Reagan asks Soviets for ‘a mutual respect’

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Reagan, in a letter to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev that was reported here Tuesday, said the United States is prepared to “establish a framework of mutual respect” with the Soviet Union.

Reagan was critical of a Soviet arms buildup and warned against Soviet intervention in Poland. Fischer said. However, the letter clearly could set the stage for improved relations with the Soviets following nine months of嚴重 negotiations.

Reagan struck his conciliatory tone in the letter to Brezhnev before casting his vote. He said the city is still divided and rebuilding.

Reagan asked the Soviets to take our word, anything that we’re now going to have, and our word, anything that we’re now going to have.

Reagan delivered a letter to the General Assembly. He said, “The Soviet Union has not been rejected nor is it seeking, or on the United Nations.

Reagan also denounced what he described as “attempts by certain quarters in Western Europe to shake loose the socialist foundations of the Polish State.”

Clean-Up Day funding request turned down by City Council

By Andrew Strang

The Carbondale City Council Monday denied a request for $3,000 by the Undergraduate Student Organization to help pay for Carbondale Clean-Up Day.

Councilman Charles Watkins said the money should not have been allowed because of a council policy that funding requests for each fiscal year must be made at a public hearing held in the spring.

A summary of the council’s policy, a part of our last report, also said, and what we said we would do. Watkins told the council at Monday night’s meeting.

It would feel more comfortable being against motherhood than the flag,” Watkins said, before casting his vote against the request.

The council had allocated $2,000 for last year’s Carbondale Clean-Up Day based on this year’s request. Mayor Hans Fischer cast the dissenting vote.

At February’s hearing, the council told Matosevic that the city could not afford the allocation because of a decrease in federal grants and subsidies to the city.

Watkins said he decided that he would bring it before the council again if we could prove the case. He said.

He did not think that if they had the monies, they simply would have more money in their pockets.

The city will put up banners and leaflets in the streets. Councilman Charles Watkins in federal speak.

Reagan asked Soviets and taking our country "a major step forward.

Reagan struck "... but the USO has not committed the United Nations."

Reagan delivered a letter to the General Assembly. He said, “The Soviet Union has not been rejected nor is it seeking, or on the United Nations.

Reagan also denounced what he described as “attempts by certain quarters in Western Europe to shake loose the socialist foundations of the Polish State.”

Saluki Radio Network latest victim of budget

By Jennifer Funk

STAFF WRITER

TRADITION DIES HARD in most circles and the college community is no exception.

The budget problems that face SIU-C will force the Saluki Radio Network to close on Sept. 30. The 30-year-old broadcasting station is housed in the Communications Building.

Until this week, the Network produced taped public affairs and music shows for distribution to 130 radio stations throughout the country. The stations pay a subscription fee to receive the programs. Many of them have called or written the Network to express their regrets about the closing.

The Network is older than the rest of the broadcasting industry. It was founded six years before WSIU-FM by Buren Robbins, who later founded the broadcasting department.

Robbins used the Network to help the University’s Area Services Office. It all started in the green barracks northeast of Morris Library.

"WE WERE SUPPLYING the local radio stations with programming in order to acquaint the community with the presence of the University," he said.

Robbins also founded the radio and television stations at SIU-C, not originally as a training tool for students, but as a means of serving the Peoria area.

Richard Hildreth, the current director, came to SIU in 1968 after 20 years on newspapers and in commercial broadcasting in New York and Massachusetts. He selected SIU because he liked the ratio of students to teachers and the way the broadcasting department was run.

"The students had the same teachers in the classroom as they had in the studio," he said. "I really liked that approach."

WHEN HE TOOK OVER the directorship from Robbins in April of 1971, the Network’s programs were offered to radio stations free of charge. All technical production and pre-production work was done by students, including voice-overs and setting up interviews. The basis of the shows were students who made up the Network’s faculty and staff known for their expertise in certain areas.

In 1974, then vice president for academic affairs Keith Leslie directed Hildreth to begin charging a fee and the number of subscribers dropped sharply.

