Leighton ahead, parties split senate in USO race

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

By 11 votes, Action Party candidate Andy Leighton is the apparent winner of the undergraduate Student Organization presidential election, while Student Senate seats were split almost equally between the Action and Trojan parties.

A recount on Monday of the April 18 election had Leighton and vice presidential running mate Jack Cranley with 736 votes, and the Trojan Party's Lamont Brantley and Ron Orr with 725 votes.

Seventeen senate seats went to the Trojans and 16 to the Action Party. Two seats were filled with write-in candidates and six will remain open, according to Franco Laterza, USO election commissioner.

The Election Commission met Monday night to rule on a complaint from Brantley that alleged improprieties by the election commission and the Action Party and asked for invalidation of the election.

Monday's results are unofficial pending ratification by the senate and a decision on the complaint.

David Strong, Action Party campaign chairman, said the Election Commission will vindicate his party's conduct during the election. He said he was repulsed that the Trojan Party members found things wrong with the election only after they found they were behind after the first ballot count.

"Their complaint was filed after the fact, after they had said there were no problems with the election when the polls closed," Strong said.

Strong and Leighton said they were confident the complaint was unsubstantiated and the request for a new election would be denied.

Senate winners in geographic districts, followed by their votes, were:

— West Side: Nina Keith, 346; Dennis Cusack, 311; Jim Ludeman, 307; Martin Burns, 301; Mary Carroll, 298; Chris Fuller, 255; and Lydia Whewell, 237.

— East Side: Berl Jones, 196; Mike Ferguson, 179; Karen

Kowalski, 178; John D. Rulledge, 160; Deneen Sanders, 8; Dorece Rolack, 8.

East Campus: Nicole Glasser, 353; Heidi Holm, 327; Sue Simons, 320.

Thompson Point: Deborah Jones, 118; Melody Peddy, 353. — Senate winners in academic districts, followed by their votes, were: General Academic Programs, Paul Kravitz, 102; and Kevin Harris, 95; Education, James Peterson, 59; and Gregg Henning, 43; Engineering and Technology, Mark Skowronski, 93; and Tracy Stenbeck, 79; Business and Administration, Kevin Meyers, 133; and Mary Coffey, 123; Liberal Arts, Dave Madlener, 148; and Deborah Soukup, 130; Communications, Dawn Cunningham, 170; and Mike Majchrowitz, 118; Agriculture, Eric Luce, 44; and Mark Case, 42. Academic districts which filled only one of their two seats were: Technical Careers, David Wallace, 116; Human Resources, Kimberly Boyne, 74; and Science, Scott Schaffer, 85.

Diplomats to evacuate embassies

LONDON (AP) — Police investigating the shooting at the Libyan Embassy deported a Libyan student on Monday, saying he was involved in "covert activity." The day after Britain severed relations with Libya, diplomats in the capitals of both countries prepared to evacuate their embassies.

Libyan personnel at the besieged embassy in London, who have until midnight Sunday to leave the country, cabled their leader, Col. Moammar Khadafi, pledging "to defend our principles and aims ... or die in the process," the official Libyan news agency said.

There was no clear assurance from Libya that those holed up inside the mission would come out peacefully.

Britain broke diplomatic ties with Libya Sunday night after a fruitless effort to draw out of the embassy the gunman who fired from the building at a crowd of Libyan dissidents April 17, killing a policeman and wounding 11 demonstrators. The government ordered the 20 to 30 diplomats and students inside the embassy expelled.

Atomic veterans seek amends

By Philip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Joseph Cavins and Bob Farmer have never seen an atomic weapon, but they say they are still feeling the effects of an atomic weapon test they witnessed about 30 years ago. They say they are dying from radiation exposure.

From 1946 and 1958, 66 atomic and hydrogen bombs were tested on the Bikini and Eniwetok Atolls of the Marshall Islands in the South Pacific.

Farmer, a participant in Operation Crossroads, in July 1946 saw an atomic bomb test while he was 12 miles out to sea. Cavins saw a similar test while aboard a ship during Operation Sandstone two years later.

"I may die before anything's done, but rest assured that I'll have one finger in the air to those saying 'go to hell' to atomic veterans," Cavins said.

Cavins, 57, and Farmer, 56, have devoted their lives to seeing that the U.S. government compensates those who were exposed to radiation after bombs were tested on the Marshall Islands. The two conducted a workshop on atomic veterans at a nuclear war conference Saturday in the Student Center.

"People who lived on the island go back 25 years later and say the radiation bothered them," said Farmer, who has had operations for thyroid cancer. "We were there just after the blast and the government doesn't agree that we were irradiated."

Families which were evacuated from the island during the testing were given $25,000 by the government and allowed to return home. Marshall Islanders were guaranteed $100,000 if any relative died from radiation exposure, Cavins said.

The government has paid almost $190 million in set-

Court halt expected on force-feeding

By John Racine
Staff Writer

A federal judge in Benton is expected to grant a temporary injunction on Thursday to prohibit Marion Federal Penitentiary officials from force-feeding three fasting inmates.

Leonard Peltier Support Group spokesman David Baker said the three American Indians would continue their hunger strike until religious freedom is restored at the maximum security facility.

Last Friday, attorneys Jim Roberts and Rudolfo Munoz filed a motion with the U.S. District Court in Benton seeking an injunction against the force-feeding of Leonard Peltier, Robert Wilson and Albert Garza.

Baker said force-feeding the three would violate the ancient religious rite known as "Lifefast," which he described as old and very sacred.

The three began their fast by refusing the noon meal on April 13 to protest "the refusal to allow them to practice their religion." Religious practices for all of the 250 inmates have been limited since a 23-hour-a-day lockdown of the prison began Oct. 27, 1983.

Baker said "they have clamped down on everybody but they have totally restricted Indians." He said that Catholics are still allowed to take communion, but under heavy restriction.

New Warden Jerry Williford last week indicated that the U.S., China may be near pact on nuclear energy, officials say

HONOLULU (AP) — U.S. officials are optimistic that President Reagan and Chinese leaders will be able to sign an interim agreement on commercial nuclear cooperation between their two nations when the president visits China later this week.

But there would "have to be a firm commitment" from the Chinese to work out differences over the handling of nuclear waste products, said a senior administration official traveling with Reagan.

The president was conferring Monday with aides and receiving a briefing on the Soviet military buildup in the Pacific region, in preparation for his meetings in Peking.

Focusing on the Soviets, Reagan summoned Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., commander of the U.S. Pacific forces, to his suite at a luxury hotel overlooking the ocean.

"The Soviet capability and Soviet threat is of concern to us, the Japanese, and probably the Chinese," said one senior official accompanying Reagan.

The official, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified by name, said Reagan wanted to be prepared to discuss the subject with the Chinese.

The issue of the nuclear agreement, which could be worth $20 billion to U.S. contractors, has been an unanswered question as the president's arrival Thursday in Peking draws near.

U.S. officials have made clear that they would like to have a treaty of some sort ready for him to sign, although a major stumbling block over the handling of spent nuclear fuel seemed, until the weekend, to be insurmountable.

But one senior administration official said as Reagan arrived in Honolulu on Sunday that an interim agreement "is more than possible."

Chinese efforts to purchase nuclear technology from American firms have spurred negotiations that have been conducted over two years.

A U.S. law would require China to guarantee that no nuclear material will be reprocessed, enriched or otherwise altered in form or content without the approval of the United States, and that no fuel that could be used to make nuclear weapons may be stored in a facility that does not have American approval. The Chinese feel that control of the fuel is a matter of national sovereignty, administration sources said, although similar requirements are placed on all nations with which the United States has nuclear power agreements.

Quadriplegic talked out of suicide

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Quadriplegic Elizabeth F.uvia, eating french fries and burritos, has apparently been talked out of her "suicide wish" two weeks after checking out of the California hospital where she waged a battle to be allowed to starve to death.

But the whereabouts of the 26-year-old cerebral palsy victim who wanted to be released from what she called a life of agony were a mystery Monday.

Three face trial in helicopter crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Twilight Zone" director John Landis and two colleagues were ordered Monday to stand trial for the helicopter crash deaths of three actors by a judge who said Landis put his quest for "visual truth" ahead of safety.

Landis, special effects coordinator Paul Stewart, and pilot Dorcey Wingo, who handled the helicopter that crashed onto actor Vic Morrow and two child performers, will be arraigned May 8 on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

The decision was a blow to the movie industry, marking the first time a director had been ordered to stand trial for a death on the set.

AIDS breakthrough isolates virus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists have found the virus that probably causes AIDS, a discovery that has led to a blood test for the deadly disease and the possibility of developing a vaccine within two or three years, federal health officials announced Monday.

Isolating the virus and developing a process to mass-produce it led to a test that should detect AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — in victims even before symptoms arise and tell if donated blood supplies are contaminated with the virus.

the Sunday, in the afternoon," a man who answered the embassy phone told Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency.

