Robberies up from last year

Police respond to report of 6th in month

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

Carbondale and University police responded to a report of an armed robbery call Tuesday night at about 7:54 p.m., according to information received on a police radio scanner.

According to what was broadcast over the scanner, two suspects were stopped by University police. Police said nobody was arrested and would not verify any information broadcast.

Police followed a car and stopped it on Logan Street near Wright Hall, an East Campus dormitory.

Police would not say whether there was a robbery and said they would not release any information until this morning.

A fifth armed robbery this month occurred Monday night at a liquor store on Main Street. If the information on the scanner was correct, the number of armed robberies for November would be six.

Five robberies have occurred since Nov. 1, compared with no reported robberies in November 1987, Carbondale Police said.

Two men walked into and robbed T.J.'s Package Liquor Store, 1224 W. Main St., at 9:55 p.m. Monday, police said. Police have no suspects in custody.

Carbondale Police said two black males in their 20s were reported to have entered the liquor store. The men asked the clerk to get them something that was behind him, Art Wright, public information officer for the Carbondale Police, said. "When the clerk was turned around, the men pulled out their guns," he said.

The men fled on foot while the clerk lay on the floor, Wright said. The clerk did not see which direction the men went, he said. Police said a small amount of cash and personal checks made out to the business were stolen.

Three of the five robberies have similar suspects but police have not linked the crimes together. "There is a

Universities want state funds raised 18.7 percent

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Illinois public universities are requesting an 18.7 percent state funding increase over fiscal year 1989, according to a report on 1990 budget requests for Illinois Higher Education.

The budget requests that have been given to the Illinois Board of Higher Education are for operations and grants, which include salary increases, base adjustments, cost increases, operations and maintenance of new areas and program and institutional support.

The IBHE reviews the requests and makes necessary cuts, then the requests go to the governor who makes his recommendations and eventually the appropriations bill goes through legislation.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said, "We're usually

Report: Let IBHE set tuition limits

By Jackie Spinner

The Illinois Board of Higher Education should be able to enforce its recommendations about tuition levels, according to a report by the Illinois Student Association.

Illinois universities have been ignoring recommendations on tuition levels made by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the board is doing nothing about it, David Starrett, ISA executive director, said.

The IBHE recommends universities don't set tuition higher than one-third of the cost of instruction, but many universities exceed this level.

It is expected that SIU will exceed the level with the 18.3 tuition increase approved in October.

what the other universities are asking. Pettit said that the IBHE usually goes a little below the highest request.

For some civil service employees SIU is asking for more than the 13.1 percent increase, Pettit said.

Also, the request for library funds is more than the other universities except the University of Illinois. According to the report, SIU is asking for 24.1 percent average and U of I for 25 percent.

Overall SIU-C is asking for a 17.2 percent increase in operations and grants, SIU-E for a 19.8 percent increase and central administration a 45.2 percent increase.

Central administration's increase is mainly for an increase in computer support called the Information

Engineering dean departing with mission accomplished

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

"All the significant things I wanted for the college have happened," Kenneth Tempelmeier says after 10 years as dean of the College of Engineering and Technology. "I've been dean for two-and-a-half times longer than the average time for deans across the country."

Tempelmeier will step down January 1.

During his term as dean,

Tempelmeier has overseen the establishment of four traditional engineering degrees, increased state funding for the college's academic programs by $2.5 million per year, increased external research funding from $300,000 a year in the late 70s to more than $2.6 million a year, proposed and established research centers that interact with about 40 industrial companies, established a

Gorbachev urges change of Soviet political system

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev opened a landmark session of the nation's rubber-stamp parliament Tuesday by asking the body to step aside in favor of a more Western-style legislature that would expedite his dramatic economic reforms. In a speech running more than 50 pages and carried in full by the official Tass news agency, Gorbachev passionately urged the Supreme Soviet to overhaul what he called the nation's "ossifying" political system.

City council bans blacks from parks, facilities

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A city council controlled by conservatives voted to ban blacks from all municipal parks, lavatories and sports facilities Tuesday in a challenge to the minority white government to "put your money where your mouth is." State-run television reported that the council in Brakpan, 15 miles east of Johannesburg, voted to enforce provisions of the national government's Separate Amenities Act, joining neighboring Boksburg town in enforcing openly racist policies.

Ministers give nudge to stalled peace process

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Foreign ministers from five Central American countries hope to restart the stalled regional peace process and pave the way for a presidential summit in a two-day meeting opening Tuesday. The meeting, initially scheduled to get under way in the morning, was postponed until late afternoon when the Salvadoran foreign minister failed to make his flight Monday into Mexico City.

Thousands mark election massacre in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Thousands of demonstrators watched by heavily armed troops marched in the capital Tuesday to mark the 31st anniversary of election-day massacres in which at least 34 people were slain. Military ruler Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril last week declared the anniversary a national day of commemoration. Troops armed with M-16s and Uzi sub-machine guns and wearing flak jackets patrolled streets in trucks.

Judge drops wire fraud count against North

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The judge in the Iran-Contra case dismissed Tuesday a wire fraud count against ex-White House aide Oliver North but rejected defense motions to throw out six of the remaining 14 counts. The felony count that was dropped concerned North's use of wires to transfer to the Nicaragua Contra rebels millions of dollars in proceeds from the secret U.S. arms sales to Iran.

GE charged with fraud against government

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury in Philadelphia indicted General Electric Co. Tuesday on charges of scheming to defraud the government of more than $22 million on a 1983 Army contract for battlefield computer systems. GE, the nation's third largest defense contractor, was awarded nearly $6 billion in contracts last year for the MX missile, nuclear reactors for submarines, underwater sound equipment and other projects.

