Writer professes strong Yiddish ties

By Mary Caudle
Staff Writer

Isaac Bashevis Singer, winner of the 1978 Nobel Prize for Literature, said that his writing, which has been called everything from modern to traditional, is actually simpler than the labels that have been put on it.

Singer, known for his fiction about Jewish life in Eastern Europe and the cities of America, gave a reading of his work Wednesday at Shryock Auditorium as part of the University Honors Lecture Series.

The Polish-born Singer has been called the foremost living writer of Yiddish literature, with his fiction now translated into some 25 languages. "Now what they do to me, I'll never know," Singer said at a press conference Wednesday. His fiction has been especially popular in the Far East.

Most of Singer's writing is about the Jewish life of the pre-World War II era because it is the time period he said he knows best.

"I write about the things where I grew up, and where I feel completely at home," Singer said.

Among his best-known works in the United States are "Alone in a Wild Forest," "Gimpel the Fool and Other Stories," "The Spinoza of Market Street" and "Yentl, the Yeshiva Boy."

Singer, 82, began his literary career as a journalist in Poland, moving to the United States in 1935. His writing originally appeared in the Yiddish-language Jewish Daily Forward. Singer later translated his works to English.

Police shoot at strikers in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police opened deadly barrages of gunfire at crowds of striking black railway workers Wednesday after a back-to-work deadline expired and 16,000 strikers were dismissed. Death estimates ranged from three to eight.

Union lawyer Peter Harris said four striking transport workers and a senior police officer were killed during a protest march near Doornfontein railroad in central Johannesburg.

But a police spokesman said only three blacks were fatally shot by police in that incident after two officers were stabbed and seriously wounded.

"In an act of defense of the other members present, a member of the riot reaction unit opened fire in order to save the lives of the four men who were being attacked," said police Lt. Pierre Louw.

In a separate confrontation in Germiston, 12 miles southeast of Johannesburg, three railway workers were killed when police fired from an office complex where a group of strikers were leaving a union meeting, union officials said. However, police declined to confirm the Germiston shootings.

In another incident in Soweto, the sprawling black township near Johannesburg, police broke up a protest march and fired tear gas at crowds manning makeshift barricades on the first day of a three-day strike by thousands of people supporting a 2-year-old anti-government and rent strike, government officials said.

In Johannesburg, witnesses said hundreds of members of the South African Railways

Children profit from WCIL radiothon

By Tracy Bartoni
Staff Writer

A goal of $30,000 was set for the 11th annual Radiothon sponsored by WCIL FM and AM for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

St. Jude's treats children who have cancer and sponsors research that may lead to a cure.

By 8:00 p.m. Wednesday, phone-in pledges totaled $17,004.

"So far, it's going real well," said Tony Waitekus, WCIL disc jockey and coordinator of the event. "The radiothon seems to be as strong as last year." The radiothon raised $34,097 last year.

The radiothon was held at Mary Lou's Grill, 114 S. Illinois from 6 to 9 a.m. Wednesday, and from 6 a.m. to midnight at the University Mall. About 40 volunteers from Pi Sigma Epsilon fraternity manned the radiothon phones Wednesday night.

"Pledges are coming from the entire listening area," said Richard Bird, program director of WCIL's AM station. "In past drives we've got donations from as far as Missouri and Kentucky."

John Seville, the regional media representative from St. Jude's, said banks, construction companies, restaurants, florists and many other area businesses were donating to St. Jude's. Members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity pledged $333.

"Even if we do not reach the goal, we will come close to it," Seville said. "We expect at least $25,000, which will provide care for one leukemia patient for one year," he said.

Court rules death penalty not discriminatory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A sharply divided Supreme Court, sweeping away the last major legal challenge to the death penalty, ruled Wednesday that capital punishment does not discriminate against blacks.

The long-awaited ruling reaffirmed the court's commitment to the death penalty and sends a message to its foes that further legal efforts to outlaw capital punishment are likely to be fruitless.

The 5-4 decision, affirming the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, also rejects as proof of race discrimination studies showing that blacks who kill whites are the most likely defendants to receive the death penalty.

The case involved a black Georgia man, Warren McCleskey, who was sent to death row for murdering a white Atlanta police officer.

Writing for the majority, Justice Lewis Powell said McCleskey failed to prove that racial prejudice played a part in his sentence.

"He does not deny that he committed a murder in the course of a planned robbery, a crime for which this court has determined that the death penalty may constitutionally be imposed," Powell said.

Joining Powell in the opinion were Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Byron White and Antonin Scalia.

Dissenting from the ruling were Justices William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, Harry Blackmun and John Paul Stevens.

Brennan, who opposes the death penalty in all instances, wrote a pointed dissent in which he said the McCleskey case was a reminder of the days when criminal penalties differed for blacks and whites.

The evidence shows, Brennan said, "that there is a better than even chance in Georgia that race will influence the decision to impose the death penalty. A majority of defendants in white-victim crimes would not have been sentenced to die if their victims had been black.

"Warren McCleskey's evidence confronts us with the subtle and persistent influence of the past," he said. "His

PLO to demote planner of Achille Lauro hijacking

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — The PLO said Wednesday it will demote Mohammed Abu Abbas, the alleged architect of the Achille Lauro hijacking, from its executive committee because, according to Palestinian sources, he does not "fit into the PLO image." He will become general secretary of the Palestine Liberation Front, a part of the PLO. PLO officials said they considered it important to keep Abbas within the organization in order to have some control over his actions.

Korean priests, profs reject election choice

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Priests and professors Wednesday protested President Chun Doo Hwan's decision to choose his successor through an indirect election rather than amend the constitution for a direct popular vote. Fourteen Catholic priests fasted for a second day in a hunger strike in Kwangju, 170 miles south of Seoul, and 27 dissidents started a sit-in at the National Council of Churches building in Seoul. Chun said he plans to step down next February in what would be the first peaceful transfer of power in South Korean history.

Indonesians call for national democracy

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Indonesians vote today in national elections marked by a drop in military support for the ruling party and calls for economic reform in the 21-year rule of President Suharto. Despite careful government controls, the 25-day election campaign brought calls for more democracy and a revival of the memory of fiery former President Sukarno. Full official results are not due until June.

Rare supernova studies rewrite textbooks

TORONTO (UPI) — The Canadian astronomer whose discovery of a rare supernova rocked the scientific community said Wednesday that close observation of the phenomenon is forcing astronomers to revise their teachings on the life and death of stars. Ian Shelton of the University of Toronto, who first spotted the phenomenon Feb. 23 from the school's mountaintop observatory at Las Campanas, Chile, said studies already have knocked down some stellar theories and others are sure to tumble.

House panel delays immunity for CIA officer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The special House committee on Iran voted to grant immunity to former national security adviser John Poindexter Wednesday but delayed action on a former CIA officer at the request of special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh. The House panel, following by a day similar action by its Senate counterpart, voted to seek limited immunity for Poindexter to force him to give his side of the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal before Congress. It also voted immunity for several other minor figures, who committee members would not identify, but delayed action on Thomas Clines, a former CIA station chief in Saigon who Walsh identified as a key figure in his investigation.

Ruling allows drug testing for customs agents

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Service can require employees seeking sensitive jobs to take drug tests, a federal appeals court ruled Tuesday. The opinion issued by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a lower court decision and lifted an injunction that prevented the Customs Service from administering drug tests to job applicants and workers seeking transfers.

Nuclear production is 'invisible industry'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. nuclear warhead production, a "nearly invisible industry," employs more than 90,000 people in a vast complex spread over 13 states with an $8 billion annual budget, a study said Wednesday. The report by the National Resources Defense Council Inc. appeared in the second volume of the Nuclear Weapons Databook. "Unlike the commercial nuclear power industry, the Department of Energy's weapons factories are not required to meet stringent environmental standards for the handling of radioactive materials and chemicals," said Robert Norris, one of four authors of the study.

Prenatal lead exposure hazardous for babies

BOSTON (UPI) — Pregnant women may be exposed to enough lead in the home and other seemingly innocuous settings to adversely affect the mental development of their babies, Harvard researchers said Wednesday. In the first reported study to examine the effect of prenatal lead exposure, researchers found fetuses exposed to lead levels that are within federal guidelines for young children scored low on IQ-like tests in their first two years of life.

