University's Council candidates speak out

IN AGREEMENT: Students, professor agree on raising bar-entry age, organized Halloween celebrations.

JENNIFER CAMDEN-DE POLITICS EDITOR

All four University-affiliated candidates for the Carbondale City Council say the bar-entry age should be lowered and Halloween should be an organized celebration, but beyond that, they have different plans for the city.

One SIUC professor and three students are among the 14 candidates in the council primary, which is Feb. 25. Two four-year seats and one two-year seat will be filled in the general election April 1. The primary election is Feb. 25.

Larry Briggs, an associate professor of art and design running for a four-year term, said he decided to run for the council to help the city work with the University.

"I got tired of having my taxes increase, like everybody else, for no apparent reason," Briggs said. "But the biggest problem the town has is the need to be a little more compatible with the University."

Briggs, who moved to Carbondale from Texas in 1985, is co-owner of Creative Consultancy, 1809 W. Main St., a Carbondale advertising agency.

He said he would like the Carbondale Park District, an independent taxing body, to be brought under city control.

Briggs said city government should not just tell students what they cannot do.

"I think college is supposed to be about getting an education and having fun," he said. "I think the city wants you to come here and spend money, but they don't want to deal with you."

Mike Mandis, a second-year graduate student in workforce education and development from Carbondale, said he is running for a four-year council seat because the council needs someone with new ideas.

"There are obvious issues that need to be addressed in Carbondale, and I'm willing to do everything it takes to work with others to reach the goals of the community," he said.

Mandis, a Murphysboro native, operates Mike Mandis Photography from his home. He is the founder and president of the Saluki Booster Club, a fan club that attends SIUC sports events.

Mandis said if Carbondale's recycling program was expanded enough, the city would make enough money to lower every citizen's property taxes or water and sewer bills.

"I think everybody wants to recycle, and it's something the community could work on together if they had an incentive to do that," he said.

Pat Kelly, a sophomore in philosophy from Carbondale, said he is running for a four-year council term because students pay property taxes through paying rent, but they are not represented in city government.

Two doctoral degrees defended

EVALUATED: Sociology, historical studies degree elimination debated.

WILLIAM HATFIELD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The SIUC doctoral degrees in sociology and historical studies were recommended for elimination because they were mainly evaluated by their graduation rates, the heads of those departments say.

However, John Yopp, Graduate School dean, said he suggested that the Graduate Council eliminate the degrees based on criteria beside graduation rates, including the job market and the programs' cost, quality and relationship with the undergraduate curriculum.

John Preece, Graduate Council chairman, said the special Graduate Council meeting Feb. 27 will allow departments affected by the changes to explain why they should not be made.

He said the council will vote on the recommended changes at its March 6 meeting.

Yopp said he recommended eliminating the history and sociology doctoral degrees earlier this month in response to an Illinois Board of Higher Education mandate that all state universities review their graduate programs.

"I wish more than anything we could keep history and the other programs," Yopp said, "but we can't keep students in programs that are not adequately supported."

Sarah Blackstone, Graduate Council vice chairwoman, said the decision to eliminate programs was not arbitrary.

"We didn't just say 'eeny, meeny, miney, moe, this is the program that has to go,'" Blackstone said. "None of us want to see programs go down, but, on the other hand, no one wants to see SIU frozen in time, either."

Joel Best, Sociology Department chairman, said his program meets or exceeds all other criteria except the graduation rate.

He said there have been fewer than three doctoral graduates in the department each year for the past five years.

However, he said because students have begun to do interdisciplinary work with the Administration of Justice Department, the program's enrollment has increased.

"Instead of looking back, we ought to be looking ahead," Best said.

"What I want the Graduate Council to hear is that our program had problems, but that we have primarily fixed them, and I think in the foreseeable future, we will never go under three degrees per year."

Yopp said SIUC cannot afford its current load of graduate programs.

Yopp said if the Graduate Council finds next week that the programs are cost-effective, then the list of proposed cuts may be amended.

For example, he said, there is not enough money to allow graduate students to travel to academic meetings to meet representatives in their future professions.

David Werlich, History Department chairman, said the changes are not cost-effective because his department's graduate students lead 50 discussion groups for students in large lecture classes.

"If we did not have a Ph.D. program to do this, we would have to spend more money for new faculty to teach those courses," Werlich said.

He said his program was targeted in the past by the IBHE for not having enough students, but now 13 students are writing dissertations.

He said six students should graduate this year.

Werlich said at the special meeting he will demonstrate how his program has improved because of a joint doctoral degree with SIUE. He said he also will show how all graduates of the program obtain jobs.

"All graduates of the program have been properly placed," he said.

