Plan says city must fund social services

By Bob Boudurant
Staff Writer

More funding sources for Carbondale social service programs need to be found at the local level, city administrators told the City Council Monday.

A final draft of the Carbondale Human Services Plan was submitted to the council for review and discussion by Human Resources Director Robert Stalls. The council put off further discussion of the plan until March 8.

The plan forecasts social service needs for the next five years and sets goals for funding to sustain social programs, including many not run by the city.

The figures that the plan includes are "not written in stone," Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry said.

The social service funding goals "would be ideal to carry out service programs with," Fry said, "but the resources are just not there and nobody is likely to get all that they want."

Presently, many of the city's comprehensive child and health care programs are funded through the federal Community Development Block Grant program. It would be transferred to the states under President Ronald Reagan's New Federalism proposal.

But the city is unsure whether the state would issue block grant funds and is expecting no further block grants from the federal or state governments after 1984.

This year the city must cope with a federal regulation which restricts how much it can spend on social services to only 10 percent of the entire grant awarded. Last year, Carbondale spent approximately 25 percent of its grant on social services.

Thus, the major funding source of Carbondale's social service programs will be restricted as long as Carbondale continues to receive CDBG money, Community Development Director Don Monty told the council.

Fry said, "We're getting ... a mandate from them that we can't spend it for what we said we'd spend it heretofore."

He said that in order to keep local social service programs at the same level, it would take a property tax levy as great as $1 per $100 assessed valuation, but "I don't think the community will stand for that increase in costs," he said.

Stalls told the council that the report was still being reviewed by several consultants and asked for any criticism of the plan.

"I do not presume to tell you what to fund," Stalls told the council. "I just say that there's little money left for the programs that we're operating, and they're diminishing."

Carbondale Mayor Hans Fischer said that this year was an important one for the future of Carbondale's social service programs.

"It will set the pattern for the direction that the council will be taking," Fischer said. "All of us at the council table are going to be faced with a different way of life."

Monty said the plan shows "what kind of financial constraints the city will be facing if it wants to continue these programs at the same level of service."

Could start in May

Recycling franchise OK'd

By Bob Boudurant
Staff Writer

Monthly pickups of recyclable materials in Carbondale could begin by May 1, after the City Council informally approved an agreement with its recycling franchisee.

Waste Not Paper Recycling is to begin picking up newspaper and other recyclables along city trash-hauling routes during the first week of May, according to the agreement.

5 percent of Waste Not's income from selling the material will be paid to the city in return, and the firm will leave wet newspaper, which is unrecyclable, with the city's public works department.

Residents would be required, according to a proposed city "trash ordinance," to separate newspaper from other trash and bundle it.

Although only newsprint would be required to be separated, Waste Not will pick up all recyclables separated from trash.

Hank Dews, manager of Waste Not, was the sole bidder on the franchise when bids were opened Jan. 27.

In other informal action, the council agreed to raise the rental rates at the Eurma C. Hayes center by 10 percent, to $4.94 per square foot rented.

A plan for allocating $254,541 in Illinois motor fuel tax funds for various maintenance supplies also was endorsed by the council.

The council also agreed not to give in-state bidders an advantage in contract procedures, after a legal report from Elizabeth Byrnes, assistant city attorney, advocated no change in policy.

Under fire, Williams still insists he's innocent

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne B. Williams angrily turned back attempts by prosecutors to shake his story Tuesday, lashing out at his accusers and declaring: "I'm innocent, and that's all there is to it."

"Did you experience any panic at any point during the time you were killing these victims?" Assistant District Attorney Jack Mallard asked the 23-year-old murder defendant at one point during the afternoon cross-examination.

"Sir, I haven't killed anyone," Williams replied. "Isn't it true you killed them?" Mallard asked.

"I'm about as guilty as you are," Williams told him. "If you're guilty, then I'm guilty."

At one point Williams said he could have been a victim himself in the string of slayings of 28 young Atlanta blacks that outraged the nation.

"I'm 23 years old and I could have been a victim ... Anyone in Atlanta could have been. I'm not so sure it's over yet," he said.

Williams also said that policemen threatened him; that eyewitnesses made up stories and that he feared for his life after being questioned last spring in the series of slayings.

Pleas of 'Don't close us down' heard at Bowen Center hearing

By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

In an emotion-packed evening of testimony before a legislative committee, the overwhelming message delivered by a score of people connected with the A.L. Bowen Developmental Center was: For the sake of our children, don't close us down.

More than 450 persons packed the auditorium of Malan Junior High in Harrisburg Tuesday to plead for the center's survival before a task force committee convened by House Majority Leader Michael Madigan.

The committee was chaired by state Rep. James Rea, D-59th District, and also included Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District, state Sen. Gene Johns, D-59th District; Marsha Edwards, representing state Senate President Philip Rock's office; and Kurt DeWeese, representing Madigan's Democratic leadership staff.

Gov. James Thompson announced last Friday he hopes to shut down the center by July 1 and move the patients to Anna Mental Health and Developmental Center. He said his decision was "a hard choice" but that the state mental health system must be consolidated "because we have only so much money to spend."

Nevertheless, the proposed closure has greatly upset employees, parents of handicapped children and many others who claim it would do immeasurable harm to the children and young adults who live at Bowen.

Commodities fraud said to top $200 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators said Tuesday that commodities fraud has grown into a $200 million-a-year "floating crap game" that easily eludes the federal agency responsible for policing the industry.

The Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations heard testimony from investors who were duped out of their life savings and convicted swindlers who practically overnight turned their knowledge of Wall Street into fortunes.

One of the swindlers alleged that lawyers with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, who are winning their fraud cases are being hired away by the defendants' law firms.

Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-

Del., the subcommittee chairman, said thousands of Americans have been victimized "by con artists operating under the guise of legitimate commodity investment firms."

Roth, opening three days of hearings, said the CFTC which was created in 1975, "has been seriously outgunned by its opposition." He vowed to seek enactment of a federal law that would return power to crack down on fraud to state authorities.

Meanwhile, CFTC Chairman Philip McBride Johnson told a House Agriculture subcommittee that Congress should declare "open season" on fraud "masquerading as commodity investments." The agriculture subcommittee is questioning whether the CFTC should be extended beyond this year when its current term expires.

Johnson, Roth and other critics of the CFTC want Congress to repeal a 1978 law that pre-empted state authorities from policing commodity fraud, giving the CFTC exclusive authority.

Under the proposals, the CFTC also could share non-confidential information with other agencies, including foreign governments.

"Charlatans operating from foreign bases, such as in Canada or Europe, or who move offshore to island havens, may find their local governments more hostile if the evidence against them is shared by the CFTC with those governments," Johnson said.

Cellhouse on deadlock at Pontiac

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — A confrontation involving 90 to 100 prisoners prompted officials to place the south cellhouse at the Pontiac Correctional Center on deadlock Tuesday, Department of Corrections spokesman Nic Howell said.

An inmate was stabbed during the fighting, which broke out between two groups of prisoners, and was reported in good condition Tuesday afternoon at the prison hospital, Howell said.

The fighting started at about 9:40 a.m. during a recreational period in the south yard and authorities are uncertain what sparked the incident, Howell said.

Castro supports Mexican peace plan

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fidel Castro has endorsed a Mexican peace plan for Central America that calls for talks between Cuba and the United States. But he set a condition — that the Reagan administration stop what he called "continuous threats" against its neighbors.