Engineers prepare for secret shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — NASA engineers kept tabs on a threatening cold front Tuesday and pressed on with a secret countdown for the shuttle Atlantis's blastoff Thursday on a $375 million cloak-and-dagger flight to put a spy satellite into orbit. A new post-Challenger "mission management team," met Tuesday to consider the progress of flight preparations and the prospects for completing critical milestones in time for blastoff, which sources say is planned for around 6 a.m. Thursday.

Educators ask Bush to be education president

NEW YORK (UPI) — Columbia University President Michael T. Sovern Tuesday invited President-elect George Bush to a campus conference to tell what the "education president" has in mind for the academic trail. Sovern, speaking on behalf of six major research universities, also urged Bush to "marshal all the existing authorities of the federal government" to help about 1 million children living in poverty. During the presidential campaign, Bush said he would be the "education president."

speaking events. SIU-C's ranking is based almost solely on cross-examination debate.

The University's debate squad ranks first in the nation at the close of the first half of the debate season.

Coach Jeffrey Bile says SIU-C earned the top spot in the National Cross-Examination Debate Association poll released last week. Some 300 schools were ranked in the poll, Bile said.

"Our 108 points makes us the most dominant team in intercollegiate debate," Bile said. SIU-C has captured the association's national title for the past three years.

In the November release of the 1988 Intercollegiate Speech Tournament Results Book, SIU-C is ranked second behind Cornell.

Rankings, which reflect performances for the previous academic year, cover four kinds of forensic activities—two debate styles and two divisions of individual

"Apparently our Cross-Examination Debate Association-style debate was so overwhelming it carried us up to second place nationwide," Bile said. "We beat over 800 schools. We have never ranked that high before in this listing."

SIU-C finished the fall debate season with a first-place showing at Wichita State's Mel Moorehouse Invitational Tournament on Nov. 21. The field included 20 teams from six states.

Team members John Lapham, a senior in political science from Seattle, Wash., and Mark West, a junior in political science from Bainbridge Island, Wash., won blue-ribbon honors by defeating Central State (Okla.) University.

'She Stoops to Conquer' shows vintage humor

By Beth Clavin
Entertainment Editor

"She Stoops to Conquer," which will be performed in McLeod Theater Thursday through Sunday, is a comedy that reflects the theater of the time, according to director Christian H. Moe.

"(The play) gives a flavor of an 18th century performance," he said.

The play, written by Oliver Goldsmith, is the story of a bashful young hero named Marlow, whose father, Sir Charles, arranges for him to marry Kate Hardcastle. After Marlow and a friend get lost on their way to meet the bride for the first time, they find themselves prey to a trick by Kate's brother.

The two find themselves inside the Hardcastle home believing it to be a public inn. Marlow therefore mistakes Mr. Hardcastle as a landlord and Kate as a serving maid. This mistaken identity is the basis for the humor.

The play also includes a song performed by the actors and a country dance scene at the end.

Moe said to further the audience's understanding of the 18th century theater, "wing and drop" scenery will be used. This includes one-dimensional painted scenery and backdrops.

In addition, Moe, who is chairman of the theater department, said the play's actors use a unique "presentation style" by talking to the audience as well as to each other, adding more humor to the performance. The actors also give a prologue and epilogue to the play, explaining the plot.

The actors authentically portray the characters by wearing clothing similar to that worn in the time period. This includes women wearing corsets and men wearing high heels, he said.

Moe said extra time was spent with the actors to show them how to walk in high heels and talk with British accents.

The theater is sponsoring a contest to get the audience involved in 18th century history. The first person to bring a recipe for "King William's Posset," a type of punch, to the McLeod Theater Box Office or Theater Department will receive two free tickets to a performance.

The play begins at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday.

Lighten your load this semester by carrying an extra bit.

Even if you're up to your eyebrows in homework, you needn't carry the world on your shoulders.

Not with a Macintosh™ computer on your desk.

Think of an assignment that weighs heavily on your mind right now—say, a term paper. With Macintosh, you can bring instant order to the jumble of notes, scribbles, quotes, and excerpts that'll go into your paper. You can quickly draft an outline, change the order of topics, and jot down related ideas at will.

Then you start to write. You don't like the way you phrased a paragraph? No problem—try something new without erasing or retyping a word. Want to move the second page of your first draft to the tail end of your last draft? It only takes a few seconds.

With Macintosh, you can also have your paper proofread in a minute or two. And you can illustrate it with professional-looking drawings and graphs, even if you don't know a T-square from a T-bird.

And here's the clincher: You can learn to do all of these things—all of them—in less time than you might spend studying for a Monday morning quiz. Starting Sunday.

Midsemester break would create options

A MIDSEMESTER break in the fall is an idea that deserves careful consideration. In the spring, students get a break near the middle of the term, but the only fall break comes just two weeks before finals. Administrators for years have toyed with the idea of moving the fall break, but this year the idea has found its impetus in the Halloween Fair Days.

President John C. Guyon said that creating a break that falls on Halloween would help curtail a Halloween celebration that he and some city officials believe is getting out of control.

However, Guyon knows there are other reasons for moving the break and we agree.

A GOOD DEAL of pressure builds over the course of the 14 weeks before the fall break. Interrupting the semester in midstream, approximately at the end of midterm exams, would alleviate some of that pressure. As the school calendar stands, students dive right into the second half of the semester after a stressful week of exams.

When considering creating a new break at the end of October, administrators will have to come to grips with Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving is a University holiday, and many students and faculty travel great distances to celebrate the occasion with family and friends. Any plan to re-arrange the school calendar must allow for this holiday tradition.

PRESIDENT GUYON has said that no change will occur until all campus constituency groups have been consulted. So, students, faculty and staff should begin thinking about how they would like the administration to handle the Thanksgiving dilemma. There are many options, including expanding the school calendar to allow for two shorter breaks.

Even though many of us will not be here in 1990, which is the earliest the calendar can be changed, the administration needs our insight into the pros and cons of changing the break.

