Dillard takes primary by landslide

By Catherine Edman and JoDe Rimar

Voters Tuesday chose Neil Dillard and Normell Haynes as the two candidates for Carbondale mayor who will meet again in the April 7 general election.

With a voter turnout of about 18 percent, Dillard led the way with 1,082 votes and Haynes came in second with 483 votes. Mark Robinson was in second for most of the night but slipped to third with 444 votes after the results from the last three precincts were tallied. The two winning candidates will face a runoff in the April 7 election to fill the spot vacated by retiring Mayor Helen Westberg.

Dillard, 56, 500 S. oakland Ave., has been on the Carbondale City Council since 1981. He is the assistant director for economic development at SIU-C, and has held various positions at SIU-C since 1962.

He has said that if elected mayor, he would demonstrate cooperation and a desire to work together with the city council to accomplish its goals. Haynes, 37, 1215 N. Wall St., declined to comment Tuesday night on his reaction to winning in the primary. His platform has relied mainly on his efforts to change the form of government in Carbondale from at-large elections to a ward- alderman system.

He claims the city council does not represent the needs of the entire Carbondale community.

Neither of two SIU-C students in the race, Earl Czajkowski, 32, and Dan Deforse, 40, received enough votes to qualify for a place on the ballot for the general election.

Mills on top of win list in council race

By Catherine Edman and JoDe Rimar

John Mills, chairman of the city’s Liquor Advisory Board, was the big winner in Tuesday’s primary election for Carbondale City Council.

He polled 1,280 to lead second-place candidate Richard Morris, who received 709 votes.

The next two top finishers—who will appear on the general election ballot April 7 with Mills and Morris—were Christine Wright, 709 votes, and Harris Rubin, 351 votes.

Mills, 38, 608 N. Oakland Ave., has been a member of the Liquor Advisory Board for 10 years and its chairman for five. He is a life-long resident of Carbondale and an SIU-C alumnus.

Mills, 44, 604 Skyline Drive, said he was “elated” with the election results. The people have shown they are interested in the leadership and qualities I have for this job,” he said. Morris has managed “Job Search,” the Illinois Department of Employment Security placement program, in Carbondale since 1972.

Wright, 33, 1195 E. Walnut, has lived in Carbondale since 1969 and runs Wright Property Management. She serves on the Citizens Advisory Committee and the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Rubin, who received the fewest votes of the four said he would have preferred to be higher on the list. “But the next race is the most important,” Rubin, 54, 1212 W. College, is a professor at the SIU School of Medicine and Rehabilitation Institute.

Volunteers advocate condom sense

By Tom Whelahan

Society has come a long way since the days when birth-control advocate Margaret Sanger was arrested in the 1910s for favoring sexual education. What once was considered obscene is now mandatory.

On Tuesday, health advocates Chris Labyk and Kim Baldwin took sexual education on campus one step further. They were on the first floor of the Student Center offering free condoms and pamphlets on sexually transmitted diseases (STDs).

“We’re not in a public place, it’s no longer a matter of values, it’s a matter of life and death,” Labyk said, referring to the public’s attitude toward the use of condoms. Labyk, director of the Wellness Center, said that those who oppose the public advocacy and distribution of condoms eventually will realize it is not a matter of birth control but of STD prevention.

Part of Tuesday’s display included an attitude survey and quiz to test the public’s knowledge of STDs. Results of the survey and quiz will be released Friday. Those with the most correct answers on the quiz will win dinner for two at Emperor’s Palace in Carbondale.

Baldwin, graduate student in counseling psychology, said, “We’re not saying, ‘go out and have sex.’ We’re saying, ‘just be aware of the risks.’” Baldwin is including the survey in her dissertation.

Tom Whelahan

Men and women totally agree that condoms prevent the spread of STDs. Men, however, are split on whether condoms decrease their sensitivity. The most common misconception about using condoms, Labyk said, is that people are afraid of offending their partners by offering one.

According to the survey, men and women agree that it is OK for women to offer a condom to her partner. The majority of college students said they are changing their attitudes toward casual sexual activity. Nearly everyone agreed that condoms should be advertised on television.

Lotto’s popularity not matched with revenue

By David Sheets

Illinois State Lottery sales in Jackson County rose only modestly between 1985 and 1986, despite the game’s continued popularity, according to the Illinois Department of Lottery.

Revenue generated in Jackson County from the lottery increased from $1,864,781 in fiscal year 1985 to $2,027,720 in fiscal year 1986, an increase of $74,939, or roughly 4 percent, said Carl Johnson, the state lottery spokesman in Springfield.

JOHNSON SAID the increase between the 1985 and 1986 fiscal years was not as substantial as that between the 1984 and 1985 fiscal years because the lottery "has probably come close to reaching its saturation point in participation."

"That’s pretty much the case statewide," he said. Between fiscal years 1984 and 1985, Jackson County lottery revenues jumped by about $856,000, nearly 84 percent, from $1,014,681 to $1,864,781, Johnson said, due to improved marketing and increase in "on-line" agents.

Man can’t stop girlfriend’s abortion, Britain courts say

LONDON (UPI) — In a best case for women's rights, the most powerful courts in Britain Tuesday rejected a man's attempt to stop his former girlfriend from having an abortion. The High Court and the House of Lords, which functions as the highest court in the land, dismissed the case after the High Court and the House of Lords rejected the Oxford University student's legal move to block the abortion of the 18-week-old fetus.

French couple not allowed to visit jailed son

JOHANNESBURG South Africa (UPI) — Officials Tuesday refused to allow a French couple to visit their imprisoned son in an independent black homeland. Andre and Jeanette Alberti arrived at South Africa's airport without visas to return to Africa or the independent black homeland of Ciske where their son, university lecturer Pierre Andre Alberti, is being held as a material witness in a terrorism trial.

Holocaust victim rails against 'Ivan' suspect

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A Holocaust survivor or declared Tuesday he is convinced former U.S. autowerk John Demjanjuk was a Nazi guard who tortured and killed thousands of Jews in the Treblinka death camp. Demjanjuk, accused of being a hated Treblinka guard called "Ivan the Terrible," listened quietly as Pitnas Epstein, a retired heavy machinery operator, wound up two days of testimony by again charging the defendant is "Ivan."

Iran starts campaign against opposition group

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Iranian authorities have launched a campaign to discredit a banned opposition group which claims responsibility for several armed attacks on officials, residents in Tehran reached by telephone said Tuesday. The campaign against the Mojahedi Khah organization began last week after the time Iraqi President Saddam Hussein agreed to a two-week halt in air, artillery and missile attacks against Iranian cities.

Suspected abortion clinic bomber surrenders

NEW YORK (UPI) — An ex-Marine and "Savvy Catholic" charged with two abortion clinic bombings in New York City surrendered to federal authorities Tuesday after a televised appeal from Cardinal John O'Connor. Dennis John Malivis, 29, was detained at his New York home by the police. The district attorney of New York spokesman Joseph Zivling. A spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which is investigating the case, said Malivis has surrendered but declined immediate comment.

