Oversight may complicate Housing suit

By Signe K. Skinion
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A possible oversight in admission mailing may further complicate a lawsuit filed by a local landlord, University officials say.

Recently, Stan Lieber, landlord of Stevenson Arms, 600 W. Mill St. and an SIUC geography professor, said his daughter received incorrect information on an SIUC freshman housing policy that Lieber is fighting in state and federal court. He said that a missing notice correcting the inaccurate housing information violates a state preliminary injunction.

Sharon Schumacher, field representative at New Student Admission Services, said all prospective students are supposed to receive a separate notice explaining the Housing-policy change.

She said she could not speculate on why Lieber's daughter did not receive the notice, but she said it was a mistake for her not to have received the notice.

The official notice states, "Materials contained herewith or materials you may have received in the past may contain information with respect to freshmen housing which is no longer accurate. . . All single freshmen under the age of 21 are required to live in either an on-campus residence hall or an (University) approved, privately-owned residence hall known as an accepted living center, or live at home with a parent or legal guardian."

In December, the 20th Circuit Court of St. Clair County ordered a preliminary injunction against SIUC for attempting to change the freshmen housing policy from the current policy to only allowing single, under-21 freshmen, not living with a parent, to live in Universityowned facilities, and not off-campus, University-approved facilities.

Lieber said the current notice going out to prospective freshmen is the correct notice agreed on by his attorney, Thomas Peters, and the SIUC attorneys. However, he said his daughter did not receive the necessary information that the preliminary injunction requires.

"They (SIUC) didn't just fail to Hiring restrictions will not affect new classes this summer—Guyon

By Lori D. Clark
DE Assistant Politics Editor

The University's new Core Curriculum classes scheduled to begin this summer will not be affected by SIUC's temporary hiring restrictions, University officials say.

Core Curriculum classes focus on smaller class sizes which require more graduate assistants to teach classes.

University deans and SIUC Chancellor John C. Guyon said hiring restrictions are necessary to deal with University budget problems.

Joe Foote, College of Mass Communication and Media Arts dean, said the hiring of additional graduate assistants will not be affected by hiring restrictions because the restrictions will not last long.

"The hiring freeze is just until June, the end of the fiscal year," Foote said.

Guyon also said the Core Curriculum classes will not be affected by the hiring restrictions.

"I don't see what we're doing having any effect on Core Curriculum," Guyon said.

Ann-Janine Morey, director of SIUC Core Curriculum, said even though the hiring restrictions will be over at the end of June, she is still concerned about having enough staff to fill the classes — especially if a hiring freeze is implemented during fiscal year 1997.

"It will probably make it more difficult to deliver what we've promised," Morey said. "My primary concern is to put students more in contact with faculty."

She said smaller classes and discussion sessions for large lectures would increase contact between faculty and students.

Guyon said that planning to meet budget needs for the fiscal year 1997 has not started, so it is not known if a hiring freeze for 1997 will be necessary.

Beer, brawls all in day's work for bouncer

By Dave Katzman
DE Associate Editor

It's a typical Friday night on the Strip in Carbondale. Despite the sub-zero chill, South Illinois Avenue is swarming with college students actively seeking a drink, a mate or a game of pool.

While all five bars on this half-mile stretch of federal highway have lines of shivering, jacketless patrons fishing in their pockets for identification, the longest line leads down the stairs and to the door of Gatsby's II, 610 S. Illinois Ave.

The line of about 75 people spans the ethnic and social strata. Some talk among their band of companions, others jump up and down to try to circulate blood through their chilled bodies. A 120 beats-per-minute dance track booms its bass tones through the walls, serving as a siren's call to the sea of festivities waiting inside.

One person sticks out at the end of the line: He's the guy checking the identification of potential patrons. His 6-foot 3-inch frame, topped by a tied-back swath of red hair, looms like an oak sporting autumn red leaves on its upper branches. "Here you go," he says, handing back a girl's driver's license with a cheerful tone that belies his intimidating physique. He's the keeper of the gates, the St. Peter who can deny entry to the paradise of drinking and dancing clearly visible over his shoulders.

While many bar-hoppers might envy Brad Balke for his position that brings him in constant contact with women and cheap drinks, it's just another day at work for the senior in psychology from Joliet.

"People think that bouncers go around, beat up people and pick up women," he said. "Society glamorizes the job, but it's not really that glamorous when somebody falls into their own puke in a garbage can."

Unlike other jobs where one can do homework or leisure reading during lag time, Balke constantly has to keep his eyes roaming in search of potential trouble.

"It can be very monotonous at times," he said.

INTENDED PEACE OF MUSLIM HOLIDAY MARRIED — GIZA, Egypt — Ramadan, the holy month of fasting for Muslims, a time of abstinence and purification during which the faithful are forbidden to eat, drink, smoke or have sexual intercourse between sunrise and sunset, ended this week. But the fast and the three-day celebration that follows it, ending Thursday, has not managed to cleanse the Middle East of all its enemies. In fact, Ramadan was marred by violence in Egypt as well as in the Persian Gulf state of Bahrain. Divisions that have riven the Muslim world for the past two decades, pitting radical Islamic revolutionaries against moderate regimes, continued to bubble and flare across the region. In Egypt, the outlawed Islamic group Al-Gamaa al-Islamiya announced it will keep up its nearly four-year campaign of violence aimed at toppling the secular government and creating an Islamic state.

WHITE SOUTH AFRICAN SCHOOL DESEGREGATED — POTGIETERSBURG, South Africa — Sixteen black children, freshly scrubbed and in prim new uniforms, marched nervously past riot police and a fence topped with razor wire here Thursday to desegregate a public primary school, smashing a racial barrier that has stood for more than a century. The Potgietersburg Primary School was nearly empty, however, because most of its 700 or so white students stayed home. Several parents angrily announced they were protesting the court-ordered integration of the whites-only school, while others said they feared bloodshed after weeks of rising tension and threats in this right-wing stronghold. About 20 white pupils defied the walkout, however.

OFFICIALS: UTILITY DEREGULATION MAY DIRTY AIR — WASHINGTON — The impending deregulation of utilities may bring lower electric bills, but it also is likely to worsen air pollution along the East Coast, according to a coalition of environmental groups and state officials. Deregulation is expected to take place this summer, when the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) issues a final rule allowing utilities open access to power markets nationwide. Under the system outlined in the proposed rule, coal-fired power plants in the Midwest, now producing electricity at a cheaper rate than their nuclear or oil-burning competitors, would be free to increase their output and market their power more widely in the Northeast and other regions with high electric rates. But by burning more coal, the plants probably will increase their emissions of nitrogen oxides, fine particulates and other air pollutants, warned Ned Helme, executive director of the Center for Clean Air Policy, a Washington-based environmental organization.

