Israelis deny giving aid to Lebanese Christians

By Larry Thornton

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Israel provided light arms, logistic support and communications links for the apparently successful Lebanese Christian drive against Palestinians and Moslem leftists in southern Lebanon, unofficial sources say.

Israelian government and military officials as usual deny that Israeli troops or military supplies are used in Lebanon's civil war. They maintain that "Israel does not intervene in Lebanon's internal affairs."

Israel has had a strong interest in securing its Lebanese border ever since Palestinian terrorist attacks were launched across it against the Israeli towns of Maalot and Qiryat Shemona in 1974, causing heavy civilian casualties and stunning the Jewish state.

Parade, gridiron showdown highlight Homecoming plans

The fighting Salukis, students and alumni will add their own brands of spirit to SIU's Homecoming festivities this weekend, set for the Arena, the Student Center, McAndrew Stadium or a bar on Illinois Avenue.

Homecoming activities include a parade featuring floats and marching bands between Southern Illinois and Northern Illinois University, stage and comedy shows and a weekend full of out-of-date comedy flicks.

The theme of this year's celebration is "Kicking the Habit." Although SIU has had no homecoming king or queen in the last few years, there will be homecoming royalty this year. Selections are to be made at random from the student body.

Survey indicates approval for repair grant

Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Most Carbondale residents who have received a federally subsidized home repair grant in the past year seem to think it is one government program they are satisfied with.

A survey, conducted by the Daily Egyptian Friday, showed that a great majority of the people who have applied for federal grants for repair, said they were satisfied with the program.

According to the survey records, the home was supposed to have been finished July 16, 1976, but it is not finished 90 per cent complete.

"To be eligible for the program, the owner must maintain their own income and house occupancy regulations, have a home which is in violation of the codes, and must have owned and lived in the property for one year.

The home must be in disrepair. The home must be owned by the person who answered the questions, and the person who answered the questions must be the person who answered the questions.

The survey was conducted by telephone from a list of all applicants who have received grants since March, 1976. Of 27 applicants on the list who had received some grant funds, 14 responded. Those who did not respond either did not have a phone or did not answer. Twelve of the 14 respondents who answered the open-ended questions said there had been no problems with the repair grants.

One of two who did not respond positively said the city had failed to keep her informed of the status of her grant. The other said the program was too expensive.

Eldon Gonnell, the city director of renewal and housing, said the homeowners can contribute their own money to federal maximum grant of $5,000. The government's $5,000, as well as for "preservation and conservation" of the house, Gonnell said.

The city was granted about $500,000 for the program last year and completed 71 homes. This year, Carbondale was granted $301,793 and has 14 homes in some stage of the program. The city hopes to complete 50 to 60 homes this year, Gonnell said.

The city hopes to complete 50 to 60 homes this year. Carbondale is about the same size as in most other cities, excluding the influence of SIU. He said, however, many of the rental properties are in disrepair.

If the homes can not be brought up to the standards of the city code with $5,000, no grant can be made. City administrators, however, are considering applying for another federal grant which would allow the city to buy homes that cannot be repaired for $5,000. If the city buys the homes, the occupants will be relocated to a house which meets the standards, Gonnell said.
Thompson rebuts Howlett's 'rookie' label

By Jim Winari
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson made his last scheduled campaign appearance on campus Friday to answer charges by his opponent, Secretary of State Michael Howlett, that he is too inexperienced to be governor of Illinois.

Recent Howlett ads have emphasized Howlett's 18 years as an elected state official, while disparaging Thompson's qualifications by calling him a "rookie."

Thompson, in his first attempt at elected public office, told the crowd of about 175 people gathered in Ballroom B of the Student Center that "I may be a rookie, but there's also such a thing as rookie of the year—and I think this is Jim Thompson's year in Illinois."

Thompson said the Daily Egyptian's endorsement of him for governor, "states it about right."

When asked by Beckey Stoddart, a graduate student in psychology, for some assurance that Thompson would do more than offer just support for the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), the candidate outlined three points for the audience.

He said he would make sure state agencies would enforce the antidiscrimination laws, ensure equal opportunity for women in the Thompson administration and encourage negotiators of both parties to work for the amendment's passage.

If necessary, Thompson said, he would invite some legislators to the governor's mansion to convince them of the need for ERA's passage.

