Allied lightning strikes Kuwait, Iraq

Ground war 'dramatic success'

United Press International

U.S.-led coalition forces enjoyed "dramatic success" in the first day of a lightning ground strike into Kuwait and southern Iraq Sunday, suffering few casualties and meeting light resistance as they rounded up thousands of Iraqi prisoners, allied officials reported.

Backed by air and naval power, the allies began the long-awaited ground campaign at 7 p.m., following Iraq's failure to comply with President Bush's ultimatum to withdraw from Kuwait by noon Saturday.

Within hours, a Kuwaiti official reported allied troops had reached the emirate's capital, and French officers said coalition forces had pushed dozens of miles into southern Iraq as part of a plan to encircle Iraqi troops.

For its part, Iraq said it had foiled the allied assault. In a radio address, Saddam Hussein vowed never to surrender and accused the allies of "treachery" for attacking Iraq after Baghdad had agreed to a Soviet plan for a pullout from Kuwait.

The Soviet Union said it believed a chance for peace had been missed, China expressed "deep regret" and Iran accused the United States of seeking more than Iraqi troops may be suffering from some morale problems, but they remain an important factor to be dealt with in the ground war, a military researcher said.

David Bongard, of the Historic Evaluation Research Organization and co-author of "How to Defeat Saddam Hussein," said Iraqi troops in Kuwait have lower morale than ones remaining in Iraq.

Reports of shortages of food and supplies for the Iraqi troops in Kuwait have contributed to their problems, Bongard said.

"They do seem to be short on food from what we can tell," he said.

Another problem among the Iraqi troops is reported mistreatment by their officers, but Bongard said nothing definite has been learned.

"We don't know if they're being mistreated," he said, "but they are clearly suffering from problems."

Bongard said one example of bad morale occurred Wednesday when U.S. helicopters flew in to attack Iraqi bunkers and quickly took 300 to 400 prisoners of war.

The Iraqis offered little resistance and quickly surrendered under the heavy fire, he said.

A total of 7,500 Iraqi prisoners of war have been taken by allied forces.

Bongard said the Republican Guard, considered Iraq's elite fighting force, is the main concern for U.S. troops, he said.

The ground war has not yet involved the Republican Guards which are located in Iraq. At the beginning of the war, the Republican Guard numbered about 150,000.

War protesters in Carbondale carried stretchers loaded with body bags Sunday to remind people about the consequences of war.

Despite the 30 degree weather, nearly 70 people turned out for a march protesting the use of military force in the Persian Gulf and the ground war in particular.

The group met at the Student Center and marched along South Illinois Avenue to the Federal Building, 250 W. Cheney St.

There was no chanting or slogan yelling as the marchers adopted a solemn mood.

Carrying a banner that read "Peace for our Planet," the crowd marched quietly, paced by the steady drum beat of one of its members.

During speeches at the Federal Building, one man drove up and shouted obscenities and accusations at the crowd.

Local families pray for soldiers' safety, quick war

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

Family members of servicemen and women stationed in the Persian Gulf are hoping for a quick end to the ground war that began Saturday.

Denise Kennedy of Carterville organized Operation Support Shield, a family support group in Herrin.

"We are all worried about what is going on," Kennedy said. "The risks are higher now. I am praying that it is over really soon."

Kennedy's son Steven Spillman is a pilot with the 101st Airborne Division. She said last week he told her the troops were stressed with training and anxious for the ground war to start so that they could get it over with.

An airborne division transports soldiers quickly into combat areas. Soldiers in airborne divisions are at greater risk in a ground attack because they cannot be protected by artillery and air support. Paratroopers are exposed to small-arms fire while descending from airplanes.

Jeannette Temple of Carbondale, whose son Scott is a pilot with the same division, said a ground attack means a bigger threat to the lives of the soldiers but families at home have to "keep the faith."

"We've been through this so many times before — World War II, Korea, Vietnam," she said. "We'll get through this one, too."

Connie Boyles of Marion said she isn't sure where her son Holbert, a crew chief in the 229th Aviation Regiment, is located.

"I know that he is working on Apache helicopters somewhere in Saudi," she said. "I am thankful that he is in a safer spot on the airbase."

Boyles said she hoped a ground attack

Saddam: Allied troops killed 'like flies'

Baghdad Radio reports coalition soldiers suffering heavy casualties along all fronts

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A defiant Saddam Hussein promised an Iraqi victory in the Persian Gulf war Sunday as Baghdad claimed to have foiled the U.S.-led ground offensive, killing coalition troops "like flies."

In war communiques broadcast on official Baghdad Radio and monitored in Cairo, Iraq reported heavy fighting along several fronts involving a half dozen of its divisions. Iraq said it stopped several allied thrusts, inflicting heavy casualties and destroying hundreds of allied tanks.

"The enemy attack has until now failed completely, and (the enemy) is still confused, suffering and yelling in their blood and shame, in front of Iraq's defense lines," Iraq said in its first war communique of the ground campaign.

Allied troops, Iraq said in another report, were "dying like flies."

In one battle a communique said, the allies "carried out a paratroop drop behind our lines at Manakish, southwest of Kuwait City, and a violent clash took place. The enemy force was wiped out."

The communique said a British-French armored force tried to advance toward Iraqi positions in the western desert near the Iraqi border, but was rebuffed.

"The Iraqi forces contained this advance and inflicted heavy casualties on the assailants. The situation is under full Iraqi control," the radio said.

In a radio address, Saddam called on his troops to fight "to the death."

Beginning his speech with a verse of the Muslim holy book, the Koran, he proclaimed, "The mother of all battles has begun."

"Iraq will not be a gift for anyone. Iraq will not surrender. The war will end with an Iraqi victory over the aggressive infidel troops. The Arab nation and the Iraqi people await the victory of our heroic armed forces. God is with us," he said.

The Iraqi president accused the U.S.-led forces — and particularly the Arab states in the alliance — of "treachery" for launching the assault as the U.N. Security Council prepared to discuss a Soviet peace initiative.

"While the (U.N.) Security Council was about to meet to discuss the Soviet peace initiative, the backstabbers and those who support them launched their aggression," he said.

Directing his remarks to his troops, Saddam said, "You are launching the most honorable of all battles and achieving the most glorious of all victories."

"Iraqi men are not of the type to succumb to threats and ultimatums."

He said the Iraqi army would "inflict destruction and disgrace" on the U.S. Army, which it accused of seeking aid from "mercenaries of the Arab armies."

The state-run radio said Iraqi would continue "their struggle with simple weaponry against the technological and advanced weaponry" of the allies until the Soviet peace plan was accepted.

The Iraqi radio described President Bush as a "liar" and said the Iraqi army would teach the West a "lesson they would not forget."

Track teams succeed in conferences

Saluki men capture Valley title

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's track and field team proved to be the stronger team this weekend as it conquered the favored Illinois State to keep its title of Missouri Valley Conference Indoor Champion.

The Salukis beat adversary ISU by a narrow margin of 51/2 points.

The final score of the meet was SIUC first with 123 points, ISU second with 118.5 points, Indiana State third with 96 points, and Southwest Missouri State fourth with 94.5 points. Wichita State, Drake and Tulsa placed fifth through seventh respectively.

This is the team's third indoor championship win in the past four years.

Leading the Dawgs with a double win was junior Nick Schwartz who placed first in the mile run with a time of 4:10.30 and first in the 1,000-meters with a 2:27.43.

Schwartz said even though he won two events, he was just glad he was able to help his team win.

"It was a real team effort," Schwartz said. "Some of our guys really came through for us. It was an impressive and unexpected win. On my own part, I felt the best I ever have going into the 1,000-meters. I felt confident, but I guess I was just at the right place at the right time to win both events."