The Cuban president, in a letter to Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, also said he was "ready to offer the fullest guarantees" that weapons in Cuba will not be used for aggression anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

U.S. sanctions getting little support

LONDON (AP) — America's allies have moved only hesitantly toward joining the United States in sanctions against the Soviet Union and Poland because of the imposition of martial law in Poland.

The impact of most of the actions appears minor, although together they represent growing displeasure at the Polish clampdown Dec. 13. In addition, a major deal with the Soviets to pipe gas to Western Europe apparently is going ahead with the participation of West Germany, France and Japan despite U.S. opposition.

Bush: El Salvador 'close to home'

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Vice President George Bush said Tuesday night that "El Salvador is closer to home than many people think," telling an audience that the Central American nation is only 200 miles farther away from Peoria than Los Angeles is.

The Reagan administration is backing the government of El Salvador in its struggle against various opposition factions in the country. That policy has come under fire by some who criticize the Salvadoran government for human rights violations and fear the United States will be led into another Vietnam-like conflict.

The vice president's text, unlike discussions earlier in the day with county and city leaders about the administration's "new federalism," dealt mainly with world and national issues.

In earlier remarks to community leaders, Bush said the essence of the "new federalism" is to "bring the local genius to bear on local problems."

Bush met with a group of 21 community leaders in the Peoria City Council chamber shortly after his arrival, which was met with demonstrations at the Greater Peoria Airport and City Hall in downtown Peoria.

At the airport, a small cluster of men chanted "Hey George, how about giving us jobs." At City Hall, members of the Asbestos Workers International Local 17 greeted Bush with a large sign proclaiming solidarity through unions.

Inside the Council chambers, Bush answered questions from eight community leaders.

Thompson's SIU talk to push industry

By Tom Travia
News Editor

Gov. James R. Thompson will speak on the state's industrial needs at 3 p.m. Thursday at McLeod Theater in the Communications Building.

Mike Woelffer, assistant to the director of the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, said Thompson will introduce the recently formed Illinois Inc. to the people of Southern Illinois and ask for their help in promoting the idea.

Illinois Inc., of which Woelffer is director, was launched in August to combine resources of business, labor and state government to promote cooperative advertising of Illinois and to attract and develop industry. The theme of the cooperative campaign is "Discover the Magnificent Miles of Illinois," he said.

"The state has limited advertising funds," said Woelffer. "With Illinois Inc. getting people together and marketing the state as a group, we can involve the public sector and use less tax dollars for advertising.

"This is an open-ended program. We want to encourage local community participation," he said.

The purpose of Illinois Inc. is to attract national corporations to Illinois and convince Illinois corporations to stay, said Woelffer. He said the program is different from those of other states which have had similar programs have used only tax dollars for their promotions. Illinois Inc. plans to use tax dollars only as a base, building on the base with contributions from the public sector, he said.

So far, the program has been a success, he said. "I don't have exact figures, but I'd say that for every dollar we've put into the program, we've gotten five back."

"The response has been fantastic so far," he said. "We had 600 members initially, including major corporate leaders and people from the economic and tourism sectors, and I've recently received word that we can expect a lot more. I think that once word gets out in Southern Illinois, we can expect even more members, and the program should really take off."

According to Woelffer, Thompson's Carbondale address will emphasize promotion of Illinois coal abroad and tourism in Southern Illinois. He said that Air Illinois is joining the program by changing its logo to coincide with the "Discover the Magnificent Miles of Illinois" slogan, and he expects other Southern Illinois businesses to join the program as well.

Somit to discuss space needs in State of University speech

President Albert Somit will deliver the annual State of the University address at an all-university faculty senate meeting at 2 p.m. Friday in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

Topics that Somit plans to cover include a campus-wide analysis of space requirements, the undergraduate admissions policy, strategies for recruiting top students and senior faculty, the General Studies program, support services for research, institutional development and fund-raising.

According to Tom Busch, assistant to the president, Marvin Kleinau, president of the Faculty Senate, will deliver his views on the state of the university following the address by Somit.

Busch said that the speech will be broadcast on Channel 8 at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Campus thefts net $12,300

SIU-C police are investigating separate burglaries in which SIU-C typewriters and a computer part valued at about $12,300 were stolen.

The theft of 15 electric typewriters, worth about $10,500, from the clerical and welding building of the Career Development Center in the School of Technical Careers, was reported Monday morning. The building is near Ordill, off Illinois 148.

Wanda Stucker, a faculty member in the career center, told police Monday morning that a window in one of the building's doors was broken out and that the typewriters were missing, police said.

Mrs. Stucker declined comment, and Larry

Hepburn, director of the center, was unavailable for comment.

In another burglary, a computer was reported stolen from Faner Hall over the weekend.

Thomas Purcell, associate director of computer-assisted instruction and research, called campus police about 5 p.m. Saturday to report the theft after part of a computer was discovered missing by a graduate student, he said.

Harold Richard, director of institutional research and study, said about $400 worth of the computer's components were left behind, and that the part stolen was worth about $1,800.

Opinion & Commentary

Drastic times call for administrative pay freeze

EDUCATION is facing drastic times. Faced with dwindling state and federal financing, SIU-C administrators say they are forced to raise tuition to cover the costs of providing quality education. Meanwhile, Illinois students are facing possible cuts in federally funded student aid totaling $70 million for the 1983 fall semester, including cuts in the Pell Grant program, College Work Study program and Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant program.

Yes, the times are drastic. But drastic times call for drastic measures.

It's time to find ways to keep the costs down instead of automatically raising tuition every time the budget gets a little tight.

It's time for the SIU-C administration to share some of the burden students are being asked to shoulder.

IT'S TIME for a freeze on administrative salaries, as law students, facing a possible tuition increase of 37 percent, suggested at a recent hearing on the proposed tuition increases.

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw argues that such a freeze would damage the University by rendering it incapable of competing for top-notch administrators. Shaw maintains that administrative salaries are a function of the market and, therefore, are not controlled by individuals' predilections of what they should be earning.

But, in reality, administrators create the market that determines administrative salary levels. Administrators hire other administrators.

GRANTED, a freeze on the salaries of administrators who are within two levels of the president and who now earn at least $40,000 a year would not save the University much. Assuming the salaries of these administrators — from the chancellor to the various deans — would have been raised 10 percent, a freeze would save only about $135,000 — which one administrator calls a "drop in the bucket" of about $110 million in appropriated resources for SIU-C.

But such a freeze would be worth more than that as a symbolic gesture showing that administrators empathize with the students who feel they are being priced out of higher education.

Such a feeling of empathy would also challenge relatively high-paid administrators to come up with more equitable ways to finance the SIU-C budget — challenge them to demonstrate that they are worth their high salaries.

Letters

Protect Iranians' rights

As an active student group at SIU-C, we were appalled at the content of Mr. Rabie's letter to the editor in the Feb. 15 issue of the Daily Egyptian. It is apparent to us that his letter is nothing more than a slander campaign against the Muslim Student Association. In addition to containing libelous statements (e.g., accusing the Muslim Student Association of spy activities), the letter totally distorts the nature of the conflict between the two groups of Iranian students. What Rabie failed to mention is that, I believe, he is a member of the Muslim Student Society, a group whose recognized student organization status is under investigation.

With regard to the letter, Rabie implies that because there are political conflicts in Iran, these conflicts must necessarily carry over into the United States and manifest themselves in a violent manner. The logic of this in and of itself is faulty.

Furthermore, it is interesting to note that the charges Rabie has leveled against the pro-Khomeini students (i.e., that they are responsible for provoking violence throughout the U.S. and around the world) have also been leveled against anti-Khomeini students. This leads us to conclude that Rabie is guilty of waging a propaganda campaign against the MSA, and is doing so by stirring up hatred against Khomeini supporters.