However, he said he would not use "full force" of the governor's office for the ERA, because "constitutional amendments are not within the constitutional prerogative of the governor."

The ERA supporters, five of whom placarded with Thompson's sign, were dissatisfied with Thompson's answer, because, as Stoddart pointed out, they felt it is invalid to "equate enforcing antidiscrimination laws with ERA legislation."

Linda Basler, a freshman in recreation, also took exception to Thompson's boost for 59th district state senate candidate David Barkhausen.

Thompson included Barkhausen with himself in a category he called "the hope of Illinois politics in the future."

Barkhausen opposes the ERA. Basler found Thompson's plug for the recent ERA graduate distribution "a strategy I don't believe he should be one of those he talks to in the governor's mansion," she said.

Thompson said Barkhausen was the first person to suggest his gubernatorial candidacy.

Thompson's visit was his first on campus since Sept. 18 when he promised to be back for a "full day in October."

Thompson appeared less than an hour after the Illinois Student Government (ISG) Executive Committee approved the campus voter canvass. The canvass, which differs from a preference poll in that it is designed to find and identify supporters, showed that out of almost 700 dorm residents questioned, 44 per cent were for Thompson, 18 per cent for Howlett and 38 per cent were undecided.

Progress reported in effort to sign-up students' attorney

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Although the students' attorney was chosen more than a month ago, he still has not signed a contract. But "progress is being made," said Tom Jones, Student Government president.

Charles William Dobra, an attorney from Herrin, accepted the students' attorney position on Sept. 14, ending a year's search for the students' attorney Search Committee.

At that time Dobra said he was "90 per cent sure" he would accept the post, but said he had to see the contract first. He also said, he expects to assume the duties of students' attorney on Oct. 15.

Jones said Wednesday that office space has been assigned to the Student Center and a contract has to be drawn up by the University's legal department before Dobra begins work.

"I think we worked faster than the administration thought we would," Jones said. "They were generally good for the candidate when I got him."

A "rough draft" of the students' attorney's contract has been drawn up, Jones said, and Dobra will be on campus next week to examine it. He said the University's legal department would probably have a final contract within the next few weeks.

Jones said he was "not going guess" when Dobra would begin as the students' attorney.

After Dobra's contract is finalized it must be approved by both President Brandt and the Board of Trustees.

Space for Dobra's office has been "in the works," according to the administration, Jones said, but no office has been assigned. He said his office will be located.

Jones said that although Dobra has not decided on the work he will be doing behind the scenes' work is being done, "as long as we will be ready to "hang out his shingle" when the University gives its approval.

Dobra attended a four-day conference in Chicago last week at which organizing office meetings and buying office equipment and staff were discussed. Jones said.

Dobra is currently the assistant attorney general for the State of Illinois Public Assistance Claim Enforcement Division in Marion. He received his law degree from John Marshall Law School in Chicago in 1975.

The Students' Attorney Program is funded through student fees. Students pay $1 each semester into the Students' Attorney Fund with the option of having the money refunded. However, if a student who receives a refund is unable to use the students' attorney services.

Judge orders Mobile's government changed

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A federal judge, citing racial discrimination, has ordered Mobile to change its form of government. And if the judge can do that, said Mayor Lambert Mims, "then he can tell us we have to eat pork and beans for lunch every day."

U.S. District Court Judge Virgil Pittman ordered Mobile, a coastal city of 200,000, to dismantle its city commission form of government and replace it with a mayor and nine-member board.

Pittman ruled Thursday that Mobile's at-large election of the three city commissioners was unconstitutional and said Mobile must have a government with a mayor and nine council members elected from single-member districts.

Wildlife roam where war tools were made

By Lydia Gabriel
Daily Egyptian Feature Writer

War often shapes geographical boundaries of countries. In Southern Illinois, World War II indirectly shaped part of the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge.

Not an idyllic scene of wildlife in harmony with the land, part of what is now the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge was once the home of the Illinois Ordnance Plant, a formidable activity representing a formidable activity in the manufacturing of war munitions.

Known locally as the Plant, this former short-lived form of Illinois Ordnance Depot, the plant was constructed on a series of buildings and eight loading lines located on a roughly square piece of land covering about 12,352 acres of land. The wildlife biologist at the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge, Hankin, was present at the plant and said that the land had to be cleared and graded to make the area suitable for sharing by wildlife and wildlife refuge uses.