Coordinator sees ministry as uniting cultures

By Ellen Leong
Student Writer

Lora Blackwell would rather "wear out than rust out." This aptly describes her Christian work commitment as she builds relationships with international students at SIU-C.

Her office at the Baptist Student Center is bright and airy with sunlight filtering through a large window. One side of the wall is covered with a huge world map, on which little red flags with foreign names that belong to international students she has befriended are placed. An adjacent wall sports a poster that says "Be Happy."

Two years ago, the state Baptist Student Union secretary asked Blackwell if she would be interested in finding host families for international students at her local BSU.

Blackwell also was asked to be on a committee to discuss projects for expanding the international student ministry. Blackwell accepted the position of international student coordinator in March 1985.

Blackwell's interest in international students has to do with her interest in foreign missions and her knowledge of other cultures.

In her first year of high school, during World War II, two missionaries to China rented a room in her parents' house in Carbondale. As she talked with them, she became increasingly interested in working with people of other cultures.

"Reading about a country and experiencing it are two different things," she said. "It's the personal exchange international students live. Blackwell has befriended students worldwide.

that I enjoy."

In a program Blackwell started, American students conduct conversational English sessions with international students twice a week. She said she wants international students to have opportunities to get to know American students and vice versa.

"If I can help a student understand my country and I, in turn, can understand his, I'll be very glad to do it," she said. "And if enough people do that, somewhere down the line, it's got to make a difference in relationships."

Blackwell did her graduate studies in music education and was a music teacher for 15 years. Although she enjoys working with international students, it has its frustrations.

One is the difficulty of keeping track of students because some change their residence every semester. Another frustration is finding enough time to reach the large number of international students on campus, and then finding enough Americans willing to spend time with them.

Blackwell says she is sad when the students she gets to know well transfer to another college or graduate and return to their own countries. She said she has to be building a network of friendships constantly.

Blackwell, 56, works about 19 hours a week in her office at the Baptist Student Center, leads three hand-bell choirs and sings in her church choir in Anna.

On weekends, she usually is in church, or at student conferences or retreats. Occasionally, she invites students to her home for meals and fellowship.

Blackwell says she doesn't see her present position as a job; to her, it is a ministry.

"It'll become just like another job if you lose the perspective of why you are doing it," she said.

SIU-E tampering with press freedom

THE STAFF OF the Alestle, SIU-E's student newspaper, is under attack. For the past four months, the university administration has been engaged in a campaign of systematic intimidation against the paper. While there has been no outright attempt to censor the paper, the administration's actions certainly contribute to a climate of fear and timidity ill-befitting a newspaper.

The Alestle often has been a thorn in the administration's side. For instance, it recently disclosed that the administration had spent $25,000 entertaining dignitaries from China's Hangzhou Teacher's College, SIU-E's prospective "sister" school. By carrying such reports, the Alestle is performing one of the press's most important roles — that of a "watchdog" against excess, waste and graft.

Apparently, the SIU-E administration doesn't appreciate the Alestle's aggressiveness. The administration did its best to disrupt the paper's investigation of the visit by delaying for more than two months the release of records requested by the Alestle under the Freedom of Information Act.

SHORTLY AFTER THE paper filed its FOIA request, Dean of Students Constance Rockingham informed Alestle editor Deborah Pauly that the paper's advertising representatives could no longer receive sales commissions. Rockingham based her decision on federal guidelines that prohibit commission pay to students participating in the federal work-study program. But according to Pauly, nobody on the Alestle staff receives federal work-study funds.

Abolishing commission pay may decrease the Alestle's ad revenue, since the paper's salespeople have lost a valuable incentive. This can serve only to further the Alestle's financial dependence on the university, which already covers about half of the paper's budget.

Rockingham announced the change just one day after the Alestle ran an article concerning an alleged theft of money from the Alestle by a professional staff member, an article that Rockingham did her best to block. She even went so far as to inform an Alestle staff member that the paper was forbidden from running the story. On the night before the story was published, a university staff member and a university lawyer entered the Alestle newsroom and read the galleys.

Although no changes were made in the story, the mere fact that a university staff member and a lawyer viewed the article prior to publication raises serious ethical questions.

ROCKINGHAM TOLD A DE reporter that the whole issue "has been blown way out of proportion." We don't think so. The SIU-E administration is tampering with a fundamental constitutional right, freedom of the press. We hope that the attempts to turn the Alestle into a tame newspaper printing only what the administration thinks it should print will cease.

Pauly claims that the Alestle's operational policy papers are being rewritten, without the staff's input. Mick Orstrander, the paper's fiscal officer, says they merely are being examined. Whatever the case, the papers should make a clear statement declaring the Alestle's independence from the university administration and its right to be treated in the same manner as any other newspaper.

Quotable Quotes

"We cannot regulate attitude, we cannot regulate performance, we cannot regulate respect. We can have all the regulations in the world, but if the licensee will tolerate poor attitude and doesn't straighten out the problem, it makes our job tough." — Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Lando Zech about three employees of a Pennsylvania nuclear plant caught sleeping on the job.

"The NRC (Nuclear Regulatory Commission) is a very insulated, narrow-minded group of men who are failing to look carefully at the issue of nuclear power safety and who are becoming more and more captives of the industry." — Kathleen Welch, U.S. Public Interest Research Group.

Letters

Destroy sexuality to destroy roots of sexism

A "letter" from Martinette Borwman, Nazi Organization of Women.

I am writing in fervid support of your recent expose of sexual harassment. I would like to emphasize that sexual harassment must be even more frequent than might be supposed. Furthermore, I would like to protest against a form of sexual harassment that is largely overlooked by a male-chauvinist dominated society—namely, dating. This obscene practice is thought to begin with a dominant and cynically repressive (yet undoubtedly personally inadequate and psychologically insecure) male making unsolicited remarks of a personal nature to a pre-selected and innocent female victim.

In certain cases this may lead to touching, groping, squeezing, stroking, pinching, goosing, and even more depraved and inhuman practices of a biological nature best left to the investigation of hardened criminal psychologists. This behavior must not only be stamped out but also eradicated, and I would rabidly endorse the writings of George Orwell who in "1984", just a few short years ago, proposed establishing an Anti-Sex League. George Orwell realized that to stamp out sexism we must go to the root of the evil and stamp out sex itself. As the heroic Dutch held back the cruel seas of the Atlantic with dykes, so must we stem the flood of evil. Or, to quote Winston Churchill: "We will fight them on the streets, we will fight them by the bitches!"

What is needed, and needed NOW, are gigantic prophylactic measures. As Roosevelt might well have said, "A tape recorder in every room and a video camera on every corner." Let us wire all male SIU-E employees for sound and have them permanently monitored!

Let us break the reproductive quanta of personal privacy, freedom of speech, individual liberty and any other pernicious props of a free society whose parliamentary procedures and open trials were introduced by male chauvinist men.

It is time to get to grips with the chauvinist running pigs of the fascist sexist Zionist rapist racist (etc.) whoremongers. — David P. Clark, assistant professor, microbiology.

Hard work, not race, key to media success

Give me a break, Mr. Treadwell. In your April 16 letter, you claimed there was racism on the part of the Department of Radio-Television at this year's banquet. The big question is how many times is the word "racism" going to be used as a crutch in today's society? You claim minorities should do something about the lack of speakers and award-receivers at the ceremony. Fine. How about getting off your butt and getting involved in the department? In the four years I have been active in radio-television at SIU-C, I learned the golden rule for success in the business: do as much as humanly possible in radio-television.

For example, over 50 students were involved in the "Daybreak" show run each morning on Channel 8, WSIU-TV. I can tell you first-hand that we don't get paid for our efforts, and getting up at 4 a.m. to get the show on the air is not pleasant. But only two out of the 50 involved are minorities.

Still wonder why the lack of representation? Go ask K.S. Sitaram about not receiving any awards. This teacher from Indir, has received one of the most prestigious awards given to an instructor.