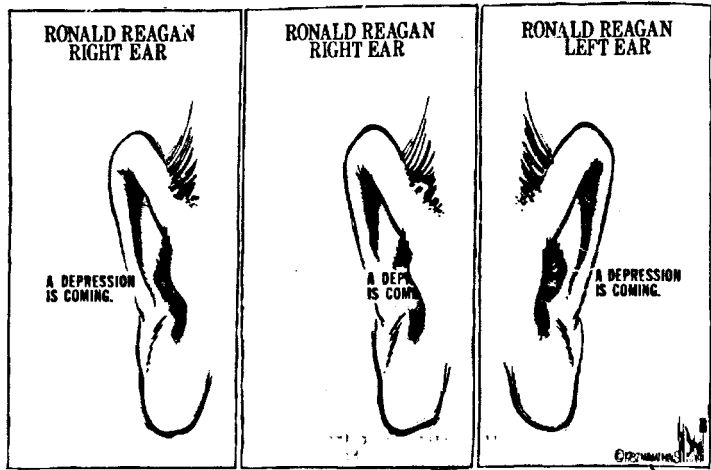

It is ludicrous to assume that simply because Rabie can round up 127 signatures gives him the right to suspend a student group's activities, especially when the group has done nothing to violate university regulations. It seems Rabie is trying to get even for the fact that his student group's status is in jeopardy due to its violent misconduct.

Finally, let us emphasize Rabie's concluding statement: "We sincerely hope that this University will respond to this petition in such a manner that further conflicts between us and the Muslim Student Association may be avoided." With this statement, Rabie seems to be offering the University an ultimatum: either do what we want, or the conflicts will continue. In light of this, one can only conclude that it is Rabie and his associates who have instigated the violent conflicts, and that they have every intention of continuing their aggressive behavior.

Because of this, we call on the SIU-C administration not only to ignore the ridiculous call of Rabie's petition, but also to protect the rights of the Muslim Student Association and all Iranian students. This necessitates guaranteeing that they have the right to assemble and have programs on campus, and that they can continue to eat lunch in the cafeteria — without the threat of physical assault. In all fairness, this is the only solution. — Cecelia

GSC should support boycott of 'bottle-baby disease' sellers

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

DURING A time when many of us are simply too bewildered by the social and ethical complications of many issues to take firm pro or con positions, one issue clearly begs us to fight a wrong.

The issue does not pit one awesome inhuman element against another as does the environment vs. technology issue where questions about such intangibles as the outward reach of human achievement and the price of progress stagger the imagination.

Nor does it ask, at its finest and most indefinite stage, where the spark in human life ignites as does pro-life vs. abortion.

The issue is simply and terribly the exploitation of the weak and innocent by the strong and sophisticated.

IT IS GREED and power vs. mother and child.

According to INFACT — the Infant Formula Action Coalition — Nestle, a giant multinational foodstuff company, is peddling infant formula to developing nations — an action that is producing "bottle-baby disease" in millions of infants every year.

The formula is being sold to areas where the water is polluted and resources are few, allowing little possibility of it being used correctly. Some women try to make the expensive formula last longer, up to four months for a three-week supply, resulting in malnourished babies who quite often become sick and die.

INFACT, a Minneapolis-based organization that began with 20 members and $500 in 1977, has focused a worldwide boycott on Nestle because "they are so aggressive in their campaign to push the formula off on these impoverished people."

NESTLE is encouraging the mothers in Cape Verde, Congo, Lasotho, Niger, Sierra Leone, Togo and other places to stop breast feeding their babies, according to INFACT. Yet breast feeding provides the antibodies infants in these disease-ridden countries desperately need. Nestle's formula contains on carrying weapon."

A world away, Cicero said, a South Florida mother who has safe drinking water readily available, the education to understand sanitary precautions and the money to easily afford infant formula, breast feeds her newborn. She knows that her own milk is better for her baby than any infant formula on the market.

What is going on here?

ACCORDING to the World Health Organization, breast feeding is still the best source of nutrition for infants and it is a "source of nutrition most economically compatible with the needs and capabilities of many underprivileged populations."

The WHO formed a code in May 1981 to stop the sale of these formulas in the Third World. The code was supported by 118 nations; only an embarrassed Reagan administration opposed it.

Meanwhile, babies are dying in the name of corporate profit.

INFACT is stepping up its boycott campaign and has recently asked the SIU-C Graduate Student Council to support the Nestle boycott — an issue the GSC is likely to discuss at its meeting Wednesday.

The boycott has had some success to date. In 1980, Nestle's profits declined by 16 percent due in a large part to the INFACT boycott. However, after almost five years of boycott, Nestle is still selling its formula to the weak and innocent. More support is needed — support the GSC could help to generate on campus.

It's time to ask ourselves how wrong is wrong?

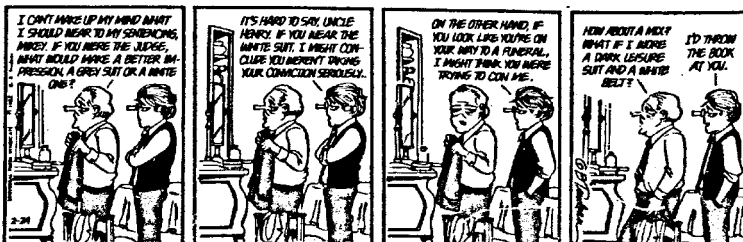

'They are so aggressive in their campaign to push the formula off on these impoverished people.'

such antibodies.

Lindy Cicero, a writer for the Miami Herald, said it best when she wrote: "An illiterate, mother in a primitive village in Bangladesh, convinced that what comes from a can is better than her own breast milk, spends a third of her family's $200-a-year income buying infant formula. She then mixes it with contaminated water in an unsterilized container, unwittingly turning her baby's bottle into a lethal, disease-

Film shows a different side of the crisis in El Salvador

By Laurie Landgraf
Entertainment Editor

Last Thursday evening, pressed about the possibility of sending military muscle into El Salvador, President Reagan declared "there are no plans to send American combat troops into action any place in the world."

That same night, viewers of a film screened in Morris Library Auditorium heard dissonant chords in Reagan's hallelujah of reassurance about a war in which the United States is already involved.

"El Salvador — The People Will Win" is a 90-minute documentary that graphically depicts the story of the tiny Central American country from the viewpoint of its rebels, the people's militia and the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front.

The documentary was here last Thursday and Friday under the auspices of the Coalition for Change, a newly-organized campus group. Plans are for the film to again be on campus April 1 and 2.

The film, made in 1980, combines original and borrowed color footage, video transferred to film and filmed drawings into a collage-like tour of 500 years of government and economic intervention by outside countries into El Salvador.

It also describes the more recent unification of progressive forces in the country in opposition to the military-civilian junta now headed by Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Much of the political jargon is hard to follow. The dialogue is spoken in Spanish with English subtitles, and it traces the parade of dictatorships which have ruled the country.

More compelling are the images. Civilians riddled with military bullets as they scramble up the steps of the Cathedral at San Salvador. The cat-and-mouse chase of guerrillas through the countryside by the Salvadoran army. The discover, of a group of young men left dead at the bottom of a ravine, their slit throats yawning at the sky.

Equally disturbing are the words of one of the leftist leaders: "If any foreign army interferes, we have the right to turn to outside help ... We're willing to fight for the right to shape our own destiny."

The music, composed by Argentinian Adrian Goizneta, is inspiring and reflects the plight of the economically powerless in a country where, according to the film, 2 percent of the population owns 60 percent of the arable land.