Obscenity standards, definition face Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will give people with "hostile authoritarian sentiment" veto power over ideas unless it voids an Illinois law that clarifies how terms are to identify obscenity, a lawyer told the justices Tuesday. The case—which could lead to a more uniform national definition of obscenity—started with the conviction of two bookstore clerks in Rockford, Ill. on charges of selling pornography magazines.

Chicago’s mayoral ballots will be counted by hand

CHICAGO (UPI) — As many as 20,000 ballots in the city’s bitterly contested mayoral primary will be checked by hand, deciding results in Tuesday’s Democratic contest between Mayor Harold Washington and former Mayor Jane Byrne. The heated race pits the city’s first black mayor against Chicago’s first female mayor, who is seeking a cold job back after being ousted by Washington four years ago.

Clemons may have aided in the distribution of anonymous campaign flyers criticizing Richman.

A recent Illinois Supreme Court declared as unconstitutional a state law requiring the name and address of the author to be placed on campaign literature. The decision states this law as a violation of free-speech.

Richman will still handle some felony cases in Williamson County. Lewis said the change was made to keep Richman from hearing Clemons' cases, not to keep Richman from hearing felony cases altogether.

Richman declined comment on the matter Tuesday. When he was initially reassigned, he said he would miss working on criminal cases but would get used to the change.

Richman is "darned if he does, damned if he doesn't." Lewis said, referring to decisions in court cases. He said that if Richman ruled in favor of the state's attorney's position, some people might consider Richman's decision an attempt to please the state's attorney, and he said a ruling against the state's attorney might be thought of as a negative bias.

"I have no doubt that Judge Richman is fair in each and every one of his decisions," Lewis said.

Student recruiter to be reassigned to SIU-C relations

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

Terry Mathias, director of New Student Admission Services, will be leaving his position and returning to University Relations, where he was associate director until he became new student admission director in September 1986.

Mathias said he expects to begin his new assignment March 1. However, his position at University Relations is still undetermined.

"There's quite a number of different things that Jack Dyer, (executive director of University Relations), and I discussed as possibilities for me and we're going to take some time to sort those options," Mathias said Tuesday. Acting President John Guyon said he told Mathias on Feb. 10 that Mathias will be reassigned because his work, which entailed starting the operating procedures for new student admission services, had been concluded. The position of student admission services director will no longer exist.

B.K. Browning, director of Admissions and Records, and the staff at New Student Admission Services will be responsible for its operation and for making recommendations for any long-term changes in the recruiting program, Guyon said.

In a written statement concerning his reassignment, Mathias said his goals have been to keep the unit operating and make recommendations to the president for any needed changes.

The statement said that by fall semester 1986, the number of freshmen increased 8.8 percent and the number of transfer-students increased 9.5 percent compared to fall 1985. Since February 1985, freshmen applications have increased more than 51 percent and freshmen admissions have increased 45 percent, the statement said.

Though his position has not been specified, Mathias said his duties most likely will be "focused on effective wide-scale promotion of the University to its many publics."
Homophobia adds to AIDS problem

It may still be an exaggeration to call AIDS the bubonic plague of the 20th century. But if the spread of the deadly acquired immunity deficiency syndrome continues without relief, the comparison will grow closer in the next ten years. According to a 20-member AIDS panel formed by the National Academy of Sciences and the Institute of Medicine,1 million and 1.5 million Americans already have been infected with the AIDS virus and several million more will be infected by 1991.

But what really likens AIDS to the plague that blighted 14th century Europe is society’s medieval attitudes about the disease. Prejudice toward homosexuals, religious prohibitions against condom use, and general embarrassment over sexually transmitted diseases is handicapping the fight against AIDS at the same time, fear of the disease has increased discrimination against homosexuals.

The AIDS panel recognized the disease as a medical catastrophe and claims a need for at least $1 billion in federal research funds by 1990.

Yet this year’s recommended budget for AIDS education and research already is lower than last year’s budget and is expected to be cut again for fiscal year 1988. The usual compensation for federal funding—private or church donations—have been amazingly minimal. Why are research funds available in inverse proportion to the need?

One explanation can be found in a 1986 Gallup Poll that revealed that over one-third of all Americans have a “less than favorable attitude toward gays” because of fear of the AIDS virus. This in addition to the fact that half of all Americans disapprove of homosexual relationships in general. And according to Terry L. Smith, the president of the National Gay Rights, Americans interviewed favor some sort of legal discrimination against suspected AIDS carriers.

Though many states now have laws against discrimination on the basis of disability, there is no federal law that prevents employers from refusing to hire applicants who tested positive for the AIDS virus. Since the virus was identified in 1981, literally hundreds of people have lost their jobs after testing positive for the disease. One extreme example is the case of Boston telephone worker Paul Cronan. When Cronan, an AIDS victim, was allowed to return to work after an absence, all 20 of his co-workers walked off the job in protest.

The discrimination is not limited to the workplace. Both gays and AIDS victims have been refused medical care and entrance into public schools. The California Association of Realtors has even decided to tell their clients which houses are owned by suspected AIDS carriers. According to gay rights action groups and state commissions for human rights, violence towards gays and AIDS victims also has increased.

The Condom Institute has been persistent in its research showing that AIDS cannot be spread through casual sexual contact. Those organizations from the Left are either extreme, anti-AIDS, or extreme homophobes.

The New Legal Battlefields for AIDS discrimination is insurance. Since many states have passed legislation providing AIDS protection, AIDS tests to determine insurance eligibility, insurance companies must now depend on “lifestyle profiles” to determine likely carriers. The Great Republic company, for example, recommended that its salesmen give a supplemental questionnaire to single males in “occupations that do not require physical exertion.” For example, the company listed such occupations as interior decorators, waiters, and florists.

Finally, the Anti-que attitudes of both television stations who refuse to run condom advertisements and the Catholic Church, which refuses to teach methods of AIDS prevention beyond abstinence, are giants’ steps backward in the fight against AIDS.

Since the days of the bubonic plague, modern medicine has fought many mysterious and terrible diseases. But in the case of the case of AIDS, the battle is against centuries of old prejudice, and the suffering of AIDS victims is met by discrimination against both actual and suspected carriers.

Stop the deception in Nicaragua

Page seven of the fall 1986 Young Democrats—Latin American Solidarity Committee newsletter sports a logo virtually unknown in the U.S.: Sandinista, patron of the Sandinista revolution. Its accompanying paragraph cordially invites us to participate, at our own expense, in the Nicaraguan cotton and coffee harvest. Unique to this blur is the facts omitted—that we would be directly aiding the Sandinista revolution by contributing to a Marxist farm communalization campaign that is stealing land, food, culture and religious traditions from Nicaraguans. Ortega’s Sandinistas have formally declared their intent to establish a “revolutionary international state,” a process now underway through colonization by Soviet bloc and Communist “internationalists.” Apparently, the Sandinistas have found it useful to also include select U.S. labor unions, socialists and do-gooders.