President Guyon has graciously agree to allow us to participate in this decision rather than simply imposing his will on us. Obviously, the University administration would rather empty Carbondale's streets for the period around Halloween.

THE MIDSEMESTER break appears to be the only feasible alternative to a celebration fewer and fewer people seem to want. Students now have few options. Many find Halloween comes at a time when they are under a particularly great deal of strain. They find it only natural to blow off a little steam, and, unfortunately, some Halloween parties overdo it.

A break will give the students an alternative to Halloween in Carbondale. Many leave town already; more would do so given the extra travel time a break would allow.

And, there would be fewer people coming to Carbondale for that weekend, since many of the students would be gone. There would be no need to regulate Halloween. Students who wanted to stay could celebrate Halloween in Carbondale without fear of encountering huge, sometimes violent, crowds.

There would be no need to pass special fair days ordinances because the crowds that now jam the streets would not converge on Carbondale. Halloween would be safe and sane again.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editor, page editor, the associate editor, page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typed, written and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Palestinians should get home

It is time. Time to flex my freedom of speech privilege and exercise my right to stick my foot in my mouth, show my ignorance and mention a few things I don't understand.

Why does the U.S. blindly support Israel? I've hear our government gives Israel $3 billion in military aid each year. And Israel turns around and invades their unfriendly neighbor, Lebanon. To protect their borders. Why don't we give Russia $3 billion too and let them reinvade Afghanistan to protect their borders? You know those Afghan rebels shoot rockets off all the time. Pretty dangerous stuff. But I forget. We support Afghan rebels too. So why don't we give the Afghans the $3 billion and turn around and sell the Russians weapons, let them reinvade Afghanistan to protect their borders and everyone's happy. Those rebels are fighting and killing, the Russians occupy a little more territory "protecting their borders" and the U.S. turns a profit.

But Israel gets left out. That's O.K. I don't know why we support them anyway. Israel isn't a big trading partner, they don't make tape players, VCRs, Walkmans, Toyotas, Mazdas or Nissans, which are made in Japan. They don't make BMW's, Porsches or Mercedes which are made in Germany. And they certainly don't make Rolls Royces, the Beatles or George Michael. These are made in England. And everything else is "Made in Taiwan." But Israel gets a lot from us. Something like $3 billion in military aid a year. All they have to do to keep getting this is remain an unfaithful ally, keep democracy within their borders, and invade and terrorize a few people outside their borders, like in Gaza or the West Bank.

Some people have proposed a "which came first, the chicken-or-the-egg" scenario of U.S.-Israel-Palestinian relations. Which came first, blind U.S. support of israel or the PLOs terrorism. Who knows, although the U.S. was the first nation to officially recognize the State of Israel in 1948, probably before the letters PLO were ever put together in that order.

Too, some people say if we didn't give Israel $3 billion in military aid they might not have enough bullets to shoot Palestinian refugees. And the Palestinians might not be so mad at us then. So Congress could keep the $3 billion and put it to better use. Like giving themselves a pay raise. Congress could even try to make some money out of it. Like have a national raffle—a lottery for a $3 billion jackpot. Move over Lotto, we're talking super big bucks.

I would buy a ticket. Maybe two. And if I won, I know the first thing I would have to do. I would pay taxes. And then I might do something nice, like buy the state of Nevada and let the Palestinians resettle there. It's nice and arid there, like their homeland, but with no bullets or tear gas flying around, no daily beatings or curfews. "There's no place like home, thank Allah"—a Palestinian might say. And after the Palestinians live here a couple of years, they could become U.S. citizens and, only then, they would enjoy those universal rights, "that all men are created equal" with the "right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness..." not to mention the right to show ignorance. Including the ignorance by our government of the Palestinians.—Scott A. White, senior, industrial technology.

D.E. missed news event

On November 9, 1988 at 2 p.m., I attended a meeting with the Carbondale Education Association. The Daily Egyptian city affairs writer was also invited. There was no sign of the D.E. This diverse group of individuals who are trying to establish some positive activities for the youth of Carbondale has gone unnoticed.

Yet, let a group of unidentified students place crosses and rebel-type messages around the campus or a USG senator or others get an impeachment and they receive top priority status in the D.E. newsroom.

Not only is this very unfortunate, but it's also a very sad case of what makes news.

Come on D.E., let's go out and get some human interest and positive change. This is my challenge. Richard Goldstein and Brad Bushue, show your true newsworthiness.—Robert Glasper, freshman, social work.

Attackers set back gains of all blacks

I am a Black American student at SIU and for most of my life, I have been very critical of racism seen in the eyes of white people.

But now I have finally seen why the hate still is there. Two of my friends, who are white, were recently beaten up on by a gang of blacks for no reason at all.

I myself am appalled by this despicable act of violence. Incidents such as these add fuel to the fire of racism and hatred, the blacks who participate in these despicable acts are only turning back the progress of black equal rights that were sought by their parents 20 years ago.

They also ruin it for decent blacks who are not ignorant in their behavior as displayed by the black assailants.

I do not see color as a way of judging people. I certainly don't want people of other races to get the wrong impression of me because they'll think I might harm them just because I'm a negro and they are not.

Call me an "oreo" or whatever, but beating up on white students by black students, or vice versa, for no reason is not only vulgar and ignorant it is also wrong.

And, finally to the individuals who beat up my friend this past week, I would like to congratulate you on reinforcing the idea that blacks are inferior to whites by your actions.—Gary T. Estler Jr., freshman, political science.

Viewpoint

Not seeing means disbelieving in usefulness of supercollider

THIS IS THE first time I've ever written about the superconducting supercollider. And I'm doing it only because of the silly fuss about Illinois and other states losing the superconducting supercollider to Texas.