The land is a large tract of land situated on a largely agricultural area touching Williamson, Union and Jackson counties. The area is still known as Ordlil. Gill said. However, much of the area is closed to the public.

Gill said the ordnance plant had to be located on a large tract of land because making, loading and storing explosives had to be done in buildings widely dispersed so that an explosion would not trigger a chain reaction.

Information about Ordlil's operation is provided in a subcommittee report on conservation of wildlife resources. Ordlil, which began operation in June 1942, produced percussion primers for storage, and during World War II, this bunker was used as a water supply and a building for storage. During the same period, the Illinois Ordnance Plant was attacked by the Japanese government, and the ordnance plant was transferred to the War Department.

The annual tuition of nearly $1,900.

By John Rangen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Financial woes at Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) have led to the possibility that a small number of students will be charged an annual tuition. The school has been a public school since 1876, and the students currently pay a one-time fee for the year.

"The tuition would not be only to foreign students," said Martin. "There are perhaps one or two out-of-district students who would be involved," Martin said.

Any school district has the option of charging tuition. Mahan said. The proposed tuition rate in $1,888.77 annually per student. The figure was based on the cost of educating each student. The "money from tuition would be placed in a general fund at the school," Mahan said.

In the past there has been no tuition at CCHS. The students currently pay a $125 fee. Mahan said.

Mahan proposed the tuition plan from the Illinois School superintendent of Jackson County. Following an attorney's evaluation the CCHS board will discuss what procedures need to be established before tuition can be charged.

The school will know in about two months whether tuition will be charged. It could become effective as early as next semester, Mahan said.

There have been communication problems between foreign students and teachers. In addition, there has been a lack of facilities for proper individual instruction, Mahan said.

The students' knowledge of the English language ranges from fluent to a total lack of comprehension, Mahan said.

One problem which developed is that the English teachers at CCHS cannot speak the foreign languages. "There is a lack of communication," said Mahan.

Last year CCHS paid a person available to give the foreign students individual instruction. There is no assistant due to the lack of funds, Mahan said.

The potential of facilities, such as language laboratories, has also caused communication problems between foreign students and teachers, Mahan said.

CHCS is also having difficulty finding the proper level of education for the students in. "We do not have all of the necessary learning materials for the students past, " said Martin.

The school is obligated to accept the students. "State law indicates that residents in our district must be accepted," said Martin.

He said there are certain local requirements which the students must meet, including consent forms for guardianship.

Though it is a cultural interchange that can benefit students involved, there are communication problems between foreign students.

"They don't only need to learn English, but also to adjust to the new cultural life," Mahan said.

Small breweries should be saved

By Robert Wren
Associate Editor Page Editor

Keeping in mind this is Homecoming weekend, a piece devoted to beer and its consumption, is, I think, fitting.

For several years, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and a federal judge, Judge Milton Shadur, have been looking into charges that some of the large beer companies were attempting to drive out smaller breweries by the use of payoffs and bribes to retailers as an inducement to stock certain brands.

As a corporation, for legal purposes, is considered a person, I suppose the presumption of innocence should hold. But for my purposes, the large beer companies are guilty of salesmanship and marketing. Yet out of the ordinary; they are merely following a corporate tradition instituted by John D. Rockefeller, the original sloganist. So if you've got the field to yourself, or at least to a select few.

And should the beer corporations in the country succeed, in eventually squeezing out the small brewers, we who tend to quaff a few now and then will be doomed to imbibing the standard, tasteless, inoffensive brew. In every country, according to some commercials, beer is consumed by the vast majority, at least at a few.

The names of the giant corporations who mass produce and corporate influence pass off as "beer," will not be mentioned here; far be it from me to promote the manufacturing price of around $1.75, think twice. Look, if at all not worth a man's time in Europe. And let's face the moment. The one and another actually will be bold. But for my purposes, the smaller breweries by the use of capital produce breweries.

In the past year, Daily Egyptian has twice published articles concerning the proposed Mount Morgan Fork Reservoir near Danville. To my dismay, both articles called for abolishing the dam.

