Karr Ordered to Show Feb. 14 Senate Minutes

By John Eggerthimer

Two Student Senators and a school official claim that the Student Government Office have charged Karr with of altering the content of Senate minutes.

Jerry Finney, who arrived by phone for comment Tuesday, said that he is supporting Senator Jerry Paluch and secretary Rhonda Storrs. Karr was not at the Student Government office at the time of the adjournment. Karr spoke to a group of Senators after the adjournment. Karr's office has charged that Coffin should have been allowed to appear before a formal Senate meeting.

The individuals towers, one for 616 women and the other for the same number of male students, have been named Mae Tovrilion Smith Tower and William B. Schneider Tower, after two deceased members of the SIU English department faculty. The complex building named John E. Grinnell Hall, former SIU vice president for academic affairs.

Several Senators were critical of Karr for adjourning a previous meeting before the Rev. William Sloane Coffin arrived to speak. Coffin, chaplain at Yale and University administration, said that he had been invited to speak to a group of Senators after the adjournment. Karr's office has charged that Coffin should have been allowed to appear before a formal Senate meeting.

No Students Quit School, Gerler Says

William Gerler, director of the Counseling and Testing Office, said that no black students withdrew from the University during the past two days.

Gerler said that 17 Negro students were given withdrawal slips from his office Monday and an additional five slips were given out Tuesday. Willbur Mouton, dean of students, said that his office has not received any letters from black students requesting to withdraw from the University.

A petition is currently circulating demanding the resignation of both President Dively W. Morris and Thomas L. Elliott, chief of the SIU Security Police and the entire police force.

The petition states that the University administration acted irresponsibly in handling the demonstration May 8. It also charged that the campus police force is "not qualified to properly function as a law enforcement agency.

Keep Illinois Beautiful
Carbondale Plans ‘Clean-Up Day’ To Celebrate Beautification Month

The city of Carbondale will hold a “City Clean-Up Day” Saturday to celebrate the governor’s proclamation of May as “Keep Illinois Beautiful Month.” The cleanup day will be held in cooperation with the Carbondale Council of Garden Clubs.

City Manager William Norman said that city trucks and drivers will be provided for every area of the city to collect all materials placed at the curbs along the streets by residents. SIU students will assist in loading miscellaneous items on trucks.

Citizens are urged to clean up yards, basements, attics and garages and take advantage of this opportunity to improve the appearance of property.

Arrangements have been made to provide free towing service to remove inoperable motor vehicles which have become an increasing problem in the city, according to Norman.

Norman pointed out that elderly or handicapped persons can make arrangements with the city to have items removed from their homes. Ar rangements must be made prior to clean-up day by telephoning city hall at 549-5502.

The city’s cost for labor and equipment for this one-day drive will be in excess of $500, not including volunteers, according to Norman. Norman urges that every resident help make the clean-up campaign a success.

Carbondale-St. Louis Bus Service Takes Bulk of Train Passengers

Bus service began picking up its share of the passenger travel between Carbondale and St. Louis Monday after the discontinuance of four trains by the Illinois Central Railroad. Only two trains continue to run between the two cities following an order last week by the Interstate Commerce Commission approving the severance as an economy move.

The two remaining trains are the 6:30 p.m. from St. Louis to Carbondale and the 5 a.m. run from Carbondale to St. Louis.

Gulf Transport Co. will operate buses from Union Station in St. Louis on the same schedule as the discontinued trains.

Buses in Carbondale will make stops at the railroad depot and at the bus depot on North Illinois Avenue.

Department times for buses from Carbondale and their destinations are: 7:10 a.m. and 12:03 p.m. (Union Railroad Station); 4:15 p.m. (St. Louis bus terminal); 7 p.m. (Union) and 10:15 p.m. (bus terminal).

Buses for Carbondale will leave Union Station via the bus terminal at 9:45 a.m. and 11:25 p.m.

Buses will leave the bus terminal at 9:40 a.m. and 12:35 p.m.

Steering Group Applications Ready For Homecoming

Applications for membership on Homecoming steering committee are available at the distribution center in the University Center. Don Kapral, student body vice-president-elect for activities, says the deadline for filling these applications is Friday.

Kapral said the purpose of the steering committee is to organize and direct activities associated with Homecoming.