ALL FEDERAL WORKERS MAY BE SUBJECT TO CUTS — WASHINGTON — Only a small percentage of Washington's 350,000 federal workers have ever been through a reduction in force. But over the next few years most agencies will be cutting jobs. Surviving layoffs will become a way of life for many. Many feds believe that being a long-time employee and having veterans preference makes them fireproof. While seniority and vets preference help, having both is no longer a guarantee you will be the last person out the door. Veterans preference didn't help thousands of postal managers who were caught up in downsizing. Seniority didn't help many U.S. Geological Survey workers based in suburban Reston, Va., who were laid off. Agencies can and will tailor layoffs so that individual employees and jobs are targeted, leaving them few places to go except out the door.

Gacy's personality portrayed in book

Biography takes readers inside the mind of a killer

By Donita Polly
DE Politics Editor

Serial killer John Wayne Gacy had a dual personality which led him to kill 33 young men and boys in the Chicago area, a retired journalist professor who interviewed Gacy on death row says.

Harlan H. Mendenhall, an SIUC emeritus professor, is the author of the book, "Fall of the House of Gacy," which he wrote after spending 570 hours in a seven-year period in the 1980s interviewing Gacy before the man was executed last year. Mendenhall signed copies of his book, which focuses on Gacy's personality instead of the murders, in the Communications Building Thursday.

Gacy had a dual personality but kept it well hidden from the rest of the world, Mendenhall said. He said Gacy's dual personality was always there, but Gacy did not realize it, or his homosexuality, until he had an affair with a 15-year-old boy in Iowa.

Mendenhall said the boy blackmailed Gacy for money for about six weeks until Gacy could no longer afford to pay the boy. Gacy told the boy to tell his father of the affair, and the boy did, Mendenhall said. Gacy was arrested and went to prison in Iowa.

"From there on, John was the B personality and was out to get anybody he could," Mendenhall said. "He was angry at all boys from 15 to 18 because the boy had ruined his life. That's why he killed them."

After Gacy went to prison, he lost complete control of his dual personality, Mendenhall said. He said Gacy was able to cover up the dual personality from the rest of the world and himself.

"Even towards the end, he was saying he was a nice guy," Mendenhall said.

Mendenhall said there was always a prison guard present when he interviewed Gacy in a 10 foot by 10 foot prison cell. He said Gacy had to wear hand and ankle cuffs during the one-hour interviews.

During the interviews, Gacy talked about how his father had abused him, starting when Gacy was 3-years-old, Mendenhall said.

Mendenhall also interviewed Gacy's mother for 50 hours. He said Gacy's mother, who was also abused by Gacy's father, was afraid to report the abuse to the police.

"John was in the hospital once for 29 days after his father kicked him down some stairs," Mendenhall said. "Mama Gacy said she would never forgive herself for not turning him (her husband) into the police."

While he was interviewing Gacy, Mendenhall said there was always an evil presence in the room with them. He said Gacy claimed he was not evil and could hold back the evil personality, except during one of his tirades.

"He didn't blow up or get violent but three or four times in all the years I interviewed him."

"He called me at the end and said I was the only friend he had and 'I thank you,'" he said. "I don't know if he meant that somebody saw what he did and still talked to him."

Gacy asked Mendenhall to go to his execution, but Mendenhall said he could not do that.

"I said 'no' because I could not stand to see another person killed," he said. "I felt sorry for him, even at the end."

Mendenhall said he eventually agreed to go to the execution but still could not do it. He said Mary Tupper, who graduated SIU in 1974, helped him with the book and took his place at the execution.

"John never did know the difference," Mendenhall said.

Tupper said she was not allowed to see the execution because she did not have the clearance, but she was allowed on the grounds.

She said Gacy sent an autographed picture to her and her son Brian. She said the picture read: "To my good friends Mary and Brian."

'Book Bucks' to raise and donate needed funds for public library

By Brian T. Sutton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

First there was "Save the Rails" to generate support for Amtrak. Now Carbondale has "Book Bucks" to generate support for the Carbondale Public Library.

Greg Brown, of Makanda, thought if everyone in Carbondale gave the library a two-dollar bill, the library would have the funds it requested from the Carbondale City Council Feb. 6.

Then Brown started "Book Bucks", which encourages people to donate a two-dollar bill to the library.

The library requested $58,000 from the city, in addition to its 1997 fiscal year budget.

The library officials said if they did not receive the funds, the library would have to cut services and jobs.

The City Council turned down the request because of uncertainty in the funding that may be required for the Carbondale Amtrak route.

Brown said he does not want to get in the middle of a disagreement between the city and the library.

He said he just wants to help the library.

"When I heard that the library may have to cut jobs and services, I thought it was time to help," Brown said.

Brown said he will have fliers printed for "Book Bucks" and distribute them to local businesses to place in their windows.

Brown is a real-estate agent with Century 21, 1400 W. Main.

He said for every house he sells, he will donate $21 to the library.

He said he is going to encourage other agents to do the same.

Connie Stuedel, turned out to support the library.

She said the library has had more than $500 in donations from patrons.

Elder Beerman: Trying to keep mall shop open

By Brian T. Sutton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Elder-Beerman officials say the company has changed its mind and it wishes to keep the Carbondale store in the University Mall.

On Jan. 27, Max Gutmann, Elder-Beerman's chief executive officer, said he was confident that a federal bankruptcy court would let the company close the Carbondale store, which employs 70 people, in the University Mall, 1237 E. Main St.

Now he said he is confident the same court will allow him to keep the store open.

Gutmann said the company has worked out a new deal with Heitman Retail Properties, which manages and leases store space in the University Mall.

He said he would not discuss the specifics until the federal court makes the final ruling today.

Elder-Beerman filed for Chapter 11 in federal bankruptcy court Jan. 27 and requested to close the Carbondale store.

Gutmann repeated claims that University Mall renovations brought in newer, larger stores and redirected customer traffic away from the Elder-Beerman store.

He said the mall has not made any promises to help promote the store, but the company has new plans for the Carbondale store.

"We are going to bring in fresh merchandise and see what kind of response we get," Gutmann said.

Gutmann said the store was profitable but said it was not profitable at levels the company would like to see.

He said he hopes the new focus will allow the store to become more profitable.

Robert Perlmutter, chairman of Heitman Retail Properties, said he was pleased that the two companies had worked out a deal.

"Elder-Beerman has been a valued merchant at the University Mall a long time," he said. "We would have been sorry to see them go."

City Manager Jeff Doherty said he was pleased with the decision the company made to keep the store in University Mall.

"The store is important in the mall and in the community," Doherty said. "The jobs are important."

