Marchers protest sexual violence

By Debra Colburn

About 200 people participated in the "Take Back the Night" march and rally Friday night to protest sexual violence.

About 200 people, some carrying candles, some shouting slogans, some carrying signs and others just marching traveled down Illinois Avenue Friday night breaking, what one coordinator of the march calls, "the conspiracy of silence" about the various forms of sexual violence.

The young and old of both sexes turned out for the "Take Back the Night" march which was held in protest of sexual violence against women and children.

"The night is the most unsafe time for women and children," said Kathryn Ward, march coordinator and assistant professor in sociology. The march, which is the fourth held within the past five years, was meant to draw attention to the problem.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the march is a good way to increase awareness in the community, even if it is just for a little while. He said the march makes people think about the structure of society.

"Carbondale is not any different from other cities," he said. "This is a terrible problem that needs to be dealt with as intelligently, compassionately, firmly and rightly as possible."

For the last eight years, marches have been held across the United States. "Take Back the Night" marches started in New York City where women protested the pornography shops and the conditions on Times Square. They started taking people on nighttime tours, Ward said.

"Young women think they are safe now, that nothing will happen to them. The marches help renew the energy for women who weren't around for the early struggles," Ward said.

Robin Pressman, an SIU-C student and a coordinator of the march, said she hopes the march won't just be an annual event, but one that is remembered all year.

"Since September, there has been an renewed effort and feeling of concern. We want to raise these issues to public debate. I want an exchange of ideas," she said.

Ward said she hopes the outcome of the march will be an increased awareness of sexual violence and a willingness to intervene when someone is in trouble. She said she also hopes people will stop buying pornographic materials.

"Pornography objectifies men and women," she said. "It breeds violence across generations. Unless we take steps to stop it with our generation, violence will happen over and over again."

She also said survivors of batterings, rapes and incest are more likely to be victimized than other people because their experience sets up an aura of vulnerability.

"We are challenging the assumptions people make in this society," Pressman said. "People accept porn as benign. They think there is nothing wrong with objectifying women."

Rape studies have shown that in many cases, in order to rape, a rapist must dehumanize his victim, Pressman said.

"Pornography provides one way of viewing women, not as human beings, but as objects," she said. "Magazines such as 'Playboy' plant the seeds of violence in many ways."

For example, they show women in awkward positions that make defending themselves difficult. The magazines also use cartoons that make jokes out of sexual relationships between children and parents.

Public hearing set on proposed cab rate boost

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

A public hearing on a rate increase requested by the Yellow Cab Company will be held by the Carbondale City Council Monday. The council will also discuss a lease and bids for renovations on the building where the state will operate a crime lab.

Last Monday, Yellow Cab asked the council for an increase on cab rates, which have not been changed since 1979. If the increase is approved, cab fees, which are based on rates for traveling within and between zones of the city, will be raised from $1.50 to $1.70 for transportation within a zone.

The cab company is also requesting an increase in the fee it charges for travel from one zone to another. It also wants permission to charge $12 for every hour a cab must wait for a customer who has requested a ride. There is currently no set fee for leaving a cab waiting.

The council will consider a lease drawn up by the leasing and law enforcement departments of the state and the city staff for the site of a state crime lab, the Brentwood Building at 606 E. College St. Under the lease, which runs from May 1, 1985 to April 30, 1990, the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement will repay the city the costs of constructing the crime lab over 8 years. Construction costs are estimated to be more than $1.2 million.

The department also will pay the city $13,200 in rent during the first year of the lease. During each subsequent year under the lease, which the department has the option to renew after five years, the rent will increase by 3 percent.

The council will also consider four bids submitted for renovating the Brentwood Building for the crime lab. The lowest bid, from Landmark Construction Co. of Mount Vernon for $80,866, is 11.9 percent above the estimated cost of the work.

In other action, the council will consider a request made on Sept. 10 by the board of directors of the Shawnee Solar Project to transfer the assets of the Project to the city's energy department. At that meeting, the council said that further study would have to be done on the offer to see if it would be financially feasible before any action would be taken on it.

The Project, which is housed on the SIU-C campus at 808 S. Forest St., includes information and examples of ways to conserve energy and cut down on heating and cooling costs.

Donald Monty, director of community development, said in a letter to City Manager Bill Dixon dated Oct. 19 that it might be possible to reach an agreement with the University to move the city's energy department into the project's facility.

Monty said he has contacted Clarence Dougherty, vice president for student affairs, and believes that an arrangement whereby the city would takeover the lease on the facility and the property of the financially-strapped agency could be reached.

Tornadoes, floods hit Texas, Louisiana

By UPI - Associated Press
Fast-moving thunderstorms erupted Sunday over the lower Mississippi Valley, spinning off tornadoes and dumping rain on parts of Texas and Louisiana that already were saturated from waves of storms the day before.

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted for parts of southeastern Texas and much of southwestern Louisiana, accompanied by flash-flood watches in areas where small streams and streets had filled with rushing water Saturday. Flash-flood watches also extended into southwestern Mississippi.

Tornadoes touched down Sunday in eastern Texas and Louisiana, and other possible twisters were detected on radar, the National Weather Service said.

One man was killed in a tornado late Saturday — the nation's 11th storm-related death in a week — and twisters and high winds caused widely scattered damage to homes and other buildings as bands of thunderstorms churned from central Texas as far east as Tennessee.

More than 5 inches of rain fell during the night near Glenmora and Bayou Boueff, La. Jackson, Miss., got more than 3 inches of rain in six hours early Sunday, and Meridian, Miss., had 2.3 inches in the same period.

The storms moved to the east and northeast at 30 to 40 mph, and one storm west of Austin, Texas, sped over the ground at 50 mph and generated winds in excess of 80 mph.

A tornado touched down about 10 miles east of Lufkin, Texas, on Sunday morning.

Chicago superintendent says school systems need equality

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Equality and equity for all students are keystones for successful reforms in public education, says the general superintendent of the Chicago Public School system. Ruth Love said in a speech Saturday night that unless reforms incorporate the principles of equity and equality, excellence cannot be achieved. Without those principles, she said schools will become elitist and diametrically opposed to the concepts of democracy. Speaking to the Salt Lake City branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, she said racial, ethnic and economic prejudices must die.

Jackson's TV performance draws protest

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson sang and clowned as host of NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live," but while he called his performance "political satire, perhaps at its best," not everyone saw it that way. NBC spokesman Alan Baker said the network received about 300 calls from viewers in New York, many complaining that the show was in bad taste and lacking humor. Baker said the show usually generates about 75 to 100 calls. About 40 members of the Jewish Defense League and Jews Against Jackson demonstrated outside NBC's headquarters, calling Jackson "a racist and an anti-Semite."

Workers strike, four Mack truck plants close

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Picket lines went up Sunday at four Mack Truck Inc. plants in Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey as about 9,200 members of the United Auto Workers union went on strike against the nation's No. 2 heavy-duty truck manufacturer. Negotiations that began Aug. 13 failed to produce a master contract to replace the two-year agreement that expired at midnight, and no new talks were scheduled.

U.S. is home to immigrants of 155 countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long known as a nation of nations, the United States is home to residents born in 155 other countries, from Mexico to Madagascar, the Census Bureau reports. First centered in Northern and Western Europe, the immigration largely responsible for building the U.S. population since colonial days expanded to include Southern and Eastern Europe in the last century, later adding many Asians. Now, the biggest influx of new residents is arriving from countries in this hemisphere, notably Mexico.