So stop using that same old boring phrase of "racism" and come up with another excuse... how about, "laziness." — Jeff Wierus, senior, radio-television.

Limited adulthood in America

Today is my 18th birthday.

Living in these great United States, here's what I can now legally do: buy cigarettes and porno mags, get into a Carbondale bar, vote, and go to war to kill people I don't know. Here's what I cannot legally do: have sex with my seventeen year-old girlfriend, live off-campus (unless it's with someone "responsible" like a relative), get a drink in one of those Carbondale bars. That's four things I can do and only three things I can't do. Aren't I lucky? — Eric Pounder, Carbondale.

Correction

A letter that appeared in the April 14 edition of the DE incorrectly identified the leader of Amnesty International's Carbondale chapter. Due to an error in editing, the local AI leader was identified as David Carl. The leader's name is James Carl.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letter of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Business college to induct 10 alumni into Hall of Fame

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

SIU-C's College of Business and Administration will induct 10 more members into its year-old Hall of Fame after its annual awards banquet at 7 p.m. Friday in the Student Center.

Members of the Hall of Fame are selected on the basis of achievements in the business world since graduating from the University at least 10 years ago.

Candidates must hold high-level positions such as vice president or senior manager in business or industry.

Donald W. Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs and board treasurer at SIU-C, is one of the 10 new members of the Hall of Fame.

Wilson, who graduated in 1967 said: "I am very honored and pleased to have been selected. I have nothing but pleasant memories of my education in the College of Business. Obviously our School of Business is one of the very good schools we have at SIU."

Last year COBA inducted 20 charter members to its Hall of Fame.

This year's 10 new members will have their names engraved on the plaque hanging in the main office of Rehn Hall.

Along with Wilson there are nine other graduates being inducted.

Edward Aikman, who graduated in 1948, is the president of United Manufacturer's Service Inc. in Marion.

Chris E. Corrie, who graduated in 1968, is a general practice partner with Coopers and Lybrand, an accounting firm in St. Louis.

Theodor R. Cunningham, who graduated in 1968, is vice president of sales and marketing for Chrysler Corp., Chrysler Canada Ltd.

Walt Cunningham Jr., who graduated in 1966, is owner and president of Cunningham and Associates of Champaign.

Bruce E. Foher, who graduated in 1976, is president and owner of FMR Associates Inc. which is a radio research firm that is headquartered in Tucson, Ariz.

James L. Hall, who graduated in 1976, is president and chief executive officer of the Farmer's State Bank of Illiopolis.

Michael T. McClellan, who graduated in 1966, is a partner-in-charge at Peat Marwick Mitchell and Co.

Darrell J. Olson, who graduated in 1968, is vice president of employee relations at Mirro Corp. which is a division of Newell Co.

George A. Peach, who graduated in 1964, is a circuit attorney in St. Louis.

HE FIRST received notice as a writer with the publication of his novel "The Family Moskat," which was originally issued in 1945 in Yiddish. The English translation was published in 1950.

"Gimpel the Fool and Other Stories," Singer's first collection of short stories, was published in 1957 and earned him a rank among the foremost living storytellers. His stories since have been described as "simple folk tales that portray the dilemma of modern man."

Critics have found his work difficult to categorize, calling him in turn a modernist, a mystic, a realist, and a traditionalist captivated by the past. In response, Singer once told an interviewer: "People always like to put you in a certain category. They would like to feel that a name is already prepared for you in advance. ... I hope one day somebody will find a new name for me, not use the old ones."

SINGER WAS awarded the Nobel Prize for literature in 1978, for his work as a novelist, short story writer and children's author. Awarding him the prize, the Swedish Academy cited Singer for "his impassioned narrative art which, with roots in a Polish-Jewish cultural tradition, brings universal conditions to life."

Singer said that he doesn't have a message in mind when he writes, believing the only role of fiction is entertainment. "Sometimes there is a message, only it comes out by itself. I think the ten commandments will give the people a nice little message, and if it comes out, the people will keep it if the message is good."

HE STILL writes in his native Yiddish language, with much of his work as yet not translated. Yiddish is the language Singer works best with, he said, despite that it has become a "book language," suffering extinction.

"There is a Yiddish revival now," Singer said. "But it's an artificial one, because the young people don't speak it. There has been a small revival in Israel, but those who speak Hebrew consider it a foul language."

Singer opted for writing in Yiddish at the beginning of his literary career, at a time when Hebrew had become a dead language used only in religious capacities. Since, it has become the state language of Israel, while Yiddish is falling to the wayside.

SPeAKING OF Hitler's persecution of the Jews and the state of Israel today, Singer said: "People do remember. The people of Israel should make peace with being a different kind of nation, with a different history. They need to accept that they are different, as others are different."

Singer writes whenever possible and teaches fiction at the University of Miami. "If I have a good day, I write," Singer said. "I will continue to write ... as long as I am living."

and Harbors Workers Union marched from offices of the Council of South African Trade Unions after the expiration of a Wednesday deadline for strikers to return to work.

A police spokesman said protesters attacked officers after the detachment fired tear gas to break up "an illegal gathering." The police then opened fire.

Police armed with shotguns and rifles sealed the area around the labor building and locked it, trapping workers, reporters and some wounded strikers who had fled inside.

"The intention is to crush the (transport) strike and to use as much force as they possibly can ... to smash the strike. The attack was unprovoked and uncalled for," said Jay Naidoo, general secretary of the Council of South African Trade Unions.

Up to 200 people trapped in the building were ordered out and detained after a four-hour police siege, witnesses said. Members of an American television crew were among those held, reporters said.

In Germiston, union official Paul Mkuona told reporters police fired from the second floor of a union office complex at strikers leaving a union meeting. "Two were definitely killed, and possibly three," he said. Union lawyer Peter Harris told reporters three strikers died. An unknown number were wounded, some suffering from police-dog bites, witnesses said.

message is a disturbing one to a society that has formally repudiated racism, and a frustrating one to a nation accustomed to regarding its destiny as the product of its own will."

McCleskey's sentence, handed down by a jury of 11 whites and one black, was viewed by death penalty opponents as the last broad-based legal challenge to capital punishment.

Since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976, public support for it has grown to more than 70 percent and most of the major legal objections — such as execution of the insane — have been resolved.

McCleskey's case was based largely on a controversial study that documents disparities in the application of the death penalty depending on the race of a defendant and his victim.

The study — by University of Iowa law professor David Baldus — examined all Georgia murder convictions from 1973 to 1978 and found 22 percent of blacks who killed whites received the death penalty, compared to 1 percent of blacks who killed blacks, 3 percent of whites who killed blacks and 8 percent of whites who killed whites.

Similar findings have been made in studies of other southern states.

But the Supreme Court said the validity of such studies is questionable, and it noted that to accept such data as proof of discrimination would throw the entire criminal justice system into question.

Weinberger approves new military AIDS policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger signed a new policy Wednesday that would allow military personnel testing positive for the AIDS virus to remain on active duty if they meet certain conditions.

William Mayer, assistant defense secretary for health, said those having the virus, called HIV, must agree in counseling to engage in "maximum safe sex" by using condoms and refrain from contaminating needles.

"If he violates the counsel, he will be punished," Mayer said. Asked if this meant discharge from the service, he said "conceivably it could, yes."

More than 1.7 million personnel have been tested for the AIDS virus and about 2,500 have tested positive — nearly the same ratio that appears in the civilian population. Infected personnel will be advised to inform their wives of the test results, but Mayer acknowledged the Pentagon has no way of legally checking if the spouses have been informed or if condoms have been used.

Until now, the three military services have been free to reassign infected members as they saw fit, Mayer said. He acknowledged that "some military commanders" wanted wider powers than allowed under the new policy.

The policy exempts from testing the nearly 1 million civilians working for the Defense Department, largely because the legality of the matter "is still in the courts," Mayer said.

Soldier who has AIDS virus charged with 1 count of sodomy

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (UPI) — An Army captain testified Tuesday that a subordinate who knew he carried the AIDS virus "played Russian roulette" by having sex with male and female soldiers.