Other first-place wins for the Salukis were sophomore Bernard Henry who won first in the 600-meter dash with a 1:19.60 and junior NCAA qualifier Ed Williams who placed first in the 55-meter hurdles with a 7.37.

Sophomore NCAA qualifier Darin Plab placed first in the high jump with a leap of 7-41/2. Plab did not miss a jump until he attempted 7-71/4.

"I barely missed 7-71/4," Plab said. "I had a real good attempt and

SIUC women finish second in Gateway fifth straight year

Despite three injuries, the SIUC women's track and field team came home from Cedar Falls, Iowa, with a second-place conference finish in the conference championships.

This is the fifth year in a row the Salukis have placed second in the Gateway Conference Indoor Championships.

Saluki coach Don DeNoon said his team did well despite the injuries and is proud of its fifth second-place trophy in five years.

"We looked like the walking wounded coming home from the meet," DeNoon said. "But that's what athletics is all about, especially when you put intensity into your effort. For the athletes that competed, I think we did really well."

One of the girls who suffered injuries was sophomore Brandi

Mock, who was No. 1 seed for the 400-meter dash and could not compete. Another runner with an injury was sophomore Shaurae Winfield, who ran the opening heats in the 600-meter and had to pull out of the finals because of shin problems.

Junior Theresa Lyles, who was bumped and tripped during the mile relay, suffered some bruises and could not finish the race.

DeNoon said he thinks the team lost about 22 points and still would have had to gain more points to beat first place Illinois State.

Final scores of the meet were ISU first with 117.5 points, SIUC second with 88 points, University of Northern Iowa third with 77 points and Western Illinois fourth with 72 points. Indiana State, Wichita State, Southwest Missouri State, Eastern Illinois, Bradley and

Salukis lose close game at Creighton

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

It took Creighton's top two all-time scorers to turn away the Salukis Saturday night.

Creighton coach Tony Barone couldn't ask for better timing than to have the two best scorers in Creighton's history on the same team at the same time. Senior Bob Harstad, the No. 1 scorer in the school's history, and Chad Gallagher, No. 2 scorer, combined for 40 points in Omaha, Neb., to hand the Salukis a 76-73 loss.

With the win, Creighton took sole possession of first place in the Missouri Valley with a 11-4 record, 19-7 overall. Southwest Missouri State finished its season at 11-5 in the Valley after a loss at Indiana State Saturday. SIUC fell to 8-7 in the conference, 14-12 overall.

If the Bluejays, the preseason favorite to win the conference, beats Wichita State on the road tonight, they will win the MVC regular season outright. A loss to the Shockers will put Creighton in a tie with Southwest.

The Salukis finish up their regular season schedule tonight at Drake, a place SIUC hasn't won at since the 1977-78 season. A win at Drake would insure SIUC of a fourth-place finish in the Valley heading into the conference tournament March 1-5 in St. Louis.

SIUC again struggled from the free throw line, converting on just 15 of 25. Meanwhile, Creighton hit 35 of its 43 shots from the charity stripe. Creighton scored 20 more points from the line than SIUC to make the difference in the ballgame.

The 3-point loss was the Salukis' 11th defeat of the season by 6 points or less. The Dawgs lost to Creighton by the same 3-point margin Jan. 28 in the Arena.

Saluki sophomore center Ashraf Amaya had 20 points before fouling out with 3:02 left in the game. He also pulled down eight rebounds and had

Saluki women whip Bulldogs 63-47

Defense doesn't receive much of the glory in basketball, but the defense of SIUC's women's basketball team sure caught the eyes of the Drake Bulldogs.

The Salukis' defense forced 19 Drake turnovers and held the Bulldogs to a mere 20 second-half points in a 63-47 rout Saturday night in the Arena.

The Salukis' only pressed three times in the contest, but that was enough to fluster the Drake offense and keep the nation's third leading scorer Jan Jensen from taking control of the game.

Jensen managed 27 points on the night, but the Salukis shut down any kind of threat Drake possessed and went on an incredible 35-4 run in the middle of the game slamming the door on the Bulldogs. Senior forward Amy Rakers, who is not known for her defense, drew the assignment of guarding Jensen. She kept Jensen scoreless for nearly 16 minutes during the Salukis' run.

"She had a few opportunities," Drake coach Lisa Bluder said, "but you have to remember Rakers has five inches on her. Jan is not a true center but we have no depth so we have to play her at that position out of necessity."

The lack of an inside game created only one shot for the Bulldogs on many of its trips down the court as they grabbed only nine offensive rebounds the entire contest.

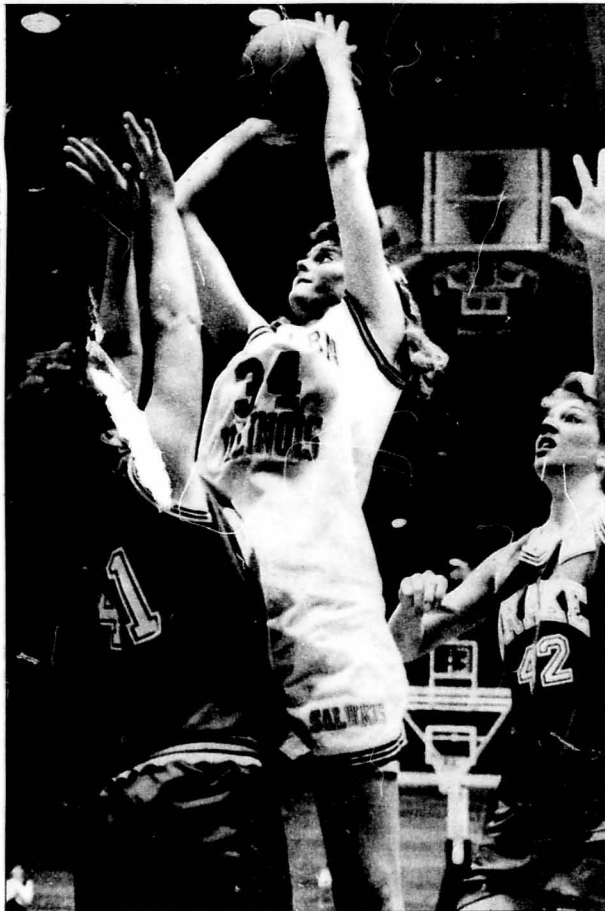

SIUC upped its record to 18-7 overall and 13-3 in the Gateway Conference. The Salukis finish up their regular season on the road with a game at Wichita State Thursday and at Southwest Missouri State Saturday. The contest against league leading Southwest could decide who walks away with the conference championship.

With just one win, the Salukis are guaranteed at least one home game in the postseason tournament.

"It's hard for us to go to Wichita and play," Rakers said. "We don't play very well there. But mentally, I think we need to realize what this game is going to do for us and just go in there and play our best. Then we need to go to Southwest and prove that we should be No. 1."

Rakers scored in double figures for the 54th consecutive time with 13 points and nine rebounds. Rakers also contributed four assists and had three blocked shots. She is just 2 points away taking over the No. 3 spot on the SIUC all-time scoring list.

But the big story for SIUC was the emergence of sophomore center Kelly Firth. Firth dominated inside with 18 points, 10 rebounds, three assists and two steals in 36 minutes of play. Firth hit 10 of 12 from the Sophomore forward Angie Rougeau hit six of her nine shots to add 12 points for SIUC and also came up with four steals. Senior Alison Smith dumped in 10 points and sophomore guard Anita Scott came off the bench to spark the Salukis with 8 points.