Most of the controversy seems to stem from two major points, which are environmental and cost. As a former SIU student in forestry, I had my share of environmental studies and can understand why groups want to save a forest. I have long been a proponent of preserving as much wilderness as possible. I can't understand, is why did they wait, this time to speak up? The project originated in the 1950s. In 1986, the vermilion county commission formed the Vermilion County Conservation District to study the reservoir once it was built. Since then, five illinois governors supported the project, and 11 million was spent, by county and state governments to buy land. What was the intention? The only reason I can see is when the project should have been stopped, before the money was spent. The intention of building a reservoir was not a highly guarded secret by the county or the state. In fact, up till now, it is open for submission and approval. So now, after the district was formed, paid and purchased, impact statements, planning, and dam design and location all completed, the environmentalists speak up. Where were you five years ago? As far as cost goes, I fail to believe that the state can afford to pay for a reservoir, but I am already pouring all this money and time into it, so I will go for it, once built. The city of Danville voted last fall to increase their taxes so they can buy the water supply. They are very concerned, because no new industry will locate in Danville because of the water situation. I agree that a river will be lost, but the gains will be so great. Newliners in Illinois (the Midwest) will welcome this addition to their already vast network of waterways. Then our existing wilderness in its prairie state may be inundated upon and degraded to something less than true wilderness.

Instead of risking a weakened concept of wilderness, let's call our land "natural areas" or some other term and till protect them from the intrusion that is feared. This may seem like hair-splitting but there is an important reason for it. The preservation of our true wilderness areas in their primitive state is more important than creating one from the ruins we've left behind us. Designating a piece of land a wilderness doesn't make it one, but if the concept of wilderness becomes simply four criteria, true wilderness will be lost in our concepts and possibly lost from the face of the Earth.

Black theater rallies again, initiates student's workshop

Diana Haskins sews a sandbag in WSIU's television station. Fifteen years ago, Diana did the very same thing in the Hom Economics Building Auditorium—where WSIU was born.

WSIU-TV celebrates fifteen years' service to community

WSIU-TV (Ch. 9) will mark 15 years of broadcasting from the campus of SIU with an open house Saturday at the station's studios in the SIU-C Communications Building.

Celebrating a decade and a half of continuous broadcasting that began Nov. 6, 1961 from studios in the SIU-C Home Economics Building, the Homecoming Weekend open house will feature guided tours of the WSIU-TV and WSIU-FM studios and previews of upcoming television and radio productions.

Auditions to begin for theater plays

Auditions for two one-act plays will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the Communications Lounge. These will be performed as part of the Theatre in the Laboratory Theatre.

"Purgatory" by W. B. Yeats is a short, verse drama and has two roles for men. Performance is scheduled for 4 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1.

"Maid to Marry" by Eugene Ionesco has roles for two men and one woman. It is an absurdist farce-comedy that ridicules prejudices of the bourgeoisie.

Trumpeter Cotter to present recital

Jeff Cotter, a senior in music education, will give a trumpet recital at 8 p.m. on Monday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. He will be accompanied by Sheila Snow at the piano. Cotter performed in the Honors Recital as a freshman and gave a recital his junior year. His applied teacher is Phillip Olson.

Selections performed will include Torelli, Bohmstedt and Abravanel.

Editor's Note—This is the last article in a two-part series on the Black Theater at SIU. This article deals with the present status of black people in the theater department at SIU.

By Mike Genauerus Student Writer

"We're open minded and boilers." The cry that had rallied the Kuana Players together in 1971 was once again bouncing off theater walls in 1976.

The first several months of the 1976 SIU theater season were marked by plays that were either predominantly to totally cast with white actors.

Statistics for this year's theater season alone reveal the lack of blacks in the theater dept.

The first production of the year was the musical "Godspell." Of the 35 characters cast, one was black, Linda L. Kastlak, director of the musical said that three blacks tried out.

"Everyman," performed in September, did not include any black actors. Bob Pocklington, director of the show, said that no black actors tried out.

During the recently produced Quarter Nights, the stage was again filled with white actors. The three original plays produced failed to offer any black actors might be cast. Out of the 50 students who tried out, only one was black. He did not get a part.

In the children's play "Pippi Longstocking," black actors held a role.

Regarding the absence of blacks in major roles Christian Moe, professor in theater, said, "Our philosophy is that we don't cast on racial grounds. If the part is written with a white character in mind it doesn't necessarily mean that we wouldn't cast a black in the role."

Moe added: "There used to be an attitude that audiences would not accept a black hero or heroine. I believe that attitude has been proven false."

