Two more candidates seek top student posts

By Randy Thoesen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Though their names won’t appear on the ballot, two more students announced Tuesday afternoon they will run as executive candidates in Wednesday’s Student Government general election.

Doug Whitely and Jim Stortum said they are seeking the top student positions because none of the other candidates have shown a sincere interest in the student body.

As independent write-in candidates, they will face Jim Peters and Gary Dickerson (Action Party), Jon Taylor and Susan Collett (Unity Party), Wade Hodgues and Mike Lewis (Majority Party), and Mark Siefrig and Gregory Van Brugler (Independent).

If elected, Whitely and Stortum claim they will focus on making academics on campus more relevant and interesting.

“It’s really a shame students have to sit through the same type of classes day after day,” Whitely said. “I’d like to see classes become more practical. I’d like to see students and instructors connected on a more personal level.”

The candidate suggested a program of departmental open houses be instituted to accomplish this goal. He also suggested special environmental research projects be started on the undergraduate level to provide relevancy.

Both Whitely and Stortum agreed the Free School project should never have been allowed to die. They said they will attempt to revive it and possibly offer academic credit to students who attend.

“Alternative curriculum is a growing trend in education today,” Stortum said. “I know there are many students on this campus who have good ideas about how classes should be taught.”

Specifically, the candidates said the new Liberal Arts and Sciences Council should work on changing the department requirements, especially the language requirement. They also said they will work closely with the Student Tenure and the Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

Whitely, the presidential candidate, is a senior history major, and the candidate suggested the name on the ballot—correctly— and circle the number next to their names.

“Sure I’m for beer on campus and lowering the drinking age,” he said. “I’ll work for these things and more. But to base my platform on these issues and presenting them as my own ideas is cheating the students.”

To vote for Whitely and Stortum, students will need to know the candidates’ name on the ballot—correctly— and circle the number next to their names.

Derge discusses campus governance fate

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President David R. Derge declined Wednesday to commit himself to a campus governance system with more advisory power.

However, Derge said it is his philosophy that there is a need for “strong, representative councils”, which have a broad base of support.”

Derge’s comments were made at a special meeting of constituency leaders in order to discuss the fate of the campus governance system and what governance leaders believe is a decline of campus morale.

George Camille, student body president, started the discussion by asking Derge if the governance system has any legislative power. Derge said the councils have been “viable and extremely helpful” with his problems. He used the Faculty Council’s recommendation on the Midwestern Conference as an example.

Sacks lecture discussed

Allen turns controversial, loses tenure

By Pat Nauman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

“1,” wrote Leland Stauber, assistant professor of government, “acting on my own responsibility and as a member of this university community, wish to file a formal complaint against a member of the faculty, Mr. Douglas Allen of the Department of Philosophy...”

Thus began a series of complaints to University officials against Allen by Stauber that continued over a 10-month period, a series of complaints centering around the behavior of Allen at a public lecture given by Prof. Milton Sacks on March 2, 1971, in the Morris Library Auditorium.

“This is one thing that cannot be disputed about this—that there is a dispute over what happened,” said Lyman Baker, instructor of English, one of the three witnesses.

Stauber, in a series of five charges against Allen, stated that Allen through his past actions and the present speech, condoned disruptive behavior by those students present.

Although Sacks, of Brandeis University, a visiting professor of government assigned to the Center, went through his speech without any overt disruption, student behavior was disruptive in the Wednesday “committee” that it served to distract the attention of the audience from what the speaker was saying,” according to Stauber.

Stauber, in one set of charges, cited instances of students making noise and moving in and out of the room. During the lecture, he said, placards were held in the air and twisted.

“During the question period following the delivery of the lecture, the atmosphere degenerated further,” wrote Stauber. “Eventually, the meeting went completely out of order, in that several persons refused to sit at the speaker simultaneously without recognition.”

“In direct answer to these statements, Mr. Douglas Allen then arose...His statement was that ‘what might be considered ‘unmanners’ and ‘a lack of courtesy’ in the audience need to be viewed in perspective, for this conduct was caused, after all, by what was happening in Vietnam’. According to Stauber, Sacks directly answered this, saying that no events in Vietnam could excite such conduct as that at the lecture.

“That statement, as a statement by a faculty member at such a university function, I found incredible—except that I heard the whole of it with my own ears and watched Mr. Allen with my own eyes as he said it.”

In a set of charges dated May 35, 1971, Stauber said that he was charging Allen not with excusing harassment and disruption but with "publicly expressing his belief in the legitimacy of such conduct after it had occurred..."

David Kenney, U-Senate president, spoke in favor of an ad-

Ceriey position in certain instances. Using the example of two recent legislative proposals on parking, Kenney asked if they would be binding if he Derge did not veto them. "We are subject to their feasibility," Derge said.

Kenney said, "I believe you do not recognize any statutory authority.

"You are incorrect with your perception," Derge said.

Kenney continued by saying what was happening was not in line with the campus government document. He said the document must be put in line with reality.