Chemicals found at border not from Iraq attack—Marine

WITH U.S. MARINES NEAR THE KUWAITI BORDER (UPI) — Traces of a substance used in chemical weapons were found near the site of a border clash between Iraqi troops and U.S. Marines before the final ground assault began, a Marine spokesman said. The type of substance was not disclosed, but 2nd Marine Division Lt. Col. Jan Huly said Saturday, "Probably we hit a chemical storage site and traces were released into the air," said Huly. "From our best knowledge, we were not the subject of a chemical attack." A Fox chemical detection vehicle found the substance Friday just inside the Saudi border, Huly said.

British prime minister calls attack 'just war'

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister John Major Sunday called the massive ground offensive to evict Iraq from Kuwait a "just war," saying it had become unavoidable because of Iraqi actions in Kuwait. About 400 Muslims meanwhile marched through London carrying anti-coalition placards, praising Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and chanting slogans against the U.S.-led allies who Sunday launched the long-awaited ground offensive to force Iraqi troops out of Kuwait. Major said, "There is no doubt in my mind it is an absolutely justifiable conflict and we will win it. There was no reason or time to delay."

Bulgaria tries leader for misusing treasury

SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI) — Bulgaria's Todor Zhivkov, who headed one of Eastern Europe's harshest communist regimes for 33 years, stands trial Monday on charges he misused the government treasury for his own purposes. Under the existing Bulgarian criminal code, Zhivkov cannot be held responsible for the policies of his regime, which caused the death of thousands in labor camps and transformed a once-rich agricultural country into a poor industrial nation dependent on humanitarian aid from abroad. He will have to answer a variety of criminal charges for issuing orders which the prosecution claims resulted in "damages to the state."

Brazil development lost out in '80s—study

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — The 1980s could be called a lost decade for Brazilian industries because of a virtual technological standstill due to limited resources, political instability, and a lack of competition, a new study said. Commissioned by the department of Science, Technology and Economic Development for the state of Sao Paulo, the study found that Brazil — despite having South America's largest economy and a population of 150 million people — has been unable to finance improvement of its own industries.

Doctors screen hundreds to find marrow donor for child

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hundreds of would-be volunteers turned out at Lincoln Park High School during the weekend to see if their bone marrow matches that of a 6-month-old girl dying of a rare form of leukemia. Among them were Chicago Bears linebacker Ron Rivera and Aldeman Ed Eiseidraht, who is seeking re-election Tuesday. The day-long screening Saturday — first of two of its kind — was to help Anna Green, who has a rare form of leukemia. Unless a donor is found, the infant faces almost certain death, doctors say. Results of the donor screening will take three to four weeks, Anna's mother, Lisa Green, said.

Voting in Carbondale easier now than in '60s

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Students registering to vote for the April 2 city election have it a lot easier now than in the 1960s, said Robert Harrell, Jackson County clerk and recorder.

Harrell said the deadline to register is March 4. To vote, a person must be a citizen of the United States, at least 18 years old and live at his or her current Carbondale address at least 30 days on or before election day.

Anyone who meets these requirements can register to vote at the City Clerk's office in City Hall, at the County Clerk's office in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro or with one of about 100 deputy registrars in Carbondale.

But about 25 years ago, not only were the requirements to register stricter, but students were discriminated against when they tried to vote, he said.

In 1966, a person had to meet three additional requirements to vote in Carbondale: living in Illinois for at least one year, living in Jackson County for 90 days and declaring Carbondale his or her permanent address.

If students spent vacations at their parents' homes in another city, they could not declare Carbondale as a permanent residence.

Many SIUC students living in University housing were not allowed to vote in the 1960s because of the location of the residence hall, City Clerk Janet Vaught said.

She said several residence halls were not part of the city at that time and students living there did not meet the Carbondale residency requirement.

Vroom vroom! SIUC police get new set of wheels

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

Campus drivers are seeing something new in their rear-view mirrors — the 1991 line of SIUC police cars.

SIUC Travel Service purchased five 1991 Chevrolet Caprice cars to replace the patrol fleet for the SIUC police, Equipment Officer Carroll Wright said.

Each of the patrol cars cost around $19,000, and the five were bought as part of a package of equipment and extras, Wright said.

The new 1991 Chevrolet Caprice police car

The special features on the cars include an airbag, heavier suspension for more durability, a special generator/alternator for the overhead lights and gas-conserving overdrive, he said. The car also is lower for more control.

Patrol Officer Mark Carwyle, who operates one of the vehicles, said he liked the new cars because they were built safer.

"They provide more officer safety," Carwyle said. "It is my understanding that officers have more of a chance of being hurt in their vehicles than in a confrontation because of the time spent in the car."

The overhead red and blue lights were transferred from old patrol cars to the new, and the cars are being marked with the police insignia this week, Head of Saluki Patrol Officer Mark Carwyle said.

The fleet is replaced about every two years. The time in use and conditions under which cars are used put a lot of wear and tear on the vehicles, Carwyle said.

"The patrol cars are running about 18 hours a day, every day," he said. "Cars run best during highway use and produce the least wear on the engine, but (patrol cars) are constantly stopping and spend many hours at reduced speeds, quick turns, or driving across rough terrain."

The cars rack up from 70,000 to 120,000 miles in just two years was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive™, which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself. It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.

State purchase tax needs to get the ax

ILLINOIS TAXPAYERS will be paying a "use" tax that will be practically no use to the state.

The Illinois government is asking residents to report all out-of-state purchases on their tax return forms. Items purchased in a state with a sale tax lower than Illinois will then be taxed again.

The purpose of this tax is to make sure Illinois residents are paying the full 6.25 state sales tax, regardless of where purchases are made.

Basically, state officials are attempting to keep Illinois dollars in Illinois while protecting state businesses from out-of-state competition.

ALTHOUGH THE TAX has existed for 36 years, the booming business of mail order catalogs prompted government officials to begin to try to enforce it.

But officials estimate the tax will bring in enough money to pay for the production of the tax's explanation sheet.

It seems frivolous to spend any amount of money to enforce a tax that will bring the state no additional money.

Also, the tax is almost impossible to enforce. Not many people will be willing to report vacation purchases just so the state won't feel cheated economically.

MOST PEOPLE live in Illinois by choice. Whether or not they purchase products in-state or out-of-state should be their choice.

Improving the state's economy is of concern to everyone, but the logical place to start improvements is on an internal level.

People will not purchase in-state products unless they want to. And a tax that is virtually impossible to enforce will not persuade in-state purchases.

If state government was serious about keeping Illinois earned dollars in the state, it would make a more aggressive move towards making internal improvements that would positively encourage residents to buy products in-state.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Letters

Festival criticisms unwarranted

This letter is about some points in the DE about the International Festival in the last few days. It started with Partha Banerjee's senseless, inhumane and exaggerated letter, when he called the festival a "superficial event."

He said that in his last three years at SIUC, the festival and other International Student Council (ISC) events were superficial. However, he confessed that he did not attend the festival.

How can he judge whether the event was superficial without attending? Is he confused or lying? Why is he criticizing everything the ISC does? Is he jealous about what ISC is doing, and that he isn't able to do anything constructive?

The answer is that he's trying to create trouble among international students who are friends with each other. The international students work under the umbrella of ISC.

I think Banerjee did not like ISC's excellent job, which was considered the best in the 17-year history of the organization. It's true what ISC's President Nabarun Ghose said: "It's easy to sit outside and throw stones at everybody."

If you think you're the best at doing the job, then come do it; otherwise, stop polluting the atmosphere and acting smart.

Julietta Monteiro, Minoo Shah and Nina Wilfred have a problem with awarding recognition to associations that excelled in the Exhibition, Fashion Show and Culture Show of the festival.