At the moment Moe believes that the main thrust of the black theater movement has passed and we can now expect a resurgence.

The resurgence Moe talked about is taking shape in the form of a new black theater group called The Black Theatre Workshop.

The goals outlined by the new workshop include a need to develop black playwrights who can create roles for black actors.

The new workshop is under the direction of Ian Ellis James, graduate student in theatre, an extremely talented playwright and director.

Like their counterparts of the early 60's this new group has had their share of problems. Probably the greatest difficulty has been trying to organize and train actors and crews.

For their first production The Black Theater Workshop plans to produce "The White Who and the Bit Player. "Dialect Determinism," and "The Man With The Flower In His Mouth." These four plays will be produced in the Laboratory Theatre, Communications Building, October 25, at 4:00 p.m.

"The White Who and the Bit Player" will be directed by La Vita Zopp, an undergraduate in theater. The play is a black comedy about the two sides of the personality of a washed-up blond Hollywood starlet.

"Dialect Determinism" or The Rally," written by noted black playwright Ed Bullins, is a theater of protest play reflecting student revolts of the 1960's. The play will be directed by Ian Ellis James.

Lurdy Pirzadeh's "The Man With The Flower In His Mouth" is a look at how man creates his own reality and what happens when someone else shacks up that reality. The play is directed by Eric Peterson, graduate student in speech.

The Black Theatre Workshop will offer both black and white, red, yellow, green with purple polka dots people the chance to see the world of the black man through the heart, eyes, brain, and hands of the black man.
Asian artisan conquers odds, brings gift for U.S. to Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 80-year-old Pakistani wood-carver who traveled thousands of miles to give President Ford an ivory-inlaid rosewood table he made had his wish come true Friday.

Now Hussain arrived a week ago in the United States penniless and with no return ticket, speaking no English and unable to read or write. He made the trip, even though American officials had told him Ford would not accept the table. Hussain spent two months traveling and a newspaper story about his wish came true.

But then Ford added Hussain's visit to the appointment list — the last and only official event before he took off for a harrowing campaign tour that will keep him on the road until Nov. 2, election day.

SIU cop no Policewoman, claims sex and age are assets

By Patricia Lauten
Student Writer

If she were dressed in anything else, brown-haired, blue-eyed Martha Bennett could easily pass for a teacher or a student.

But the neat blue uniform, the walkie-talkie strapped to one side of her waist and a .38-caliber Smith and Wesson on the other are a dead giveaway.

Martha Bennett is an SIU Security Police Officer, the first, and for the time being, only woman on the force. She works six days a week from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Inside the SIU Security Police Office on the east side of campus are two things which immediately catch your eye. A wall of shoulder patches representing police departments around the country and the large radio console across from them.

The radio crackles as an officer radios Bennett, who is on foot patrol, that someone is pulling up to Woody Hall.

Female symphony conductor topic of film, seminar

By Pam Bailey
Student Writer

Antonia Brico, one of the first women to conduct a symphony orchestra, has grown in fame and today is perceived by some women as a champion of the women's movement.

For many women, Brico has been the "guiding light" in their quest for individuality and a place in the career market. Brico was conducting her own orchestra without the approval of the director, a notion that would soon change.

Ford wins mock election at C'dale high school

By Scott Singleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If the results of the Carbonde Community High School's (CCHS) mock election are representative, Jimmy Carter needs to turn in a virtuoso performance at SIU on Tuesday if he hopes to win the Southern Illinois.

In the election conducted by a CHS honors government class Thursday, Jimmy Ford won with 47.5 per cent of the vote. Jimmy Carter came in with 43.5 per cent, and Eugene McCarthy received 4.8 per cent. Only 46.5 per cent of the approximately 1,500 students in the high school were able to vote.

According to Charles Leslie, teacher of the government class, the race was "heralded Paul Simon and Peter Prinns for the United States House of Representatives as the most interesting. Simon, who won with 77 per cent of the vote, is far ahead of any other candidate for any race. Cameron".

Leslie said that in such cases, with the idea for the election at the beginning of the semester. Two weeks ago the class hosted a candidates' forum at which both Simon and Prinns spoke. Others

Housing fees ban for dorm liquor parties

By Tom Casey
Student Writer

In response to a new opinion from the University Legal Counsel, University Housing has renewed its ban on alcohol consumption in dorms.7

The ban prohibits any student from purchasing food, transportation, prizes or entertainment for an event where alcohol had previously been prohibited under CHAF regulations.