Kapral hopes Homecoming will be expanded to the size of the Spring Festival. Should this happen, he said, greater student participation and an increased number of subcommittees would be needed.

Fair Housing Complaint Filed Against Imperial West Dorm

Roger C. Fortune, a junior from East St. Louis, Ill., filed the first formal complaint under Carbondale’s 1967 fair housing ordinance against the owners and manager of Imperial West Dormitory, 404 S. Graham St.

In his complaint, Fortune says that he and another student, Richard Wallace, both enrolled in May 1 for a room in the Fall and summer quarters.

Fortune, a Negro, says that he was told there was no space. Later, he was told that rooms were available.

A copy of Fortune’s complaint has been sent to all persons involved and a hearing has been set by the fair housing board for June 3 to attempt a conciliatory agreement.

The complaint formallycharges Carl Alexander, manager of Imperial West, and Jerome A. Robinson and Associates, Inc. of Springfield, identified as the owner of the dormitory, with discriminatory housing policies.

Jerry Lacey, chairman of the fair housing board, said Alexander had quit as the dormitory manager since the incident.

The number of general hospitals offering treatment on a regular basis has increased by 39 per cent since 1964. Even so, the need for greater coordination between hospitals and psychiatric treatment centers is imperative if our hospitals are to be staffed by the most competent doctors.

An announcement of a recent survey made by the National Institute of Mental Health reveals that nearly 500,000 psychiatric patients were treated and released from general hospitals during 1965. In 1967, 644 hospitals offered psychiatric treatment in both separate and general wards, and 705 general hospitals were reported to have outpatient treatment programs.

We have the federal government to thank for much of this increase in the treatment of mental illness in our nation’s hospitals. Due to the 1963 Community Health Centers Act and subsequent amendments, hospitals have been made eligible for grants-in-aid for construction and training funds. In addition, the statute gives special priority to general hospitals—as potential sponsors of community health centers—requiring only that services provide for both comprehensive inpatient and outpatient mental illness.

But even though the United States has led the world in psychiatric training and research for over 40 years, an integration of training programs could improve the quality of our nation’s practitioners. Most of the present training occurs in separate departments of psychiatry. Some teaching hospitals do, however, offer psychiatric residencies in programs. The problem is that these programs are mostly experimental, and differ greatly from hospital to hospital.

There simply is not enough coordination existing between the various psychiatric, psychosomatic and psychoanalytic institutes. A student of psychiatry who wants to study psychoanalytic techniques must register at one institution while he is being trained at another. The expanding mental health facilities among our nation’s hospitals demand the training of many more psychiatrically trained physicians available. A greater integration of training techniques will help supply such personnel.

Would Die for Marines

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am a Marine veteran Candidate.

This summer I will conclude my training towards a commission in the United States Marine Corps. I then plan on making the Corps my career. I need to say at least 50 more words to furthers my ideas.

The articles of my beliefs are in Sipan, Iwo Jima, Korea, and Hill 831. Each Marine grave is a silent tribute to a man who may not have supported the policies of his government but had a dying wish to die for his faith in his country. I have pride enough in my ideas to leave myself above the opinions of the peace agitators. If I stopped to argue, I would insult the graves of countless Marines by exposing our honor and patriotism to a group which has neither.

I believe in the Corps enough to die for it. If these beliefs cannot under any stretch of interpretation except arrest and expulsion rather than expose my convictions to the discipline of the Corps. I have no rights, except those which I earn by my discharge of my country’s laws. I respect the Corps enough to educate myself to the best of my ability in college.

Therefore, I do not condone actions which may jeopardize this education. I do not impose the tenets of my code upon my fellow students. My convictions need no outside support, because my ideas are not for sale. I respect peace, but not a mijk-ajop peace held by adolescents and based on reason and vaccination to the enemies of my country.

I know that before such ideas become dominant, I would have died fighting for the rights of the world who hold such ideas. Others would be welcome, because I would have no wish to live in such a world.

Publish Cost Of Campaigns

To the Daily Egyptian:

Since two of the losing candidates in Wednesday’s election in our student government have already claimed the loss of the IMPACT party was a factor in the results of the election, I suggest that all candidates publish a statement of campaign expenditures, including the source of their funds; perhaps the Egyptian would be good enough to do this for some listing.