Our friends thought it was unfair to compare cultures. But awards were not based on culture but on how good performances were on stage. What can I think about the letters that were published in the DE in past days criticizing ISC? People develop hypotheses that do not hold water.

And there is good reason to think that such hypotheses concocted out of contempt and jealousy for the good work of others will never be proven right.—Kalpesh Vyas, freshman, undecided.

Student trustee needs student status

Recently, the Vice-President for Student Affairs, Harvey Welch, and his Associate Vice-President, Jean Paratore, have brusquely requested the Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council review office-holding requirements for that position.

The major concern of Vice-President Welch centers around the definition of "student."

Prior to a meeting on Feb. 12 with the vice-president, I researched the definition of student in the Illinois Revised Statutes 144 para 645. The argument advanced by the vice-president is as follows: an individual may meet the requirements to become Student Trustee.

However, the statute and existing SIUC rules and regulations are unclear on whether the student trustee must be a student at SIUC.

The intent of section 652, while not explicit, is quite clear. The SIUC student member of the Board of Trustees is/should be a student. That individual is a student as long as he or she meets the requirements set down by the Office of Admissions and Records.

A straight-forward reading of the statute (page 1536 of the I.R.S.) should have ended any controversy. That does not appear to be the case.

Outwardly, this administration request seems innocuous. However, a more thorough examination would find a more dubious rationale. I shall not expand on that rationale here.

With this letter, I invite the Vice-President of Student Affairs to address the USG Senate in order to promote his cause. I am confident of his capacity to deliver his rationale to the student senate.

Finally, I ask the opinion of every member of the student body. The question to be considered before we initiate any changes to the position of the student trustee: Do any changes need to be made?

Please send your questions and/or comments to: USG, 3rd floor Student Center, C/O Senators Michae Parker or Steve Langhoff. The office number is 536-3381.—Michael Parker, junior, political science; Steve Langhoff, junior, agriculture.

City fails to represent student body

If you had the chance to read the Feb. 15 Focus story, I believe you would have had the same rancid taste in your mouth. I did. Isn't it typical that even in such a relatively small city the politicians throw the way things are into students' faces.

It made me sick to hear city officials claim they work for the students. Public parking is almost non-existent. With so many private parking lots, it's no wonder why owning a tow truck could be a very profitable business.

What about housing standards? Exactly when is a structure unfit to live in? The mentality here is why create high standards when the housing is for students?

This isn't happening because students don't vote. It's happening because the administration is out of touch with the students as being part of this community.

The student body should vote, but it doesn't take voting to bring around a change for the better. Isn't this your job as city administrators? Why don't you take the time to come on campus and talk to some of your community?

This city's policies currently perpetuate the exploitation of students for a small minority of people. To sugar-coat the effects of this the city has allowed 18- to 20-year-olds into the local bars. This is a brave step for any administration.

But we must remember one fact: this city would cease to exist without this college. The city's business revenue depends to the students' money. Our city must realize this and act accordingly.

This is a beautiful city, and I enjoy, as do many of my fellow students, the areas we can congregate. But it's time to take the student body and put them into all decisions made for the community. We are part of it and always will be. Jessup has spoken.—Michael Hoffman, freshman, cinema.

Iraq's expulsion from Kuwait. Allied officials and Israel rallied around the decision to attack.

Bush, who announced the "final phase" of the war to liberate Kuwait in a television speech Saturday night, kept a low profile Sunday, avoiding comment and only appearing in public to attend church.

Although U.S. officials clamped a lid of secrecy on details, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, U.S. commander of Operation Desert Storm, told reporters, "So far, we're delighted with the progress of the campaign."

"The offensive is progressing with dramatic success," he said in the Saudi capital of Riyadh. "The troops are doing a great job, but I would not be honest with you, if I didn't remind you this is the very early stages."

Schwarzkopf said the campaign included attacks on land, sea and air by forces from the United States, Great Britain, France, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and Syria.

"Ten hours into the ground offensive, more than 5,500 prisoners have been captured, and we received reports of many hundreds more north of our positions with white surrender flags," he said.

A television news pool report showed Saudi troops rounding up Iraqi prisoners, some of whom appeared wounded. A white flag could be seen fluttering on a stick in the background.

Cable News Network, quoting Pentagon sources, said 11 Americans were killed during early fighting.

Schwarzkopf told reporters, "Friendly casualties have been extremely light, as a matter of fact, remarkably light."

Addressing potential Iraqi threats, Schwarzkopf said Saddam had refrained from using chemical weapons. The U.S. commander said there had been "some" contact with Saddam's crack Republican Guard, but gave no further details.

Schwarzkopf told reporters that with the exception of an early afternoon clash between a Marine task force and Iraqi armor unit, "contact with the enemy can best be characterized as light."

"The opposition has been probably been so light because of the excellent job of all of the forces to date have done in preparing the battlefield," the U.S. commander said.

in 1965, Greek Row followed in 1968 and Southern Hills and Brush Towers were added in 1972.

Those who did qualify found it difficult to vote because election judges would challenge their residency at polling places, Harrell said.

Election judges asked many students to provide proof of residency after already being registered.

Students were seen as temporary residents and many townspeople, including election judges, felt students should not vote, he said.

Townspeople discouraged students from voting or trying to become members of city council because they had the feeling students would take over, Harrell said.

"It used to be hell (for students to vote)," he said.

Election records show that areas with a population of all or a majority of students traditionally have a low number of ballots cast.

Low student turnout is especially noticeable in city elections, Harrell said.

Most students do not care as much about city elections as they do about national elections, he said. It is much easier to identify with the nation because most students know living in Carbondale is temporary.

The 1966 election had 401 votes cast from Thompson Point, Evergreen Terrace and Greek Row.

At the last city election in 1989, 13 votes were cast from Precinct 23, which includes Brush Towers and University Park, and 28 votes were cast in Precinct 25, the Thompson Point area.

In the 1988 presidential election, however, 305 ballots were cast in Precinct 23 and 393 ballots were cast from Precinct 25.

Carbondale has 29 precincts. Students wishing to vote can register with Brad Cole, Undergraduate Student Government chief of staff, at the USG office on the 3rd floor of the Student Center.

Drew Henricks, sophomore in journalism from Carbondale and member of the Student Peace Alliance, said the turnout for the march was good but he would like to see more people involved.

He said he believes President George Bush should be tried as a war criminal and imprisoned for his involvement in the Persian Gulf war.

Curt Wilson, a junior in plant and soil science from Troy, said in a speech that Bush deceived the American people.

"If we would have known that a thousand points of light would have turned into a thousand bombs and sorties..." Wilson said. "We have to think about who we elect and be more critical of the government." Carbondale resident Monica Flerlage said the efforts of concerned people, such as the ones who marched Sunday, can make a difference in the government.

"Here in Carbondale we're going to make a difference," Flerlage said.

Speaker Matt Sronkoski, graduate student in philosophy from Carbondale, said the group was gathered to mourn for the people being killed in the gulf. "We're in mourning for death," Sronkoski said. "Not just our own, but Iraqis and Kuwaitis and for that matter, Israeli citizens."

Although mourning is associated with sadness, Sronkoski said there is more to it.

"Mourning does not mean just being very sad," he said. "It's very empty if you don't do anything to end it."

"True mourning is to be active and show dissent against this unnecessary war."

Sronkoski said people who do not understand why the group protests the war worry him.

"I am very upset when people walk or drive by (shouting obscenities)," he said. "They know we care. How could they think we don't care?"