Rinella said the ban on organized events with alcohol was not a policy change for University Housing, in that it simply reinforced events that were permitted in the past.

"I can't say that this is a change in policy, because we didn't have a policy before," Rinella said. "This is a change of mind.

Bruce Swinburne, vice-president of student affairs, said the University is not acting to restrict student programming, but rather to protect itself from legal liability.

"The University is seemingly taking a kind of moralistic position on it," Swinburne said. "That's not what's transpiring. We're simply protecting against liability.

Swinburne said that the University could be held liable under provisions of the Dram Shop acts. These acts hold an institution serving alcohol to an individual liable for the actions of that individual.

"The University is not covered by Dram Shop insurance, which protects it from losses caused by legal action in such cases," Swinburne said.

"We're in the same position a bar is, but we do it without Dram Shop insurance," Swinburne said. "If we get involved in a party, even if it's at Giant City, and an accident occurs, we're liable as all get out."

Swinburne told ECRAC that he and Rinella "would look into" alcohol policies for Small Group Housing. Currently, fraternities are allowed to hold events on campus where alcohol is served, and outsiders are allowed to attend these events.

Small Group Housing has always had a slight exception to the policy on beer and wine," Swinburne said.

Swinburne said that he will check for possible violations of University policy involved in a recent student Activities promotion for a Red Cross blood drive. In that promotion, a keg of beer was offered to the campus group with the most blood donations.

ECRAC is currently planning a series of lectures on the University Housing activity/alcohol policies along with a survey of student opinions on the matter.

CHICAGO—A rise of adolescents by their parents is involving increasing numbers of Washington, D.C., physicians recently.

They told the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics on Sunday that there has been "a dramatic increase" in the number of teenagers treated at Children's Hospital National Medical Center in the capital as a result of child abuse.

The three are Drs. C. Andrew Raggs, and Gordon A. Trigg, a staff psychologist at the hospital, andaseña, a pediatrician there.

Over the last six months of 1976, they reported, nine children eight months and 16 of a total of 79 were admitted for treatment of physical, sexual and emotional abuse. Of these, 23 adolescents have been treated since then for child abuse at the hospital.

The three physicians said there is little information available in medical literature about this problem because of some misconceptions on the part of doctors.

A good Shepherd lives; leads valley of slogans

World on the window

For four years, "messages" like the one posted this week on the office window of Terry R. Shepherd have been appearing Monday, evenings from those who pass through the breezeway beneath Wham building. (Staff photo by Daryl Littlefield)

A good Shepherd lives; leads valley of slogans

By Rev. Madew Student Writer

An associate professor of elementary education hopes he is encouraging others to think positively when they pass through the breezeway beneath his window at the Wham Building. As they go by they can read such messages as, "Try to remember the good things of summer." That is one of many messages Terry R. Shepherd tapes to his window. Shepherd said he thought it would be nice if a message could start the day off for people. "I think that the messages help brighten the day, and help to encourage people about thinking positively," said Shepherd.

Such messages as, "Crawl inside someone's skin today; see the world through his or her eyes," and "Where's your ladder going?", are some of Shepherd's favorites. The messages are mostly Shepherd's. He said he posts them.

Affluence of U.S. is topic of speech by anthropologist

A visiting anthropologist and archaeologist, Dr. William Rathje, will speak on campus Monday and Tuesday, on "How Rich is America," based on his study of American patterns of waste.

Dr. Rathje, who studied consumption in America by measuring garbage, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Ballroom C of the Student Center. On Tuesday, he will speak at 1 p.m. in the Museum Auditorium of the Student Union.

The University's Anthropology Department and the Student Council on Waste worked to bring Dr. Rathje to Carbondale. The sponsors said Rathje's studies have been published worldwide, and that he is a fascinating and interesting speaker.

Time capsule featured in building ceremony

By Mike R. Karren Student Writer

The cornerstone ceremony for the new Co-Recreational building, located on east campus, will be held at 9 a.m. on Saturday at the main entrance of the building, according to Bruce R. Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

The scheduled 30-minute ceremony, will involve the placing of a time capsule in the main entrance of the building. The time capsule is a brass box, which is sealed so that the contents inside are preserved. The contents, which are sealed in plastic, are items such as a bicentennial flag, a student activities handbook, an Alumnus magazine, and a photo of the building under construction.