I've avoided the subject until now because it takes 26 letters just to write those two words — superconducting supercollider. I prefer words that are about five or six letters long. They're easy to write, easy to read, and, to be honest, I don't know many words that are much longer.

The 's why most popular swear words are short. You can say them fast. If swear words were as long as superconducting supercollider, fewer people would use them. And that would not only have stifled female liberation, but it would lead to pent-up emotions and aggressions, which causes stress, violence, madness, poor digestion and facial twitches.

ALSO, I'VE never really understood exactly what the superconducting supercollider is good for.

Oh, I know that it will be a long tunnel, something like an underground race track, more than 50 miles long.

And scientists will send particles of energy whipping around the tunnel at almost the speed of light in opposite directions.

They want to do that so they can see what happens when the particles of energy collide. They expect them to splatter into even teenier particles. Then the scientists can study all these teeny particles.

Or so they tell us. Actually, we have no way of knowing if this is going to happen. We have to take their word for it!

EVEN IF SOME of us were there when it happened, what would we see? Nothing. We'd say to the scientists, "Okay, let's have one of those collisions."

They'd punch a button or pull a switch. Then, in an instant, they'd say: "That's it. We did it."

"Did what? I didn't hear anything. I didn't see anything. I mean, you get out on a city expressway on a

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

Friday night, and when there is a collision, wham, you know it."

But with the superconducting supercollider, we'll have to take their word for it. The fact is, you can't see it.

Then you might ask: "Okay, then show me some of the teeny particles that got splattered in the collision."

I've avoided the subject until now because it takes 28 letters just to write those two words — superconducting supercollider.

SAME THING. You can't see them. I mean, a million of those particles wouldn't add up to one cockroach's toe.

But the scientists want us to believe that they'll be able to see them. Well, I've seen people crawling around on their hands and knees for hours, trying to find a contact lens in grass or on a rug. And we're supposed to believe that these scientists will be able to see something one zillionth the size of a pea? Hah!

Frankly, I think it's all a scam. Which is why I don't give a hoot that the White House put in the political fix so that the superconducting supercollider would be built in Texas.

For what it will cost to build this 50-mile tunnel (more than $4 billion) and to operate it (almost $300 million a year), we could build the world's greatest all-purpose race track.

THERE COULD BE horse races and auto races. For those who want collisions, there could be demolition derbies. At least we could see the cars collide, which is more collision than we'll get from the superconducting supercollider.

And that would create a lot more jobs and bring in far more revenue than the super-blah-blah.

All right, I know what some people are saying. Knowledge. The superconducting supercollider will be an important tool in our quest for scientific knowledge.

I'm not against the quest for knowledge. That's why I watch public TV at least 15 minutes a week and have studied Hugh Heiner's philosophy of life.

BUT WHAT ARE the scientists going to learn that we really need? Will they find a cure for baldness? Will they discover a whiskey that not only won't give you a hangover, but is good for your liver? Will they create a pork shank that has no cholesterol and makes your heart stronger?

Of course not. They never come up with anything practical.

They say that by sweeping up all those little particles and looking at them, they will take a step toward understanding the origin of the universe.

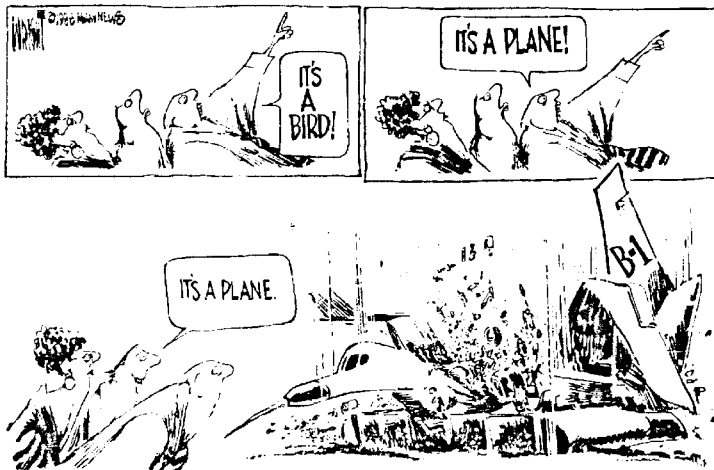

For all that money, they are going to try to find that which is already known.

IT WAS explained by the noted expert, Dr. I.M. Kookie, in his famous study called: "The Origin of the Universe by Somebody who Has Lived in It All His Life."

As he wrote: "Before the universe existed, there was a great nothingness, a total silence and emptiness and stillness from one end of nowhere to the other end of nowhere. Then somebody belched and it touched off a chain reaction. And that's how we got what we got. Take my word."

When I asked Dr. Kookie about the loss of the superconducting supercollider, he said:

"Let Texas have it. All those collisions will scare the cows."

EPA wants clarity in Clean Air policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The EPA asked Congress Tuesday to clarify the Clean Air Act; the agency might be forced to impose draconian measures — such as banning car use — to cut air pollution in smoggy cities.

In a move affecting Los Angeles and possibly 12 other urban areas, the Environmental Protection Agency said Congress must revise the law because it does not say what the agency should require of cities that do not meet federal standards for ozone and carbon monoxide.

Without congressional action, the EPA said it faced a "legal, secondary" in determining how much time cities should be allowed to bring air pollution down to legally required levels.

Agency officials said they were prepared to set compliance schedules for some cities, but they were not sure they had authority to do so — meaning those decisions could be vulnerable to court challenge.

The agency said that only definitive action by Congress could prevent lengthy and confusing litigation over proper compliance schedules.

The EPA call for action coincided with Tuesday's election of Sen. George Mitchell of Maine as Senate Democratic leader, which markedly improves the chances that lawmakers will act on the Clean Air Act next year.

Mitchell was a leading proponent of unsuccessful efforts this year to toughen the law and his new stature gives him clout for a renewed initiative in 1989.