The film closes with a gripping scene depicting a young boy in anguish at the graveside of his father, who has just been shot by the military. The boy seems unaware of the camera as he fuses vindictiveness with pain. He eventually is shown donning the red kerchief and beret of the rebel militia.

In an interesting prologue, a cameraman, until now unseen, meets in secret with a peasant woman. He hides his camera in her laundry basket, which she replaces on her head as she climbs out of the underbrush, bringing home the concept that the film was made with the assistance of many who remain nameless.

The film, of course, reflects the filmmakers' bias. But as American involvement escalates, with millions of dollars in military and economic aid to go to the Salvadoran government this year pending official approval, and with over 1,000 Salvadoran army members receiving basic training at U.S. army installations — in a war in which more than 30,000 civilians have been killed — the film provides a new perspective on the reality of a struggle which is geographically close but from which Americans are too often buffered.

Undergrad enrollment at 23,018

Spring enrollment at SIU-C for 1982 is 23,018 undergraduates, according to Harold Richard, director of institutional research and studies. Current enrollment is 20% below the enrollment for spring semester 1981.

Graduate student totals will not be available until later this week.

Richard said the enrollment figure breaks down to 20,781 undergraduates on campus, a gain of 470 from last spring, and 2,337 off-campus students, most of them on military bases around the nation. The off-campus total is down 664 from last year.

The number of continuing undergraduates on this campus this spring is 18,564. This is 1,508 less than last spring's figure for returnees.

Also down is the total of re-entering students — 500 compared to 1,153 last spring.

There are 925 transfer students enrolled this spring.

The ranks of first-time students at SIU-C fell by 186: 353 this spring compared to 539 last spring.

B. Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records, said of the drop in the number of first-time students, "With the projected numbers of graduating high school seniors dropping, this trend is likely to continue over the next few years."

'Dare' expresses simple feelings

By Floss Dally
WIDB Disc Jockey

"Dare," the debut album by The Human League, is a rather remarkable effort for several reasons.

One is the band's clarity of purpose: to express feelings in a simple and easy-handed manner while delivering a driving sound that's fine for dancing or just sitting around in the ozone. Another reason is that you don't have to change your hairstyle to like it.

The Human League can most easily be described as a band retaining the class of, say, The Moody Blues, while picking up on more progressive sounds such as those offered by The Psychedelic Furs, Spandau Ballet or Soft Cell, whose current hit, "Tainted Love," is a great example of the type of music The Human League presents. Beautiful. Symmetric. No guitars, but tasteful arrangements for four synthesizers, two drums and the human voice.

Album Review

THE HUMAN LEAGUE

wrote most of the songs on the LP, with occasional help from Ian Burden (synthesizer) and Philip Adrian Wright (slides and synthesizer). They are all passionate, human songs — not rejections but projections.

Filling out the band are Jo Callis on synthesizers and Joanne Cathedral and Susanne Sulley as backing larks. Together, they give an uncluttered sound that's rich and compelling without resembling the saccharine, mindless type of pop confection that could be a commercial for the Richard Simmons Show.

If you think all rock and roll should sound like a rebash of "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida," then Don't Pass Go — Don't Collect This Disc. But if you want an album that will move you to dance, sing, maybe even think, ask for it.

Best cuts: "Don't You Want Me," "Love Action," "I Am the Law," "The Things That Dreams Are Made Of." —
Rating: 3½ stars (4 stars tops)

Don't turn the page, though. This album has none of the noodling bombast one would expect at a Wakeman-Emerson title bout. Instead, the synthesizers create a wonderful space for the soaring vocals, reminiscent of some of the best Talking Heads' choral stretches or perhaps Todd Rundgren's smoothest performances. Lead singer Phillip Oakley

Variety show, organ recital set

A variety show by the Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity and a recital by graduate student Daniel McDaniel are performances scheduled by the School of Music this week. Both are free and open to the public.

"Encore '82" is the title of an evening of musical entertainment sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, to begin at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

Solo performers will include ventriloquist J. Gavin Wilson; David Jesik, guitarist; pianist Robert Siemens, performing Mozart's "Sonata in B-flat Major" and improvisational comedian Claude Axelrod.

Ensembles will include the Phi Mu Alpha Chorus and the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Combo, performing "Billie's Bounce," "Happy is the Man With the Music," and Sonny Rollins' "St. Thomas."

Daniel McDaniel will present his graduate organ recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in Shryock Auditorium.

McDaniel is also organist for the First Christian Church in Mayfield, Ky. His program will include Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor," Charles Wesley's "God Save the King" with New Variations, Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's "Sonata II," Marcel Dupre's "Cortege et Litanie" five chorale preludes by Ernst Pepping, and "Carillon" by Louis Vierne.

THE QUEST OF THE SECRET CITY SWEEPSTAKES

here's a city in Europe—you could travel there free. So unravel these riddles, and uncover its key.

TO PLAY THE GAME:

Answer each of the riddles that will appear here each week in February. Write your answer in the blanks below each riddle. The letters with numbers below them correspond to the numbered spaces in the master key. As you fill in the letters of the master key, you will be spelling the name and location of a secret city in Europe. Send us the solution, and you and a friend could win a trip there, free.

TO ENTER SWEEPSTAKES:

1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.
2. Grand Prize consists of two regular round-trip economy airfares to the secret city, 30-day Eurail passes, American Youth Hostel passes, two backpacks and $1000 in cash.
3. Cut out master key for use as official entry blank or use 3" x 5" card. Print your answer along with your name and address. Mail to Secret City Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 6018, Norwalk, CT 06852.
4. The first 1,000 correct respondents will receive a poster as an entry prize.
5. All entries must be received by 3/15/82. Enter as often as you wish, but each entry must be mailed separately.
6. A random drawing of all correct entries will be held 3/22/82 by the Highland Group, an independent judging organization whose decision is final.
7. Sweepstakes void where prohibited, taxed or otherwise restricted.
8. All potential winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility to verify compliance with the rules within 30 days of receipt of same. For a list of prize winners, send self-addressed, stamped envelope to Secret City Sweepstakes c/o Highland Group, 16 Knight St., Norwalk, CT 06851.

WHAT AM I?

I work all day

Lyrics do the trick for Reed album

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

In "The Blue Mask," his latest album, which he co-produced with Sean Fullan, Lou Reed seems to branch out from the trails formed in his Velvet Underground days in the late '60s and from his more recent and mellowed bent.

Though the guitar work of Reed and Robert Quine, onetime guitarist for Richard Hell and the Voidoids, is fine, the album's real strength seems to lie in the lyrics.

For example, the words in the song "Women" contain elements of romance tempered with uncompromised honesty. Reed sings that women are "a solace to a world in a terrible state." Later in the song: "I used to look at women in the magazines. I know that it was sexist, but I was in my teens."

In "The Gun," lyrical repetition drives the point into the listener's skull: "Carrying a gun, carrying a gun, don't mess with me, I'm carrying a gun." Reed's message is made painfully clear.

"The Day John Kennedy Died" is an idealized, slow-paced and vivid recollection of how Reed felt the day of the Kennedy assassination. The tone ends up sounding almost folk-like.

The distorted guitar work and slow but strong persistent rhythms of two tunes, "Waves of Fear" and the title cut, are classic Reed. The two songs' angry lyrics seem to betray an intense alienation that is intellectually hard to articulate.

Reed, however, does have his sense of humor. In "Average Guy," he tells us he's "average in everything I do, my temperature is 98.2." Here, his lead guitar seems to gently accentuate the humor.