Friday, there will be "a gathering of college students networking to pool resources and pull together their ideas," X said.

Saturday's events feature a local organizing committee meeting to promote involvement in the community, increased voter registration and development in small businesses, he said.

Several prominent African Americans will be present at the summit including Maya Angelou, Jesse Jackson and Rosa Parks, X said.

He said the highlight of the weekend will be the speech at the University of Illinois at Chicago on Sunday by Louis Farrakhan, the Nation of Islam leader.

X said the speech will be given Sunday because it is Saviours' Day, the holiday celebrating the birth of Master W. Fard Muhammad, who Nation of Islam members believe to be god in person. X said breaking down his-torial boundaries is important to create unity.

He said focus should be placed on similarities rather than differences within the African-American community.

A van sponsored by the Black Think Tank will leave today from the SIU Arena between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. to travel to Chicago for the summit, he said.

The summit will end Monday.

However, the van will be returning late in the evening on Sunday, X said.

Legislators should not be able to grant tuition waivers

IT IS AMAZING HOW THE BEST INTENTIONS can go awry sometimes. Take, for example, the full tuition waivers system for deserving students.

An investigation of misuse of the waiver system by a Central Illinois newspaper has shown abuse of the system by the legislators who control it.

After seeing the evidence of misuse in the information that made it to the paper, and the cost imposed on the universities by the waivers, we believe it is time for the Illinois legislature to end the tuition waiver program.

The Illinois tuition waiver system was initiated in 1905. Lawmakers are allowed to grant scholarships and tuition waivers to residents of that legislator's district.

The News-Gazette of Champaign reported Monday on the possible misuse of the tuition waiver system by state legislators. The News-Gazette used information obtained from Eastern and Western Illinois universities. This information contained the names and addresses of the students who received the waivers and the legislators who gave those waivers.

The information obtained from Eastern and Western universities contained 13,000 waivers given out since 1989, with 127 waivers going to students outside the sponsoring legislator's district.

THE ILLINOIS ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE said there are no penalties for the legislators' giving waivers to people outside their districts but said that the universities should not honor those waivers.

Southern Illinois University, along with three other state universities, refused to turn over the information the News-Gazette requested under the Freedom of Information act because it would be a violation of the Buckley Amendment and would violate the right to privacy clause in the Freedom of Information Act.

Rep. Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, said that in debate last year in the house of representatives to end tuition waivers, it was pointed out that Illinois is one of only three states still allowing legislators to hand out waivers.

The legislation containing a bill to end waivers was passed by the state House but was amended in the Senate, removing the bill to end the waiver system.

The waivers also impose the cost of the student on the university they attend. In 1993-94, SIU received 172 student tuition waivers at a cost of $459,774. In 1995, SIU had 140 student tuition waivers at a cost of $470,296.

The tuition waivers system leaves open many possibilities for abuse. Lawmakers are not required to release the names of the recipients of this award, and the possibility for political patronage is so great to leave the system as it is without some sort of review.

Legislator's admit that the system is open to misuse and the numbers that were obtainable would seem to prove this fact. It is time to finally end this system. There has to be a way of awarding full tuition waivers to deserving candidates without the political influence that currently is found in the system.

Commentary

New Hampshire only the first step

The Washington Post

It is easy — much too easy — to work the numbers and demographics around so as to minimize both the size and significance of Pat Buchanan's New Hampshire win: The other, more centrist candidates got collectively far more votes than he; the New Hampshire electorate is famously quirky; only a small slice of the population voted; and so on.

But this is ostrichism, and so is the other over-easy reaction — the romantic, highly selective one whereby people who know better delude themselves into seeing in Buchanan only some kind of latter-day Robin Hood and exclaim on the wondrous, reassuring irony of the compatibility of so much of his message with that of the working-class left.

The truth is different. First, Buchanan did score an impressive victory over Sen. Bob Dole and all the others, and it gives Buchanan clout, standing and momentum beyond what he had before. Second, the mirthless laugh and the equally mirthless and seemingly unending metaphors and jokes it invariably accompanies about bashing this one, chasing that one, shooting the other and punching out the rest surely give a better window into the candidate's mind and motivation than the sentimental talk of him as savior of the dispossessed.

Buchanan has pitched his campaign to a wide range of grievances in the society. It is important not to confuse the two — the piteous man and those he hopes to sway with his pitch.

He is in fact as reckless and demagogic a figure as has appeared on the national political stage in many years — and some of the impulses he is seeking to exploit are pretty ugly. But others are not.

People who think they have been abandoned by the economic system, who feel they are working harder than ever and still losing ground, others who sense an erosion of basic decency and values in the society — surely these groups are deserving of political respect.

They deserve more than what Buchanan has found it convenient to accord them. He offers no genuine answers to their problems, only hapless fantasies of revenge and potent medicines in the form of protectionist and other measures that would make them worse.

The misfortune is that his principal rivals have, at least up until now, been able to convey so little plausible by way of alternatives. "Is there a problem out there?" Dole has seemed to ask. The third of the main surviving candidates, Lamar Alexander, meanwhile campaigned for the most part like an empty flannel shirt. He says the choice is between a candidate with bad ideas, another with no ideas and one — himself — with "new ideas"; the mantra of all those vanquished Democratic candidates no one quite remembers anymore.

Dole seems to us to hold the immediate key to this. He has both a lot of money and a lot of infantry in place in the major states ahead. And he is, in truth, as both his principal opponents have said, a far better figure than the guy scrapping around the primaries so far.

But New Hampshire says it's not going to be enough for Dole to denounce Buchanan, fertile as the possibilities for doing that may be. To keep his candidacy alive, and to keep his party from fracturing big-time, Dole will have to give people an affirmative reason for voting for him.

This editorial appeared in Thursday's Washington Post.

Newspaper not as bad as Ensor says

In response to the recent Perspective written by Andrew Ensor, I find many of his remarks inaccurate and offensive. It appears that he finds himself in hot water again and is looking for someone to bail him out. Now he is blaming the Daily Egyptian for his problems. I don't think so buddy.

Ensor wrote that because the reporters are writing under deadline, they never leave the newsroom and do not care if the story tells the truth. Au contraire Andy.

As a former reporter for the DE, I can attest to the hard work, knocking on doors and research that take place before a story ever gets printed. The job of a reporter, to those who may be uninformed, is to gather and report facts in an unbiased manner. The job of a reader is to interpret those facts and make judgments about the ethics and moralities of those being reported upon. Most grown-ups can do that.

As a former editorial editor, I can testify that there are hours of background work that go into a single editorial. My co-editor won a Hearst award, as many have others on the DE staff. Apparently the Hearst people felt there was enough research going on at the DE to warrant one of the most coveted prizes in journalism.