Derge said he would be glad to talk to them. Prior to the close of the meeting, Derge suggested there could be regular meetings such as this. No final decision was made on the suggestion.

Council hears street party report

By Barry Cleveland

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Representatives of the South Illinois Avenue task force Tuesday night presented a generally favorable review of last week's street parties to the Carbondale City Council.

Bill Hitchcock, chairman of the University women's group

knocks HEW review at SU

An organization of university women Tuesday voiced a statement critical of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), which has a team at SU this week reviewing women's complaints of sex discrimination.

The statement, released by Dolores Muhich, chairman of the steering committee of the University Women of Illinois, said HEW has been grossly inadequate in enforcing federal orders against discrimination.

The statement was adopted unanimously at a state membership meeting last weekend at Sangamon State University in Springfield.

Ms. Muhich, terminated from the

SU Department of Psychology last

June, said the organization is represented on 11 state campuses.

The statement also urges that HEW refuse to accept for consideration any Affirmative Action Plan which does not have consultation and approval of campus, faculty and women's groups.

Don Scott, a member of the HEW compliance review team which arrived here Monday, said the team confounded with SU administrators Tuesday regarding general aspects of the compliance review.

Scott said the team will start reviewing specific discrimination cases Wednesday.

The team is expected to complete reviewing Friday.

Children's concert offered today

The SU music department will present a children's concert at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

The children's concerts have been presented at SU for the past two years. James Stroud of the music department said that the program entertains grade school and high school children from throughout the county.

This year's presentation will in-

Majore Lawrence, a professor of music at SU, will narrate the program.

"She is a distinguished professor and a former metropolitan star," Stroud said. "She is well-respected by the music community."

Admission to the concert will be 75 cents.

McGovern wins

Massachusetts primary election

BOSTON (AP)—Sen. George S. McGovern won Massachusetts' Democratic presidential primary Tuesday, picking up an early lead over chief rival Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and widening it throughout the evening.

On early returns, McGovern had 44 percent of the total while Muskie got 21 percent.

Muskie showed early strength in the western part of the state where he was expected to do fairly well. But McGovern took over the lead as returns from Boston and districts in the eastern part of the state came in.

President Nixon won in the Republican primary, winning 41 percent of the vote on early returns.

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama made a strong early showing, capturing 10 percent of the early vote.

"I was glad to see McGovern get 8 percent.

In the Pennsylvania primary, Sen. Hubert Humphrey swept to his first primary victory.

No damage to downtown areas was reported, nor did any fires or emergencies occur, he said. George Camille, student body president, told the council students he has talked with are extremely pleased with the parties.

Camille attributed the success of the weekend to the work put in by task force members, particularly Hitchcock, and the "admirable conduct of the police officers patrolling downtown areas.

The booth will go into operation Saturday with other permitting, featuring a cast of victims, including Mayor Neal Eckert and Councilman Hans Fischer.

Camille told the council that SU President David R. Derge has also agreed to participate, promising Eckert to ask, "Has anyone talked to the Board of Trustees?"

Bad move

Last week tension once again loomed on campus as students boycotted classes in protest of the bombing of North Vietnam. A rally on Friday attracted nearly 500 students as did a protest in front of the Center for Vietnamese Studies. No one in attendance seriously could doubt that the protesters were sincere in their desire to end the war and get the Vietnamese Studies Center off campus.

Yet one action by the "student strike committee" leaves doubts as to the sincerity and ability of the self-proclaimed leaders of Friday's protest.

On Wednesday, members of the student strike committee representing the Southern Illinois Peace Committee, the Young Socialist Alliance, the Committee to Defend the Right to Speak and the Neutroite Youth melted away to a letter in the press. David Derge asked him to denounce the war and his personal ties with President Nixon. Derge was out of town at the time but he extended an invitation to several members of the group to meet over breakfast at the home of President West. Late Sunday, the committee decided it didn't want to meet with Derge and called Ed Hammond, Dean of Student Affairs, to cancel the appointment. Derge knew nothing of the cancellation and returned to campus especially for the meeting.

A group spokesman gave four reasons for its failure to attend: 1) they didn't want to meet on Derge's terms; 2) they didn't think he's say anything; 3) they wanted more people to attend the meeting; and 4) they couldn't decide who to send.

The group has offered a standing invitation to Derge to meet with them over lunch any day this week. A spokesman said this would be convenient for the students and it would allow more committee members to attend. Most important, the meeting would be on the committee's terms.

Who ever made the decision to cancel the meeting screwed up. Whether or not Derge would have said anything, at least anything the strike committee wanted to hear, is debatable.

But he did make an honest effort to meet face-to-face with the group. The cancellation can only be viewed as insincerely on the part of the protesters - at least that's the way the administration will look at it.

I like it or not, the strike committee does not run SIU and, in light of their behavior, hopefully they never will.

Their reasons for missing the meeting are unacceptable and childish. By turning down Derge's offer to talk they have let down the students they claim to represent.