One cut worth noting is "Heavenly Arms." It says a lot about how love can make an irredeemably wrong world livable to a pessimistic idealist, such as Reed. Maybe such an unabashedly romantic song is bucking a trend, but Reed is used to being a trend-setter. — Rating: 3½ stars (4 stars tops)

WARNING!

ARE YOU PAYING HIGHER MILK PRICES!

True. Stolen milk cases cost Midwest area customers several million dollars a year in extra costs passed on in the form of higher milk prices! The cases are stolen—yes stolen—from supermarkets, convenience stores, dairy stores, restaurants, schools and other locations. We know they make great book cases, storage shelves, tool boxes and have many other fascinating uses. That's why department stores sell similar cases for the same use. But they are the property of the companies whose name is on the side.

We need your help. If you have any of these milk cases in your possession, please return them to a local supermarket, dairy or convenience store. No questions will be asked. No action will be taken. For 60 days we will have an open amnesty on all missing milk cases. Please help return them to help hold down higher milk prices. If you do your part and help return the cases... we'll do our part and be more strict in enforcing prosecution on persons found with these stolen cases.

Thank you for your support and understanding.

Ex 'Trotter spins skills for school

Hallie Bryant, former Harlem Globetrotter who is now the team's advance publicity representative, kept children and faculty alike entertained at the Winkler School Tuesday morning.

And they yelled for more of his flashy basketball antics, which gave them a taste of what will be at the Arena Monday night when the Globetrotters come to town.

Bryant joined the team in 1967 out of Indiana State University. He played 11 seasons with them.

The Globetrotters have been around since 1927 when Abe Saperstein founded the team, Bryant said, and they played their first games that year in Hincley, Ill.

Bryant said the team has endured because "it's ageless, international, there's no language barrier and when people start having three legs then we'll have to change our concept."

The Globetrotters don't plan to change their concept or clean image, but Bryant said they constantly modify their act to keep up with changing audiences. "The things we do one night, won't be the same the next. The comedy is what changes; the act stays the same."

Bryant walked out of the school building and twirled a basketball for the cheering children in the playground, before he was driven away in an SIU car.

Globetrotter tickets are $5.50, $6.50 and $7.50, less a $2 discount for SIU-C students with ID and children 12 and under. Sales are at the Arena South Lobby Box Office.

Talk planned on higher ed cost increase

Keith Sanders, SIU legislative liaison, will address the Student Senate at its meeting Wednesday night.

Sanders, who is the lobbyist in Springfield for the SIU system, will talk about state level increases for higher education, and will tell how students can become actively involved in voicing their concerns and opinions to the state legislature, Gregg Larson, Undergraduate Student Organization vice president, said.

The USO Academic Affairs Commission will recommend to the senate that it allocate $170 to pay the printing costs for a publication the commission has compiled called a "Guide to General Studies Classes."

College celebrating 25 years in business

By William J. Young
Student Writer

The spring semester marks a milestone for the College of Business and Administration. The college has begun observing the 25th anniversary of its existence, starting this week with a Career Enhancement Week that continues to March 1.

The career enhancement program is designed to provide business students with information about how to succeed in business.

David N. Bateman, associate professor in the Department of Administrative Science, and Dan Martin, project research specialist, are responsible for planning, organizing and coordinating activities for the anniversary.

Martin, 33, currently pursuing a Ph.D. in higher education and marketing, said a highlight of the activities will be the presentation of the International Leadership Award for Business Entrepreneurship.

The award gives public recognition to persons who have successfully developed business and other types of enterprises, Martin said. So far, two business executives have been given the award.

Frank L. Carney, president and chairman of the board of Pizza Hut Inc., received the first award in 1979, and W. Clement Stone, chairman of the Combined International Corp. and the Combined Insurance Co. of America, was given the second award in 1980. The recipient of this year's award will be R. David Thomas, founder of Wendy's International Inc.

Martin has been project research specialist for three years and has been in SIU-C since 1966. He is a member of a steering committee, chaired by Bateman, to organize the various activities for the anniversary. Since its conception, the college has had five deans.

Henry J. Rehn was the college's first dean. He served for 18 years, from 1947 to 1965. Robert E. Hill served for a year in 1966 before leaving to become president of Chico State University of California.

Robert S. Hancock took over as dean for the next three years from 1967 to 1970. Charles H. Hendersman, currently the acting vice president for University Relations at SIU-C, served as the dean from 1970 to 1976.

From 1976 to 1981, John R. Darling served as the dean. He is now the vice president for academic affairs at Texas Tech University. The college expects to appoint a new dean in 1982. R. Clifton Andersen is serving as acting dean.

The college will launch a business week April 19 as an extension of the anniversary observance. The business week will feature guests from professional groups throughout St. Louis and Southern Illinois. The college also intends to invite business groups from other universities to participate.

An important event during the anniversary celebration will be the ceremonial naming of the General Classroom Building. Martin said a proposal to rename the building has been submitted and is expected to be approved to coincide with the triarter-century celebration.

In 1945, when the University was organized into three categories — education, liberal arts and sciences, and vocations and professions — the Department of Business was placed in the later category.

In 1965, the departments of Business, Administration, Economics, and Industrial Education became the School of Business and Industry. A few years later, Industrial Education became the School of Engineering of today. During this period, the Department of Business had only 15 faculty members. Today, the college has 65 faculty.

Martin said an Honors Day will be held in conjunction with the anniversary. The program will honor business students who have excelled academically.

In the fall of 1980, SIU-C became the second university in Illinois to offer a full range of accredited undergraduate and graduate programs in business and administration, including the Doctor of Business Administration. The University of Illinois was the first in Illinois to grant such programs.

The first graduates of the DBA program are expected in 1983. More than 30 DBA candidates are also expected to be enrolled within the next five years.

According to Andersen, associate dean for academic programs who is acting dean, spring semester undergraduate enrollment in the college is 2,342.

Accountancy has the largest enrollment with 641. There are 548 enrolled in marketing, 325 in administrative sciences, 319 in finance, 130 in business and administration and 36 in business economics. In addition, Andersen said, there are 343 students undecided about majors.

The graduate program has 165 enrolled this semester. There are 140 enrolled in the MBA program and 25 in the Rain or shine, Forest Service may dry wood with storage unit

By David Booton
Student Writer

The Forest Service is adding a solar heat storage system to its wood drying kiln at the School of Technical Careers-Carterville. The North Central Forest Experiment Station and the Thermal Environmental Engineering Department are doing the work.

Up to three days of energy supply will be stored in the unit for use on overcast days, according to Peter Chen, principal forest products technologist.

"With the two- or three-day storage capacity," Chen said, "we hope to continuously dry our lumber 75 percent of the time."

The storage unit is being built out of riverbed rock and will be completed in June of this year, Chen said.

The 500 board-foot kiln was first built in 1977. In winter it took 53 days to dry lumber to 15 percent moisture content. In 1979 a dehumidifying unit was added that cut winter drying time to 18 days for a 7 percent moisture content. The drying time is critical for lumber to be used in furniture, Chen said.

Chen said the dehumidifying unit used a gas refrigerant that is changed to a liquid to give off heat for drying. It reverses the process to remove moisture from the kiln air.

With the dehumidifier the kiln was not totally independent of the weather conditions, Chen said, so the storage unit is being built. Energy from the unit will heat the kiln on cloudy days.

The kiln air may be preheated with energy from the unit.

"In past winters we had to wait a half day to a day for the sun to heat up the kiln air," Chen said. "With the storage unit we can draw heat from it and raise the kiln air temperature more readily."