The DE has a reputation nationwide as having a staff that is hard-working, talented and loyal. It has produced hundreds of journalists and media professionals who are successfully working in a highly-competitive industry.

Ensor should not only apologize to the DE staff and editorial board, but to all the former and current reporters who were and are dedicated to producing one of the highest-quality and most respected student newspapers in the country.

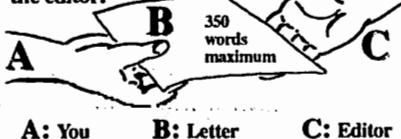

He should check his writing for grammar errors, too. They look ridiculous when they are reproduced 23,000 times.

Comedian to take stage tonight with act based on everyday life

By Travis Akin
Daily Egyptian Reporter

There will not be any O.J. jokes, but there will be some humorous observations of dealing with everyday situations such as relatives, when comedian Gregory Carey takes the stage at the Student Center Friday night.

Carey's comedy is about life, rather than cracking jokes about current events, he said.

"I truly believe we are inundated with news in everyday life," Carey said. "We see it all the time."

When people come to see a comedian, they want to be entertained and do not want to be reminded of things happening in the world, he said.

"I talk about things that happen to me," he said. "I talk about the plane ride. I talk about my Jamaican heritage. I look at a situation and make it funny."

He takes some of the ethnic qualities of his relatives and makes it funny, he said. Carey said he has a gift in making ordinary circumstances funny. He got his start in the comedy business as a kid, he said.

"I was the fat kid who used to make fun of myself before other people would," he said. "I guess that is how I developed a sense of timing."

He later went on to try a career in comedy but had to quit because he was not making any progress, he said.

"I wasn't making any money," he said. "I'd call home, and my mom would say, 'There is no one named mom living here.'"

He sold insurance for 10 years after he left the comedy business. Carey said he once again realized his love of comedy and began making plans to leave the insurance business.

Comedian Gregory Carey will take the stage at the Student Center Friday.

"There was not much to do but push pencils and wish you were dead," he said.

While working in the insurance business, he was living in Los Angeles, which is also where he began his career in comedy. He is now living in New York.

"In Los Angeles, everyone is looking at you... a casting director and is trying to decide what sitcom can we fit this guy in," he said. "It could be a plumber, but everyone thinks of himself as a director."

New York is a little tougher, he said.

"New York is more demanding and more challenging," he said. "They want you to be funny right now."

In Los Angeles, it is more laid back, he said.

"It's like, 'Darling, I'm a writer, you know,'" he said. "I am just a garbage man during the day."

Carey will perform at 9 p.m. Friday in the Student Center Big Muddy Room. Admission is $1.

Cross-dressing by son at day care upsets dad

The Baltimore Sun

WOODLAWN, Md.—When Henry Holmes picked up his 6-year-old son from the day-care center at the Social Security Administration's headquarters last week, he found the boy laughing and playing. And wearing a dress.

Holmes did not think it was funny.

"He was playing in this area they call 'housekeeping,' and he was wearing a shiny, white dress that resembled one a little girl would wear in a wedding," Holmes said. "I was told it was part of their curriculum, but I don't see how his wearing a dress is part of the learning experience."

Holmes filed a complaint with the state Child Care Administration, which licenses day-care facilities, about his son being allowed to wear the dress. He alleged that the center's housekeeping area was unsafe and not properly supervised.

The complaint was investigated Wednesday and found to be unsubstantiated, according to Linda Heisner, executive director of the Child Care Administration.

send the notice," Lieber said. "They didn't send the Stevenson Arms brochure which the court order implicitly states they should be sending."

William Thoman, assistant director of Midstate Special Education in Taylorville, said his son is considering attending SIUC in fall and has been receiving a huge amount of information on all forms of freshman housing.

Thoman said when he read a recent Daily Egyptian article on the lawsuit between Lieber and SIUC he became upset.

"I felt it was unfair the University was not able to present its case because of the litigation," Thoman said. "But this guy (Lieber) could say whatever he wants."

Both Scally, Housing coordinator of Marketing and Public Information who is also in charge of sending prospective students housing information packets, said Housing did not send Lieber's daughter the enrollment packet because she lives in the Carbondale area.

"As a practice, Housing does not send potential students who live in the 62901 zip code information unless they request it," Scally said. "The reason we don't is because we figure, unless they say differently, that they will be living with their parents."

The Housing packet Scally sends to prospective students includes an envelope for Stevenson Arms with a brochure of the facility and a letter to the parents and students on what the facility has to offer.

The packet also includes a residence hall guidebook for fall 1996, a residence hall dining pamphlet, a housing contract information sheet, the same notice on freshman housing policy as Admissions sends, a brochure on University Hall, a list of all off-campus University-approved centers and two sheets of basic residence hall information.

"A lot of nights, it will just be watching other people get drunk.

"Sometimes you think to yourself, 'I wish something would happen' because it's so boring. But when it does, you want to get it resolved quickly without hurting anyone and without any damage."

Balke admits that no matter how boring his job may be at times, he is always aware of the latest fashions by watching the crowd, and he knows what customers to watch for a little lesson on how — or how not to — pick up a woman.

Sometimes the regular customers Balke sees from night to night are not the sociable types who hand over a friendly greeting with their IDs.

By midnight, Gatsby's is so crowded that it takes five minutes to walk a mere 50 feet to the other side of the bar. But as Balke responds to a call for assistance on his headset, the crowd reluctantly parts for him. He walks, shoulders parallel to the floor, ready to respond to whatever the altercation might entail.

Balke walks over to the scene of the incident on the edge of the dance floor, inserting himself between a feuding pair. One man, flushed red from heat and alcohol, yells about getting pushed by an overzealous dancer. The dancer watches the accusations through eyelids weighed down by either intoxication or exhaustion. "You go this way," he says, leading the accuser toward the back of the room with a sturdy hand on the back, "and you go over there." The dancer melts into the crowd before Balke can assist him. As he walks back to his post near the door, Balke says he is glad the dispute didn't escalate.

Despite the minimum wage and less-than-ideal situations, Balke reports to work whenever he is called upon to do so, waiting for the day he is asked to climb up the next rung on the tavern's equivalent of the corporate ladder: Bartending.

"The goal is not the money," he said, "it's to get behind the bar and then make money."

As the hands of a beer clock on the wall creep toward 2, the lines begin to point out the door. Balke walks around, looking for customers who may have trouble realizing the bar is closing. Soon, the crowd is off to bed or in search of an after-hours party. But not Balke. He still has an hour of cleaning and locking up ahead of him.

ISC discusses concerns about USG fee-increase bill

By Melissa Jakubowski
DE Assistant Features Editor

An 88-cent student activity fee increase brought international students together Wednesday night to discuss their concerns about the Undergraduate Student Government bill.