Pfc. Adrian Morris Jr., based at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., was charged March 31 with one count of sodomy, two counts of aggravated assault and two counts of disgracing the military.

The 27-year-old Caseyville Ill. native is in the second day of the military's equivalent of a grand jury investigation to determine whether a court martial is warranted for violating military law by having sex while knowing he had been exposed to AIDS. "What he did was take a revolver with three bullets in it, spin it and played Russian roulette," said Capt. Bernard Kulifay, Morris's company commander.

The captain was referring to a deadly game of chance in which a person spins the cylinder of a revolver holding only one bullet, aims the gun at his head and pulls the trigger.

Morris allegedly had sexual relations with a male soldier and a female soldier, who is his pregnant fiancée.

Kulifay, who brought the original charges, testified there were several soldiers in his command — including Morris — who carried "the human immunodeficiency virus," believed to be a cause of AIDS, a deadly condition that breaks down the body's immune system.

Kulifay said when he first learned of Morris's possible homosexual activity, he charged him with a Chapter 15, which allows the military to discharge the soldier.

When Morris demanded a board of officers to determine if he was a homosexual, Kulifay said he started court martial proceedings.

Defense attorney Edward Rheinheimer challenged Kulifay by saying, "In other words, because he wouldn't admit he was a homosexual, he is in this courtroom today."

U.S. challenges diplomat's arrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States protested Wednesday the detention and interrogation of an American diplomat accused of spying in Poland.

The diplomat, Albert Mueller, identified as a second secretary in the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw, was arrested over the weekend by Polish authorities, who claimed he had been "caught red-handed" while preparing to meet a Polish informant.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said, "The United States has protested vigorously" and refused, as is customary, to comment on the charges of espionage.

Officials said Mueller has left Poland and was not expelled. They gave no details.

Redman said, "We reject any suggestion that the United States seeks to disrupt the step-by-step process in the U.S.-Polish dialogue. We also regret the Polish government has decided to make such spy allegations an important issue in U.S.-Polish relations. That would only serve to make more difficult the sort of meaningful progress in the dialogue the Polish government claims it seeks."

The Polish announcement of the case appeared to link it with allegations made in Paris last week by a Polish military defector that Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski worked closely with the Soviet Union in declaring martial law in 1981 and was "a Soviet general in a Polish uniform."

The Polish government links those charges with the U.S. government, according to U.S. officials.

The Poles also have charged that Mueller and other U.S. diplomats have been in secret contact with "subversives," including members of the Solidarity movement. Redman said that U.S. diplomats in Poland have been in touch with various elements in Soviet society, including members of the trade-union movement.

FAA task force probing controller errors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday he ordered a special agency task force to examine a rising trend in air traffic controller errors and make recommendations on how to reduce them.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen said last year there were 1,200 such errors made by government workers who direct air traffic out of 94 million landings and takeoffs, a drop of 13 percent from the previous year.

But Engen also said that during the first 90 days of 1987 operational errors rose from 264 to 313 — an 18 percent increase — when compared with the first three months of 1986.

"There is an increase," he said. "We will not hide it."

He called the trend a "short-term aberration" and said the FAA is committed to reversing it.

"The record is not perfect, but it is mighty good," Engen said. "Nevertheless, I have ordered a task force group be formed to examine operational errors in detail and to make recommendations aimed at reducing these occurrences."

The 18-person panel will be headed by Bill Hendricks, director of the FAA's Office of Aviation Safety.

The government estimates the probability of being involved in a midair collision is roughly one in 2 million.

Engen, who is leaving the agency in July, told a group of reporters at FAA headquarters he has written to the chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board and urged him "to examine all sides" of air safety.

IU prof to give Neckers talk

The Chicago Opera Theater's production of Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw" will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

The opera tells the story of sibling orphans Miles and Flora, who are taken in by a stern governess. Strange events begin to occur in the house shortly after their arrival, and the governess soon decides the children are haunted by the ghosts of their former caretaker, Peter Quint, and former governess, Miss Jessel.

"The Turn of the Screw" features a score by Benjamin Britten, a 20th-century Briton who has composed operatic renditions of "Billy Budd" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The Chicago Opera Theater, which will be conducted by Patrick Bakman, began 12 years ago with a production of Mozart's "Così fan tutte." Recent productions include "The Barber of Seville," "The Crucible" and "Don Giovanni."

Tickets for "The Turn of the Screw" can be purchased at the Shryock Auditorium Box Office for $11, $9.50 and $8.50.

Man faces fine for assaulting umpire

WESTMINSTER, Calif. (UPI) — A father faced up to six months in jail or a $1,000 fine Wednesday after pleading no contest to assaulting a teenage umpire at his son's baseball game.

Robert Foster, 41, of Garden Grove, was to be sentenced by Orange County Municipal Court Judge Floyd Schenk during a 1:30 p.m. court appearance. The misdemeanor assault offense carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail or a $1,000 fine.

Foster was accused of punching Christopher Ellson, 16, in the chest after heckling the umpire for making unfavorable calls against his 15-year-old son's team during a game last Father's Day.

Foster admitted he rushed onto the Huntington Beach field to confront Ellson in the game between the A's and the Yankees, but initially denied hitting the umpire. The man's son, Bobby, played for the A's, which eventually lost the game.

He later changed his plea to no contest after a bench warrant was issued for his arrest last fall after he failed to appear in court.

The umpire said Foster and his wife, Diane, became verbally abusive after he made two unfavorable calls. After asking the couple to quiet down, Ellson told police he asked them to leave the ballpark.

Moments later, a fight ensued.

Foster maintained Ellson told him to "shut up" several times while he was cheering for his son's team and also made a remark about his wife's "Spanish heritage." He said he charged onto the field after being challenged by Ellson.

Foster said he merely raised his left hand to protect himself when Ellson made a swinging motion at him with his right arm, which was in a cast.

After the scuffle, the teenager said his chest was bruised but had been protected from more serious injuries by his umpire's chestplate.

Police reports show that witnesses at the game supported Ellson's account and said that Foster also threatened to return to the field after the game.

Young courier's fate pondered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Quiet and polite, the nattily dressed 9-year-old probably was judged "ideal for the job" by drug merchants in Nigeria, but then he was arrested carrying heroin worth $9 million lining his steamer trunk.

Now the shy boy, believed to be the youngest drug smuggler ever caught, has been left to fend for himself by his Nigerian family.

The young traveler from Lagos, Nigeria, apparently from a middle-class family, was well-behaved and spoke courteous English to U.S. Customs agents at Kennedy Airport who arrested him last week and confiscated three pounds of heroin from his trunk.

His mother, contacted by authorities, refused to come from Nigeria to bring him home and the boy, who officials said looks "like a little yuppie," was dropped into New York's crowded foster care system.

Officials said they fear that foreign drug dealers now are using unescorted children to carry their goods.

"If you were a narcotics trafficker and wanted to send a lot of drugs through, ideal for the job would be a very well-dressed, well-spoken child who looks like he comes from the kind of money that can travel," Assistant U.S. Attorney Pat Pileggi said. "You want a kid that's going to follow your instructions."

Exhausted from the long flight aboard a British Caledonia airliner from London that originated in Lagos April 16, the boy told officials he was being met by a man he had met just a few times and was to stay overnight in New York before flying to Cleveland to visit an aunt.

Customs agents initially were suspicious because the little boy had such a large trunk, one similar to trunks used by Nigerian drug couriers in the past, Pileggi said.

Frances Momoh, 34, a

Nigerian national who lives in the Bronx, was arrested when he arrived to pick up the boy.

"When he got on the telephone with the aunt in Cleveland, she said she had no idea the boy was coming," Pileggi said.

She said the aunt also said she is bedridden.

The boy is in the limbo of bureaucratic decision making, as officials consider whether to send him to an out-of-town relative, back to Nigeria or place him with a foster family.

The city's Human Resources Administration could not supply information about the boy because officials did not know his name or who was assigned his case, HRA spokeswoman Suzanne Trazoff said.

Pileggi said federal officials did not know whether the boy was in danger because of his capture and were questioning sources in Nigeria.

"Obviously that is something we're concerned about," she said.