It is the only network in the country where all the production work is done by students.

"IT’S BAD," he said, "because the students are losing another situation in which they could participate in the production of material and get it on the air. And the people who participated in the programs really enjoyed themselves. They thought they were contributing something worthwhile.

But Hildreth understands the money problems the University has, saying that "everyone has them." Robbins said he is "distressed" about the closing of the Network, but at the same time he feels that it has served its purpose well.

Hildreth will be teaching 100 percent of the time now, but he hopes the Network will be remanded in the future.

"There is a lot of support within the department and from our subscribers for the Network to start again," he said. "But I’m going to get it going again. I’m sorry to see it go. It deserved better."
Rugby game goes on despite bomb blast and court appeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The pre-dawn bomb blast, more legal wrangling and a congressional debate Tuesday punctuated what organizers hoped would be another rugby match between a U.S. team and the touring South African Springboks.

At midnight, a three-judge federal appeals court in New York City refused to reverse a lower court and prohibit Tuesday night's scheduled match between the Springboks and team from the Eastern Rugby Union. But the appeals court said the state could cancel the game at the last minute "to prevent any dangerous situation from getting out of control.

U.S. District Judge Howard W. Mann has ruled Monday that Gov. Hugh Carey acted improperly last week when he ordered Albany officials to cancel the match, citing the "imminent danger of riot.

The Springboks are opposed by many who view their tour as propaganda for the South African government, which enforces racial segregation even though the team itself is multiracial. The players attracted violent protest in New Zealand recently and also drew opposition when they played last Saturday in Racine, Wis.

Peter Yellin, state deputy first assistant attorney general, immediately made plans to fly to Washington to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to block the match.

A. Albany's Riebecker Stadium, police stood guard, many wearing what they said were new riot helmets and bulletproof vests.

About 1:17 a.m. in neighboring Schenectady, a bomb went off in the building housing the Eastern Rugby Union. The rugby office suffered only about $50 worth of damage but damage at an adjacent dairy products company was put at $50,000.

Poland warned against agitation in Warsaw, Poland (AP) — A leading Polish Communist warned Tuesday that the Kremlin may cut vital raw materials supplies to quell anti-Soviet agitation sparked by the independent union Solidarity.

He also warned anyone who wanted to push Poland out of the socialist system should realize "he is pushing the nation into the jaws of death."

The leeward is in the border region and all anti-Soviet action or agitation will bring about that our closest ally, may begin to reconsider whether to continue helping us or maintain only economic relations to an extent balancing our supplies," Pelishuro member Stefan Olomurz said in a nationwide TV address.

"The Soviet Union can manage without Polish supplies, but Poland cannot manage without Soviet supplies," he said.

As Olszowski spoke, a high-level Soviet delegation discussed further economic aid for Poland's crippled economy, and the Kremlin stepped up its attack on Solidarity, accusing it of exporting "counter-revolution" to Eastern Europe.

In Berlin, the official ADN news agency reported that the air defense chiefs of East Germany and Poland, Col. Gen. Wolfgang Reinhold and Gen. Tadeusz Krepski, conferred on ways of deepening cooperation between their forces, the official ADN news agency reported.

Public hearing to be arranged to decide zoning jurisdiction

By Bob Bondarant
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council decided to try to determine if residents of an area west of Country Club Road want Carbondale to keep that area zoned for protection. At its meeting Monday, the council directed the city manager's office to arrange a public hearing to determine if residents in the area want Carbondale to retain zoning jurisdiction over them.

The council decided to do so after City Attorney George Kiriakos determined that an agreement signed during the summer between Carbondale and Murphysboro was in effect. The agreement was to limit the city's expansions by designating Country Club Road as a boundary.

The matter came before the city council last week in a proposal to delete the area in question from Carbondale's zoning map, which, according to the negotiated agreement, would lie on Murphysboro's side of the line.

However, Murphysboro has not enacted the mile-and-a-half zoning ordinance necessary for it to exercise zoning control over the area, and cannot now afford to implement zoning control over the area, Carbondale Mayor Hans Fischer said.