Episcopal diocese of Chicago chooses bishop's successor

CHICAGO (AP) — The Episcopal diocese of Chicago has elected the Rev. Frank T. Griswold III as its bishop coadjutor, designating him the eventual successor to Bishop James Montgomery. Griswold was one of five candidates nominated by a search committee that originally considered 86 priests. He was chosen Saturday on the third ballot by clergy and lay delegates at Grace Episcopal Church in Oak Park. Griswold, 47, collected 120 clergy ballots and 189 lay votes in defeating the Rev. William McLean III of Barrington, who got 35 clergy votes and 130 lay votes. Montgomery, 63, said he hoped the election would provide an orderly transition for the spiritual leadership of the diocese, which has about 57,000 members in 144 parishes. He has not set a retirement date. Griswold will be an assistant bishop until Montgomery retires.

Two youths win lawsuits against school officials

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Two teen-age boys who were paddled with a 16-inch-long mahogany board by their school principal have won a $43,000 settlement against the principal and school superintendent. The District Court jury award came Saturday in the trial of a lawsuit filed by the parents of Mark Weaver, 15, and Shane Wooden, 16, against Estes Park Middle School Principal Steve Peterson and Park R-3 School District Superintendent Herb Wenger. The youths testified they were swatted in May 1981 for not doing their math homework. The district school board has not decided whether to appeal the verdict.

Suspicious church fires spark arson concern

CINCINNATI (AP) — The city fire chief will meet this week with pastors and residents of a neighborhood where suspicious fires have damaged three churches this month and prompted several congregations to increase security. Three fires in the neighborhood of Clifton — including one that caused $700,000 damage at the Second Church of Christ Scientist on Wednesday — have been listed as suspicious by arson investigators. However, investigators have not linked the three blazes or two other suburban church fires that occurred in the past three months.

Measuring acid rain elements is subject of seminar, study

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

A new method of tracking the source and transport of atmospheric aerosols has determined that Midwestern states are responsible for about half of the suspected pollutants that result in acid rain in the Northeastern United States.

Kenneth Rahn, a research professor at the Center for Atmospheric Chemistry Studies at the University of Rhode Island, presented data collected using the "trace metal signature" technique at a seminar in Neckers Auditorium Friday.

Rahn's study indicates that the source of potential acid rain components is equally split between the Midwest and Northeast regions of the country. This, he says, means that the Midwestern states should not be forced to bear the brunt of attempts to curb acid rain.

Although the effects of Midwestern air cannot be denied, Rahn said, "There is no reason for the Midwest to take the blame when half of the sulphates come from right in the Northeast."

The trace metal signature technique designed by Rahn

'There is no reason for the Midwest to take the blame when half of the sulphates come from right in the Northeast.'

—Kenneth Rahn

analyzes atmospheric samples from different regions of the country and compares the amounts of trace elements.

In experiments focusing on the sources of acid rain, Rahn's research team tested for traces of selenium, indium, zinc, manganese, vanadium, antimony and arsenic, all elements released into the atmosphere during high-temperature combustion associated with burning coal and oil.

Rahn, who earned his doctorate in meteorology from the University of Michigan, said the trace element levels are then compared to weather flow patterns to derive regional coefficients, which indicate the region of origin of materials in the atmosphere.

Rahn acknowledged that it is difficult to associate trace elements with the sulfates that form acidic aerosols which make up acid rain, but he said his research was useful in determining the source of materials in the atmosphere.

Midwestern air reaches the Northeast in cycles which usually last about three days, Rahn said. High pressure systems move in a clockwise motion, bringing in relatively clean air from Canada to the Northeast, and counterclockwise-moving low pressure systems move air in from the Midwest.

Rahn said he would support only legislation that requires each region of the country to reduce its proportional contribution to the atmospheric aerosols found in the Northeast. This would, however, require a greater reduction by Midwestern industries because the Midwest produces a larger amount of industrial emissions.

"Pound for pound, it would be easier for reductions in the Midwest because the base of emissions is so much higher," Rahn said.

MARCH: Sexual violence targeted

she said.

"Three months before the New Bedford rape, 'Hustler' ran a photo spread of a woman being raped on a pool table. After the rape, they ran a picture postcard of a nude woman on a pool table. The message on the card was, 'Greetings from New Bedford.' Pornography creates a climate that accepts rape," Pressman said.

According to statistics compiled by coordinators, one of three women will be sexually assaulted in her lifetime and one of four will be assaulted before she is 18. The FBI estimates that an American woman is raped every seven minutes.

Wifebeating is the most common but least reported crime in the United States, the coordinators said. It is estimated that half of all married women are beaten at least once by their husbands. According to the FBI, 40 percent of all women murdered in this country die at the hands of their male partners.

About seven million children are beaten by a sibling each year. Ten to 20 percent of American children are victims of sexual assault by a parent or parental figure.

"People need to control themselves," Ward said. "They need to learn it is not appropriate to be violent with others. We don't allow our children to hurt people, why can't adults obey the same rules of behavior?"

Liquor commission to consider license bid

The Local Liquor Control Commission of Carbondale will consider a request on Monday for a liquor license for the Convenient Food Mart on Highway 51 South. The commission, which consists of the members of the City Council, will meet after the council meeting.

The request for the liquor license for the food mart was not endorsed by the Liquor Advisory Board when the board discussed it at a meeting on Oct. 4. Board members opposed to the license said it could set a precedent for other businesses in the area between Carbondale and Makanda, which is now "dry," and possibly create traffic problems on Highway 51.

Branch bank at mall robbed; two male suspects at large

The University Mall branch of the Bank of Carbondale was robbed Saturday morning, a spokeswoman of the Carbondale Police Department said.

Two men carrying handguns and wearing nylon masks entered the bank at about 9:35 a.m. and robbed the bank of an undetermined amount of cash, the spokeswoman said.

The spokeswoman said it has not been determined how the suspects escaped from the mall.

People who were present at the south parking lot of University Mall at approximately 9:30 a.m., and who have information regarding the suspects are asked to contact either the Carbondale Police Department or the FBI, both of whom are investigating the incident.

One of the suspects is said to be a white male, five feet eight inches to six feet tall and weighing about 160 pounds, the police spokeswoman said. He has dark, feathered-back hair, and was wearing square, silver-rimmed glasses, a tan or brown hip-length jacket and jeans.

The other suspect was also a white male, five feet eight inches tall and about 150 pounds. He was wearing a vinyl or leather tan jacket, jeans and white tennis shoes.

Both wore baseball caps, one of which was red, the spokeswoman said.

Computers in dorms will enhance access

THE UNIVERSITY plans to enhance student access to computers by installing computers at the the four main housing areas on campus. This would accommodate the increasing need by students to use computers and improve student safety as they would not have to travel to current terminal locations, said Sam Rinella, director of University Housing.

Rinella is enthusiastic about the computer rooms and their benefit to the students. Certainly there are many benefits to the proposed plan. There is a need for computers at SIU-C and the need to use computers most likely will be greater in the future.

The University has big plans for the future of the resident hall computer terminals, including a hall network system. The University has already ordered $96,500 worth of data processing equipment with plans to purchase IBM 3178 terminals and personal computers for residence hall computer rooms for fiscal year 1987. The IBM computers would then be connected to the mainframe computer in Faner Hall.

WHILE THE COMPUTERS would ease the terminal crunch throughout the campus, there could be some problems with security of the computers. The computers will have 24-hour access and could become prime targets for theft or vandalism. The University would need to employ caretakers to watch over the computers 24 hours a day.

Before the University commits itself to spending a lot of money on computer rooms for the residence areas, it should research all future costs and problems that could arise from such a plan. The protection and maintenance of the computers will require the utmost attention by the University.

The University continues to move ahead in its plans to provide not only adequate but convenient computer access for all students. There may be some problems associated with maintaining computer terminals in dormitories, but their worth in advancing computer access at SIU-C would make them welcome.

Civil Service raises overdue

People of the SIU-C campus: The undersigned few are some very irritated secretaries. We have questioned the "lateness" of our July 1 raise. In doing so we have discovered a few unsettling facts.