8th-grader takes class by gunpoint

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — An eighth-grade girl took her English teacher and 13 students hostage at gunpoint Wednesday at Cholla Elementary School, but released them unharmed and surrendered, police said.

Two classrooms at the school, which has 1,200 students, were evacuated and students in other nearby classrooms were told to get on the floor.

Initial reports said the girl, whose identity was not immediately released, walked into the classroom with a large-caliber gun.

Police negotiators rushed to the school. A short time later, the girl voluntarily surrendered.

Church auction set as fundraiser

The American Baptist Women of the First Baptist Church of Carbondale, 302 W. Main St., will have an auction 7 p.m. Friday.

Over 80 items such as an electric typewriter, a hair cut, a permanent wave and a certificate for a six-month membership to the Oasis Club will be auctioned.

Funds raised at the auction will be used to buy a carpet for the church parlor. The church hopes to raise at least $2,000 from the auction, said the Rev. Robert Noblett, pastor of the church.

Dogs' blood draws protest from activists

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Animal rights activists Wednesday protested the use of "dog-bleeding" by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in which it bleeds condemned dogs and gives the blood to an animal hospital.

The PSPCA, the state's oldest and largest animal-welfare society, expected about 300 protesters at its annual meeting in Philadelphia. PSPCA spokeswoman Elaine Newton spoke.

The 120-year-old group also was "barraged with calls" by animal rights activists concerned that the procedure was inhumane to dogs and unnecessary, she said.

But Newton defended the practice of dog-bleeding, saying it was painless and used only on dogs already scheduled to be put to sleep. She said the blood, donated to the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary school hospital, was used to help keep alive pet dogs that needed blood during operations.

The PSPCA receives about 11 stray dogs a day and is forced to kill nearly 30,000 a year, Newton said. Of those, about 115 large dogs are bled each year.

The dogs feel no pain because they are anaesthetized when two-thirds of their blood is taken and they are put to sleep, Newton said.

"If we didn't do this, (hospitals) would buy animals just to kill for the operations," Newton said.

NIU official denies breaking any laws

DEKALB (UPI) — A Northern Illinois University official has denied any laws were broken last year when the home of then-NIU president Clyde Wingfield was remodeled.

NIU President John La Tourette's denial Tuesday came in the wake of the release of an auditor-general's report stating more than $20,000 in remodeling costs were incurred during work done on the home.

Illinois law says state-supported institutions must submit plans for capital improvements for non-instructional facilities to the Illinois Board of Higher Education before final commitments are made.

"High-level university officials overrode the internal control system. ... This instance of non-compliance represents a momentary lapse in controls which are otherwise operating effectively," the report said.

"There is no violation of law. In fact, the auditor general has no business interpreting if that was a violation of law. There's the judicial system. ... That's appropriate for the attorney general, but not the auditor general. So, in a way, there's a lot to do about nothing right here, in terms of this audit finding," said La Tourette.

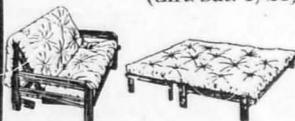

State auditor Lyle Manock said the state's review showed a lack of planning and obtaining cost estimates before work was done.

Manock said about 80 percent of the home was re-painted three times in a year's time. "I think most people would call that a waste," he said.

Critics: 'Make my day' justice isn't that simple

DENVER (UPI) — A murder case in which a man is accused of shooting his estranged wife while their two children watched led outraged lawmakers to try to repeal Colorado's 1985 "make my day" law, but they failed and residents still may use deadly force against unarmed intruders.

"We all love the spirit of this law," said Republican Sen. Martha Ezzard of Cherry Hills Village. "But justice isn't that simple. Criminals live in homes too."

Ezzard tried on April 20 to have repealed a section of the law that states home dwellers are immune from prosecution under certain circumstances. The motion failed in the Senate on a vote of 21-11.

"WE'VE SEEN the consequences of this law, and those are not the consequences people intended when they voted for it," Ezzard argued. "A lot of citizens are outraged that we passed a law in Colorado that gives you the right to kill."

The law appears safe from legislative action for now, but it faces a challenge in the Colorado Supreme Court. Prosecutors are hoping to show that the Legislature did not intend to bar them from prosecuting murderers.

"A lot of citizens are outraged that we passed a law in Colorado that gives you the right to kill."

—Sen. Martha Ezzard

The law — the only one of its kind in the nation — says that a person who kills a home intruder "shall be immune from criminal prosecution" if he has a "reasonable belief" that an intruder has committed, or will commit a crime within the dwelling, and might use physical force — no matter how slight — against any occupant.

THE "MAKE my day" nickname came from movies starring Clint Eastwood in which Eastwood, playing a macho policeman, challenged criminals to make him shoot them.

The measure's author, conservative Republican Sen. Jim Brandon of Akron, admits he knows of no instance in which the 1985 law has been used as intended — to protect innocent homeowners from prosecution.

OKLAHOMA LAWMAKERS were impressed with that idea and recently passed a bill patterned after Brandon's legislation. Oklahoma Gov. Harry Bellmon vetoed the bill on April 13, and under legislative rules, it cannot be brought up again until 1989. In vetoing the bill, Bellmon cited Colorado's recent problems.

Colorado Attorney General Duane Woodard said he opposes the immunity provision in the statute and hopes the Supreme Court will rule that it is up to prosecutors to determine whether someone should be charged with a crime.

"It (the law) apparently has left a lot of citizens with the impression that they can take the law into their own hands," said Woodard.

"IT WAS probably crafted without giving serious consideration to whether anyone had ever been prosecuted for using force to defend their family within their own home — and the answer is no."

The present controversy surrounding the law began on March 1 when David Guenther, 34, allegedly shot to death his estranged wife Pam and seriously wounded her male companion.

Convicted murderer says victim pulled ultimate con

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Joe Hunt, the young founder of the Billionaire Boys Club investment group, was convicted Wednesday of murdering a con man whose body never has been found and who the defense contends still is alive.

Prosecutor Fred Wapner said he will seek the death penalty for Hunt, 27, who also was convicted of robbery, opening the possibility of capital punishment under California's "special circumstances" law.

The government maintained that Hunt killed Beverly Hills con man Ron Levin to avenge a high-stakes commodities trading swindle. The defense contended that Levin pulled off "the ultimate con" by arranging his disappearance to escape a pending trial for grand theft, and Levin reportedly has been seen since the government says he was killed.

"Ron Levin is still alive," Hunt insisted after the verdict was returned on the third day of deliberations in the 2 1/2-month Superior Court trial.

Judge Laurence Rittenband admonished the jurors not to talk to reporters.

EPA wants tough school asbestos plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency announced a tough $3.2 billion program Wednesday requiring every school to conduct asbestos inspections and clean up any cancer-causing material discovered.

Susan Vogt, acting deputy director of the Office of Toxic Substances, said the new rules would protect children and employees in 107,000 public and private elementary and secondary schools across the country. She said the EPA only would be footing a small part of the bill.

Vogt said schools would be required to have a certified asbestos inspector check for the material every three years. If hazardous asbestos is found, the schools would have to devise and carry out a plan for removing the material or making it safe by encasing it, among other methods.

An estimated 5,000 schools have such severe asbestos problems that the material will have to be totally removed.

Nixon bars release of certain private papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon has temporarily blocked the scheduled May 4 public release of about 5 percent of the 1.5 million pages of his private presidential papers, the National Archives said Wednesday.

"We have received a large list of objections — specific objections to specific documents — from Richard Nixon's lawyer," said Archives spokeswoman Jill Brett. "Under the regulations, these documents must be withdrawn and reviewed according to their claim."

She said the Archives received "a whole panoply of objections relating to about 5 percent of the entire collection" of 1.5 million pages of Nixon's most sensitive presidential papers.

"The archivists are, even as we speak, withdrawing this material," she said.

Brett said Nixon sought to prevent public release of the papers on several grounds.

"Some are executive privilege claims; some are invasion of privacy; some are that it is personal material and should be returned (to Nixon)," she said.