Fischer tried last week to see if the city could postpone the deletion until after Murphysboro enacted the mile-and-a-half zoning ordinance.

Fischer told the council Monday that he had talked with Murphysboro Mayor Sydney Appleton and their city attorney, and said he believed that an amendment to the agreement could be worked out between the cities.

License approved for E. Main bar

The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission has approved an application for a Class A liquor license for The Bar, 213 E. Main St., where Second Chance once operated. The approval, which came on Monday, is pending the outcome of a check on any felony police record of Champaign owner Joe McNamara.

McNamara is the owner of a bar in Champaign, also named The Bar. Champaign Mayor Joan Severns, who also serves as the city's liquor commissioner, said the bar has had a good record since she has been in office.

Cyclist education suggested

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Education and enforcement appear to be primary concerns for Carbondale bicyclists.

Local cyclists, speaking at Monday night's public hearing on the proposed expansion of the Carbondale bicykle system, said the city should make efforts to inform both motorists and bicyclists of bicycle traffic laws, and to promote stricter enforcement of those laws.

Dan Casebeer, a member of the SIU-C Cycle Club and one of the top bicycle racers in the nation, said most cyclists are not aware of the regulations that apply to them.

"We should make an effort to let bicycle riders know what their responsibilities are and what rights they have," said Casebeer, a senior in recreation.

Casebeer, a Carbondale resident who has biked over 90,000 miles in the past nine years, said cyclists in Carbondale are some of the most "stupid" he's seen. He said

A yes vote is a vote for SIU

As the time of the student referendum concerning athletics fees increases approaches, I feel that the students need to consider the facts. The question here is whether or not to retain the temporary fee increase of $10.00, thus making the total fee $30.

Many students here do not realize how much of an impact athletics has on them. More realize that American labor has been reduced rates would so noticeably by too few knowledgeable few. one sports program. Socially, however, we tell the nation, indeed the world, of who we are and SIU. Yes, athletics does a lot for SIU. We have had SIU in Japan with swimmers Roger Ver-Juana and this past weekend brought Korean Olympians to Carbondale for international competition again in their women's volleyball team. These are a few of the few humanists that makes SIU the place to be. -Shahsan Fitzpatrick, Physical Education

WSIU now just another station

In the past few weeks, several letters have been against WSIU-FM's programming changes. Each of these letters has mentioned the fact that the funding cutbacks were an attack on its American broadcasting. The idea of shutting down WSIU's station, and ultimately the reduction and cancellation of a few popular programs.

The question has been raised as to whether or not WSIU is saving money by turning its transmitters off and on each day. This is not the case. Shutting down WSIU's transmitter, and ultimately the reduction and cancellation of a few popular programs.

This brings me to a letter by Jim Moore, director of the SIU-C Broadcasting Service, printed in yesterday's Daily Egyptian. In it, he pointed out why the recent change at WSIU. In that letter, he stated that "we are unable to please all of our listeners all of the time."

One thing that the previous letter seems to have neglected is that we have lost the broad spectrum of programming once offered by WSIU. This is what made it stand out. Now it is just another station on the dial, with relatively no exciting content. What it boils down to is that for some reason logical, WSIU is depriving our listeners of a service it deserves. -Matthew Boldrige, Sophomore, Radio and Television.

A new truism: If you can't learn, teach

Stop the Keynesians from taking over

It would appear that a subtle revolution is occurring within the ranks of the Reagan administration; the great social experiment has ended and the all too briefly discredited Keynesians are once again in power. Only a few weeks ago, we were told that America needed a cut in wasteful government programs and a reduction in tax rates. Both these measures were to result in a reduced gross national deficit. The reduced spending would show up to the voters as an immediate cut in the national debt. However, according to the new economic wisdom of supply-side economics, the reduction in tax rates would also reduce the deficit. The reasoning of the Reagan economists was that the reduced rates would stimulate the wealthier members of our community to work harder that total production would rise by enough to actually increase the national debt.