The International Student Council Executive Board expressed concern toward the lack of feedback concerning the recent USG bill at the council's 1996 Leadership Conference Wednesday.

Ilian Radev, ISC vice president of finance, said the ISC Executive Board wants the opinion of its umbrella organizations before the ISC writes a resolution to USG against the bill. Umbrella organizations are registered student organizations that work as separate groups, such as the Chinese Student Association, but are funded in part by a larger organization.

Scott Pfeiffer, USG chief of staff, said the ISC may submit a resolution to USG opposing the bill, but the USG Senate is no longer considering the bill until further review by the USG Finance Committee.

"They have the opportunity to sign and submit a resolution," he said. "But the bill won't be discussed again for quite some time."

Council members also discussed improving communication skills between the organizations.

Jose Orriola, president of the Puerto Rican Student Association, presented suggestions to encourage equal representation among the organizations under ISC to improve communication.

Orriola said the presidents of the smaller organizations need to become more active in ISC affairs and attend more meetings. He said board members also need to appoint a recognized substitute to fill in for presidents of the associations that are absent.

Orriola said an improved mail system needs to be developed between ISC and the smaller organizations. ISC and other international student organizations have mailboxes in the council office in the basement of the Student Center. Orriola said mail gets lost and the boxes are barely used. He said the system needs to be treated more seriously by ISC members.

Orriola said ISC should also work on organizing an updated calendar. He said keeping a regular calendar will force ISC members to communicate with each other to plan events.

ISC President Wan Kamal Wan Napi said the organization will consider looking into developing a homepage on the World Wide Web to serve as a medium to the campus and international community.

Transfer junior from Madonna University (Michigan) where he set a school record for RBI in a single-season (61), while blasting 10 home runs. His father and two uncles played collegiate baseball as well.
Height - 6-4 ... Weight - 205 lbs. ... Born: 9/1/75

Jamold Little — Infield
Little played baseball at Southeastern Illinois College for former Saluki Jay Burch, where he earned an all-tournament team selection. Drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers after last season.
Height - 6-0 ... Weight - 170 lbs. ... Born: 3/5/75

Jerry Hairston — Infield
Saluki newcomer played at Naperville North High School, where he earned all-state honors. Drafted by the Baltimore Orioles last season. Father, Jerry Sr., played most of his 14-year career with the Chicago White Sox.
Height - 5-10 ... Weight - 160 lbs. ... Born: 5/29/76

Jay Mansavage — Infield
Led the Salukis in three categories: at-bats (196), triples (4) and assists (138). The junior switch-hitter batted .358 from the left side of the plate and a hefty .301 from the right side. His brother, Bamoy, played football at Harvard.
1995: Average - .316 ... HR - 5 ... Stolen Bases - 12

Chad Isaacson — Outfield
Had a solid junior year in reserve outfield duties. Callahan feels his hard work will get the senior more playing time in 1996. His brother, Brian Isaacson, also donned a Saluki uniform as a pitcher.
1995: Average - .262 ... HR - 2 ... RBI - 16

Justin Strauser — Outfield
While playing at Mineral Area College, became the all-region pick at shortstop. At MAC, set a school record for stolen bases in a career (57). Named Sullivan High School's (New York) "athlete of the year" his final two years.
Height - 6-0 ... Weight - 180 lbs. ... Born: 1/11/75

Joe Schley — Outfield
Listed as one of the top-100 high school baseball players in the state by the Chicago Tribune. Set a Providence Catholic High School record for stolen bases (59). Named 1994 IHSA Summer Tournament MVP.
Height - 5-8 ... Weight - 163 lbs. ... Born: 7/5/76

Tim Kratochvil — Catcher
Finished second on the team in batting average (.354) and led the team in runs batted in (49). Named first-team all-MVC for second straight year. If he wins again, he will be the second player in MVC history to do so.
1995: Games - 51 ... At-Bats - 195 ... HR - 6

Brad Blumenstock — Pitcher
One of only 66 players in the country invited to the Olympic Trials last October. Last season, Blumenstock served as Callahan's closer, chalking up six saves with a team-leading 5.01 Earned Run Average.
1995: Won 2 ... Lost 6 ... 6 Saves ... 231 Innings

Mike Russell — First base/ Designated hitter
Last season, he paced the Dawgs in batting average (.388), and hit .412 in MVC contests. Started slowly, but ended the season as the squad's regular DH. Will fulfill the same duties this season.
1995: Games - 41 ... At-Bats - 116 ... Hits - 4

Dan Callahan — Head Baseball Coach
Callahan, 37, enters his second season as the skipper of the Saluki baseball squad. Last year, the Dawgs posted a 21-30 overall record and a 8-21 conference record — good for 7th place in the MVC standings. He took over in 1995 for former head coach "Itchy" Jones, who took the job as head man at the University of Illinois. Before coming to SIUC, Callahan served as the assistant coach at Eastern Illinois University for six years. Started his coaching career at Springfield Lanphier High School in 1984 after pitching in the Padres' and Mariners' organizations.

"It's kind of interesting, because the Chicago Tribune picks an 11-man All-State team, and we signed three seniors off that team."

Dan Callahan
Saluki baseball coach

After last season's dismal 21-30 record, the SIUC baseball team added 16 new faces to its roster and is looking for a new beginning, according to coach Dan Callahan. Callahan said many of last season's seniors used the word "phobia" to describe what was wrong with the team last year, but he said his squad had some players that did not belong at the college level. "Hopefully, we have enough new athletes here that can put what's happened in the Valley in the past, and come in and say 'we're coming in, we don't give a damn about what's happened in the past. We've been successful at the high school level and the junior college level. We know that we've got some returnees that have some ability, and as a team we think we're good enough to be successful,'" Callahan said.

The team returns 15 lettermen with the 16 newcomers, and Callahan said although there has been a high turnover since last season, baseball is a somewhat individualized sport and his team should play well as long as everyone carries their own weight. "You could have a high turnover rate every year, because you've got time in the fall and preseason to get together as a team and iron out some things," he said.

SIUC's top returnees include two-time MVC first-team catcher Tim Kratochvil (.354, 6 HR, 49 RBI) and designated hitter Mike Russell (.388).

Other returning key lettermen include: Infielders Jay Mansavage (.316) and Craig Shelton (.286), outfielder Chad Isaacson (.262) and pitchers Brad Blumenstock (six saves), Mike McConnell (3-5), Dave Farrow (3-3) and Chris Schullian (1-1).

Callahan's recruiting class includes some of the top talent from the Illinois All-State high school team, and award winning players from the junior college and college levels.