First, we have been told that the union is requesting "fair share." In other words, all Civil Service employees represented by the CSBO will be required by state law to pay what is called their fair share. We have no choice, they will take it and we will have no vote or anything else unless we "willingly" join the union.

Second, finding information about CSBO has been very difficult. We have been given the runaround when we have asked questions.

Third, is Lee Hester representing us? If so, why? We understand that he has retired from the University. Any negotiations will not directly affect him.

We have been silent throughout the past years but now have decided to speak up. We believe that the silence has gone on long enough. Does the union have a majority membership on campus? What will they use the money collected from the fair share for? Are they really doing us any good? Do we really feel that they are representing our best interests? Do we really need the union?

We are sure there are others with the same questions. Let's hear from all of you. — Marjorie S. Piercy, Chief Clerk, Disabled Student Services, and three others.

Letters

Abortions could be reduced through responsible birth control

Ms. Ward and Ms. Earle: you missed the whole point of my letter. If you prevent unwanted pregnancies, abortion would not have to be used as a means of "birth control." A pregnancy would only have to be aborted for medical reasons. In your letter you make reference to "...inalienable rights..." if "we" all have these rights, then a law prohibiting abortion would impede us from obtaining these rights. Also in your letter you stated "abortion is not a religious stance," so why then did you make reference to the Bible the third paragraph? Church and state should be kept separate.

In reference to "the ghastly Hitlerian mass murdering" which you mentioned, this has nothing to do with the question of whether abortion is right or wrong. It is outrageously irrelevant.

When considering your statement about the unfairness of individuals being regarded as "devoid of value and respect," one of the first groups that comes to mind is unwanted children. How many unwanted, unloved children do you think are neglected and abused? A conservative estimate states that each year there are 1,500,000 cases of child abuse in the United States (Fontana, 1973). Yet you state that you do not think a focus on birth control is a responsible answer. This is the same society which could possibly have prevented the entire situation with information on sexuality and birth control. You find that idea irresponsible?

Any woman who has sex stands the chance of getting pregnant, as much as a driver stands a chance of having an accident. With drivers, even if they drive recklessly and have a serious accident, we allow them to repair the damage to themselves and others, don't we? In fact we help them do it: To make a woman bear a child out of some warped sense of personal responsibility is like turning our back on a torn and bloody motorist because he got what he deserved. Such an attitude reflects vindictiveness and punishment more than it does commitment to the principle of a personal responsibility. No matter why a woman got pregnant, she still has the right to abort her pregnancy as she sees fit. Sure she may have been careless, but that is a separate issue from what she then chooses to do about the result of her indiscretion.

What I find irresponsible is your wish that every pregnancy result in a birth. Just what do you plan on doing with all these people? We do have a population, you know. I must admit that the idea of a society in which abortions are unnecessary, one in which all women give birth to welcomed children is a nice idea. But a nice idea is all that it is, and idealistic visions are impractical when dealing with reality.

I have stated my views on abortion and so have you. We both have made our own individual choices on the matter, and that is the way it should be. — Paul Lomasney, Junior, Biology.

Salvadoran rebels proposed talks first

Jose Napoleon Duarte has not really been elected by the people of El Salvador and is not the popular president of that country. The Wall Street Journal reported on May 11, 1984, that the Central Intelligence Agency spent $2 million during the May elections to manipulate the outcome in favor of Jose Napoleon Duarte.

It is not unusual when revolutionaries consent to peaceful negotiations and it was not Duarte who made the first gesture toward peace negotiations. In January 1984, the FMLU, which is composed of five main guerrilla organizations, called for an internationally monitored negotiated settlement to the civil war and the formation of a "provisional government of broad participation." The proposal has been signed by the Pope, the U.N. General Assembly, and the Contadora nations.

President Reagan has not revealed evidence of significant arms shipment via Nicaragua to the FMLU guerrillas in El Salvador. The countries have no common border, and intervening Honduran territory and the Gulf of Fonseca that separates them are carefully patrolled by U.S. forces. According to the Reagan administration in July of 1984, the flow of arms from Nicaragua is sporadic and has diminished since 1980. Also, administration officials themselves have repeatedly dismissed the importance of outside arms support to the El Salvador rebels. Fred Ikle of the Defense Department has said that the guerrillas captured 50 percent of their arms from the Salvadoran Army. — M.T. Mojib, Graduate Student, Microbiology.

Rain dampens Homecoming

Mother Nature and West Texas State joined forces Saturday to dampen an otherwise successful Homecoming Day celebration.

With bursts of thunder and rain squalls squarely situated over Carbondale and much of the region, several of the day's events were forced to move indoors or be canceled.

A parade, which was to sport such noted celebrities as actor Robert Walden, who played Rossi in the television series "Lou Grant", and actress Margo Kidder, of "Superman" fame, was washed out Saturday morning as the rains came, and came and came.

However, despite cancellation of the parade, the float competition went on as planned. The first-place prize went to Alpha Eta Rho, an aviation fraternity. It won $300, a plaque and a two-foot high trophy. Alpha Gamma Rho and Rho-mates garnered the second-place prize of $150 and a trophy. Bailey Hall, a Thompson Point men's residence hall, captured third place, worth $75 and a plaque.

The floats, damaged by Mother Nature, were left in "dry" dock at the north end of McAndrew Stadium for the game as they continued to fall apart under the rains.

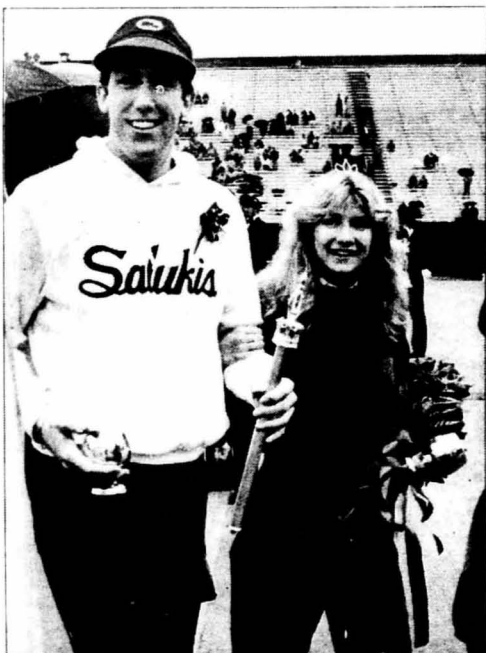

A Texas-style barbecue slated to begin after the parade was forced to move from the Free Forum Area to the Student Center. There a jazz band played to some 20 die-hard listeners. The rain also kept football fans away, as only 2,600 Saluki fans stuck out the rain and a 24-17 loss to the Buffaloes.

Despite the inclement weather, the newly crowned king and queen appeared during half-time and suffered along with the rest. Homecoming King Chris Heeren, a Danville, native and member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, said he was "more than proud of the school and the honor. I was totally stunned" at winning.

Heeren said that finding himself beside Queen Jennifer Hequembourg was no problem. He said that he has known the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority sister since the two houses have a close relationship.

A wet and rowdy crowd watched West Texas State beat the Salukis 24-17.

Chris Heeren and Jennifer Hequembourg, Homecoming king and queen, were honored during halftime of the football game.

'The Reception' confusing, lacks humor

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

There was one glaring flaw with The Reception, the farcical comedy written by SIUC graduate student Mike Phoenix and performed at McLeod Theater last weekend: It was not funny.

Since the first tenet of a farcical comedy is to be amusing, this is a very serious problem indeed. The blame for this unfortunate event cannot be laid with the actors and actresses, who by and large made the most out of the script. The flaw lies in the script itself.

The plot of The Reception, a veritable maze of ins and outs, twists and double-twists, is burdened with creating all the humor in the play. Two bums (Michael Overton and Nate Bynum) stumble into the reception hall of a church, where a wedding is about to take place. They have just made off with all the diamonds from the store of the groom's parents, and in the course of trying to pass themselves off as caterers, friends of the groom, pastors and FBI agents, the diamonds get lost.