The Foreign Office says there are 22 accredited Libyan diplomats, along with an unknown number of non-diplomatic personnel.

Home Secretary Leon Brittan said the departing Libyans will be searched for weapons, but their diplomatic pouches will not be touched. Police planned afterward to scour the building.

British authorities, meanwhile, put Libyan student Saleh Ibrahim Mabruk, 26, on an afternoon flight to Tripoli. A police spokesman told reporters his presence in Britain "was not conducive to the public good." He refused to elaborate.

The spokesman, who would not be identified, said Mabruk was arrested Saturday during investigations into the embassy shooting. He said the student had been in Britain since 1982 on a visa to study English.

Press Association, quoting an official source, said Mabruk belonged to a "revolutionary committee" involved in "covert activity" in Britain.

When Britain broke ties with Libya, the home secretary announced a clampdown on the entry of Libyans into Britain and said he wouldn't hesitate to expel undesirable Libyan nationals.

Salvadorans want big voter turnout

SAN SALVADOR (AP)—The government is hoping for another big turnout for the presidential election runoff May 6 between moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte and ultra-conservative Roberto d'Aubuisson.

In the two other elections since El Salvador's civil war started in 1979, voters lined up by the tens of thousands.

A big turnout for the March 1982 election for a Constituent Assembly was considered a propaganda victory for the government, which promoted voting as a way to show their desire for peace. It was also seen as a display of ordinary Salvadorans' defiance of left-wing guerrillas who oppose the elections and refused to run candidates.

The first round of the presidential election, in March, was marred by bureaucratic foulups that prevented an estimated 200,000 people from voting. Nevertheless, the total turnout was 1.6 million of an electorate believed to number about 1.8 million.

Duarte defeated d'Aubuisson, 43.4 percent to 29.7 percent, but a runoff was necessary because with eight candidates running, neither got more than half the vote total.

Besides a genuine desire for peace and democracy on the part of many Salvadorans, there are subtle — and not so subtle — factors that prompt them to vote.

Voting is required by law in El Salvador, as it is in most other Central American countries. Violators can be punished by a fine ranging from the equivalent of 80 cents to $20. There is no evidence, however, that the law was enforced strictly in March.

matology clinic in St. Louis monthly for treatment.

During the tests, sailors on the ships were told to lie with their arms over their heads, Cavins said, and were given only goggles for protection.

"All the ships were exposed at the tests and we had no idea what was going on," Cavins said. "You could feel the heat and see the outline of the man's bones in front of you."

Days after the tests, sailors were allowed to go ashore, he said.

"We played base-ball in the sand, drank beer and the water, and now we're dying," Cavins said.

At first, Farmer said, he was "kind of thrilled to get this free tour" of the Marshall Islands, while Cavins said he was told that his crew was going on a "top secret mission."

Federal legislation, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, supports the pleas of Cavins and Farmer and may be addressed by Congress this summer. Opponents of the legislation, Farmer said, say the atomic veterans are "freeloaders," and that "it's all a hoax" against the federal government.

hunger strike would be handled according to established policy, but did not say when action might be taken to end the strike.

Baker said that Bureau of Prison policy and not the warden affects the way matters are handled at the prison.

Prison officials declined to comment Monday on the status of the three inmates and to respond to the many rumors surrounding the fast.

"They aren't striking for demands," Baker said. "Prison officials say they can't let them practice their religion because it is a security risk."

"All denial of religious freedom will cause a spiritual death. That is the reason they are doing this. They are fighting for their spiritual lives," he said.

"The prisons are suppose to be rehabilitating people and I would think that religion would play a big role," Baker said. "I don't think they are really interested in rehabilitating people."

Although inmates were allowed to take part in religious ceremonies before the lockdown, Baker said the Marion facility has always been tougher on allowing Indians to practice their religion than other prisons have been.

Baker said that the 25 Indians at the Marion facility are not allowed to participate in pipe ceremonies and other spiritual ceremonies. He said that while other prisons allow inmates to use sweat lodges for purification during ceremonies, the Marion prison does not.

The strikers' supporters are concerned that if the hunger strike continues much longer the oldest of the three could die. Robert Wilson, a 62-year-old Sioux Indian, has reportedly lost 10 pounds since the protest began. Baker said that Wilson had been going without water until last Friday. On Saturday his condition was said to have improved. Wilson also suffers from a degenerative spinal disc disease, he said.

Baker has said that the men may not live longer than five more weeks. He said "most men can only last 40 days or so" on a hunger strike.

Election complaint another voter turnoff

GUESS WHAT. The losing candidate in last week's Undergraduate Student Organization elections is seeking to have the vote invalidated.

Surprised? We're not. Once again student government has shown itself ill equipped to manage one of its most basic functions — electing new members.

But why? If the election rules are so complex and vague as to guarantee defeated candidates an excuse to contest the elections, the rules could easily be changed. The USO certainly seems to be willing to devote endless hours to debating its own rules and procedures.

The complaint by defeated USO presidential candidate Lamont Brantley, in addition to Student Trustee Sharon Hutcherson's outstanding complaint against the conduct of the recent trustee elections, makes us wonder whether anyone in student government really knows what he's doing.

For instance, Brantley's complaint alleges that polling places in the Student Center closed an hour earlier than scheduled. If that's true, the USO certainly looks foolish — if not, Brantley, a veteran USO senator who lost a narrow election, does.

THE ELECTION commissioner for the USO election denies Brantley's allegations. If the complaints are correct, apparently, they are too minor to be a basis for invalidation. But minor infractions or not, the election rules should be followed or abolished.

But the rules do exist, and with each new squabble over their interpretation, student government loses more of what little credibility it has among students. The lack of faith in the USO's ability to act as a responsible representative of the student body is reflected in the voter turnout at last week's election. Approximately 1,500 students voted in the USO election. As of Monday, five days after the election, a final count of those 1,500 votes has not been made.

But maybe the low turnout is due to student apathy toward the three-ring circus the USO has degenerated into lately. Maybe, given elections recently, student voters are getting smart about voting procedures at SIU-C. Smart enough to develop a motto: Voting will be better the second time around.

Letters

Issues bore apathetic student

This whole year I've wanted to write a letter to the editor. I attempted this many times but could never think of anything to write about. I don't like reading people's petulant frenzies, and nobody here really has much to say about international matters (yawn).

Once, I almost wrote a letter bitching about the ridiculous police force in Carbondale. Almost until I realized I didn't care about the police force. I tried to come up with something else to bitch about.

Recently, there have been millions of letters about the student elections, saying this wonderful and that wonderful, etc., this bad and that bad, etc., I should cast my vote for this group, that group.... I'm so bored with these elections I could just sleep to death.

I don't even care anymore about getting this letter published, but if it does appear in the Daily Egyptian, I'm sure there will be trillions of rebuttals, testy rebuttals, saying this and that about how

I'm the reason nothing gets done around here. The testy rebuttals will be a rallying call for Action and Trojan party members alike to forget their differences and come after me with a rope: it will be a field day for student involvement. Praise the Lord — Paul Dunk, Junior, Political Science

Paul Simon getting plenty of press in D.E.'s coverage of senate race

Well another day has passed and another Paul Simon article was written. You would of thought that Paul Simon had defeated Chuck Percy, creating a vacancy in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, namely the chairperson. But that's all right, because Paul has done so much for the Southern Illinois area, so I'm told. The senatorial race will be worth watching, especially to Simon, who lost the 1972 Democratic primary for governor with the Chicago democratic machine's backing.

Then again, I can remember my Chicago suburbs days. Chuck was big in the "burbs" and little was known about the bowtied liberal from downstate. Suddenly, culture shock — I was enrolled at SIU.

Overall, no real complaints, with politics aside. I would like to ask one favor. Please let the liberal viewpoints be compared to opposing thoughts, particularly on such issues as government-state job creation, financial aid and fiscal policy. Therefore, we could have a group of disagreeing, presumptuous economists in the press, (which I would prefer) over a pack of politicians preaching promises, predictions and proposals. — Jay Pritchett, Senior, Marketing

'Scrunching' GM cars could be disastrous

AMERICANS, WHO until recently were voluptuaries regarding automobiles, must face this question: What is the point of being American now that General Motors has scrunched (I'll have none of that euphemism "down-sized") what were its big cars?

Newspapers, magazines and airwaves are full of advertisements for the new Buick Electra, Oldsmobile 98s and Cadillac DeVilles. The advertisements say the cars have conquered the Australian outback and are as high-tech as Gary Hart. The advertisements do not mention this salient fact: These cars, these shadows of their former selves, are about two feet shorter than they were when last you looked.

GM SAYS — perhaps correctly, but who cares? — that these new roller skates are better than their predecessors because they have front-wheel drive, virtually as much passenger room as their predecessors and, being lighter, use less fuel. But GM is playing roulette with the economy by encouraging Americans to think rationally and prosaically about automobiles. If

George F. Will
Syndicated Columnist

Americans come to consider cars as mere machines that cart people to and fro, rather than as operative gestures, extensions of personality and expressions of longings too deep for tears, they will keep their cars too long, with disastrous and regressive effects.