"We don't have the horror stories of having our graduates driving taxi cabs."

Best said he will show the council that changes in the sociology doctoral degree program have improved it and that it is not economical to eliminate the program.

"It's very frustrating; we are right on the verge of getting things fixed," Best said.

"We are going to concentrate on how the program has turned around."

GRADUATE COUNCIL
•A special Graduate Council meeting on Feb. 27 will allow departments affected by the changes to explain why they should not be made.
•The council will vote on the recommended changes at its March 6 meeting.

UNIVERSITY

- Ryan M. Anthony, 21, of Carbondale, was arrested Friday for failure to appear in court on a drunk-driving charge. He was released after posting $300 bond.
- On Friday, campus police charged a 19-year-old student with disorderly conduct after he allegedly was seen jangling on the hood of a vehicle parked in lot 106 east of Boomer Hall. There was no damage to the car. The student was given a notice to appear in court.
- At 6 p.m. on Saturday, a 19-year-old woman was struck by a vehicle driven by Tamika N. Thomas, 19, of Carbondale. Thomas was cited for failure to yield to a pedestrian and posted her driver's license as bond. Police could not release the name of the woman who was struck by the car or whether she was injured.

• Brandon J. Brothelme, 22, of Carbondale, was cited Sunday for illegal transportation of alcohol. Brothelme had been stopped for speeding at the intersection of South Wall Street and Pleasant Hill Road. He posted his driver's license as bond.

• On Sunday, George A. Lingafelter, 33, of Royston, was cited for driving under the influence of alcohol and driving with a suspended driver's license. Wanda Lingafelter, 31, also of Royston, was cited for illegal transportation of alcohol. The two were stopped on South Illinois Avenue, near Mill Street. George Lingafelter was taken to Jackson County Jail after failing to post bond. He remained there as of press time Monday. Wanda Lingafelter was released on her own recognition.

• On Sunday, an 18-year-old woman reported that she may have been the victim of sexual assault by an acquaintance sometime between Friday evening and 3:30 a.m. Saturday at Southern Hills. The woman told police she was intoxicated and could not remember much about the incident, except that she was with an acquaintance, who may have been the alleged perpetrator.

HOME GROWN TALENT:

Tawl Paul, A.C. Reed, Brass Monkey among recipients.

LISA M. PANGBURN
DE ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR

The venue is moderately full of about 20 different bands waiting anxiously and about 200 spectators ready to cheer for their personal favorites.

This was the setting of the Third Annual Southern Illinois Music Awards Sunday at the Copper Dragon, 700 E. Grand Ave. A combination of local musical talent and once-local musical talent graced the scene.

The range of people consists of musicians all the way from Tawl Paul, a local musician, dressed up in a suit waiting patiently for the award he is nominated for, to Brian Blaise of The Boro City Rollers wearing jeans, a sweat-shirt, sneakers and a ball cap, having to be accompanied by his father into the establishment because he is underage.

Perhaps the most important award went to a musician who has been around for years. The award for lifetime achievement went to Tawl Paul.

Paul worked his way onto the stage. When the spotlight shined on the blues musician, a thunderous applause came. He never made eye contact with the audience but mumbled his thanks to all his friends and the people who had helped him along the way.

"Most of all I want to thank all of you musicians out there," he said. "You see, dreams can come true."

Before the Groove Merchants took the stage to begin the night, the awards for best songwriter, best keyboardist and best guitarist were given away.

Dan Ward received best songwriter, Mel Goot received best keyboardist, and Jimmy Salentino received best guitarist.

With its sassy jazz and sultry Latin sound, the Groove Merchants played four songs

Immune system sometimes able to combat AIDS virus

Researchers at the University of Texas have found preliminary evidence of a way that immune system cells may resist infection with the AIDS virus, providing clues as to why a small number of people seem less susceptible to HIV.

The research, reported at the AAAS meeting in Seattle, is the first to suggest that the virus can sometimes be stopped after it has invaded white blood cells called lymphocytes.

Laboratory experiments with blood samples from more than 50 healthy volunteers who were exposed to HIV found that in as many as one in six cases the virus entered the lymphocytes and began duplicating its genetic material but did not complete the process.

More research is needed to confirm that a gene is responsible for the apparent resistance and to study the mechanism in larger groups of patients. Cloyd says he has "strong data" involving two homosexual men who were temporarily infected with HIV but later showed no signs of the virus.

Albright dismisses church's claims of persecution

U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright on Monday called the U.S.-German differences over the treatment of Scientologists "clearly a subject for bilateral discussion" but downplayed the issue in talks with German leaders and dismissed members' claims they suffer from Nazi-style persecution as "distasteful."