Now we are told there has been a terrible mistake: the government deficit will grow and all expectations of the future spending cuts are being dashed. In some of this difficulty we must strongly reject the notion that the Reagan people were in competent in making projections. Instead we must accept the possibility that incomes Keynesians are back in power.

Please, Mr. President, reject this resurgent clique. Return to the new wisdom of supply-side economics by fighting the growing deficit with another cut in tax rates sufficiently large to restore health to the economy. The result would surely be the predicted increase in the tax revenues of government. Further spending cuts would then no longer be necessary to balance the budget. -P. Shields, Assistant Professor, Economics.

Morris Library awarded grant to start statewide book project

By University News Service

Morris Library has received a $30,408 grant from the Illinois State Library to establish a statewide library materials conservation project.

The grant comes from federal funds made available through the Library Services and Construction Act. Illinois Secretary of State and State Librarian Jim Edgar announced the grant.

The main objective of the program, called the Illinois Cooperative Conservation Program (ICCP), is to help librarians keep their book collections in good condition and help them cope with disastrous emergencies such as fires or tornadoes.

E. Dale Cluff, Morris Library's director of library services, said the project will coordinate efforts by librarians throughout Illinois to preserve their circulating book collections and provide access to existing services and expertise available in many state libraries.

The program will serve as a center for information on emergency preparedness. All librarians will be able to get available assistance and supplies for preservation and they'll be given guidelines for steps to take in order to lessen the effects of disasters.

Training workshops and continuing education programs will be set up to help librarians preserve and maintain their book collections.

ICCP will be coordinated by Morris Library staffers under Carolyn Clark Morrow, conservation librarian.

Initial funding for ICCP is for a 13-month period, after which the program is expected to become self-supporting from cooperative membership dues, newsletter subscriptions and payment for services on a cost basis.

Plan emphasizes forest’s diversity

By The Associated Press

A strategy of increased emphasis on recreational activities is being proposed for the Shawnee National Forest for the next decade.

But the biggest change will be activities for the casual tourist. And, they won’t be activities limited to those willing to “rough it” into totally undeveloped areas.

A management plan for the forest also provides for mineral exploration and increasing diversity of wildlife habitats.

The overall management direction of 14 national forests in the south and eastern United States, including the Shawnee, will be set out for the next 10 years in a regional land and resource management plan awaiting release next month.

Part of a three-tiered planning process required by the 1974 Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act, the plan is an attempt to organize resources facing an ever-increasing burden of public and private use.

The plan will provide “a good look at not only federal and forest service lands, but all resources in the nation,” said Lowell Patterson, leader of the Shawnee Interdisciplinary Planning Team.

The goals could affect some of the aesthetic pleasures of “the forest and create controversy among those who are concerned about mineral exploration, for example. Certain environmental groups could come from the mineral activity,” Patterson said.

Conflict and environmental facts are nothing new to the Shawnee which is, Patterson said, widely misunderstood in terms of its management and purpose.

“The Shawnee is a working forest—that’s the hardest thing for the public to understand,” he said. “It’s actually more of a farm than a park.”

Students to rap with counselors

About 50 counselors from 25 Illinois community colleges will hold a rap session with students from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom D, according to Debbie Perry, program coordinator.

The session is open to students who are interested in talking to community college counselors. Students who have transferred to SIU-C can also talk to their former counselors about the transition.

The counselors are also to meet with SIU faculty and staff Wednesday and Thursday at the Student Center for the annual Community College Counselors’ Conference.

The program provides the counselors with information about changes in policies, program enrollment, financial aid, housing and sports at SIU. It is sponsored by the Office of Admissions and Records.

SIU’s Capstone Program, in which students with associate degrees in vocational or technical fields can earn a baccalaureate degree, will also be a topic at the conference.
Folk musician
performs Friday

Folk musician Dave Parker will perform in the first concert of the Spock Lecture series at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Old Main Room of the Student Center.

The night of entertainment begins when local musicians Jim Swick and Jim Trigget bring their special brand of folk humor to the Old Main audience.

Parker will perform a varied repertoire of tunes ranging from Jesse Mitchell to Paul Simon. Tickets for the concert are $1 per person, $5 per couple and will be available at the door.