The EPA laid out its legal problem in an announcement calling for public comment on the development of a new federal air pollution control plan for the Los Angeles area.

Los Angeles is the smoggiest of the 100 urban areas the EPA cited in May for failing to meet control standards by the Clean Air Act's Dec. 31, 1987, deadline.

The EPA faces special problems with Los Angeles and 12 other cities that do not have federally approved air pollution control plans. Under the Clean Air Act, the agency must draft pollution-control plans for those cities — including the sticky question of compliance schedules.

EPA officials said they want to support pollution-control plans by California authorities to bring the Los Angeles area into compliance within 20 years.

very good possibility they are linked, but we can't be sure," Wright said.

In investigations of two robberies on Nov. 16 and the current one, similar descriptions have been given by witnesses. According to witnesses, two black males in their early 20s, wearing dark clothing and standing somewhere near 5-foot-9 or slightly taller committed the crimes.

The clerk at T.J.'s described one suspect as a man between 18 and 20 years old, 5-foot-10 and weighing 170 pounds, police said. The clerk said the man wore a black sweater, black pants and had a black satin or nylon scarf over his head, police said.

The second suspect is described as 20 years old, 5-foot-9 and weighing 160 pounds, police said. The suspect wore a black jacket, red shirt, black pants and a black leather cap with the brim rolled up, police said.

Both men carried blue, steel revolvers, police reported. The first suspect carried a small caliber revolver with a short barrel while the second suspect carried a handgun with an unknown caliber, police said.

In the first armed robbery committed by two black men Nov. 16, police said one man was 6-foot-2 and the other was 5-foot-11. The men are accused of robbing a man behind Fox Eastgate Theatre on Walnut St. at 7:14 p.m.

Police said the second robbery occurred at Warehouse Liquors, 829 E. Main St. Two men standing 5-foot-9 and in their 20s were reported to have robbed the store and shot the two clerks in the wrist, police said.

Police captured a man suspected of robbing a service station on E. Walnut Street on Nov. 15. Frederick Z. Wills, 24, of Colp is accused of robbing Clark Self Service Station, 801 E. Walnut.

Prop gun wounds acting student

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — An acting student performing a scene from the film "Lethal Weapon" was severely wounded after a prop accidentally went off in his mouth, police said Tuesday.

Adam Smith Hancock, 22, of Tujunga, was in critical condition at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Tuesday night, more than 24 hours after the shooting that was witnessed by members of his Beverly Hills Playhouse acting class.

Hospital spokesman Ron Wise said the bullet did not strike any part of Hancock's brain, as initially believed, but instead tore through the back of his neck. "He's been stabilized, but is in critical condition in intensive care," Wise said.

Hancock was repeating a scene from "Lethal Weapon" in front of about 20 other students when the gun went off.

Processing Architecture, Catherine Walsh, assistant to the Chancellor, said.

As to where cuts may be made, Pettit said that in past years the IBHE considered giving increases in operations and salaries before funding new programs and buildings.

The report states that SIU-C is asking for $451,000 for operation and maintenance of new buildings and $8,287,900 for program and institutional support.

Pettit said he didn't want to anticipate where the IBHE is going to cut.

"We get the same treatment as everyone else. It's a revenue problem," he said.

SIU, the Board of Governors, the Board of Regents, the University of Illinois, community college systems, the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, private higher education institutions, the Board of Higher Education, health education grants, institutional grant programs, state universities civil service system and state universities retirement system all are awaiting the decision of the IBHE.

minority engineering program and established a computing center for student and faculty use.

Tempelmeier said he felt the college's visibility ranked first among the changes that have occurred since he has been dean.

"The college has become more visible than ten years ago. People are realizing the quality of our programs, our faculty, our students and the research being conducted here," he said.

But on the other side of the spectrum, Tempelmeier expressed concern over the college's building expansion. He said the current facilities are being used to capacity and even though expansion plans have been approved by University officials, the funds needed for the project are not there.

"The steam plant (Physical plant) will have to be expanded before any building expansion can occur," he said, adding that the current level of power produced by the plant would not meet demands if the building was expanded.

Starrett said the board must be able to enforce the policies better and they need to get the General Assembly to adopt the policies as statutes.

Vice Chancellor for Financial Affairs Donald W. Wilson said there is no way of knowing if the 18.3 percent tuition increase violated this policy because instructional cost is not figured until the fiscal year ends.

The ISA also recommended that the tuition policy not be based on current tuition levels but on the increased financial capacity of students paying the tuition.

Finally, the ISA proposed a need to mediate the extent and purposes of student service and related fees.

"When either policy or practice operates to jeopardize access to public universities — for any citizens of the state — the mission of public higher education is jeopardized with it," according to the report.

In 1970, the board set the limit for increasing tuition at one-third of all instructional costs.

"The universities have frequently violated this IBHE policy," Starrett said.

Bush gives stance on U.N. talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect George Bush said Tuesday there should be a U.N. meeting on Palestine, but avoided stepping into the controversy over whether PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat should have been allowed into the United States.

"I think there should be a U.N. meeting and there will be on that subject," the vice president said.

However, Bush, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, avoided specifying where such a meeting should be held or whether Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, should be allowed to address the organization.

The State Department Saturday denied Arafat a visa to enter the United States and address the United Nations on the Palestinian question, saying Arafat's organization was linked to acts of terrorism against Americans.

SIU-C POLICY STATEMENT ON AIDS

GENERAL POLICY

After Careful study, the University AIDS Task Force has accepted the conclusions of the American College Health Association, that:

Current knowledge . . . indicates that college and university students or employees with AIDS, ARC (AIDS Related Complex) or a positive HTLV-III antibody test do not pose a health risk to other students or employees in the usual academic or residential setting.

AIDS on the College Campus (1986)

The following policies are based on the current state of medical knowledge, and are subject to change as new information becomes available.

