PACIFIST VOTED OUT BEFORE BLAST ANNIVERSARY — TOKYO—Nagasaki Mayor Hitoshi Motoshima, perhaps Japan's most outspoken critic of the U.S. use of atomic bombs in World War II, was voted out of office just months before he was to preside over the 50th anniversary commemoration of the Nagasaki blast. The 73-year-old pacifist had asked residents to re-elect him so that he could host the city's anniversary activities this summer. But Motoshima lost to a younger and more conservative candidate, Itcho Ito, 49. Ito emphasized that he was born after the war and argued that it was time for the city to focus on its future rather than the devastation 50 years ago.

BRITAIN BREAKS STALEMATE BY AGREEING TO TALK — LONDON—Britain Monday agreed to high-level talks with Sinn Fein, the political arm of the Irish Republican Army, breaking a stalemate that was slowing the Northern Ireland peace process. The meeting between ministerial-level officials of the government and Sinn Fein party leaders will be the first in more than two decades. Civil servants have been meeting with the Sinn Fein leadership off and on since December. But the government had refused to elevate the discussions to a higher level — as it has with Sinn Fein's Protestant counterparts in Northern Ireland — because of a dispute over an agenda item on the disposal of IRA arms and explosives.

RACE ACT AFFECTS FEDERAL ADOPTION AGENCIES — WASHINGTON—The government advised adoption and foster-care agencies Monday that if they receive federal aid, they may not delay or deny the placement of any children because of racial or ethnic considerations. Guidelines issued by the Department of Health and Human Services were designed to implement the Multiethnic Placement Act of 1994, which President Clinton signed last October and which runs counter to past practices by many social workers. In approving the controversial act, Congress expressed its concern that children from minority groups often are spending long periods of time in foster care — sometimes twice as long as nominority children — while they wait to be placed in adoptive homes.

STUDY SUPPORTS FARM PROGRAM ELIMINATION

WASHINGTON—The conservative Heritage Foundation issued a study Tuesday calling for the elimination of virtually all government farm programs by the year 2001, arguing that farm income would dramatically increase as U.S. agriculture takes advantage of burgeoning world trade opportunities. Publication of the agriculture study marked a new step in Heritage's efforts to position itself as the Republican Congress's grun in this year's major policy debates. Hearings on a 1995 farm bill, the principal legislation affecting the activities of the nation's 2 million farmers, have already begun. A week ago, Heritage published a radical budget-balancing proposal, calling for an an end to most entitlements, block-granting most welfare programs and eliminating nine Cabinet departments, including Agriculture.

S. TO PROPOSE WORLD ECONOMIC MEASURES -WASHINGTON—As "enormous change" snakes the global economy, the Clinton administration will propose a series of measures Tuesday to stabilize the international economy and head off the sort of turmoil that has wracked the currency markets and shaken Mexico, U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert E. Rubin said Monday. Unveiling plans for Tuesday's meeting of the finance ministers of the world's economic powerhouses, Rubin warned that Japan's recovery was in jeopardy, "recent exchange market movements have created some concern," and high unemployment in Europe underlined the need to remove economic barriers to the creation of more jobs.

City hall construction brings jobs to area

Employment boon: City hall/civic center construction will employ local workers.

Construction of a combination city hall/civic center was awarded in March to Korte Construction by the city, after Korte bid against five other construction companies for what the city estimated to be a $6.2 million project.

The city held a ground-breaking ceremony April 3, and construction began the next day, with Korte rging the city just under $5.7 million for the construction and necessary sewer relocations.

Denis Calvert, senior vice president of Korte Construction, said although Korte is based in Highland, 70 percent of the labor on the project will be contracted to Southern Illinois companies.

"We are hiring contractors from Murphysboro, Marion, Anna — we define Southern Illinois as the area south of Interstate 70," he said "At peak times in the construction, we will have 60 employees on the proAt peak times in the construction, we will have 60 employees on the project. "

Because Korte was only recently awarded its contract, subcontracts for specific parts of the project will take some time to be worked out.

Dale Arnold, president of A&K Specialty Contractors in Marion, said he has been discussing doing the drywall, acoustic ceilings, lathe and plaster in the building, but has not signed a contract yet.

"It will take (Korte) at least a month to do their own paperwork," he said, "Our contracts have taken a while, but we should get them

Calvert said Korte was given 600 days to construct the building, but he believes they will finish sooner. "We plan to be done in July of 1996," he said.

City officials hope the new city hall/civic center, when finished, will bring businesses and money into Carbondale's downtown, improving the area now dominated by liquor establishments catering to the student population.