Honesty, the students strike committee will get it all together, select a capable leader and formulate a strong consistent plan of action.

We've already learned from President Nixon that canceling talks is no way to end a war.

Senate does it again

To the Daily Egyptian

Three closers for the student senate. Once again it has demonstrated its ability to completely avoid dealing with the real issues that many of us are concerned about.

At the Wednesday, April 19 meeting, there was a request made by the SMC, SIPC, YSA and CDHS to call a student strike on Friday, April 21, and to finance buses to the national antiwar demonstrations in New York Saturday, April 22. The senate voted to endorse the strike. But when it came to showing actual monetary support for the antiwar movement, it's true hypocrisy showed through. It refused to give one cent to help finance buses so students could attend the demonstration in New York. The request for the full cost of the buses, roughly $1,200, was amended to $500. After much haggling back and forth between senators and others present, the bill was defeated by a vote of 14 to 7.

Many of the senators who voted against the bill claimed to be against the war. But what they claim and what they do are two different things. Diane Olth, who voted against providing funds, went so far as to say she represented the antiwar movement. Jim Kania, senator from Brush Towers, said it was against his principles to vote for the bill. But we must question the kind of principles that do not permit a person to take action against the slaughter of the Indochinese people. They claim to be against the war but they never tell you what they will do to end the war, only what they won't do. At least their record is consistent. Last fall the senate refused to provide buses for an antiwar rally in Chicago. Now.

Of course, we are not condemning all the senators. Mickey Chusid, John Wagner, and Mitch Hadler made commendable efforts to make the student senate responsive to the call to build the antiwar movement in response to the escalation of the war.

But the fact remains that there were 14 senators who voted against providing funds. Some of whom voted for the strike. At one point in the meeting, in response to a senator's statement concerning their lack of funds, a question was raised asking whether there could possibly be that their funds would be needed for that was more important than building the antiwar movement. We still have not received a reply.

Meddling memo

To the Daily Egyptian

On April 20, the faculty of the Radio-Television department received the following memo from the department chairman.

"Dear Tailey, has notified us that all classes in the Communications and Fine Arts are to be held as scheduled on Friday, April 21, and that this is the usual procedure in such events."

I personally find this action deplorable. It would seem that Dean Tailey feels that his faculty members are not mature enough, or do not have the proper judgement to conduct their classes as they see fit. Pettinnness such as this seems to aggravate and promote disturbance rather than control it.

I am not advocating that a faculty member should, or could not, support a student strike. However, I feel that the decision should be made, in a free and open atmosphere, by the individual faculty member and his students. Steve Fairchild

There's nothing like a bit of humor to spice up a busy day. That's why I always look forward to reviews by Glenn Amato. His refreshingly immediate outlook on life is always a bright spot.

Not long ago he mentioned Diana Rigg's almost sexless quality. Mr. Amato obviously subscribes to the pneumatic school of feminine charm.

Recently the only thing he found worthwhile in "Waiting for Godot" was Jo Mack's soft shoe. No one esteems Jo Mack more highly than I. But not only is she charming, very talented, and an asset to the Theatre Department, but she does imaginative photography. Is it really true, though, that the play offered nothing else of value?

But the comment that impetted me to write concerned "Carousel." Said the review: "The story is next to nonexistent." "Carousel's" book is a faithful adaptation of Ferenc Molnar's Liliom, a theatre classic still being performed for admiring audiences internationally. Perhaps that doesn't matter to a reviewer who finds a softshoe routine the highlight of "Godot.

Now, if Ray Bolger or J. Pat O'Malley had played Billy, and if Ragsdale Welch (or Tempest Storm) had played Nellie, I'd have kept these reviews coming. Mr. Amato, I hope you still want to be a reviewer when you grow up.

Stop the rip off

To the Daily Egyptian:

A major movement at the recent Conference on English Education was to take firm and positive steps to familiarize students with American Literature, as distinguished from American Caucasian Literature. An agreement to avoid analogies which do not include a representative sampling of all American literature (as opposed to a token poem or short story by a Black) sent many of us back to our schools firmly committed to remedying this absurd omission. It should thus be apparent that both teachers and students who are prospective teachers are in need of such materials as will help us correct our cardinal sin, granted one of many.

I urge all students of whatever color or persuasion to help us by preserving the necessary resources so we will train ourselves. What constructive purpose is served by destroying public property whose use may contribute to this end?

Black Zionism

To the Daily Egyptian:

I had the opportunity to be present at a debate sponsored by the African Student Association on "Should All Blacks Return to Africa?" It was a memorable experience. I felt there like at home. It would not be so strange except for the fact that I happened to be an Israeli.

Well, to make long story short, until now I thought, in my ignorance, that it is only a Jewish national sport to ponder such questions as to who is a Jew, should the Jews from all over the world return to Israel and to what extent would this process transform the old, despised ghetto stereotyped self into self-respecting, self-proud, in short, healthy people.