With the storage unit, weather conditions will be less of a factor. The lumber could be dried day and night and dried closer to schedule.

Pentathlon for indoor athletes set

A game-room pentathlon is being sponsored in the bowling and billiards area of the Student Center at 7 p.m. Wednesday by the Student Programming Council.

It will continue at 4 p.m. Thursday.

The five events in the competition will be eight-hole pool, foosball, pinball, bowling, and darts. Competitors will participate in all events and receive a total set of points overall. Prizes will be awarded to the top four places.

Registration is necessary and can be done in the SPC office on the third floor of the Student Center. It may be made any time before the event starts at 7 p.m.

There is an entry fee of $3, which allows all competitors to play throughout the tournament in all rounds. Prizes will also be provided by a portion of the entry fees.

Trophies will be awarded for the first three places along with a $50 gift certificate from the University Bookstore for first, a $25 gift certificate for second and a $10 gift certificate for third. Fourth place will receive five free movie passes.

Saluki debate team keeps fourth place

The SIU-C debate and forensics team retained its fourth place national ranking after a strong showing this past weekend at the Smokey Mountain Invitational Debates in Knoxville, Tenn.

The University of Tennessee hosted the Cross Examination Debate Tournament in which 70 students from 15 schools participated.

SIU-C's Carroll Sweeney and Mike Henry were the third place team, and Scott Maurer and Ramona Remick tied for fourth place with Steve Emil and Steve Green. Maurer also placed second in the individual speaker category.

Schools at the tournament included Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Wake Forest and Emory.

Police arrest man for sexual assault

A Carbondale resident was arrested by city police at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday and charged with the deviate sexual assault of a 15-year old girl, police said.

City police said Dale A. Baker, 23, 1100-B E. College St., forcibly entered a home on North Carico Street and displayed a knife before assaulting the victim.

Police said Baker is being held in the Jackson County jail.

Show to display world fashions

An international fashion show, which will display traditional and ceremonial costumes from more than a dozen countries, will be narrated Saturday by a former Miss USA.

Sandra Warner, Miss USA of 1970, will narrate in the Student Center Gallery Lounge at 8 p.m. Approximately 30 internationals will show fashions from their home countries. The show is part of International Festival week.

Shaw to answer financial questions at GSC meeting

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will answer questions about proposed tuition increases and federal aid cutbacks for graduate and professional students at a Graduate Student Council meeting Wednesday.

GSC members will ask Shaw how to combat anti-education sentiments on local, state and national levels, according to Tracy Haskins, secretary of the GSC.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

GSC members also will discuss organization of a "1960s anti-war-styled teach-in" to protest proposed financial aid cutbacks, which will be held at 5 p.m. Monday in Ballroom A, Debbie Brown, GSC president, said. Co-sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Organization, the teach-in is part of a nationwide student protest of proposed decreases in federal aid being held that day.

Michael Shields, faculty member in economics, Robert Roper, faculty members in political science, and John Jackson, associate dean of the Graduate School, will answer students' questions and address the problems facing higher education at the teach-in.

Don Monty, Carbondale director of community development, and Toby Saken, associate director of the Shawnee Health Development program, will speak on the effects of the cutbacks on the area, Brown said.

"Like the anti-war teach-ins," Brown said, "the purpose is to get the people out and to make them aware. It is to let people know what the origins of the problems are and how we can combat them."

People from the theater and dance departments will do improvisations at the teach-in to stress the impact the proposed cutbacks will have on fine arts. A bluegrass band is also planned for the event.

In addition, Brown said, the GSC executive board will ask members to encourage students to voice their concerns about the proposed cutbacks and tuition increases at an open hearing to be held at 2:30 p.m. March 8 in Ballroom A.

Organized by the USO, the hearing will be recorded, and tapes will be sent to University administrators, the governor's office, senators, congressmen and the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Other business at Wednesday's meeting will include discussion of a GSC executive board resolution recommending that the service charge on short-term loans be raised from 1 percent to 2 percent.

The current service charge is not considered to be enough to finance the program, according to the resolution.

The resolution expresses concern that because of the program's financial situation, short-term loans may be denied to some students who need them.

To qualify for a loan, a student must be in good academic standing, be enrolled at least half-time, have no debts to the University, have an income paid through the Bursar's Office and have a good credit rating at SIU-C, Denise Bernardoni, short term loan officer, said.

In other action, the GSC will consider a resolution urging graduate and professional students to boycott Nestle Co. products. Nestle is selling infant formula to developing countries that the Infant Formula Action Coalition, a world-wide organization formed in 1977

Lola Smith, parent of a Bowen child, said "the least restrictive and most advantageous environment for my daughter is here at Bowen and I cannot stand to see these children undergo the trauma of being uprooted from their home."

That sentiment was echoed, often tearfully, all night, despite the charge of Rep. Clyde Robbins, R-54th District, that he heard too many people voicing concern about the potential economic impact.

"I want to hear you people say I want the Bowen Center or nothing," Robbins, who was not part of the panel, said. "It's time to let the governor know you are not interested in your own job, you are concerned with the children at Bowen."

Midway through his speech, Robbins apologized for crying but said "I'm crying because of those kids."

Many audience members cried when Bowen student Louis

Neal, who is deaf, said, "My mother hates me and won't accept me. That's why I need Bowen Center."

"With all due respect, I want Bowen to stay open and I want the staff and teachers to continue saving our lives," Neal said.

Politics was often blamed for the closing.

Joe Glassford, director of the Wabash Special Education District, said, "I now understand what bureaucracy is, what total power is and how it corrupts."

Glassford said that Wayne Kottmeyer, former executive director of the Bowen Center, who resigned in protest Monday, was "the appropriate person to wage this fight, but he was gagged, literally gar' d."

In a letter read to the committee by local businessman David Adams, Kottmeyer said he was "told that in order to protect my job, I should stand before this assembly and support the closure of Bowen."

"How can I, in good conscience," the statement continued, "betray the work the staff at Bowen has done with the children of this facility?"

Kottmeyer said Thompson "has been misinformed and has not had the opportunity to evaluate this facility on its own merits."

According to a representative of Madigan's Democratic leadership staff, the testimony taken at the meeting will be presented to Thompson and members of the General Assembly who take part in the budgetary process.

The legislature is scheduled to convene March 23 to begin consideration of the budget.

"We think what has taken place here will have a big effect on their deliberations," she said.

Chairmen concerning objectives, specific topics covered, and necessary materials for each general study's course offered at SIU-C. The guide should be available within two weeks to academic advisers and at the registration center.

Because of cuts in financial aid to students and increases in tuition and fees, the Finance Committee proposes that the senate pay the fees of two undergraduates "based on academic excellence, outstanding contribution to the University community, financial need, or a combination of the aforementioned categories," according to the proposal.

If approved, the senate will award fee waivers in the fall and spring semesters of the 1982-83 and 1983-84 school years.

The Finance Committee submitted another bill which would enable outstanding students who do not belong to Recognized Student Organizations to receive USO funding to attend professional seminars for excelling within their respective departments.

The Election Commission has submitted proposals for this spring's campus elections to the Campus Internal Affairs Committee. The commission recommends April 14 for the election date. Tim Florin, Student Orientation Committee vice president, will address the senate in support of a mandatory new student orientation to begin Aug. 18. The orientation is designed to increase the SIU-C student retention level, which is the highest in the state for undergraduates, according to Bruce Swinburne, Student Affairs vice president.

The orientation would familiarize new students to the campus, and include a visit to the president's house, visits with the dean of their school, and cook-outs.

masters of accountancy program, Andersen said.