The treatment of the estimated 30,000 Scientologists in Germany has surfaced as a public issue in recent months. The Church of Scientology has run ads in prominent newspapers comparing current actions against their members in Germany with the initial steps taken by Nazi Germany in the 1930s to exclude and persecute Jews — steps that led to the Holocaust.

Albright met the German leaders on the second stop of a global trip that will take her to nine countries in Europe and Asia before she returns to the United States early next week.

Investigation

Educating public sole motive behind coverage of 'Creators'

WHY? THIS WAS THE MOST FREQUENT question that we received about Monday's front page story about the World Church of the Creator: "Why would you give those guys press?"

The reason is education. One purpose of the DE, as noted by the mission statement at the top of this page, is to provide information — in other words, to provide information so that there can be an informed student body. We delineated the background of the World Church of the Creator and its activities.

WE PAINTED A PICTURE OF THIS GROUP and the hatred they spew forth coupled with the knowledge of the past criminal activities that lets the public know what it is.

The story described the investigations of the church by the Office of International Criminal Justice revealing plots to bomb Jewish Synagogues and black institutions as well as assassination plots on prominent Jews and African Americans.

THIS WAS A BALANCED, FAIR AND objective story examining this group, with reaction from groups on campus who are at the brunt of the church's hate.

The amount of discourse on Monday about this group, racism, and whether or not we should have published this story was encouraging.

People need to discuss the spread of a group that wants to eliminate others because it believes its members are superior. No amount of discussion of the issues will hurt the students on this campus.

APPARENTLY MANY OF THOSE WHO DID not like the story either failed to read it or thought it was not necessary. Perhaps if we did what some want we would have a policy of "out of sight, out of mind."

The fact remains that Matthew Hale, an SIU law student, is the leader of a national white supremacist group with 2,000 to 3,000 members.

This piece was published because Matthew Hale and his church bought an ad in the paper and have also been more visible in the community.

There was a time last semester when the group wanted Registered Student Organization status, which would make them eligible for student funds.

RECENTLY MEMBERS OF THE GROUP have been distributing fliers around campus as well as placing the church's business card in the dollar slots of pop machines on campus.

An unsuspecting student who finds one of the innocuous, non-descript cards that has "white pride" written on it in a non-hateful manner should know more about what this group really stands for if he or she is interested.

According to Hale, the group's national leader, the group wants to eliminate Jews and blacks because they are a "plague."

SIUC students should want to be informed about these things.

"Our Word" represents the consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

Nothing godly about church based on hatred, arrogance

I am writing in response to Monday's expose of the World Church of the Creator. Let me say that I am a devout civil libertarian; I would never advocate the censorship of ideas of different varieties.

However, as a Christian and a patriotic American, I must take issue with the premises of this organization.

When the founders of our nation wrote the Bill of Rights, they had a distinct obligation to make sure that liberty and order would be balanced. The First Amendment guarantees all Americans the right to worship as they choose and to speak out on topics where they feel that they must.

Various Supreme Court rulings, however, limit the activities of free speech so that it is not an absolute right to be exercised recklessly. As I was reading the piece, I was hoping in my heart of hearts that this group would not engage in violence to further their cause.

I hope that Mr. Hale will use his legal acumen to advocate his group's cause without using violence as a tool.

I must say for the record that I am nauseated by his vitriolic rhetoric; however, his rights under our Constitution must be respected.

Any organization based upon a lie is bound for self-destruction.

In His infinite wisdom, God has designed a system that is predicated on the virtues of truth, power and divine love. People are the end results of their decisions; each person is responsible for his or her actions.

There is no place in the true ecclesia for hatred of any kind.

In His design for the Church, Christ intended for people of all hues and experiences to be bound to the higher law of grace. Grace never depends upon ourselves but on the true character of God.

The Creator I know and love never would envision a world where the color of a person's skin would condemn one person to a permanent position of inferiority and elevate another to a lofty position of superiority.

The Apostle John was correct in writing, "We know we have passed from death into life because we love the brethren. He that does not love his brother abides in death." Hatred kills the soul and prevents life from taking root in the human heart.

I was deeply disturbed by the racist and anti-Semitic rhetoric of this "Church." As a student of the real Holy Bible, I must warn you that this type of hatred will not be tolerated by God! History has proven time and again that the forces of intolerance have been thwarted by the divine forces of love.

To advocate the type of degenerate thought that was propagated in the Daily Egyptian article is a declaration of war against God Himself. No one has won that war yet!

That such an organization could take root is not at all astonishing.

When individuals feel bitter hatred, they often establish mutual admiration societies based upon arrogance and feelings of inadequacy. Propaganda becomes a ploy to win the hearts of the ignorant and intimidate the targeted.