The amounts of expenditures are roughly equal for all candidates, then we can conclude that the quality of the candidates, and not their financing, determined the outcome of the election. If this equality is not true, then we can conclude that IMPACT got what it paid for.

Behind Administrations’ Decision

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am a 1967 graduate of SIU serving in Vietnam. I recently read in the Pacific Stars & Stripes’ of the protest at President Morris concerning the refusal of the University to invite Carmichael to the campus.

I was appalled at the hands that can participate directly with many actions of the University, such as car and housing policies and rules for the upper floors of the Student Center (which is used for everything from a storage area for the University Press to the advisement and section center), I didn’t tresspass or disrupt campus activity to show my displeasure though.

I am 100 per cent behind the University when it refused to have Carmichael on the campus, for several reasons.

1. I, as a lower like Car¬

Who Appointed Parrish?

To the Daily Egyptian:

Richard T. Parrish’s letter in the May 16 issue of the Daily Egyptian is in order.

He calls the outgoing student body president a well-intentioned individual who makes a reasonable recommendation.” But Parrish’s letter begins with the following sentence: “Many of us are becoming ‘angry Americans’ when we see the direction in which our country is heading.”

Who appointed Parrish? Parrish also promises to speak for the residents of Illinois many of whom he says are opposed to the current government in the United States.

He intends to speak for the majority of Black youths in his home state who he asserts are opposed to Stokely Carmichael as he is.

But Parrish is not content with posing as the spokesman of the students of SIU nor of the taxpayers of Illinois nor even of the United States. He pretends to speak for civilization itself which he maintains is threatened by communism.

Form Campaign Expense Rules

Publish Cost Of Campaigns

To the Daily Egyptian:

Since two of the losing candidates in Wednesday’s election in our student government as well as representatives from student government, needs to be formed. This board should have the power to set up guidelines for student campaign expenses as well as the power to establish an arbitrary limit on campaign spending by individual candidates or parties. Each candidate or slate of candidates for executive positions should be required to file a report of campaign expenses to this board. In this manner, they can be sure that the majority of students remain open to all potential candidates despite the rigors and expenses incurred.

The Student Senate needs to take the lead in the formation of a Campaign Rules and Expense Board. If this board is formed in a timely manner, the next students will have ample time to formulate and establish campaign expense rules concerning campaign expenses before the next major student election.

An Editor's Outlook

Paradise by Court Order

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

General Features Corp.

When 80-year-old Hugo Lafayette Black unloaded on his fellow Supreme Court justices during a Columbia law school lecture this spring, he said nothing that hadn't been said with the Government's aid by myriads of lawyers and legislators before him.

But there was a man in the twilight of his years, living beyond the need of political favor or personal approval, who, as he put it, was faced with the "fear of our constitutional system." And he tagged his brother justices for the peril.

"Power corrupts, and unrestrained power will tempt Supreme Court justices just as history tells us it did in all other branches. Given absolute or near absolute power, judges may exercise it to bring about changes that are inimical to freedom and good government...."

I propose to believe that the basic purpose and plan of the Constitution is that the federal government should have no powers except those that are expressly or impliedly granted and that no department of government—executive, legislative or judicial—has authority to add to or take away the powers granted or denied by the Constitution....

"...and that no departmental system in which appointed judges can strike down a law passed by Congress or a state legislature with no more justification than that the judges believe the law is 'unreasonable.'"

In recent years, and particularly since the accession of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the appointment of judges more famous for social activism than awe of the law, the judges have turned themselves, not as a protector of rules, but as a creator of them.

The difference is fundamental. It was 165 years ago when, in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, the Court seized its right to strike down federal statutes that appeared to contravene the intent of the Constitution.

It was a reasonable seizure. After all, you wouldn't have much of a constitutional system if Congress could nullify any part of it with a simple vote. Someone had to make subjective judgments of what the Constitution meant, and who better than the highest court?

Until the Warren court came along, when judges apparently generally did not over diverse interpretations of the letter of the law. But the majority court was characterized by its determination to widen the First, Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments by interpretations that hadn't occurred to previous justices.