"What bothers me is people like that are accepting and not questioning (the government)," he said. "It's very scary. We are participating in the American system in the biggest way."

equipment and training the Iraqi military can offer, Bongard said.

In 1986 during the war with Iran, college students in Iraq were recruited for the Iraqi military.

Bongard said they were given the choice of joining the military — and receiving better pay, uniforms and weapons — or being drafted.

The combination of a high level of education combined with a lot of motivation makes the Republican Guard a trouble spot in the ground war.

"They're better educated and motivated, that's why everyone is so worried," he said.

The continuous air strikes against Iraqi fortifications both in Kuwait and Iraq may have taken their toll on the elite troops, Bongard said.

"They may be somewhat subdued from the regular pasting," he said referring to the thousand of bombing raids flown against the Iraqis.

According to military officials, air strikes by B-52s continue to focus on Republican Guard positions.

would never happen, but now she feels there is no other way to defeat Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

"The advanced air war should make the ground war go more quickly, hopefully saving some lives," Boyles said.

Temple said although most of the air war seems to be over, she will not breathe a sigh of relief until Scott is back home safely.

Kennedy said in his last letter, Spillman told her paper was rationed, so he could only write two or three times a week.

Kennedy said one thing the government can do to make things a little easier on the troops and the families is to keep the mail service up.

"It's been horrible since the war started," she said. "I don't want to hear from the government; I want to hear from my son."

Boyles said that she is not as concerned about getting mail from her son as she is about him receiving mail from home.

"I have heard stories of soldiers thinking their families have just stopped writing. It has to be terrible for morale," she said.

Temple said her son told her although he would not be able to write once the ground war started, to please "Keep the mail coming!"

The Operation Support Shield group will meet at 7 p.m. tonight in the Herrin Hospital Auxiliary Room.

Learning disabled students to 'Achieve' in SIUC program

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

When Mike O'Connor, 34, junior in political science, was in fourth grade, he was told he could not get good grades because he was lazy.

O'Connor decided to get through school as quickly as he could. In high school, he said, he did everything in his power to get out.

"Half the time, I didn't even know what we were doing," he said. "I only showed up for class. The reason I graduated was because they didn't want to keep me around for another year."

"I negotiated with them, more or less. I gave the teachers a hard time, and they let me slip through the system and right out the door."

In 1988, at the age of 31, O'Connor took a series of tests and was told he had dyslexia, a problem in the way the brain processes visual information.

"I didn't believe it at first," he said. "I had 30 years of believing a lot of other stuff."

O'Connor was accepted at the Clinical Center Achieve program at SIUC in 1988. He quit his job as a funeral director in St. Louis and came to Carbondale.

In his first semester, with the help of Achieve services, O'Connor earned a 2.74 grade point average. Next year he will graduate from SIUC with a bachelor's in political science.

Achieve offers remediation, test proctoring, notetaking and tutoring services to students with learning disabilities.

Remediation determines what teaching methods will work for a student who is learning disabled, said Barbara Cordoni, founder and director of Achieve. She said Achieve teaches the students how to learn.

If a student has problems with processing information they hear, called auditory processing disorder, visual teaching methods are used. In cases of a disorder in visual processing, such as dyslexia, the use of phonetic methods is stressed.

The customized teaching gives learning disabled students an opportunity to earn college degrees.

"They take the same courses any other student takes," Cordoni said. "There is no watered-down curriculum. They do not take fewer tests or write fewer papers. The degree requirements are the same as for any other student."

Cordoni founded the program at SIUC in 1977, the year O'Connor graduated from high school.

"At the time, all literature said learning disabilities disappeared with puberty," she said. "But I had two learning disabled children and students that were growing up, and I could no longer believe what I had been taught. The problems continued into adulthood. That was obvious to me."

Often, the first step is teaching the students how to read.

"We have people who come in as functionally illiterates, reading at the first grade level," Cordoni said. "They couldn't get jobs, and when they went to restaurants they had to stop and see who came out to the doors to see which restroom to use. That is where we are with some of our students."

Cordoni said students in the Achieve program have graduated with degrees from practically all schools in the University.

Achieve graduates will support themselves rather than depend on society to support them, she said.

"They become service-providers rather than someone who has to be given food stamps or become homeless, or whatever," Cordoni said. "Those are the things that happen to you when you can't read."

Currently 145 students are enrolled in Achieve. The program accepts 100 entrants every year.

"These students have dreams and aspirations no different from students without learning disabilities," Cordoni said. "They shouldn't have to go through what they do, which is basically hold on until they can get to college and find the treatment; they need."

The project is partially funded by the University, which pays overhead costs.

Allies support ground attack; Soviets criticize U.S. policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The massive U.S.-led ground attack against Iraqi forces elicited sorrow and anger as well as support from around the world Sunday, and the Soviet Union said a chance for peace was missed in favor of "the instinct to rely on a military solution."

China's Foreign Ministry criticized what it called "deep regret" over the escalation of the Persian Gulf war and urged both sides to exercise "restraint so as to prevent greater and irretrievable losses."

Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani pledged to continue Iran's peace efforts "as long as there exists a ray of hope."

Rafsanjani criticized Iraq, saying if Saddam Hussein's forces had moved to pull out from Kuwait earlier, "the situation would be different now." At the same time, Rafsanjani alleged the coalition forces in the gulf were seeking more than just an Iraqi withdrawal from the tiny oil-rich emirate.

As expected, the allied governments with troops in the Persian Gulf region strongly supported President Bush's decision to launch the ground offensive after almost seven weeks of air war, blaming Saddam's intransigence and expressing grim resignation to the battle ahead.

British Prime Minister John Major, whose nation deployed 40,000 troops to the Gulf set to absorb a bulk of the fighting, sound a resigned note.

"It's almost seven months since Iraq invaded Kuwait, during all that time we worked for a peaceful outcome. The world community, acting through the United Nations, has repeatedly called on Iraq to withdraw immediately and unconditionally but to no avail," he said.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Saddam showed his "true face" when he began a "scorched-earth" policy against Kuwait and the world could no longer tolerate the Iraqi leader playing for time. Germany has deployed a small force to Turkey as part of its commitment to a NATO ally's defense.

In Moscow, the tone of the official Soviet reaction Sunday contrasted with the assessment by Mikhail Gorbachev's spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko late Saturday that Iraq had let months of chances slip by and should now "have the guts" to pull out rapidly.

The government statement, transmitted by the official Tass news agency, said the differences between the U.S. ultimatum to Saddam and the Gorbachev peace plan to withdraw "were not too wide." But it said Bush had ordered the start of the ground offensive against Iraq.

"The instinct to rely on a military solution prevailed despite the fact that Iraq's agreement to withdraw its forces from Kuwait in keeping with U.N. Security Council Resolution 660 had created a basically new situation, clearing the way to transferring the gulf conflict to the footing of a political settlement," the Soviet statement said.

The statement said it was not too late for the Security Council to integrate the Bush terms for Iraq to leave Kuwait in seven days and the Gorbachev timetable of 21 days.

The Soviets said they had done their best to force Iraq to agree to withdraw in an effort to prevent the war from "escalating into a still sharper and bloodier phase."

In Syria, government-run Damascus Radio broadcast a commentary holding Saddam responsible for the bloodshed.

"All appeals and calls to avert the spilling of blood and save Iraq's resources have fallen as hell opened loose. That was the wish of the Iraqi ruler," the commentary said. "We had hoped that the Iraqi leaders would resort to reason and declare immediate and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait but unfortunately they remained arrogant and defiant."

Missile debris falls on school; no one injured

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Iraq fired at least three Scud missiles at Saudi Arabia Sunday as the U.S.-led coalition launched its ground assault to force Iraqi troops from Kuwait, Saudi officials said.