Approximately one in six American jobs is directly or indirectly related to the auto industry. And every purchaser of a new car manufactures, at a loss, a valuable product — a used car. By absorbing the large depreciation loss and passing on a substantial transportation value, the original purchaser makes possible America's largest ongoing and progressive mechanism for redistributing economic value (wealth): the used-car market.

THE MINIATURIZATION of what were the ocean liners of the automobile fleet is, like most dreary aspects of contemporary society, a consequence of Gavrilo Princip's pistol. It killed Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo, setting in train the First World War, the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, the redrawing of the map of the Middle East, four wars against Israel, the 1973 oil embargo and, in 1975, CAFE — Corporate Average Fuel Efficiency Standards imposed by Congress on automobile manufacturers. CAFE pressures manufacturers to resist market preferences and increase the small-car mix in their sales.

So rejoice: For a few more miles per gallon the Electra has become an Electraette. Never mind that 35 years ago you got a gallon of gasoline for 29 cents which, adjusted for inflation, is equivalent to a $1.23 gallon — about what we are paying today. Having spent $80 billion to design and produce smaller, more efficient cars, which foreign competitors also produce, Detroit now finds that the public still has a strong desire for the king of large cars that only America has been making. This desire probably makes Congress very cross. Congress should repeal this public and enact a new one.

GM SPOKESMEN insist that although CAFE accelerated by a few years the scrunching of the large cars, the scrunching was inevitable because front-wheel drive is the wave of the future, and taste is turning toward trimness in all things. Fiddleticks. And the worst of it is that the scrunching gives pleasure to those anti-betonists who hate automobiles and like (in addition to yogurt and bran muffins) public transportation systems.

Such systems are necessary, but they are not as much fun as a private car, and they hardly save energy. It will be the year 2284 before the Washington subway saves as much energy as was used in building it. Furthermore, public transportation systems have huge payroll costs. Private cars involve billions of volunteered hours of driving, a huge economic saving.

I FIRST NOTICED cars in the 1950s, Detroit's rococo period. Now that cars look like wedges of cheese, I pay no attention to them — none, not even to change the oil. Last autumn a mechanic checked the oil in a Will car and said: "You'll need a quart but I cannot in good conscience put clean oil in that glup."

It was time for a new American car — American because all other automobile-manufacturing nations have annoyed me (Japan and Germany by the Second World War, England by the Stamp Act, France by being mean to NATO, Sweden by sympathizing with North Vietnam, Italy by allowing street lights in Rome even though a pope denounced them as modernism).

I buy cars the way I buy suits: quickly. For suits I simply say: "Gray, natural shoulders, two buttons, cuffs on the trousers, please." For cars I say: "Big and blue, please." Now shopping for cars will be even quicker: "Blue, please."

Visible, vocal student leadership needed

STUDENT GOVERNMENT at SIU-C is in trouble.

To many students, our current campus "leaders" appear to be spineless political hacks, more intent upon padding their resumes than fighting for student interests. While student leaders argue about the minutes of the last meeting and debate the fine print of election bylaws, important issues are ignored.

Occasionally the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate and Professional Student Council will muster a bit of courage and pass a resolution opposing some of the most flagrantly foolish plans of the administration. Proposals to eliminate the Russian studies program and the community development program and the administration's pursuit of the Bracy building have recently been criticized by student leaders.

THESE PERIODIC protests are commendable. But unless administrators develop an inordinate fear of paper cuts, neatly typed resolutions of protest and personal letters will remain symbolic acts of futility unless they are combined with further action.

John Schrag

Student government is not ineffective by design. The USO has been involved in worthwhile projects such as Carbondale Cleanup Day, the Landlord Tenant Union, production of the student directory and the expansion of Halloween activities. The GPSC has provided valuable services for its constituency and generally handles itself with poise and professionalism. Student representatives sit on various important campus commissions, panels and boards.

But what has been lacking is campus-wide leadership — the type of leadership displayed a few years ago when the Carbondale City Council was considering an "amusement" tax to pay for a downtown parking garage. Part of the tax would be levied on eating and drinking establishments, and thus fall unfairly on the backs of students.

TODD ROGERS and Stan Irvin, who were then the USO president and student trustee, tried the nice-guy, diplomatic approach for a while but got nowhere. So on the night when the council held a public hearing on the matter, they reserved an SIU-C bus, jammed it full of students and showed up at the council chambers.

Council members aren't dumb — as elected officials, they are adept at counting potential votes. Rogers and Irvin backed up their words with a show of visible, unified student force and a compromise was reached.

But such a show of force has not been seen since

However, the student officials elected during the past two weeks have the potential to generate some campus unity. Andy Leighton, heir apparent to the USO throne, has shown initiative and a willingness to speak out in his involvement in the USO and the Mid-America Peace Project.

TRUSTEE-ELECT Bill Goodnick has some progressive ideas about student unity and his presence at the nuclear war conference last weekend indicates that his interests extend beyond the campus.

Glenn Stolar, the new GPSC president, has been one of the most active students on campus. If he and his pals at the GPSC go after Anthony Hall with the same hostile zeal they recently displayed toward the Daily Egyptian, SIU-C administrators will have their hands full.

We need not return to the days of the Vietnam protests when student riots left deep physical and emotional scars in this community, but we must somehow break out of the current lethargic state of apathy.

The USO and GPSC cannot sit idly by while liberal arts programs are gutted and the budget wizards in Anthony Hall gradually turn SIU-C into a four-year trade school. Student leaders must not only speak out against the monotonous tradition of tuition and fee increases and program cuts, they must make sure that the Student Center ballroom is packed full of students when the SIU Board of Trustees comes to town.

MEMBERS OF THE USO and GPSC should act as watchdogs over the administration. They should demand that the SIU Foundation disclose how much money it has invested in South Africa.

They should, in short, take the leadership role they claim to deserve. No longer can students allow their elected representatives to become experts on parliamentary procedure, while SIU-C administrators merrily continue on their march of folly, unhindered by any visible, organized student opposition.

D.E. earns Pulitzer for sensationalism

The Daily Egyptian crew deserves a belated Pulitzer for biased sensationalism. (Election squabble...." 1-17-84.) If student government credibility can be condemned on the basis of an election controversy and the silence of two student leaders at a particular Board of Trustees meeting, the same logic might be applied in condemning the credibility of the Daily Egyptian on the basis of inaccurate reporting and for failure to match headlines to respective articles on page 1.

It is ironic that student government credibility is assaulted in the same issue in which the Bracy deal is reported as "dead." Remember the "Bracy Bunch" from the Graduate and Professional Student Council who last year wrote to board members and legislators in protest of the purchase? Remember the student leaders who lobbied in Springfield last summer in support of a tax increase? Remember the student constituency which supported the preservation of Thompson Woods, proposed a plan for restructuring the affirmative action office, and protested the elimination of foreign language programs? Remember the student constituency which opposed the tuition increase and athletic fee increase? Hmmm.

Did the Daily Egyptian editorial gang consult its research files for Ann Greeley's five-page document analyzing GPSC rationale and positions on tuition and fee increases, sent to the board members prior to the meeting at which a vote was taken on these issues? I suppose the fact that SIU was assessed the lowest tuition increase in the state system should be attributed to the Daily Egyptian staff.

Certainly the DE creative writers noted that the past two GPSC elections conducted under Greeley's presidency were not appealed. In fact, who was the Election Commissioner in the last appealed election — you guessed it — Sharon Hutcherson. By the way, did anyone notice that Sharon was absent from the April 12 meeting of the Board of Trustees? Hmmm.

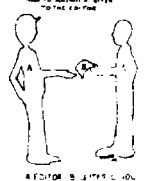

I assure you that student government is alive and well despite biased journalists who reside in glass houses. — Nancy Bandy, GPSC Vice President-elect

Only 1,591 students voted

Non-voters shouldn't complain

Why should I vote? Approximately 16,156 undergraduate students said that exact thing. I guess those same students don't mind having the number of pass-fail courses lowered, or perhaps the people living at the residence halls don't mind paying for 20 meals when they only eat 10 or 15 each week. I wonder how the freshmen would feel if they were told they couldn't register a vehicle on campus due to the parking problem. And I'm sure we all don't mind too much if the administration raises the tuition again. Oh, some of these things do pique your interest? Well then, perhaps you have made the correlation. The Undergraduate Student Organization is here to serve the students; you are your voice. All the USO asks for is some ammunition when it goes to the administration to represent you. They say, "Oh, yes, the students are very much for (or behind) this proposal," and the administrators reply, "Oh, really, then why did less than 10 percent vote last April?"