Carbondale City Engineer Brad Fleck said once the city hall opens, the large numbers of city employ-ees working there could draw private businesses to open nearby.

"Increased traffic, and all those city employees going to lunch ought to attract restaurants and other busi-ness to the area," he said.

Grad students show best at art exhibit

By Kristi Dehority Daily Egyptian Reporter

Four SIUC graduate art students traveled north to participate in a recently completed all-Illinois art show with exhibitors from some of the biggest schools in the state.

The 11th Annual All-Illinois Graduate Art Exhibit, held in Evanston, began April 13 and was completed April 23rd. It was held at the Jones Residential Fine and Performing Arts College at Northwestern University. The competition accepted 21 graduate appli-cants, with four coming from SIUC's art department.

Armen Sarrafian, a graduate student in art from Skokie and the chosen participants, said SIUC had the most representation among schools such as the Art Institute of Chicago, University of Illinois-Chicago; Northwestern; University of Illinois-Champaign and others.

Sarratian said the exhibit offers graduate students a chance to compete against their peers, instead of against professionals.

"It is an exhibition that is com-prised solely of graduate assistants in the different media," he said. "It provides a venue for students to go head-to-head ... we always tend to be competing with others who have left

Gun owners should keep safety in mind

THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF FIVE INDIVIDUALS TO society were celebrated Saturday at the SIUC campus with their induction into the Lincoln Academy, a non-profit organization that recognizes people who have brought honor to Illinois. One of the new Academy inductees, James S. Brady, former press secretary to President Ronald Reagan and a gun control advocate, attracted controversy. Anti-gun control: demonstrators flocked to the SIUC campus to show their disdain for regulations that Brady championed on gun control. While the demonstrators were within their rights to speak out against Brady, they should be able to get past their inflammatory rhetoric and realize that Brady's attempts and successes at controlling guns have not infringed their rights as gun owners and are designed to keep firearms out of criminals' hands.

Most of the demonstrators' anger with Brady centers around a bill that Brady and his wife Sarah lobbied for which later became law. The Brady bill requires people who wish to purchase handguns to wait five days while background checks are done to verify prospective gun owners do not have criminal records.

One coordinator of the demonstration went as far as to compare such gun control with restrictions in Nazi Germany before World War II. Other demonstrators wore yellow Stars of David, reminiscent of the symbol Hitler used to identify Jews, with the words "gun owner" stamped in the center. Such parallels are far-fetched at best regarding a law which attempts to save lives by trying to keep guns out of the hands of known criminals.

THE VERY CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH LED BRADY and his wife to become strong advocates of gun control show why such regulations are necessary. In the 1981 assassination attempt on Reagan, Brady was shot in the head. Partially, paralyzed from the bullet wound, Brady knows all too well the negative effects of guns when they are in the hands of the wrong people.

Many opponents of gun control argue that criminals can still obtain guns, even with restrictions, via the black market. While this is probably true, laws such as the Brady bill can at least curb the number of criminals who receive guns from licensed dealers.

Other gun-control opponents argue against laws which prohibit the carrying of concealed firearms. This law also seems fair, if people want to carry firearms it is their constitutional right, but they should be upfront about it. It seems cowardly and irresponsible that some gun owners would want to conceal a device which has the potential to end the lives of the people around them.

THE RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS IS STATED IN THE Second Amendment of our Constitution. When this amendment was drafted, however, surely it was intended that arms should be carried responsibly and by people who would not use them for criminal activity. Gun owners, such as those who demonstrated against Brady and his gun-control efforts, should be reminded that such controls can indeed strengthen the image of those who possess firearms.

It is hard to imagine why gun owners, or at least the responsible ones, would not want to ensure - to the best of their ability - that guns are only in the hands of people who will treat them with the discretion and respect that such devices deserve and require.

Nazi Germany:to:many is a symbol of what the cruelty of an irresponsible and frigane person can do given sufficient fire-power Con constant such as the Bridy bill, cent to be pseful attempts are wording such horritic chastrophes.

Am I feeble minded and limited governs and self-deceived? No, I'm just tisting an absurd example to make a point. At the recent Jewish, Christian, and Muslim discussion on the moral decay of America, the "Christian", representative declared that the Bible is not an absolute stan-dard of truth. Father Karban said that the Bible changes with society, and thus, must be interpreted differently as times change in order to keep up with modern society." Father Karban calls himself a Christian but flatly denies the historic tenets of the Christian faith: Sound strange!? Is he feeble-minded and self-deceived? Anyone who denies the truths of the Bible and calls themself a Christian is hallocinating and seif-deceived I cannot say that I am follower of Marx and yet deny his teaching. Neither can you say that you are a Christian and yet deny the teachings of Christ. stand the subject matter they are studying they ask lots of questions and/or study harder. Some give up entirely by dropping the class or changing their majors. A few irres-possible people will call the school-newspaper and complain about "watery eyes."