Parents’ children’s concerns important in avoiding abuse

By Julie Gundagno
Staff Writer

In child abuse prevention, parents’ as well as children’s needs should be considered, it was said many speakers at a Child Abuse Prevention Conference held at the Student Center last week.

Seven people who work at preventing child abuse through various organizations spoke Thursday about their methods and approaches to this problem in a panel discussion.

Brenda Mitchell, an education monitor at the Urus Hayes Child Care Center in Carbondale, said, “Parents are people too. They have needs just as the child has needs. Parenting does not exist in a vacuum. As well as being more and dads, parents are men and women with their own special needs, she said.

Classes in the fine arts are offered to parents as a means of venting frustrations and alleviating stress, low self-esteem and depression, Mitchell said. She said she feels that sometimes child abuse occurs when a parent’s state of mind is altered by pressures. Then the child becomes “a victim of a victim.”

Also some classes are offered to the whole family as a sharing time, she said. In parenting, quality outweighs quantity “by a significant margin.” Good parenting does not depend on how many hours are spent with the child, she said, but how those hours are spent.

Other programs focus on prevention at any stages in the child’s life.

John Lutzker coordinates the Behavior Modification Program at SIU’s Rehabilitation Institute. Lutzker started Project 12-Ways in July 1979, when he wrote the grant for it. Project 12-Ways is a program that deals with many aspects of child abuse, including self-control training, stress reduction and prevention.

Lutzker is coordinator of the project and his wife Sandra Lutzker was a counselor with the project until she became the director of Rainbow’s End Preschool.

At the conference, they discussed the preventive aspect of the project. Their approach focuses on developing a positive relationship between mother and child. Teaching mothers proper nutritional care for infants and assisting early mother-child interaction are ways of creating such a positive relationship, Mrs. Lutzker said.

Bunny Shupe, coordinator of the Problem Pregnancy Program in the Rural Health Initiative of Anna, said pregnancy is a valuable time to work at preventing child abuse. The development of a close relationship between mother and child, which she called “bonding,” can be delayed by several factors, she said.

Abnormal pregnancies or abnormal birth and delivery can delay this “bonding,” she said.

said. So can illnesses in the child or the mother during the first year of the baby's life, or excessive separation of the mother and child just after birth.

These problems can be reduced, she said, at hospitals with family-centered practices. For instance, the father can be allowed in to the delivery room as a supportive coach, she said. Or the hospital can offer unlimited visitation to the father and limited visitation to the infant's siblings. Many hospitals do not allow young children to visit their new brother or sister.

Susan Williamson is director of the Family Learning Center in Cairo, Illinois. The center is located in an old Victorian house, which provides a safe environment for the family, she said. The center's program focuses on younger children and their families.

Eighty-five percent of the mothers who come to the center have been abused or neglected in their childhood, she said, so they need a "tremendous amount of support."

Joe Glassford is director of the Williamsville Youth Service Bureau in Benton, said his program is prevention-oriented.

The program's role is to provide counseling, recreation and advocacy to adolescents, especially those labeled "pre-delinquent," he said.

The average age of participants is just under 15, he said, and many of them have committed criminal or status offenses. Status offenses are those not considered offenses unless committed by minors, such as leaving home.

Pregnancy services are offered, including outreach counseling and prenatal group, Young said.

Outdoor activities are used as "experiential learning," he said, since one-to-one counseling "wasn't getting at everything we wanted to get at."

Meeting to review unionization bid

An informational meeting to discuss a unionization of courthouse employees is set for 7 p.m. Friday at the Jackson County Courthouse.

The Jackson County Board's legislative committee will meet with county officeholders, courthouse employees and representatives of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees-AFL-CIO, according to Robert Crum, committee chairman.

Officers elected with flip of coin

By David Murphy

The flip of a coin determined the fate of candidates for chairman and vice-chairman at the last meeting of the intramural recreational sports administration.