Please remember this next year, or the next time the USO asks you for something. — David W. Wallace, Sophomore, Aviation Management

D.E. editorials disregard truth

Over the past few months, the Daily Egyptian's editorial staff has been throwing mud in the face of student government. I'll be the first to admit student government is not perfect, but neither is the Daily Egyptian, who has a good day if they get the right heading on the right story. (See April 17th front page.)

Errors, however, are a fact of life. Over the past few months, however, the Daily Egyptian has accused the Graduate and Professional Student Council and Undergraduate Student Organization of not fighting for student needs at SIU-C. Specifically in regards to tuition and fee increases. These accusations are just blatantly false. The GPSC and USO have representation on the Student Advisory Committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education which originated tuition increases. The Budget Advisory Committee evaluates the IBHE's suggested tuition increases and considers alternatives and makes proposals to President Somit who submits it to the SIU Board of Trustees. This year, as a result of student government involvement with the budget process, SIU-C had the lowest tuition increase of any university in the state or

Illinois. The Daily Egyptian staff failed to note this with their statement that Sharon "Hutcherson is the only SIU-C student leader willing to speak out against tuition increases." If the Daily Egyptian had done any investigating at all (a single phone call), they would have found that student government has been in contact with all the voting Board of Trustees members on the tuition issue as well as involved in the entire budget process. Ms. Hutcherson made only a single comment at one Board of Trustees meeting. This type of investigative reporting is not an error — it's willful and wanton disregard for the truth. The students at SIU-C deserve more than the Carbondale "Enquirer" as their newspaper. — Daniel Venturi, GPSC Vice President

USO reporter sleeping on the job

At the beginning of the spring semester, Daily Egyptian reporter John Stewart was assigned to the Undergraduate Student Organization. Since that time senators and staff have been misquoted, and it has been written that senators voted unanimously to pass a bill when in fact there had been abstentions and votes against the bill.

At the April 12 senate meeting, Stewart showed everyone the reason for the mistakes that he prints: He stretched out on a row of chairs and slept through the senate meeting. I personally woke him up once during the meeting, he sat up for one minute and then laid back down.

It is understood that the meetings are somewhat tedious. However, the senators are professional enough to stay awake and take care of their business. The reporter sent to observe the meeting should also conduct himself in a professional way. — Joyce Yarbrough, Freshman, Theater

Kirkham's column on meeting didn't have any real substance

This is a rebuttal to a column by the jolly staff writer, Bruce Kirkham.

I ask Mr. Kirkham, where's the beef? You wrote an editorial (April 17) that has no substance. You're chewing on a bone with no meat. The March 28 issue lasted only 20 minutes; here's a direct, accurate quote from a senator representing the College of Communications and Fine Arts. "Our senators do not know what the hell Mr. Noonan is talking about, and this matter is of no concern of the senate in general. No senators have any information on the memo that Mr. Noonan received, and it seems like a personal problem between your organization (Thompson Point Executive Council) and the two senators. No offense to your organization, but we (senators) have more important business to attend to. We don't have time to argue about your silly little problem."

I ask again, where's the beef? Or should I say the real story about the substance, or mean, of the senate meeting. It did continue for three hours after announcements. — Stephanie Jackson, Vice President, Undergraduate Student Organization

Viennese prof: Lack of political analysis eroding democracies

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

The lack of political discussion in the Europe in media has helped make many Europeans leftist sympathizers, according to Maximilian Gottschlich, professor of Communications Research at the University of Vienna.

Gottschlich, a visiting professor in the School of Journalism this week, criticizes what he calls the European media's one-sided discussion of political issues, but he says the reason is complicated.

"It's a question of geography, history, and it's a question of psychological causes," Gottschlich said.

The European media systems, said Gottschlich, are different from the United States' in the way they operate and their histories. Television and radio broadcasting for transmitters and home sets is more heavily regulated by governments and freedom of the press came about for much of Europe late in the 19th century.

Another key difference between the U.S. press and its European counterpart, according to Gottschlich, is that in Europe there is no strong investigative journalism. Gottschlich said that when a press does not have a watchdog role, a government can suffer "crises of legitimacy."

"It is the responsibility of the media to open the discussion of basic principles to give itself social relevance," Gottschlich said.

He said the European media also do not analyze thoroughly enough the ideological terms of Eastern bloc countries.

"The media should clarify the concepts behind the words used for propaganda," Gottschlich said.

One of those words used for propaganda purposes by the Soviet bloc, according to Gottschlich, is "peaceful coexistence." Gottschlich said the term means waging war covertly rather than overtly.

The lack of analysis of propaganda was not Gottschlich's only criticism of the European mass media. Media professionals also fail to realize that the media should not be passive recorders of events, he said.

"A lot of political events, such as terrorism, occur because the mass media exist to cover them," he said. "There is no legitimacy without the presence of the media."

Gottschlich said that in much of Europe, the young — members of the Peace and Green movements — do not care to participate in the decision making of society.

"They have great problems to overcome," Gottschlich said, "but their aim is not to participate."

This "no future" generation is not like the 1968 generation that wanted to participate, Gottschlich said. Even the West German Green Party, which gained a few seats in the West German Parliament, does not cooperate with other members of the governing body.

Gottschlich said the young people of Europe cannot differentiate between totalitarianism and democracy, because political discussion by the media is so limited.

"Many young people looking for ideals are even finding them in National Socialism," Gottschlich said.

The reason for this attraction to the political ideologies of Nazism and Communism, Gottschlich said, might be because continental Europe tends to be collectivist oriented. The United States and England, though, are traditionally individualistic and their media systems reflect that, he said.

Photographer to give lecture

Bruce Davidson, a renowned documentary photographer, will speak about his experiences and current projects at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Davis Auditorium, Wham 105.

Davidson, a photographer for Magnum Photos, an international photographic agency, has had several books published, written a screenplay, and directed several award-winning films.

A former photographer for Life magazine, Davidson received a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1962 to photograph the civil rights movement. The Museum of Modern Art gave him a one-man show in 1963 to exhibit his essays.

In 1966, Davidson received his first grant from the National Endowment of the Arts and spent two years photographing one block in New York City. The photographs were published as a book in 1970 and given an exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art.

Davidson's film "Living Off the Land" was shown on CBS and received the Critics Award from the American Film Institute. His latest film, "Isaac Singer's Nightmare and Mrs. Pupko's Beard," won first prize for fiction at the American film Festival.

Davidson's appearance is part of a series sponsored by the National Endowment of the Arts, the Illinois Arts Council and several campus agencies.

Director uses Chicago theater to discover new aspects of field

By Elizabeth Shipton
Staff Writer

Using an educational as well as a theatrical approach to his directing has made Dennis Zacek successful in Chicago theater. His directing position at The Victory Gardens, a Chicago theater, has given him the opportunity to learn new aspects of theater.

As a visiting artist in the SIU-C Theater Department this week, Zacek has talked with and answered questions from students in theater classes on aspects of the theater.

"I think there is a positive attitude within the department and bright, innovative ideas. I am sure they already know that, but it is good to see when I visit various university theater departments," Zacek said.

Zacek is an associate professor at Northwestern University, on partial leave of absence for about eight years. He has been guest director at the theater departments at Northwestern, Purdue University, and Illinois State University. He received his master's degree and doctoral degree in theater at Northwestern and was head of the Loyola Theater Department. Zacek sees theater becoming more popular with young people.

"As Americans become more aware of the importance of fine arts, there is a larger acceptance of theater students," Zacek said. "Chicago is now No. 2 in the nation with theater opportunities. Ten years ago you wouldn't see any other big city besides New York as the theater center. The fact that each major city has their own repertoire theater shows the attitude has changed and grows in popularity."

The productions that Zacek has been involved with at The Victory Gardens include: "Ties" by Jeffery Sweet, a successful play that was eventually made into an award winning public television production; "Artod," a two year experimental project depicting the last hour of the playwright's life with the use of video screens; and "Clara's Play" by John Olive. Zacek was awarded best director by the Academy of Theater and Friends in Chicago for this production.

Zacek will continue his visit at SIU-C by attending a playwriting class, workshops, the opening of the Theater Department's production of "Blithe Spirit" on Thursday night, and an open forum at 3 p.m. Friday in the Communications Building lounge to answer questions.

Student association to lobby legislators on funds, sales ban

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

Members of the Illinois Student Association, including about 20 SIU-C students, will travel to Springfield Wednesday to lobby legislators on issues affecting students.

Bill Fuller, president of the ISA and a student at SIU-C, said about 100 students from the 11 institutions represented by the ISA will participate in the group's annual Lobby Day.

Speaker of the House Michael Madigan will be among legislators speaking to ISA students, Fuller said. He also said the SIU-C group was trying to make appointments with legislators from Southern Illinois.

Fuller said the students intend to lobby strongly against Senate Bill 1470, which would prohibit public institutions from selling certain items that would be in competition with local retail merchants.

Students will also attend committee meetings, including the powerful Appropriations II Committee, chaired by retiring State Sen. Ken Buzbee, D-Makanda. Fuller said the group plans to ask legislators to support increased funding for state universities.