I find it ironic that the newspaper that bemoans the career choice of Chris Carr because he does not value education enough to stay in school would choose to condone the actions of a few students who blame the University for their lack of understanding of the subject matter they have chosen to pursue. I was in the class mentioned in the article on ventilation problems in Neckers, and I am thankful for experiencing tine chemicals used by chemists throughout the world. I would certainly not want to appear as ridi-culous as the students who brought reporters into my classroom did when I experience more extreme and dangerous situations at my chemist job in the future.

Perhaps this newspaper should stick to reporting on Looney Toon cartoons, At least they spell those names correctly. The horrible eye-waterer that the University forced upon myself and my classmates was called benzyl bromide, not benzyl

Drivers lack caution

Failure to use turn signals shows total disregard for others

Turn signals, 1995: the final chapter. To all of the selfish, inconsiderate drivers who are either too stupid or too lazy to use their turn signals consistently.

Are you blind, or just so wrapped up in your own little world that the safety of those around you becomes just another inconvenience?

If you can't handle the simple task of activating your signal so that others may respond, you have absolutely no business holding a

In fact, I hope that many of you lose your license for a time so that you have to walk or ride a bike and be subject to the stupidity of other reckless morons like youself. Play with your own life, not mine.

I am normally a very passive person, but I am fed up with ignor-ant idiots who find a three-inchmovement of their arm to be a major inconvenience before turning a

1,500-pound vehicle.
It shouldn't even matter if anyone is visible - it should be as habitual as chewing your food. And a turn signal used at the last second is as worthless as one not used at all:

You know who you are, and you're probably full of lame excu-ses for not signaling, but you're wrong — and you know it. Having a driver's license is a privilege, and if you're not up to it, you don't deserve to own a car.

Go ahead and blame it on pedestrians and bicyclists if it makes you feel big, but you know inside that you are the one who puts others in danger with your petty, pitiful, SOITY excuses

Anyone who has so little regard for the safety of pedestrians, cyclists and those confined to wheel-chairs should have their license suspended or revoked until they can prove that their ignorance has given way to common sense.

Accidents happen: Car phones dangerous when not used safely

By Joe Baker Student Health Programs

Driving down the highway today is a curious experience. It is very common to see motorists driving with one hand on the steering wheel and the other up against the side of their head. It looks like they have a toothache and are heading to see their dentist, but more likely, they are talking on their cellular phone while they drive down the road. Although convenient, these modern tools can be extremely dangerous. At 55 m.p.h., a vehicle travels the length of a football field in 3.7 sec-onds. Even a second of distraction while driving can be critical.

According o the National Safety Council, car phones may be convenient but, if not used properly, represent a danger to their users and others on the road. Currently more than 7.5 million cellular telephones are in use in the United States. according to industry trade association estimates. That figure is expected to grow rapidly as phones become less expensive to own and operate. This growing enchantment with mobile phones in autos, vans,

To Your Health

RVs, and trucks demands a renewed emphasis on safe driving practices. The National Safety Council offers these safety tips about cellular phones:

When purchasing a car phone, consider the type of phone and its case of operation.

Choose a cellular phone equipped for hands-free operation, with the microphone installed in the sun visor directly above the driver's line of vision.

Every user also should insist on a dealer demonstration of mobile phone use and then take a test drive.

Placement of the phone in the car is an important factor. It should be easily accessible and allow the driver to sit and drive normally.

Familiarize yourself with how to use the phone. Read the user's manual and practice the different

Remember that safe driving is a priority, keep both hands on the steering wheel and eyes on the road, use the speakerphone and let the handset stay in its cradle whenever the vehicle is in motion.

Assess the traffic situation before placing or receiving calls, making sure you are fully aware of road and vehicle distractions.

The safest calling method is to dial phone numbers when stopped. Most phones allow the entry of numbers for calling at the user's convenience. Further, frequently called numbers can be stored within the phone's memory to minimize dialing while driving.

Don't try to take written notes while driving. Use the voice mail feature on the cellular phone to note phone numbers and other important information.

The National Safety Council emphasizes that DRIVING SAFE-LY must take precedence over phoning. Concentrate on safely and defensive driving, not on making phone calls.

For more information about cellular phones and driving or other safety related issues, contact the Student Health Programs Environmental Health & Safety Office at 453-4364.