POLICY FOUNDATIONS

1. University decisions involving persons who suffer from AIDS SHALL be based on current and well-informed medical information.

2. Current prevailing medical authorities agree that AIDS is not communicated through casual contact but requires intimate sexual contact or an exchange of body fluids.

3. For the purpose of this policy statement, the term "AIDS" SHALL INCLUDE AIDS, AIDS-Related Complex and a positive test for Human Immunodeficiency Viru.

4. This policy should be reviewed periodically to ensure that it reflects the most current information available from both governmental and medical authorities.

NON-DISCRIMINATION

(A) The University shall not discriminate in enrollment or employment against an individual with AIDS.

(B) No one shall be denied access to campus activities or facilities solely on the ground that they suffer from AIDS.

CONFIDENTIALITY

(A) The University shall comply with all pertinent statutes and regulations which protect the privacy and welfare of persons in the University community who suffer from AIDS as well as the welfare of others within the University community.

(B) The University will maintain procedural safeguards throughout the University with the objective of protecting the privacy of persons living with AIDS.

(C) All confidential medical information about an individual will be handled in compliance with legal requirements and professional ethical standards.

(D) The University will not disclose the identity of any student or employee who has AIDS, except as authorized by law or pursuant to guidelines following the general standards included in the American College Health Associations' Recommended Standards and Practices for a College Health Program, fourth edition:

In general, it is recommended that no specific or detailed information concerning complaints or diagnosis be provided to faculty, administrators, or even parents, without the expressed written consent of the patient in each case.

UNIVERSITY RESPONSIBILITIES

(A) The University shall develop and maintain a comprehensive educational program about AIDS.

(B) The University shall identify sources of competent and confidential testing for AIDS as well as counseling services upon request.

(C) The University shall identify sources of qualified medical care and encourage those with AIDS to utilize such sources.

(D) The University shall adopt and implement safety guidelines as proposed by the U.S. Public Health Service for handling and disposing of blood and other body fluids.

(E) Decisions in all situations involving students or employees with health problems are to be made on a case by case basis, based on the medical facts in each case and with concern for the confidentiality and best interest of all parties involved. The President, or his designee, shall identify the person(s) to be involved in each case.

November 1, 1988

Dear Students, Faculty and Staff:

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is the number one health issue in this country. The potential effect on the University of this disease within our staff and student population led me to appoint a campus-wide task force charged with:

1. the development of an institutional response plan;
2. an assessment of the services available for persons living with AIDS;
3. a review of additional mechanisms which are in place or should be developed for the campus.

The following Statement was developed by the Task Force and forwarded through my office to the Chancellor. On August 26, 1988, the Chancellor approved this statement. I would ask each of you to read the statement carefully and become familiar with its content.

Sincerely,

John C. Guyon
President

Choirs, orchestra to present joint concert tonight

The Chamber Choir and the Choral Union and Orchestra will present a combined fall concert at 8 p.m. tonight in Shryock Auditorium.

The group will open the performance with Mendelssohn's "Psalm 42," with soprano Melanie H. Tomasz, faculty member, as the soloist. Other selections will include such selections as "Let your Eye Be To the Lord" and "The Glory of This Day."

Preston Knauf relaxes with two of his most supportive fans, his wife, Susan, and their 6-month-old daughter, Lyndsey. On Friday, Knauf will compete in the United States

Gymnastics Federation Winter Nationals in Colorado Springs, Colo. Knauf, a two-time All-American and assistant coach for the Salukis, is a former Saluki gymnast.

Gymnast's future riding on meet

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Years of training will come to a head soon for Preston Knauf, former Saluki gymnast and two-time All-American. On Friday, Knauf will compete in the United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF) Winter Nationals in Colorado Springs, Colo., and the results will determine his future.

Knauf, 23, qualified for the winter nationals at a November meet in Houston. But so did 47 other gymnasts, each vying for a spot on the U.S. national gymnastics squad. Only 18 gymnasts will be selected from the meet in Colorado Springs to join the national team.

"I think I have a good shot at (nationals) if I have a good meet," Knauf said. "If I don't make nationals, I'll probably retire."

Knauf trained under Howard Sokol at Glenbard South High School. A native of Lombard, Knauf received additional training at the Aerial Gymnastics Club in Lombard under Don McPherson.

Knauf attributes his superior vaulting skills to McPherson. "(McPherson) was an excellent technician man. That's where I learned to vault."

Knauf will compete in all six events, performing 12 routines in two days. Six of the 12 routines will be optional, or routines Knauf and Bill Meade, men's gymnastics coach, pieced together.

The remaining six routines will be compulsory routines — routines that judges devised. "Most people can do these routines, but to do them to their max is what's hard," Knauf explained. "A fly away from the high bar can be done below the bar or 10-feet above the bar. It's how you perform the routine that gets you points."

Knauf doesn't have any fancy tricks to take into battle with him. His main goal is to make 12 out of 12 routines.

"If I can do that, then I can make nationals."

But if he doesn't make the national team, it won't be the end of the world for Knauf.

Knauf already has been offered a teaching job in Houston, which he says he may accept if he decides to retire from competitive gymnastics.

"Ideally, I'd like to end up at a university. My end goal is to be a collegiate head coach."

A husband and father, Knauf juggles gymnastics, 12 hours of classes at SIU-C, and three part-time jobs around his daughter, Lyndsey, and wife, Susan.

"We have a lot of people help us. Lyndsey's grandparents watch her while Susan and I are at work and at school."

prepared himself for when it is time to leave the court for good.

"I have never thought about my career coming to an end. I just want to be prepared whether it is six years from now or six days. I just want to make sure Steve Middleton is a success after."

The former Saluki, who is third on the all-time SIU-C scoring list with 1,710 points, said he hopes to keep his life in perspective, no matter which road it decides to take.