The purpose of Lobby Day is to make legislators aware of how students feel about issues affecting them, Fuller said.

"In the past students have not been well represented in the Legislature," Fuller said, adding that in its four-year existence the ISA has tried to change this situation by supporting causes such as voter registration drives on campuses.

"We're going to significantly increase the voice we do have," Fuller said. "Legislators will give us a little more respect" if they know that students will be a force in elections.

Nuclear war aftereffects called worse than blast

By Philip Florini
Staff Writer

A full-scale nuclear exchange between the two superpowers would kill 2 billion people within two weeks and possibly the rest of the human race would die from a "nuclear winter" that would exist for about a year, a University of Illinois physicist said.

Fred K. Lamb, a professor at U of I, said that a worst-case scenario of the aftereffects of a global nuclear exchange shows that within a two-week period, the ozone levels could cause a "severe sunburn" and kill a human being within a half-hour.

Lamb conducted a workshop on nuclear winter as part of a conference titled "The Future of Our Planet: A Nuclear War Conference," held Friday and Saturday in the Student Center and sponsored by the Mid-America Peace Project.

Lamb contended that many effects of a nuclear war have policy implications questioning a "successful first strike" by either the United States or the Soviet Union.

"A first strike against land-based missiles would be basic to cause nuclear winters. An act of attacking silos would be suicidal," he said, "but I doubt if the policymakers understand that at the present."

He said that Third World countries, the "bystanders" of a nuclear exchange, would suffer the same consequences.

Scenarios for studying nuclear winter conditions are based on a 5,000 megaton nuclear exchange, which Lamb called a "restrained nuclear war," representing 38 percent of the strategic warheads housed in Soviet Union and U.S. missile silos.

Lamb said, however, that large climatic effects could stem from a smaller nuclear exchange if urban areas are targeted. A 100 megaton exchange could devastate and burn several hundred of the world's major cities.

Ironically, he said that a smaller megaton explosion could be just as dangerous because large amounts of fallout stay close to the ground and are not thrown out into the atmosphere. Such an explosion would "cut down on the soot but enhance radioactivity," he said.

Fred Lamb

The stem of the mushroom of a 400 megaton explosion would rise as high as four miles, but spread more fallout closer to the earth's surface than a 5,000 megaton exchange, which would shoot radioactive dust farther into the atmosphere.

A nuclear winter could have a major impact on the climate and the survivors of a nuclear exchange by creating darkness that would last weeks at a time and subfreezing land temperatures that would last for several months.

Lamb said the dust and smoke produced by nuclear detonations settles in the atmosphere, greatly reducing the amount of sunlight that heats the earth. Radioactive levels near the ground would be very high, he said.

"Photosynthesis in most plants would cease altogether, and the other plants would freeze from the low temperatures and die, and consequently, most mammals would die," he said. "Temperatures above freezing wouldn't return for at least a year."

Temperatures over mountains, however, would rise. Lamb said a Soviet study shows that massive continental flooding would occur as snow melts on mountaintops.

The sooty smoke that would remain in the atmosphere would cause "firestorms," he said, which would have high density levels despite the very low land temperatures. The cold air, which also carries poisonous materials, would be sucked in by these fires, thereby increasing the danger level in urban areas.

"Forest fires could burn for several weeks," he said, "and oil fires for several months, perhaps years."

But Lamb said he disagrees with astronomer Carl Sagan's "threshold" theory, which contends that a nuclear winter would occur only if at least a 100 megaton explosion were triggered.

Fuzztones to rock at Springfest

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

If the Fuzztones have a message for their audience, it's to have some fun, go wild and drink some beer. That attitude, according to Deb O'Nair, who plays keyboards for the psychedelic rock group from New York, is what's missing from rock music.

"There's too much of a commercial trend in music today," O'Nair said in a recent phone interview. "The music industry is afraid of change and only wants safe music."

The Fuzztones will be appearing on the steps of Shryock Auditorium at 7 p.m. Saturday as part of Springfest.

Of all the rock music that came out of the '60s — acid, country, folk, pop — one brand that didn't receive quite as much publicity, acceptance or fanfare as the others was the psychedelic garage rock that sneaked onto the scene in the mid-'60s. It lasted only a few years before quietly fading from the scene.

Groups playing this music, such as the Blues Magoos, the Electric Prunes and the Chocolate Watch Band, served as an influence for the punk era of the late '70s — a movement that generated groups such as the Sex Pistols, the Dead Boys and the Ramones.

In the last few years there has been a revival on the East and West coasts of psychedelic rock — dubbed "psycho-punk" or "garage punk."

O'Nair said there were different types of psychedelic rock, and that garage punk was not to be confused with the music of Jimi Hendrix or other heavy metal influencers.

"This is very rough and gritty stuff. It's wild and high energy music," O'Nair said.

The group, which includes lead vocalist and songwriter Rudi Protrudi, O'Nair on keyboards, Elan Portnoy on guitar, Michael J. on bass and I-Guy on drums, formed in the summer of 1981. It has received favorable reviews in the New York Times, the Washington Post and Billboard magazine after being featured on two psychedelic rock compilation albums.

Supreme Court scrutinizes constitutionality of draft-aid law

WASHINGTON (AP) — An apparently sympathetic Supreme Court was told Monday the government is not inflicting unconstitutional punishment by denying federal aid to male college students who fail to register for the draft.

Solicitor General Rex Lee defended a 1982 law disqualifying non-registrants from receiving aid. He said the law legitimately was designed to coax students to register with the Selective Service.

A federal judge in 1982 declared the law unconstitutional, ruling it was an unlawful form of punishment imposed by Congress.

Lee, the government's chief courtroom lawyer, said the purpose of the law was "not to catch wrongdoers, but to increase the number (of young men) on the registration rolls."

He added that the law appears to be working. More than 300,000 students who previously had failed to sign for the draft have done so since the act was passed, Lee said.

Draft registration — but not actual conscription — was reinstated in 1980 under a law signed by President Jimmy Carter. Some 11 million young men, about 97 percent of those eligible, have registered since then, the Selective Service System says.

The law requires all male citizens and resident aliens born after Jan. 1, 1963, and between ages 18 and 26 to sign up with Selective Service.

The law, enacted in the aftermath of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, is designed to make it easier to draft young men if that becomes necessary.

The justices had few questions for Lee. But they shot queries etched in obvious skepticism at his adversary, William J. Keppel of the Minneapolis Public Interest Research Group.

The group successfully challenged the law in a federal trial court two years ago.

While the tone of the justices' questions during oral argument sessions does not always reflect a case's eventual outcome, Monday's session was unusually one-sided.

When Keppel argued that "we're cutting these young men off from proceeding" with their college education, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger suggested that the students have it within their own power to avoid losing federal aid by registering for the draft.

"The punishment can be easily avoided, can it not?" he asked.

Justice William J. Brennan, focusing on another of Keppel's arguments, said he could not see how any student was being compelled to testify against himself by registering for the draft.

"Where's the compulsion?" said Brennan. "It's difficult to see the compulsion."

Justice John Paul Stevens, echoing Brennan, said "I don't understand" how a student is forced to testify against himself by complying with the registration law.

Keppel contended that students expose themselves to federal prosecution — and up to five years in prison — if they decide more than 30 days after turning 18 that they need the federal aid and then register. The draft registration law requires male students to sign up within 30 days of their 18th birthday.

Ed Hogan proud of his career, officers

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

Police Chief Ed Hogan discusses his career in law enforcement and his views on the Carbondale Police Department.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan is proud of his office. It is large, roomy, carpeted, paneled and filled with mementos from his 33-year career in law enforcement.

His office has always been large and roomy, but the carpet, paneling and mementos are all his own.

"Did this all myself, with my own money," he said as he kicks back in his chair and runs his hands through his steel-gray hair. "But don't print that."

Hogan may be modest about the physical improvements he's made to his office, but he's proud of the office of Carbondale police chief. And he is proud of his department.

"We have a hell of a fine group of men and women," he said. "But we make mistakes occasionally. We're human, too. We just hope the mistakes we make are mistakes of omission, and not commission."

Hogan and his department have been accused of mistakes of commission recently. The Carbondale chapter of the NAACP claims the police department has been harassing blacks. It is a charge Hogan emphatically denies.

"These are things we have to expect because of the nature of our business," he said. "The reports will be filed and we will get a clean bill of health. Then there will be a little more laughter in the halls around here."

The state Department of Criminal Investigation's probe of the NAACP allegations is expected to be completed within three weeks.

While it would seem logical for a police department to be secretive about its operation, as many departments are, Hogan views a "closed" department as detrimental to law enforcement because it is perceived as being dirty.

"We invite the media in," he said, "because if a problem exists, the people know the media will expose it."

Hogan earned his stripes on the streets of St. Louis working in minority neighborhoods. After 20 years he came to Carbondale. He arrived in time for the student riots of the early 1970s, to a police department where the chief's office had a revolving door.