They said U.S. Patriot missiles downed all three rockets and there were no casualties.

However, an unoccupied school building in Riyadh was severely damaged by debris from the first interception at about 4:30 a.m., just 30 minutes after the start of the ground battle.

All the missiles carried conventional warheads, although it is feared Saddam Hussein may be able to put chemical weapons on the long-range rockets.

A second Iraqi Scud fired at north-central Saudi Arabia at about 12:30 p.m. was also downed by a Patriot, and debris landed harmlessly in the desert, the officials said.

Debris from the third interception, at about 9:30 p.m., landed harmlessly in a dirt lot in Riyadh.

Air raid sirens after each launch sent residents scurrying to don gas masks and seek shelter.

Before Sunday's attacks, Iraq had fired 38 of the inaccurate Soviet-made Scuds at Saudi Arabia since the Jan. 17 start of the war. All have been shot down or landed in uninhabited areas, but falling debris has caused one death and many injuries.

Military officials have said Iraq has begun basing the missiles in civilian areas in the hope that warplanes will avoid bombing them.

Illinois leaders, officials confident of quick war

United Press International

While coalition forces launched a ground attack against Iraqi troops occupying Kuwait during the weekend, Illinois leaders and residents expressed a mixed bag of emotions about the Persian Gulf crisis.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Belleville, told a group of National guardsmen in Chicago the ground attack was a matter of "cleaning up."

"That air war was over the first day; this is to finish the job," Dixon said Sunday.

DePaul University Midwest relations professor Cherif Bassiouni, however, said the effectiveness of U.S. military strategy in the ground war was questionable.

"We don't know if the U.S. strategy of piercing and enveloping tactics and forcing Iraqi soldiers to turn themselves in as POW's at the Iraqi-Saudi border will work," Bassiouni said.

But Bassiouni also said there is no doubt Iraq will be defeated.

Albert Makhiber, president of the Arab-American Anti-Discrimination Committee, said members of the Arab-American community fear an escalation in hate crimes with the start of the ground war.

"Our concern is that hate crimes ... could go through the roof," Makhiber said. But he said he does not expect the FBI to increase interviews of Arab-Americans it had been conducting in connection with the Persian Gulf crisis.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, said the ground war was almost unavoidable, but criticized President Bush for cutting out the option for negotiation.

"I think the president has made a mistake when he said no to negotiations," Simon said.

Bassiouni, however, said Hussein would have dragged out any negotiations and Bush's refusal to negotiate was an effort to avoid giving Hussein any kind of political victory.

Ashraf Nubani, 24, a member of the Islamic Council of Illinois, said Hussein gained prestige among Arabs when he took a stand against the United States.

"Before the war, nobody in the Arab world liked Saddam Hussein. But the moment he was standing up to America, he became something much higher," Nubani said.

Most parishioners at Chicago's Holy Name Cathedral Sunday said they support the ground attack.

"I'm surprised Bush didn't start this sooner," said Terry Finn, 39, who has a brother in the Persian Gulf. "I'm glad it will be over soon," he said.

Gov. Jim Edgar also expressed hopes for an early end to the Persian Gulf crisis, but Bassiouni said these hopes were not realistic.

"...it's hard to believe that those who think the war will end in three or four days are being realistic," Bassiouni said.

Mounting casualties, another Holy Name parishioner said, might change attitudes toward the war.

"I think it will definitely bring reality home ... doubts will come when the casualties start coming home," Lori Nuebling, 25, said Sunday.

About 200 anti-war protesters marched Sunday in the Loop.

Dixon told a group of National Guardsmen the U.S. should attempt to capture Hussein, stepping beyond the United Nations mandate.

"I would say that we should take him and try him," Dixon said.

"We'll get to him by continuing sanctions and with selective bombing."

Regarding post-war rebuilding of Kuwait and Iraq, Dixon said he would not support the U.S. covering the costs, adding that Iraq should pay to rebuild Kuwait.

From Broadway to University, 'Philadelphia Story' for all

Theater Review

"The Philadelphia Story" is a funny and entertaining love story that appeals to males as well as females.

This play, originally written to star Katherine Hepburn, first appeared on Broadway in 1939. The costumes and music were appropriately characteristic of the 1930s.

Nick D. Janik, freshman in theater, plays Tracy. Tracy is a pretty young lady from a well-to-do family. She has a temperament to go with her red hair.

Janik portrays the presence necessary to carry Tracy's strong personality. She is believable as heroine Tracy Lord. Her neat appearance and actions are those of someone in an old-money family.

Nick's costumes are beautiful. In one scene, a long scarf falls from the dress and Janik places the scarf over her shoulder and down a chair so the scarf will lay elegantly on the floor.

Tanya L. Roether, from Sesser, plays Dinah Lord, Tracy's pre-teen sister. Her facial expressions throughout the play add as much to the play as her lines do. In one scene, Tanya shows excitement when given a toy. The excitement shown on her face looks so genuine, it's hard to tell she is acting.

Jenny Miller plays the mother of Tracy and Dinah. She is concerned with the way things appear because she is the matriarch of this old-money family. She was raised to do things "the correct way" and she is teaching Dinah the same. For example, when Dinah said that something stinks, her mother tells her that something does not stink, it smells.

The actions of photographer Elizabeth Imbrie, played by Heather Currie, add to the play. She is a stylish woman who has a neat, attractive appearance. In one scene, she wipes the dirt off her knee after kneeling down to take a picture.

Of course, there is no dirt on her knee because she is kneeling on fake grass, but the action is more believable because this is just what Imbrie would do.

Stace Gaddy, doctoral student in theater, was funny as Dexter, Tracy's ex-husband. He got the most laughs. He said to journalist Mike Connor, played by Derek Hasenstab, junior in theater, "I thought all writers drank to excess and beat their wives," he said. "I used to think I wanted to be a writer."

The setting accurately depicts the lifestyle of a rich family. There are high ceilings, big oil paintings, a winding staircase, a grand piano, butlers and maids.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the play was to watch the scene change between Act 1 and Act 2. This was done with the curtain open and 1930s music playing. The orchestra pit platform was raised to create an outdoor area.

The curtain call was entertaining because the characters were still acting. The set looked like an old family photograph because everyone was sitting perfect.

In the beginning, Tracy's cultured accent was hard to understand. After adjusting to it, the play was very enjoyable.

The play will continue next week, March 1 and 2, at 8 p.m. with a matinee March 3 at 2 p.m. Ticket prices are $8 for adults, $6 for children under twelve and $3 for SIUC students.

Egyptian students protest

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Cairo University was closed indefinitely Sunday after students pelted riot police with stones in one of the most violent clashes in Egypt since the Gulf war began, Interior Ministry sources said.

Egyptian police, armed with bamboo sticks and tear gas, prevented about 2,000 students at the university from marching off campus and into Cairo's busy streets, the sources said. No injuries or arrests were reported in the early morning incident.

The students were protesting the massive allied ground assault against Iraqi troops to liberate Kuwait, which got under way early Sunday. Egypt has sent forces to the Persian Gulf region to force Iraq out of the tiny oil-rich emirate.

The clash between the police and protesters took place after the demonstrators were prevented from taking their demonstration off the university's main Giza campus.

Egypt has technically been under a state of emergency since the assassination of President Anwar Sadat in 1981. Opposition groups have been lobbying the government to lift the order, which outlaws demonstrations and public protests.

The ability of the demonstrators to carry out their protest was significant because such protests are banned in Egypt and are rarely carried out with any degree of success.