The Archives, which released the first batch of more than 1 million pages of Nixon presidential papers last year, planned to release a second batch containing more sensitive papers May 4. Some of the documents still to be made public concerned the activities of Nixon and his aides during the Watergate scandal that forced Nixon to resign his office Aug. 9, 1974.

Brett said there was no way no know what percentage of the papers Nixon has sought to block from public release deal with Watergate.

"It's a lot of paper," she said. "It's going to take our review board a long time" to sort out Nixon's claims.

If the archivists, lawyers and historians who make up the five-member review panel rule against Nixon, the former president can go to court to block public release of the documents, Brett said.

She said the agency intends to go ahead with its scheduled May 4 release of the remaining Nixon papers. Other Nixon White House officials and aides may file more objections to the release of the documents until the May 1 deadline, she said.

Vote on trade reform after Nakasone's visit, House GOP chief says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader Robert Michel suggested Wednesday that next week's vote on trade reform legislation be postponed to avoid embarrassing Japanese Prime Minister Yahuhiro Nakasone during his state visit.

"I do have a little concern about Prime Minister Nakasone being in town at the same time there could be all this bashing of the Japanese on the floor of the House," Michel, R-Ill., said after a Republican leadership meeting.

"I don't think that would be in good taste," he said.

Michel said he would discuss his suggestion later Wednesday with House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, who has designated trade reform legislation as one of his party's top legislative priorities.

Nakasone, who arrives in Washington April 29, is expected to ask President Reagan to call off the 100 percent tariffs he slapped on $300 million worth of Japanese computers, power tools and televisions last week in retaliation for Japan's failure to live up to an agreement on computer chips.

The Japanese have been lobbying the administration relentlessly since Reagan imposed the tariffs, but the administration remains firm that the sanctions will not be lifted until the Japanese abide by the September 1986 agreement in which they promised to stop "dumping" semiconductors at less than fair market value and to open their home market to American computer chips.

The House is expected to debate, and pass, a sweeping trade reform bill next week that would crack down on unfair foreign trade practices and improve U.S. export promotion efforts.

One of the most controversial issues involves an amendment expected to be offered by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., that would target for retaliation countries like Japan that have excessive trade surpluses with the United States and engage in unfair trade practices.

If such a country refuses to reduce its surpluses through negotiations, the amendment would require the president to retaliate on a dollar-for-dollar basis, and if the situation continues, to reduce its trade surplus with the United States by 10 percent a year for four years.

If the House approves the Gephardt amendment, which the administration adamantly opposes as protectionist, it "would be a sure veto signal," Michel said.

Separately, the Senate Finance Committee began work Wednesday on its version of a trade reform bill.

GTE proposes reducing charges for local service

General Telephone Co. announced Wednesday that it wants to charge customers an average of 8 percent less for local service.

GTE has asked the Illinois Commerce Commission for permission to lower its local service rates. The ICC must approve any rate changes by telecommunications companies.

The federal tax reform approved in 1986 will save GTE more than $7.5 million annually in Illinois, and the company says it wants to pass that savings on to its customers.

The average savings per customer will be $1.26, according to a GTE news release, or a decrease from $15.75 to $14.49. But individual savings will vary from 54 cents to $3.07 per month. The amount depends on monthly local service rates, which vary throughout the state.

GTE is asking the ICC to make the rate reduction effective May 1. The ICC has set a hearing on the matter for Wednesday.

The rate decrease will not affect long distance service.

Professor questions state fossil proposal

ROCK ISLAND (UPI) — An Augustana College geology professor is shaking his head over an Illinois lawmaker's attempt to get the General Assembly to designate officially a state fossil.

"Whether the Legislature should spend its time on such matters is questionable," Richard Anderson, chairman of the Augustana College Geology Department, said Wednesday. "I guess we have more pressing things to worry about in the state."

Rep. Helen Satterthwaite, D-Urbana, believes since Illinois has an officially designated state song, slogan, tree, bird, flower, insect, animal, mineral and fish, why shouldn't it also have a state fossil?

But under her bill, children would not have as much say-so in the naming of the state fossil as they did in naming the state fish. Youngsters would be asked to vote on whether a particular fossil — one unique to Illinois — should be designated the state fossil.

Satterthwaite's choice is the Tullimonstrum Gregarium, better known to geologists as the "Tully Monster."

"I guess the best that can be said for it is that it hasn't been found anywhere else," Anderson said. "From the standpoint of being unique, I guess it's a good choice."

But he said the Tully Monster is rather insignificant from a scientific standpoint, because geologists don't know "just where it belongs in the scheme of biological classifications."

A soft-bodied animal, it apparently lived only in Illinois about 300 million years ago. It had a long, flat body with a fin on each side of its tail and a long mouth. The largest Tully Monster found measures 12 inches in length.

Senior class of 6 females invited to 'Tonight Show'

LANSFORD, N.D. (UPI) — The all-female Lansford High School senior class was invited to make a guest appearance on "The Tonight Show," and the entire town may turn out to watch on a big-screen television at the local country club.

The senior class, consisting of six teens, left for Burbank, Calif., Tuesday for Wednesday's taping, school Superintendent Patrick Limke said.

"It started out as just a jest, but this turned out more than they really thought," Limke said.

The girls wrote "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson after an all-male graduating class, six boys from a small school in Bickleton, Wash., appeared on the show April 1. The girls wanted to meet the boys and invite them to their prom in Lansford next month, Limke said.

Norman gets 'buzz' from major golf tourney

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (UPI) — Greg Norman, upset at having to withdraw from the 1986 Houston Open because he became ill, vows to be at his best for this year's $600,000 event.

Norman, golf's hard-luck loser, is the favorite to win the Houston Open, which begins Thursday at the TPC course, and he wants to put up a strong showing, especially for the local gallery.

Last year, he played two practice rounds, then became ill and withdrew before the start of the first round. He returned then that he would return.

"I'm going to make amends for it with four good days of golf," Norman said. "To have to withdraw on the day the tournament starts... this year, it's not going to happen."

"I felt sorry for (tournament director) Duke Butler and the other tournament officials. It was a sad state of affairs for a lot of people. I felt especially bad for my in-laws, who live here. They haven't seen me play for a long time."

Norman, last year's leading money winner, heads a strong field that includes Ben Crenshaw, Payne Stewart, newly crowned Masters champion Larry Mize, two-time Houston winner Curtis Strange and Calvin Peete, last year's runner-up. Last week's Heritage champion, Davis Love III, also is in the field.

Among the notable no-shows are leading money winner Corey Pavin and 1985 Houston champion Raymond Floyd.

Norman said he enjoys competition, whether it's in Hilton Head, S.C., for the Masters, or in Houston.

"I get a great buzz out of playing tournament golf, no matter what tournament it is," he said. "I do get a bigger buzz out of the majors, there's that different aura and atmosphere about it."

"But any tournament I play in is a major tournament to me. The Houston Open or the Bay Hill Classic or the Kemper, all those tournaments are tough to win."

Norman is known most for what he didn't do in 1986 — win the Grand Slam. He led all four majors going in to the final rounds and won only the British Open.

He lost the Masters when Jack Nicklaus charged by with a 30 on the final nine. Norman fell out of a nine-way tie for first going into the final round of the U.S. Open, and Bob Tway stole the PGA with a miracle shot from the trap on the final hole.

"You wonder when it will change," Norman said. "You feel as though you've got to fight for everything you get, nothing ever comes your way, nothing's ever given to you."

Two weeks ago, Norman was stung again. Mize, who last week missed the cut at the Heritage, sank a 40-yard shot on the second hole of sudden death to win the Masters.

"It took me until the week of Hilton Head to recuperate," Norman said. "The first four or five days, everyone came up and commiserated with me. I could never get it off my mind."

"Fortunately, I don't brood over things. This one took me a little longer to get over because it is the toughest loss I've ever had. I've got to swallow the pill."

Doctor warns pro ball produces player stress, anxiety disorder

BOSTON (UPI) — The combat-like intensity of professional football can cause an emotional disorder among players similar to the post-traumatic stress that affects some Vietnam veterans, an NFL team psychiatrist said Wednesday.