The court's defenders have argued that in a rapidly changing society the court is simply keeping up with the needs of the times and that the process of amending the Constitution is so slow that the interest of the people would not be served by waiting for it. But a process for amending the Constitution does exist, and it would be interesting to see how many state legislatures would approve any amendments that would force employers running sensitive defense plants to hire anyone, to hire persons of any race, to hire members of any organized labor group, or an amendment that would force police to release a confessed rapist in 20 cases an as a like-minded interest in arrest and arraignment.

Yet the Supreme Court has accomplished these wonders by simply interpreting the Constitution in novel and hitherto-unthought-of ways.

Dean Rusk's put poor Harvard put it well a few years ago when he remarked that the court's effort to achieve absolute justice was "the personal beliefs of its majority, the law vanishes and a system of decrees and edicts takes over."

All sincere about how to operate on the same theory. "The law is supposed to be for the people, and if the law is bad for the people, Ergo, this is the law."

There seems to be no logical substitute for the Supreme Court as the last word in the interpretation of the Constitution. But the flippant theory that "the law is what the Supreme Court says it is" must have some limitations if a system of law is to survive.

If the Supreme Court persists in its apparent drive to nullify Congress as it chooses, and to obstruct any performance of the Executive Branch, then we no longer have a system of political, business, and labor leaders may be driven to ratifying a series of constitutional amendments so clear in their meaning and so obvious that Congress could have to deny the meaning of the English language to override them, and that system's checks and balances is worth preserving.

What Kind of World?

Unrest of West German Youth

By Robert W. Hutchins

Los Angeles Times

I arrived in West Germany on the day Rudl Dutschke, leader of the student antiwar movement, was arrested and left three weeks later, the day after the rightist National Democratic Party got 9.4 percent of the votes in the West German elections.

There was some connection between the two events. The National Democratic Party and its Dutschke-oriented faction produced student riots and violent clashes with the police all over the country. The National Democratic Party is professed by the demand for the repression that is the usual reaction to any disorderly manifestation of discontent.

It is hard for a foreigner to take the result of the election in Baden-Wurttemberg as seriously as the Germans did. Every important politician and every responsible newspaper dreamed of a peaceful solution and approval of the exasperations of alarm. There were many calls for changes in the electoral law that would prevent the National Democrats from getting any seats in the national legislature. There was even talk of putting to rest one of the arguments of the Nazis, whatever their views on other subjects.

I do not want another Hitler.

The National Democrats have gained seats in seven out of the 11 state legislatures. Their repudiation of the Nazis has distinguished themselves by their incompetence and ineffectiveness. The party had to program beyond the restoration of German greatness. Since there is an economic boom going on and all signs point to its continuity, the kind of dissatisfaction Hitler exploited does exist.

The National Democrats that does exist is intense and widespread, but it is of quite a different nature than not help the National Democrats. It is the dissatisfaction of the young with the smugness, inertia and indifference of the adult society. They are particularly outraged by the largete, by the business power, by the West German economic and political system. They see Bonn, that sleepy city on the Rhine, as a place where self-satisfied, self-seeking politicians spend their time in idle conversation about things that are no longer interesting, like anti-Semitism, German reunification and the promotion of industry.

By Kraftingle's so-called "Grand Coalition" of Kurt Kleistinger's Christian Democrats and Willy Brandt's Social Democratic Party, which put an end to any effective parliamentarianism, nourishes the conviction among the young that there is nothing to hope for from conventional political action. Hence they themselves, the "extra-parliamentary action," which are determined to force the politicians to move on matters like educational reform or to bring about fundamental changes in the political system.

On the day I returned to New York, Columbia University was shut down. The attack on the Sorbonne in Paris was closed.

Students are restless, to put it mildly, all over West Germany. Many of the reasons. West German students suffer from the same ills as American students. To begin with, they are 20 years old and 20 years old and 20 years old and 20 years old. They are excited, they want things to be different. If they want things to be different, they want things to be different. They want things to be different.

They are excited, they want things to be different. If they want things to be different, they want things to be different. They want things to be different.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has grounded 42 of its F111 fighter bombers for repair of a defective hy-

The planes had been re-

The Air Force said pre-

Twelve early models of the F111 including one reconnais-

Prospect of Progress Noted at Talks

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman expressed hope Tuesday night that something will come from a British-Soviet meeting in Moscow on Vietnam. Other Americans, who profess to see a faint prospect of progress in preliminary talks here and perhaps their enlargement, Harriman expressed his views after paying what he said was a courtesy call on President Charles de Gaulle. Later, North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, met with De Gaulle. Both expressed cordial interviews with the president and Thuy said De Gaulle expressed the hope Paris peace talks would succeed.