Now I see that we, Jews, have "competition." Black people also start to wonder just who is Black should the Blacks from all over the world return to Africa, and to what extent would this process transform the old, despised ghetto stereotype into self-respecting, self-proud, in short, healthy people.

Are we witnessing an emergence of a Black Zionism? Anyway, welcome to the club. And keep the faith, baby, when the Political Zionism appeared in the late 19th Century, nobody took it seriously either.

Information under wraps

To the Daily Egyptian:

The New York Times of April 11, 1972, said three Soviet students will be debating on seven American campuses. The tour was arranged by the American Speech Communication Association in conjunction with the State Department. For those who saw the TV debates already held, it is obvious that they were nothing more than propaganda flares. Only one of the three debaters was a bona fide student. The Soviet Embassy identified the members of the group as: the secretary of the Armenian Youth Organization, a member of the Presidium of the Committee of Youth Organization of the USSR, and the secretary of the Student Organization of Moscow State University. Two of the three debaters travelled on diplomatic passports.

An example of the obvious purpose of this group occurred on the news broadcast last week when one of the debaters, in response to a question from a member of the audience regarding the suppression of Soviet writers in the Soviet Union, said, "...not a single author has been shot in a long time—pardon me, a slip of the tongue." (Yes, Mr. McFarlin, suppression does exist in the USSR, including that of the Soviet Jews.)

The Times further stated that SIU would be one of the stops. It turns out that it will be on the Edwardsville campus, which has been trying to bring these debaters there for a long time. Bob Lapp, a graduate student from SIU at Carbondale, will represent this campus. I understand that Lapp has known about this debate for quite a while. Why wasn’t it publicized here? I can only conjecture that university officials here were afraid of possible embarrassments or demonstrations.

I do not object to having people come to a university to expose them to propaganda rhetoric, but the event should be labeled as such, and not as a debate. Furthermore, it should be held within the context of the university tradition of open forum where a dialogue can take place. Since Carbondale officials saw fit not to even announce this event, I can only conclude that they do not adhere to the tradition of open forum and have instead become a tool of diplomacy for the State Department. It is not improper for a university to work with the government in cultural exchange programs, so long as it is done within the context of the spirit and the nature of the university principles and traditions.

Mr. Deep, take note! Poor communication resulting in a credibility gap contributed to the demise of our predecessors. Don't follow the same path. The Nixon administration has said: "Don't listen to what we say, but look at what we do." The university community is not listening to the affiliations of a university president as to the purposes and traditions of a great university. They look at what you do, not what you say. You have one strike against you when then only the way to find out about a local event is to read it in the New York Times. Don't strike out.

Viet students, SIPC to protest Viet Center

By Pat Nauman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Vietnamese from all over the United States will invade Carbondale Thursday and Friday to protest against the Vietnam Studies and Cultural Education Center (SIPC) said at a press conference Tuesday.

Fifteen Vietnamese will come to SIU according to David Truong, a senior at Illinois University, to protest the Vietnamese student attending the center. No arrests were made.

Friday morning, Gardels said, the organizers of the Vietnamese "invasion" will attempt to arrange a meeting between the Vietnamese and President John R. Eagleton.

Another rally will be held at noon Friday by the Southern Illinois Peace Committee.

In the afternoon, Gardels said the group would try to arrange a debate with some people from the center.

Vietnamese will be given a cultural evening of Vietnamese music and poetry readings at the Wesley Foundation.

Gardels said he wanted to invite all Vietnamese students on campus to attend the activities.

He said he did not expect any confrontation between the center and anti-center people. "Our intention in coming here is not to be violent, not to have a clash," he said.

Action slated on General Studies

Further discussion and action on the GSC section of general studies is expected when the general studies joint standing committee meets at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Communications 102C.

The courses taught by the recreation and government departments will be reviewed and recommendations will be made. The committee might also consider the general recommendation concerning GSC made in a subcommittee report.

United Nations Association seeks to train more ‘warriors for peace’

By Jan Trachta

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Training “warriors for peace” instead of “warriors for war” is one of the most important jobs of the United Nations Association (UNA) of America. Ted Cobb, director for field operations for the USA, said Tuesday:

“Warrior” is a term Cobb is using to describe the millions of people around the world who are working to bring about a world where there is no more war.

Cobb is visiting Southern Illinois to speak to area UNA members and organizations about the goals of the United Nations (UN) and his associations.

“One of our jobs is to help people understand the difference between becoming a warrior for peace and one for war,” he said.

Working for peace by bringing nations together, order, trade and development around the world, environmental causes, human rights and minimum standards of existence to allow people the opportunity for cultural diversity are major UN goals.

Most people do not realize the extent of the aid the UN has been able to give, said Cobb. In children in more than 56 countries benefit from the UNICEF program at Halloween.

Cobb said ‘Partners of the Americas’ to tour campus Thursday

By University News Service

The board of directors of the ‘Southern Illinois Partners of the Americas’ will visit SIU Thursday. The hemisphere-wide organization unites some 43 states in the U.S. with states and regions in Latin America in an effort to help each other promote development, understanding and cultural and educational ties in mutual benefit. Illinois is paired with Sao Paulo, Brazil’s industrial and agricultural heartland.