Nick Robbins, 19, a junior in recreation, became chairman of the board at Monday's meeting, and Arnold Schwartz, 26, a graduate student in recreation, became vice-chairman.

Robbins was used to resolve two previous vote counts which were deadlocked at five votes for each of the positions. After the second vote tally, members agreed to allow the board to pass a parliamentary procedure and let the coin decide the winner.

The 2-member board, composed of undergraduate students and faculty members, serves as an advisory body to the Recreation Administration. The board meets monthly to discuss ideas and make recommendations about rules for intramural programs, hours of operation and operational procedures.

The chairman of the board is responsible for conducting the meetings, acting as a contact between the intramural office and the board and calling special meetings, according to William Bleyer, director of intramural recreation.

Teacher ‘burnout’ called serious

The nation’s brightest teachers are leaving the classroom for jobs at used-car lots and coal mines, creating a “teacher-quality time bomb” that threatens the future of education in the United States, says U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale.

Simon said Monday that low pay and early career “burnout” have made quality teachers flee education, and they are being replaced by new teachers with low aptitude test scores in high school and college.

“I do not suggest that you can always tell a good teacher by scores or grades. But I am disturbed by the evidence at hand, and if the nation builds its future on how it educates, then we’re starting to build for the wrong kind of future,” Simon said in his weekly newsletter.

He said he drew his conclusions after an education subcommittee he heads recently conducted hearings on the teacher problem.

Simon said research indicated the average national salary for elementary teachers is $11,000, and for high school teachers $12,196.

He said that besides low pay, teachers are faced with little chance for advancement, too little pay differential between outstanding and average teachers and difficulties relating to lack of student discipline.

As a result, Simon said, “Many good teachers are seeking jobs as insurance and car salesmen, coal miners, house painters and other better-paying professions.”

Cubs beat Cards on Morales’ ninth inning sacrifice fly

CHICAGO (AP)--Pinch hitter Jerry Morales’ sacrifice fly drove in Steve Dillard in the ninth inning, giving the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday.

In the ninth, the Cubs loaded the bases with none out when Bobby Bonds walked and Dillard pinch ran. Ty Waller bunted, and both runners were safe when reliever Mark Littell, 1-3, threw wild to second.

Pat Tabler followed with a bunt single, loading the bases and that brought in Bob Shirley.

The winner was Randy Mariz, 5-4.

The Cubs’ Leon Durham tied the score 3-3 in the eighth with his ninth homer of the season, a shot to center off Cards’ reliever Bob Sykes.

Bob Forsch, the St. Louis starter, went to three innings. He allowed only four hits, one a two-run homer by Waller in the fifth.

The Cards scored once in the second when rookie Gene Roof doubled to center with two out and scored on Forsch’s double to left off Doug Bird.

In the Cards’ fifth, Keith Hernandez walked with two out, went to third on a single by George Hendrick and scored when Darrell Porter singled to right. Hendrick then scored on a single by Dave Lopes.

The Cubs had only one hit until the fifth when Davis led off the inning with a single. Davis then came around on Waller’s first homer of the year.

In the ninth, Roof made a spectacular catch of a drive to deep left field by Bobby Bonds with the bases loaded and two out.

Fielder proves she's not too small

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

Ellen Massey is not too short to play field hockey.

The 5-2, blond-haired forward for the Saluki fielders didn’t have the physical stature to be a starter on the volleyball team, and therefore would never even come close to being long enough to run the hurdles.

Instead, she directed her attention to a sport where height doesn’t mean a thing.

When it comes to scoring goals, Massey has no shortcomings.

A six-goal outburst against Principia Saturday put Massey’s name into the SIC-C record book for the best single-game scoring performance. Her six goals topped five previous goals by the Salukis most prolific scorer ever, Helen Meyer. Massey now has 42 career goals, second behind Meyer’s 56.

But the soft-spoken Farmer City junior is undaunted by her accomplishments.

“I don’t get too excited. It’s nice, but it really doesn’t mean anything,” she said.

Field hockey is a sport that involves the landscape and horticulture major who joined the Salukis with a walk-on in 1979.