HUD survivors don't want new high-rise offices

The Washington Post

There were a lot of tears and a lot of bugs among peoworked together for 15 years. Yes, said Department of Housing and Urbau Development survivors Monday, they wanted a new HUD office in Oklahoma City—but not downtown, and not in a high-rise build-

HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros met for almost two hours at St. John's Baptist irch with Oklahoma City HUD employees and family members, many of them hurt and still shaken from last week's bomb explosion.

With 124 workers, HUD's
Oklahoma state office had the largest contingent of any of the 15 federal agencies in the stricken building. Late Monday, six were confirmed dead in the explosion and 29 still were missing.

"If these trends hold, that will be a very substantial loss," said Cisneros. Defining patriotism

Paramilitarists claim roots go back to American Revolution

WASHINGTON—They operate under such public-spirited names as the Guardians of American Liberties, the Constitutionalists, the Arizona Patriots, and the Association of the Sons

They hold fund-raisers, religious meetings and lecture series and sell videotapes, bumper stickers and books. They keep in touch through the Internet and the American Patriot Fax Network. And their leaders almost without exception insist they neither advocate nor foment violence. But the so-called "patriot movement," according to federal investigators, provided the soil from which the Oklahoma City bombers rose. President Clinton announced Sunday that he would seek expanded federal powers to investigate the many, diverse groups that constitute the movement. Its roots reach all the way to the American Revolution. The latter-day "patriots" regard themselves as direct descendants of those who overthrew British "tyranny" more than 200 years

It has been much noted that April 19, the day of the bombing, came two years to the day after the inferno in Waco, Texas, that so caraged many members of the patriots' movement. But April 19 is an important day in American history for another reason. April 19, 1775, was the date of the battles of Lexington and Coacord, where "the shot heard round the world" touched These patriots regard themselves as the inheritors of that tradition, said Thomas Halpern, associate director of the Anti-Defamation League in New York. "They believe they are opposing the tyranny of the American federal govern-

The paramilitary militias are only one component of the patriot movement, according to Tzivia Schwartz, counsel for Anti-Defamation League in Los Angeles, "But they all generally share a common agenda and buy radical conspiracy theories," she said.

The latest, circulated widely this weekend over American Patriot Fax Network, is telling. The Oklahoma City bombing, contends James P. Wickstrom, a member of the network and a former Constitution Party candidate for the U.S. Senate and governor of Wisconsin, was in fact carried out not by militia members but by the federal government itself.

He called the Oklahoma City disaster "a clandestine, inner-federal government plot to create national hysteria and destruction in an attempt to further a more complete POLICE STATE (sic) over the masses in the United States."

over the masses in the United States."

The carriage of the Oklahoma City bombing may be without precedent, but the concept is not. In 1986, members of the Arizona Patriots plotted to blow up a federal building in Los Angeles—as well as the Simon Wiesenthal Center and two Jewish Defense Leagues offices there, a Phoenix synagogue and an IRS office in Utah.

Microsoft settlement hits court

WASHINGTON-Microsoft Corp. and a team of Justice Department lawyers defended their controversial antitus' settlement before a federal appeals court panel Monday, arguing that a lower court judge-exceeded his authority when he rejected the pact in February.
They faced off against a trio of industry attorneys, who asked the three-judge panel to uphold a February decision by U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Sporkin to reject the decree, which would force Microsoft to change the way it licenses its MS-DOS and Windows personal computer operating system Software.

The short hearing, during which all sides were sharply questioned by the appeals panel, gave no indication how the judges might rule. The appeals court has several options. It could overrule Sporkin and direct him to sign the agreement; uphold Sporkin and thus force the Justice Department to either re-open the case, drop it, or reach a new settlement; or uphold certain ele-ments of Sporkin's ruling and request modifications in the . cement.

Under questioning, Joel I. Klein, a former deputy White House counsel who joined the Justice Department in February said the department would accept a judge's modification of the consent decree.

Computer program simulates societies

WASHINGTON-For those who study society, perhaps the most vexing problem is that human his-tory is an experiment nature only Researchers can never determine what would have happened, say, if the Black Plague had killed only 5 percent of Europe's population. Or if the United States had entered World War II two years earlier. Or if the Arab oil embargo had only doubled the price of crude instead of quadrupling it.

As a result, social science lacks one of the most powerful tools of physical science: the capacity to conduct the same experiment over and over again, changing only one variable while holding the rest con-stant, and thus discovering which causes produce which effects, and which outcomes are merely acci-

To do so would require a ready supply of identical human societies that could be adjusted so that they differed in only one key respect. The real world simply does not pro-vide these kinds of resources. So Joshua Epstein and Robert Axtell of the Brookings Institution decided to grow their own — in a computer.