Through consulting arrangements, executive development programs and cooperative research, the faculty has recently worked with business executives in Florida, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, and throughout Illinois.

Business community recognition of the college was expressed by establishment of the Illinois Bankers Professor of Bank Management in the Finance Department, and the only endowed chair for bank management at a public university in Illinois.

Internationally, the faculty has conducted management workshops in Egypt, Finland, Poland, Taiwan and Australia.

One of these projects was a $1.2 million program to train middle-level managers for Egypt. SIU-C was awarded the grant by the U.S. Agency for International Development in 1979. In 1981, SIU-C was awarded a second grant by AID for a follow-up program.

Martin said that in a joint undertaking with New Transcentury Foundation, an international consulting group, SIU-C submitted a proposal for an extensive 3 1/2 year project to train 700 middle-level managers in Egypt. The request for $7.8 million is still being considered and SIU-C is one of the top candidates for this award.

The Society for the Advancement of Management, SAM, has been the leading student organization in the college. For the last three years, SAM has also been the No. 1 campus chapter in the nation.

Other student groups are the American Marketing Association, Beta Alpha Psi, accounting fraternity and Pi Sigma Epsilon, fraternity in marketing and sales management. In addition, there are the Accounting Society and Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity.

Chinese Tai Chi to be introduced

An introduction to the principles and concepts of Tai Chi, a Chinese dance-exercise for health, self-defense and spiritual development, will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in Room 158 of the Recreation Center.

The event, co-sponsored by Recreational Sports, will include a demonstration of some basic Tai Chi exercises. Participants are advised to wear comfortable clothing.

Poetry, art sought for Vietnam book

Randy Rendfeld
Staff Writer

Poetry, short stories and artworks are being sought for an anthology intended to dispel negative images of Vietnam veterans. Ken Scott, a Vietnam veteran and member of the Poetry Factory, is soliciting the works.

Scott, a sophomore in speech education, said he hopes to dispel some of the stereotypes that have been created through films on Vietnam which, Scott said, have tended to depict veterans of the war as "either homicidal or suicidal." He said that drug abuse was widespread in Vietnam "but that didn't mean that everybody was into it so heavy that he couldn't function."

"The negative stereotypes seem to hang longer than the positive stereotypes," he said. Scott said he believes "people are more willing to listen than they were before" about what Vietnam was really like.

The anthology, which is expected to be about 50 pages, will be published by the Poetry Factory Press, although funding for the book is still uncertain.

In the past, the Poetry Factory has paid for its publishing costs with such enterprises as bake sales and sale of hand-made Christmas cards. The group also obtained funding from book sales, and received contributions from patrons and the Illinois Arts Council.

The Poetry Factory is a group of poets who meet every Wednesday between 7 and 9 p.m. at the Student Center. Scott said they receive no funding from the school.

Scott, 31, spent nine months as a medic in Vietnam in 1971. He said he has been writing poetry since he was 11, and was influenced during the 1960's by such protest poet-songwriters as Joan Baez and John Kay (of Steppenwolf).

Scott said some of the poetry he writes is political satire. Some, even though it's about serious situations, is humorous because "there's humor in everything. In 1971, when Martha Mitchell said the 'war was all over,' we had a joke: 'It's all over Cambodia; it's all over Laos...."

Scott recited one of his shortest poems about Vietnam, called "Synopsis": "Mud stained, Blood stained, Away to war, And lonely." Scott said this poem sums up his feelings about Vietnam.

Scott referred to himself as the "editor-in-chief" of the anthology. Other than two members of the Poetry Factory who will help edit the book, everyone involved with the anthology will have been "involved in Vietnam," he said.

Submissions can be sent to Ken Scott, 411 E. Hester, No. 4, Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Writers should limit their submissions to five poems (limit 200 words) and two stories (1,000 to 1,500 words), Scott said. Submissions must be typewritten and accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope if they are to be returned, he said.

Swimmers aim for NIC title

by Paul Lorenz
Associate Sports Editor

On paper, Florida State appears to have the edge over the rest of the field at the National Independents Swimming and Diving Championships, to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Columbia, S.C.

But women's swim Coach Jim Hill, while conceding that Florida State has the numbers to win, isn't willing to concede the NICs to the Seminoles.

"Florida State is favored, and they have a little more depth," Hill said. "They have 10 or 12 people with a legitimate chance to score, as compared to six or eight for our team or South Carolina's."

South Carolina, Cincinnati and SIU-C, again judging by times recorded this season, appear to have the best shot at upsetting Florida State's "paper championship." Syracuse, Virginia Tech, Old Dominion, Cleveland State and Northeast Louisiana round out the field.

SIU-C is seeded first in the 200 medley relay, and has swimmers seeded first in eight individual events. Amanda Martin is the No. 1 seed in the 50, 100 and 200 breaststrokes; Pam Ratcliffe in the 100, 200 and 400 individual medleys; and Janie Coontz in the 500 and 1,500 freestyles.

Barb Larsen, seeded second in the 500 freestyle and 50, 100 and 200 butterflys, will face tough competition from Florida State's Laurie Lehner. The Seminole sprint freestyle and butterfly specialist is ranked in the top five in the world in the 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly.

Florida State, Cincinnati and South Carolina are seeded first in the other events, Hill said.

The NICs will score the top 12 places, divided into consolation and championship finals, making team depth an important factor in the outcome. Preliminary swims will be held in the mornings, and Hill emphasized the importance of the morning sessions.

"The mornings are the key to the whole meet," he said. "A swimmer has to do well in the mornings to qualify for the evening sessions and have a chance to score."

Hill said all the Salukis have to perform well for SIU-C to have a shot at the title.

"The championships will be fast," the Saluki coach said. "A comparison to the state meet is like night and day. The competition is three times better." SIU-C easily won the state Swimming and Diving Championships held 10 days ago, outdistancing second-place Eastern Illinois by 84 points in the five-team meet.

Hill thinks the divers will make an important contribution to the team scoring effort. Tracey Terrell and Sandra Bollinger, both recent qualifiers for the AIAW Nationals, will lead the contingent of four Saluki divers.

The strength of SIU-C's first-place bid will depend in part on the status of freestyler Coontz, who has been slowed by a back injury. The injury caused the freshman to miss the double dual against Kansas and Missouri at the end of January, in which the Salukis suffered their only setback of the season, 76-73, to Kansas.

Coontz came back at the three-day Illinois State Championships to capture two firsts and two seconds, but sat out the third day of the competition.

"She wants to swim," Hill said. "But at this point whether she will is questionable."

"He makes mistakes yet, but that's true of anyone who has had no experience. He's pretty talented, but he's also really worked at it."

Having the tumbling experience helped, but there was still a transition to make, according to the gymnast.

"Handstands and flexibility were major problem areas, and most of the tumbling I do now I had no idea that it existed," he said.

Both the experienced gymnast and his coach believe Williamson has a good chance of qualifying for nationals this year. Five gymnasts with the top five point totals qualify, and on the floor exercise Williamson has reached between 9.4 and 9.5 three times with four meets left before the NCAA's in April.

Qualifying would be great experience for Williamson, according to Meade.

"It would give him more ideas if he could see other routines," the Saluki coach said.

"He could observe some of the super people there and work with them," Meade said. "He's smart and observant enough where this would help. He has his own personality, of course, but he could copy tricks and the presentation would be different."

Injuries have not caused any major problems, according to Williamson. "Right now I'm in decent shape. Vaulting is coming along, it was progressing slower than floor exercise."