In 1974, Chief Joe Dankin resigned because of a dispute with City Manager Carroll Fry. Hogan acted as chief until George Kennedy was hired for the position.

But Kennedy also stepped down because of controversy. He resigned after being accused of stealing money that was to be used as evidence. He was later cleared of the charges.

"When I took over (in 1977), it was a demoralized unit," Kennedy had shut the media out. So we had a rapid change of personnel. We replaced 40 percent of our personnel in the first two years. We hired better educated, better trained individuals who were more able to present themselves positively to the public."

Hogan feels that his "open-up" policy was successful.

"The officers have accepted this policy," he said. "As a result I believe the community has a relatively high regard for the Carbondale Police Department."

But Hogan said there are still negative aspects of police work — traffic tickets, underage drinker arrests and animal control — that will always be bad for public relations.

"We're caught in the middle" between those who make the law and those who prosecute, he said. "All we can do is enforce the law."

But despite the negative aspects, Hogan said "the department has a good rapport and an excellent relationship with the community and the University.

"This is a very cosmopolitan community," he said. "Carbondale is an oasis of liberalism in a very conservative area. Some of my own officers think we are too liberal. But we have to deal with a very diverse community with very diverse interests, and we try to balance them as best we can."

EPA official opposes incineration of toxins in Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing to public concern, an Environmental Protection Agency official recommended Monday that permits not be issued yet for the regular burning of toxic wastes aboard ships in the Gulf of Mexico.

Steve Schatzow, director of EPA's office of water regulations and standards, recommended to Jack E. Ravan, assistant EPA administrator for water programs, that the firm applying to burn wastes in the Gulf be issued four single-voage research permits, two for each of its two ships.

Neither those permits nor general permits should be issued until the state of Alabama certifies that the burning will be consistent with its plans to protect its coastline, and no general permits should be issued until EPA promulgates general regulations, Schatzow told Ravan.

Following test burns in 1974, 1976, 1977 and 1982, Chemical Waste Management Inc. of Oak Park had sought permission to burn wastes from its landfill at Emelle, Ala., aboard its ships Vulcanus I and Vulcanus II at a site some 200 miles south of Lake Charles, La., and 195 miles east of Brownsville, Texas. The wastes would be loaded aboard ship at Chickasaw, Ala., near Mobile, a sea voyage of about 350 miles from the burn site.

Alabama Attorney General Charles Graddick will ask the state Department of Environmental Management to deny permission to load the ships, and Graddick will ask EPA not to issue permits for research burning, said Graddick's spokeswoman, Janie Nobles, in Montgomery.

"We are against any permit that's going to bring this stuff through Chickasaw and around our kids, our homes and our schools," said Collette King, leader of a citizen's opposition group in Chickasaw.

The company has 2.5 million gallons of waste at Emelle and cannot bring in more because it has been there longer than the year the state allows. Research permits would allow it to burn 3.3 million gallons.

When waste is incinerated at sea, scrubbers to remove soot and hydrochloric and other acids from stack gases are not required. Schatzow said the gases fall to the sea near the ship, and the ocean quickly neutralizes the acids.

EPA's public hearings in Texas and Alabama last year brought forth some 2,000 comments, Schatzow noted.

From the comments of the public and members of Congress, "I am convinced that prior to initiating an operational ocean incineration program, EPA must build a greater level of public confidence that the agency is taking a rigorous, carefully reasoned approach in evaluating the disposal of liquid hazardous wastes," Schatzow wrote.

In six previous test burns of waste containing liquid polychlorinated biphenyls, a long-lived toxin from a no-longer-manufactured electrical insulator, EPA was unable to find any PCBs in the smokestack gases, but also was unable to demonstrate that the burning destroyed at least 99.9999 percent of the PCBs, the standard that incinerators on land must meet.

EPA's analytical methods were criticized, and the new research program should meet those criticisms, Schatzow said.

Ravan has 30 days to make his decision, but Alabama has six months from Feb. 14, the date Chemical Waste Management requested the determination, to decide whether to oppose ocean burning.

High Court justice says court not concerned with individuals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens on Monday criticized his brethren with stinging language, saying the nation's highest court too often is "concerned with vindicating the will of the majority and less interested in its role as a protector of the individual's constitutional rights."

Stevens rebuked a six-justice majority decision that reinstated a Florida man's sexual battery conviction.

A state appeals court had reversed John Scott Meyers' conviction, ruling that police illegally searched his car after taking it into custody.

Monday's decision, reached without full briefing or oral arguments, said the state court misread previous Supreme Court decisions on automobile searches.

In a dissenting opinion, Stevens acknowledged that the state court was wrong.

Islanders seeking to make NHL history

MONTREAL (AP) — This spring, the New York Islanders are chasing more than their fifth straight Stanley Cup. They are chasing history.

If the Islanders manage to capture the National Hockey League title again this year, they could lay claim to being the greatest hockey team of all time. Only the 1956-60 Montreal Canadiens have skated off with the championship five consecutive years and they needed to win only 10 postseason series to do so. The Islanders already have won an NHL-record 18.

Series No. 19 begins Tuesday night against — who else? — the Canadiens.

"The fact that Montreal has the record has some bearing," said Canadiens defenseman Larry Robinson, a tower of strength and mobility in these playoffs after two lackluster seasons and four mediocre playoff performances during New York's reign. "But a lot of guys, including myself, don't remember anything" — but the Canadiens team that set the record.

"It isn't just the fact that we want to stop them from winning their fifth straight, but (we want) to win the Cup ourselves and, if we don't beat the Islanders, we don't go any farther."

This is the first time since they finished off a run of four straight NHL titles that the Canadiens have gotten to the Stanley Cup's Final Four.

They've done so with a patient, tight-checking style backed by some superb work by rookie goalie Steve Penney.

Still, this is a team that finished the regular season 35-40-5 and lost all its matches with the Islanders, surrendering seven goals in each defeat.

"This is the tradition of the past against the tradition of now," said New York's Bob Bourne, who returns to the lineup from a slight shoulder separation

"It's more than just a series," added Bourne. "It's history unfolding again. If Montreal beats us, we're handing it back to them. But if we win, we can say we beat Montreal."

The most important player for the Islanders might be goalie Billy Smith. Most Valuable Player of last year's playoffs and who has been sensational again this year.

Men golfers finish 5th in Valley

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's golf team finished a disappointing fifth over the weekend at the Missouri Valley Conference championships in Wichita, Kan.

The Salukis finished with a score of 1,284. Wichita State, playing on its home course, shot a 1,227 to take first. Bradley, Illinois State and Tulsa finished third, fourth and fifth.

The individual winner was Bradley's Dave Wettlaufer. Wettlaufer shot a 302 to lead the Braves to their second-place finish.

John Schaefer and Jay Sala were the top Saluki shooters.

Both finished with 311 scores to tie for 11th place. Tom Jones shot a 329, J.D. Tomlinson a 332 and Scott Briggs a 335 to round out the Saluki scoring.

Cochair Mary Beth McGirr was unhappy with her team's performance.

"I was disappointed," McGirr said. "We were actually favored to be the co-favorite and we came out fifth."

McGirr said she is having trouble getting everyone on the roster to playing up to their potential.

"Schaefer and Sala have been playing well," McGirr said, "but I'm having trouble with consistency throughout the lineup." While Schaefer has been playing well, McGirr said that the other seniors, Briggs and Jones, are not. Instead of relying on them for good outings, McGirr said she has begun to depend more on the underclassmen, particularly Sala and Tomlinson.

SIU-C will participate in two tournaments during the next week. Thursday and Friday they will compete in the Drake Relays Invitational at Des Moines, Iowa. From April 30 to May 1 the Salukis will be in the Evansville Oak Meadow Invitational at McCuthanville, Ind.

Player cuts narrow cage field for U.S. Olympic teams' hopefuls

By the Associated Press

Nine guards joined All-America players Patrick Ewing, Wayman Tisdale, Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins among the final 20 players chosen Monday to compete for the U.S. Olympic men's basketball team.

In three days, U.S. Olympic women's basketball Coach Pat Summitt slashed the number of hopefuls from 106 to 21.

The final group from which Coach Bobby Knight will pick the team included the biggest names at a week of trials at Indiana University, but several other prominent players were missing, including seven on the United States' Gold Medal team at last summer's Pan American Games in Caracas, Venezuela.

Longshots who survived included 6-11 center Tim McCormick of Michigan, one of the last players invited to the trials; 6-2 guard Terry Porter of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, who was given another chance after missing the final weekend with the chicken pox.

Knight originally had planned to keep only 16 to 18 players, but he said "play was so strong, particularly in the guard area, that instead of trying to establish guards to debate, we'll establish the guards through play."

Like Knight, Summitt was in a hurry on Monday, when she was scheduled to announce the final cut and name her 12 starters and alternates.

Instead, Summitt delayed the decision at least a week, naming the 17 finalists who'll be members of the team, but refraining from choosing her starters.