"I'm waiting. I'm being patient," Middleton said. "I love basketball, but Steve Middleton has to remain focused on life. I really want to reach another level."

"My goal right now is to get my degree and work diligently to get that. I just have to keep going full."

New Drake coach adjusting

Tom Abatemarco

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

Adjustment. For first-year Drake coach Tom Abatemarco, that's the key word for now.

"The adjustment as far as off the court has been a piece of cake," the former North Carolina State assistant said. "Here I go into a system where (former head coach Gary Garner) played all man to man and they really tempoed it; where I am going to let the kids play a little more offensively."

"I'm not going to let them run and gun, but we do let them play. So it's an adjustment for the kids right now, and we've got some growing pains."

The Bulldogs, who finished 14-14 last season, sixth in the Missouri Valley at 5-9, return four starters, including MVC leading rebounder Sam Roark, with 9.1 per game.

Drake also returns starters

Bart Friedrich, a -10 senior, Eric Berger, a 6-2 senior and Curtis Stuckey, a 6-1 sophomore.

"I am pleased with the size up front with Bart and Sam, and I think we have some good shooters in Curtis and Eric," Abatemarco said.

The Bulldogs have been picked anywhere from second to eighth in the MVC, depending on the poll. Abatemarco said that is rather fitting.

"Right now there is a lot of parity, and that's why I don't care if they pick me eighth, seventh or first; you still have to play the season."

"That is the story of our season — we could finish anywhere from second to eighth."

Abatemarco said there are a number of factors he will be concentrating on to turn the Drake program into an MVC contender.

"There are three things I am looking for. First, their enthusiasm level from last year has to come up. We went and sleep-walked in a lot of games last year."

"Our intensity level has got to go up and our chemistry had to come together. I tell my kids if you work hard and put a lot of effort in, it means you have a shot at having a good year, but it doesn't mean you will be successful."

Abatemarco comes to Drake from Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas. His resume includes assistant coaching positions with Jim Valvano, Lou Carnesecca and Lefty Driesell.

how Frazier hated to write home for money, so he worked to earn some extra cash to add to his four-year scholarship. Frazier worked in the dorms, cleaning rooms, doing laundry and serving food at the cafeteria.

During his junior season, though, Frazier said he found his niche as a basketball player. He was angry with Coach Jack "the Giant Killer" Hartman for putting him on the second team. Frazier's only satisfaction came by stealing the ball away from the first-team players in practice. Defense had become his domain.

"We didn't just try to stop the starters from scoring," Frazier writes. "We didn't want them to be able to bring the ball upcourt against us. We tried to humiliate them, and we did. When they couldn't do anything at all against us, that would really annoy Hartman. I really got to him, and for a year, that was my gratification, my only gratification."

Frazier details his relationship with Hartman as very cool. Hartman benched Frazier for the tail end of his sophomore season because Frazier had refused to go into a game before halftime. Hartman didn't have contact with the future star over the next summer. Even so, Frazier said he preferred Hartman to speech class.

"Jack Hartman was a strict disciplinarian, and I liked that. Hartman believed in the fundamentals and that everybody had to follow the same rules. He wouldn't take any junk from anybody, even when he was wrong. I didn't particularly like him. But I respected him."

Frazier's greatest lesson at SIU-C was in learning to respect others. It would serve him well later on. When telling the secret ingredient to the 1970 Knicks — perhaps the greatest t-e-a-m to ever play the game — Frazier said:

"You don't have to be friends to play ball together. You don't even have to like the coach to play ball for him. But you can't have guys playing together who don't respect one another and don't respect the coach. What made the Knicks unique was that the parts fit together, like hands in a glove."

Junior guards Reed Crafton and Milt Donald are both injured, but still see playing time, Crews said. Senior forward Chris Bomba, 6-7, and 6-1 freshman guard Scott Shreffler join Crafton, Haffner and Godfreed on Evansville's probable starting lineup.

Herrin said the Salukis need to be prepared for a tough opponent.

"We know they are a good defensive team and they play a tough man to man," Herrin said. "Godfreed is very talented and had two great games against us last year. He is a dominating player."

Herrin said momentum after the second-place finish in the San Juan Shootout last week may be running thin.

"I don't know if we really have any, but the game experience makes us better."

Herrin's team set for home opener

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

For Saluki fans, it's time to check out what all the early season hoopla is about. For Rich Herrin and Co., it's time to prove they are worth it.

The men's basketball team will take to the court in its home opener at 7:35 tonight at the Arena against Evansville.

"I think we will have over 8,000," Herrin said. "The excitement is here, and Evansville always brings a lot of people. People want to see us."

EVANSVILLE AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Tipoff: SIU-C Arena (10,014), Carbondale, 7:35 p.m. Wednesday.
Records: Evansville (1-0), Southern Illinois (2-1).
What to watch: The Salukis try to rebound from two losses to the Aces last season in their home opener. Evansville poses a test for the Salukis with a front line of 6-9 Dan Godfred, 6-7 Chris Bomba and 6-4 Scott Haffner.
Last meeting: Evansville 91, Southern Illinois 70. Jan. 2, 1988 at Evansville, Ind.
Series: Southern Illinois leads 38-30.
On the air: WBCQ-FM (99.9), Carbondale.

Arena ticket manager Lee Trueblood said there were about 4,500 tickets sold by Tuesday, and plenty more available, especially in the upper concourse.

"I think there is a chance for 7,000 to 8,000, but we haven't had a sellout in ten years," Trueblood said. "Business has picked up this week mainly because the students are back in town and the success in San Juan helped."

The Salukis, which placed second at the San Juan Shootout in Puerto Rico, beat No. 11 Villanova 102-81 in the tournament semifinals.

