowl appears the most likely location for the second Super Bowl, Sunday, Jan. 14, a game for which both the National Football League and the AFL would like to find another name.

Under the terms of the merger agreement, reached last June 8, each league was to add a new franchise by 1968.

The NFL already has added New Orleans as its 16th team for 1967.

The AFL is expected to move into Cincinnati for 1968 although some problems still remain to be solved. Eventually, it is planned to have two more franchises, possibly by the time of a planned single league schedule in 1970.

Pete Rozelle, now the commissioner of both leagues as well as head of the NFL, has indicated that Miami, Fla., was being strongly considered for the Super Bowl.

The first game was played in Los Angeles before 63,036 fans.

First Time Is Charm In Sportscar Autocross

By Ralph Broomhead

When SIU freshman Bob Piper went to put a nickel in his parking meter on South Illinois Avenue last Saturday, he found a blue sheet of paper under his windshield blade announcing an autocross to be held at Murdale Shopping Center.

The autocross was held last Sunday in a steady rain from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Piper, an accounting major from Decatur, drove his '65 Austin-Healey Sprite to the shopping center to see what kind of competition was going to race between the special markers in a zig-zagging race against time.

Piper, finding the sport interesting, entered his first autocross. His initial entry was successful as he took home the first place trophy.

Though the track was slippery, the race was close and the times were fast. Piper won the event with a time of 1:07.1, defeating the second place Porsche by one-tenth of a second.

"It was my first race, and I feel I had to have been lucky, especially winning by only one-tenth of a second," said Piper.

While still being interviewed in front of his winning sport car, an announcement emerged from inside the car which had its radio on, announcing that there is to be an autocross in St. Louis this weekend open to any sports car owners.

At this, Piper looked up, turned the radio's volume to a more perceivable tone, and said with enthusiasm, "I just may drive to St. Louis this weekend."

Arena Closed Saturday

The Arena will not be open for recreation purposes Saturday afternoon or evening due to a coaching clinic and the Saturday night stage show.

SIU Girls Compete At Golf Tournament

Four SIU girls paced their team to a fifth place finish in the Midwest Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament at Purdue University last weekend.

Paula Smith took eighth place with a 176 total. She was the highest SIU finisher. Lynn Hastie finished tenth for Southern with a 182 total.

Both girls were competing in the championship flight for individual and team awards.

Becky Daron took sixth place in first flight division with a 198 total over the Lafayette, Ind., course.

The team title was won by Michigan State with a 325 score. Second was Ohio State with 336, followed by Purdue at 354, Illinois State at 357 and Southern at 358.

The individual medalist for the two-day tourney was Michigan State's Joyce Kazmierski, who finished at 153 for the 36 holes.

Miss Kazmierski was the 1966 National Collegiate champion last year at Ohio State's home course.

Four Teams Entered

Salukis to Host District Baseball Tournament

By Bill Kindt

For the third time this quarter SIU will be the host school for an NCAA tournament. Starting Thursday and ending Saturday the Saluki baseball team will play host to the Fourth District playoffs for the NCAA title.

Four teams will begin play at 1 p.m. Thursday in a double elimination round-robin tournament. The winner of the SIU district meet will join the seven other district winners in Omaha, Neb., for the finals June 12-17.

Strangely enough, the same four teams will be playing for District Four honors this season that did last season.

Western Michigan, Ohio State and Valparaiso will join the Salukis on Thursday to make up the field.

Last season these four teams met at Columbus, Ohio, with Ohio State winning the district crown and eventually the NCAA title.

Western Michigan, with a won-lost record of 14-6, will probably be the choice to win the district crown this season. The Salukis are next in line to the Broncos in won-lost record with a 28-6 slate for a winning percentage of .823 to the Broncos .700.

Ohio State, the Big Ten Champion and defending district and NCAA champions, boasts a Big Ten mark of 13-5. Valparaiso will enter the tournament with a record of 14-6.

The Buckeyes of Ohio State will play the Vikings of Valparaiso in game one of the tournament at 1 p.m. Thursday. The Salukis will play the Broncos in game two which will begin 20 minutes after the conclusion of the Ohio State-Valparaiso contest.

The schedule for Friday will be the losers of game one against the losers of game two at 9:30 a.m. and the winners of game three and game four at 1 p.m. Friday.

On Saturday the winners of games four and five will play at 1 p.m. If the winner of Saturday's game is the winner of game four then the tournament is over but if the winner of this game happens to be the winner of game five then the two teams will go at it again to decide the winner later in the afternoon.

Last season the Salukis opened the tournament by playing the Broncos and Western Michigan rapped Saluki pitching for 21 hits on route to an 18-4 victory. Southern was knocked out of the tournament in the next game when Valparaiso scored two runs in the top of the 12th inning to defeat the Salukis 4-3.

Coach Joe Lutz has taken his Salukis into the NCAA University Division baseball playoffs both years he has been at Southern.

At the start of the season Lutz gave fair warning to the NCAA by stating that this year the Salukis would be in the NCAA tournament again but this time they would last longer.

That prediction has already been half fulfilled and the Salukis will have the advantage of playing in their home territory with their modern stadium completely equipped with Batgirl's, one of Lutz's innovations.

Salukis Win 2 in Doubleheader

By Bill Kindt

Combining near-perfect pitching and some lusty hitting, SIU defeated Tennessee University (Marrin Branch) 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader Saturday at the SIU field. The Salukis also won the nightcap 8-2.

Don Kirkland ran his season record to 9-3 with a two-hit shutout of the Volunteers. Kirkland struck out nine and issued only two walks. He was never in trouble.

The only Tennessee hits of the little righthander came in the third and seventh innings. Ray Frame singled in the third and George Grugette singled in the seventh but both of the hits were wasted.

Two homers provided the winning margin. Paul Pavesech hit a two-out, bases-empty homer in the fifth and John Mason slapped a two-run homer in the sixth.

Mason's homer came after Dwight Clark had singled and scored pinch runner Don Distasio in front of him.

Game two was a comedy

Women's Track Team

Readies For First Meet

The Women's Recreation Association will put on the first track meet for women ever held at SIU, Saturday at Carbondale Community High School.

The meet will be a triangular with Murray State and Illinois State providing the competition for the SIU girls.

Among the top performers for Southern will be Judy Toeneboehn of St. Louis and Ona White of Maxwell, Iowa.

The girls track coach is Sally Davidson. The 16 member squad is the first intercollegiate girls track team at SIU.

of errors as far as the visitors were concerned. Southern scored five runs in the third inning en route to their 28th win of the year.

Mason started the Saluki scoring in the second inning with his second homer of the day and seventh of the season with no one on base. Jimmy Dykes followed Mason's jolt with a walk and pinch runner Jerry Evans eventually scored on a single by Norm Harris.

Rich Hacker got the only SIU hit in the funny fifth. Five runs crossed the plate resulting from two walks, two wild pitches, a fielders' choice and an error on the Volunteer center fielder.

The final Saluki tally came in the fifth and was also the result of only one hit. Dick Bauch started the fifth with a single and scored when the Tennessee pitcher walked Evans, Ron Kirkland and Don Kirkland to score Bauch.

Harris pitched for Coach Joe Lutz and went five innings allowing the opponents two runs on three hits while walking four and striking out three. He received the credit for the victory although needing relief help from Bob Ash.

The St. Louis University Billikens cancelled the scheduled Sunday doubleheader with SIU and so the Salukis played an exhibition game for the Old Timers who were on hand. The outcome wasn't expected. The Saluki