This is a trend of history where the weak actually controls the strong.

Hatred, weakness and arrogance are interlocking systems that only can contaminate an active-positive learning environment. To this end, the DE article has disheartened the souls of its readers.

Out of this conundrum arises a ray of hope: People are talking about the issues of racial antagonism in a way that has been unprecedented since the Civil Rights movement. We have a vested interest in such a positive dialogue. Let us heed the words of the Prophet Isaiah: "Come now and let us reason together."

Such hatred has been motivated by demonic forces that could captivate and destroy us all if left unchecked.

We must marshal all of the forces of good within us to offset the views that were preached in the DE article. Violence is never a solution to any problem.

I realize that by penning this response I may very well have put my own life in danger. But just remember: To use retaliation to respond to dissent is very counterproductive. I am not afraid.

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (1 Peter 3:12).

When individuals feel bitter hatred, they often establish mutual admiration societies based upon arrogance and feelings of inadequacy.

Writer questions paper's motives in covering story

Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 350 words. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Dear Editor:

The Daily Egyptian has covered more than enough material about the World Church of the Creator. A while ago, not only did you print an article on the same organization, but you also included their ads in the classified section. Now recently, the DE not only donated two more pages to their cause, but went so far as to include portions of their poorly written and redundant commandments, and to top it off, they provided their e-mail address. I'm not your typical conspiracy theorist, but this article makes me wonder if someone on the DE staff has an ulterior motive.

They did not contribute to the depth of the article and weren't needed, unless you were "plugging" them. Aren't two pages overkill for an subject so negative and otherwise useless?

I'm sure readers can be amply informed about the group's futile attempt to cleanse the white race and obviate the colored races without you reprinting their commandments and granting them two pages to further their notoriety. The article was unnecessary with its excessive effort to explain the obvious views of these poor souls.

Such regressive minds as the ones that the members of this World Church of the Creator display turn my stomach. But, I can rest assured that these same regressive minds, in a few decades, will disintegrate along with their obse outlook. The faces on their bodies surely will be stressed and twisted with the same hate they displayed toward the essence of humankind — that essence being civilization and civility.

The same essence that separates us from God's beasts is the essence that these individuals lack or fail to employ. God bless their souls. They will die old, bitter and lonely. They use their able young bodies — their temples of God — to attempt to strip the earth of its glorious color. Yet, they dare use the word creator in their title. Lastly, to the DE, unless you consciously choose to plug this organization, you need not inform us any further. No more front pages, please?

You can consider us amply informed, thank you very much.

DE should report love, not hate

Dear Editor:

It is a beautiful day, the sun shines brightly, and I gaze upon the front cover of the Daily Egyptian. I am greeted with a very large special report.

If you read yesterday's DE, then you are aware of the article I am writing about. The article was a factual representation of the beliefs that belong to members of the World Church of the Creator. It is clear to me that their beliefs are ludicrous and filled with hate.

I think the students at this school and the members of the Carbondale community deserve better from the University newspaper.

Also in this issue of the DE, there is a small article about a woman who put on a lecture/workshop. She spoke about relationships and love. She even came up with her own Ten Commandments of Love. This is overshadowed by the attention given to the "Sixteen Commandments." These rules of the World Church preach hate and indifference toward others who are not of the white race. I encourage everyone to stand up and join each other in the struggle against hate groups. Anyone with common sense knows that love and peace is the way to conquer this hatred.

Denomination's denial of deity fails to fit definition of 'church'

Dear Editor:

Thank you for the day brighter Monday, Feb. 17. I needed a good laugh.

"World Church of the Creator." Isn't it odd that so many persons who want to impress us with their superior selves usually incorporate the name of deity or a reference to deity in the organizational title.

Yet soon after you get past the title, we read of deity denied.

And thus the lack of superiority. Hence the word Creator in the above-mentioned "church."

To my knowledge the only God claiming to be "the Creator" is the born-again Christian's God who said, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Yet the quoted first line of the article stated, "Remember that the inferior colored races are our deadly enemies," etc.

Deity denied.

We have another modern-day "church" which incorporates Holy Roman in its name.

Holy, a reference reserved for deity. Yet its leader's chosen title is, "the Holy Father who takes away the sins of the world," thereby being desirous to share in the singular glory of Christ.

Deity denied!

We have another modern-day "church" which incorporates Jesus Christ in its title. God the Creator said He was His word.

Yet its founder stated that his book "was the most correct of any book on earth, and the keystone of our religion, and a man would get nearer to God by abiding by its precepts than by any other book." Deity denied!

So what the heck, why not a World Church of the Creator?