They designed a program they call a "CompuTerrarium," which generates artificial societies that evolve over time

This way," said Epstein, "you can rerun history."

Already, the results are posing disturbing challenges to traditional economic theory and to conven-tional notions of population dynamics, as the researchers have shown in recent demonstrations at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and New Mexico's Santa Fe Institute.

Their silicon societies are utterly unlike familiar 'top-down' economic models, which contain complex equation-based systems signed to resemble the state of the nation's commerce in some given condition. Epstein and Axtell start with no preordained structureonly a large group of autonomous individuals whose aggregate actions over time create the complex shape of their society or economy. To investigate a social problem, said Epstein, "you don't solve it, you evolve it."

Such "bottom-up" computer models — in which elaborate struc-tures emerge from the collective interaction of individuals following a few very simple rules — first became practical during the 1980s as computing power increased dramatically.

They quickly became a staple of artificial life research, and have been highly successful at modeling. say, the flocking pattern of birds. But the Brookings program is much more sophisticated and ambi-

The simulations contain as many as 1,000 "persons," each represented by a single colored dot on the screen. Every individual has a unique set of characteristics (randomly assigned at the outset and embodied as data strings in the soft-ware). Some are fixed traits, such as sex, visual ability to detect food at a distance, and metabolic rate. Some are variable: wealth, cultural identity, marital status and health.

Scientists say magnetic poles wobble widely

The Washington Post

Earth's magnetic poles change location slightly from decade to decade, but so slowly that naviga-tion is unaffected, and compass-toting Boy Scout troops are not lost in the pines.

But under certain circumstances, scientists report in the April 20 issue of Nature, the planet's magnetic field can become so deranged that it moves as much as 6 degrees per day, wobbling around for a week or so before stabilizing. Such drastic changes are well beyond the limits of conventional geological opinion. But R.S. Coe of the University of California at Santa Cruz and colleagues from the University of Montpelier in France contend that they took place 16.2 million years ago, during one of Earth's occasional field reversals in which magnetic north becomes south and vice versa. No one knows why, just as no one understands ctly what produces the field in the first place. (The best guess is a dynamo-like motion of electric currents through the liquid iron of the et's core.) But the reversals which occur every few hundred thousand years and take about 5,000 years to complete-are permanently documented in the rock record from volcanic activity.

When molten lava oozes to the surface, its grains tend to line up with Earth's magnetic field as the lava cools, leaving a handy indica-tion of the field direction embedded in the stone. Using various tests to date the lava's cruption, scientists can determine which way the field was pointing at the time.

Ten years ago, after examining lava flows at Steens Mountain, Ore., field had shifted as much as 3 degrees per day. That was an unthinkably large amount for most experts, who dismissed the findings as the result of some remagnetization or chemical alteration in the Undeterred, two members of the original team set out to study anothflow a mile away, which is the subject of the new paper.

GOP westerners miffed colleagues support cuts

At a recent meeting to clear the air, about a dozen Republican law-makers excoriated National Taxpayers Union executive director David Keating over his group's backing the enviros' "Green Scissors" report, which advocates cutting dozens of federal programs.

Word is the group's animosity toward Keating was greater than the vitriol leveled at Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt when he showed up

Magic-Suns championship final not done deal as Mr. Robinson interjects his two-cents' worth

By Jerry Bembry The Baltimore Sun

When the regular season began, there were a lot of basketball experts predicting an Orlando Magic-Phoenix Suns final.

And why not?

The Magic acquired Horace Grant to play alongside Shaquille O'Neal and Anfernce Hardaway.

And the Suns picked up Danny Manning in the off-season tion that had Kevin Johnson describing his team as one of the "scariest" in basketball.

That pick may hold true. But there's a good chance a couple of guys named Michael Jordan, Reggie Miller and David Robinson might have something to say about

Welcome to the NBA playoffs, the promised land for those us us who have been covering losing

On Thursday the best-of-five first-round will begin, and here is one man's playoff predictions:

Eastern Conference

-No. 1 Orlando Magic (57-25) vs. No. 8 Boston Celtics (35-47)

The Magic didn't exactly close out the season in a flourish, winning just four of their final 10. In fact after dominating most of the regular season, the Magic looked like a tired team by season's end.

So what? The Celtics are the only team to enter this year's playoffs with a losing record. And the Magic would like to crase the memories of last season, when the team was swept by the Indiana Pacers in the first round.