MEANWHILE, the groom (Andy Cook) and the bride (Mary Neff) are reluctant to marry, because the groom is really in love with the bridesmaid (Carolyn Mordini) and the bride is in love with the best man (Kevin Jones). To compound the confusion, the bride's state trooper father (Larry Clifton) is making illegal business deals with the groom's mother (Brigid Corrigan), and the pastor (Michael Hornsby) is trying to make it to Hollywood with his "Hula-Hooping for Christ 'B' Team." There are countless other schemes and subterfuges besides, too numerous to count.

The basic problem with the script is that the plot is confusing. Sometimes confusion can be funny, but in this case it works against the play in that the audience cannot see the humor in the events simply because they do not understand what has happened.

THE PLAY would work a lot better if half the plot twists were taken out and the focus brought more to bear on the characters, who are in themselves very novel and funny.

This is not to say The Reception was a bad production. The play's saving grace was those sparkling moments when the script was clear and the acting was fine. The cast put out some good performances, though those of the bride, the groom, and the best man seemed somewhat stiff, and the pastor often verged on the hysterical.

Particularly good were Larry Clifton as the dictatorial father of the bride, who growls "It's MY wedding — I'm paying for it," and R. Brent Lappin, who played the absent-minded uppercrust father of the groom.

OTHER NOTABLE performances were Nate Bynum's, who stole the show in a scene where he is disguised as a famous athlete and the bride's father starts asking him pointed questions about his career. Bynum is suddenly seized with an "epileptic fit," and starts to breakdance and flop about the floor like a crazed top, thus preventing further questions.

Another problem with the play is that it does not exploit the natural humor to be found in the characters' relationships. For instance, it would be interesting to find out why a greif, bossy cop would marry a weird, arty-tarty psychic (Mary Wisniewski), or what the bride and groom see — or don't see — in each other. If more attention were paid to details like these, and half the plot convolutions eliminated, The Reception would certainly be a better — and funnier — play.

Viewers say film not propaganda

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

About 50 people watched a Canadian Film Board movie about acid rain last Thursday and agreed that they saw no reason why it had previously been tagged as political propaganda by the Justice Department.

Sponsored by the Sierra Club, the film, "Acid Rain: Requiem or Recovery," released in 1983, gave information on acid rain research and said the main cause of acid rain is sulphur emissions from coal- and oil-burning power plants. The film never mentioned that the United States was at fault, yet added that because of surface winds, "acid rain knows no political boundaries."

"Energy is a major base of our North American culture," the film said. "We want it and we need it."

But the film said that emissions ejected by the power companies feeding our appetite for energy are putting 60 million tons of sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide into the air by the United States and Canada alone. The film said sulphur dioxide rises in the atmosphere and comes down as sulphuric acid, damaging forests, water, animal life and to the cost of taxpayers, the outside of buildings.

"Damage to monuments and outside structures totals $2 billion in the United States and between $350-560 million dollars in Canada a year," the film said.

The film also said acid precipitation has caused nine rivers in Nova Scotia to be labeled "dead," eliminated Brook trout in 180 Northeast lakes, threatens some species of frogs and salamanders, and bathes sensitive fish embryos in acid, causing serious harm to food chains.

In addition, the film said studies in Oregon showed that acid rain harms food crops. One acid rain simulation study, which used 28 different plant species representing $50 billion worth of food crops produced annually, resulted in half the plants being damaged, while the other half showed depressed growth.

The film said while the Northeast is a major dumping ground for acid precipitation, its soils and bedrock do not contain important nutrients like limestone that act as buffering agents.

"Unlike cancer," the film said, "we know both the cause and cure of acid rain," and stated that Japan and Scandinavian countries have proven that sulphur emissions can be cut without economic suffering.

Eugene LeFebvre, associate professor in zoology, showed the film to his "GSA: 312, Conservation and Natural Resources" class and, like the Sierra Club audience, thought the film showed no bias as to where most of the sulphur comes from.

"I think it was very even tempered," LeFebvre said. "I certainly don't think it was political propaganda."

LeFebvre said some of the film's discussions showed that the makers tried hard not to accuse only U.S. power plants.

LeFebvre said some assertions made by the film could be questioned, including the negligence to add ozone as a possible cause of forest damage.

Blind performer's message expresses positive attitude

By Susan Sarkauskas
Staff Writer
and Elaine Wilkinson
Student Writer

Author, actor, singer, and composer Tom Sullivan urged a Student Center audience Friday night to "celebrate life" instead of dwelling on negative past experiences or labels given by other people.

Sullivan is the author of "If You Could See What I Hear," a book about his struggle to overcome the stigma attached to being blind in a sighted world. The book was made into a movie of the same title. Sullivan is a correspondent for the television show "Good Morning, America", and was an Olympic wrestler. He expressed his positive message through song and lecture, although it seemed less like a lecture and more like a sharing from the heart of enthusiasm and laughter.

SULLIVAN DOESN'T believe in applying traditional labels to people, calling them "blind," "handicapped" or "disabled." "Everybody has a handicap, or an inconvenience, or a disadvantage," he said. Sullivan is convinced, however, that every disadvantage can be turned into an advantage.

"If you have negative thought processes going, the only loser is you," Sullivan said. "Nobody else gives a damn. Tell yourself, 'If I just do the best job possible, I can be a winner.'"

Sullivan said he grew up "competitively angry," determined to do things sighted people could do. This anger spurred his interest in sports. An accomplished amateur athlete, he plays golf, rides horses, has sky-dived, skis in Colorado, and is training for the New York City Marathon.

HE SEES HIS disadvantage as giving him other advantages. Because he can't see, he can't make visual impressions of people. "I have never met an ugly person, unless they wanted to be," he said.

Sullivan believes that society must stop using labels to define people. "I think life is a celebration of individual uniqueness," he said. Labels can only get in the way of this celebration. Depression can interfere with the celebration, too. As a nation, he believes we are "allowing ourselves to fall into an emotional depression, that's based on yesterday's news." Sullivan said a positive self-image is needed to "attack life."

SULLIVAN challenged the attitudes of students toward their education, reminding them that by being hung up on getting a job, they aren't getting what they came to school for — an "eclectic education." He encouraged students not to be afraid to take chances, especially, he said, because they possess the ability to change their lives completely if they wish.

"All of us have turning points," he said. These may be college graduation, getting that first job, marriage, the birth of a child, or a personal crisis. "The winning or losing of this battle, and life celebration, occurs at these turning points," Sullivan said.

Although his positive attitude, charismatic stage presence, and wry jokes about his blindness are an inspirational example of turning disadvantage into advantage. Sullivan reminded the audience that being blind is "no picnic."

"UNTIL I was 25, I was a hostile, arrogant, aggressive, rude human, who felt I had been cheated," Sullivan said.

Sullivan stressed that change may not come easily. Impatient people, he said, may become frustrated when they try to achieve impossible goals. Instead, he urged the audience to focus on smaller things that can be done in the process of achieving larger goals.

Sullivan's celebration is that of one who sees the beauty in life. "I don't think most of us look close enough at life to see what is really beautiful in it," he said. Sullivan goes farther. He is a man, who, after "seeing" the beauty, has the joy and the courage to share it with others.

Flying Salukis win regional, will compete for national title

The national champion Flying Salukis winged their third straight Region Eight Intercollegiate Flying Association championship Oct. 11-13 at the University of Illinois.

Competing both in the air and on the ground, the Salukis edged the U of I and St. Louis University's Parks College. Four points divided the top three teams, team coach Mark Rhodes said.

The win secures a berth at the National Intercollegiate Flying Association championship to be held at Ohio State University in May 1985. The defending champion Salukis have won seven out of the last eight NIFA titles.