Creator story objective, detailed

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the Daily Egyptian for its objective and detailed report (Feb. 17) on the Rev. (Matthew) Hale and the World Church of the Creator, as it reveals quite clearly that the organization stands for. Hale said he places a high value on logic and science. Perhaps, if he were to add objectivity, he would see the vast shortcomings of his argument.

The various ethnicities in this world are by no means the same — we have different cultures and backgrounds, where emphasis can vary on different values. This is merely a result of the centuries of relative geographical isolation between races.

Of course, this also is the cause of minor biological differences that are merely the best adaptation of the human animal to its specific environment.

These cultural differences can be annoying to both sides, and they do give a nation of mixed ethnicity more to overcome but more to gain as well.

By having different perspectives, we as a group can be more creative and effective. The philosopher Nietzsche, whose writings were once perverted by the Nazis and used by Hitler to support his racial policy, said that true strength lies within diverse nations.

Looking at it from a logical and scientific perspective, groups such as Hale's merely draw on the human need for belonging and desire for affirmation — "creators" achieve this by professing the superiority of their race and justifying it with pseudo-science and conspiracy theories that defy logic. The saddest aspect of these kind of organizations, from a religious standpoint, is that they assume God made a creative error when we — all of us — were supposedly made in God's image.

I myself am not Jewish, but it always has struck me odd that certain supposed "Christians" despise Jews, when the very founder of their religion was indisputably Jewish.

A friend of mine who happens to be Jewish once told me that the fact that racism and injustice still run rampant in the world is evidence that the Messiah could not have come yet. People like Rev. Hale do more to support that claim than anything else.

FACIAL ARTISTRY: Jackie Anderson, a second-year transfer student in mortuary science from Manhattan, practices facial reconstruction in the CASA building Friday.

STORY BY LA'KEISHA GRAY

Students prepare for future jobs with real life training

Although Mike Gribble is surrounded in classes weekly by caskets, clay skulls, the odors of embalming chemicals and cadavers, he says he is perfectly content.

"I'm at work, so it doesn't bother me," Gribble, a junior in mortuary sciences and funeral services from Harrisburg, said. "I'm totally at ease at it. And as of this May, I'll have been in the funeral services for six years, so it just seems natural. Everybody has a calling, and this is my calling. It's what I plan on doing for the rest of my life."

Cydney Griffith, the coordinator for mortuary sciences and funeral services, said she believes hands-on experience is the best aide for learning because it allows students to apply what they've learned in lectures.

Because of the aspects involved in the mortuary science profession, Griffith said the students who participate in the program are prepared for what they will face in the real work force.

She said students perform team embalming, attend dissection labs and do restorative art where they learn how to recreate the natural form and color of bodies. The students also are required to take general and funeral psychology courses.

"It prepares them and teaches them what grieving and bereaved families are like so that they're better prepared to handle family contact during internships and after they graduate," Griffith said. "I don't know if anybody ever masters it because we're all humans, but we try to help them understand professionally what the families are going through."

Some students said they are grateful that the hands-on experiences are able to feed their personal curiosities about their careers.

Tracy McBride, a junior in mortuary sciences from Murphysboro, said the hands-on-experience she is receiving enables her to sample the real side of her career. She said it also is helping her accomplish one of her life's goals.

"I had no prior funeral service background at all before I came here, but my cousin was killed in a bad car accident, and the left side of his face had to be totally reconstructed," she said. "I wanted to see how it was done, and now I know."

Other SIUC students say they are exposed to the human interaction, everyday responsibilities and the personal "touch" of their chosen profession while they attend classes.

Because of her hands-on experience, Jennifer Kisting, a senior in dental hygiene from Rockford, said she, too, will be prepared for her future career when it is time for her to graduate.

She said as a part of the dental hygiene program and clinical classes, she is exposed to clients and performs dental assessments, cleaning, X-rays, referrals and other types of dental hygiene care.

"I like being able to motivate my patients and analyze problems," Kisting said. "When I see my patients who have come back and have improved their oral hygiene, I see they're excited about it, and that makes me excited. And I feel good about what I've done."

As a dental hygienist, Brenda Bonser, a senior in dental hygiene from North Aurora, said her day starts off with preparing charts, sterilizing instruments and covering them with plastic wrap for optimum infection control.

In her assigned cubicle, Bonser said the dental clinic is hectic. She has a serious attitude about helping people understand their oral condition, whether they have gingivitis (inflammation of the gums), periodontitis (bone loss) or if they have a healthy condition.

The hands-on experience Bonser receives every day has made her comfortable with the field she has chosen because she said she is able to hone her skills and prepare for the real work force.

"I think the best thing about it is when you actually do hands-on, you're actually learning. But when you read about something, you are just understanding, not actually applying it," she said. "When you're talking about something that is a technique, you have to actually do it to perfection."

including the blues classic, "Black Coffee," that has been sung by such legends as Billie Holiday.