As the Americans and North Vietnamese prepared for their fourth session at the French International Conference Center Wednesday a subtle change in the Anglo delegation's phrasing held American interest.

Instead of saying the two sides could discuss "other matters of common interest" if the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam ended, the Hanoi delegation spokesman spelled out a possible "second stage" for talks involving political settlement.

A U.S. spokesman quickly pointed out that should a political stage be reached, South Vietnam "would certainly be involved." The United States, he said, was not in a position alone "to reach a political settlement with Hanoi," and evidently meant any proposal of settlement would be rejected if it meant leaving the Saigon government out in the cold.

Should the "second stage" come to pass, it could mean a break in the log jam and enlargement of the conference. But the basic positions of the two sides at least publicly remained unchanged, diplomatic activity radiating from these talks suggested an international eagerness to avert a breakdown.

There were hints that if the issue of U.S. bombing should be overcome, the conference might be widened to include such other interested nations as the Soviet Union, Britain, France, South Vietnam and perhaps some Asian nations, including Japan, Red China, dead set against peace in Vietnam, is not considered in a position to prevent such a development.

Council Approves Plans
For Wastewater Plant

The Carbondale City Council approved Tuesday night the final preliminary recommendations for a new wastewater purification plant to be constructed on the City Farms Site in the eastern section of the city.

The council's approval gives the Clark-Ditze and Associates Consulting Engineers firm authorization to begin planning its work on the $3,610,000 project. A representative of the firm said that construction could begin by Sept. 1, 1968. The council also approved a resolution pledging that the

A Daily Egyptian reporter Tuesday attempted to talk with Daniel Thomas, who says he is a spokesman for a group of black students, about both the petition and the threatened withdrawal of black students. Thomas, however, refused to speak to him.

Monday night Thomas asked the student Senate to request that the administration drop complaints against students arrested for mob action in connection with the May 8 incident at President Morris' office. The Senate delayed action until tonight's regular meeting.

Thomas is acting as spokesman for black students who have threatened to withdraw from SIU unless the University meets their demand that all charges against the seven arrested students be dropped.

The sum of all notes to the federal government for the Lin-Cott Neighborhood Urban Renewal housing project will not exceed the amount of $1,357,217 grant. A note to the federal government for $229,323, to be used for intermediate planning and development on the project, was approved by the council.

Karr Ordered to Show Minutes

(Continued from Page 1) Finney says he believes that several student organizations have not received travel funds allocated by the Senate to them because the minutes have not been approved.

The minutes are typed by secretaries and then edited by Karr. Miss Stearns takes notes at the Senate meetings and then transcribes them. Finney said that he believes Karr is going to "sit out" the minutes until the end of the term.

Miss Stearns said Karr has had typed transcripts of her notes of several Senate meetings, including the Feb. 14 meeting, in his desk for two months. She said they were missing as of Monday.

Paluch said he has photocopies of the original transcript of the Feb. 14 meeting. The transcript has many portions critical of Karr deleted, Paluch said.

Recommendations for appropriations of student activity fees for the next fiscal year will be presented to the Senate tonight. The Senate finance committee met Tuesday night to vote its recommendations.

One proposal the committee is considering is the forming of a "Free University" of student-established courses, financed by activity fees.

The Senate will also consider the proposal made Monday by Daniel Thomas, who claims to be the leader of a group of black students.

Sports Fans!
I Bet You Didn't Know

By Sidney N. Starr

A sportswriter in another city recently made an observation that's interesting to think about... He said that when the very first baseball rules were written, a civil engineer named Alexander Cartwright arbitrarily set the distance between the bases at 90 feet. Think about... How many different baseball might there have been if the Cartwright ed. in 1839 had set the bases at 95 feet, 80 feet, or 85 feet? Suppose there were only 85 feet between the bases? Then how many more men would be safe at first on infield hits and how much more scoring wouldn't be in baseball. If it were 95 feet, think how many fewer hits and how much lower scoring the game would be.