Aaron Jones, a transfer from Madonna University, was named MVP of his squad in 1995 for setting a school record with 10 home runs and 61 runs batted in. He is also the first southpaw the Salukis will have at the first base position in many seasons.

Jerry Hairston, Joe Schley, and Jason Frasar are all Illinois prep first-team all-stars who bring an abundance of new talent to a restructured Saluki team.

Hairston (infield) is the son of former Major Leaguer Jerry Hairston Sr., and led his conference in batting last season. Schley (outfield) set a school record for stolen bases in a season with 59 at Providence-New Lenox High School, and Frasar (pitcher) was named the conference MVP at Oak Forest High School with a 1.02 ERA.

"It's kind of interesting because the Chicago Tribune picks an 11-man All-State team, and we signed three seniors off that team," Callahan said. "We signed a couple guys who were drafted, and we signed a couple kids that were junior college All-Americans or junior college All-Region picks, so we felt like we had a good recruiting year."

"Collegiate Baseball ranks the top recruiting classes each year, and we weren't in the top 25, but we were one of several schools mentioned — I guess you might call it the best of the rest."

Callahan said last season's team might not have known how to win, and hopes the new faces on the

Kay Brechtelsbauer — Softball Coach

Brechtelsbauer has been an SIUC softball institution. Going into her 29th season leading the Salukis, she has compiled a 496-364-2 career record. Last season's 24-24 mark was the Salukis' first non-winning season since 1984. She will join the 500-win club with just four wins this season — a feat accomplished by only 16 other coaches in NCAA history. In the 1970's the Salukis made it to the Women's College World Series four times. Her '91 squad finished 42-7, including a 23-game win streak and broke 25 school records and was the first undefeated team in Gateway Conference history (14-0).

"I feel like we're going to be competitive, and I feel comfortable that we're going to be a stronger team than last year. But just where we'll finish up, it's hard to tell with softball."

*Kay Brechtelsbauer
Saluki softball coach*

With the spring softball season just around the corner, softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer is looking for her two seniors, Jami Koss and Christine Knotts, to lead the team to a "better season than last year."

Brechtelsbauer said the duo act as good leaders off the field, and they lead by example and take charge on the field.

"They've been excellent leaders both on and off the field, and that has also made a big difference in this year's program," Brechtelsbauer said.

"They've got good chemistry, and they've taken the time to work with our younger players."

Even with a young team, Brechtelsbauer said her team is swinging for the Gateway Conference Crown.

"We want to get back to the (Gateway) Conference Championships," Brechtelsbauer said.

"We had an off year last year, we've improved our defense, and our hitting is looking good now."

Brechtelsbauer, who has 496 career wins, said speed has taken hold of the outfield after being absent for a couple of years, and she said the team will add strength behind the plate.

"We've got a quicker outfield than we have had for a number of years," Brechtelsbauer said.

"We should have some strong catching, and overall, our defense should be stronger."

According to Brechtelsbauer, shortstop is the only position still up for grabs.

"We're looking at a number of different people getting the opportunity to play there," she said.

Brechtelsbauer said Illinois State University, who represented the conference in the NCAA tournament last season, will be have a good chance to win the conference this year.

She also said Wichita State and Drake will be tough conference battles for SIUC.

"I see Wichita up there (at the top of the conference)," Brechtelsbauer said.

"They're solid with good defense, and they don't make too many mistakes."

"After that, it's sort of a grab bag."

"Drake's always been strong the last couple of years, and they have a couple of good pitchers and strong hitters," Brechtelsbauer said.

"I feel like we're going to be competitive, and I feel comfortable that we're going to be a stronger team than last year. But just where we will finish up, it's hard to tell with softball."

Brechtelsbauer said the fall season should be a good indication of how her team will perform in the spring.

"We did play some tough teams in the fall such as Notre Dame, who was ranked in the top 20, and Nebraska, who we lost to, but it was a good game," Brechtelsbauer said.

"So, we had some pretty good competition and did well, but we're still got a long way to go."

Last season, the Saluki softball squad finished at an even 24-24 overall and played to an 8-12 MVC record, good for eighth in the conference

Theresa Shields — First Base
In the Fall, she played 13 games, hitting .294 and tied for second on the squad in doubles (3) and had a .436 on base percentage. Was a high school all-conference selection her junior and senior seasons.

Winning, fun top priorities for seniors

Softball co-captains looking to prove victory is not everything

By William C. Phillips III
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Two SIUC senior softball players are taking it upon themselves to win the Gateway conference title and still have fun doing it this season.

Jami Koss, a senior in early childhood education from Casey, said the problem with the team last year was the team was not having fun.

"The difference with this year's team is we're having fun," she said.

"We play well together because we are enjoying ourselves. I want somebody to be able to walk up to our games and say they are having fun."

Koss, said she has gained a lot of knowledge about the game from watching previous seniors.

"I watched previous seniors and other teams to find out how I wanted the team to be like," she said.

"I want it to be like we're having fun and winning at the same time."

Koss said the team has suffered from a lot of personality problems, and she was disappointed with the team's overall performance last year.

"We ended the season at .500, and when one person got down, the entire team was down," Koss said.

Christine Knotts, a senior in mechanical engineering from Edwards, said the team's overall attitude is better from last year.

"Last year we had a lot of negative attitudes and we focused more on the negative aspects of the game than the positive," Knotts said.

"We played as individuals and not as a team. I think we forgot what winning is all about."

Koss said this year when players get in a slump, someone has to step up.

She said the team's goal this season is to keep everyone focused on the game.

"As a senior I plan to be a vocal leader and help my teammates with their problems," she said.

Last season Koss led the team in stolen bases with 16 to go along with a .293 batting average.

Knotts said she also plans to be more of a team leader for this year's squad and keep them focused on the game.

"I'd like to take my leadership role to another notch and set an example for the other teammates," she said.

Knotts, who has only missed one game in three years, knocked in 24 runs with a .258 batting average, last season.

Kay Brechtelsbauer, SIUC's softball coach, said Koss and Knotts are outstanding seniors that provide the team with the intensity needed to win the conference.

"We have good athletes with desire and hunger to win the conference," Brechtelsbauer said.

"They have really done a great job in keeping the team pumped up."

Brechtelsbauer said the two senior captains have the ability to spread their aggressiveness to other players on the team.

"They have the experience and leadership qualities to be role models for the younger teammates," she said.

"They are very competitive and not afraid to speak up."

Brechtelsbauer said Knotts provides leadership in center field while Koss does in the infield.

"We need coaches on the field, and they have done an excellent job at it," she said.

Koss said she has high expectations for this season and hopes the team finishes within the top eight in the Missouri Valley Conference.

"Our goal is to be in the tournament playoffs, and hopefully go to the NCAA tournament," she said.