Individual first place honors went to Dean Haviland in the preflight safety inspection event, John Heineman in the short field accuracy landing event, Mark Hamilton in the aircraft identification event and Paul Hoegstrum in the computer accuracy event.

Blank and friends not perfect, but do offer some homespun fun

By Morgan Falkner
Staff Writer

The acoustic sounds of SIU-C's own Michael Blank and Friends filled the Old Main Room of the Student Center Thursday night, as the five-member group performed everything from the Beatles to the Eagles to the more unorthodox entertainment medium of wild-game calls.

With brothers Jerry and Jim Jennings on hand to give that Li'l Abner flavor to the show, Blank and Friends forged their way through a two set performance that was high on good honest fun and low on the cerebral cortex.

And that's OK, because the sort of homespun music the band played, by its very nature, tries to avoid social or political comment. From the antelope calls to the storytelling, Blank and Friends managed to keep the show at a simple, unpretentious level.

Perfection in execution is not something to be greatly concerned with while dealing with this particular music form, but at the same time it isn't to be conveniently ignored either. This is at the very heart of the band's shortcomings.

The most obvious flaw in Thursday's performance was the gravity of Blank's off-key voice. It was off-key for most of the show, and after one particularly excruciating botch during the Eagles' "The Best of my Love," Blank had no choice but to offer an apology. He explained to the audience of about 50 that he was "coming down with something."

There was also the problem of Blank's acoustic guitar playing. From the show's opening number, "Cindy Jane," in which only Blank appeared on stage, it became all too clear that Blank's command of a guitar was limited at best. Lots of choppy chord work typified Blank's 12-string guitar playing.

Blank just couldn't seem to play in time for most of the show, and that clearly detracted, by virtue of its prominence, from the otherwise fine instrumentation of the Jennings brothers and bassist Joe Fromm. Jerry Jennings especially stood out as a talented musician, as he plied his down-home brand of music with the use of guitars, mandolins and fiddles.

Fromm, who played an acoustic bass, and Jim Jennings, who played rhythm guitar, kept unobtrusive pace with the rest of the band.

A critique of the wild-game calls demands a radically different standard of excellence with which to judge. If musicians utilizing "normal" instruments are assessed by such characteristics as style, technique, and execution, then wild game calls must be judged by their ability to imitate the real thing.

The mark of excellence would then be a game call that transports the listener to some game filled park in Minnesota or Wisconsin. Whether or not this translates into entertainment would then depend on a particular listener's idea of entertainment. If it is indeed entertainment, then it is certainly entertainment of a low nature.

Nonetheless, the wild-game calls were performed with emotion and heart-felt zeal. Each call was accompanied by a little story about that particular animal. Very enlightening.

Perhaps the most entertaining aspect of the evening's performance was the on-stage ineptitude of the Jennings brothers. It was truly funny each time one of them biffed their guitar on a microphone. They laughed, the audience laughed, and the show went on as usual.

Maybe the wrong standards are being applied for this unique sort of music forum. Precision was never really worried about, and the audience didn't seem to mind. Everyone was having fun, and anyone concerned about a botched passage wasn't really approaching the show with the right attitude.

Railroad project gets financial boost

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project will be able to finish plans and purchase construction easements thanks to a $500,000 boost it received last week when Congress passed their $370 billion "catch all" spending bill, according to Jeff Doherty, assistant director of the project.

The project will depress Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's mainline, which runs through the center of Carbondale, below street level to avoid conflicts between trains and motorists. Doherty said it will be 30 feet deep, 70 feet wide and two miles long.

An easement is a grant from property owners allowing the right to use their land during construction, said Doherty, adding that construction workers might have to leave the boundaries of Central Gulf land during construction.

Another project that needs to be finished in the next year is the drafting of final plans. Doherty said some factors that need to be looked at are how the city can keep trash from being thrown into the depression, how the final project can look aesthetic and what is the best way to relocate underground steam pipes and electrical wires.

The next step is construction, which Doherty said will include building an alternate railroad, depressing the mainline, adding an extensive drainage system and constructing another overpass on the SIU-C campus covering Ho Chi Minh trail. The overpass will contain steam pipes and electrical wires which would otherwise obstruct digging.

Construction will cost around $65 million dollars, Doherty said. While 95 percent of the bills will be paid federally, the remaining 5 percent will be paid by Carbondale, the Illinois Department of Transportation, Illinois Central Gulf and SIU-C.

$1,000 in goods stolen from home

A Makanda household was broken into Saturday evening and personal items worth more than $1,000 were stolen, a Jackson County Sheriff's office spokeswoman said.

Betty Walker, 54, Route 1, reported at 10:43 p.m. that unknown persons had entered her home and taken jewelry, electronic equipment and other items.

The Sheriff's office spokeswoman said that the investigation is continuing.

Vandals damage 10 vehicles in lot

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

Ten vehicles were vandalized while parked in a campus parking lot Wednesday night, bringing the number of cars damaged in campus lots since the first of October to 52, SIUC police spokesman Sgt. Robert Drake said.

Drake said the number of incidents of vandalism to vehicles is unusually high, and that no suspects have been arrested. He said that the cars damaged Wednesday were parked in lot four, which is located across the street from Thompson Point.

SIUC police public relations officer Nelson Ferry noted that such vandalism occurs on a regular basis.

"What usually happens is that some people coming home from the bars downtown might decide to have a little fun by jangling on some cars," Ferry said.

Ferry said that such vandalism is usually not premeditated, and that the random nature of such violations makes it difficult to catch the perpetrators.

Such incidents are usually reported to the police by the victims, he said, but a decrease in their frequency won't be noticed until witnesses begin to call the police — something that he says isn't happening right now.

"It's because of apathy," Ferry said. "they say, 'it's not my car so I don't care.'"

Ferry said that motorists can avoid having their car bodies scratched or headlights smashed if they park under streetlights and away from the usual paths of pedestrian traffic.

Everybody knows what a squirrel looks like, right? Not necessarily. For the visually impaired, a squirrel is something of a mystery.

That is why Dan Thompson, senior in special education, decided to make museum mounts of stuffed animals to be placed in the University Museum for the handicapped to come in and look at.

So far he has specimens of a snowshoe hare, a gray squirrel, and a raccoon, and skulls of each of them mounted on a cedar base. He has labeled them with name plates having the common name, the Latin name and the name in braille. He has also put a speaker inside the base which plays a recording "which leads you through the animal tactilely."

Thompson himself is blind and said he did the mounts partly "because I wanted to know about nature myself." He said he has been blind since he was 7 and "I don't remember so much about the creatures. A raccoon to me was much smaller.

These are "flat mounts," he said, because they are stuffed with cotton and laid out flat in positions which aren't natural for the animals.

However, if he can get more funding, he wants to make "live mounts," of songbirds and other animals. With live mounts, he said, the animals are put in a special oven that removes all the moisture from their bodies, but leaves the animal in a natural pose with heart, liver, brain, and other vital organs intact inside. Live mounts are better, he said, because the fur is much fluffier and more realistic.

Thompson doesn't do the stuffing or freezing of the animals himself. They are donated by the Department of Zoology. An instructor in the Zoology Department also read the script on the tape, and filled in gaps in the script for Thompson.

Thompson also got help from the Craft Shop in the Student Center where the mounts he designed were built. The project cost about $200, he said.

He said he would like to build "a complete exhibit that can stay there forever. I would like SIU to have one of the largest museums for the visually impaired."

The mounts are not only for the visually impaired. "A lot of sighted people don't know what the animals feel like," he said.

McMahon leads Bears in rout

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Jim McMahon passed for 219 yards and three touchdowns and Walter Payton added a pair of touchdowns on the ground Sunday to lead the Chicago Bears to a 44-9 rout of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and a two-game lead in the NFC Central Division.

Payton, held to less than 100 yards rushing for only the second time this season, finished with 72 yards on 20 carries and failed in his attempt to become the third runner in National Football League history to top the century mark in a record seven straight games.