Kennt Beckman, P.O. Page, will be accompanied by Mrs. Stephen Jurca, vice-president, and Robert L. Bean, administrator, on his visit to extend appreciation for the local support given to the organization since its inception in 1965. The visitors will meet with campus faculty and interested citizens at a reception, 4-6:30 p.m., Thursday in the lounge of the Information and Scheduling Center, Anthony Hall.

Inquiries regarding the visitors may be directed to Charles Eicker of the Latin American Institute at SIU. Eicker is a representative of the Sao Paulo-Illinois Partners of the Americas.

Student witnesses conspiracy trial in Harrisburg, meets Berrigans

By Daryl Stephens
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For many SIU students, spring break meant a trip to Florida and a chance to see once again the warm rays of the sun.

But Barbara Verni of Loves Park it meant a bus ride to Harrisburg, Pa., where for four days she witnessed the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six other antiwar activists who were charged with plotting to kidnap Presidential Aide Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels in Washington.

Ms. Verni, who is now out of school but last quarter was a sophomore majoring in sociology, said that she felt compelled to go to Harrisburg to demonstrate her support for the Berrigans. "I was totally for the Berrigans," she said, "and I believe it is important for all of us in the antiwar movement to support one another.

For one who had come so far, it took a lot of determination to get a seat in the courtroom. "Every morning, I had to wait in line for a pass, beginning around 5 a.m.," she said.

"They always let 18 people in each day. Each of the defendants had two passes for their relatives, and if they didn't use them, the passes were given to the public on a first-come, first-served basis. They always opened the courtroom around 9:30 a.m."

In fact, there were so many people who wanted to get onto the courthouse steps that over half of them spent the night outside waiting for a pass.

Ms. Verni said that what impressed her most was "the real Christian attitude of the defendants and their supporters.

Especially impressive, she said, was the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, Philip's younger brother, who was named a co-conspirator in the alleged plot. He was recently released from prison where he had been serving a sentence for destruction of draft board records.

"I talked with Daniel on the first day I was there," said Ms. Verni. "He appeared tired and a little pale. I asked him how he had been feeling, and he replied that he had developed back trouble while in prison, but added that he thought it was getting better. "He is really a beautiful person," Ms. Verni went on. "He would walk up to people and offer his hand and say, 'I don’t know you, do I?'

"Like Daniel, Philip always appeared tired during the proceedings, said Ms. Verni. However, she contrasted the mood of the defense as being generally happy, while the members of the prosecution "hardly ever smiled." In regard to Boyd Douglas, the alleged co-conspirator of the Berrigan brothers and key witness in the prosecution's case, Ms. Verni said that it "appeared as if the FBI had fed answers into him.

Ms. Verni said she believes that Douglas, who has a long criminal record, was an agent provocateur planted by the government to fabricate the charges against the defendants.

"I really don't think that the Berrigans should have been tried in the first place," she said. "They were so honest, that if they actually had conspired to kidnap Kissinger, I think they would have admitted it to begin with."

Ms. Verni said she felt the trial was basically conducted fairly, though with a few reservations. "Both the judge and the jury were generally fair, when they were awake," she said dryly.

The Harrisburg defense was not convicted on the conspiracy charge, but Philip and Sister Elizabeth McLellister were convicted of smuggling letters out of federal prison.

"I think the Berrigans expected the verdict," said Ms. Verni. "They knew the government would get them on something. It has to ways, you know. As soon as you start having doubts about the peaceful movement, the government will put you away."

While in Harrisburg, Ms. Verni found lodging with three girls from the Harrisburg defense committee.

"Every day," she said, "the defense committee would serve these huge communal meals, where the defendants would come and mingle with the people.

Ms. Verni said that the attitudes of the local townspeople were either prejudiced against the defendants or indifferent to the case altogether. "I was in a restaurant one day," she said, "and a guy came in and said, 'Darn you, you and all the rest of them.' He said that all those troubles were the federal builders."

I spent the whole day driving by and giving them the finger."

Barbara Verni

Despite the verdict, Ms. Verni said she felt the trial was basically a good thing for the antiwar movement.

"It brought people from all segments of the movement together," she said. "The sharers and the giving was so evident among these people. It was totally a different atmosphere than the demonstrations I had seen."

"The spectators were very close because they had to be undercover. "They were very beautiful people."

Civil service workers win 8 council seats

By Mourne Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Eight civil service employees on SIU's campus won seats on the Nonacademic Employees Council following an election earlier this month.

The council is comprised of 14 members, two chosen from each of seven categories, each serving staggered two-year terms. The categories are general, trades and occupations, professional, administrative, custodial, clerical and services.

Joe A. Moore, financial analyst, won in the professional category. Incumbent William Clyde Ferkim of the Physical Plant won in the custodial category.