"I have observed a syndrome that I think may be considered a form of post-traumatic stress disorder," said Dr. Armand M. Nicholi Jr., a Harvard Medical School psychiatrist who works with the New England Patriots.

Like Vietnam veterans, football players develop anxiety from experiencing "a serious threat to one's physical integrity" and "seeing someone who is the victim of physical violence," said Nicholi.

"The intense contact on the football field simulates hand-to-hand combat on the battlefield and meets the criteria of post-traumatic stress disorder," said Nicholi, writing in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Among football players Nicholi treated, the symptoms included "a sense of a shortened future, irritability, sudden outbursts of anger ... and dreams of violence," he said.

"During my time with the Patriots, several players have consulted me to express alarm over dreams about death, plane crashes and blood massacres," Nicholi said in an article describing his work with the Patriots since 1982.

Brewers bid ends, challenge remains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Milwaukee's season-opening winning streak and the 7-1 loss that ended it left the Brewers 12 games above .500.

No major-league team in this century has looked quite as prosperous after 14 games, but even a record-tying start helps illustrate the challenge facing any would-be contender.

For instance, even if the Brewers split their remaining games, they would finish at 87-75 over 162 games. This involves two difficulties. First, the Brewers haven't finished near .500 since 1983. In fact, they landed 36½ games behind the lead only three years ago.

Second, even if the Brewers won 87 games, it probably wouldn't be enough to claim the American League East flag. No team has ever won that division with so few victories except for the 1972 Tigers, with 86, and the 1981 Yankees, who won both ends of a strike-split schedule.

Furthermore, the Brewers probably have complicated their job by creating expectations, where before there were none. Many of their fans made the 90-mile trip down I-94 from Milwaukee to Comiskey Park, and they crowded the dugout long after the White Sox pitchers ended the streak Tuesday night.

"Hopefully I expect a lot of support throughout the season," Milwaukee third baseman Paul Molitor said as fans cheered despite 44-degree temperatures. "Along with the great start we've had, let's hope we can add a great finish to it as well."

While the Brewers were winning 13 of their first 14, the New York Yankees fared almost as well, going 11-3. Nor has the rest of the division fallen astray. Only Cleveland, with a 4-11 start, has really damaged itself.

"Any time you lose any game, whether it stops a streak or it's a seventh or eighth loss in a row, they still count as one big loss in the loss column," Molitor said. "I guess one of the most disappointing things about this whole thing is we're 13-1 and we're only two games up. The Yankees are playing great ball and they've been able to do it kind of quietly because the focus has been on our club." He grinned. "But I think I can handle this about every 14

Milwaukee's streak indirectly raised an issue about a certain National League club. For 13 games, the Brewers high-fived, celebrated and showed the emotion the New York Mets did last year. When they beat the White Sox 5-4 Monday, tying the major-league record for consecutive victories to open a season, the Brewers rushed the mound as if they had won the World Series. Even Brewers' General Manager Harry Dalton admits his club acts like a college team.

For whatever reason, no one called them arrogant. The Brewers were having fun, and it never seemed like anything else. That's what first baseman Greg Brock says he will remember most: the fun.

Attention Registered Student Organizations!!

Celtics recipe: make 'Air' Jordan dish off

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics and Chicago Bulls agree it is Michael Jordan's passing, not his shooting, which is the key to the Bulls' playoff chances.

"You don't guard him one-on-one," said Boston coach K.C. Jones of the NBA's scoring champion. "You try and make him give it up to the other players, so they have to do some of the shooting."

"I'll go in Thursday and try to get everyone involved," said Jordan, who finished his third year with an average of 37.1 points a game. "I know with a double-team on me, we're going to have to move the ball."

"If guys like Charles Oakley, John Paxson and Brad Sellers do their jobs offensively, it will make it harder to double-team me," said the 6-foot-6 guard.

And his teammates realize how the offensive pressure has shifted to them for the best-of-five series.

"When they double Michael, I've got to knock the shot down to keep them honest," said Sellers, a 7-foot rookie forward. "Right now they should be hesitant to double off of me, I've been shooting the jumper pretty well lately."

Dennis Johnson will again draw the defensive assignment on Jordan but the Celtics realize that no matter how well Johnson plays, Jordan will score.

"You try to contain him, for you can't stop him," said Jones. "He is so quick, it's difficult to head him in one direction. Just trying to guard him takes away your confidence because of all he can do."

Chicago was the only

Eastern Conference team not to beat the NBA's defending champions this season. The Bulls lost all six encounters with the Celtics and have fallen 13 straight times to Boston, including a three-game sweep in last season's opening round of the playoffs.

Good drafting the past three years have added Jordan, Oakley — the league's No. 2 rebounder with a 13.1 average — and Sellers. But the rebuilding of the Bulls is not complete, for they can't stop Boston's frontline of Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and Robert Parish.

The three All-Stars combined for an average of 76 points and 27 rebounds per game against the Bulls, who finished eighth in the conference with a 40-42 record.

HURDLER HONORED: Top-rated Saluki hurdler Kathy Raske, from Calumet City, was named Gateway Conference athlete of the week.

Raske's personal bests for the season include top billing in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 13.63 seconds, 25.34 in the 200-meter hurdles (second only to Carlon Blackman's time of 24.59), as well as top spots in the 4 x 100-meter relay, the 4 x 200-meter relay and the sprint medley relay.

DRAKE RELAYS: Saluki trackster Sue Anderson, competing in the Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa, Tuesday finished ninth in the heptathlon event with 4,456 total points.

A breakdown of Anderson in individual events includes 15.9 seconds in the 100-yard hurdles, 5 feet, 5 1/4 inches in the high jump, 33.4 1/4 in the shot put, 27.9 in the 200-yard dash, 16.4 1/2 in the long jump, 110.4 in the javelin and 2.31.3 in the 800-yard dash.

Anderson's personal best score in the heptathlon, 4,669 earned at the SEmotion relays April 3, is a team high.

Anderson also holds the Saluki women's high jump record with a 5.9 leap that she earned at the Saluki Invitational March 28.

The heptathlon took place in rainy, 45-degree weather.

bunch of stitches."
 "You can't even begin to count the abrasions," Koster added. "I cracked my elbow a couple of weeks ago, but I've never broken any bones."

But Wicker, who is old enough to have been a part of the second generation, has been around the sport long enough to be prepared when he takes to the ramp. "I always carry some sort of first aid equipment. It's good to have plenty of bandages, gauze and sticks to make a splint in case of an emergency."

And the three agreed that just any skateboard will not do. "The kind of boards you get at department stores may be cheap but they're also dangerous," Wicker said. "They use cheap materials and often break prematurely. A decent board costs anywhere from $130 to $160, and that's not counting the accessories."

Skateboarders use different equipment for ramp skating than for street skating, which is what they do on campus. "When you're on a ramp, you need knee pads, elbow pads, hip pads, gloves, a helmet and chin guards," Swan said.

Doug McDonald, manager of Pheonix Cycles in Carbondale, agreed that the sport is making a comeback. "There's been a large increase in the number of people getting into skateboarding in the area," McDonald said. "It ranges all the way from junior high up to college students."

The most popular board in this area is the Powell and Peralta model, McDonald said. Wicker prefers a Gordon and Smith board, although he feels the P & P board is a safe one.

Although there are no regulations governing skateboards as there are with bicycles and cars, people have become uneasy and even complained to campus police about a skateboarder buzzing past.

"Sometimes people are afraid we'll get in their way, but they should be aware we're looking out for them. We're not going to lose control just because we happen to be skating through a crowd of people," Wicker said.

"We've been harassed by the campus police who don't understand why we want to skate on campus. They tell us to go to the edge of town or somewhere else," Wicker said.

Lt. Amos Covington, second shift supervisor of the SIU Police, said that the police officers were only responding to concerns over public safety. "We do discourage skateboarding in heavily trafficked areas," he said. "And as long as people are complaining about the hazards we're going to respond."

Swan said, "The reason we skate on campus is because we live here. And besides, there's a lot of good terrain. If we went in town there would be too much traffic and too many potholes.

"People have stereotypes of us. They think we're all punks and vandals but we're not," Wicker said. "We're really just a mellow group of guys who enjoy skateboarding. But like anything else, one or two guys with a bad attitude can give the whole group a bad name."