Officials: Farmers must take stand on ecological issues

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

The nation's advancement in agriculture may be slowed if farmers don't take a stand, said SIUC and national agriculture officials.

In a United Press International report, Jack Parnell, deputy U.S. agriculture secretary, said the needs of farmers often are misunderstood and farming regulations are sometimes imposed without the growers and breeders expressing worries about extra costs and efforts.

In the UPI report, Parnell predicted major changes in the next 50 years in the environment.

He said if farmers do not start to voice their concerns about topics dealing with the environment, they can expect tougher rules on the use of fertilizer and chemicals.

Jeff Beaulieu, SIUC associate professor in agribusiness economics, said he agrees with Parnell, but he thinks the problems are relatively new.

He said the problems have become more evident within the last year.

Beaulieu said recently farmers have been required by law to keep records of when, where and how they use chemicals.

Some pesticides and fertilizers contain poison or other harmful chemicals, which can remain on produce and vegetables even after they are picked and sent to market.

The chemicals also may be washed into streams, rivers and ponds when it rains.

Because no one knows exactly who contributes to water pollution, he said the new regulation is positive.

"I think it's good. Because of these records we can pinpoint the sources of pollution," Beaulieu said.

At this point, scientists can measure what is in the water but can't say how much of the pollution is from farmers, businesses and other industries, he said.

Beaulieu said the record keeping is a primary change for now. Other changes in how farmers conduct business to preserve the environment may come later.

Phillip Eberle, associate professor in agribusiness economics, said farmers also must be certified to spread chemicals.

"Instead of regulations, I think there could be some economic incentives to help the problem," Eberle said, adding that some regulations can be too restrictive.

He said fines or taxes might discourage the farmers from using the chemicals that are questionable, such as pesticides that contain cancer agents.

Eberle said the level at which changes need to be made depends on what the problem is.

"If it's something like not having certain chemicals on food, then it should be at the federal level, because food can be transported across borders," he said.

He said it is not a matter of stopping the use of chemicals — it's a matter of giving the consumer a choice.

"If the consumer is happy with the food he is eating, fine," Eberle said. "But if he's concerned maybe there should be some regulation requiring the labeling of food that is grown in a pesticide-free environment."

He said some states, such as California, already are using labels stating food is grown without pesticides.

Hotline aids grammar questions

United Press International

People needing help with their written "P's" and "Q's" or with a mind-boggling grammar trivia question have a new place to turn: an Eastern Illinois University hotline.

Organizations like General Mills Corp. in Minnesota, the Federal Bureau of Land Management in Alaska and others are taking advantage of a hotline at EIU's English Writing Center to get answers to grammatical questions that include anything from comma splices to improper transitions.

The "hotline" is actually just one telephone in the Charleston school's writing center, staffed by nine graduate English students. The center usually provides English tutoring for EIU students but also provides the hotline as a public service to callers from around the country.

Linda Coleman, an English professor who directs the writing center, said most calls to the hotline come from professionals, including business executives, secretaries, writers and copy editors.

The number is 217-581-5929.

Learn how men and women's expectations, roles, and interactions lay the foundation for the problem of date rape. Discussion in this presentation will focus on how to identify high risk and coercive sexual situations. Skills for protecting yourself and preventing unwanted sexual encounters will also be discussed. Co-sponsored by the Counseling Center.

Booster Club lends never-ending support to SIUC sports programs

By Jennifer Wise
Staff Writer

Boosting enthusiasm for Saluki athletics is the specialty of one group at SIUC.

"We're there to provide activities to promote and help out with Saluki athletics," Saluki Booster club president Woody Thorne said.

The Booster Club sponsors numerous post-game parties and an annual fall coaches' roast where SIUC coaches are honored. The main purpose of the club is to provide social events for fans.

"People do this (have parties) anyway," Thorne said. "What we do is provide an opportunity for people to get together, have fun, socialize, meet coaches and other students, and support Saluki athletics in general."

Women's basketball coach Cindy Scott said support for athletics is at an all-time high, mainly because the success of men's basketball. She added it's good to have the club behind them.

"It's nice to have people who support you whether you do a good job or a bad job," Scott said. "The Booster Club is there whether you win or lose."

The club is made up of about 1,200 people, most of whom are community members and former athletes. The fee to join is $30 for a family and $20 for an individual. Members receive newsletters and free admission to post-game parties.

Some members of the Booster Club will travel with the men's basketball team to the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament March 1-5 at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis. Club members have already reserved 120 tickets.

A trip to the SIUC-University of Illinois football game last fall was also sponsored by the club. About 350 people attended to cheer the Salukis to a 21-7 lead early in the first half. The Salukis ended up losing the game 56-28, but had a fine showing of SIUC fans.

"U of I is so good, so strong," Thorne said. "It was one of the prime events of the athletic calendar. We wanted to support our team and have a nice quality event surrounding the football team."

Football and basketball are not the only sports supported by the Booster Club, added Thorne.

"We try to provide support for all teams," he said. "We've had a post-swim meet party after the team swim against Arkansas. The turnout is smaller, but not less important. The swim team has a bunch of class kids and they're just as important as basketball and football."

Tennis coach Dick LeFevre said non-revenue sports are not supported as highly as basketball and football. The club gives these sports a chance to be recognized.

"Support for tennis is low compared to basketball in the United States," LeFevre said. "The Booster Club is one of the few clubs that gives all coaches an opportunity to speak."

Schultz wins Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ted Schultz won the Los Angeles Open, $180,000 and a ticket out of obscurity Sunday.

"I'm a little overwhelmed right now," Schultz said after he carded a 3-under par 68 and captured the $1 million tournament by one stroke over Jeff Sluman. "It might sound funny, but I had a really good feeling that I was going to win."

The four-year PGA Tour pro had only a 1989 Southern Open victory before he held on at the storied Riviera Country Club course for the check that was just $13,126 less than he made all of last year.

Schultz had four birdies — and a bogey when he three-putted at the par-4, No. 9 — in running his four-day total to 12-under 272, well off the tournament record.

"I've been in position a lot of times to do well and I didn't do good," the 31-year-old said. "I missed four cuts in a row before this week. My putting was the reason. I made an adjustment in my stance and I just kinda squared up."

"I used to get angry and get mad and then the momentum goes the other way. I'm feeling more comfortable on the golf course. I used to get very, very nervous."

Sluman, whose lone triumph in nine years on the tour came at the 1988 PGA Championship, was at 13-under with a two-stroke advantage at the turn before he took bogeys at Nos. 10, 12 and 15 — the last coming when he sent his second shot into a bunker.

Bruce Lietzke and Sluman were a stroke back entering No. 18, but Sluman pulled an 8-foot putt for birdie and Lietzke took bogey.

Sluman's 1-over 72 put him at 11-under and got him $108,000.

Kings lead entire game in 5-3 defeat of Jets

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (UPI) — Wayne Gretzky and linemates Tony Granato and Tomas Sandstrom each had a goal and two assists Sunday, leading the Los Angeles Kings to a 5-3 victory over the Winnipeg Jets and a sweep of their weekend series.

Sandstrom staked the Kings to a

1-0 lead at 13:57 of the first period. Taking a lead pass from Granato, Sandstrom split the Winnipeg defense and skated in on a defenseless Bob Essensa. Granato increased the lead to 2-0 just 59 seconds into the second period with a power-play goal. With Sandstrom screening Essensa, Grant went high to the short side for his 22nd goal.

The teams then swapped goals 40 seconds apart. At 7:40, Tomas Steen rifled a 30-footer past Daniel Bernhauime, but Gretzky gave Los Angeles a 3-1 lead at 8:20.