Tampa Bay, 3-5, also limited the NFL's all-time leading rusher to 61 yards on 16 attempts during a 34-14 loss to the 5-3 Bears in the season opener seven weeks ago.

McMahon, slowed this year by a hairline fracture in his throwing hand, completed 12 of 18 passes and tossed a 32-yard touchdown pass to Dennis McKinnon on a flea-flicker play that also involved Payton, who increased his NFL-leading season rushing total to 947 yards.

McMahon also threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Willie Gault for a 27-3 third-quarter lead and later threw a 49-yard pass to rookie Brad Anderson for a 37-5 lead with 4:47 left to play.

Chicago rolled to a 20-3 halftime lead on the strength of Payton TD runs of 8 and 3 yards and McKinnon's second touchdown reception of the year.

Payton, who now has 12,572 career rushing yards, also caught three passes for 25 yards and completed a pass to McMahon on a play covering 42 yards.

Tampa Bay's Obed Ariri kicked a 46-yard field goal in the second quarter and Gerald Carter caught a 4-yard, fourth-quarter TD pass from Steve DeBerg to account for the Bucs' scoring.

The Bears' Dennis Gentry completed the rout, running five yards to complete a three-play, 37-yard march with 1:57 to go.

Penalties played a key role in Chicago's first three touchdown drives as the Bears built their 20-3 halftime advantage.

Bucs nose tackle David Logan was flagged twice for being offside in the march leading to Payton's first TD run, and a penalty assessed to linebacker Keith Browner for hitting McMahon out of bounds gave Chicago a first down at the Tampa Bay 8.

British citizen shatters marathon record

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Jones, a Royal Air Force corporal from Great Britain, became the fastest marathoner in history Sunday as he blazed through the wet, windy conditions to capture the America's Marathon-Chicago in 2 hours, 8 minutes and 5 seconds.

That broke the previous best time of 2:08.13 for 26.2 miles set by Alberto Salazar in New York in 1981.

Rosa Mota of Porto, Portugal, ran away with the women's race in 2:26.01 as she won her second consecutive Chicago marathon.

Jones, 29, of Barry, Wales, beat favored Olympic gold medalist Carlos Lopes of Portugal, who finished in 2:09.06, and Rob de Castella of Australia, who finished in 2:09.09.

A total of 10,112 runners started the race in wet, windy weather in downtown Chicago.

But Jones said he wasn't bothered by the weather.

It was his first marathon finish and only the second marathon he had started. Last year, Jones dropped out after 17 miles in the Chicago marathon.

"Only the last two miles hurt," said Jones, who picked up $35,000 for the win. "My plan was to stick with the marathon runners."

After the 19-mile mark, Jones started to pull away, "and they just didn't come," he said.

"I looked around me, and I saw that no one was being very decisive at all," he said. "I felt it was time to go."

Despite the record, Jones, primarily a shorter distance runner, said he still doesn't consider himself a marathoner.

"I'll continue to do one marathon a year, and this is the one I'll do next year," he said.

Jones realized he had a shot at the top time with about two kilometers left, when someone in the crowd shouted it, he said.

"It hasn't sunk in yet," he said.

Even though Jones opened a solid lead after 21 miles, he said he kept pushing because "I didn't want them to catch me."

Except for returning to duty Thursday, Jones said he has no immediate plans — almost none, that is.

"I haven't had a drink in five-and-a-half weeks, and I'm going to have one tonight," he said.

Washington survives scare by Oregon

By Herschel Nissenson
Of the Associated Press

When you're the nation's No. 1 football team and fighting for your life, it's not how you play the game but whether you win or lose.

"This was by far our worst offensive game, but I don't know of too many 7-0 teams," Washington Coach Don James said after the top-ranked Huskies managed only 109 yards in total offense but scored on a punt return and a blocked punt to hold off Oregon 17-10.

There are only two 7-0 major-college teams — Washington and seventh-ranked Brigham Young, which needed four touchdown passes and 484 aerial yards from Robbie Bosco to nose out Air Force 30-25. However, No. 11 South Carolina is 6-0 after erasing a 26-14 deficit to beat Notre Dame 36-32, and Fullerton State tops them all at 8-0 after a 36-14 whipping of Nevada-Reno.

Only two members of The Associated Press Top Ten had things pretty much their own way Saturday — ninth-ranked Miami trimmed Pitt 27-7 and No. 10 LSU trounced No. 16 Kentucky 36-10.

Runner-up Oklahoma needed a field goal and touchdown in the final period to squeak past Iowa State 12-10, third-ranked Texas surrendered 15 points in the final five minutes but held on to beat Arkansas 24-18 when time ran out with the Razorbacks on the three-yard line, No. 4 Boston College blew a 20-6 halftime lead and lost to No. 20 West Virginia 21-20, fifth-ranked Nebraska scored three touchdowns in the last period to defeat Colorado 24-7, No. 6 Southern Methodist was upset by Houston 29-20 and No. 8 Ohio State held off Michigan State 23-20 when the losers' Ralf Mojsiejenko shanked a 43-yard field goal attempt with three seconds left.

In the Second Ten, No. 12

Oklahoma State pounded Kansas 47-10, No. 13 Auburn defeated Georgia Tech 48-34.

No. 14 Georgia swamped Vanderbilt 62-35, No. 15 Florida State downed Tulane 27-6, No. 17 Florida hammered Cincinnati 41-17, No. 18 Iowa blanked Michigan 26-0 and No. 19 Penn State defeated Syracuse 21-3.

O'Donoghue's field goal lifts Cards past Redskins

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Neil O'Donoghue, making up for two earlier misses, kicked a 21-yard field goal with three seconds remaining, lifting the St. Louis Cardinals to a 26-24 National Football League triumph Sunday over the Washington Redskins.

The field goal by O'Donoghue, who missed a 40-yard try with 2:53 remaining, capped a 63-yard drive by St. Louis.

Neil Lomax, spearheading the drive, hit Pat Tilley with a 21-yard pass to set up the winning kick.

The Cards, after falling behind 21-13, launched a comeback that at first stalled when O'Donoghue missed an extra point try following an 83-yard touchdown pass play.

The miss came with 11:31 remaining. With St. Louis trailing 24-23, the Cards kicker missed his 40-yard attempt with 2:53 remaining.

Pile-driving runs by John Riggins and a fumble recovery by Pro Bowl defensive tackle Dave Butz rallied Washington after St. Louis grabbed a 10-7 edge at halftime.

Riggins' touchdown, his ninth of the year, capped a 75-yard drive at the second half's outset.

Four minutes later, after veteran defensive end Tony McGee caused a fumble by Lomax and Butz recovered, Walker gathered in Joe Theismann's pass to establish an 11-point lead for Washington.

St. Louis would not quit, however, trimming the Redskins' lead to 21-17 when Lomax and Doug Marsh hooked up on a 19-yard scoring play late in the third quarter.

Mark Moseley kicked a 39-yard field goal for what appeared to be the winning points with 11:51 remaining following a 36-yard pass play between Theisman and Clint Didier. But 10 seconds after that, Roy Green hauled in a Lomax pass on the play that left the Cards just short.

In an opening half which featured four sacks of Theismann by the Cards' unheralded defense, St. Louis grabbed the lead at the outset when Lomax found Green on a 38-yard bomb.

Washington countered late in the opening period on Theismann's pass of 3 yards to Didier. O'Donoghue later kicked a 29-yard field goal to put the Cards back on top 10-7 at 4:43 of the second quarter but missed 34-yard attempt later in the same period.

Lomax, while throwing against stunting Washington defenses, completed 20 of 37 passes for 361 yards in a St. Louis offense that totaled 481 yards in a contest that left both teams with 5-3 records.