During the off-season the team really worked hard physically, and some players became a lot stronger Koss said.

"Everybody has a better attitude," she said. "It's fun to see everybody ready to begin the season."

Knotts said the new NCAA rule that allows coaches to be present during the off season conditioning helped the team stay focused.

"It has helped out a lot this year, and we gained good habits and received personal instructions," Knotts said.

This year the team has a lot of speed and the power to bring them home Koss said.

"If we can get the people with speed on base, a hit from a big hitter may hopefully score not one but two or three people," Koss said.

"We will also hopefully grab more balls than in previous years due to the speed in the infield and outfield."

Playing in her last season, Koss has some personal goals she would like to accomplish, such as breaking the record for stolen bases.

"I'm going for it all this season. I have only four months, and I'm not holding anything back," she said.

Knotts said she wants to be a consistent player, and a person the team can count on in crunch situations.

"I've had my ups and downs with my personal play and I'd like to be more consistent," Knotts said.

Blumenstock has eyes focused on Atlanta gold

SIUC hurler's season to determine possible spot on U.S. Olympic Baseball squad

By Michael DeFord
DE Assistant Sports Editor

Depending on how well he performs this season, SIUC pitcher Brad Blumenstock may end up throwing himself into a spot on the 1996 Olympic baseball team's roster.

In November, Blumenstock took the first step in making this year's Olympic squad at the 1995 USA Baseball Team Trials in Homestead, Fla.

The 6-foot-6-inch 225-pound hurler fared well in Homestead, throwing 3.1 innings, and allowing only one run while fanning three batters.

It was an experience the Marion native said he will not forget.

"It was a great experience and a thrill to get to compete against the best players in the country," Blumenstock said. "I walked a couple of guys, but overall, was happy with the way I performed."

"Getting to know some of those guys and throwing at such a beautiful facility was an almost unbelievable feeling that I'll never forget."

The right-hander finished his outing in Homestead with a 2.70 ERA and was clocked at 94 mph.

Perhaps his biggest strikeout at the trials came against Cal State-Fullerton's Mark Kotsay, the 1995 College World Series MVP. Blumenstock fanned Kotsay both times he faced him.

"One time I fanned him on four pitches, so that was exciting," Blumenstock said. "There were over 100 Major League scouts down there

"I have always been impressed with Brad's work ethic ..."

SIUC baseball coach

watching us, so anything positive that you did certainly gave you a lot of exposure."

Blumenstock said the invitation to participate for a spot on the team stems from a combination of his performances as a Saluki last season, and over the summer with the Cape Cod League.

"I started out really well in the beginning of the Cape Cod League," he said. "There was a lot of great competition out there, and that helped me out a lot."

Last season with SIUC, Blumenstock led all Saluki relievers with six saves, posting a team best 5.01 and held opponents to a .192 batting average with two outs per inning.

Saluki skipper Dan Callahan said Blumenstock's work ethic and dedication to the game of baseball is nothing short of impressive.

"I have always been impressed with Brad's work ethic and the way he handles himself," Callahan said. "He is normally one of the last guys to leave the clubhouse after practice and works extremely hard on his own, so it is exciting to see that kind of dedication pay off."

The next step in Blumenstock's bid for a spot on the Olympic Team will come this year on the mound for SIUC.

Blumenstock will be watched by scouts to determine if he will be among 40 other collegiate athletes invited to the Olympic Training site in Millington, Tenn., where the roster will be trimmed further to 25 players.

"There were no cuts following the trials as all of the players will be monitored throughout the 1996 regular season," Blumenstock said. "Now I just have to go out and have a solid season for SIUC and see what happens."

Regardless of what happens, Blumenstock said his team comes first and foremost to him.

Callahan

roster can bring a winning feeling to the Salukis.

"There were a couple guys (seniors) that said we'd be better off getting rid of every guy in the program and starting over because there were so many guys in the program that didn't know how to win," he said.

"There might have been some validity to that. You get your butts kicked long enough, and get humiliated, maybe that's your mind-set when you go into a weekend.

"Even after seeing the strength of the conference, I still have trouble buying into the fact that the conference was so tough we couldn't win because we were in games, played well enough to stay in games, but not well enough to win. It might have been an example of just not knowing how to win, as opposed to not having the ability."

One area the Salukis are looking to improve over last season is pitching. Last season's staff combined for a 6.44 ERA, gave up 591 hits in 433 innings pitched, and only struck-out 248 against 222 walks.

"Last year our pitching was not good. I felt like we had some pitchers on the staff that were pitching because they were pitchers, and not necessarily quality pitchers. We had 10 or 12 guys that comprised our pitching staff, and now that I look back, I question if some of those guys possessed enough ability to be successful at this level," Callahan said.

"I think we've brought in a couple guys that are going to be successful at this level with new recruits, along with a couple guys I don't think lived up to their capabilities last year."

"I think Brad Blumenstock, David Farrow, Mike McConnell and Chris Schullian are better pitchers than what they showed last year. We'll find out what happens when we tee it up."

Student lectures on African-American spirituality

By Tracy Taylor
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Black Affairs Council continued its student lecture series Thursday, with an SIUC senior speaking on African-American spirituality.

The lecture was given by Angela Davis, a senior in history from Chicago. Davis said people in this country have a distorted view of God.

"When our African-American ancestors were enslaved, they lost their connection with God and with spirituality," Davis said. "Slavery taught our ancestors that God works through man."

Davis said man's knowledge and experience is limited, and that reality is what is real and cannot be destroyed. Davis expressed her concerns about the future of African-American people and their loss of spirituality.

"The essence of reality is not in what can be seen with the eyes," Davis said.

Davis explained the differences of

Black History Month

African-American people in the past and how their views on spirituality differ from people of today. She said older people in America sometimes die alone, feeling worthless, while elders in Africa are important to society, and are looked on highly. She said this has also led to a loss of African-American's spirituality. Davis said that the solution to the distorted view of God is knowing self.

"Knowing thyself reaffirms the things that tie us together with God and the universe," Davis said.

She said she does not describe herself as one who is religious, but she was always concerned about God.

"In church, as a child, I saw pictures of a white Jesus and disciples, and Mary," Davis said. "I started to wonder how to get into heaven if everyone there was white, and I knew I was different. And I figured later, when I got older, I would understand."

Kyle Ismail, future student lecture series speaker, said most of the things that have been established in western civilization have not been for spiritual gain, but for material gain.

The lecture series was organized by the Black Affairs Council Programming Committee, BAC Coordinator Troy Alim said.

The series continues Tuesday at 12 p.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Buchanan's success worries big business

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Presidential hopeful Patrick J. Buchanan's string of victories has sent a chill through America's boardrooms.