On Nov. 2, 1986, ISLASC hosted a fund-raising media event for Democratic Rep. Ken Gray. Was any of this money presented to Ken Gray as a gift to help keep the pro-Sandinista, commonwealth, the anti-Contra’s ‘vote alive in Congress?’ Let history tell if ISLASC has represented fairly the plight of all Nicaraguans or merely applauded Sandinista causes. Can anyone recall hearing genuine abhorrence from them over Managua’s May Day-like parade of Soviet military strength, deaths at the hands of a communist army, to free press or neighborhood spies?

At the Ken Gray reception, ISLASC raised a huge banner reading “STOP THE LIES,” apparently in response to a small group of picketers who came to demonstrate against Gray’s tacit support of Soviet militarization of Central America. Too bad the picketers did not have a 3-foot sign saying “STOP THE DECEPTION, ISLASC.”

I hope students will seek to hear both sides of the Nicaraguan conflict during Central American Week so they may make informed decisions. Will Nicaraguans be allowed their own freedom or must they continue to be slaves to forced international colonization by communist-socialist military powers? I hope they gain their freedom.—Linda G. Nelson, admissions and records.

IPIRG is much maligned in press

It is time that someone put a stop to the lies and smears concerning IPIRG that the DE has so carelessly thrown about.

The Feb. 18 editorial told how students at the University of Colorado proposed an amendment to the Constitution which, if passed, would change the status of the USO, claims that “there is no such thing as a ‘reimbursable fee’ and that Students for IPIRG asked for a ‘refundable fee.’ This is not true! If IPIRG is established here, it will be funded by a $3 waivable fee per student per semester, which will be assessed on the bursar’s bill. If a student does not wish to pay the fee, he will have the opportunity to waive it at the time of paying the bill.

But IPIRG refuses to grant front page coverage to demonet IPIRG (DE, Feb. 17) with personal opinions. The article began by stating that DeFosse is suspicious of the emerging relationship between two international organizations, referring to IPIRG and Students for IPIRG. The article also stated that DeFosse is not comfortable with the correspondence between the two groups because “it’s a sneaky, underhanded way to get money from the students. The outside organization (IPIRG) is controlling the inside organization.” The truth is that there is only one organization in existence and that is Students for IPIRG. The purpose of this group is to form an IPIRG at SIO. Once its goal is accomplished, there will be only an IPIRG, since Students for IPIRG will no longer be needed.

What is more shocking than DeFosse’s ignorance of IPIRG is that the DE could publish two articles exhibiting it.

The DE editorial committee told students to back off and not to accept the April 5 resolution. By deciding to apply for KSO status after getting into trouble for an illegal petition drive, the group alienated itself from both the press and the USO. How could there possibly be an illegal petition drive when the right to petition is protected under the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution? And how could the group have alienated itself from the USO when it will not meet with them until next week? Furthermore, if it is true that Students for IPIRG alienated itself itself from the press, does this mean that readers will continue to get only a one-sided view of IPIRG from people who are main-
The commission had asked the management of TCI to take a serious look at keeping KSDK a station they said a majority of Carbondale subscribers watched.

Monday night Klasek told the City Council that as a result of a meeting with TCI last week, where the decision was announced as final, several commission members are considering resigning.

Klasek plans to offer his resignation to the new mayor to be elected in April, he said. Mayor Helen Westberg attempted to persuade the members from resigning saying their experience with the situation would be needed for future negotiations.

The Cable Television Act of 1984, which deregulated the cable television industry, started the problems, Klasek said. The act renders the council powerless in many aspects of the cable television service.

The commission recommended that the city hire a consultant to rewrite the law for sections that might give them additional regulatory power over theover-based company. Klasek asked for the consultant to work to make any mistakes that would result in automatic renewal of the franchise.

William H. Freeberg, professor emeritus of the SIUC Recreation Department and the first person in the nation to receive a doctorate in educational television, died Monday at his home. He was 67.

Dr. Freeberg was chairman of the Recreation Department from 1953 to 1963. He gained international renown for organizing summer camps in the United States for physically and mentally handicapped children at what is now called Touchmark.

Dr. Freeberg also helped establish the Special Olympics program in the U.S. in the 1960s. The program is now international.

In 1968 Dr. Freeberg came to SIUC as a high school football recruiter from Princeton, which is his alma mater. He also earned All-American letters for coach Glenn "Abe" Martin.

Freeberg received by mail four consecutive years.

Martin cancelled Freeberg's scholarship to Eastern Illinois University to keep Freeberg at SIUC. Freeberg had said.

After four years on the football team, he had impressed the administration enough that they made him a member of the staff.

He was the athletics manager, but also served as assistant football coach and taught physical education at the Air Force ROTC, and was business manager of the athletics department.

Later Dr. Freeberg was responsible for getting a new intramural athletics program off the ground.

In 1971 Dr. Freeberg became full professor. He earned his master's degree in physical education from the University of Illinois and his bachelor's degree from SIUC.

While at SIUC, he earned the Educational Council of 1969's award of merit for contributions at Touchmark.

Nature was inducted into the SIUC-Athletics Hall of Fame in 1981 and received the SIU Community Achievement Award in 1989.

Dr. Freeberg is survived by his wife, Wilhelme; two daughters, Ann Deigel of Moline and Susan Kelly of Bloomington, Ill.; a son, Glen of Springfield and three grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Walker Funeral Home in Carbondale. Services may call after 6 p.m. at the funeral home.

Masonic services will be held this evening. Burial will be in Swanwick Cemetery, Swanwick III.

Memorial contributions can be made to the "Friends of Touch of Nature" through the funeral home or the SIU Foundation.

of the state's 6,600 agents in 1980, according to a special Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission report on the lottery released in January. Agents are businesses that are authorized to sell lottery tickets.

Of the 20, nine have "on-line" capabilities--computers that issue lottery tickets.

Three of the "on-line" agents are in Carbondale at Book World, 823 S. Illinois Ave., and Food Mart, at the intersection of U.S. Route 51 and Pleasant Hill Road, and in the Huck's Convenence Food Store at 105 Emerald Lane.

THE LOTTERY was a $1 offer business for the state in fiscal year 1986--Illinois' fifth last year--with a general revenue, the report said.

The report said the lottery revenue totals come from sales of the state lottery's three games: Pick 3, Pick 4, and Instant games.

Lotto involves choosing six numbers from a list of 44 consecutive numbers. Players receive multiple tickets. The player may select the six numbers or opt for "Quick Pick." The lottery computer selects the numbers at random.

LOTTO DRAWINGS are on Wednesday and Saturday each week.

The Daily game allows players to select three-number combinations between 000 and 999, while Pick 4 involves four-number combinations from 0000 to 9999.

Instant games involve the use of preprinted tickets. The player finds out immediately whether a winning ticket has been purchased and can collect on the spot.

The attraction of Lotto is the $1 million-plus prize, whereas instant games get their following from the players' promise of winning something on the spot, no matter how small the prize, the report said.

PATT HART, manager of Convenient Food Mart, said that despite the lure of immediate with instant games, most of her store's lottery sales are on Lotto tickets.

Janel Hoffman, manager of the Southern Illinois Liquor Mart in Murphysboro, said the same of her store.