The radio personality, "Mellonhead" from radio station WTOA, took the stage to give A.C. Reed the award for "Best Hometown National Act," and Brass Money took the award for best new local band.

More bands took the stage including Rapture, a Christian Rhythm and Blues band, St. Stephen's Blues Band and The Cruces, and more awards were given out to deserving musicians.

The last band to play for the evening was The Blue Meanies, a band that was formed in Carbondale. The Blue Meanies was the winner of the best hometown national act award at last year's music awards.

After waiting 10 minutes for Billy Spunke, the lead singer, to find his way to the stage, the band plowed into its style of hardcore ska, funk and punk.

The band must have felt nostalgic because Spunke gave away his own awards for his personal bests.

"We really need to thank some of the bands that were here when we were here," he said. "Anyone remember 1387? They were really a great band.

he back in town," he said. "I can't believe this place (Copper Dragon). I mean, I come back to Carbondale and play in a theater. I got my first hand-job in here."

With that remark, the trumpet player for the band, Jim Berry, mocked Spunke.

Most of all I want to thank all of you musicians out there. You see, dreams can come true.

TAVI PAWL
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD WINNER

We would also like to thank Diet Christ, Fusebox, Nitro Jr., The Jungle Dogs and of course, the Bottletones.

"For the best venue we want to remember The Last Cross House, The House of Voodoo and 611 — may it rest in peace."

Spunke said he was glad to be back in Carbondale but said it was odd playing in what used to be a theater.

"It's weird, but it's good to

"Yeah, that's how him and I met," he said.

There was a feeling of loyalty in the Copper Dragon Sunday night. All the local bands continued to congratulate each other, and when The Blue Meanies had a chance, Spunke congratulated all the bands that collected awards.

"Thanks a lot for coming out here tonight, and congratulations to all the bands that won tonight."

Bears looking at Redskins' Carter

FREE AGENT DEALS:

Chicago talks with star Washington cornerback.

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — Washington Redskins cornerback Tom Carter and the Bears took measure of one another Monday in Chicago and agreed to talk again in a day or two. Carter will pay a similar visit to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Wednesday, and his agent said several other teams also are interested.

Because Carter is a restricted free agent, the Redskins have the right to match any offer he receives from another team.

But will they?

Given Carter's history of erratic play and the fact that running back Terry Allen, defensive tackle Sean Gilbert and quarterback Gus Frerotte are higher free agent priorities, Redskins General Manager Charley Casserly might pass on Carter if the price gets too high.

Casserly declined to comment, but Carter's agent, Jeffrey Irwin, said: "I get the feeling that the Redskins won't match an offer to Tom unless it fits into their (salary) cap situation. Tom is drawing a lot of interest.

"I think he's going to narrow it down to a short list of five, then make a decision within the next week."

In Chicago, where he visited with Bears Coach Dave Wannstedt and others, Carter told reporters: "I really don't know what's going to happen. I guess there's a possibility the Redskins would match an offer."

It's unclear how much interest the Bears have in Carter. They're bringing in Detroit's Ryan McNeil on Wednesday and still could resign veteran Donnell Woolford. They're unlikely to make a deal with a cornerback until they can complete an anticipated trade for Seattle quarterback Rick Mirer. Carter is the Redskins' transition player, meaning they must offer him the average of the top 10 salaries at his position — $2.8 million — for the right to match any offer on the open market. He made $612,500 last season and Casserly would like to sign him for considerably less than $2.8 million in exchange for a long-term contract.

If the Bears or Steelers offer much more than $2 million a season, Casserly might say goodbye and look for a lower-priced cornerback.

Meanwhile, Casserly appears no closer to signing any of his other unsigned players. Allen's agent, Tank Black, didn't return several telephone messages Monday. He said Saturday that the sides were close to a deal, but work apparently remains to be done.

Gilbert has returned to his home in Pennsylvania while his agent, Gus Sunseri, and Casserly continue to hash out a deal. At the moment, the sides are far apart, with Casserly apparently offering around $3 million a season and Gilbert wanting around $4.5 million a season.

"This could go into the regular season," Sunseri said.

"Sean wants free agent dollars. He's not going to sign for less than free agent dollars."

Negotiations between the Redskins and Frerotte are on hold, but agent Ralph Cindrich expressed optimism a deal could be reached.

Cindrich said Frerotte hadn't scheduled visits with any other teams and is not likely to.

"Gus has made it clear he wants to be in Washington," Cindrich said, "and the Redskins have made it clear they want him. Right now, they have some other priorities, and Gus understands that."