The plaque will cover the time capsule which is set in the wall and it will have the beginning construction date, 1974, encircled in the circle.

Among those who will speak at the ceremony, besides Swinburne, are President Warren Brandt and Tom Jesi, president of the student body. According to William C. Beyer, assistant dean of student life, "A special ceremony will be held under construction."

The building, which is the first of three phases, is expected to be partially finished spring semester. Swinburne said he hopes to have the handball courts and gymnasium open but there is still the question of whether they can have part of the building open while the other part is still under construction. He said the entire first phase is expected to be finished by the fall semester.

The building's first phase has cost $11 million to build and is being paid for with student fees collected since 1965. According to Swinburne the other two phases will cost an additional $8.4 million to complete. No specific date has been set for construction of the other two phases.

The first phase, when completed, will include a student lounge, vending machine room, an Olympic-size swimming pool, weight lifting room, saunas in the men's and women's locker rooms, eight regulation handball courts, a gymnasium with three regulation basketball courts, a dance studio, and a gallery lounge overlooking the basketball and handball courts.

Women's teams to compete in busy weekend schedule

By Dave Heun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The women's field hockey and volleyball teams have a busy weekend scheduled. The varsity and junior varsity field hockey teams will be home for four games, while the volleyball squad travels to Michigan for six matches.

The varsity field hockey team will start a busy Homecoming weekend with a 9 a.m. contest against Southeast Missouri State Saturday. The varsity team will then face SIU-Edwardsville at 3 p.m. All games are played on the field across from the Recreation Building. On Sunday, the varsity squad will face off against SIU-E at 9 a.m. and Indiana State University at 1:15 p.m.

The junior varsity tangles with the Carbondale Club at 2:30 p.m. The varsity takes a 7-0-2 record into the weekend, while the junior varsity seeks to improve on a 5-2-3 slate. The volleyball team takes a 15-4 record to East Lansing, Mich. Saturday where they will meet Eastern Michigan University, Central Michigan, Western Michigan College, Michigan State University and state rival, Illinois State.

Illinois State is the only team that the Salukis have lost this season. The matches split in two games last season, and ISU knocked off the Salukis in an early season game this year.

Illinois State finished third in the state tournament last season. The Salukis, whose goal is to fare well in this season's tournament, can get an idea of where they stand after the matches against ISU.

The women's cross country team will start a home meet this weekend. The team will have already completed matches with the University of Southern Illinois, Drake University and state rival, Illinois State.

The women's cross country team will also be in action this weekend. They will be holding team time trials at 9:45 a.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

The trials are being held to determine what runners will quality for the nationals.

Sayers, Glenn to be on SporTempo

Gale Sayers will discuss his transition from playing pro-football with the Chicago Bears to becoming SIU's athletic director, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday on WSIU-TV's SporTempo show.

Along with Sayers, SIU basketball star Mike Glenn, and black high school athletes from the area will appear on the program. Glenn will discuss how he has been able to keep high grades and still be active in sports, while attending SIU.

Juanita Anderson, producer-director of Black Dimensions, said the show will try to prepare youngsters for a college and professional career in sports. Both Sayers and Glenn will appear on the show the next week, Nov. 4 for the second half of the sports show.

Salukis attempt to lift record over .500

By Rick Kerv

Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

It seems like 1971 popping up in interesting facts about this year's SIU football team.

First, the Salukis hadn't won two games in a row since 1971, but they did this year.

Second, the Salukis hadn't won three games in a row since 1971, but they have this year.

And the Salukis haven't beat another state school since 1971, but they'll try to do that Saturday when they play Northern Illinois for the 1:30 p.m. Homecoming game at McAndrew Stadium.

Coach Roy Dempsey's squad will be looking to go ahead of .500 for the first time in two weeks, after two straight losses to East Carolina and Arkansas State.

In hopes of adding a passing threat, the players as they made their appearance and said a few words.

Prior to the assembly, fans lined up several deep while people threw confetti from the taller buildings as the Red players and management were paraded around the city in individual cars.

Tony Perez, who has been the object of trade rumors for several years, waved a white cowboy hat to the crowd as he arrived on the square, smiled broadly and held his cigar over his head as he received one of the loudest ovations of the half-hour ceremony.