During a defensive struggle during the opening two periods, St. Louis failed to expand its lead with O'Donoghue missed his field-goal drive from the 24 of the Redskins with 4:35 remaining.

Fielders gain 1-1 tie against Bears

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Salukis field hockey team proved Saturday they are in the class of Midwest-powerhouse Southwest Missouri State.

Despite four player changes in the starting lineup because of an injury to right inner Nadine Simpson and playing in a rainstorm, the Salukis fought to a 1-1 tie against Southwest. The Bears had been ranked in the NCAA top 20 poll throughout most of the season before dropping out last week.

"We had the game and let them score," SIU-C Coach Julee Illner said. "We totally dominated the first half and played real well. We controlled the ball and we got to the ball first and put them at the defensive in the first half. The second half play was about even."

After a scoreless first half, Saluki left wing Sharon Leidy scored at the 13-minute mark into the second half for her team-leading seventh goal of the season. Southwest countered with a goal five minutes later to tie the game.

Illner said goalie Sandy Wasley played her usual, good steady game against Southwest.

The tie was important for the Salukis since it was Southwest who started the Salukis four-game losing streak with a 2-0 win Sept. 29 in the Saluki Hockey Fest.

"I think the players are optimistic about the rest of the season," Illner said. "I think they were up for the game and optimistic about the position change and Dana (Riedel) being on the front line."

Because of Simpson's injury, Illner made wholesale changes in the starting lineup.

Illner said she'll probably go with the same lineup Tuesday against St. Louis.

"I think Karen Cordell did an excellent job," she said. "I think (sweeper) Nancy McAuley had a good game too. I think everybody did a good job considering the position changes and the weather conditions."

The Salukis will face St. Louis at 4 p.m. at Wham Field.

Ruggers beat Paducah 34-8

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Paducah might have scored the first time it touched the ball, but after that it was all SIU-C Friday night in a rugby match at Murray State.

The Salukis roared back to crush Paducah 34-8 to improve their record to 4-3 overall. After holding a 14-8 halftime lead, the Salukis put the game away by outscoring Paducah 20-0 in the second half.

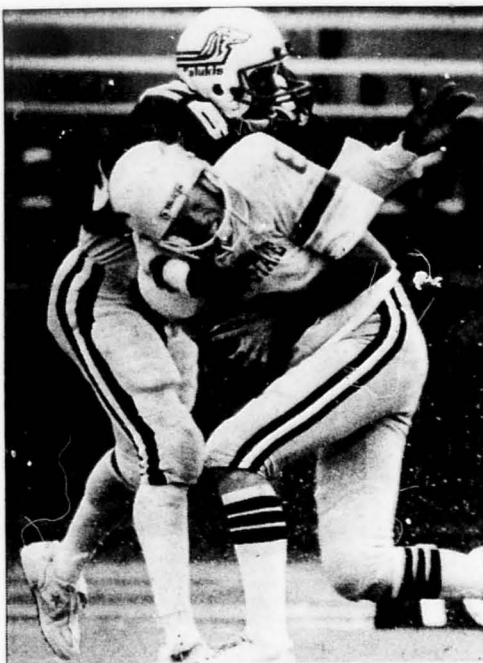

"Our backs outplayed Paducah's backs and we really got going in the second half," forward Michael Madden said. "They were a good team, but we had a good game and played well together."

The Salukis offense was led by wing Mike Rickerson, who scored three tries, and prop Bill Svetlik, who added two tries.

"The victory gives us a feeling of confidence," Madden said. "We always knew we were a good club and now we have something to show for it."

The Salukis will hold the 16-team, All Ghoul's Tournament on Saturday at the rugby pitch south of Abe Martin Field. It will be a double elimination tournament with a Maroon and White division.

Madden said the Salukis will play in the Maroon division and will face Illinois State Saturday at 10 a.m.

Under wraps

Saluki freshman Bobby Sloan (26) tackled West Texas State punter Kevin Brown after a fumbled snap early in the third quarter of Saturday's game.

LOSS: Salukis were ill prepared

THE SALUKI coaching staff corrected the defensive problems at halftime, but the offense continued to sputter as the second half began.

Early in the third quarter, WTSU punter Kevin Brown fumbled a snap and was tackled at his own 14-yard line, where SIU-C took possession. Three plays later, the Salukis had moved no further, and Ron Miller missed a 29-yard field goal attempt when he lost his footing.

On the Salukis' second possession of the quarter, quarterback Darren Dixon threw an interception on the first play. It was the first of several second-half turnovers which eventually doomed SIU-C.

Graves replaced Dixon late in the third quarter, and directed a 44-yard drive which culminated with a 36-yard field goal by Miller, bringing SIU-C within 11 points at 21-10.

After the SIU-C defense held, the offense regained possession at its own 48-yard line. Graves promptly connected with flanker Tony Adams for a seven-yard completion. But Adams fumbled, and WTSU took control near midfield. The Buffaloes eventually drove for a field goal, regaining their two-touchdown lead.

"It was a careless fumble," Dorr said. "I hate to say that, but it took away an opportunity to get back into the ballgame."

On the kickoff following WTSU's field goal, back-up kick returner John Field replaced Adams and returned the kick 92 yards for the game's final score with over eight minutes remaining. SIU-C had three other opportunities to score, but a costly turnover and two stalled drives sealed the win for WTSU.

The final turnover came when punt returner Tony Jackson fumbled on a fair catch call at the Buffaloes' 40-yard line with 3:41 left. The Buffaloes recovered, denying SIU-C excellent field position and a chance to win the game.

"Tony Jackson was OK in trying to catch the punt," Dorr said. "He just allowed it to get into him. No, it wasn't the turning point in the game. It wasn't as big a turnover as our fumble (Adams) following the pass completion."

DORR SAID he was mystified as to why the Salukis didn't play with more intensity.

"I can't believe we didn't play with more emotion or enthusiasm," he said. "Maybe we were looking at next week's game. The players might have weren't. I don't know the coaches weren't. I didn't see one thing I liked today."

TURNOVERS: Miscues key win

Tony Jackson dropped a punt at the WTSU 40-yard line with 3:41 left in the game, and the Buffaloes Clark Pylant recovered the ball. The fumble wiped out an opportunity for a game-winning drive by the Salukis.

The Buffaloes, in contrast, made only one mistake, which SIU-C failed to capitalize on at 9:45 of the third quarter. Buffaloes punter Kevin Brown fumbled the snap from center and was dropped by the Salukis Bobby Sloan at the WTSU 14-yard line.

But the Salukis couldn't move the ball in three plays, and kicker Ron Miller missed a 29-yard field goal attempt.

WTSU Coach Don Davis said that was the turning point of the game.

"I think that is when Southern physiologically lost the game," he said. "They got the ball deep in our territory and came up empty. That is when the players knew they could stop them."

The Salukis can't afford a letdown from the loss because they play Indiana State, ranked No. 1 in Division 1AA, Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

Ill-prepared Dogs dumped by Buffaloes

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

Maybe the football Salukis were caught looking ahead to a pivotal game against Indiana State, or maybe they just underestimated the ability of West Texas State. But one thing is certain — SIU-C was not prepared to play when they took the field for Saturday's game at McAndrew Stadium.

The Salukis self-destructed by committing four turnovers, yielding several big plays and, in general, just playing poor football in losing a 24-17 decision against a lackluster WTSU squad. It was the Buffaloes second win in a row after snapping an 18-game winless streak last weekend.

The game was played in a downpour that soaked the playing surface and held the homecoming crowd to just 2,600, far below the crowd expected by SIU-C officials. 6,728 tickets were sold prior to game time.

"I THINK we set ourselves back more than anything today," Saluki Coach Ray Dorr said in a press conference following the game. "I don't think the players played up to their ability. I think the Salukis were the big factor behind the loss."