Orlando won three of five games against the Celtics this season, and Shaquille O'Neal would like nothing better than to abuse Eric ontross after the two had a little skirmish earlier this season that led to O'Neal's ejection. The Magic will win this series in four games.

-No. 2 Indiana Pacers (52-30) vs. No. 7 Atlanta Hawks (42-40)

The Pacers hope the playoffs will be the wake-up call for Reggie Miller, who shot poorly toward the ed himself offensively this year. The Pacers have too much size up front with Rik Smits, A tonio Davis, Dale Davis and Derrick McKey in the rotation. The Hawks , last year's top seed in the East with 57 wins, will be lucky to avoid getting swept.

-No. 3 New York Knicks (55 27) vs. No. 6 Cleveland Cavaliers (43-39)

The networks won't break any ratings record with this series. Cleveland allowed the fewest points per game (89.8) and scored the fewest (90.5). New York's field goal percentage—allowed was the best in the league (43.7 percent). Therefore don't expect a lot of points, or a lot of excitement.

The teams split four games this eason, but this series won't be close. Patrick Ewing, coming off an impressive season, will have a field day in a series that will last

—No. 4 Charlotte Hornets (50—32) vs. No. 5 Chicago Bulls (47—

Old school vs. new school in the best opening-round series in the East. Michael Jordan is back and, despite shooting just 41.1 percent since his return, will be the difference. With Scott Burrell out, of the Charlotte lineup with an Achilles injury, the job of containing Jordan goes to Hersey Hawkins. And everyone knows that's no contest.

The Bulls ended the season strong, and seemed to adapt to playing with Jordan-instead of simply watching him. Chicago w.ns in five games, setting up a second—round showdown with the Magic.

Western Conference

-No. 1 San Antonio Spurs (62-26) vs. No. 8 Denver Nuggets (41-41)

David Robinson will rule the West, and lead the Spurs to the NBA Finals. But first San Antonio will have to make it through a difficult first round against a Nuggets team that had to go down to the final game of the regular season just to make the playoffs.

The Nuggets trailed the Sacramento Kings by 5{ games at the All—Star break, but Bernie Bickerstaff led the Nuggets to a 20-12 finish. With LaPhonso Ellis returns to the lineup after preseason knee surgery, and Denver, which stunned Seattle last season, is capable of a second straight first-round upset as an eighth seed. It won't happen, San Antonio in four games.

-No. 2 Phoenix Suns (59-23) vs. No. 7 Portland Trail Blazers (44-

The difference between the Suns this year and last year is that Charles Barkley is healthy. And a healthy Barkley makes the Suns a serious threat, despite the loss of Manning midway through the sea son and despite the lack of a real center.

Barkley will get his. The question for Phoenix is whether Dan Majerle and Kevin Johnson will revert to all-star form. Phoenix won't face much of a test against Portland, a team ripped by dissension.

No. 3 Utah Jazz (60-22) vs. No. 6 Houston Rockets (47-35)

For the sixth time in seven years the Jazz has won more than 50 games. During that span, it has never reached the Western Conference finals

The combination of Karl Malone and John Stockton gives Utah the best one—two punch in basketball. An unselfish team could make the Jazz serious contenders. They'll have to start their run against the defending NBA champions, who have no power at the power forward spot since trading Otis Thorpe.

Malone will take advantage as —No. 4 Seattle SuperSonics (57-25) vs. No. 5 Los Angeles Lakers (48-34)

Scattle got last year's "We hardly knew you" award after taking the league's best record into the playoffs, only to lose to the Nuggets in the first round. This year, they fail to get out of the first round again. Guess what?

It happens again.
The Lakers won four of five games against Seattle this season.
And, despite ending the regular season with three straight losses, Los Angeles and will advance.

-My picks for the NBA Finals:

San Antonio vs. Indiana, with the Spurs winning it all. My credentials Spurs winning it air, my creatmans for making such picks—well, I cor-rectly picked six of the eight first— round matchups last year. Which makes me ... yeah, lucky. And glad that it's playoff time, after watching a team that lost 61 games this season, let the games begin.

Bullets hold post-mortem

Washington Bullets General Manager John Nash and Coach Jim Lynam held exit interviews with players Monday, as they began preparation for next season. And Nash reiterated that the team will need to improve on perimeter shoot-ing and defense—perhaps at the expense of some current players. Nash was asked about the status of Don MacLean and Rex Chapman for next season.

Both players are coming off injury-filled seasons.