She said the "lure of real big money" draws people to Lotto.

And it isn't any group of individuals in particular, she continued. "Everyone buys. People who said they wouldn't play Lotto twice a week, when the Wednesday Lotto drawings were added, have started playing on Wednesday and Saturday, she said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Col. Oliver North's secretary has told a special prosecutor that acting at her boss' request, she had developed and faxed memos on the sale of arms to Iran during the scandal.

The documents, which were addressed to either national security advisor Robert McFarlane or his successor, Vice Adm. John Poindexter, the newspaper reported.

In announcing his appointment to investigate possible illegal efforts to support the Contra rebels, North's complaint asserted that in asking Walsh to investigate possibly illegal efforts to support the Contras, the court "lacked into political affairs and matters of national security issues."

In announcing Walsh on Dec. 19, 1986, the court empowered him to investigate and prosecute North and other unnamed government officials who violated any criminal provision relating to the sale or shipment of arms to Iran or the funneling of aid to the Contra rebels.

The controversy was triggered by disclosures that the administration had secretly sold arms to Iran, despite an executive order barring such sales.

North's secretary says she did not know she was violating any law. She said she was merely fulfilling her job duties.

North's secretary, who was identified in the newspaper as Ms. Margarette Connolly, was not available for comment.

The special prosecutor, which is investigating the Iran-Contra scandal, was established by the court. The court has ordered Connolly to appear before the special prosecutor and was expected to ask her to explain why she faxed the memos.

Walsh, a former Marine, was selected by the court to question North and other government officials suspected of involvement in the Iran-Contra affair.

North, a former Marine, was arrested in July 1987 and is facing trial in the United States District Court in Washington, D.C. North faces up to 20 years in prison if convicted of a criminal conspiracy.

North is accused of helping to funnel arms to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, which was done in violation of a 1986 executive order.

North is also accused of having knowledge of the sale of arms to Iran, which was done in violation of a 1986 executive order.

Regan delays quitting; Ron readies for blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The expected resignation of White House chief of staff Donald Regan was put on hold Tuesday as President Reagan braced for a blast of criticism from a deep-reaching investigation he ordered into the Iran arms scandal.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said there would be no discussion on Regan's status until after a special review board appointed by the president issues its report Thursday on the Iran arms scandal.

"I think the chief of staff is very concerned that these discussions about his tenure here not disrupt the management of the White House especially during this period when we are receiving the Tower Board report and responding to it," Fitzwater said.

Calling the report — the most comprehensive to date — an "important milestone" in the worst crisis to hit the Reagan presidency, Fitzwater said Regan will sit down with the president to discuss his future at a later date.

There was no indication when that meeting might take place. In any event, insiders portrayed Regan's departure as an accomplished fact — one decided by a reluctant Reagan — and predicted he would be gone in a matter of days.

The attempt to set aside the Tower report, at least for the next few days, underscores White House concern over what has been portrayed as a potentially explosive report by the commission headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

And the president and the president's aides are expected to be faulted by the commission findings on matters of policy and process, although sources said the chief of staff is hoping for a vindication of any wrongdoing so he does not have to leave the White House under cloud.

Regan and his aides have refused to comment on substantive elements of the Iran arms scandal while the Tower report is issued Thursday morning.

A report in The New York Times that the president could not recall whether he gave prior approval to the first shipment of arms to Iran.

Senator's private meetings bring scolding from Schultz

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Secretary of State George Schultz scolded a Democratic senator Tuesday for intruding in U.S. foreign policy by conducting private meetings with Central American heads of state.

Schultz suggested to Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., the meetings, which without U.S. ambassadors present, had undermined a "sense of cohesion" in American foreign policy, had confounded legislators who "were conducting their own foreign policy.

Dodd said foreign leaders sometimes should hear the views of members of Congress "unfettered and unencumbered" by the presence of the ambassador and that he would continue such meetings if so required.

Dodd also noted the irony of the Schultz attack at a time when administration foreign policy has been thrown into disarray by investigations of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and possible diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

"I think we are getting into a real problem in the conduct of foreign policy of the United States because it is being intruded into in all sorts of ways and frankly, senator, I want to confront you on the subject," Schultz replied.

Regan says about Iran deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan left open the key question of whether he approved the first shipment of U.S. arms to Iran in the summer of 1985, but said Tuesday, "I think it is possible to forget."

USO to ponder RSO marketing rights

Resolution charges SPC gets exclusive attention
By William Brady
Staff Writer

A resolution proposing that the Student Council’s administration give all registered Student organizations the same marketing rights in the Student Center that it gave to the University Programming Council will be discussed by the Undergraduate Student Organization Senate tonight.

The senate will begin its meeting at 7 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom B.

The resolution, written by Business and Administration senior K.G. Lee, states that the SPC, which is an RSO, is granted exclusive permission to market films and trips in the Student Center.

The SPC is not part of the Student Council’s administration because it accepts funds from the Student Organization Activity Fund for programming activities, the resolution states, and thus cannot be eligible for exclusive marketing in the Student Center.

The resolution states, “The Student Council Senate believes that the Student Council should give special attention to the Student Council Senate during SPC meetings.”

Senators will vote on proposals to seat Wilfred Dun Pennington for the College of Liberal Arts, Mike Utterback for the College of Education, Brent Berend for the West Side, Sonja Vaill and Andy Repka for the East Side, and Nick Basil for the School of Engineering and Technology.

Funding requests total $86,825.90. The bulk of the total, $86,275, is being requested by the SPC for its annual budget.

Other requests were filed by Associated General Contractors, Alpha Phi Alpha, the Russian Club, the Student Alumni Council, the Zoology Honors Society, the Non-Traditional Student Union, Gamma Beta Pi, the Society of Physics Students and the Strategic Games Society.

GPSC to discuss library fund drive
By Tracy Barton
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council will consider endorsing a drive expected to add $200,000 to the Morris Library endowment fund at 7 tonight in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The council appointed a special committee during its Feb. 6 meeting to study the fund-raising drive that would begin the next Monday. The committee said the drive would be added to the library’s general operations budget.

The GPSC also is expected to select election dates for its officers and members.

A commission to oversee the election of a student trustee is expected to be approved. A student trustee would serve as a representative to the Board of Trustees.

The council also will discuss the contracting with an outside firm to operate the University Bookstore.

Student Center Director John Corker told the council Feb. 11 that there are problems with the bookstore’s computerized inventory system. Installing a new computer system, he said, would cost the University about $300,000.

Corker said contracting the bookstore’s operations with an outside firm could give the University an extra $90,000 per year.

The council also is expected to vote on the proposed $10 application fee for potential SIUC graduate students.

Bowl-a-thon to aid Robin Sigler Fund

A fund-raiser for the Robin Sigler Trust Fund will be held Saturday at the Missouri Southern Illinois Bowl, said Kathie Kurtz, graduate assistant for special populations.

The Disabled Student Recreation Organization will sponsor the second annual bowl-a-thon.