Williamson expressed interest in becoming more adept at other events, since "everyone would like to be an all-arounder." He admitted that a lack of time keeps him from working on the other four events.

Williamson has not made any definite plans for after graduation, and he is considering changing his major to engineering. Gymnastics, however, do have a place in his future after SIU-C.

"I don't want to give up right after graduation," he said. "I would like to do something closely related to gymnastics, possibly be a tumbling instructor, maybe at a YMCA."

Williamson is already encouraging others to participate in the sport. Back home in Chicago, he teaches "everything I've learned" to a young friend. "He's super good," Williamson said of the high school sophomore.

The college sophomore still has time before graduation, and during the rest of his career at SIU-C, he plans to work on his goals of being an All-American and qualifying for nationals.

"Right now, it's mostly gymnastics and drawing," Williamson said. "I've made a lot of sacrifices, especially in my social life. It's kind of boring, but when I see the things I've accomplished, it feels good."

Rangers may leave Big Apple

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Rangers on Tuesday agreed to sell the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority by April 21 if they plan to abandon Madison Square Garden for the Meadowlands.

If the National Hockey League team decides to move across the Hudson River they will walk into a 30-year lease at the 7-month-old arena here. Part of the agreement signed Tuesday includes a $150,000 good-faith payment to the expositions authority.

The Rangers also agreed not to block attempts by other NHL franchises to move to the arena should the New York team decide to stay in Manhattan.

"It is an expression of their intent to come here," said Chairman Jon F. Hanson of the expositions authority, who received the commitment signed by Rangers President Jack Krumpal on Feb. 18 and called the special meeting Tuesday to ratify it.

"We have one goal, and that is to bring a hockey team here," said the authority's executive director, Robert Mulcahy. "We will do anything we can to procure a team. This is the first step, and hopefully, the last. We felt we had to do something to put this in a firm frame. We got our foot in the door now, and this gives us a wedge."

It also was agreed that if the Rangers don't move to the Meadowlands, they will not oppose the transfer of an each added a goal apiece.

Captain Kevin Brown scored four goals to lead Roy's Boys in scoring. Like Wright, Brown scored three goals in the second half. Joe Lachiana and Bob Gregory scored two each and Hassan Altayth added a tally for Roy's Boys.

This was the first year that team handball was offered as an intramural event. The game has elements of hockey, basketball and soccer. A team has five players and a goalie on the floor at a time, dribbling is allowed and fouls are called,

Late-starting gymnast tumbles into spotlight

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Staff Writer

Years of disciplined coaching and dedicated training usually begin early in the lives of most good athletes. For Lawrence Williamson, a gymnast capable of qualifying for the NCAA's according to men's gymnastics Coach Bill Meade, formal introduction to the sport began just a year-and-a-half ago.

Williamson came to SIU-C in the fall of 1986, with an interest but no real experience in gymnastics.

"We were always tumbling in parks and alleys," recalled the sophomore vault and floor specialist of his younger days. Gymnastics was not offered at school, but "I was always interested in it. I was determined to do it someday."

The closest Williamson came to gymnastics was tumbling during half-time of high school football and basketball games.

"I hate to say cheerleader, but that's one of the ways I'd describe it," said the graduate of Chicago's Simeon Vocational High School. "I would do pyramids with the cheerleaders, and I was the mascot."

After graduation, Williamson applied to SIU-C to major in architectural technology, and it was after he applied that he began to hear more about the gymnastics team. He contacted Coach Meade, saying he was a tumbler and interested in the team.

"I kind of passed him over," Meade admitted after looking at a list of performers at a state gymnastics meet and not finding Williamson's name.

During September of his freshman year, Williamson who was still interested in competing, decided that his "classes were O.K." and he could devote time to working out every day. He wanted to work out with the team, but classes kept him from getting there until practice was almost over.

Some of the gymnasts helped him, Williamson said, and after the season, Meade started spotting him as he worked out.

"I noticed he had great spring in his legs," Meade said of the newcomer, "but I really didn't get too excited. We already had two good people in floor exercise, capable of scoring 9.3 or 9.5, and we were allowed only two specialists in competition.

"He began to look better and better, though," the coach continued. "He began to look like a brighter star on the horizon."

Williamson continued to work out, and by his sophomore year he was developing the potential to be a performer in floor exercise and vault. His first competition was the Mid-West Open Championships Nov. 27-28.

"I was terrified!" Williamson recalled. "There was a really big crowd." Roy Gaimore, an NCAA champion while at Iowa State, and now a professional gymnast, was in the competition, "and everything stopped when he went up," said Williamson.

"When it was my turn, nobody knew I was there," he said. Williamson scored a 7.95 on the floor exercise, and was "really satisfied with it."

His second meet was the Saluki's first regular season meet, and since then Williamson has "gotten better at every meet," Meade said.

Injury clouds Dillick's goal

By Steve Metsch
Sports Editor

All season long, Tim Dillick has been the bright spot for the wrestling team. Coach Linn Long, whose team was short on depth most of the year, could write Dillick's name on the scorecard with the knowledge that the junior grappler would probably win his bout.

The Saluki skipper had good reason for his faith in the St. Louis native.

While the team struggled to an 8-13-1 dual meet slate, Dillick won 16 consecutive bouts on his way to a brilliant 23-5 mark. It was assumed that he would place well at the national meet this weekend in either the 142- or 134-pound weight class.

But as the saying goes, the best laid plans of mice, men and even wrestlers often go astray.

Dillick sprained his right ankle while playing racquetball Sunday, and as a result his quest for national honors is in jeopardy.

"Tim was trying to condition himself," Long said, "so he wouldn't have to be as lean on his diet." Long planned to wrestle Dillick in the 134-pound division, since he feels the wrestler has a better chance at the lower class.

"I thought Tim had a good chance to qualify until he sprained his ankle," Long said. "Now I don't know whether he'll recover enough to compete well or what percent his capabilities will be at."

Dillick said he "went for a wall shot and came down funny" on his ankle. He said he'd probably wrestle at 142 pounds.

"I feel like I let everybody down," he said, referring to the high hopes the team had for him.

Although he is hurting, Dillick isn't a quitter. He plans to compete along with teammate Jerry Richards in the NCAA qualifying meet at Louisiana State Friday and Saturday.

Richards is in good health and will compete in the 118-pound division.

"I'll be meeting a lot of tough guys," said the sophomore. "If I wrestle as well as I can, I should do alright and come out in one of the top three places."

Long feels Richards, who owns a 10-12-1 record, has a good chance to do well at the qualifying meet.

"I think Jerry is at the top of his game," Long said. "It's a matter of his being able to read wrestling signs, stay relaxed and not make any technique errors. If he does all that, who knows what will happen."

Just Business wins title

By Linda Stockman
Staff Writer

Victory was sweet for Just Business as it avenged an earlier 18-11 defeat and claimed the first intramural team handball championship over Roy's Boys 10-9 at Pulliam Gym Monday.

Roy's Boys scored the first point of the game, but Just Business matched that point several seconds later. The two teams were knotted at three after the first 10 minutes of play. Roy's Boys then successfully used a stall to take a 6-3 advantage into halftime.

Just Business opened the second half with two quick goals and tied Roy's Boys at seven with 12 minutes left in the half. Roy's Boys scored two goals but Just Business' added one to ice the victory.

Just Business was led in scoring by Bruce Wright who scored three of his four goals in the second half. Fellow "businessmen" Mike Witkiewicz, Phil Wiecezork, Scott Allen, Mark Schmitt, Mark Zueliene and Tom Haake