Mrs. Carolyn Bittner, secretary in the philosophy department, has been cast in the title role of "Mary Poppins" in the spring dinner theater play "Provision for search, seizure to be heard"

Provisions dealing with search and seizure are expected to be presented when the community code committee meets at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the University Senate conference room.

John Hoffman, an assistant legal counsel, is expected to present any provisions dealing with search and seizure.

The seminar will deal with the instrumentation and applications of computer-processing these images to facilitate the measurement of textual parameters such as grain size and shape distribution.

The seminar is sponsored by the SIU Center for Electron Microscopy. An informal gathering with refreshments will be held at the center from 3 to 4 p.m. to meet the guest speaker. The center is located in the former Animal House, to the south between the Library and Life Sciences I.

University Senate approves Student Center rate change

By Richard Lawson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A legislative proposal calling for differentials for the use of the Student Center was approved Monday by the University Senate.

The proposal was 22-9 with two abstentions. The proposal was presented by Bill Atkinson, undergraduate representative. Under a rate system, students would pay the same rate for each quarter, but would be charged lower rates for using center's facilities than non-students. Atkinson's rationale was arguments are the only ones who pay building costs on the center, yet students must pay the same rate for using the center as non-students.

Some senators opposed a rate system because of a possible loss in revenue and the possibility outside groups might be discouraged from using the center.

The student life and welfare joint standing committee will devise the rate system. The system would be sent to the screening committee to decide which constituency has jurisdiction. It is expected the system would be sent to the senate for its approval. The proposal will not be sent to the president until the rate system is fully devised.

A legislative proposal calling for the creation of a community fee was approved until the May 8 meeting. The proposal, made by Gary Dickson, community representative, asks the senate to endorse the concept for a community fee.

The operating budget subcommittee would then determine the scope, amount and the means of collecting the fee.

Legislative proposals concerning the proposed monorail and the abolition of attendance requirements were presented but not acted on. John Coniliak, undergraduate representative, called for the traffic and parking subcommittee to investigate alternatives to the proposed monorail and report back to the senate by the August meeting. Atkinson called for the end of the policy of permitting teachers to use class attendance records in grading courses. Both proposals will be considered at the May 8 meeting.

A resolution demanding the abolition of plans to evict the residents of University Trailer Courts was submitted by Atkinson. The courts are scheduled to be used as a parking lot. Atkinson claimed the parking lot located to the southeast of University Village would be a better area. Action on the resolution will be at the next meeting.

An amendment to the bylaws to eliminate the two alumni positions was made, but not considered. The rationale is that no alumni representatives have attended a senate meeting since Nov. 1. The amendment will be considered at the next meeting.

Doug Allen turns controversial, loses his tenure

"I charge Mr. Allen, not with 'in- tend to 'incite' or encourage such conduct, but with the presentation of a public statement that was clearly ominous in intent." I charge that he made this public statement because, in the wake of the University's almost total neglect, he made a basic disrespect for the most elemental principles of academic freedom and student rights. The University simply must be founded," Hammond said.

Doug Allen yawned and pretended to be asleep, Hammond said. "In a period, he said, there was a public presentation. Allen asked, "The faculty heard that they were not wavered.

The president and answer period after the lecture, Allen recalled, and in answer to one question Sacks departed from the topic and proceeded to condemn the students, calling them the cause of the destruction of the university.

This changed the tone of the meeting, Allen said, and students began questioning "who was destroying the university?"

At that point, Allen said, there was some laughter and comments, but the mood was far less demagogic than that at many department meetings. At no time was Sacks prevented from talking, Allen said.

About 30 or 25 minutes after the first interruption, Allen said, he took the floor, first conceding that sometimes students are rude, but saying that he felt that Sacks had oversimplified a complex issue.

Far more destructive to the University, Allen stated, was what Sacks and other more powerful professors do in terms of research for the government and corporate interests.

Allen then said that this never would have been noticed, had it not been for the war in Vietnam, when people began to see how professors played active parts in the war machine.

Sacks answered, according to Allen, that there is nothing wrong with working for the government and that it was none of Allen's business anyway.

"Nothing really happened," Edward Negron, an aide for Allen, said in his relations, recollections about the Sacks lecture.

Some signs were being held up, Hammond recalled, and when he asked those holding the signs to put them down, they did. There was no verbal heckling by less distracting remarks, he said.

What charges Sack brought against Allen were sent to Roger Beyler, dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences on March 16, 1971.

"When I first received the letter," Beyler said recently, "I took a bit of time to decide what to do—there were a number of alternatives presented to me."

Beyler said could have taken no action, 2. called a conference with the two involved or 3. called a formal hearing.

On March 31, 1971, Chancellor Bredt refused to go to Beyler stating that he could not find a basis for a hearing and recom- mended that a hearing not take place.

"Beyler said that he would have preferred a conference of either one would not meet with me it would into the hearing room." Bredt refused the conference.

Doug Allen, said and "Professor Allen had some reservations about this meeting."

Fomal hearing called

On April 19, Staub held a second set of complaints against Allen. A formal hearing was called.