Bowl-a-thon will be from 3 to 6 p.m. Dinner will begin at 6 p.m. With dancing and entertainment, the event is expected to be a fund-raising drive that would bring $10,000.

Police cracking down on check bouncers

Carbondale police are cracking down on people who bounce checks, says Lt. Larry Hill.

He said his office was forced to be more selective in enforcing the law when budget cuts eliminated the secretary from his office.

Hill said the secretary will send letters to an offender informing them of the check needs to be paid.

If payment is not made on a bounced check, the police have sent out a letter. Hill said the case will probably be referred to the state’s attorney’s office.

"Writing a bad check is as embarrassing but is a real crime if you do it intentionally, as if you were trying to steal from someone," Hill said.

Registration for the bowl-a-thon will be at the Rec Center information desk until 5:30 p.m. Friday, Kurtz said, adding that transportation will be provided for disabled students.

Specialist to discuss crystal uses

Bradley Hohn, a specialist in the use of quartz crystals, will conduct a workshop from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. March 7 at the University Meeting House, 301 W. Elm St. in Carbondale.

Hohn will discuss how crystal can be used in relaxation and information accessing. He will cover storage capacities of quartz crystals makes them useful in the operation of radios, watches and computers.

The registration fee is $11 before Saturday and $22 the day of the workshop.

Crystals and crystal jewelry will be available.

High Court decision opens rape files

WASHINGTON - UPI - The Supreme Court opened the files of rape victims Tuesday to judicial review in a carefully crafted decision designed to balance the rights of victims and the accused.

The case was of particular significance for women's and victims' rights groups that feared wholesale review in open court of confidential reports filed by people who were raped or sexually abused. But the court ruled 5-4 on order to balance the conflicting rights of defendants to confront their accusers and victims to protect their identities.

The court, in a 4-1 ruling by Justice Lewis Powell, Jr., who wrote the opinion, said it had to be left to a trial judge to decide whether released files of present and former Navy men. They were convicted of passing secrets to the Soviets, including codes that complex intelligence operations John Walker, the leader of the ring, had retired from the Navy but his son, Michael, served aboard the guided missile cruiser.

Others included Jonathan Jay Pollard, a former Navy intelligence analyst who confessed to selling communications secrets to Israel and Larry Wu-Tai Chin, a CIA analyst convicted of spying for China for 38 years.

The limited number of agents "are already stretched thin already," the intelligence command said in publishing the hot line.

Our first meeting will be on Wednesday, February 25, from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center. Refreshments provided.

Flaming jet landed safely back on Earth, NASA pilot

LOS ALAMITOS ARMY FIELD Calif. (UPI) - Shuttle astronaut Brewster Shaw and another NASA pilot, their jet afire and cockpit filled with smoke, refused to bail out Tuesday and steered the craft to a safe emergency landing, authorities said.

Shaw, 41, veteran of two shuttle flights, and Robert A. Rivers, 39, a NASA pilot based at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, climbed out of the burning T-38 jet after touchdown, landed and steered the aircraft to the Long Beach Naval Hospital for observation. They later were released.

"There was a fire aboard, the cockpit filled with smoke," said a U.S. military official, Milton Sullivan.

"They did lose one engine on the way, and they were able to limp in on a second engine." He said the pilots decided not to bail out because the jet was over a residential area.

"The crew members shut off the electrical system and radioed for an emergency landing," Welch said. "They shut the right engine of the jet down after a fire warning light appeared. A second warning light signaled the possibility of fire in the left engine.

And that's much more livable than a full cockpit solution," Wassner said, but added, "Nothing less than complete confidentiality isn't going to work." The case was brought to the high court by Pennsylvania authorities, who charged the judge that the lawyer representing the convicted rapist had a right to see Child Welfare Services records.

The records included information from the restraining order, the convicted rapist's daughter— who was the victim of the sexual attack—and other members of the family. The Pennsylvania court ruled last year that the conviction, George Ritchie, should be given a new trial unless the state can prove that failure to give his lawyer child welfare records did not affect his case.

However, the Supreme Court sent the case back for further review before a trial judge who may order a new trial after reviewing the Child Welfare Services material.

The Alaska senator quit the Veterans of Foreign Wars organization Feb. 3 when group officials told him he had served he was ineligible for membership and his 1983 application to become a member has not been approved, a spokesman for the senator said.
The VFW, which is

Oil prices plunge; selling wave hits exchange

By United Press International

Oil prices plunged through the critical $17 a-barrel barrier Tuesday for the first time in more than two months over growing skepticism over OPEC ability to hold production gains and achieve its $18 price target.

OPEC, which accounts for 40 percent of the world's oil, lost ground in the face of the selling wave that swept world oil markets, and oil prices fell by as much as 65 cents a barrel.

The Faslane Fiasco, a report that followed OPEC's Dec. 20 agreement to lower production and raise oil prices has now given way to considerable doubt and uncertainty," said Sanford Margoshes, analyst at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. in New York.

West Texas intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for immediate delivery in the Mercantile Exchange, plummeted by 3.5 cents to $16.73 a barrel.

U.S. banks not threatened by Brazil's debt suspension

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brazil's suspension of debt payments to commercial banks is serious but will not lead to long-term problems for U.S. banks or result in massive writeoffs of Latin American debt, government officials and banking analysts said Tuesday.

Banking sources said Antonio Fadus Seixas, Brazil's temporary minister of industry, was meeting with committees of creditor banks Tuesday. The meeting is described as "exploratory," and no announcement was expected.

On Friday, Brazil said it would halt payments on its $12 billion debt for an unspecified time. Roughly $78 billion of Brazil's $108 billion foreign debts are in international commercial banks, with $21.5 billion of that owed to U.S. banks, Baker said.

Brazil has said it won't pay its debt to commercial and interbank credit lines with Brazil would be maintained, but U.S. banks and Brazil both have an interest in keeping these lines open," one banker said.

The problem, Secretary James A. Baker, testifying before the Senate Appropriations Committee, said "does not expect Brazil's action to lead to formation of a "debtor's cartel" among large Latin American borrowers. We don't see this as something that is going to spread to a whole lot of other countries," Baker said. "We fully expect to be resolving through negotiations with the country's private creditors." Baker said he did not expect Argentina to follow Brazil's example, despite recent statements in support of the action. Argentina has given "every indication" that it intends to handle its impending negotiations in "a moderate, non-confrontational manner.

Venezuela, which sent "expressions of support" to Brazilian President Jose Sarney, also has not ruled out taking any action that would hamper its refinancing, which is nearing completion this week, bankers said.

Mexico, which last week repaid a $1 billion bridge loan and has about 97 percent of the $5 billion of outstanding commercial debt, also said it intends to stick to the refinancing agreement.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker told the Senate Budget Committee that people who have been working on the debt problems since late last year may be suffering from "fatigue."

There has to be a renewed effort here based on the renewed understanding that everybody's going to have to hang or succeed together creditors and debtors alike," Volcker said.

Ousted GM director negotiating lawsuit

NEW YORK (UPI) — General Motors Chairman and former maverick director H. Ross Perot and Tuesday in a New York State court to negotiate a lawsuit that seeks to replace a GM board and a return of the $76 million the automaker paid to him to leave.