Brechtelsbauer said the conditioning is helping SIUC reach its goal.

"The team wants to move one step closer to the championship each day it practices," she said. "The team works hard in practice and has a good work ethic."

The attitude of the team, Brechtelsbauer said, is important if it wants to be a dominant power in the Valley.

"I am trying to get a commitment from the team," she said. "I want them to understand that you need a commitment for success. You need the mental aspect of that commitment, and with our strengthening and conditioning, we are moving in that direction."

Lis said the conditioning and strengthening the team has endured will help it become a better ball team.

"The key is conditioning," she said. "We always had talent, but we ran out of gas."

"With the conditioning, we can play solid ball from the first inning to the last."

Erin O'Brien, a freshman outfielder from Springfield, said the hard practices the team has endured could help it win the MVC championship.

"We have been practicing hard, and we will be successful," she said. "It is going to be hard to get there (the MVC championship). It will take a lot of work, but anything is possible."

Brechtelsbauer said the Salukis will discover their weaknesses as the season progresses, but she is using the 1996 squad to monitor the team's progress.

"From last year the team needs to work on its base running," she said. "We also have to take away the potential hits where the defense could have prevented the extra base and the team's clutch hitting."

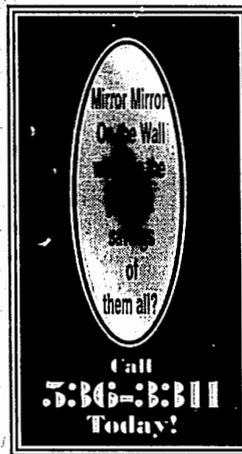

The Salukis open play at 11 a.m. Friday at the Mardi Gras classic when they battle the University of Mississippi.

Wichita State loses top scorer for rest of season

The Wichita State University men's basketball team will be without leading scorer and rebounder Jamie Arnold for the rest of the season. The 6-foot-8-inch senior forward was tossed from the team because of a dispute with head coach Randy Smithson during Wichita's game against Evansville Saturday.

Arnold leaves the Shockers with averages of 15 points and 9.1 rebounds per game this season. Smithson, who met with Arnold for about an hour Sunday evening, would not comment on specifics about the dismissal.

"Let's just say I think Jamie and myself both think that we did the best we could," Smithson told the Wichita Eagle. "We just didn't get it completely finished."

In Saturday's game, there was a confrontation between Smithson and Arnold, with the newspaper reporting Arnold made "a couple of defiant smiles" toward the coach. When Smithson ordered the forward to the locker room during the first half, Arnold instead left the bench and sat in the stands.

Arnold had started the season out strong, averaging 17.3 points and more than 10 rebounds through the first 11 games of the season, and became the 30th player in school history to score 1,000 points. But Arnold was taken out of the starting lineup the past five games and had scored just nine points in his last three appearances.

Boston's Abrams receives one-game suspension

Boston College University forward Danya Abrams will be forced to sit out Wednesday's game against the University of Miami after he was ejected for fighting in Sunday's win against Seton Hall University.

Abrams was tossed with 8:10 left in the first half after he became entangled with Pirates center Jacky Kaba under the B.C. basket. Abrams fell to the court holding his eye and soon after jumped to his feet to go after Kaba. Kaba, who was around the top of the key, was tackled by Abrams, who proceeded to land a few punches to Kaba's skull. Abrams was restrained by Eagles head coach Jim O'Brien and referee Bob Donato and immediately was ejected.

Abrams leads the team by averaging 16.5 points and eight rebounds per game.

Kentucky's Anderson facing legal problems

University of Kentucky star basketball guard Derek Anderson faces a March 12 hearing in a Jefferson County, Ky., court after his arrest early Monday morning for running a red light and driving with a suspended driver's license. He was released on his own recognizance after entering an innocent plea to the charges.

The arrest comes as Anderson tries to work his way back into playing condition. It was thought he would miss the rest of his senior season because of reconstructive knee surgery performed last month, but Anderson was back on the court Saturday, taking part in warm-up drills before a home win over the University of Florida. However, there is no indication he will be back in game action anytime soon.

At the time of the injury, Anderson was leading the Wildcats with 18.6 points a game, while also averaging 3.7 assists and two steals a game.

SIUC demands softball glory

TO BE THE BEST:

SIUC's softball coach pushes the team toward a conference championship.

DONNA COLTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For SIUC softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, the 1997 season is geared toward one goal — SIUC's first Missouri Valley Conference championship since 1991.

"Our final goal is an MVC championship," she said. "Our daily goal is to reach that goal at the end."

The Salukis open its regular season Friday in Monroe, La., at the Mardi Gras Classic.