Dorr's contention appeared to be correct, because after three weeks of solid play, SIU-C reverted back to its early-season form on Saturday. The same problems that plagued the Salukis during their four-game losing streak to begin the season were evident again — turnovers, poor kick coverage, an ineffective offense, missed tackles and a tendency to give up big plays.

The loss erased any slim hopes the Salukis had of returning to the Division I-AA playoffs and dropped their record to 0-3 in the Missouri Valley Conference and 3-5 overall. It also lessened the importance of this Saturday's game against ISU, the nation's top-ranked Division I-AA team.

THINGS STARTED out well for SIU-C Saturday, and it could have done more harm than good for the Salukis.

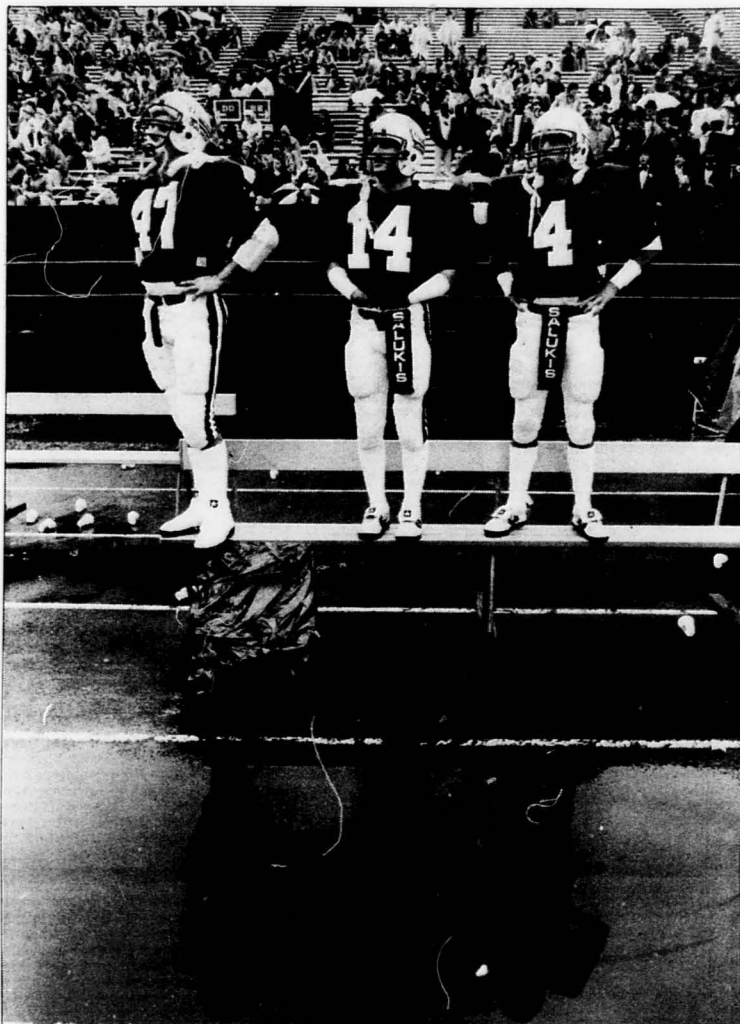

On SIU-C's first possession, reserve quarterback Joe Graves lined up at halfback, took a pitch and then hit split end Tony Anderson on a 75-yard touchdown pass, putting the Salukis ahead 7-0 early in the first quarter.

The play would prove to be the only bright spot the Salukis would enjoy in the first half. After the play, the Buffaloes regrouped, and utilized an option offense directed by quarterback David Harbin to score three touchdowns and take a 21-7 halftime lead. Harbin rushed for all three TD's.

"I think when you get an easy score, you think, 'This is going to be easy,'" Dorr said. "I'd like to think not, but this might have happened to us."

The Saluki defense had little success in stopping WTSU's option offense in the first half because the Buffaloes used a very effective blocking scheme, Dorr said. The Buffaloes tight end blocked down on the SIU-C outside linebacker, and the offensive tackle took the Salukis' tackle. WTSU would then pull a guard who would hook the defensive end to the inside. The strategy enabled Harbin to carry 18 times for 67 yards in the opening half.

Saluki turnovers give WTSU victory

By Steve Koulos

The Salukis were their own worst enemy against West Texas State Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

The Buffaloes capitalized on three Saluki turnovers and converted them into 17 points in their 24-17 victory. But the Salukis couldn't capitalize on the Buffaloes lone turnover. SIU-C had a golden opportunity to score after recovering a fumble on WTSU's 14-yard line, but came away empty.

"West Texas took advantage of our mistakes, and they didn't make as many mistakes as we did," Saluki Coach Ray Dorr said.

THE BUFFALOES scored their first two touchdowns on Saluki turnovers.

Saluki quarterback Darren Dixon attempted a pass to tight end Mike O'Day and was intercepted by WTSU left linebacker Anthony Miller, who returned the ball 22 yards to the Saluki 10-yard line.

One play later, WTSU quarterback David Harbin ran around the right end on an option play for a 10-yard touchdown run to tie the score at seven with four minutes remaining in the first quarter. It was the first of three touchdown runs by Harbin.

The second and third Saluki mistakes were committed by punt returner-flanker Tony Adams.

Late in the first quarter, Adams made a fine 30-yard punt return for the Salukis but coughed up the ball. The Buffaloes Glenn Potter recovered the fumble at the Salukis 43-yard line.

Nine plays later, Harbin faked a run up the middle to a running back and ran to the outside for a two-yard touchdown run giving the Buffaloes a 14-7 lead with 1:28 remaining in the quarter.

Adams again made a miscue early in the fourth quarter, helping set up the Buffaloes final three points of the game.

He caught a seven-yard pass from reserve quarterback Joe Graves, but fumbled and Buffaloes cornerback Jeff Smith recovered the ball at the WTSU 46-yard line.

The Buffaloes moved the ball to the Saluki 9-yard line, and when their drive stalled, Dennis Steinbock kicked a 26-yard field goal, giving them a 24-10 lead with 8:52 remaining in the game.

JOHN FIELD returned the ensuing kickoff 92 yards to make the score 24-17, but SIU-C made another key mistake late in the game after stopping WTSU at its own 11-yard line.

Spikers rebound to win three weekend matched

By Duane Crays

The SIU-C volleyball team, coming off one its worst performances of the season, won all three of its matches last weekend, defeating Louisville in five games and Eastern Illinois University and the University of Illinois at Chicago in three games each.

Against Louisville Thursday, the Salukis won the first game 15-12, but lost the next two games, 15-7 and 13-15. The turning point of the match came in the fourth game.

Losing in the game, Coach Debbie Hunter made several substitutions. Gradually working the starters back on the court, Hunter managed to cut the Louisville advantage, winning the game 16-14. SIU-C then won the fifth game 15-12 to win the match.

Middle hitter Chris Boyd led the Saluki attack with a .410 attack percentage. Pat Nicholson had a .314 attack percentage and Donna Tindall had a .263 attack percentage. The team had 23 service aces and 16 block assists and two solo blocks in the match.

On Friday, SIU-C traveled to Charleston to play against Eastern. The Salukis defeated the Panthers easily in three games 15-6, 15-6 and 15-9.

Boyd again led the Salukis in hitting, having a .476 attack percentage. Pat Nicholson hit .333 in the match and Darlene Hogue had a .263 attack percentage against Eastern. The team had a .252 attack percentage against the Panthers. The win raised the Salukis record in Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference play to 2-1.

SIU-C handled the Flames with relative ease, defeating them in three games 15-8, 15-5 and 15-11. It was the Salukis second meeting with Illinois-Chicago, losing the first match in five games.

The Flames did manage the control Boyd, but Tindall had a .368 attack percentage and Hogue had a .500 attack percentage on her 12 attempts.

The three wins raised the Salukis overall record to 14-7. On Tuesday, the Salukis play against St. Louis University at Davies Gymnasium. Match time is set for 7:30 p.m.