The suit, filed by Milage A. Hart Jr. a GM shareholder who helped found Electronic Data Systems Corp. with Perot in 1962, seeks to rescind a December GM maneuver that ousted Perot from the board by buying back his GM class E shares.

GM acquired EDS in 1984, at which time the computer company's stock was converted to GM class E shares.

Attorneys refused to say what was discussed during a 2 1/2-hour closed conference among Perot, Smith, other GM board members and members of the Hart's law firm the parties continued the meeting for an hour until the judge reportedly adjourned it until Tuesday.

Under what lawyers have dubbed a "Bush provision" of the merger agreement, Perot could find himself up to $3 billion for speaking against the automaker in public.

Hart's suit was filed against Perot, Smith, and the GM board, charging in part that the amount paid to out the maverick Texan "far exceeds the actual value of those securities."

The suit claims the transaction price of approximately $56.50 a share—which included the purchase by GM of contingency notes that guaranteed Perot a value of $62.50 per share if he held the class E stock until 1991—was unfair. It says the component of the price for class E stock was $33 billion a barrel. Hart also wants GM to buy back the market price for the stock fell from $3.10 a share to 79 cents a share after the deal was announced.

ABC's 'Amerika' fizzes with president and ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC's controversial miniseries "Amerika" fizzled in the ratings as each night dragged on, and even the nation's supreme critic, President Reagan, branded the series "Amerika," fitzwater said. "The president saw more of it than I did and thought it was slower than I did."

For the week ending Feb. 22, the second part of "Amerika" finished No. 9, the fourth part finished No. 25, the fifth installment was No. 43 and the sixth was No. 44. Sunday's final installment tied at No. 13.

Adding insult to injury, during the period "Amerika" was on, ABC actually had a higher average rating for every night but Monday and Sunday, and CBS won Tuesday, Friday and Sunday in the ratings.

"Amerika" averaged an 18.9 rating and 28 share; good for ABC, but not anywhere near the 35 share ABC promised advertisers.

At the White House Tuesday, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, was asked what he thought. "I thought it was very interesting and the content was stimulating—but it was pretty slow," he said. Asked by ABC reporter Sam Donaldson whether President Reagan had watched "Amerika," Fitzwater said, "The president saw more of it than I did and thought it was slower than I did."

For the week ending Feb. 22, the 22nd week of the season, NBC won with an 18.2 rating and 28 share. CBS was second with a 16.6 rating and 25 share and ABC was a close third with a 16.4 rating and 25 share.

In news, "CBS Evening News" with Dan Rather won with a 13.9 rating and 21 share. "CBS Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw was second with a 12.7 rating and 22 share and "ABC World News Tonight" with Peter Jennings had a 10.7 rating and 16 share.

NBC leads the season-to-date ratings with a 17.9 rating and 28 share. CBS has a 16.1 rating and 25 share and ABC has a 14.3 rating and 23 share.

ABC also leads the sweep, with an 18.5 rating and 29 share, followed by CBS with a 15.8 rating and 24 share, ABC closed the gap with CBS with a 15.2 rating and 24 share, showing that it was helped by the massive miniseries. Each ratings point represents about 875,000 households and a share is the percentage of operating sets tuned to a particular show.

Winner of the week: CBS's "Miss USA Pageant," which went up against "Amerika" and won, proving conclusively that beauty is better than nothing.

Loser of the week: "Amerika," ABC's $40 million gamble that went bust.

Grammy contest is family affair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Trumpeter Wynton Marsalis, the hottest name in jazz for four years, had it tougher than most at the 29th annual Grammy Awards Tuesday night. He was competing against his big brother Marsalis, 25, was up against saxophonist Branford Marsalis, 26, in the best jazz instrumental performance category. Wynton for his album "J Mood" and Branford for his "Royal Garden Blues." LP. But there won't be any trouble at home. They both lost. And to prove that there is justice at the Grammy Awards, the award went to their mentor, Miles Davis, for his "Tutu" album.

Wynton Marsalis, however, did win a Grammy for best group performance for his "J Mood" album.
Job-based welfare program introduced by governors

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The National Governors’ Association endorsed a $1 billion job-based welfare reform plan Tuesday and called on Congress to allow states to raise their highway speed limits to as high as 65 mph.

Wrapping up their four-day annual meeting, the governors called for a welfare program requiring recipients to work, participate in job training or receive education in order to get benefits.

They also called for a national minimum benefit level for recipients and for two-parent families to be included in welfare in the future. However, a Republican-sponsored amendment asked that those innovations be paid for later from savings gained from the initial program as welfare recipients move into jobs and pay taxes.

"It is our intent that the administration would support the funds. “Anyone can embrace the concepts, but if they are not willing to pay for it, you’re a long way from home,” said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y. "Embracing it and making love without paying for it—there’s a wide gap.”

On a 24-7 vote, the governors also called for the flexibility to raise speed limits to 65 mph in places, such as the far West, where the distances between cities are great. Gov. Evan Mecham, R-Ariz., who sponsored the measure, said many states “resent the idea” that the federal government has dictated to them a 55 mph speed limit based on safety and threatened to withdraw highway funds if the limit is not enforced.

“[I]f we know how to set the speed limit in Arizona and still be concerned with safety,” he said.

Congressional approval of a highway funding bill has been stalled because of the dispute over giving states such authority. Easterners familiar with busy major highways oppose the change, citing fewer deaths under the 55 mph limit.

The governors pitched their welfare proposal to Congress later Tuesday and got a generally favorable reception, though there were some questions about the amount of federal money that would be required and whether the administration would support the funds.

Thiokol, NASA OK contract in shuttle disaster

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Morton Thiokol Inc., builder of the shuttle's flawed booster rockets, has agreed to give up $10 million to profit from NASA and to provide $400 million in required work at cost because of the Challenger disaster, UPI'ssources said Tuesday.

This is kind of a no-fault understanding, but Thiokol has consented in being dinged for the $10 million," NASA General Counsel John O'Brien said.

A space agency said it and Morton Thiokol "believed it was in the best interest of all concerned to resolve the matters without resorting to lengthy and expensive litigation."

The NASA statement said such litigation would have "diverted attention from the critical national priority of safely returning the shuttle to flight."

O'Brien said by telephone from Washington that Thiokol's agreement would allow any assignment of liability and that it must be viewed in the context of an overall restructuring of Thiokol. Thiokol was acquired by $1.3 billion contract.

"The way that one has to look at the Thiokol contract is as a voluntary acceptance of a refund of $10 million, if you will, without admission of any liability and without any NASA determination with regard to Thiokol being liable," he said.

Morton Thiokol still faces a lawsuit from Cheryl McNair, wife of astronaut Ronald McNair, who was killed along with six other shuttle fliers aboard Challenger.

Challenger was destroyed Jan. 28, 1986, when a joint between two fuel segments in its right-side booster rocket ruptured, triggering the explosion of the shuttle's giant external fuel tank.