Dale Earnhardt wins Richmond 400

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Dale Earnhardt recovered from a rare mistake a little more than a lap from the finish Sunday and held off Ricky Rudd to win the Pontiac 400 NASCAR stock car race.

Earnhardt, with the white flag in sight, hit the throttle too much as he came out of the fourth turn at Richmond International Raceway, and the rear wheels of his Chevrolet lost traction for an instant.

Rudd, capitalizing on the slip, drove his Chevrolet inside Earnhardt and the two drivers began the final lap even. They were still wheel-to-wheel as they sped down the backstretch for the final time, but Earnhardt's outside line allowed him to go deeper into the third turn. He surged ahead and held the lead to the finish.

Harry Gant's Oldsmobile edged Rusty Wallace's Pontiac for third place.

Drake placed fifth through 10th respectively.

Even though the team suffered these misfortunes, 13 athletes were named All-Conference.

A finish in the top three is the requirement to make All-Conference.

DeNoon said 12 of the 13 All-Conference athletes will be returning next year since there was only one senior to qualify.

"That is one great thing we have to look forward to having such a young team," DeNoon said. "Most of our key athletes will be returning to compete next year."

From the 13 in the top three, three of those were first place wins.

Sophomore Nacolia Moore was the only double winner of the meet having placed first in the triple jump with a career-best leap of 39-35/4. Moore was also a member of the winning 4x200 relay team of Lyles and Mock, both of which competed before their injuries, and sophomore Crystalla Constantinou (1:42.71).

Mock, who competed in the 4x200 Friday night before her leg cramped up, said the team scored many unexpected points.

"Because of our injuries, we didn't score points in the areas which we thought we would," Mock said. "I'm glad the team stuck together and was supportive. We did really well and scored points in areas in which we were not expected to and that helped us take second place."

Sophomore Becky Coyne's win in the 55-meter hurdles (8.16) was biggest upset in the meet DeNoon said.

Coyne was the No. 5 seed for the event and took second in her heat of the semifinals. Going into the finals, she had the slowest time of the finalists, but she came out and won it to the surprise of everyone, DeNoon said.

The No. 1 seed, an athlete from WIU, tripped on a hurdle and could not finish. As it was, it was still a photo finish between Coyne and a runner from ISU.

Coyne now has the second fastest time of any SIUC women's athlete in the 55-meter hurdles falling behind only to Kathleen Raske, SIUC's assistant coach. Coyne's time was also .02 away from qualifying from the NCAA's.

Other Saluki finishers and All-Conference athletes were junior Michele Williams who took second in the long jump with a leap of 18-83/4 and junior Amie Padgett who took second in the 5,000-meter run with a 17:43.53. Sophomore Cheryl Evers placed second in the shot put with a toss of 45-103/4 while teammate sophomore Jennifer Bozue placed third in the event with a 43-41/2.

Sophomore Leeann Conway took third in the 1,000-meter run with a 2:59.10 and sophomore Dawn Barefoot placed third in the 3,000-meter run (10:10.19). Senior Beverly Klett tied for third in the high jump with a 5-6.

England, Cornell came to the United States in 1962 on a SIUC track scholarship.

During his years as a Saluki, Cornell was a three time All-American, a U.S. Track and Field Federation Champion, and SIUC's Athlete of the Year in 1962.

Cornell graduated in 1965 with a degree in physical education and earned his master's degree the following year.

After leaving SIUC, Cornell spent 15 years as Murray State's cross country coach and was named Ohio Valley Conference's Coach of the Year four times.

Since he has returned to coach the Salukis, he has led the cross country team to two MVC titles in 1982 and 1983. He has also led the track and field team to two outdoor titles in 1987 and 1989.

In the past four years Cornell has taken the track and field team to three indoor championship wins.

For his numerous achievements as an athlete, Cornell was inducted into SIUC's Sports Hall of Fame in 1980.

Cornell's athletes support him and are glad he was named coach of the year.

Sophomore high jumper Darrin Plab, an NCAA qualifier and a first place winner in the conference championship Saturday, likes the trusting atmosphere of SIUC's team and contributes it to Cornell.

"The atmosphere at SIUC is not cut-throat," said Plab, a transfer from the University of Illinois. "It is more laid back than at Illinois. We work hard at practice and the best thing is Coach Cornell trusts us to work hard. He leaves it up to us to do our best and train hard and I think that is important."

"He deserves this honor 100 percent. He is a great coach."

Nick Schwartz, a double winner at the championships, said Cornell deserves a lot of respect.

"He gives us lots of leeway in deciding what is best for us," Schwartz said. "He treats everyone as an individual and that helps our performance. He gives us confidence as athletes and treats people how they deserve to be treated."

felt great about the way I jumped. I am also very proud of the team. We certainly showed our strength this weekend by defeating ISU. We just never quit and this just proves you can do anything if you put your mind to it."

Other strong finishes for the Dawgs include Williams placing second in the 200-meter dash with a 22.15. Teammate senior Guy Sikora took third behind Williams in the same event with a 22.19.

Sikora also had a second-place win in the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.48. Freshman Pat Bridges was close behind for a third-place win, with a 6.49.

Sophomore Gerald Owen took second in the 5,000-meter run with a 14:38.05.

Senior forward Rick Shipley, who notched 20 points against Creighton at home, was held to a mere 3 points in Omaha. He managed to pull down 11 rebounds, which helped keep the Salukis close throughout most of the contest.

Gallagher, the other half of Creighton's "Dynamic Duo", contributed 20 points and grabbed six rebounds.

The game was tied at halftime 34-34, but the Salukis big men got into foul trouble and Coach Rich Herrin was forced to play a smaller lineup much of the second half.

The Dawgs had a chance to win the game when sophomore guard Tyrone Bell hit one of his three 3-pointers to pull SIUC within 2 points with 14 second left on the clock. But the Bluejays had ice in their veins when they stepped up to the free throw line and didn't allow the Salukis a chance to win it.

guards an easy pass or drive to the basket.

"We really felt like against Drake we could utilize her quickness on the defensive end," SIUC coach Cindy Scott said. "We really pressured more than normal in our half court defense. I think that took them out of their offense and really frustrated them." Drake kept up with SIUC in the first half. The Bulldogs held a lead for the first 18 minutes of play, but a 14-0 run just before halftime gave the Salukis a 30-27 advantage going into the locker room.

In the second half, the Salukis controlled every aspect of the game. They took a 20-point lead with 11:23 left in the second half of the ballgame and coasted the rest of the way.

"I think we (Drake) played some of our finest 15 minutes in the first half," Bluder said, "but probably some of our worst 15 also down the stretch. It was bad, really bad."

U.S. claims Chrysler Cup

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Charles Coody's course-record final round 9-under-par 65 Sunday helped lead the Senior PGA's U.S. Open to its fourth straight Chrysler Cup against the Internationals.

The United States won five of Sunday's eight head-to-head six-point matches, including the final three, for a 58.5-41.5 victory at Prestancia's Tournament Players Course.

Each member of the U.S. team collected $50,000, with $25,000 apiece going to the losers.

Coody's low round earned him a new car as well. Last year, he picked up three Cadillacs on the tour.

"That's nice motivation when you get five or six under," said Coody, who defeated Harold Henning. "I'd been on the losing end of two matches (Friday and Saturday) out there, and I didn't want to be 0-3 if I could help it."

Trailing by five points at the day's start, the Internationals took a short-lived lead as England's Brian Waites overcame a two-shot deficit to finish one stroke ahead of Al Geiberger at minus-one in the day's opening match.

"As first man out I had to win and give the team something to shoot for," said Waites, whose win was followed by a Bob Charles (66) victory over U.S. team captain Miller Barber (70).