“Sometimes people really hadn’t a clue about it until it was reality. I don’t care how many goals I score as long as we win,” she said.

The Salukis haven’t won a conference title their record is 1-4-5, Massey is less than pleased with her own personal goals.

“Principia wasn’t a goal,” she said.

Principia goalie Leslie Collins stopped this shot Massey still managed to score six goals in the SIC-C’s Ellen Massey, far right, during the game. Principia’s Leslie Collins stopped this shot. Massey said, “That was the most goals I’ve ever scored, but it wasn’t my best game.” Massey was her best game was a four goal effort against Western Illinois in the regionals during her freshman year.

Massey led her high school team to state tournament appearances in 1977 and 1978. Because the state tournament was not divided into small and large school divisions, it had a major feat for a school having only 325 students.

“When I came here, I knew I wouldn’t be satisfied with myself unless I gave it a shot,” she said.

She played one game for the junior varsity before moving up to the varsity, where she’s been ever since.

“I had a lot of pressure on me that year, and even more the next year when I was expected to score more goals,” she said. “I was very disappointed with my performance last year. This year, the pressure is gone. I guess I’ve just settled into the routine a little better.”

Massey scored 24 goals her freshman year, and 13 in her sophomore year, even though she missed six games because of a cyst on her tailbone.

Irish’s Faust humbled by Michigan loss

CHICAGO (AP) - Gerry Faust, Notre Dame’s new head football coach, is unaccustomed to losing, but he thinks the 27-7 drubbing by Michigan last week could be a blessing in disguise.

“The losing, it’s been a long time,” said Faust, who had a 1-12-2 mark at Cincinnati’s Miami University last year, and a 12-2 victory over Louisiana State.

“Losing is tough and it humbles you quickly.” Faust said.

“I second guess myself when we get beat, never when we win. Faust said. Things might have changed had we kicked a field goal and scored first. I don’t know the play was there. We didn’t execute. If I had to do it over again, I probably would have done the same thing.”

Notre Dame attempted a fake field goal with Dave Conrad, the holder, throwing a pass to Tony Hunter. The throw was high, and Hunter was unable to recover.

“Michigan clowned us,” Faust said.

“Let’s just say if you play your best and lose, there’s nothing you can do about it. Otherwise, you have to get tougher on the players. We’ll be ready for this week and when they make a wrong move, they’ll know about it.”

Sore thumb, and he didn’t want to be humiliated again,“ he said.

“Principia wasn’t the only time Massey was humiliated. She missed six games her freshman year because of a tailbone.

“Principia was a major feat for a school having only 325 students.”

“When I came here, I knew I wouldn’t be satisfied with myself unless I gave it a shot,” she said.

Matmen begin Fall workouts with intensity

By Red Farlow

The Saluki wrestlers have a team meeting tentatively scheduled for the second week of practice, and the team has already begun practicing for the season, long to kick free and learn how to wrestle again.

Coach Lin Litteral said, “Wrestling seems to be one of those skills that comes and goes like the weather. There’s not what you’d call the greatest.”

The return of a day-to-day thing. A lot of guys have dropped off the team in the past.

Part of the reason for that might be the rigid conditioning test being applied to his team.

The first day of practice, the wrestlers had to run three miles in less than 18:50 and were subjected to drills like rope climbing, hand-walking and fingertip push-ups.

Other wrestlers couldn’t do something,” Litteral said. “Maybe they’re mishandled in practice, maybe they get tired. This year, they’re practicing two hours a day. They give them a body check, maybe they get in shape before the season even starts.”

One wrestler who hasn’t quit is Richard,“ Litteral said. “Richard says, ‘I played football last year and I was working on my conditioning, but Long admires he needs more good wrestlers.

“We’re always very available to our students who love to wrestle and would like to be on the team,” Litteral said. “We especially need people in the 158- and 187-pound weight classes.”

Long said athletes wishing to try out for the team need a permission slip from a doctor. Freshmen need a 2.0 grade-point average from high school.

“I don’t think that all they need is their work-out gear,” Litteral said.