The Aces come into Carbondale 1-0 after beating Valparaiso 75-56 Saturday. Evansville is led by 6-4 senior forward Scott Haffner and 6-9 junior center Dan Godfred. Aces coach Jim Crews said his team is in the experimental stage right now.

"We are trying to find out who plays well together,"

Crews said. "We were a good basketball team last year, but this year we aren't even close."

Evansville, who finished 21-8 last season and played in two rounds of the NIT, lost the bulk of its scoring in graduated Indiana transfer Marty Simmons.

Godfred and Haffner have played the most for us," Crews said. "The others have played well in the past in role situations. There are a lot of new faces and some injuries."

Middleton hoping pro career begins

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

For former Saluki standout Steve Middleton, the dream isn't over yet. As far as he is concerned, no one is stopping him now.

After being rejected by the NBA, Middleton, who finished up his last season of collegiate eligibility last year, was recently cut by the Tulsa Fastbreakers of the Continental Basketball Association, again setting back any hopes of a professional career.

"Professional basketball is a great sport, but it is also very tough," Middleton said. "Politics play a major role in basketball as well as in life."

Middleton said he was cut from the Tulsa team because the general manager was a Tulsa University booster. Former Tulsa player Tim McAllister was cut from the CBA team in Charleston, W. Va., and former Golden Hurricane standout Tracy Moore was cut from the Los Angeles Clippers. Both went to the Fastbreakers for a position.

"I was the odd man out," Middleton said. "The coach said I did make it, but it takes more than being a good basketball player. You have got to be in the right place at the right time."

When the news of the cut was relayed to him, Middleton said he was upset.

"I was very shocked because I went out there with the idea that I would have an equal opportunity to play the position. I never had a chance against them, and that hurt."

"I think I could have accepted it better if I knew they were better than me. I don't believe Moore or McAllister could outplay me. I was in the best shape of my life."

For now, Middleton said he has returned to SIU-C to complete his history degree. Middleton said playing pro basketball is a calling he would not fail to answer.

"Given the chance, I would probably leave school and play basketball because I can always come back to school," Middleton said. "It's a dream, a passion in my heart — no one can put it out. I'm going to follow it, there is just no other way to explain it."

During his career at SIU-C, Middleton was second in the Missouri Valley in scoring in 1986-87 and 1987-88, behind Bradley's Hersey Hawkins, now playing for the Philadelphia 76ers.

Middleton was named to the all-MVC team his junior and senior years. His senior year average of 25.4 points per game was good for seventh in the country.

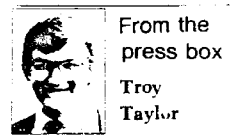

Middleton said he has never considered his career in the sport being over, but has

Troy Taylor

Star recalls SIU-C career in new book

Some illustrious names dot Saluki basketball history, such as Charlie Vaughn, Dick Garrett, Seymour Bryson, Greg Starrick, and most recently Steve Middleton.

But it is Walt Frazier, the multidimensional guard from Atlanta, who evokes the most powerful memory of Saluki fans.

Frazier was the on-court force responsible for the Salukis' trouncing of Marquette by 15 points in the old Madison Square Garden to win the 1967 National Invitational Tournament crown.

Now, some 21 years later, Frazier (with co-author Neil Offen) has released his autobiography.

Although "Walt Frazier: One Magic Season and a Basketball Life," (Times Books, $17.95) is primarily a reflection on his contribution in the New York Knicks' 1969-70 drive to the NBA World Championship, it is good reading for Saluki fans.

In several flashbacks, Frazier recalls his days at SIU-C and how those experiences shaped him, both as a person and as a basketball player.

Frazier's descriptions of college life away from the basketball court are truly revealing. When he returned home after his first visit to Carbondale, he told his family: "I stayed in a whole town of white people. I was in a Holiday Inn with white people all around and I was in a real fancy room, with my own bathroom, just for me."

Frazier admitted he had a lot of growing up to do at SIU-C. He was too shy to attend speech class. He wanted to quit school after his sophomore season. He had to sit out his junior season because he was academically ineligible. That year he married his only girlfriend, Marsha, but later found they were too young to handle the responsibility of raising their son. It ended in divorce in under two years.

But there were also tales of Women's basketball team adds third recruit

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The NCAA early recruiting period, which had been good to the women's basketball team so far, has just gotten better.

With two outstanding recruits having already been signed during the early signing period — Kelly Firth, a 6-2 center from Springfield and Angie Rougeau, a 5-10 guard-forward from Memphis, Tenn.

The SIU-C coaching staff has now landed a third prospect in Tiffany Bolden, a highly touted 5-11 forward from Kansas City, Kan.

Bolden was heavily recruited by Southeastern Conference powers Auburn, the NCAA 1988 runner-up, and LSU, a perennial top 20 team, but opted for SIU-C.

"We feel very lucky to get Tiffany." Coach Cindy Scott said. "How many kids do you get who turn down a Final Four team? Tiffany sees a chance to make a major difference in our program."

Scott described Bolden as "an impact player" who was destined to come to SIU-C from the start.

"From day one (assistant coach Julie) Beck believed that Tiffany and SIU were a perfect match," Scott said. "She (Beck) went that extra mile to sell Tiffany (on SIU-C)."

"Coach Beck went head on with some of the top schools in the country, but that didn't deter her one bit."

Beck said she can't wait to see Bolden suit up for the Salukis.

"Tiffany is a power player in every sense of the word," Beck said. "She is extremely strong physically and loves to rebound. She has the ability to dominate underneath or she can move out and shoot the 15-footer."

Bolden said she chose SIU for a number of reasons.

"I liked the players and the coaches," Bolden said. "The environment at SIU is a good one to be around. The school is not too far from home and yet not too close either."

Scott's team will be back in action against Purdue at 7:35 Friday at the Arena. The Boilermakers sport a 2-0 mark after victories over No. 5 Texas 76-71 and BYU 86-59.