1997 Softball Outlook

SIUC was picked to finish fourth in the MVC preseason polls behind Illinois State University, Southwest Missouri State University and Drake University.

The 1997 team has six seniors, six sophomores and eight freshmen, but even with the large number of seniors, Brechtelsbauer said the team has only two seasoned veterans.

"The team has little experience, with only two players who have started for three years," she said. "But we did get good experience in the fall."

The 1996 Saluki softball team finished fourth in the conference with an 11-9 record and 26-21 overall, but lost all-conference and all-region selections Christine Knotts and Jami Koss to graduation.

Despite the losses of Knotts and Koss, Brechtelsbauer said the team has many added improvements for this season.

"We have improved our pitching staff," she said. "We have two freshmen and one senior, so we have more depth than in past years."

The senior pitching staff veteran for the Salukis is Jamie Schutteck from Herrin, who is an MVC preseason all-conference selection.

Schutteck pitched in 36 games for the Salukis during the 1996 season, recording 126 strikeouts, 17 wins, eight shutouts and five saves. Schutteck also recorded a school-record 41 RBIs for the Salukis.

The two freshmen joining the Salukis this season are Carissa Winters from Herrin, and Tracy Rempescher from Florissant, Mo.

Brechtelsbauer said the team also needs to concentrate on its batting average if it wants to finish at the top of the Valley.

"We want to keep our hitting at the top of the league, in terms of batting average and defense," she said. "If we do those things, we may have a legitimate chance."

The Salukis finished third in the Valley last year in hitting, with a .289 team batting average. They were led by junior Becky Lis, who batted .396 from the plate.

Lis, an all-MVC preseason pick, said the team's hitting is new and improved this season.

"Our hitting is going to come through," she said. "We have quickness, so a player can put down a slap bunt and surprise the defense. And we have power hitters and clutch hitters."

Brechtelsbauer said the Salukis have been working on conditioning by doing strengthening exercises and softball skills to increase hand and foot speed.

THE CRACK OF THE BAT: SIUC softball player Maggie Calcaterra, a senior from Herrin, works on her batting during practice at the McAndrew Stadium Monday afternoon. The Salukis softball season starts Friday when they travel to Monroe, La. for the Mardi Gras Classic.

Shockers extend Saluki losing streak

OUTPLAYED AGAIN:

Dawgs drop fourth game in a row at Wichita State.

RYAN KEITH
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Wichita State University hit 12 three-point field goals without star forward Jamie Arnold en route to a 92-82 win over the SIUC men's basketball team Monday night in Wichita, Kan.

Wichita State played without leading scorer and rebounder Arnold, who was suspended for the rest of the season by coach Randy Smithson Sunday for his actions during the Shockers' loss to Evansville University Saturday.

The Shockers took control of the game offensively in the second half and took advantage of Wichita St. 92 t h e Salukis' struggles inside to strengthen its hold on seventh place in the Missouri Valley Conference at 7-8 and 13-10 overall.

The Salukis dropped their fourth straight game after winning five games in a row, and fell to 6-10 in conference play and 13-14 overall. SIUC stayed ahead of Indiana State University and Drake University for eighth place in the conference.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said the Shockers' rebounding played a big factor in their win.

"They really beat us on the boards," Herrin said. "They capitalized on that and even though we forced 14 turnovers in the first half, we just couldn't get anything going."

SIUC once again placed four players in double figures in scoring, led by junior guard Troy Hudson with 26 points and junior forward Rashad Tucker with 21 points. Sophomore forward Monte Jenkins added 19 points, while junior guard Shane Hawkins rounded out the quartet with 14 points.

But SIUC could not find an inside scoring threat Monday night. The trio of sophomore forwards James Jackson and James Watts and seipior center Jamie Veach combined for just two points in the game.

After a slow start, Wichita State opened up a nine-point lead twice during the half, but the Salukis cut the lead to 37-32 heading into the locker room, led by Jenkins' 12 points.

The Salukis shot poorly from the field in the first half, and Hudson, who leads the nation in three-point field goals made per game at 4.8, scored seven points but did not hit a three-point field goal. In the second half, Wichita picked up right where it left off at halftime. The Shockers used a 13-7 run to take a 50-39 lead with 15:33 remaining and, after a short Saluki run, sparked by eight points from Hudson, opened a 60-49 lead with ten minutes left.

Down the stretch, the Shockers answered each Saluki run with a key basket or free throws to maintain their lead. Wichita hit several key three-pointers to open up a 83-64 lead with three minutes remaining.

The Salukis are now assured of opening the MVC Tournament in St. Louis Feb. 28 as part of the league's bottom four teams. Games at Evansville University Saturday and at home against Southwest Missouri State University Monday round out SIUC's regular-season schedule.