The hearing committee, on the basis of a file of material on the case, decided that the case should be dropped, the condition that if either party wanted to pursue the matter there would be a formal hearing.

On May 3, Staub reported that Allen and the faculty hearing committee "unified" to have an inhibiting effect on the exercise by the plaintiff of his rights to free speech and deprived him of "the right to a fair and impartial hearing, thus violating his right to the presence of the law—because the defendants are biased and prejudiced against the defendant."

Allen's attorney had asked the court for a declaratory judgment against the defendants, an injunc- tion against future hearings, $50,000 in actual damages and $50,000 in punitive damages.

On June 7, the hearing committee recommended that no further action be taken on the complaint and the next day Beyler accepted this recommendation.

Staub filed a fourth set of com- plaints against Allen on July 7, this time to Chancellor Bredt, who on Sept. 15 upheld the faculty hearing committee.

Tenure denied

On Sept. 21, Staub filed an appeal of the latter decision to the Board of Trustees, who dismissed the case at the December meeting— the same meeting at which the trustees denied Allen tenure.

"The case was not dismissed on the facts," Baker said, "but on two principles of procedure."

First, Baker said, the University did not have published regulations of sufficient precision to warrant bringing a person to trial and, secondly, the complaints brought before the committee were judged not to be sufficiently precise in fact. Although the charges against Allen were dropped, Allen's filing of a suit against Beyler and the faculty hearing committee, in connection with the case, remains as part of the board's reasoning in denying tenure to Allen.

"The filing of a lawsuit, con- taining serious allegations against the dean and the administration of the University resulting in widespread public to the damage of the University administration and the failure from June 2, 1971, until this date (February, 1972) to serve any of the defendants, dismiss the lawsuit or attempt to prove the allegations," read one of the tenure- denial explanations in a board resolution.

Case dismissed

In March, 1972, Federal Judge William Jurgens sustained a motion by Allen's attorney, Joseph Cohen, to dismiss the case.

Different standards of libel have been applied. Baker explained, since the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in New York Times vs. Sullivan. Someone like Allen, who is a public figure, must prove actual malice before he can collect on a libel case.

"I don't think this could have been proven," Baker said. "However, there was a right to bring a suit. He can't be fired for seeking redress in a court of law."

"I feel that it was very worth- while that we filed suit," Allen said in an interview after the suit was dropped. "Since June of 1971, Dean Beyler has not been able to harass me in such an overt manner. Before that for about a year Dean Beyler had complete license to harass me on a fairly regular basis."

"This administration has had to be much more cautious and more indirect about their harassment."

Greenbriar predicts great times ahead

By Ernie Schoen
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Despite SIU having lost its first match of the season, at least one member of the Salukis tennis team is acting like a winner—Chris Green dale. "It was a moral victory," insisted Green dale. Southern's No. 3 singles player. "Any time you win four matches it's a moral vic tory. It proved we were the better Team."

The Salukis lost that initial match of the season against Southeast Missouri State's A&M Sunday against Big Ten Cham pion Michigan. It came after SIU had beaten Connecticut and Miami of Ohio on Friday and Saturday respectively.

Southern had taken a 4-2 lead af ter the singles matches at victories from Graham Snook, Jorge Ramirez, Chris Green dale and Ryan Ruscito. All that stood between the Salukis and victory was winning one of three doubles matches. They never got it.

"We had a bad day at doubles," Green dale lamented. "No one played very well.

While the reality of absorbing their first defeat might be difficult to swallow, the Salukis aren't about to stop all the rest of the season.

"There is too much pride on this team for that," Green dale said.

SIU coed golfer wins championship

Sandy Blaha was the envy of 45 other women golfers last Saturday. She became the first SIU coed golfer to win a national tournament. She fired rounds of 76 and 80 to claim the National Intercollegiate 36-hole individual title.

Ms. Blaha's 36-hole score of 156 (76-80) gives her the chance to go to the National Intercol legiate Individual Championship this weekend. She will face Southwestern Missouri State's Kathy Gardner and Ohio State's Peggy Murphy at the end of regulation. The first sudden death playoff will see the winner take the individual title for Ms. Blaha.

Toni Mericki was right behind her teammate as a fourth-place finisher at the Salukis to play on AstroTurf

The Momentous Chemical Co., manufacturer of AstroTurf, is the apparent low bidder on a new arti

The job is the first phase in a $1.8 million renovation project at the 34-year-old stadium. The field is expec Apparent low bids for the project came to $217,900 J and J Robinson Development and Construction Co. of Carbondale asked $209,390 for general site work and Blaise Corp. of Centralia submitted a $21,100 bid for electrical work.

American Rubine Rubber Co. of Boston, Mass., bid $217,000 for insta llation of PolyTurf I of synthetic surfacing.

The running improvements will replace existing asphalt take-offs for pole vault and broad jump track.

Bids received were $322,000 below estimates for the project, saving of this nature will be from student fee money already in hand.