Johnny Bench, the Series' most valuable player, chanted: "We're No. 1. We're No. 1," as he did during last year's celebration. But the response was not as loud nor as long.

Pete Rose, who gets excited just playing a normal game and even more when he's admitted, "I couldn't get turned on about the World Series this year. I didn't expect it to be as exciting as last year, but that's because of the way we won.

If the players talked about the difference a year made, they also talked about being back in the Square next year, showing that big championship trophy to the crowd.

With the team we have there's no reason why we can't do it next spring," said Rose. "There's the mountain. All we have to do is climb it."

Cincinnati's Series win greeted by subdued fans

By Andy Lippman

Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) -- The scene was the same as last year. The crowd was about the same size and they were cheering for the same heroes.

But what a difference a year made Friday when Cincinnati welcomed home their world champions for the second straight time.

Several players noted that some of the excitement had gone, or at least it had reemerged in a new form after a four-game sweep over the New York Yankees.

"This year's crowd is different... like us," said Manager Sparky Anderson. "They're more professional than ever before.

"I'm more thrilled this year than I was last year, but we've learned to express ourselves and it stays inside."

For the Reds, 34,300 fans were more subdued than last year when the Reds "celebrated that dramatic seventh-inning save over the Red Sox to win their first World Series since 1940.

"That first time is always the most exciting and I'll always remember it," said second baseman Joe Morgan. But the second time is just as important, just as a third will be.

"But I'll always remember... the excitement of those seven games."

The Series win solidified Cincinnati's status as the Mount Square - the traditional gathering spot for such celebrations - cheered each of

Salukis runners head to Intercollegiates

By Doug Dorr

Assistant Sports Editor

The SIU cross country team takes its 1-5 season record to Edwardsville Saturday for the Illinois Intercollegiate Championships.

According to SIU head coach Lew Hartzog, "This is gonna be one hell of a cross country race."

But the weather is far from the best balanced field we've ever had for the Illinois Intercollegiates. SIU finished third in the Intercollegiates last year, but has little hope this year of finishing higher than fifth in the field of about 30 teams.

Going into the championship meet, Hartzog favors the University of Illinois, with All-America Craig Virgion, as the team to beat. "They ask question about Illinois being No. top ranked team," said Hartzog of the Illini.

who beat his Salukis 22-39 in the season opener. "I would rate Eastern Illinois as the strongest second with Illinois Chicago Circle and Northern Illinois very close behind."

Hartzog ranks the Salukis fifth, but does not overlook a strong challenge by the Illini. In six games, he has 79-39- 30 Sept. 25 at Normal. Saluki runners finished in the first three spots, but then didn't do much with the third place positions, indicating an overall team effort. The Illini could be tougher for SIU to overcome in a larger meet.

The seven runners SIU taking to the Intercollegiates are: sophomore Mike Sawyer, Paul Craig and Kevin Moore, all Illinois State, and four freshmen Michael Bisasa and Eddy and Andre Herrera.

Hartzog said all the Saluki runners are healthy and primed. "We're ready to go. We're right where we want to be."

Said Hartzog of SIU's season-long dynamic duo of Craig and Sawyer, "I hope they finish in the top ten individually. I would be very pleased if they get in the top five."

"Bisasa is going to surprise some people Saturday," continued Hartzog. "And I've got a feeling that George is going to have a great weekend too."

As an unknown freshman George was selected to the Intercollegiates and came out of nowhere to place fifth in a field of 76 runners.

For the No. 1 individual spot this year, Hartzog noted there is "probably going to be challenge Virgin," said Hartzog of the 1978 Olympian from the University of Illinois.

Despite the gravity of the Illinois Intercollegiates, the Salukis are not taking their sights off their season goal of winning the Valley conference championship. "This meet is obviously important," Hartzog said, "but it still has second billing to the Valley championships in three weeks."

The Intercollegiates have been run since 1968, and have been won by the University of Illinois every year except

In 1972, SIU amazingly placed first, second, third, fourth, and eighth to set a meet scoring record that will almost certainly never be broken. All four SIU runners - Dave Hill, Gerald Craig, Steve Hauenstein, and Gary Dahnke - crossed the finish line hand-in-hand and broke the course record by 33 seconds. The meet Saturday will start at 11 a.m., and will cover five miles.