For now, business and financial leaders are still fumbling for an effective message to counter the GOP candidate's attacks on big corporations, free-market competition and global trade. That isn't easy, they say, because Buchanan has hit on a message that resonates with voters concerned about their job security. Middle managers have "seen what it can mean when their companies start working to get more globally competitive," frets Jerry R. Junkins, chairman and chief executive of Texas Instruments Inc., in a speech prepared for delivery at the Commonwealth Club of California on Friday. "And you really can't blame them for thinking that they have a bright red bulls-eye painted on their backs these days."

DeNoon said. "That's our ultimate goal here."

"We're not looking at a lot of kids that come right out of high school that can step right onto the track the first year, and make it to the NCAA's and their second year make All-American. We just can't recruit like that."

With the SIUC men's track and field team ranked sixth in the Pre-Championship Poll, men's coach Bill Cornell told his athletes exactly where they stood and what they could do about it.

"I'm putting the emphasis on the team," Cornell said. "It's their responsibility. They're the ones who need to come through, they're the ones who haven't been doing their job."

"In our squad meet yesterday, I told them we could very easily finish anywhere from second to seventh. It's completely up to them and how much pride they have."

Cornell said the top ranked team of Northern Iowa will probably handily win the meet.

"They've got a long lead," Cornell said. "I'd say 50 or 60 points. I'd like to see us in the upper bracket, but sixth is very possible. If we make the top four, I will be very happy."

"If each man can take care of himself and do what he has to do, we will finish in the upper bracket," he said.

The men's team finished fourth at last year's meet and grabbed their last MVC indoor title in 1992. Cornell gave a possible explanation as to his team's recent absence from the top tier.

"The meet has gotten tougher over the years and there are now several national qualifying people competing," Cornell said. "You can't be at the top all of the time. You're going to have those rebuilding years."

Both the men and women's track and field teams will travel to the USA Track and Field Championships in Atlanta, Ga., from March 1-2.

ISU Redbirds end Salukis' win streak

By Michael DeFord
DE Assistant Sports Editor

Sooner or later, all winning streaks must eventually end, and the SIUC women's basketball team is no exception to the rule.

SIUC's seven game winning streak ground to a halt against Illinois State University last night in a 68-61 conference loss to the Redbirds in Normal. The Salukis struggled against ISU, and could not manage to mount much of an offensive attack the entire game.

Saluki guards Kasia McClendon and Nikki Gilmore, normally the spark to SIUC's offense, together connected on an unheard of 7-33 from the field.

SIUC coach Cindy Scott said the Redbirds simply proved too tough at home.

"ISU did a nice job defensively against us and they proved why they are fighting to finish second in this league," Scott said.

"Nikki and Kasia just couldn't get the ball to go tonight. When you have your number one and number two scorer's shooting at that clip, it really takes its toll."

SIUC falls to 12-3 in the Missouri Valley Conference, while the Redbirds improve to 11-4.

The first half proved ugly for both teams, with SIUC shooting only 9-37 from the field for a mere 24 percent.

Unfortunately, SIUC's offensive struggle continued in the second half as the Redbirds managed to build it biggest lead of the game 37-23.

However, the Salukis would not roll over and came back with seven unanswered points, five by McClendon alone, before ISU manage to pull away.

ISU was paced by freshman guards Jenny Schmidt and junior guard Mary Jane Johnson, who combined for 38 points.

SIUC was led by senior forward Christel Jefferson, who knocked in 15 points.

With only three regular-season games remaining, Scott said she hopes the Salukis can rebound from last night's loss.

"We've got three games we have to win," Scott said. "We did not play well and we can certainly admit it. To shoot the ball as poorly as we did, lets hope that doesn't happen to us again this season."

SIUC travels to Terre Haute on Saturday to take on the Sycamores of Indiana State.

Tip-off time is at 1:00.

Track and Field

Men's and women's track head to MVC Championships

By Jared Driskill
Daily Egyptian Reporter

They're going to the Dome. The University of Northern Iowa Dome, that is.

Since they did not compete against UNI during the regular season, both the SIUC men and women's track and field teams will compete in the 1996 Missouri Valley Conference Championships held in Cedar Falls, Iowa, this weekend.

The SIUC women's track and field team finished second in last year's contest and last won the annual Championship in 1989.

On the women's side, the Salukis are picked to finish in a tie for second place with Indiana State, while Illinois State is the projected overall winner.

Women's track and field coach Don DeNoon said he did not think the coaches who voted, took in account the team's depth.

DeNoon added that Indiana State has a couple of women picked to finish first in consecutive events. He said it would be hard to win back to back events in the finals.

With ISU being the projected winner, DeNoon said his team will enter competition as underdogs, but their depth will pay off during the meet.

"I think the depth really pays off for us when we look at putting our athletes together for the distance medley relay," DeNoon said. "We don't have a great chance to finish first, second, or third in the distance medley relay, but we can finish fourth and we can place fifth."

DeNoon explained that by placing fourth or fifth in the distance medley relay, his team would still be able to come back and perform well in the individual events where as other teams might not.

DeNoon believes through his coaching strategy and top performances, his team will be able to tally the necessary points to win the meet.

"I think 120 points will win the meet, and if someone else can score more than that, then they deserve to win," DeNoon said. "If all goes as planned, we will have nearly half of our point production in only five events."

"We have the potential to score in all but three events, and Friday's trials will tell a lot.

"If we qualify for the finals Saturday, we are guaranteed points for finishing," he said.

DeNoon said the MVC Championship is the main focus of his team because making it to the National Championships would be difficult.

"We're a team that is designed around conference championships."

Between the Lines

The SIUC men's basketball team travels to Evansville, IN Saturday to play its final road game of the season.

The Salukis (4-12, 11-16) are currently in tenth-place, are playing to stay ahead of eleventh-place Wichita State (4-12, 8-18), which is in the basement of the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Aces (7-9, 11-13) come into the game in eighth-place, and claim the last spot for the MVC Tournament in St. Louis March 2-4.

Dallas Cowboys defensive end Russell Maryland has decided to follow in the footsteps of Super Bowl MVP Larry Brown. Just one day after Brown left the 'Boys for the Oakland Raiders, Russell did the same, signing a six-year $19 million contract with a $4.3 million signing bonus.

The Golden State Warriors said they will stay in Oakland and help pay for a $121 million renovation of the Coliseum Arena. Construction of the renovation will be funded in part by "seat rights," fees for as many as 7,500 season-ticket holders.

The Warriors will play next season at the Cow Palace.

Big Ten and Pac 10 presidents are working on a plan to tie the Rose Bowl into college football's bowl alliance and the race for the undisputed national championship.

The plan could be financed as soon as this summer.