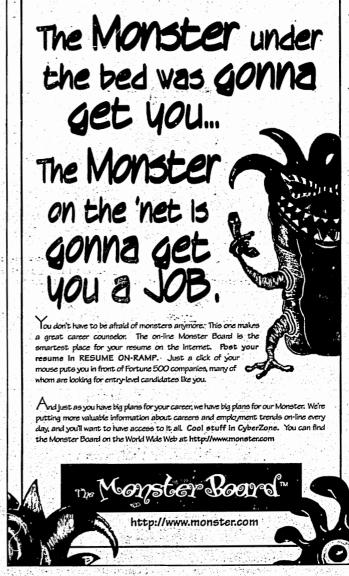

"On Don and Rex, I wouldn't single them out, but in a way of single them out, but in a way of single them out, but may be a way of them were to improve our learn we attempting to improve our team we have to improve defensively,"

"And if that means a change via a trade of offensive players for defen-sive players—we may have enough offense with an addition of a draft pick and a free agent.

'Rex and Don were in the same mold this year. Neither guy played at the level we expected, both were hampered by injuries, some of which were freakish," Nash added.

"Both thumbs—one was broken in the passing lane, and the other broken in the fast lane."

Women's tennis ends MVC year in third place

By Cynthia Sheets Daily Egyptian Reporter

Wichita State grabbed its sec-ond consecutive Missouri Valley Conference women's tennis title at the MVC Championships

Sunday in Springfield, Mo. The SIUC netters finished third in the tournament — the Saluki's highest MVC finish since 1991.

The seedings proved to be accurate, as No. 1 ranked Wichita defeated No. 2 Drake in a 5-3 Southern finished third in the field of eleven, defeating Southwest Missouri State, 5-4, in the final mund

The Saluki netters began the tournament Friday, taking on sixth-ranked Illinois State.

"We came out of singles play against Illinois State with a 3-3 record," SIUC women's tennis coach Judy Auld said. "The No. 1 and 3 doubles players pulled out wins to seal the match.

"It's always an intense rivalry for me when we go up against the Redbirds. 1 just don't like losing to them

Auld did not have to worry, as SIUC pulled out a 5-3 victory and moved on to face Drake, who earlier in the day defeated seventh-ranked Evansville to advance to the next round.

In No. 4 singles, Saluki Sanem Berksoy continued to shine against the Lady Bulldogs, defeat-ing Drake's Lindsay Bell, 6-4, 6-0 to capture the point for SIUC. The canine match-up ended in a 5-1 win for DU.

Eerksoy rounded out the tournament with a 32-11 singles record for the season, giving her a third-place tie on the SIUC alltime single-season list.

Dropping out of the Championship bracket, SIUC needed the win against Southwest Missouri State to command a third-place finish.

Auld explained that at the end of the individual competition against Southwest, the Salukis

"It all came down to Molly Card and Lucy Steele in the No. 2 doubles," Auld said. "We had suffered losses in the one and three pairs, and Molly and Lucy just came out and blew the competition away.

"It was an entire team effort," she said. "But more importantly, they put themselves on the line and put their whole heart into it. That's what you have to do at critical points of the game.

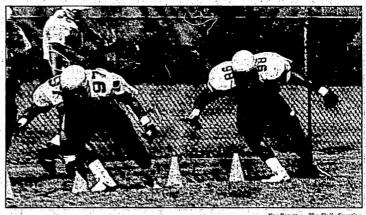

The Saluki netters had a tremendous season, individually and as a team, as four players in flights two through five finished with 25plus wins

Liz Gardner earned a 27-13 mark, Card finished with 27-11 record. In the fall season, Berksoy compiled an 32-11, slate while Helen Johnson established a 25-13 record.

Johnson and Berksov also combined in doubles action for a 28-9 record, giving them a share of sixth place on SIUC's all-time

Next season, Auld will not have to do much rebuilding, as she will lose only one player, senior Lucy Steele.

As of yet, Coach Auld has not signed anyone to fill the sixth seed in the singles flight.

Women's track still streaking

SIUC defeats Illinois St., Indiana St.; wins 5th straight

By David Vingren Daily Egyptian Reporter

You know your track and field team is good when it can put together a winning streak, which come few and far between since the quantity and quality of the competition is so

The SIUC women's track squadhas put on one of those rare displays this season, as it extended its winning streak to five last weekend by posting 160 points at the Indiana State Invitational in Terre Haute,

The Salukis bettered Missouri Valley Conference rivals Indiana State, which finished runner up with 139 points, and Illinois State, which picked up third-place with 136

For SIUC, who has yet to be beat-en this spring, what is left for the Salukis in their three meets before the conference championships begin May 16 in Springfield, Mo.