LEGENDS OF ROCK & ROLL AND WIN!

Clue Set #2

Here is the second set of clues to match with The Hot Shot Legends of Rock & Roll Poster inserted into this newspaper two weeks ago. (If you missed the poster, a limited supply is available at the newspaper office.) The first set of clues ran last week.

Here's What To Do:

This sketch represents the right half of the poster with outlines of the faces. Each face outline is numbered 22 through 38. Match each outline to the poster, using the clues listed below to determine the names of the final 17 Rock Artists featured and remember to answer the 39th question "What is the drink name on the back of the HOT SHOT Schnapps bottle?"

Write legibly on Official Entry Form or on an 8 1/2" x 11" piece of lined paper your name, school, school address, home address, age, phone number, jacket size (S, M, L, X-L), jacket color (black or white), and your 39 answers, numbered in correct order, and mail to:

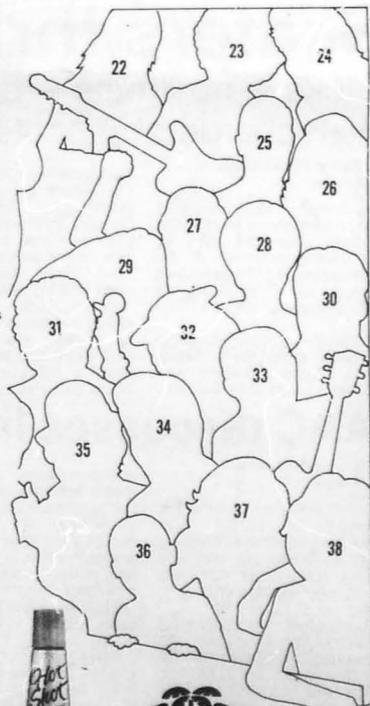

Hot Shot Rock Legends Sweepstakes
 P.O. Box 876
 Church Hill, MD 21690

Only one entry per envelope. No mechanically reproduced entries will be accepted. Please abide by all rules and regulations listed on the backside of the poster. And remember, you must be of legal drinking age in your state of residence and state where you attend school at time of entry.

Skaters thrive on 'ho-hos'

Tricks — not treats — delight skateboarders' appetites

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Although skateboarding went underground in 1980, the mid-80s saw the rise of the "third generation" of the sport, according to senior Greg Wicker of Collinsville, a health education major at SIU-C.

"The first generation was in the early to mid-60s," Wicker said. "Those skaters emphasized a surf style that was fluent and pleasing to the eye. The second generation came around 1974. They combined the surf style with more of a free style and a few tricks. Now we're seeing more difficult tricks and innovative ideas with the skateboard."

These tricks have such catchy names as the "ho-ho," the "street ollie," and the "boneless." The ho-ho involves doing a handstand with the board balanced on one's feet.

In a street ollie, the skater jumps off the ground by shifting the weight of the feet so that the tail of the board bounces off the ground. The boneless keeps one foot on the board while the other leaps into the air.

Wicker estimates there are 10 or so "hardcore" skaters at SIU-C, but adds many people use their boards as a means of transportation to and from classes.

"By hardcore we mean we're either thinking about it or talking about it as much as anything we do," said freshman zoology major Chris Swan of Pekin. "We go at it at least five days a week at a pretty tough pace."

Freshman Joel Koster of Carbondale adds that skateboarding isn't just a hobby but "a way of life."

As with any conswning way of life, skateboarding has its own unique characteristics and equipment. One way to recognize a skateboarder, according to Swan, is to look at the legs. "Our legs are just ridden with scars. As soon as one scrape begins to heal we'll get two more in its place," he said. "One time I ripped open my leg and needed a whole

IAAC discusses increase in athletics budget

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

The Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee met Tuesday afternoon in Anthony Hall to discuss the proposed sports budget for the 1988 fiscal year beginning July 1, 1987.

According to Athletics Director Jim Livengood, the estimated expenditures for men's athletics are $1,457,019, an increase of $57,032 from FY 1987. Women's expenditures are estimated at $790,651, up $45,743 from last year. The central expenditures—encompassing such areas as administration, spirit groups and promotions—are estimated at $104,792, a $2,633 increase.

Total revenue projected to be generated in FY 1988 is $2,352,462, equal to the estimated total expenditures and up $105,574 from last year, Livengood said.

The biggest portion of revenue, $1,410,874, will be realized through student fees.

Self-generated revenue in men's athletics should be in the neighborhood of $846,500, according to Livengood. Women's sports should generate close to $36,300. The bulk of the remaining revenue will come from contributions, projected to be $300,000, the same original estimate as in FY 87.

Since the fund-raising window has changed from the fall to the spring, the majority of contributions come in between April 1 and June 15, Livengood said, and the FY 87 expectation of $300,000 has been readjusted to $200,000. At this point, contributions range somewhere in the neighborhood of $85,000, Livengood said. He added that Paul Bubb, director of Athletic Development at the SIU Foundation, has many fund-raising events in the works.

"Every day Paul Bubb is working to raise money, be it person to person or group to group. The recent football scrimmage in Pickneyville helped strengthen our booster club there," Livengood said.

"At this time of year we're asked to behave like budgetary wizards," Livengood said. "By changing the window from the fall to the spring we're looking at a long term instead of a short-term solution."

Livengood explained that by changing this fund-raising window a financial surplus may eventually be realized because funds for the coming fiscal year could be raised prior to July 1. But he added that such a surplus is something to think about in terms of the future.

"Obviously, we'd all like to drive 55 but right now the important thing is getting the car started," Livengood said. "We're a long way from where we need to be in terms of fund raising but I think there is light at the end of the tunnel."

In other business, the IAAC moved to recommend that acting president Dr. John Guyon vote against any legislation that would further decrease SIU-C's ability to be competitive against 1A football teams when he attends a NCAA special convention June 29-30 in Dallas.

This recommendation refers in particular to the amount of time football teams are allowed to practice in the spring.

The next IAAC meeting will be May 12 in Anthony Hall. IAAC meetings are open to public observation.

Softballers stop SEMO, rain halts play

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

Rain shortened a scheduled doubleheader to one game against Southeast Missouri State for the softball team Tuesday.

The Salukis defeated the nationally third-ranked Division II team in the first game 1-0.

The Salukis, 19-15 overall and 9-5 in the Gateway Conference, scored the only run of the game in the first inning.

Becky Rickenbaugh, who was 2-for-3, started things off with a triple and Susan Wissmiller connected for a RBI double.

Lisa Peterson was the winning pitcher allowing three hits, two walks and striking out three.

Patty Barker was the only other Saluki to get a hit in the first game.

SEMO and SIU-C started playing the second game and were tied at 3-3 in the bottom of the fourth inning with a SEMO runner on base before the game was washed away.

The Salukis took an early lead thanks to a two-run homer by Shelly Gibbs in the first inning.

In the top of the fourth inning Barker hit a two-out single to knock an RBI and tie the score 3-3 for the Salukis.

Rain delays Saluki-Panther baseball game

Because of rain in Charleston Illinois, the baseball doubleheader against EIU was not played. The games may be rescheduled for a later date. The Salukis play SIU-E at Edwardsville today.

Net men rack up another win without rackets

By Wendell Young
Staff Writer

After thrashing Northeastern University 8-1 Tuesday, the SIU-C men's tennis team will play on the Arena asphalt for the last time this season today when it takes on St. Louis University in a 3 p.m. make-up that was originally scheduled April 11.

Coch Dick LeFevre's crew still hasn't regained the 18 tennis rackets that were stolen from the tennis shack Sunday night, but they are waiting to receive a shipment of identical brand rackets today, according to No. 2 singles player Fabiano Ramos.

Ramos, who has never opposed a St. Louis University team but picked up a win over them last year by forfeit, said he is optimistic about winning the match.

Ramos added that he is disappointed because the stolen rackets haven't resurfaced yet.

LeFevre's lineup will pit sophomore Jairo Aldana in the No. 1 singles hole. Ramos will play in the familiar No. 2 singles position.