To the pleasure and dismay of watching fans, the track Salukis were piling up points as fast as the temperature was falling Tuesday night in the SIU Athletic Stadium.

In the end, Southern Illinois won 13 of the 30 events for an easy 107-47 win over Murray State.

The victory probably was the second highest accumulation of points in a dual meet by the Salukis. The highest score and biggest point spread occurred in a 133-32 victory over Northwestern University in April.

Although the spring night was cold, the times and marks in the old stadium last night weren't.

Three meet records were broken and three more were tied.

The first record fell very early in the meet when Saluki won the 440-yard relay in 41 seconds. The old mark of 41.2 was set by MSU in 1976.

Saluki Jim Harris set a record in the triple jump with a 49-8 to win from four until last week to the 107-47 win of Murray State.

Hill in the shot put and second.

Saluki’s Coach Hartzog didn't think it was the historic Drake Relays of the 1970’s in Des Moines before it.

But the last six years have seen the triple threat-Crockett and Patterson—in the mile relay, Ken Scott and Gerald Smith helped Erickson and Sutton post a 3:13.5.

With the Oreos intact, Southern Illinois ran a 3:11.9 in Florida five weeks ago that hadn't been equaled since.

"We ought to be going down instead of staying in the same place," Hartzog said, clutching a walkie-talkie during Tuesday night's cool weather meet.

Mother Nabisco blends a winner, Oreos sprinting at national honors

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Mother Nabisco's one grand old lady who throws together a wild batch of batter.

The Oreos, her latest kitchen creation, have churned into the nation's sports forefront disguised as Southern Illinois relay runners.

Their laurels include two victories last Saturday in the Kansas Relays and a 440-yard win Tuesday night as Southern Illinois made grape juice out of Murray State, 107-47.

Why Oreos? "We black dudes on both ends and just a little speck of white in the middle," said Ivory Crockett, elder statesman who got the pounding legs that rarely lose.

"Stanley (Patterson) really made it up," Crockett said after Tuesday's victory.

Oreos, Crockett and Eddie Sutton are chocolate wafer-rounders. Terri Erickson, that little white speck in the middle.

Together, they comprise Southern Illinois' 440, 800 and mile relay teams.

But the Oreos' real dominance has been the first two events where USI owns the nation's fifth and third fastest times respectively.

Both times were clocked at last Saturday's Kansas Relays. The Oreos ran a 40.4 440-yard relay and a 1:23.3 in the 800.

"And now the question becomes how much faster can this chocolate covered vanilla wafer run?" Coach Lew Hartzog predicts a sub-440 second mark in the 440 and a 1:23.5 in the 440. "We haven't had exceptional passes so far this season," said Hartzog.

"And we're running our best times on Monday days both times."

But Crockett's not making any promises. "If everything goes right, there's no telling how fast we can run."

Crockett said after the Oreos ran a 41.0 440 against Murray State.

"None of us ever predicts our times because everybody will be looking for us to make good on it."

Only Southern California and North Carolina Central own faster 440's. USC's Trojans ran a 1:21.1. They're spe, headed by Don Querry, last summer's Pan American Games champion in the 400 and 220-yard dashes.

Southern California owns the world record 38.6 and the Trojans have already run a 38.8 this spring.

Southern Illinois' Oreos have one remaining opportunity to better their 480-yard mark. That's this weekend at the historic Drake Relays.

"We'll run the 440-relay every meet all the way through nationals," Hartzog said. "But the only place you ever run an 800-yard relay is at a big relay meet."

In fact, the 440 and mile relays became NCAA championship events just eight years ago.

"It's hard for us to be the super sprinters," Crockett said.

"It's very hard for us to be the super sprinter (himself) and Stanley who wasn't even recruited."

Crockett discovered Patterson in the intramural championships three years ago. Erickson and Sutton were recruited as quartermilers. But, says Crockett, "There isn't anybody in the nation that can beat Eddie in the leadoff leg. And on the third leg, Stanley hasn't lost a race yet."

Tuesday night, Hartzog rested half of the quartet—Crockett and Patterson—in the mile relay. Ken Scott and Gerald Smith helped Erickson and Sutton post a 3:13.5.

With the Oreos intact, Southern Illinois ran a 3:11.9 in Florida five weeks ago that hadn't been equaled since.

"We ought to be going down instead of staying in the same place," Hartzog said, clutching a walkie-talkie during Tuesday night's cool weather meet.

Eventually, he hopes the Oreos run a 3:06 mile relay.

That's the dream of the Oreos—Crockett, Sutton and Patterson—comprise Southern Illinois' sprint teams. The trio swept Murray State in the 100 and 220, Crockett winning both with 9.5 and 21.1 clockings. Erickson won the 440 in 47.2.

"We didn't think they'd run nearly as fast because of the exceptional work done at Kansas," Hartzog said.

"But when you've got Kansas on one side and Drake on the other, it's pretty hard to get up for anything in the middle."

Unless, of course, you've had that good homestyle upbringing that comes only from Mother Nabisco. Or is it Papa Hartzog?"