"We just go out and do the best e can," Saluki distance runner Debby Daehler said.

"The team has a lot of individuals

We just go out and do the best we can. The team has a lot of individuals who are trying to get qualified for nationals."

who are trying to get qualified for nationals. The rest of the meets are really important for that."

Daehler, who won the 3000-meter run last weekend with a personal-best time of nine minutes, 57 seconds, said the team still gets motivated at the prospect of further establishing itself as a top track and field program nationally.

Once again, competitors found themselves eating the dust of LaTonya Morrison's shoes as she won the 400-meter and 100-meter hurdle events.

Joy Williamson and the SIUC 4x800 relay team, consisting of Jennie Horner, Beth Bayser, Kim Koemer, and Hallema Ivory, rounded out the rest of the Saluki's firstplace finishers.

The SIUC women's track team next heads to Des Moines, lowa for Friday and Saturday's competition in the Drake Relays.

For the Saluki men's track team, last weekend's Tyson Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark. was canceled due

Of the five events that were able to be completed, three of them were won by SIUC.

Saluki Brian Miller won both the hammer throw and the shot put events, while John Sweetin was runner up in each event for the Dawgs. Miller also won the discus competition with teammate Ken Norkus finishing second.

The Saluki men's squad will take to the road as well, heading for Philadelphia, Penn. April 28 and 29 to take part in the Penn Relays.

Senior athletes get last hurrah

There weren't any tears sh far as I saw, but the Senior Athletics Banquet Sunday evening at the SIUC Student Center was full of crowning moments.

Aside from the events most prestigious honor, the first-ever Daily Egyptian Athlete of the Year Award that went to Jennie Horner, some other Saluki sports stars walked away with some hardware of their Rob Siracusano was named the Saluki Male Athlete of the Year, while the SIUC athletics staff followed the DE's trend and gave Horner the female honor.

Other athletes who gained recogor spirit accomplishments were Paul Lusk, Ian Stewart, Deb Heyne, Lischen Eller, Rockey Ransom and Saluki football coach Shawn Watson addressed the athletes with an inspirational post-meal speech, and Jeff Zoeteman gave the cation.

All in all ... it was one of the more distinguished honors ceremonies ve attended here at SIUC.

But I do have to apologize to SIUC Sports Marketing Director Mike Trude for being a bit tardy for the event. Sorry Mr. Trude ... I mistakenly thought the banquet was at Forgetting someone? Did some-one tell the NFL before last weekends draft that Gateway Conference players weren't eligible?

Eastern Illinois defensive back Ray McElroy was the only Gateway player picked up as of Monday afternoon. McElroy was a fourth round pick of the Indianapolis Colts.

Come on folks ... don't tell me Northern Iowa linebacker Andre Alien, the Conference Player of the Year, isn't one of the top 249 players in the country.

By the way, Carolina got Boston College wideout Michael Reed with the 249th pick. The Eagles are the only team rumored to be interested in Allen as a free agent according to the UNI Sports Information people.

Wake up call: Draft day turned out to be more of a nightmare for Illinois linebacker Dana Howard, a native of East St. Louis.

Howard was a Butkus Award finalist, which goes to the nation's top-linebacker, but wasn't taken until the fifth round.

In fact, Howard wasn't even the first Illini linebacker to get drafted ... his slower, less athletic teammate John Holacek was.

Howard went to Dallas with the PRESSBOX, page 15

Magic Johnson again hints at unretirement

INGLEWOOD, Calif.-Theother sneaker dropped Monday, when Magic Johnson, hoping to play in the 1996 Summer Olympics, refused to rule out a return for the 1995-96 National Baskethall Association season.

No, there is nothing imminent. No, it isn't likely. Yes, he propped the door open again.
"You know, I can't come back for the playoffs because I'm an owner," he said at a news conference, promoting his participa-tion in the Southern California Summer Pro League.

How would he deal with that if he decided to return next sea-

"Maybe I'd slide it over to my wife," said Johnson, laughing, However, Johnson's agent, on Rosen, said that won't satisfy NBA rules.

"I can't do that, either?" said

Johnson, laughing, "How about my father?"

NBA rules say it would have to be an outright sale, not a mere transfer, Los Angeles Laker vice-president Jerry West couldn't be reached for comment, but insiders said it's unlikely the building Lakers will invite Johnson back People close to Johnson said it's unlikely he'll go elsewhere.

"If he was coming back, and that's a big if," Rosen said, "it'd probably be with the Lakers, But I don't think he's coming back."

Said Johnson: "First of all, I wouldn't give Jerry West a headache. No. 1. you have to