"I'm in no rush to name the 12 final players," Summitt said. "We selected the best individuals who possess the offensive and defensive skills to play in our team concept."

Cheryl Miller and Pam McGee, from champion Southern Cal. and Lea Henry and Cindy Noble of Tennessee highlight the field of finalists. Other finalists are Gathy Boswell of Illinois State and Denise Curry of UCLA.

MUST Rent Summer to obtain for fall
Even if you're not going to be here for summer, it would be cheaper in the long run to rent the house and let it go empty.
Spring a summer house saves you the expense of:
1. Furniture storage
2. The expense of coming back to look for a place (travel) and the time to find and rent money from time off from work.
3. Lost work from coming back to work early to get your house set up (if you have a summer house, you can stay up north & work until the last day of your summer break.)
Add Travel, Storage and lost work time and if more than equals your share of summer rent.

Nets, Nuggets wait to clinch playoff series

By The Associated Press
The New Jersey Nets and Denver Nuggets will have to wait one more game before completing what they hope will be major upsets in the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Nets won two in a row in Philadelphia before the 76ers, the NBA's defending champions, fought back Sunday in New Jersey, winning 108-100 to stay alive in the best-of-five series.

And Denver slipped past Utah 121-117 Sunday to take a 2-1 lead over the Jazz, the Midwest Division champions. The Nuggets, like the Nets, can clinch their first-round series at home Tuesday night.

In the rest of the playoffs, Los Angeles, having beaten Kansas City three in a row in the opening round, awaits the winner of the Seattle-Dallas series that continues Tuesday night in Seattle. Phoenix is host to Portland with the Suns holding a 2-1 lead. Boston is at Washington with the Celtics leading 2-1, and Milwaukee is at Atlanta with the Bucks up 2-1. The other first-round series resumes in New York Wednesday night with the Knicks leading Detroit 2-1.

Otis Birdsong of New Jersey feels the Nets could be putting too much pressure on themselves.

"We don't shoot badly on the road. But we come home, miss a couple and feel we've let the fans down. Then the next time we put more pressure on ourselves," he said after sinking just three of 13 field-goal attempts and one of four foul shots. "We're up 2-1 and playing at home. God forbid something happens and we lose, we've still got another game."

Seattle leads its best-of-five series against Dallas 2-1 and, as Mavericks Coach Dick Motta says, "It is now down to the bread's on the table — who wants to go get it the most."

Rolando Blackman has averaged 24.6 points against Seattle and teammate Mark Aguirre has averaged 24 points.

"We've just got to adjust to what Seattle is doing," said Blackman. "They've been making the most of its opportunities and we haven't."

"We've really turned things around these last two months," says Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "Our guys are playing with a great deal of confidence. We're fighting for our playoff lives."

"We're not playing consistent basketball," says Jack Ramsay, coach of the Trail Blazers. "We've got to defend people well throughout the game, in the last two minutes as well as the first 46."

Boston's Cornbread Maxwell predicts things could get out of hand if the Celtics go to a fifth game to eliminate Washington.

"They're the most physical team in the league," he said of the Bullets.

But Coach Gene Shue of Washington said he didn't see anything unusual on the court, contending the Celtics' comments were merely a way "to get their team ready."

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said he wasn't surprised Atlanta avoided elimination by beating the Bucks 103-94 last Saturday.

Full Tilt finishes 4th in Region

By Steve Koulos Staff Writer

Full-Tilt, the SIUC ultimate frisbee team, played well through most of the Central Region College Ultimate Frisbee Championships, but ran out of gas on Sunday and dropped its last two games in the tournament.

Full-Tilt, which hosted the 11-team tournament that was won by the Kansas HorrorZontals, compiled a 4-1 record in pool play to advance to the semifinals. In pool play, it defeated Michigan 13-9, Oberlin College 13-1, Earlham College 13-7, and Illinois State 13-2. Its lone loss was against Ohio 13-9.

But in the semifinals, Full-Tilt blew an early 5-1 lead against Michigan State and lost, 17-14.

"We played a heck of a game against Michigan State," said Full-Tilt quarterback Dave Miller. "Both teams made a lot of mental errors but we didn't capitalize on their mistakes. In the second half we played more conservative and we had a little less forward movement on offense."

The loss dropped Full-Tilt into the third-place game and, for the second time in the tournament, they fell to Ohio, 18-15. Full-Tilt was leading 10-8 early in the second half before Ohio scored five straight points to take control of the game.

Miller thought the players suffered a letdown after the loss to Michigan State because they knew they couldn't qualify for the nationals. Only the top two finishers of the tournament could advance to the nationals in Boston on May 11-12.

In the championship game, the Kansas HorrorZontals crushed Michigan State, 18-6. The HorrorZontals gained revenge after suffering their only loss in the tournament to Michigan in pool play, 13-12.

The tournament is not officially over because Michigan State and Ohio, which each have one loss, have to play for second place. They couldn't get the game in Sunday because of darkness so they will play at Purdue for the night to advance to the nationals.

Moseby's 4 RBI leads Toronto

TORONTO (AP) — Lloyd Moseby drove in four runs and George Bell cracked a two-run homer to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to an 8-5 victory over the Seattle Mariners Monday.

Dave Stieb, 3-0, worked 7 1/3 innings, giving up eight hits, including an eighth-inning home run to Gorman Thomas. Roy Lee Jackson finished up, earning his second save.

Trailing 4-1, the Blue Jays scored four runs in the fifth. Toronto loaded the bases on singles by Buck Martinez and Alfredo Griffin and a hit batsman, Damaso Garcia. Moseby cleared the bases with his double and Dave Collins singled him in to put Toronto ahead 7-4.

The Mariners led 1-0 after the first when Putnam doubled home Davis. They upped the lead to 2-0 in the second on Bob Tierney's RBI single.

SIU-C's No. 6 singles player Steve Quaynor made it to the semifinals of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament before being ousted in straight sets.

Men claim 4th place in Valley as doubles team wins crown

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's tennis team finished fourth in the Missouri Valley Conference championships last weekend at Wichita, Kan.

The Salukis' No. 1 doubles team of Per Wadmark and Lars Nilsson won the Valley's doubles title. With the title, the two have a shot at gaining a bid to the NCAA tennis championships in mid-May, Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre said.

"Wadmark and Nilsson might have a chance based on their conference championship at No. 1 doubles to make the tournament," LeFevre said.

SIU-C, with 57 points, finished far behind winner Wichita State, 96 points, and West Texas State, 75 points, but just missed taking third. Tulsa ended third with 63 points.

After the Salukis finished the season with a 4-17 record, LeFevre said the Valley coaches didn't expect his squad to perform well at the tournament.

"All the coaches there were astonished with our finish based on our record," LeFevre said.

The Salukis had seven entries in the nine semifinals. Only Nilsson at No. 3 singles and the No. 3 doubles team of Paul Rasch and Steve Quaynor failed to make the semifinals. Both, however, won the consolation titles.

Wadmark and Nilsson won three of four doubles matches in straight sets, extending to three sets only against No. 1 seed Simon Norman and Andy Castle 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In the doubles final, Wadmark and Nilsson had a rough time winning the title against Neil Smith and Barry Mills of Tulsa. Both sets were won by 7-6 scores, with the tiebreakers at 8-6, 10-8.

"I didn't think they would win the title and neither did anybody else," LeFevre said.

Wadmark claimed second at No. 1 singles by winning three matches before falling to Wichita State's Dale Houston 7-6, 6-2 in the final.

Gabriel Coch (No. 2 singles), Chris Visconti (No. 4 singles), Rasch (No. 5 singles), Quaynor (No. 6 singles), and Visconti and Coch (No. 2 doubles) all lost in the semifinals.

ting roles. He was scheduled to replace the injured Jay Bellissimo last weekend in the Wichita State series, but the games were washed out by rain.

SALUKI NOTES: The rain-plagued Salukis travel to Evansville (24-17) Tuesday to face the Aces in a 1:30 p.m. double-header, then return home to face Eastern Illinois in a twin-bill Wednesday. Both double-headers are non-conference games. MVC action resumes this Saturday and Sunday when the Salukis take on Creighton at Abe Martin Field...At Evansville, the 11-16 Salukis will probably face right-handers Jim Riggins (5-5, 2.96) and Randy Chapman (4-1, 4.35). The Aces' pitching (4.22) and defense have been their strong suits thus far. Their fielding percentage is .964 SIU-C's is .967...Greg Wargen (.397), Tom Weinzapfel (.343), Ty Chiesa (.320) and Ron Kremer (seven home runs, 35 RBI) lead the Aces' offensive attack. Evansville has won seven of its last 10 but has lost three of its last four. The rainouts at Wichita probably hurt the Shockers more than SIU-C. Wichita is 1-5 in the MVC, and the Saluki series was WSU's last scheduled home series. The Salukis finish the MVC with home weekend series' against Creighton and Indiana State...A rain cloud seems to follow the Salukis wherever they go. Wichita has sunny skies all week until the Salukis arrived. When they left town Sunday morning, the sun reappeared after two days of steady rain.