The presidential commission that investigated the disaster blamed the failure on a combination of factors, including a faulty joint design, the failure of key O-ring seals, low temperature and assembly problems.

Morton Thiokol's Aerospace Group is the prime contractor for the shuttle's 14-story solid-fuel boosters, and the company has been negotiating accident provisions in its contract since last summer.

"Topics discussed included a $10 million fee penalty provision of the contract, work required to fix the design defects in the motor joints, new work required and restructuring the remainder of the contract," NASA said.

Ships, planes rush to help crippled boat in Atlantic

By United Press International

Ships and aircraft fought through a wild Atlantic storm Tuesday in hopes of saving the 19-man crew of a crippled fishing boat, swallowl9 in 30-foot waves as other rescuers searched by ship, air and helicopter.

Crews found the ship's digestive and tracked two transports reporting heavy damage. The Coast Guard said the Balfa 24, a 196-foot fishing boat of Norwegian registry, began taking on water Tuesday morning about 460 miles south of Newfoundland and 1,150 miles east of New York.

Crewmen said winds were hitting 75 mph and 30- to 50-foot seas were breaking over the boat.

Spokesman Dennis Uhlenhoop said a Coast Guard transport C-130 located the stricken ship and was circling the area, talking with the crew and commercial ships in the area.

He called the storm "a dire endurance of human life" and said it had not reached its peak.

At first light Tuesday the crew radioed that it was listing, the Coast Guard said, and in a later transmission reported it had decided to stand aboard.

Uhlenhoop said four other commercial ships were in the immediate area. Three of them offered to attempt a rescue but the closest ship, a Soviet vessel about 140 miles from the stricken ship, had not indicated if it was joining the rescue.

Not far away, a U.S. container ship, the Export Patriot, reported it was in trouble. Waves have smashed through their windows and their electronic equipment is getting wet," Uhlenhoop said.

He said the Coast Guard in Vermont, Va., was tracking the 610-foot ship.

A third ship, the 447-foot British transport Diana, reported about 145 miles northeast of Bermuda that the storm was sweeping its cargo container overboard in the storm.

The ship did not request immediate assistance and was being tracked in Bermuda, Uhlenhoop said.

Coast Guard and Navy ships were in the second day of a search for the three-man crew of a North Carolina fishing boat that sank off Maryland on Monday.

Uhlenhoop said the three non-Soviet ships in the area of the Balfa 24 were the Provo Boreli from Norway, the BCR Queen from Germany and the Alfred Needler from Canada.

The Norwegian ship could not arrive until Wednesday, he said.

Earlier Monday, Coast Guard and Navy ships said planes resumed the search in the area of the Balfa 24 were the three-man crew of the trawler Velorese Marine, from Woonsocket, N.C., that sank Monday.

Cyanide-laced milk found in N.J.

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A man became ill after drinking half-and-half dairy product contained in a quart carton of milk, and Acme supermarkets issued a recall Tuesday of all milk products from a southern New Jersey dairy.

New Jersey Department of Health investigators were trying to determine the source of the contamination. An unidentified Lawrence Township man was treated at a hospital Monday after drinking Acme half-and-half that was laced with cyanide.

The man lawrence Township police said he became ill after he brought the half-and-half to the Acme store in the Lawrence Shopping Center, Health Department spokeswoman Leigh Cook said. He had his stomach pumped at the Princeton hospital and was released.

"The police brought the half-and-half to the Department of Health yesterday afternoon," Cook said. "We tested it all kinds of bacteria and tested it for cyanide. This afternoon at 2:30 we got a positive test for cyanide on it and immediately notified the Mercer County, prosecutor's office and Acme.

Cook said she was unaware of any safety procedures in connection with the incident. Cook said Acme was recalling all milk products supplied by Penn Valley Farms of Florence in Burlington County. Those products include Acme Light Cream and Heavy Cream in half-pints and pints and Acme half-and-half in pints and quarts.

No one answered the phone at the dairy late Tuesday to comment on the recall.

All Acme stores in New Jersey and Acme markets in Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia have been told to hold the products for testing.

The recall involves all New Jersey and Maryland stores. In West Virginia, the recall includes stores in Charleston.

Suspected bomber directs attacks toward computer

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A serial bomber who has targeted a California man and injured 19 other victims in a dozen attacks with homemade explosives in six states since 1978 appears to be targeting the computer industry, investigators said Tuesday.

"As far as pinning it down to a specific group, I don't think we can be that specific yet. There's obviously a problem with computers or in

Syrian, pro-Iranian forces clash in Beirut; 22 dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian soldiers shot and killed more than 20 pro-Iranian Hezbollah fighters Tuesday in Moslem west Beirut in a clash between Damascus sent in 7,000 troops to quell militia fighting over the weekend, a Hezbollah source and Christian Voice of Lebanon radio reported.

A source in the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Praetorians, said Syrian soldiers killed the Moslem fundamentalists in the Basta area after the Hezbollah forces burned down their barracks and fired on them, prompting them to return the fire.

The source said the casualties were not the result of a clash, but the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio reported the Hezbollah soldiers were killed in a firefight with the Syrian forces shortly moved Basta on the third day of a campaign to clean up west Beirut.

Voice of Lebanon quoted a Syrian source as saying preparations were made shortly after they occupied the barracks, and that they received orders from their superiors and there was no independent confirmation of the reports.

It was also not clear if there were any Syrian casualties in the violence at the barracks.

Earlier in the day, Hezbollah fighters in the Basta area set ablaze one-story stone Fallahtal barracks, where some of the Western hostages in Beirut were once believed imprisoned.

Eight Americans and Church of England hostage negotiator Terry Waite, who disappeared Jan. 20 on a mission to try to free Western hostages, are among the 28 missing foreigners.

The Syrian soldiers closed at least 34 militia offices used by the Shiite Moslem Amal and Druze militias of the Progressive Socialist Party.

Hundreds of Druze militiamen handed over their bases to Syrian soldiers, and the Syrians several weeks from West Beirut with the militiamen firing volleys of machine-gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades as they departed.

Soviets say 1972 ABM treaty too broadly interpreted by U.S.

GENEVA (UPI) — The Soviet delegation Tuesday in Geneva has formally proposed a broad interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty at the Geneva arms talks so the United States can "flush the toilet," as a Moscow source described it.

"Star Wars" testing in space, the Soviet arms negotiators, Alexei Obukhov said the U.S. proposal for a broad interpretation would "effectively block" any agreement on reducing existing offensive nuclear weapons.

Obukhov claimed the Reagan administration wants to "destroy" the ABM treaty so it can test and begin deploying the Strategic Defense Initiative anti-missile system in space.

But the American arms delegation issued a statement Tuesday evening saying it appeared "the press has been seriously misled, either inadvertently or by design" and that there had been no new U.S. proposal.

The statement said U.S. negotiators "have repeatedly made clear to the Soviet Union that beginning in October 1983, that in our view a broader interpretation of the treaty was justified and legally correct."

"This is not a newly tabled proposal," the American delegation said, and it is inaccurate for the Soviets to claim that the U.S. position on the ABM treaty has "hardened."