Can you guess which city in America has the most golf courses? It's not New York or Los Angeles... Answer is Chicago... And the city that has the second-most is Pittsburgh.

Of all the men who have grilled golf, which one had the most perfect golf swing? A survey was taken on that question recently, and the man pegging the most votes was Sam Snead.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — lower death rate and are living five years longer on the average than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men makes possible the broader benefits and greater cash values in College Life policies. This certainly makes good sense, doesn't it?

Free School students enrolled in the social reality class are collecting food to be used at Resurrection City in Washington D.C., this summer. The students have been standing in front of super-markets the last two Saturdays asking shoppers to buy something extra and donate it when they come out of the store.

Bill Kist, coordinator of the social reality class, said so far the students have collected over $350 in food. Next Saturday will be the last time the students will collect the food before sending it off to Washington, Kist said.

According to Kist, the most desired food items are baby foods, powdered milk, and dry cereals. Almost any non-perishable, canned or dry foods are welcomed. Kist said the effort is only a part of the larger Carbondale Food Drive, directed by another SIU student, Steve Lewis. The Food Drive and the students’ food collections are part of the Poor People’s Campaign originally set up by the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Two citizens of Carbondale are presently representing Carbondale at Resurrection City. Mack Martin and Norvell Haynes have been in Washington for several weeks. Both are new marshall's for the Poor People's Campaign, Lewis said.

Leadership Academy begins in June

The Sesquicentennial, which runs from Dec. 4, 1967 to Dec. 3, 1968, has had other noted events in southern Illinois earlier this year.

On Febrary 13 Shawnee-town was the scene of a stamp festival. The small town had ceremonies celebrating the issuance of a special six-cent stamp honoring Illinois' 150 years of statehood.

The community was chosen because it is the site of the oldest continuous post office in Illinois, going back to 1811.

The Chamber of Commerce will appoint students more with the workings of the Student Activities Office.

3 Major Revisions to Affect 1968 College World Series

Three major changes in the format of the National College Baseball Championship, the College World Series, have been approved by the NCAA Executive Committee. The 1968 Series will be held in Omaha’s Rosenblatt Stadium, June 10-15.

In past years, the first-round pairings have been approved by lot, but under the new format advanced by the NCAA Baseball Rules and Tournament Committee, with the 1968 season the first-round games have been established as in a double-round robin affair. Each district will play each other district twice over a 14-year period and will be designated home team seven times in that span.

As a result, the following pairings will open the 1968 tournament: District One vs. District Two, District Three vs. District Four, District Five vs. District Six and District Seven vs. District Eight.

The second major change could result in an additional day of play. In previous years, four games were played each of the first two days which resulted in two teams being eliminated on the second day. Now, winners’ bracket evening doubleheaders will highlight the first two days with the losers playing a single game each afternoon. In effect, the first two rounds will take three days to complete instead of two as in the past.

Netmen Suffer Third Loss of Year Against Mississippi State Maroons

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals were out Monday taking extra batting practice at Busch Stadium as Manager Red Schoendienst looked for the spark that could lift his defending world champions out of a four-game losing streak.

The Cardinals opened a 10-game homestand Monday night against Los Angeles after losing four of six games in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

"It's amazing we’re still in first place," Schoendienst said before Monday night's game.

"When you realize that we scored only seven runs on the road trip, that speaks pretty well of the pitching," Lou Brock, who brought a .216 batting average home from the trip, was taken out of the starting line-up Sunday by Schoendienst. But the skipper indicated he planned to have Brock back in the line-up Monday night.

"Brock's been taking extra batting practice," Schoendienst continued. "He's trying...but he's just not in the groove. He took too much hitting on the trip that he had blisters on his hands," Brock, along with first baseman Orlando Cepeda and catcher Tim McCarver were among the Cardinals’ getting their extra cuts at Monday's session.

Cepeda is hitting .233 and McCarver, .222.

Curt Flood, at .350, is the only regular hitting above .300. Pitching has kept the Cardinals on top.

Among the starting pitchers, Bob Gibson, despite 3-3 record, has a .36 earned run average and has given up but 53 hits in 72 2/3 innings. The other three starting pitchers and their won-lost and ERA marks include: Steve Carlton 4-1, 2.57, Nelson Briles 5-3, 2.43 and Ray Washburn 3-2, 2.25.