After leading the Salukis last year with 52 solo and 160 total tackles, Fabray Collins has been a disappointment to Dorr. A lack of hustle and not living up to the potential Dorr thinks he has has not sat too well with the first-year coach. Rick Spielman, who began last season as one of the team's top four quarterbacks, was moved from outside linebacker to inside linebacker, where he has moved ahead of Collins on the depth chart.

SIU-C's Mark Wooden, a converted catcher, has emerged as the Salukis' top relief pitcher this season.

Baseball Salukis find a bullpen ace

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

Mark Wooden just looks like a relief pitcher.

Picture a 6-foot-1, 212-pound frame hoofing in from the Saluki bullpen to preserve an SIU-C lead. He quickly takes his warm-up tosses, pops the ball into his glove a couple of times while circling the mound, climbs the hill, tugs hard at the bill of his cap, and starts throwing strikes.

The Salukis' Canadian hurler likes his relief role.

"When I relieve, I pitch better," he says. "I like coming into the tough situations."

Four times Wooden has collected a save, and he leads the Missouri Valley Conference. His win-loss record is 0-3, and his earned run average is 5.71. One bad outing at David Lipscomb, where he was tagged for five runs in one-third of an inning, is largely responsible for his hefty ERA.

"With the exception of that outing, he's done a creditable job," said pitching coach Jerry Green. "Take that third of an inning off his record and his ERA would be fine (about 3.00)."

Green says a relief pitcher has to have a special disposition to be successful, and Wooden has it.

"You have to be ready to pitch in a hurry both physically and mentally," Green says. "You have to come in with the game on the line. Wooden likes that kind of a challenge."

A native of Windsor, Ontario, Wooden was discovered by Coach Ichy Jones last summer in Caracas, Venezuela. Jones saw Wooden pitching for the Canadian national team in the Pan American Games. In a rare starting stint, the big right-hander fired a two-hitter against Venezuela.

That was good enough for Jones. Wooden, whose sub-3.00 ERA was tops among Canada's pitchers, was informed by his pitching coach, Dick Groach, that he'd be contacted by Jones about coming to SIU-C. He considered feelers from Louisiana State, Michigan State and Georgia State before deciding on SIU-C last fall.

This summer, he'll return to the Canadian team, this time to pitch in the Pan American Games in Amsterdam, Holland. Among the teams he'll pitch against are Japan and all-star teams from the Big Ten and Pacific 10 conferences.

Wooden is looking forward to the summer. "It's good baseball and you get to travel. You can see the world, for free."

A catcher until five years ago, Wooden followed the footsteps of his father and started pitching. Although his dad pitched in the Boston Red Sox organization, Wooden said he didn't adhere to any fatherly advice.

"Now I'm finding out what he told me was true," Wooden says. "My mechanics were terrible. I didn't bend. I was just stubborn. My dad told me, 'You'll find out.'"

He did find out, he says, under the tutelage of Groach and Green.

Because of SIU-C's 11 rainouts, Wooden has pitched only 17 innings in 12 appearances. Two were in star-

USFL will fold as did other upstart leagues

The United States Football League will learn, just like the World Football League, the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association did before it, that it doesn't pay to start a new league when there is a competitive, solid league already in action.

The USFL has few positive factors in its favor and many negative ones.

To establish itself, the USFL needed money. However, the big bucks couldn't come from the owners, who had to figure they were going to take one of the reddest baths in history, but it had to come from an outside source.

The league got lucky. ABC, eager for some halfway decent entertainment in the spring that could compete against NCAA basketball, is paying the USFL an astronomical amount of money to gain the rights to televise second-rate games throughout its season.

"Instant 'credibility'" was the term spoken by USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons and other league officials after signing the ABC contract. They should have called it instant money and left it at that. Money doesn't give a league any more credibility than another.

Money helps, but to have credibility you have to have quality. In the USFL's case, quality means quality players. Signing Herschel Walker gave the league a quality player, stealing possibly the National Football League's No. 1 draft pick a year before he was eligible.

From the Press Box

With Walker, the league gained quality at the expense of credibility. Walker was just a junior when he signed. Under NFL rules, Walker would not have been eligible for another year. The USFL had no rules governing undergraduate signings at the time, and it still doesn't have much of one. It signed Marcus Dupree, a two-time college dropout, at the beginning of the season.

The league has signed some quality players, notably former Nebraska Cornhusker and 1983 Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier, and Brigham Young's All-America quarterback Steve Young.

Young, however, has been backtracking as of late. Last Wednesday he burned the USFL when he said the league would fold "sooner than most people think." Now he's saying that he meant the USFL would become competitive enough to force the NFL to take on at least four or five teams. Young also said his stay in the USFL is just "a little stopover time" until he gets to the NFL.

The Los Angeles Express is paying Young a reported $4 million. With some of that money, now the USFL should expect Young to begin taking lessons about controlling his remarks. When the league's highest paid player, and one of its most popular players because of his contract, starts talking about the demise of the league, then something has to be wrong with the USFL.

And there is something wrong with the USFL. Its football teams are boring to watch, and interest in the league is pretty much a dead issue, unless you live in Michigan where the Panthers play, or maybe New Jersey, where the Generals are based.

Only die-hard football fans who have only a loser to root for and need a winner have more than a passing interest in the USFL.

If the USFL was really smart, it would move the Chicago Blitz south, maybe just about 100 miles north of Carbondale.

After all, not only are the St. Louis Cardinals a poor team, but so are the Chicago Bears. The Blitz could draw fans from both teams' rooters. Last year, the two teams combined for a mediocre 16-15-1 mark. Since the USFL is pretty mediocre, the Blitz could probably draw just as much interest as the Panthers do in Detroit.

Does it sound unrealistic? The USFL, and unrealistic are synonymous terms.

Dorr's defensive unit shaken with stars gone, hurt, benched

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

The defensive depth chart on the SIU-C football team released late last week barely resembles the lineup that crushed opponents during the Salukis' march to the I-AA title last season.

Although five defensive starters, and possibly a sixth if Kenny Foster receives one more year of eligibility, returned for spring drills, the team is noticeably different from last year. Injuries and maybe a lack of desire from some of the returning starters have propelled last year's backups into the No. 1 men on the chart.

The Saluki defense, the force behind last year's championship drive, led the Missouri Valley Conference in every major category: rushing defense, passing defense, scoring defense and total defense. Only two starters from last year's team have retained starting positions, with just one at the same position.

The special teams, made up of mostly defensive players, allowed just 100 yards on 26 punt returns, and kickoff returns for the Saluki opponents netted an average of only 14.5 yards.

On defense, the lone starter to return to his position is strong safety B.T. Thomas. From the secondary that led the Salukis to a team-record 41 interceptions, Donnell Daniel, Terry Taylor and Greg Shipp have departed. Daniel is on the Chicago Blitz, Taylor is waiting for the National Football League draft where he is being touted as a possible third-round draft pick and Shipp is still waiting after being picked in the United States Football League draft but never signing a contract.

While Taylor and Daniel covered receivers in one of the tightest man-to-man coverages played last year, Thomas and Shipp were free to roam, waiting for the quarterback to throw what seemed to be the inevitable interception.

This year's starting secondary as listed on the depth chart is Thomas, John Field or John Wilson (injured) at free safety, and Carl Martin and Tony Jackson at cornerbacks.

Cornerback Tony Haywood quit the team after being rated No. 1 along with Tony Jackson. Haywood started for one year before seeing two years of action as a top backup.

When new Coach Ray Dorr talks about his secondary, he mentions zones. Two-deep and three-deep zones may be common-place next season. He admits that this year's starting quartet doesn't have the ability to play the tight man-to-man that was employed last year.

"That was an awfully good secondary last year," Dorr said.

Jackson and Field can play well in one-on-one coverage. Dorr says, while Thomas' and Martin's specialties are in the zone.

Dan Wetzel has been moved out of the No. 1 right end position to behind Tony Wrenn.

Eddie Norman, the defensive tackle who recorded nine quarterback sacks last year, was signed by the USFL's Memphis Showboats before the season began. At the time it looked like a good move for Norman. It was a "local boy makes good" story for Norman, a Memphis native.

But within two weeks of signing, Norman was cut from the team. He's back at SIU-C, probably somewhat disillusioned, but waiting to see what happens to him after the NFL draft.

Foster, the other starting defensive tackle, is still awaiting word on whether he will be eligible for next season. The situation depends on how much Foster played in his first season. He will find out May 16.

Mike Brasica has been moved to defensive tackle from end because Dorr said he doesn't want to get caught short if Easter isn't able to play in the fall.

Sterling Haywood, the middle guard who sacked quarterbacks a team-leading 10 times last year, is still hurting from the knee injury he suffered in the I-AA title game. He hasn't been