The U.S. statement said the SDI program will continue "until further notice in accordance with the earlier, narrower interpretation" of the ABM treaty.

"It is this policy that is now under review in Washington," it said.

Obukhov told a news conference Washington made its proposal at the arms talks despite "heated debate" in the United States and opposition among NATO allies to any testing and initial deployment of SDI systems.

Those who advocate such deployment insist on a "broad interpretation of the ABM treaty," he said.

"And while controversy on that subject goes on both in Washington and among the NATO allies, the U.S. administration has already formally proposed at the Geneva negotiations that this interpretation be legalized," Obukhov said.

The position adopted by Washington is effectively blocking "radical reductions in nuclear arms," he said.

Soviet nuclear test delayed, officials say

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. scientists in Central Asia were told Tuesday to keep their monitoring equipment off for several more weeks until the Soviet Union completes its first underground nuclear blast in 18 months.

The detonation, expected last week, will end a unilateral Soviet moratorium on nuclear testing in force since Aug. 6, 1985.

"The indication is that it will be several more days," John Berger, a seismologist from the University of California at Los Angeles, said by telephone from Karakaralinsk in the Soviet Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, about 1,600 miles southeast of Moscow.

"We were told the equipment must remain off. I guess we were told that until the test is over but how much longer will that be for sure we don't know," Berger said.

The scientific equipment was set up near Semipalatinsk, the former principal nuclear testing site, in July 1986 under a U.S.S.R.-U.S. treaty to reduce nuclear tests. The United States and the U.S.S.R. signed a two-year U.S.S.R. tests in Nevada so far this year.

The last Soviet test was July 25.

Washington has refused to agree to a joint interpretation, according to a Soviet count has conducted at least 26 nuclear tests since August.

The United States maintains the tests are needed to modernize its nuclear arsenal. Some tests also are believed to be part of research for the Strategic Defense Initiative anti-missile defense system known as "Star Wars."
Intramurals feature full March lineup

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

SIU-C intramural sports will feature a full lineup for March, with indoor and outdoor events including wrestling, swimming, 16-inch softball and ultimate Frisbee.

Grapplers from the student population as well as faculty and staff members are invited to sign up for the intramural sports department's wrestling meet to be held March 4-5 in the Student Recreation Center.

Participants will be divided into weight classes similar to those in high school competition, said intramural sports coordinator Buddy Goldammer. Entries close and weigh-in starts at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Local wrestling officials will handle the calls during the two-day event.

Goldammer said he thinks the wrestling meet will be popular with the university students because there is no intercollegiate wrestling team organized on campus.

Men's and Women's groups are invited to sign up for the intramural department's swim meet, which will be held at the Recreation Center Pool at noon Saturday, March 22. Entries for the meet close at 5 p.m. March 21.

One of the most popular spring intramural sports, 16-inch softball, is scheduled to begin March 21 and entries for the sport close March 25.

People interested in officiating for softball can apply at a meeting at 5 p.m. March 25 in Recreation Center Room 54.

The first outdoor event of the spring intramural season, ultimate Frisbee, will be available to men's, women's and CoRec teams. Entries close March 26 and competition is scheduled to begin March 28. A minimum of seven names is necessary for a team.

Dorr welcomes gridder walk-ons to spring practice

Anyone wishing to try out for the SIU-C football team as a walk-on should contact coach Scott Stewart as soon as possible.

Head coach Ray Dorr said walk-ons are an essential part of the team and added that many athletes work themselves into full or partial scholarship offers.

"We'd be happy to have people try out," Dorr said.

Dorr said interested people should contact Stewart in person at the football office, located in Lingle Hall at the SIU-C Arena.

Women tracksters to race Gateway field for indoor title

By Scott Freeman

Crunch time has arrived for the women's indoor track season, as the Salukis travel to Cedar Falls, Iowa Thursday for the Gateway Conference meet. The two-day meet begins Friday at 4 p.m. and concludes Saturday afternoon.

SIU-C coach Don DeNoon labels Illinois State as the "team to beat," based on the Redbirds team depth. ISU will put 25 athletes into the meet, as opposed to 16 for SIU-C.

"The overall battle should be between Illinois State and (SIU-C), although Western Illinois could sneak up and unseat both of us," DeNoon said. "But we stand a strong chance of winning seven or eight events, leaving us with a chance to win it all."

Currently, the Salukis top the Gateway pack in five events heading into the conference meet. DeNoon said All-American Carlos Blackman, on the basis of her fast times in the 500-meter run (NCAA qualifying time of 1:19.31), ranks as the favorite in the 440-yard dash.

Long-distance runner Vivian Sinou ranks ahead of ISU's Rosalind Cassidy in the 1,500-meter race. Sinou has a personal best of 4:28.96 compared to Cassidy's season best of 4:34.04.

Angie Nunz ranks No. 1 in the 400-yard dash with a 52.67 showing that is surpassed only by Blackman's 52.61. Blackman will not compete in the 400 this week.

Sophomore jumper Christiana Philippou also rates as one of the favorites in the long jump, on the basis of her 19-4½ effort at the Illini Classic Feb. 20. ISU's Angie Taylor holds the conference standard at 19-7¼.

The meet will take place at 4 p.m. in the Sports Center.

Track athlete trains hard, leaps high

By Scott Freeman

A Saluki All-American such as Carlos Blackman makes headlines every week in women's track, but lesser known athletes such as sophomore jumper Christiana Philippou are just as important to the team.

As the No. 2 Saluki team scorer this year, Philippou rates high in women's track coach Don DeNoon's book. He says, "You can count on Christiana to score well in every meet."

Philippou holds the school indoor records in both the long jump (19-4½ feet) and triple jump (28-4½ feet), standards set this season. Heading into the Gateway Conference championships Friday, Philippou's top effort ranks her with the best in the conference, namely Illinois State's Angie Taylor, who has gone 19-7½ this season.

But the young Saluki jumper from Nicosia, Cyprus, an island nation off the southern coast of Greece, says there is no rivalry between her and Taylor.

"I don't really know her," Philippou said. "I compete against her at meets, but haven't really talked to her."

"I do feel like I can win this week," she said. "I set a school record (in the long jump) last week, and I hope to do even better this week."

Philippou said she wants to jump 19-5½ at Cedar Falls, Iowa this weekend, an effort that would again break her school record and put her in close competition with Taylor. "I've trained hard for my best effort of the year, so far," Philippou said. "This meet is the one we train for."

But the Cypriot athlete can't wait to get past the conference season, which begins in mid-March after the NCAAs. "I had never competed indoors before coming here (to SIU-C)," she said. "I do better outdoors, at least in the eight or nine years I've been competing. It must be the air."

Philippou also rates as one of the favorites in the long jump on the basis of her 19-4½ effort at the Illini Classic Feb. 20. ISU's Angie Taylor holds the conference standard at 19-7¼.

Pentathlete Sue Anderson, the Gateway Conference indoor athlete of the week based on her performance four weeks ago at Eastern Illinois, will be challenged by ISU's Missy Zurowski for first in that event.