Scholarship Program Disappoints Vogel

By Barb Leebens

Women's Gymnastic Coach Herb Vogel feels in the expansion program, when SIU coaches discuss their impressions of the Board of Trustees' recent decision to increase the availability of NCAA scholarships.

He's not at all satisfied. Vogel says that apparently no NCAA scholarships will be allotted to his team even though it has won five national titles in the past five years. Vogel feels his athletes are entitled to some form of financial aid.

Only three of the 10 women on his team presently receive any kind of aid. These three get physical education athletic scholarships which allow for $100 a quarter and are awarded on academic excellence.

Gymnastics must maintain a 3.0 grade point or the scholarship is withdrawn. Other gymnasts can be given only the promise of the opportunity of a campus job,

"Most people feel that women's gymnastics is below male athletics," Vogel said. "However, without some type of aid, the girls are forced to work, and how many people can afford to put in three hours a day at work, four hours of class, and then still be physically fit for three hours of practice?"

Vogel argues that a scholarship or some form of aid is not needed for recruiting of new gymnasts. He views the aid as a means to lessen the pressure so the gymnast can concentrate on her education, gymnastic composition and still have time to lead a normal social life.

Until recently NCAA scholarships had not been awarded to any women athletes. Two years ago the first NCAA scholarship was offered by Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., to Linda Moehlman, now of Centenary College.

Southern's prestige in gymnastics is a big enough drawing point for recruiting, according to Moore. Because of the lack of prestige in gymnastics competition.

"I'm happy with the present athletic program here at Southern. No one could ask for a better program or finer facilities," Vogel said. "To this I have no objections. I'm just interested in making the girls a little easier for the fans." Vogel said.

Living expenses, travel, long distances and time to study are among the main reasons Vogel feels his girls should be able to obtain more financial aid. Only one of the 10 girls on the team is from Illinois. The rest of them are from California, Florida, Canada, Mississippi and even come as far as Sweden. Because of the lack of money some of them can't go home during the year," Vogel said. Because of the lack of financial support, the girls worry about working three hours a day, finding enough time to study, finding time to work out and still try to squeeze in some social life.

"The girls understand what they are getting into when they come. They are proud of what they do and the school they represent," Vogel said. And to many of them it involves a lot of budgeting and a tight schedule.

Centralia College, a chief rival of SIU, is given 50 percent of its travel money and must earn the other half. Southern, on the other hand, is given substantial travel money, but no financial aid.

"They don't feel that anyone owes them anything," Vogel said. "All they want is to be identified with the program here at SIU; it would make it all the easier for them with some financial support." Vogel said.

Back Expansion Plan

By Dave Palermo

Coaches and athletic directors from some of the top high schools in the state all feel that the athletic expansion program planned for SIU will greatly enhance recruiting in the future.

Centralia basketball coach Bob Jones feels the new program is "really great!" and adds that "It is high time they (SIU) went big time."

"In the past few years one of the main reasons Southern has not fared well in recruiting was their inability to offer the full ride NCAA scholarships," he said. "The work program type of scholarships is not that tough, but it's discouraging."

Basketball coach Walt Moore of Carbondale Central High School was also glad to hear of the expansion program.

"Obviously it will help as far as the total amount of boys they will get," said Moore. "They will be able to compete on the same scale of other colleges and will get a lot more boys they would have lost in the past."

Former Belleville coach Gerald Turner, who coached ex-SIU cager Jay Westcott and Roger Friedel, said that although SIU coaches always followed efficient recruiting procedures, they've lost a great many good high school players because of a lack of full ride scholarships.

"It is essential to have adequate NCAA scholarships now," Turner concluded.

"You can't compete with other schools unless you have the necessary full ride scholarships," said Leo Papworth, athletic director at Evanson High School. "Your facilities may have been better than the U of I's, but Illinois got the top athletes because they offered the full ride."

East Moline athletic director Gene McCarter feels that the increase in NCAA scholarships and improved facilities will help coaches in getting a few "late kids" still undecided about furthering their education.

Moore agreed with SIU Athletic Director Donald Boyard, who said he'd like to see the work program type of scholarships continue to some degree.
